Committee rules BAC innocent of travel fund misuse

By Steve Kropla
Staff Writer

The Student Senate's Campus Internal Affairs Committee (CIA) ruled Tuesday night that the Black Affairs Council (BAC) did not violate its constitution or Senate Finance Committee Guidelines pertaining to travel expenses.

The ruling was issued following a hearing into charges made by Senator Mike Curtiss that the BAC allegedly used travel funds inappropriately.

Curtiss opened his argument by asking that the BAC be charged with inappropriate use of University vehicles.

Curtiss cited an example that the BAC checked out a vehicle to go to Marion on July 14 and that it was returned with 236 miles registered on the odometer.

John Wesley, BAC comptroller, responded that the vehicle to Marion had been checked in with 47 miles registered.

Wesley said that Curtiss had misread a computer-printed mileage report on vehicles used by the BAC. He said the 236 miles had been driven on another van checked out the same day that was taken by the BAC on the Mississippi River.

Mileage records and vouchers for that trip and other trips cited by Curtiss were presented to the CIA by BAC Fiscal Advisor John Wayne Anderson.

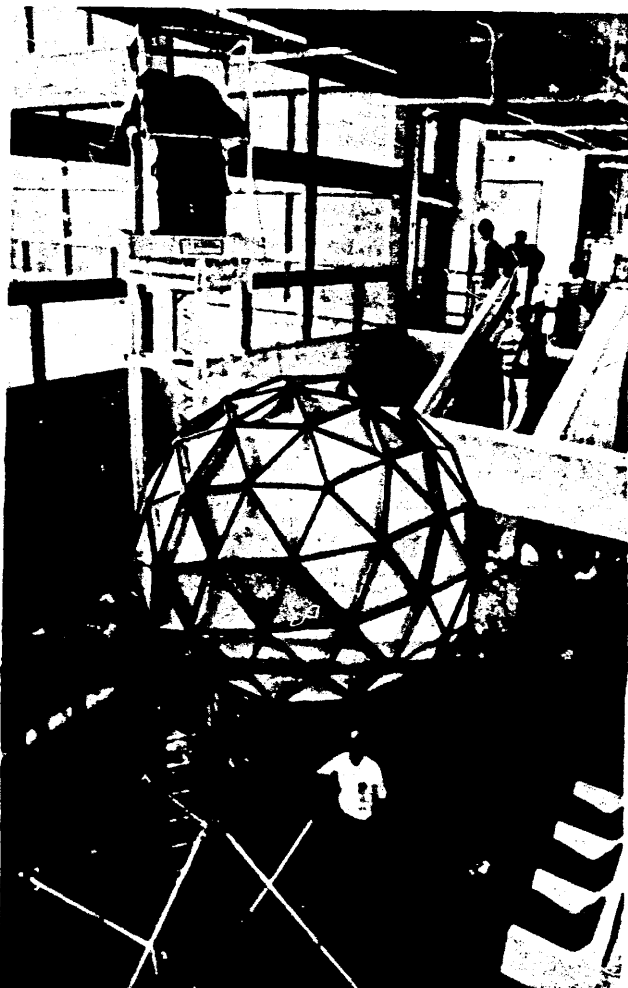

The mileage charges were not among the original charges filed against the BAC. The CIA admitted the information pertaining to travel vouchers into the hearing because of a section in the 1976 Finance Committee Guidelines that applies to monies.

The BAC is subject to the 1976 guidelines since those guidelines were in effect when the Fee Allocations Board allocated the BAC's budget.

Those guidelines put a travel allowance limit of seven cents per mile up to $100 on vehicles used by student organizations.

The CIA ruled that the BAC had paid for the mileage driven on the vehicle and that none of the trips had exceeded the $100 limit.

Under new finance guidelines adopted this year, money allocated from student funds may not be used for travel expenses.

Shah greeted by tear gas

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Shah of Iran was greeted at the White House by a 21-gun salute and the sting of tear gas Tuesday as rival groups of demonstrators clashed near the presidential gates in the capital's largest and bloodiest street protest since the end of the Vietnam war.

President and Mrs. Carter, the Shah and Empress Farah forged coolly through formal welcoming ceremonies on the south lawn of the White House despite the raucous disturbance within earshot and a cloud of tear gas that permeated the offices of the mansion and surrounding buildings.

At least 20 police officers, and 85 demonstrators from among thousands of both supporters and critics of the Shah were injured in a melee, which erupted on the Ellipse just south of the White House, as the Iranian leader arrived via helicopter.

A dozen persons were arrested, two for assault on a police officer and the others for disorderly conduct.

Most of the injuries did not appear serious, though a hospital spokesman declared "We've got a lot of bloody faces." One older man, however, was taken to surgery with a fractured skull and was described as in critical condition.

President Carter dabbed his eyes with his thumb, and the Shah use a silk handkerchief as they exchanged words of greeting and friendship before heading inside the White House for private talks. Carter apologized for "the temporary air pollution in Washington" as the Shah presented him with a tapestry portrait of George Washington.

The first lady and Empress Farah, meanwhile, went to tea as mounted police were clearing the grounds nearest the executive mansion of the rival factions whose shows of strength, originally separated, were drawn inextricably closer and then to the flash point.

Even after the Ellipse was cleared, thousands of hooded, anti-Shah Iranian students regrouped in a park just north of the White House—and within a block of the Shah's guest quarters—to jeer him upon his afternoon departure for a State Department meeting.

One small band broke away at 2 p.m. to rush a diplomatic car which the students claimed contained Iranian secret police. The car was struck with clubs and sticks but sped away to safety.

Despite police lines aimed at keeping the student demonstrators away from the pro-Shah forces, mainly Armenians and Assyrians, the two groups converged on one another after their numbers had swelled into the thousands just before the Shah's arrival.

Efforts to impeach student veep fade; senators waiver

By Steve Kropla
Staff Writer

Support for a petition to impeach Student Vice President Sam Dunning dwindled Tuesday after Senator Gary Figgins, west side, attempted to initiate another petition calling for the impeachment of Student President Dennis Adamczyk.

Figgins said that one of the senators who signed the petition against Dunning, Kevin Wright, west side, withdrew his name from the petition Tuesday. Wright could not be reached for comment Tuesday night.

The petition would have still been valid, since only five Senate signatures are required on a petition for impeachment. However, Bob Saal, east side senator, said Tuesday night that he will also withdraw his signature should the measure be presented at Wednesday's senate meeting.

"When I signed, I was reading more into the petition than was there," Saal said. "I do not feel that the charges merit impeachment," he added.

The petition charged that Dunning neglected his duties by failing to present two bills passed by the Senate to Adamczyk within the two days required by the Student Government

Figgins said that "because" the movement to impeach Dunning was stopped, he would start a petition to impeach Adamczyk on the grounds that he is also in violation of the constitution because he is chairman of the Environmental Action Party.

The constitution states that neither the president nor vice president may serve as an officer on a recognized student organization.

Adamczyk said Tuesday the charge was "totally without foundation," citing that the word "recognized" refers only to groups officially recognized by the Student Senate. The EAP, like other campus political groups, is not recognized by the Senate, Adamczyk said.

"I did this strictly for shock value," Figgins said. "I wanted them to remove the petition against Sam." Figgins cast the only dissenting vote at a meeting Monday in which three other members of the Campus Internal Affairs Committee (CIA) recommended that Dunning be impeached.

Figgins also said that he will not start a petition to impeach SGAC Chairperson Josh Grier, as he suggested at the CIA meeting.

The petition had been considered on the grounds that Grier had not presented a monthly report on SGAC activities to the Senate, as required in the Student Government constitution.

Grier said Tuesday he had been working under the SGAC constitution, which has no such provision. He said he was unaware of the requirement in the Student Government constitution until Tuesday.

