Visa check for Iranians in progress

By Shelley Davis
Staff Writer

Iranian students at SIU-C will meet with officials from the Immigration and Naturalization Service Tuesday for the visa check called for by President Carter earlier this month.

A location for the check was not made public in an attempt not to "draw a lot of attention to it," said Jared Dorn, assistant director of the Office of International Education.

Dorn said students are being informed individually where they should go for the check which will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The visa check will involve some 160 Iranian students and dependents at SIU-C. Twenty-five inspectors will be at the University and they expect to finish by 5 p.m., Dorn said. He added they will stay if all the students have not been checked by that time.

The students have been instructed to bring the following items with them for their interviews with an inspector:

- passport.
- Form I-94, the arrival and departure card received by foreign students when they enter the country.

Military training plan devised

Khomeini: Iranians unite against U.S.

By Alex Efty
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini raged against the United States on Monday and told his followers all Iranians must learn to handle weapons, drop their divisive arguments and unite with all their might against America or "we will disappear for good."

As attempts to solve the U.S.-Iranian crisis got under way at the United Nations in New York, Khomeini broadcast a speech from his headquarters at the holy city of Qom to revolutionary guards, asking that they mobilize against the "Satanic" power of America.

And 100 miles away, in Tehran, the 49 American hostages that are his price for return of the deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi spent their 23rd day as captives in Tehran's U.S. Embassy.

"An Islamic country ought to be a military one ... Everyone must learn shooting and military skills ... In addition to the religious equipment and faith that (the youth of our nation) possess, they must also be equipped with materials and arms ... A country that will have 20 million youths in a few years time, should have 20 million armed men," the Moslem patriarch said on Tehran radio, monitored in London.

Shortly afterward, the radio broadcast a statement from the guards' central headquarters saying it had formulated a nationwide program of military training for all which would be explained in further announcements.

Religious fervor heightened as Moslem leaders called for demonstrations and again alleged United States responsibility for invasion of the Grand Mosque, Islam's holiest shrine in Mecca, Saudi Arabia.

Tens of thousands gathered in an unusual night demonstration outside the occupied embassy, listening attentively to speeches then, on cue, bursting into deafening chants denouncing the U.S. government. Many wore white mourning shrouds signifying their readiness to die for Islam. "Death to Carter, death to the Shah," they shouted.

The embassy has become a place of pilgrimage for thousands of devout Moslems who travel there from all over Iran to denounce "infidel America" in response to the appeals of Khomeini.

The hostages, held inside the embassy buildings since militants took it over Nov. 4 and demanded the shah be extradited from New York, where he is undergoing cancer treatment, have had their first American visitor.

Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, described the hostages as well but worried after a brief visit with 20 of them Sunday.

The congressman, here on a personal mission to solve the stalemate, does not have the Carter administration's approval, and White House press secretary Jody Powell said on Monday that Hansen's independent negotiations could prolong the holding of the hostages.

Resolution tabled opposing fee increase

By Ray Robinson
Staff Writer

After listening to a defense of the proposed $10 increase in the athletics fee by Vice President for University Relations George Mace Monday, the Intercollegiate Athletics Committee voted to table for the second time, a resolution opposing the fee increase.

The resolution was originally put forward by committee member Tom McGinnis at a meeting on Nov. 5. The IAC is scheduled to meet again next Monday to vote on the resolution.

Mace told the committee that he and his staff had consistently said they would not seek an increase in the fee until it was absolutely necessary, but added, "the time for a fee increase has arrived."

When the athletics fee of $10 per quarter ($15 per semester) was first imposed in 1968, the money was designated to be used only for scholarships and athletics facilities.

He said inflation, the increased funding of women's athletics, Title IX and a student fee shortfall had combined to necessitate the increase. He said the Consumer Price Index had risen 50 percent since 1975, when the fee was increased $5 for the benefit of the women's programs. Although original plans had called for women's athletics to receive $5 of the $20 fee, Mace said they were now receiving about 32 percent of it.

Mace said the student fee shortfall was due to refunds for students who withdrew from the University. He said the total amount of refunds last year was $58,000, up from $18,000 the previous year.

Additionally, Mace said, the athletics departments were being forced to make up $122,000 in coaching expenses which had previously been covered by "cross appointments," meaning some other department of the University paid part of the coaches salaries.