Student parties endorse candidates

By Phyllis Mattera
Student Writer

Two political parties currently involved in the Student Senate—the Action Party and the Environmental Action Party (EAP)—are both endorsing candidates in Wednesday's senate election. In that election, 24 candidates are listed on the ballot and will be vying for 20 vacant senate seats.

Bob Seal, chairman of the Action Party, said the following candidates are being endorsed by his party: East Side—Blair M-Dougall, Keith Kibler and Bob Sall; West Side—Nadia M. Fapillon, Mark Alan Rouzeau and Mike Waynen.

Candidates endorsed by EAP are East Campus—JoAnne Loeser and Melody Svec; Thompson Point—Janx Baker (write in candidate); West Side—Larry Luebbers and Eugene Frankowski.

Renee Miyachi, from the West Side, is being endorsed by both parties.

EAP Chairman Dennis Adamczyk failed to submit a list of candidates to the election commissioner by the deadline so all candidates endorsed by EAP will be listed as independents.

Thirteen other candidates are running independently.

Action Party Platform:

Students to be penalized?

Grading changes criticized at hearing

By Jean Neas
Staff Writer

Students will be unjustly penalized if they withdraw after the ninth week of classes under proposed grading system rules, says a spokesperson for the Student Life Office.

"I believe a majority of students who don't deserve an F if they withdraw from a class after the ninth week may be penalized," Sally Hendricks, coordinator of withdrawals, said at a hearing Monday.

She explained that students now withdraw from classes up until the 14th week for more reasons than those listed in the proposed rules.

The proposed grading systems changes which will affect all undergraduate students, were discussed by two members of the Undergraduate Education Policies Committee (UEPC) and a sparse crowd of six teachers and administrators and one student at an open hearing.

UEPC is studying the new rules to determine what effect they would have on the overall campus. UEPC, a Faculty Senate committee, will make recommendations to Frank Horton, vice president of academic affairs and research, who originated the grade change proposal.

Under the proposed rules, a W would be given for all withdrawals between the fourth and ninth week of a semester. After the ninth week, all withdrawals would result in an F, while withdrawals before the fourth week would not show up on a student's record.

Currently, students may withdraw up through the 14th week of the semester and receive a WP (withdraw passing) or a WE (withdraw failing) grade.

Hendricks offered information which showed that more than 25 percent of all withdrawals from school each semester take place between the 10th and 14th weeks. This does not include the percentage of students who drop only part of their class load.

Claiming that an increasing number of students are dropping classes because of financial reasons, Hendricks said she did not feel the grading system would be serving students and their needs.

Personal, academic and health reasons also are frequent reasons for student withdrawals.

Suggesting that students would seek incompletes (INC) if withdrawal grades were not available, Hendricks said abolishing the WE and WP grades would create "a giant headache for instructors."

Currently if an INC grade is not changed to a letter grade by the instructor within a year, it automatically becomes a failing grade.

Under the proposed rules, an INC would be given to allow students to finish class work within one year. Instructors would give INC grades when students are unable to complete their work because of medical reasons or reasons beyond their control.

If a student failed to complete class work within one year, the INC would be permanent on his transcript.

"The whole grading policy puts everything back in the hands of the instructor," Kirby Browning, director of admissions and records, said. "There would be little chance for students to abuse the new grade policy. They can escape penalty under the present withdrawal system."

Eugene Dybvig, UEPC member, said the proposed rules would "not remove all humanity" from the system. An appeal process will be available to students who question the grade they receive.

Pass-fail grading changes were opposed by Ricardo Caballero-Aquino, Graduate Student Council (GSC) vice president. Maintaining that allowing pass-fail grades of A or B to be changed to the letter grade offers incentive, Caballero said and asked that pass-fail grades remain the same.

Under the current system, pass-fail grades of A or B may be changed to a letter grade, but this option would not exist under the new rules.

Caballero also suggested a compromise on a cut-off week for student withdrawals to give students more time to get the paper work done.

Although the new rules would not affect graduate students, Caballero said he was trying to speak on behalf of undergraduates.

A third proposed change which would eliminate the PR (work in progress) grade was challenged by Patricia Carrell, chairman of the Linguistics Department. Carrell, who teaches a required linguistics class for foreign students, said she felt her students would be hurt if PR is abolished.

Jewish groups to organize protest in front of Shryock

By Chris Macalich

Hillel Foundation and the Israeli Student Union will be demonstrating against the oppression of the Jewish people in the Soviet Union 7 p.m. Thursday in front of Shryock Auditorium.

The Yafan Ukrainian Dance Company, visiting from the Soviet Union will perform in the auditorium this evening. Glad Freund, member of both Jewish organizations, said there will be about 50 students demonstrating outside Shryock to inform the audience and the performers about the Jewish crisis in the Soviet Union. He said the group will specifically demonstrate for Stella Goldberg, a Moscow cellist, who consistently has been denied an exit visa from Russia.

Freund said Goldberg is an example of more than 150,000 Soviet Jews who have applied to leave the Soviet Union to go home to Israel. He said the refusal by the government to allow the Soviet Jews to defect is contrary to the basic human rights guaranteed by the 1975 Helsinki pact.

Freund said the demonstrators hope that the message, free the Jewish people in the Soviet Union, will be carried back to that government by the dancers or the secret police who escort the dancers.

He said since 1968, more than 100,000 Soviet Jews have left the Soviet Union partly because of the demonstrations held at Soviet Union sponsored events.

S-Senate to consider action on booth, funding requests

The Student Senate will act Wednesday night on a request to set up a booth to distribute Student Buying Power Cards (SBPC) at the Registration center in Woody Hall.

The request was made by Robert Saal, east side senator and chairman of the senate's Student Services committee. Saal said the booth would enable more effective distribution of the cards to students.

The cards are free to student and require only the holder's signature to become valid. They offer student discounts at 13 businesses in Carbondale, Marion and Herrin, including restaurants, auto supply and tire stores, and a supermarket.

The cards had been distributed at booths in the Student Center earlier this year.

The senate will also consider a request for $111 from the Coalition Against Racial Exploitation (CARE) to present two speakers and a movie about South Africa titled "The Last Grave at Dimbasa."

Sam Dunning, student vice president and senate chairman, said three other bills will be considered. They will concern funding requests by the SIU Sport Parachute Club, the Student Government Activities Council (SGAC) and the student typewriter rental program, he said.

Dunning would not give further details on those requests.

Bakalis to choose own running mate

By Andris Strummins
Staff Writer

SPRINGFIELD—Michael Bakalis, the Democratic Party's gubernatorial candidate, has announced that he himself will choose who will campaign with him as lieutenant governor.

Bakalis and five others were slated by the Democratic State Central Committee in a meeting here Tuesday.

The Democrats' candidates include Hinsdale lawyer Alex Seith for U.S. senator; Roland Burris, formerly Gov. Daniel Walker's director of general services; for comptroller; and Alan Dixon for re-election as secretary of state.

Also chosen were Richard Troy as attorney general, and Jerry Cosentino for treasurer.

State Democratic Chairman John Touhy, Cook County Democratic

Chairman George Dunne, Dixon and Bakalis had met Sunday and had reportedly decided who to recommend for the slate. Their recommendation had included Grace Mary Stern for treasurer and Chicago attorney Patrick Murphy for attorney general. However, the 24 state central committeemen who met Tuesday decided to support Cosentino and Troy for the positions.

In the past, the Democratic state central committee has decided who will run for lieutenant governor. Bakalis' candidate for the lieutenant governor's position may include representative Richard Luft, D-Pekin who had gone before the slatemakers as a candidate for comptroller. In a televised interview Tuesday night, Bakalis, who described himself as an underdog, said he would be willing to debate Gov. James Thompson in next year's campaign.

Official foresees no tuition hike or 10.5 percent faculty raise

By Mark Edgar
Staff Writer

SPRINGFIELD—First, the good news:

A hefty tuition increase will not be approved for the second straight year because of fierce opposition from angry students, law makers and University administrators, predicts the state's top higher education official.

Next, the bad news:

James Furman, executive director of the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE), also said Tuesday that SIU-C's faculty have no chance of receiving a 10.5 percent pay raise requested in next year's budget.

In an interview, Furman said, "A series of very imposing hurdles" will block the passage of a tuition hike.

"I wouldn't be putting much money on the chances, no matter what IBHE recommends," Furman said in a December meeting.

The SIU Board of Trustees okayed a 96¢ a year tuition increase last March under pressure of an IBHE policy which calls for undergraduates to pay one-third of their instructional costs.

Under the policy, which the IBHE wants met by 1979-80, SIU-C students would be paying $63 more per year. Last year's increase, the first since 1972, raised tuition to $524 a year.

Furman said, "The odds are against a tuition hike because students obviously don't want it...and there is a great deal of resistance."

Tuition at SIU-C has jumped 316 percent since 1967 when the charge was $296 per year, while in the last 10 years, the cost of living has gone up 101 percent.

Despite Furman's forecast, President Warren Brandt has said in published reports, that he believes tuition will go up next fall. "It wouldn't surprise me," he said. "Increased costs of education are just a part of life..."

In an effort to offset a possible tuition increase, Furman said the IBHE will propose that Illinois State Scholarship Grants be re-instituted next summer. The grants have been discontinued for the last two years because of the shortage of funds.

As to the faculty salaries, Furman, noting the tight financial condition of Illinois, said SIU-C's 10.5 percent pay raise request will "certainly" be cut.

"It is beyond the realities of fiscal stringencies," although the University can justify the salaries, Furman said. Faculty received an average 5 percent salary hike this year.

To meet the growing price of higher education, Furman called on the legislature to raise the state income tax. "We don't think higher education has been treated equitably in the last five years," he said.

Furman cited a study which showed that Illinois was among the leaders in providing for Universities, but that in the last 10 years the state has ranked 47th in funding increases. The study said only Montana, South Dakota and Vermont trailed Illinois.

"Ultimately, the people of this state will realize that the income tax, relatively speaking, places far less of a burden on our citizens than in many, many other states," Furman said.

Furman also said it is unlikely a veterinary school will be built at SIU within the next year.

Fish Net information will go to Department of Agriculture

By Rich Gabbe
Staff Writer

Information regarding an investigation of the Fish Net Pet Shop conducted by the Humane Society of Carbondale will be turned over to the Bureau of Animal Health Division of the Illinois Department of Agriculture, Don Testa, assistant manager of the Humane Society, said Tuesday.

Testa is one of two Humane Society employees who investigated the pet shop, located in the Murdale Shopping Center, after Adrienne Thomas, a senior in zoology, complained to the Humane Society.

A letter by Thomas, a copy of which appeared in the Nov. 10 issue of the Daily Egyptian, cited "cruelty of the Fish Net in dealing with animals they sell."

However, Paul Richell, owner of the Fish Net, said "this isn't the first time this girl has made complaints. The laws in Illinois are strict. They inspect us every one to four months."

"We've had excellent reviews about our store. All this does is add to our business."

Richell added, "If the Humane Society sees something they don't like, they tell you about it right away."

Testa said that the Humane Society "was still working" on the investigation. He said it is usual procedure in matters like this to turn the information over to the Department of Agriculture.

"It's up to the state to enforce those laws regarding animals," he said.

Gary Thies, manager of the Fish Net, was notified by the Humane Society of the investigation, but said there were no problems in his store.

"There is not much you can do about the investigation. I don't feel she (Thomas) was right. It was a crackpot shot," Thies said.

Thies said the letter Thomas wrote was turned over to the store's attorney for advice on the matter.

Thies said the pet shop "has been open too long to be cruel to our animals."

The letter had charged that "it was disgusting to see fishy fish tanks with dead fish and puppies confined to cages that are too small."

Carbondale library granted zoning request for expansion

By Andria Straumanis
Staff Writer

The Carbondale Public Library has been granted a special use zoning request for its proposed expansion into a house at 308 W. Walnut, but parking requirements for the lot will first have to be met.

During a special formal meeting Monday night, the Carbondale City Council approved the request 4-0, with one abstention. The council decided, however, that the library will first have to find three additional parking spaces for the lot.

The city's zoning ordinance requires six off-street parking spaces for the library's request, and this fact has hindered council action on the issue.

The council was to decide whether to grant the request earlier this month, but postponed action until the parking problem was resolved.

Three spaces are available on the lot, and James Rayfield, the city's planning director, has recommended that the library lease the three additional spaces from the city. Additional parking spaces are located on a lot used by a nearby church.

According to the resolution passed Monday the city manager's office will have to be satisfied that the parking requirements have been met.

During the informal meeting which followed, the council decided to bring back to formal action the final approval of the Bicentennial Industrial Park subdivision. The subdivision will allow the city to divide the park into parcels for sale.

The industrial park, which contains about 100 acres, is located at the corner of McCroy Drive and Dillinger Road.

Sadat accepts Begin's offer to travel to Israel

JERUSALEM (AP)—Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin formally invited Anwar Sadat to Israel in response to the Egyptian president's offer to make such a trip to try to end the "vicious circle" that has kept the Middle East at war for three decades. In Cairo, Sadat called the proposed visit, which would break the Arab taboo against any leader visiting Israel, a "sacred duty."

Sweetener Xylitol causes cancer in mice

STONY BROOK, N.Y. (AP)—The natural sweetener xylitol, used in Wrigley's widely advertised Orbit chewing gum, has produced bladder cancer in laboratory mice, the National Institute of Dental Research reported. A Wrigley executive said the experimental findings were preliminary and showed no discernible public health problem from xylitol, a substance many times sweeter than sugar. The Food and Drug Administration currently permits xylitol to be used as a sweetener only in chewing gum.

Use vote to protest MEG

Two referendums on today's Student Senate election ballot deserve your attention. The questions they pose affect both the quality of your life and your pocketbook.

One referendum asks whether SIU should discontinue its support of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG). The other asks what programs the debt-ridden Health Service should provide and how they should be funded. A discussion of the Health Service referendum appears elsewhere on this page. Inform yourself on the alternatives and vote.

The MEG referendum asks students, for the first time, whether the University should discontinue its support of MEG, an undercover drug unit. At present, SIU donates two University police at a cost of nearly $30,000 in salaries.

President Warren Brandt has said that "students expect the University to exercise considerable effort to maintain a lawful environment." Brandt has not supported that statement by revealing just how many students he has polled on SIU's support of MEG, except to say that "many students have expressed strong opinions to me that they believe the University has such a responsibility." If Brandt is not speaking for you, vote YES on the MEG referendum.

Student President Dennis Adamczyk has worked tirelessly to get MEG off our campus and to end SIU's financial contribution to this undercover drug unit. He has studied MEG files in Chicago, written newspaper editorials against MEG activities, requested legal rulings from the attorney general on the propriety of SIU's financial support of MEG, asked the Board of Trustees to rescind SIU's donation of salaried police officers to MEG, presented arguments at City Council meetings against MEG funding, and won election on a platform endorsing decriminalization of marijuana. Both the American Medical Association and the American Bar Association support decriminalization of marijuana. Adamczyk's efforts in this area have been truly commendable, but he can't wage this battle alone. If you believe Adamczyk's goals are worthwhile, he deserves your support and you should vote YES on the MEG referendum.

One of the most insidious practices of MEG is the use of paid dormitory informers. Richard Pariser, director of the local MEG unit, said earlier this year that dormitory residents were used to provide information on students who use and sell drugs.

"There is nothing illegal about the use of informers," Pariser said. Perhaps not. But consider the moral implications of using University money to support MEG, which in turn pays students to spy on students. If you believe this practice is abhorrent, vote YES on the MEG referendum.