Mace said these plus other factors, such as the addition of the Flying Salukis to the athletics budget and the elimination of athletics funding from the student activity fee, had combined to increase the cost of intercollegiate athletics by $266,000.

Three fires cause damages estimated at $30,000

By Bill Crowe and Jacqui Koszczuk Staff Writers

Two fires at Faner Hall and one at Garden Park Apartments caused an estimated $30,000 in damages during Thanksgiving break.

An electrical failure in the transformer which supplies power to Section B of Faner Hall was the cause of two fires Thanksgiving Day. Carbondale Fire Department officials said the transformer overheated, starting fires at 1:50 a.m. and 9:15 a.m.

The fires, causing between $20,000 and $25,000 in damages, were confined to the equipment room of Section B. The transformer was destroyed and a permanent replacement may not be available until spring, said Harrel Lerch, supervisor of building maintenance.

Section B was without power for part of the weekend, Lerch said. A temporary transformer has been activated and it will serve as a replacement until another permanent transformer can be obtained.

Each fire was extinguished in about an hour, firemen said.

A fire that damaged six apartments at Garden Park, 607 E. Park St., broke out in a kitchen plumbing system at about 11 a.m. Friday, Assistant Fire Chief John Manis said. The estimated $7,000 in damages was caused mainly by smoke and by water leakage from broken pipes.

Since most of the students who live in the building were away, the fire burned for five hours before manager Richard Joost detected smoke in a first-floor hallway and notified the fire department.

Manis said the fire apparently started from a propane torch used by a repairman to install a water heater on the ground floor. As the repairman soldered water pipes together with the torch, Manis said that wooden framework close to the worksite must have smoldered and then eventually caught fire.

The fire spread behind a wall from the ground floor to the attic, he said.

Garden Park owner Bob Dare said that the 21 residents affected by the fire received temporary accommodations at the Best Motor Lodge on East Main Street and at Wilson Hall. Most of the students will be able to return to their apartments within two or three days, he said.

At least four of the students, however, will have to wait about 10 days since two apartments on the first floor incurred greater smoke and water damage.

Mandis said repair crews have been cleaning up since Friday.

First public advertisements appear for SIU-C presidential applicants

By Paula D. Walter Staff Writer

The first public advertisement for the position of president of SIU-C appeared in the Monday issue of the Chronicle of Higher Education.

According to Joann Boydston, chair of the Presidential Search Committee, the ad will appear in two more issues of the Chronicle and is also scheduled to appear in the January issue of Change magazine.

The ad states that nominations and applications are being accepted by the search committee, and contains a brief description of the SIU system and the Carbondale campus. The ad also contains an application deadline date of Feb. 1, 1980.

The ad appeared in the Bulletin Board section of the Chronicle, accompanied by three other ads for university presidents, all from colleges smaller than SIU-C.

Boydston said the committee will also advertise in "other, large, professional journals," but will shy away from the large metropolitan newspapers. "No reason was made explicit, but we feel those ads are terribly expensive for the amount of return they get," she said.

In addition to the printed advertisements, the committee has mailed about 140 letters requesting nominations from predominantly black universities and from women's groups and caucuses, Boydston said.

"We consider the writing of these letters as part of our ad campaign," she said.

Boydston has also mailed out a memo requesting nominations from SIU-C faculty, staff and students. And although the committee has already received between five and 10 nominations for the presidential position, Boydston said no

2 seeking seats at Republican National Convention

By Mary Ann McNulty Staff Writer

Rose S. Vieth of Carbondale and Dennis Luehr of Campbell Hill joined in the campaign fever for the 1980 presidential election recently. The two Jackson County residents announced their candidacies for delegates to the 1980 Republican National Convention from the 24th Congressional District.

Both candidates said they have given their "support to Gov. Ronald Reagan in the March primary election."

In the 24th District, which includes the 22 southernmost counties in Illinois, four delegates and four alternate delegates are elected to the Republican National Convention. The convention is scheduled to take place in Detroit in August. The delegates will select a Republican candidate for president.

Vieth, who ran unsuccessfully for Carbondale mayor in 1978, was a delegate to the Republican convention in 1976 and an alternate delegate in 1972.

Vieth said she has been impressed with Reagan.

"He has shown a creative and innovative mind," Vieth said. "I think he is a man who can restore past dreams. I think he is a man who can win."

Luehr, 21, is on the executive board of the Jackson County Republican Boosters' Club. He is a former SIU-C student and is presently employed at the Zeigler Coal Company Mine No. 11 in Coalterville.

Luehr said he has always been interested in Republican politics, particularly the presidential campaigns.

"I think Ronald Reagan is the best candidate for president," Luehr said. "Reagan is where the American people are on the issues."

Both Vieth and Luehr must submit a petition with 470 signatures from registered voters in the 24th District.

Vieth says she hopes that the Republicans will decide against the "blind ballot" for delegates. She says she believes that voters have the right to know who which candidate a delegate is supporting.

The Republicans decided to have a "blind ballot" for delegate elections this year after the legislature passed this option. Under the plan, the ballot will list only the candidates' name. In previous years, the name of the presidential candidate the delegate was supporting was also listed.

Vieth and Luehr are scheduled to talk with the Williamson County Republican Women's Club at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Williamson County Courthouse.

Athletics fee resolution tabled Council to meet on Iran crisis

Mace paused at several points to criticize the Daily Egyptian's coverage of the athletics budgets, saying that the $361,303 deficit referred to by the DE was "projected" rather than "real." He said the figure was reached by comparing a projection of anticipated income with the needs of the programs. He also said a DE report of the Nov. 8 Board of Trustees meeting in Edwardsville contained editorial comments.

Mace said the fee increase, if passed by the board on Dec. 13, is expected to generate $400,000 annually for the athletics programs. McGinnis asked Mace what it would mean for intercollegiate athletics if the increase is not passed. Mace said it would probably mean elimination of some sports in both the men's and women's programs. Asked by McGinnis to elaborate, Mace replied, "$400,000? I think you're aware of what that means."

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Security Council members agreed to meet on the U.S.-Iran crisis and the council president said the session probably would begin no later than Tuesday despite an Iranian plea for a week's delay.

Council President Sergio Palacios de Vizzio of Bolivia told reporters he expected a meeting Monday night or Tuesday in response to Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim's urgent request that the 15-member council convene on the issue.

Waldheim took the unusual step of calling the meeting Sunday, saying the conflict over Iranian militants holding 49 American hostages in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran threatened world peace.

Iranian special envoy Sa'eed Sanjabi told a news conference the next few days are "of high political and religious significance" in Iran and "we have requested postponement to the next week of this meeting."

By a 50-32 vote, the Senate tabled, or killed, an attempt by Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark., to substitute the House measure for the watered-down version approved by the Senate Finance Committee.

In a subsequent, 52-32 vote, senators refused to kill an amendment by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, that would cut $9.9 billion from the committee's tax bill. Bentsen seeks to exempt from the tax the first 1,000 barrels of crude oil produced each day by an independent operator.

Court overrides federal funds freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government may not withhold federal money from school districts that discriminate against women employees, the Supreme Court said in effect Monday.

The justices, without comment, rejected three Carter administration appeals from rulings that a federal law known as Title IX does not apply to schools' employment practices.

Returning to the bench after a two-week recess to hand down more than 200 orders, the justices also said they may decide whether Congress can refuse to pay for most abortions wanted by women on welfare. The court will study appeals in a case from Illinois asking it to rule on the constitutionality of the so-called Hyde amendment.

Man claims two women raped him

CHICAGO (AP) — A steelworker on his way to work over the weekend has told police he was abducted by two armed women who raped him repeatedly for seven hours.

The 23-year-old man said the women, in their early 20s, bound his hands behind his back with chains, pulled a ski mask over his face and took him to a house, where they each "used his body repeatedly for seven hours," said Officer Frederick Scott.

Police said the "tall, good looking young man" came to their South Side district station on Sunday and said: "You're not going to believe it. I know you're going to think I'm crazy when I tell you this."

Scott said the man, whose identity was withheld, told police he was on his way to the United States Steel Corp. in South Chicago when the abduction took place.

U.S. still lacks access to Khomeini

By Barry Schweid Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than three weeks since the seizure of American hostages, the U.S. government still has had no direct access to the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the Iranian revolutionary leader.

Neither the State Department nor the White House has been in contact with the revolutionary leader. And since the fall of the civilian Bazargan government soon after the Tehran embassy takeover, access to the Iranian foreign ministry also has been very limited.

W. Bruce Laingen, who headed the U.S. mission, happened to be at the ministry when revolutionary students seized the American embassy.

There, in the first few days, Laingen met regularly with Ibrahim Yazdi, the foreign minister. But Yazdi quit office with the fall of the Bazargan government.