Another criticism leveled at MEG is its grandstand drug raid on University dormitories at the end of spring semester—a raid appropriately timed to coincide with MEG's request for state funds to continue its undercover work. Virgil Trummer, head of SIU security police, termed the arrests, which occurred in the early morning hours a week before finals, "untimely." Further "untimely" raids on SIU dormitories are not unlikely when state funding for MEG runs out. If you are against such publicity stunts, vote YES on the MEG referendum.

The question of funding for MEG is another area of controversy. Adamczyk has challenged the donation of two University police officers whose salaries are paid with state money. "Why should state appropriations given to SIU be donated to another state agency?" he asked. If you believe that University money should not be used to pay MEG agents, vote YES on the MEG referendum.

Whether or not you support decriminalization of marijuana, which would curb much of MEG's activities on campus, there is still the larger question of whether or not spending $1.2 million dollars in tax money to support MEG is the best way to curb drug abuse. If the purpose of all this money and activity is to decrease drug use and drug-related crime, then the money would be more wisely spent on drug education and rehabilitation programs. A pre-dawn dormitory raid does little to combat either problem. If you think that drug-related problems are better solved through education and rehabilitation, vote YES on the MEG referendum.

We can begin now to withdraw our support of MEG, which one legislator called "a noble experiment that didn't work." University support of MEG gives the illusion that something is being done to combat the problems of drug abuse. It's time to turn our energies to attacking the problems of drug abuse—in all its forms—in a more realistic and humanistic way. If you agree that MEG has done little to solve the problems of drug abuse, and that we should look for other alternatives, vote YES on the MEG referendum.

Referendum is students' chance to speak out on Health Service deficit

Last spring semester, student government held a referendum to determine support for a dental program for students. It was a fiasco. The referendum provided the students with zero information on what the program would offer and it has taken two semesters to get the student-approved program underway.

Today student government is sponsoring another referendum which will appear on the senate election ballot. Several of the questions deal with the alternatives for alleviating the projected $37,000 Health Service deficit. To avoid another fiasco, it is necessary to ensure that students have a clear understanding of the pros and cons of each alternative to be presented.

While an increase of $5 to $10 in student health fees is probably favored by few students, it would provide sufficient funds to decrease the projected $377,000 deficit for one year. If a $10 increase was approved by the Board of Trustees and incorporated into spring semester's medical fees, $180,000 would be generated—provided 18,000 students pay the fee. However, it is unfair to students to increase fees whenever there is a deficit if other alternatives are available.

Another alternative, increasing state funding, is popular. But realistically, it cannot be relied on since President Warren Brandt has stressed that Health Service should be funded by student fees. State funding for Health Service has continued to decrease in past years and it is absurd to think that the small percentage of students who vote in student government elections will substantially change the trend.

The third alternative, increased fees for X-rays and lab services, could help decrease the deficit without hurting too many students' pocketbooks. Students are currently charged $5 per X-ray, unless the student is an athlete or a student teacher. The $5 does not go the Health Service, but to the radiologist contracted by the University to administer the X-rays. The students not currently charged should be charged. The money from these payments should go to the Health Service. Another lab test, the pap smear, now costs $3.50. This charge could be increased, but it discriminates against women, who are the only ones who use the service.

A cutback in the programs offered, the fourth and poorly worded alternative in the referendum, has been the prime issue since alternatives to solve the projected deficit have been investigated. The referendum should list the four Prevention and Health Maintenance Programs offered and it should also list the primary care offered at the Health Service clinic. The referendum fails to do this. It must also be noted that there is considerable student support for primary care, Human Sexuality Services and Synergy. If this ambiguous referendum alternative is approved, it should be followed by a referendum on what programs should be cut. The two remaining prevention programs are Human Life Styling and Self-Care.

Perhaps the wisest choice for students would be to vote for a combination of all the alternatives. One lone alternative will never guarantee an eternally deficit-free Health Service.

EDITORIAL POLICY—The general policy of the Daily Egyptian is to provide an open forum for discussion of issues and ideas. Opinions expressed on the editorial pages do not necessarily reflect those of the administration or any department of the University. Signed editorials represent the opinions of the authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Editorial Committee, which is composed of the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, a member elected by the student news staff, the managing editor and an editorial writing instructor.

LETTERS POLICY—Letters to the editor are invited and writers may submit them by mail or in person to Editorial Page Editor, Daily Egyptian, Room 1347, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and should not exceed 250 words. Letters which the editors consider libelous or in poor taste will not be published. All letters must be signed by the authors. Students must identify themselves by classification and major, faculty members by department and rank, non-academic staff members by department and position. Writers submitting letters by mail should include addresses and telephone numbers for verification of authorship. Letters for which verification cannot be made will not be published.

Reporters' right to shield sources on shaky ground

By Garry Wills

Television reporter Daniel Schorr, in his new book, "Clearing the Air," is getting a good second play on his stirring appearance before the House Ethics Committee. That is where he gave his Patrick Henry speech of defiance: "To betray a source would be for me to betray myself, my career and my life."

Most journalists, facing less risk, go along with that rhetoric; and are thankful to Schorr for enunciating the norm in a position of some risk.

I have no quarrel with Schorr's practice in that situation (i.e., his acceptance of the Pike Report from a "leaker" he would not expose). What he did afterward is a different matter, on which journalists differ. But what troubles me is the thing fewest people seem willing to question—the principle itself.

What has made protection of sources such a sacred matter for journalists? I can see cases where it is vital—the endangered "whistle-blower" gives out information so those people can learn what they should have been told in the first place. The journalist promises protection to the whistle-blower, and gives it at the risk of imprisonment himself. Hero time. Fine.

But some leakers are far from heroic. They speak not against the repressive powers of government, but for and through them—e.g., Chuck Colson leaking duty information on Nixon's opponents. Besides, protection of sources often runs up against other principles dear to our legal ethos—for example, the right to confront one's accuser.

This matter arose last week in a case the Supreme Court refused to review. An Idaho paper turned up an apparent case of police abuse, and did a story naming two eyewitnesses who claimed the police officer in question had not identified himself before shooting at a suspect. The story led to the policeman's dismissal.

All open and aboveboard so far. But: The news story also claimed that an unidentified "police expert" challenged the policeman's side of the story. In a libel suit, the fired officer demanded to know who his accuser was. The reporter refused to name his source, and now faces the prospect of 30 days in jail for contempt of court.

The Reporters' Committee for Freedom of the Press is supporting the newsmen who balked at revealing his source. In this case, it is easy to take sides, even procedurally—it is doubtful the policeman's firing came from the unidentified source's word.

But stop a minute and put yourself in the policeman's position. In a court of law, expert witness against you is challengeable. The expert must present his credentials. Do you want to be publicly accused by an expert you cannot even find, much less challenge?

We are at the moment condemning Richard Helms because he felt duty to the CIA exempted him from disclosure of things under oath. He obeyed a secret government, so he felt no need to be candid to the open and professed government of the United States. Do journalists want to put themselves in that position? Can we decide who is trustworthy, though we deny that exclusive privilege to governments when they tell us to take the justice of an action on trust? Lyndon Johnson claimed his experts had all the knowledge necessary to conclude that the Vietnam War was a wise venture. We just had to trust his experts. We refused to take the government's word on such a matter. Why should others take a lone reporter's word or unknown people's expertise?

Students deserve sanitary environment

It is no wonder that Timothy Fritz and the other residents at Thompson Point have been complaining about getting sick from the food being served at their dormitory. Lantz Hall as well as the other food service operations of all campus dormitories have not been inspected for health code violations for nearly two years!

Since 1976, SIU-C has not been able to reach an agreement with the Jackson County Health Department, which had been contracted each year to provide environmental health services through Health Service funds.