This left Laingen in touch only with low-level officials, except for a couple of talks with Abolhassan Bani Sadr, a member of the ruling revolutionary council and the new acting head of the foreign ministry.

Laingen has not seen Bani Sadr in more than a week.

Presidential emissaries Ramsey Clark and William Miller were turned back on their way to Iran three days after the embassy fell. There have been no official U.S. representatives sent to Iran since.

Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, flew to Tehran on his own and visited the hostages on Sunday. But he is there on a personal basis, and not as a government representative.

In fact, the Carter administration is against such individual missions so long as the hostages are being held.

"I don't think that sort of thing is helpful," Jody Powell, the White House press secretary, said Monday.

Powell agreed with a suggestion that the Iranians might misinterpret Hansen's statements as U.S. "feelers."

Iranian debate should be on paper

I write this in hope of initiating a more cordial and definitely less dangerous means of public expression on the part of Iranians in making their viewpoint on the American-Iranian situation understood. I have a number of Iranian friends that I care about very much, in spite of our difference of opinion. I am concerned for their safety and for the safety of the hostages held in Teheran. For this reason I would like to suggest that instead of holding demonstration marches which tend to encourage heated emotions rather than rational thinking, they should submit well-written letters to the editor of this newspaper. Maybe an artist among them could even submit an editorial cartoon. They would have access to a greater audience this way, and they would not have to fear getting hot tea thrown on them. They are bound to get a rebuttal letter but such editorial debates help clarify issues. So why don't some of the 13 Iranian students out there sit down and write a point by point letter to the editor of the Daily Egyptian. I'm sure hundreds would read it. And it might even change the attitudes of some people. Iranian students might as well take advantage of this freedom to voice their opinions against majority views while they're in the U.S. I doubt that they'll get the same right when they return home.

Doug Jennings

Freedom of expression applies to all

I am outraged by the plight of the hostage Americans in Iran. Evidently many of my countrymen are as well. That is understandable. However, I don't believe that we are justified in violently taking our frustrations out on the peaceful Iranian students in this country. Those Iranian students who are violent in their demonstrations should be dealt with by the law. But peaceful demonstrations expressing views opposed to our own are not invitations to assault and shout down that group. (A "peaceful" demonstration, of course, is not the equivalent of a monk-like procession devoid of signs and shouting. Controversy invites a spirited exchange of ideas.) The United States is a country that has always cherished and protected the right to peacefully express even unpopular views. Let's not let our anger provoke us into any more behavior that disgraces our country and its great democratic principles. To paraphrase Justice Black, formerly of the United States Supreme Court, "Freedom must be given to the ideas we hate or sooner or later it will be denied to the ideas we cherish."

Americans should adapt to world-wide distain

WASHINGTON—It is difficult, and not at all desirable, to be coolly clinical about photographs of American citizens bound and blindfolded and spat upon by rabble, but the freezing truth is that Americans had better get used to such photographs, if they are not already. Enduring the contempt of the contemptible is just one severity that life has in store for a declining nation.

A nation that, in gestures aimed at the Middle East, sends an aircraft carrier steaming in circles in the South China Sea, and sends ostentatiously unarmed airplanes to Saudi Arabia (where many are then grounded for days because of bungled planning and support)—such a nation had better get used to enemies who think it is impotent. Well, not altogether impotent: It can unleash Ramsey Clark.

A nation that loses a war it could have won by confidently employing its conventional military assets had better get used to humiliation. A nation that has no serious response when three ambassadors are murdered (in Cyprus, Sudan and Afghanistan) had better get used to spittle on its cheeks.

A nation that, in February, orders the Marines guarding its embassy in Iran to surrender without a fight to a mob should not be surprised when, in November, another mob arrives to play with the embassy as with a toy.

George F. Will

A nation that uses an ally such as Taiwan as a pawn for utterly unnecessary appeasement had better get used to having fewer and fewer allies of any size, and to the worldwide conviction that it is a nation with no serious convictions. A nation that collaborates in throwing to the wolves an ally like the Shah should not expect respect from the wolves.

Respect? For a nation too feckless even to confine Iran's diplomats to their Washington compound when they are collaborating with the rabble of Tehran?

Economic boycott of Iran needed

It is the responsibility of the Iranian Government to protect foreign embassies in their country. No civilized govern-

Time right for action

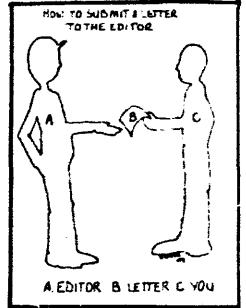

I feel that the time has come for the U.S. government to take action on the present situation in Iran. The most proper solution to the Iranian student's seizure of American hostages would be for the U.S. government to seize all Iranian students in this country and hold them hostage until the Ayatollah converts to Christianity.

Curt Long

ment in the world would permit any group to continuously occupy an embassy of another country.

Since the "peaceful" Khomeini has not cleared the terrorists from the U.S. Embassy, it can only be assumed that he is directing their activities. Therefore, every civilized nation in the world should close their embassies in Iran, and at the same time, boycott Iran both economically and politically. Anything short of this is a breakdown of established exchanges of diplomatic relations between nations.

Robert M. Bradley
Senior, Elementary Education

Respect? For a nation so inately tolerant it does not ship home to Khomeini the thousands of Iranian "students" who are here illegally, and who adore Khomeini—from a safe distance, of course—from the comfort of what Khomeini calls "Satan America"?

You know Khomeini: He's the fellow Andrew Young said might be a saint. You remember Young: He's the fellow who symbolized the Carter administration's plan to get America loved in the Third World by appeasing terrorists in Rhodesia and subverting the Shah.

You remember the Shah, an ally for 37 years. During the 1973 war he was the only ruler in the region who banned Soviet overflights. He urged an end to the oil embargo, and rushed fuel to U.S. ships. He rushed arms to South Vietnam (you remember South Vietnam: an ally deceased) before the ban on such aid went into effect under the Paris Accords. (You remember the Paris Accords: They brought peace to Indochina.) The Shah helped the United States in many ways, but such is our trembling fear of Khomeini, that the Shah had to become a cancer patient before we would let him past the Statue of Liberty.

A nation afraid of Khomeini should not bluster at the Soviet Union. A nation that blusters about Soviet activities in Cuba being "unacceptable," and then says well, er, come to think about it, we just remembered that these activities are, well, for want of a better word, acceptable—and, no, don't worry, we won't reject SALT II: we were very decent, you must admit, cancelling the B-1 and neutron weapons, 20 reciprocity asked; and, oh yes: Are you quite sure 25 million metric tons of grain will be sufficient?—a nation that behaves this way had better get used to the cackle of derisive laughter.

Speaking of grain, and of photographs that take some getting used to, and of the price of losing wars, consider Cambodia. If the people who used to rant about "American genocide" are really interested (and they really aren't) they should note this: Real genocide looks like what is happening in Cambodia now. The starving of millions, the obstruction of relief: this is Hanoi's work and could be stopped by Moscow. But we flood the Soviet Union with grain while the Soviet Union collaborates in keeping to a trickle the relief for six people it is helping to exterminate.

Will we make continued grain shipments to the Soviet Union contingent on Soviet cooperation about Cambodia? No.

President Carter says Cambodia is "a moral issue." Yes. But I, for one, am past trying to understand what he means by that, and past hoping he will understand that, between nations, such issues also are problems of power.

Theater auditions scheduled

The theater department will be holding auditions for two productions Tuesday through Thursday in the Communications Building. Both plays, "The Country Wife" and "A Doll's House," will be presented in February.

Auditions for "The Country Wife" will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday and from 5 to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Laboratory Theater. There are roles for nine men, seven women and a number of smaller roles for extras.

Directed by Christian Moe, professor of theater, the play will be presented Feb. 22 through 24.

Auditions for "A Doll's House" will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday in the lounge (Room 1032) of the Communications Building. There are roles for four men and three women.

Written by Henrik Ibsen, the play is about woman's position in society. The author conveys his belief that women and men have an equal obligation to develop as individuals and become complete human beings - a belief that caused controversy when the play premiered in 1879.

"A Doll's House" is a thesis production to be directed by George Pinney, a master's degree candidate in theater.

Quartet creates mellow mood

By Charity Gould
Staff Writer

Spacious Shryock Auditorium could have turned into a small New Orleans bar without anyone noticing during the two-hour performance of Jeanne Trevor and the St. Louis Jazz Quartet.

The atmosphere was mellow, the music was nice, and the near-capacity crowd was pleased as beads nodded and feet tapped to the various jazz compositions that were expertly performed Nov. 15.