Many of you recall that on Feb. 9, 1976, Trueblood Hall had a serious food poisoning outbreak that affected 342 students. It was advised that routine inspections of the campus food service operations be conducted periodically. Grinnell Hall and Lantz Hall were inspected by the health department after this outbreak and numerous violations were found. However, no further services were provided since no money had been allocated to the health department for additional services. To add to the problems, the SIU-C Office of University Legal Counsel claimed that the Jackson County Health Department has no authority to inspect or take enforcement action at a state institution.

SIU-C and the Jackson County Health Department have had meetings and a variety of correspondence for the last two years but have not been able to reach any agreement. In the meantime, the food service operations on campus continue to operate with no inspections being performed by a qualified sanitarian. I believe that the thousands of students being fed at these dormitories every day deserve the same sanitary conditions within their food service environment as they expect and receive outside of the University.

I realize the Health Service is in financial difficulty, but why should money be withheld for preventive health measures? The cost of treating hundreds of students during a food-borne outbreak cannot be compared to the cost of contracting the qualified services of the health department. There is no way the University can provide these services at a lower cost and I believe it is necessary to have an independent agency make the inspections on campus.

The time has come to let the students know the facts and demand the same services that others receive outside the University. The administrators have been negotiating too long now and should realize they are gambling with the health of the students.

Faculty isn't the only group that uses library materials

This letter is in response to an article in the Nov. 10 issue of the D.E. concerning the new guidelines proposed for faculty and staff library use.

The Faculty Senate voted that the "faculty should not be charged fines for overdue materials but (should) still be liable to lose borrowing privileges for abuse." There were several points which were not dealt with in this statement. When does accumulation of overdue books and periodicals change from academic necessity to personal convenience to abuse? How many overdue items should be allowed before being considered as abuse of library privileges? Have the 13 faculty members and two civil service workers, each having over forty overdue books, lost their library privileges? If they have not, one must question the effectiveness of the present system and whether it is fair to other members of the academic community, be they faculty, staff or students.

In the article, Herbert Snyder, mathematics professor, stated that faculty should not be fined and was quoted as saying that faculty members are the citizens of scholarship while students are only visitors and then added that in some cases, students are only tourists. This statement is insulting to serious students who consider the library and its resources as a major tool in receiving a quality education.

When discussing the pros and cons of faculty fines for overdue materials, those making statements should confine themselves to concrete facts and figures rather than basing statements on the position of students in the citizenry of scholarship. After all, the new guidelines do not affect student library fines.

The committee which established the proposed faculty usage guidelines should be commended for identifying a problem and attempting to correct this problem. Whether or not the proposal is workable, debates on the policy should be based on facts and not emotional appeals or insults to the academic status of students.

Criticism of 'River Niger' disregarded cast's feelings

The article concerning "The River Niger" in the Nov. 8 Daily Egyptian was embarrassing, not only for the students but for the cast. It wasn't necessary to degrade the play as Ms. Clarke did.

After reading the article on "The River Niger," I realized nothing could be that bad. I suppose Ms. Clarke, who so highly criticized the play, feels she could do better. Ms. Clarke must realize that these actors are not professionals. I know the actors put a lot of time and effort into the play. After all the practicing and getting the play together, Ms. Clarke had the nerve to say the show was weak and the performance was poor.

The Daily Egyptian stated, "The remarkable part was the fact that people paid to see it." Considering 50 cents isn't a lot of money and the writers of the Daily Egyptian probably got in free, that statement was uncalled for.

I could cite other examples of callousness in Ms. Clarke's article. Is she both judge and jury? I feel Ms. Clarke owes the cast of "The River Niger" an apology. Ms. Clarke displayed poor taste, including criticism without regarding the feelings of others.

Dorm cooks treat student 'just like mom used to'

I would like to express my sincere thanks to the cooks in Grinnell Hall, who have prepared my meals specially for me this month. Because of a stomach disorder I have been on a special diet that requires all of my food to be prepared separately from everyone else.

Considering the number of meals prepared in one day, fixing one special meal is not easy. But the food was always hot, and the cooks were always cheerful when I went to get my meal. Throughout the whole month, both the cooks and student workers would joke with me about the blandness of the diet, and tell me what I could and could not eat. They even cheered me when I found out that I could eat "regular" food.

While everyone else is complaining about the dorm food, I wanted to praise the people who prepare it. It may not be like home, but the people in the kitchen show concern, just like mom used to.

Upcoming wage increase is no 'pleasant surprise' for work-study students

This letter is in reference to the article, "Spring semester spells higher pay for student work," which appeared in the Nov. 10 issue of the D.E.

"A pleasant surprise" for student workers indeed! While the spring semester wage increase is pleasant, the "surprise" new policy of paying student workers who qualify for the federal work-study program only what they need is a ridiculous policy. Who is going to judge how much the student will be allowed to earn? The students in the federal work-study program are low-income to begin with. Where is the justice in allowing other student workers, supposedly from higher incomes, no limit on how much they may earn? Imagine the government instituting a similar program nationwide. All the wealthy workers in America would be forced to abandon their jobs, since they show no need.

This policy creates another problem. If the student work job requires specialized training and a student, after earning the amount allotted to him, is forced to quit, the school will have to spend more money in hiring another "needy" student worker. Additional effort will then be necessary to train the new individual for the job.

This system is reeking with ineffectiveness. The new policy is a surprise all right, but there is nothing pleasant about it, from either the students' side or the University's.

University has no right to free use of Rec Building

While reading the Daily Egyptian, I came across two very informative articles. Taken separately, they don't do anything other than inform. But when read together and put in the proper context, they

The first article, describing some sort of presentation, stated that the Co-Recreation Building is the only type of building in Illinois built and run exclusively by student fees.

The second article announced that a swimming meet would be held in the Co-Rec swimming pool.

The SIU Swim Team is not affiliated with the Intramural Department, nor are the racquetball and karate classes. How can the University be allowed free use of the Co-Recreation Building?

If the students who paid for this multi-million dollar country club cannot use it during certain "reserved" hours, the University should pay for part of its construction and upkeep. However, I would rather let the SIU teams and classes use the facilities they used last year. The pool in Pulliam Hall still holds water.

'Hard-core music freaks' dissatisfied with Arena's lack of rock entertainment

When are we going to get consistent big-name rock entertainment at SIU? It's about time that the person or persons who book rock acts into the Arena start producing some better shows. Half the year is gone and we have had the choice of only two rock acts: Frank Zappa and Kenny Loggins and Dave Mason. These shows were good, but neither of them is a big crowd drawer. Currently the following top acts are on tour: Doobie Brothers, Kansas, Steve Miller and Rod Stewart. Every one of these is playing Chicago St. Louis or Kansas City. Why can't we book them here when they are touring regionally?

There are a lot of us rock and rollers who would jump at the chance to see Aerosmith, Chicago, Yes, and any of the other top 25 rock bands. If the costs of bringing these groups here would cause a rise in ticket prices, that is to be expected. You can't see a big act in Chicago for $5. It's usually more like $8.

The Arena is a decent concert hall. Most of the seats are good and the advanced sound systems that top rock bands have would conquer the acoustics problem. So how about it? Let's get some rock here for us simple hard-core music freaks.

Student's dilemma becomes movie; wins second place

By Mary Feld

A monster movie. A movie about love. A cowboy movie. A war movie! The director is in a quandary. Just what should his film plot be? This director is no ordinary director, but the star of the film, "In Search of A Plot" which was created by Brian Colin.

"In Search of A Plot" is a ten-minute animated film which parodies many of today's film plots. It is currently being shown at the Chicago Film Festival, where it won a second place Silver Plaque award in the student category.

Colin, a senior in Cinema and Photography, said that he was "surprised and very happy" that the film won an award.

"In Search of A Plot" is about how hard it is to come up with an idea for a plot. Colin terms it "autobiographical" in that the film really shows the workings of his mind when he begins to think up ideas for a film.