Leading the quartet was Terrence Kippenberger, formerly with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, on bass guitar. The arranger, musical director and conductor formed the group in 1969 and has performed both abroad and in the United States.

Completing the quartet was pianist Ray Kennedy, trumpeter Randy Holmes and percussionist John DeMartini. The musicians did little talking, as their music spoke for them.

Besides blending well as a group, the musicians performed well as individuals. One person didn't have to cover up for another. Each was good on his individual instrument.

Accompanying the quartet was singer Jeanne Trevor, who has performed with Count Basie and Dionne Warwick. Trevor's warm personality was as noticeable as her exciting and expressive voice.

The program, which included ballads, jazz and blues, was performed almost effortlessly by both Trevor and the band.

One of the best pieces of the performance was Louis Armstrong's arrangement of "St. James Infirmary," a song about a funeral procession to a cemetery.

The music began at a slow pace, then as Trevor broke in, the band played the peppy tune, "When the Saints go Marching In."

College Bowl finals to be held this week

Eight teams will be competing in the quarter-finals of SIU-C's Second Annual Intramural College Bowl at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Ballroom C of the Student Center.

The four winning teams will advance to the semi-finals and finals at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Ballroom A.

The first-place team will be awarded membership to the SIU-C "All-Star Team," which will compete in regional competition. The four members of the winning team will also receive $125 scholarships awarded by the SIU Foundation and a champion trophy and certificate.

The College Bowl is patterned after the television game show of the same name which aired in the late 1950s and 1960s. The game emphasizes quick recall and rapid analysis of questions ranging from algebra to zoology. There is an emphasis on liberal arts.

The teams consist of four full-time SIU-C students and one alternate with a maximum of two graduate students per team.

Last year's SIU-C team lost to Notre Dame University by only a few points in regional competition. Because of its strong showing the team was chosen as the national "at large" team and competed with 15 regional winners.

What Maxine Cheshire has done in her book "Reporter" is what numerous other people have attempted to do but failed. "Reporter" is an account of Cheshire's experiences while working a journalist for the Washington Post.

Cheshire's book includes her feelings and accounts of the problems she encountered while reporting, as well as her report on "what goes on behind closed doors."

"Reporter" covers events from the Eisenhower administration through the Ford administration. Cheshire has taken numerous pages of notes and, undoubtedly, recalled many events to write her book. Except for the author's feelings, everything can be documented, for it is now public record.

Cheshire wrote her book in chronological order. It includes some of her biggest stories, such as the Kennedy-Onassis wedding in Greece, the Nixons' expensive gifts from foreign dignitaries and the Tongson Park scandal in Korea. She also relates the events that led to the breakthrough of these happenings.

In addition, Cheshire reports rumors and facts about the presidents, first ladies and other public figures, such as cabinet and administration members. Many of the rumors have been documented by Cheshire herself. An example is Mamie Eisenhower's alleged drinking problem and how the press dealt with and covered it.

Cheshire also mentions that Mrs. Eisenhower's favorite color was pink. Many bedrooms in U.S. Embassies were painted pink for Mamie upon her arrival. Cheshire notes that if Betty Ford had said her favorite color was purple, chances are, because she is not Mamie Eisenhower, no roomie in any U.S. Embassy would be painted purple for her.

Richard Nixon's book, "The Memoirs of Richard Nixon," is written in much the same style as Cheshire's. Nixon also writes in chronological order and occasionally touches on an

Satirical ballet features men

By Craig DeVries
Staff Writer

With such outrageous aliases as Ida Neversayneva, Tatiana Youbetyabootskay, Margeaux Mundayn and Collete Adae, Les Ballets Trockadero de Monte Carlo will "man" the stage at 8 p.m. Saturday at Shryock Auditorium.

The all-male dance company which fondly spoofs ballet with a mix of dance and drag will appear as part of the Shryock Celebrity Series.

The Trockadero was formed in 1974 in New York by artistic director and dancer Peter Anastos, taking its name from the real Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo. The company began performing in small clubs in New York, mocking classical ballet. They soon began receiving favorable reviews. The basis of the Trockadero has always been the presentation of the dance "en travesti" with men dancing women's parts, making light of the fragile way women are presented in classical dance.

The members of the company (or Trocks, as they refer to themselves) have all seriously studied ballet technique, repertoire and history. Anastos was a member of the Ballet

North and co-director with Ballet Taylor has danced with Ballet Players, Ballet Classics and the Chamber Dance Company.