"I wanted this film to be organic, to show how a person's mind can wander from subject to subject when searching for an idea. I tried not to have to cut it too much so that it would stay as a thought process," Colin said.

Colin came up with the idea for how hard it is to come up with an idea for a plot. Colin terms it "autobiographical" in that the film really shows the workings of his mind when he begins to think up ideas for a film they wanted to make.

"I decided then to make a film about how hard it is to come up with an idea for a plot for a film," Colin said.

Loren Cocking, Colin's faculty advisor, was "very enthusiastic" about the idea so the film making process began.

It took about a year and $350 to complete. Colin filmed it in the cinema lab, using a camera which shoots one frame at a time, as all animated films are shot.

Colin drew all the cels (each cel equals a frame) and constructed all of the background shots for the film. 700 cels and many assorted construction paper designs were used to give life to the characters of the film. The director is the main character drawing all the segments of the film together.

Colin does all of the speaking in the film, of the approximately 10 principle characters.

The music which plays throughout the film was written by John Frantz, who also performed the music for it.

The film is different from most animated sound films in that both the sound and the frames were worked on at the same time, while most films have the sound put on first then the frames are drawn to match.

"Loren did all of the sound mixing for the film. He was a very big help to me. I think he's great," said Colin or his advisor. "I first sent it to the Council on International Non-Theatrical Events (CINE), which is not so much a contest, but a clearing house for films. CINE takes all the films sent to it for one year and select the best, which are then sent out to compete internationally" said Colin.

Rich Malec

Brian Colin works on a current film using animation.

Colin's film won first place this year and is presently entered into an amateur contest being held this month in Glasgow, Scotland, as well as being shown in Chicago.

Someday Colin would like to see "In Search of A Plot" released to distributors so that it could be shown in theaters, which could bring him more exposure.

At present he has begun work on both a live action and an animated film.

"Most of the time my imagination is bigger than my money supply," stated Colin. His parents, who are both proud of the film, were the financial backers for "In Search of A Plot."

"There is a lot involved with making a film, but I enjoy it so much it hardly seems like work to me," Colin said.

Free trip to Mardi Gras offered

A free trip to the New Orleans Mardi Gras celebration is being offered to students by the Travel Committee of the Student Government Activities Council. Julie Marry, chairperson, announced. Mardi Gras, a traditional period with religious roots during which one indulges oneself to the maximum before Lent, is attended by hundreds of SIU students each year.

While student response to this semester's short trips to the Laserium show in St. Louis, the NIU football game in DeKalb, and the Eleven Point River in Missouri, has been good, Marry explained that the free trip is being given away to "stir up interest in the longer trips and the Travel Committee in general."

Registration forms for the drawing will be in the Thursday and Friday editions of the DE, as well as on Nov. 29 and 30. The drawing will be on Dec. 1 in the Student Activities Center on the third floor of the Student Center.

The trip, which is worth $104, includes round-trip Amtrak accommodations from Carbondale to

New Orleans and three nights at a Best Western Motel located close to the center of Mardi Gras activities, the notorious French Quarter. If the winner has already paid the $20 deposit which is required by December 1 to reserve a place on the trip, it will be refunded, Marry said.

Persons planning to go on the Travel Committee's six-day ski trip to Winter Park, Colorado from January 7-18 should pay their deposit by this Friday, Marry said. A trip to Padre Island, Texas is now "for sure" Marry said.

City given additional month to correct study of floodplain

By Andris Strassman
Staff Writer

Carbondale has been granted an extra 30 days in which to make its proposed changes to a floodplain study conducted by a Pennsylvania engineering firm for the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the city's public works director said Monday.

Bill Boyd, the director, said the city has been given the extension while it works out its recommendations on the study of Carbondale's floodplains.

With the added time, Carbondale now has until the first week in December to propose its changes to the study, which is part of the two-phase National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP).

The city is presently in phase one of the program—the emergency phase. Under this phase anyone within the city limits can purchase flood insurance.

The floodplain study was presented to Carbondale at a public hearing in late September. Following the hearing, according to NFIP guidelines, the city had one month in which to prepare its recommendations on the study.

Boyd said the city will be recommending changes in what he termed "little drafting errors" in the study. He said minor discrepancies exist between the floodplains shown in the study and the floodplains as they really are.

The floodplain is that area adjacent to a stream which would be covered by water during a 100-year flood.

The 100-year flood, on which the study was based, has a one percent chance of recurring each year.

The final version of the federal flood study should be released by October 1978. At that time Carbondale will enter phase two of the NFIP—the regular phase. In the regular phase the maximum flood insurance available under phase one will be doubled.

Also, sliding insurance rates will be substituted for the current flat rates, which determine the annual premium paid by policy holders.

During the one year before the final floodplain study is released, Carbondale will have six months in which to draw up a new floodplain ordinance, this one with stricter requirements for management.

'No smoking please' Thursday

by Chris Moeaich
Staff Writer

Thursday may be your lucky day. It is the day to save some change and possibly to begin saving yourself from one of the most common killers of man—cancer.

Thursday has been designated the day to take off from smoking by the American Cancer Society. Bruce Peterson, American Cancer Society public education chairman for Jackson County, said, "The drive is sponsored nationwide to get one-fourth of the smokers to quit for one day. It is thought that if people can quit for one day, they gain the confidence to quit forever."

To provide the incentive for people to quit for one day, the American Cancer Society has provided Peterson with pledge cards. The pledge cards, handed out by Peterson and members of the Environmental Center at SIU, contain the Surgeon General's warning against cigarettes and some facts about smoking and health.

Peterson, a non-smoker, said death from lung cancer is 10 times greater for smokers than non-smokers. He said cancer death rates are going down except for death from lung cancer. Since 1930, deaths from lung cancer have increased tenfold, he said.

Peterson said despite those statistics, people have trouble being interested in long-term health. He attributes that to the social attitudes and advertising which makes cigarette smoking acceptable.

I Need Witnesses!

I was forced off the road on Halloween night at 5:30 p.m. in front of the Physical Plant. I was travelling north-bound on U.S. 51 when a truck pulled out in front of me and I was forced into the ditch. If you are one of the three people who saw the wreck, please call Gary Greeves at County Mutual Insurance (684-3127) or reply to P.O. Box #2 c/o Daily Egyptian. I need witnesses to be able to collect my insurance.

Deadline nears for ski trip

Friday is the last day to put down deposit for the SGAC-sponsored Colorado ski trip.

A $50 deposit is required for students who are arranging their own transportation. A $75 deposit is required for students who will take the transportation furnished.

The trip will cost $125, plus an extra $86 for transportation. The full amount must be paid by Dec. 9.

Fire marshal says lit cigarette cause of trailer fire

Barney West, the Illinois State Fire Marshal, said Tuesday that an Oct. 10 fire at the New Era Trailer Court, New Era Road, may have been started by a lit cigarette left in a bed.

West said the fire originated in the east bedroom of the trailer, apparently in a smoldering mattress.

"It had been smoldering for quite sometime until it got air," West said. "Then it burst into flame."

West said he is continuing the investigation.

Two fires which occurred on Aug. 13 and 14 are also still being investigated, he said.

West said Jon Kluge, a Carbondale Police Department detective, is helping him in the investigation of the fires which occurred at the Vernell Robinson home, 637 E. Searing St., causing minor damages.

Court ruling may affect towing operators

By Dennis Sullivan
Staff Writer

A recent Illinois Appeals Court ruling which equates the removal of unauthorized cars from private property without the auto owners' permission with theft has had no effect on local private towing procedures, Carbondale tow truck operators say.

Joe Holmes, of Holmes Auto Service, U.S. Route 51 North, said that he doesn't plan to alter his method of requiring payment from all people who come to claim their cars.

"I don't intend to let them get the car without paying," he said.

When asked how he would prevent a person from taking his car, Holmes would only say, "that's my problem."

Holmes said his only requirement is for the property owner "to sign the tow bill authorizing the tow."

But Phil Gilbert, assistant city attorney, said cars which are towed in this manner may not be withheld from the car owner pending payment.

Gilbert said the situation evolved from a case which originated in Chicago as a result of a towing company which towed cars from private property and held the cars until the owners paid towing and impoundment fees.

The result of the ruling, Gilbert said, is that such procedures are now viewed as a violation of "due process of law."

Gilbert said the language of the decision "appears to refer to private property" rather than city property.

If this is true, Gilbert said, Carbondale's towing policy which deals with "parking in illegal places, obstructing traffic and having an excessive number of tickets" will remain unaffected.

Linda MacLachlan, an attorney at Land of Lincoln Legal Aid, 203 W. Main St., said the removals from private property will now be viewed as theft.

"Theft," she said, "is the taking of property without the owner's permission."

MacLachlan said that situations where a car has been towed from private property aren't in violation of Carbondale ordinances and without the approval of the owner, the towing agency can't retain the car for "ransom."

There are, however, two ways for the towing agency to get its money, she said.

"They can sue the individual for the money," she said. "A lot have been doing that, plus attorney's fees."

"The other alternative," she added, "is to require that the property owner pay in advance."

Much of the automobile towing in Carbondale is, however, limited to the University and the city.

Buschleaguers win flag football title

By Gordon Engelhardt
Student Writer

The Buschleaguers defeated the Machine, 16-6, in the Division A flag football championship game Tuesday, due mainly to brilliant pass blocking for quarterback Dave Figueira. By contrast, Machine quarterback Steve Tock was constantly harassed throughout the game, including being caught for a safety.

The Machine opened the scoring on a 30-yard pass from Tock to Ron Barkley, midway through the first quarter. The extra point attempt failed.

Figueira countered with a 20-yard scramble from a broken play. Figueira hit John Flowers on a down-and-out pass for the extra point.

The Machine was hampered by penalties during the first half, in addition to Tock's being under constant pressure from the Buschleaguers defensive line.

The Buschleaguers controlled the ball the entire third quarter, scoring on a 30-yard pass from Tock to Ron Barkley because of a penalty.

Figueira completed four of five passes in the quarter, plus two completions that were called back.

One of the nullified pass plays was a screen to John Flowers for an apparent 11-yard touchdown. This failed to upset the Buschleaguers as they finally culminated the drive by scoring on a 22-yard flea flicker from Figueira to Tony Hise to Figueira to Kevin Boaz. Flowers again caught a pass for an extra point, giving the Buschleaguers an eight-point lead.

Whites beat Maroons, 52-50, in mistake-prone intrasquad tilt

By Bud Vandersaich
Staff Writer

If the women's intrasquad basketball game Monday night would have been a television series, it might have been canceled. The women have been relieved, however, and Coach Cindy Scott has vowed that the return engagements this season will produce better ratings.

Scott divided her squad evenly for the only public scrimmage of the year and the Whites struggled to a 52-50 win over the Maroons. Both varsity and junior varsity teams played in the contest, with each squad competing among themselves for 20 minutes.

Turnovers were plentiful as both sides made several bad passes. Both teams tried to run the fast break, but the running games were thwarted by bad outlet passes.

Scott did not enjoy watching the turnovers, but she was pleased with the fact that her players were looking for the outlet pass. She said the Salukis will have an effective running game once the passing problems are solved.

"The outlet for the break just was not there tonight (Monday)," Scott said, "but we'll improve. We ran our offense well, but we just didn't hit the open player. I'm not that worried, though. We're going to be good and we're going to surprise some people."

Both man-for-man and zone defenses were employed by both teams. Scott said she was satisfied with the movement of the zone defenses. No full-court pressure was used, but Scott promised that she will begin to drill her players on pressing defenses.

While the sloppy passing may have given Scott a headache at times, she found relief in the performance of Lynn Williams. The 5-7 sophomore from Costa Mesa, Calif., scored 12 points for the Maroons in a losing effort and was one of the few players who was immune from a multitude of mistakes. Williams scored from inside and outside and she also moved well without the ball on offense. Her performance did not go unnoticed by Scott.

"Lynn worked harder than anyone else," Scott said. "Her play did not really surprise me because she has been playing well in practice. She's a good all-around player."

Jeri Hoffman of the winning White team lead all scorers with 14 points. The 6-0 junior popped in a few outside jump shots and also drove the basket well. Scott thought the Hammond, Ind. native played respectably, but she said Hoffman needs to improve her movement away from the ball.

Bonnie Foley chipped in with 11 points for the Whites, while Jackie Lott added 10 for the Maroons. The junior varsity players on the White squad provided the margin of victory, as they outscored their Maroon counterparts, 20-14. Dee Stull of the Whites scored six points to lead all JV players who saw action in the game.

Robin Deterding, a 5-10 sophomore who just joined the basketball team Sunday after finishing the volleyball season, did not see action in the game. Scott said it will take time for Deterding to learn the offensive and defensive patterns, but she hopes the Granite City resident will be ready to see action in the season opener Dec. 2.

Another athlete will enter Scott's camp before the first regular season game. Helen Meyer will join the team following the appearance of the field hockey team in the national AIAW championship tournament Nov. 23-26 at Denver.

Scott said her team will be ready when it comes time to open the curtain on the regular season against Central Missouri at 8 p.m. Dec. 2 in Davies Gym. The game will be preceded by a JV contest at 6 p.m. against St. Louis.

last chance by intercepting a Figueria pass on the Machine's own 23. Tock promptly unloaded to wide receiver Rob Caltagirone who carried the ball to the Buschleaguer 15, but the play was nullified because of a penalty. The next play Tock was downed for a safety by Charlie Lehn, sealing the Machine's fate 16-6.

The Machine talked of protesting the game because John Flowers and Kevin Boaz are ex-Saluki football players. "We would have had to do it during the game, but we didn't," said Machine's Tock. "It would have been a cheap way to win the game."

Both quarterbacks had praise for the opposition. Tock said, "They're the first team to score two touchdowns on us all year. This is not a derogatory comment against our defense, it just means we should have scored again."

Figueria said, "They (Machine) were the most organized and cleanest team we played all year, and the best overall."

Figueria felt confident the Buschleaguers could win the game. "I saw them play before and we were confident. I thought we could throw in front of their safety all day because he played very deep."

Figueria's comment in summing up the season was, "we owe the championship to many nights of practice at the Dugout."

Squids lose two to Champaign club

The SIU basketball Squids lost to the Champaign-Urbana Black Knights Sunday in Mansfield. The Black Knights defeated the Squids in two games, 48-18 and 71-8.

Cheryl Toomey was high scorer in the first game with six points. In the second game Tim Marshall was the leading scorer with eight points.

"A definite improvement has been achieved, but more energy must be found on the offense," said Rich DeAngelis, defensive coach for the Squids.

Beg your pardon

It was incorrectly reported in Tuesday's Daily Egyptian that Stacy Hosman of Marion lifted 525 pounds for a meet record in the deadlift during Saturday's SIU Weightlifting Club meet. Hosman lifted 400 pounds in the bench press for the meet record.

Experienced Czechs to test Salukis in exhibition contest

By Jim Misunas
Sports Editor

The Salukis will test one of Europe's strongest basketball teams Wednesday at the Arena when they play the Czechoslovakian national team.

"The Czechs are one of the top half-dozen international teams in the world," said Saluki Coach Paul Lambert, who is starting his eighth season at SIU. Lambert said the Czechs have beaten the Russian national team, which is considered to be Europe's No. 1 team.

No reserved tickets will be sold for the 7:35 p.m. game, with seating arranged on a first-come, first-serve basis. Tickets are 50 cents for students, $1 for high school students and under and $2 for adults.

Lambert, who is 109-74 at SIU, will start five of his returning lettermen: Gary Wilson, Wayne Abrams, Barry Smith, Milt Muggins and Dan Kieszkowski. The sixth letterman, Al Grant, a 6-9 center, is hobbled with tendonitis of the knee and will not play.

Eight freshman recruits will be available for duty: Jim Linn, James Orr from Marion, Scott Russ, Joe Ossola from Collinsville, Jac Claiatt, Christopher Giles, Charles Moore and Anthony Frazier.

Junior college transfers Wendell Cooper and Bob Middleton round out the Saluki squad.

"We've got to see where we are offensively and defensively," Lambert said. "We've got to see what our players can do in a game situation."

"We're going to play to win, but we also want to see as many players as possible," he said.

Lambert said the Salukis will have to do several things to defeat the experienced Czechs, whose average age is 24.

"We'll have to control the tempo of the game, have patience and do a good job on the backboards. We'll just have to do the basic things that help a team win games," Lambert said.

Lambert characterized the Czech team as an all-around good team.

"They play very physical and also have good shooters," he said. "They do a great job of converting from defense to offense."

Lambert, who saw the Czechs lose to Bradley, 102-86, at Peoria Saturday, said Kamil Brabenec, a 6-3 guard, was the Czechs' best player in the loss.

The Czechs, 2-4-1, have six games remaining on their U.S. tour. The Czechs defeated Marymount, 103-86, and Tennessee-Chattanooga, 97-74, and tied Madison College (Va.), 88-88, in a game where the coaches decided before the contest that they wouldn't play an overtime if the teams tied.

The Czechs have lost to Louisville, 96-82; Indiana State, 79-74; Air Force, 74-67; Houston, 67-55; Texas-El Paso and Bradley.

Czech Coach Pavel Paterna said his team is tired from the constant traveling and rugged schedule—nine games in 12 days.

Paterna said, "The tour is good, though. It'll help our team prepare for the world championship next October in the Philippines."

The Czechs, who have eight players on the touring squad who played in the 1976 Olympics, lost their best player, Jiri Pospisil, when he broke his wrist in the Czechs' first game, Paterna said.

Paterna said his No. 2 player, Brabenec, wouldn't practice Tuesday in the Arena with the rest of the team because of sickness, but he hoped he would be able to play Wednesday.

Pavel Bojanovski, a 6-4 forward, is another top player, according to Paterna. Bojanovski hit nine of 11 shots and scored 22 points in the Bradley loss. Brabenec scored 24 points in the loss. Vojtech Petr and Vlastibler Klimes each added 10 points. Bradley's Roger Phegley led all scorers with 35 points and teammate Bobby Fumbles added 28 points.

Saluki tankers to battle No. 2 ranked Crimson Tide

By George Caslak
Staff Writer

The No. 2 ranked swimming team in the nation, the Alabama Crimson Tide, will compete against the Salukis in the first dual meet of the year for both teams at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Recreation Building pool.

The Tide is not an average team, as indicated by its national ranking (USC is the No. 1 ranked team), and Saluki Coach Bob Steele said they are a complete unit.

"Alabama is a very deep team," Steele said. "Not only do they have quantity, but they have a lot of quality—they are strong in every event."

The Crimson Tide will swim against SIU on their first stop of a three-school tour that includes Ohio State and Cincinnati.

Alabama has one world record holder, one American record holder and three NCAA finalists. Their world record holder is Jonty Skinner, who holds the record for the best time in the 100-meter freestyle. He did it in 49.44," Steele said. "He set the record right after the Olympic Games in the summer of 1976."

The team's American record holder, K.C. Converse, is the only man ever to break 15 minutes in the 1,650-meter freestyle. He set the record with a time of 14:57.3.

"I'm not sure he will be coming to the meet," Steele said. "He has been sick lately."

Mike Currington, Mark Tonelli and Carlos Berrocal are the Tide's three NCAA finalists.

Currington is a finalist in both the 200-yard butterfly and 200-yard individual medley. Tonelli and Berrocal are finalists in the 100-meter backstroke. Tonelli finished first in the event at the NCAA finals last year at Cleveland, Ohio, and Berrocal finished third in the event.

Steele said the Tide also has an excellent diver in Wayne Chester, a freshman from Texas.

"Chester is a good one," Steele said, "but I think our own Rick Theobald has a chance against him. Theobald has been working hard and has been looking very good (he won the diving events in Saturday's intrasquad meet). He is working on a back 2½, which is a difficult dive."

Steele indicated that the other divers are doing well also, and he feels the Salukis have a chance in both the one-and three-meter diving events.

"The medley relay might be close, depending on Dean Ehrenheim," Steele said.

"We'd like to be able to score 30 points, but it's going to be tough," Steele said. "We don't want to break out momentum, we just want to swim well and get some yardage in. We also want to prepare for the season."

A season that includes, according to Steele, the toughest schedule in Saluki swimming history.

Runner won't be sent to nationals despite qualifying

By Jim Misunas
Sports Editor

Despite meeting qualifying standards for the national cross country meet, women's runner Peggy Evans won't be sent by SIU's women's athletics department.

Evans qualified for the national meet scheduled Saturday at Austin, Tex., by placing ninth individually in the Midwest regional meet held Nov. 5 at Madison, Wis.

A runner had to place in the top 12 individuals other than runners on the top three teams to qualify for nationals.

Women's Athletics Director J. Lorette West said Evans isn't being sent because she doesn't feel sending her would be a wise expenditure of money. She added that a runner should be competitive, if she is to be sent.

West said, "If an individual is competitive, we'll send her." West said Evans, who finished 22nd at the state meet and 27th among all runners at the regional, probably wouldn't be "competitive" at the national level.

West claimed that even if the women's department had plenty of money Evans still might not be sent because the funds could be better used to purchase training supplies or athletic equipment.

"Southern has a good reputation of sending teams to nationals," West said. "With individuals we feel it's different."

West said the athletes in individual sports know what they have to accomplish in their sports to qualify for nationals.

"It's never a blind guess, they know what they need to do," West said.

In Evans' case it was required that she finish in the top 10 individuals in the regional before SIU would fund her.

West said if athletes in the women's department wish to discuss changes in policy they should raise complaints to the Student Athletics Advisory Board, which is a committee that reports to West. An individual from each women's sport serves on the committee.

"Things of this kind can be discussed there," West said.

Women's cross country Coach Claudia Blackman agreed with West, saying the athletes should speak to the committee.

Blackman said individuals have to earn their way to the national meet.

"If they are competitive they will be sent," Blackman said. "You have to earn it (a trip to nationals) so it's an honor to go."

A competitor's year in school, place and performance are considerations in sending an athlete, Blackman said.

Evans said she is disappointed in not going and wonders whether it's fair that she's not being sent.

"I'm disappointed," Evans said. "I don't have a grudge for not being sent, but the higher ups should be made aware of the situation if it's unfair."

Evans said she thought the tight money situation was the major reason she wasn't being sent.

She added that Southern would probably lose athletes in individual sports if they continued to not fund athletes who qualify for nationals.

Evans said, as she understood the situation, performance was a major factor in being sent to nationals.

She pointed out that last spring Jean Ohly, a distance runner, had met qualifying standards more than once for her event (the 5,000-meter race) but still wasn't sent to the national meet, because she was told she wouldn't be competitive.

Ohly said the decision of women's athletics to not send her to nationals despite meeting the qualifying standards will probably induce her to not tryout for the team next spring.

"It seems like they (women's athletics) want to send teams before they send individuals," Ohly said. She said women's athletics decision not to send Evans to nationals "was typical."

Cathy Chiarello, a runner who met the national qualifying standards for the 800-yard run last spring yet wasn't sent because of the tougher SIU standards for qualifying for nationals, summed up the situation from the athletes' viewpoint.

Chiarello said, "It's kind of unfair because you can qualify (for nationals) and still not be sent. They don't want to spend money if you're not going to place. They feel it's not worth the money."