But Anastos admits that probably none of the Trocks would be tremendously successful in traditional ballet.

"None of us could get into a professional ballet company," he has said, "but that's not the point. We're a theater company, not a dance company."

In Saturday's program the Trocks will perform the well-known ballets "Swan Lake Act II," "Pas de Deux," "Pas de

Poet draws audience and laughter

By Kara Lindstrom
Student Writer

The poet Carl Dennis read his poetry Nov. 15 in the Museum Auditorium in Faner Hall as part of the Southern Poetry Series. Dennis did what poets rarely do anywhere—pulled in a near-capacity crowd and made that crowd laugh. A lot.

Dennis said a prime motivation for his poetry is the need to do justice to those who have been slighted. He didn't need to say that. His poetry proves it. Many of the poems he read were sketches of the kinds people whose families often hide in figurative closets, school children often laugh at, and we often become.

A Review

A feisty Russian woman who stands at the front and tells Napoleon, "Go home. Get warm." gets justice in "Grandmother and I." An eccentric high school American History teacher who never gets beyond the pilgrims crossing all semester is raised to a level above the locker-room snickers in "Pilgrims." An average boy born on Christmas who cannot live up to his birthday's namesake is a person many of us end up becoming in "Morgenstern."

Dennis says of his character

Morgenstern, "if words were ever like hot coal on his tongue, he never got wind of it."

Dennis caught the audience with his humor and kept it with his consistently clear perceptions. Amidst the guffaws it became evident that the characters represent other things—things like caring, community, solitude and false expectations.

As the reading progressed, the snappy, funny lines gave way to the lonely, sometimes tragic images of burned-out houses at the edge of town, singed flowers and rusting junked cars. Comedy made then apparent—somehow. Funny, isn't it?

unrelated subject which is later discussed in detail, as does Cheshire.

Actually, there is no other way to write a book covering such an extensive time period and so many events. Many events lead to others so it is necessary to write in chronological order.

Some interesting points and facts that Cheshire writes about are not fully developed or concluded. For instance, she claims she was at a hotel in California where President Kennedy was staying when one day at 3 a. m. a female shrieked from the presidential suite, "I don't give a Goddamn if you are the President of the United States."

Baroque Consort to perform

The Baroque Consort, a trumpet and organ duo, will perform a concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in Shryock Auditorium. Admission is free. The duo consists of trumpeter David Hickman and organist William Neil. Hickman is the president of the International Trumpet Guild and a professor of trumpet at the University of Illinois. He has recorded several albums and has toured extensively as a recitalist. He has published several music texts. Hickman received music degrees from the University of Colorado and Wichita State University.

Neil is an organist with the National Symphony Orchestra and the Washington Bach Orchestra. He has also released several records. In 1968 he was the first recipient of the Arthur Poister Prize in Organ. He is currently on the faculty of the Catholic University in Washington D.C. He is also the organist and choirmaster at Trinity Presbyterian Church in Arlington, Va.

The program will feature works by Albinoni, Bach, Mozart and Telemann among others. Some of the selections are Bach's "Prelude and Fugue in G minor," Handel's "Suite in D Major," Mozart's "Andante with Variations" and Telemann's "Heldenmusik."

Tickets available for Parsons play

Hailed as one of America's finest actresses, Estelle Parsons will portray a tyrannical schoolteacher in "Miss Margarida's Way" at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Ballroom D of the Student Center.

Winner of an Oscar for her first film, "Bonnie and Clyde," Parsons was nominated for second Academy Award for "Rachel, Rachel."

In New York, she won two Obie Awards for her off-Broadway performances in "Next Time I'll Sing For You" and "In the Summer House." She also won a Theatre World Award for "Mrs. Daily Has a Lover."

On Broadway she received two Tony Award nominations for "The Seven Descents of Myrtle" and "Miss Reardon Drinks a Little."

In "Miss Margarida's Way," Parsons possesses the stage in what is essentially a monologue. Despite her respectable appearance, she reveals herself to be a monstrously inept tyrant who flays and cajoles her eighth grade class (the audience).

St. Louis theater hosts Dickens Christmas play

The Loretto-Hilton Repertory Theater production of "A Christmas Carol" is ringing in the holiday season in St. Louis. The production of Charles Dickens' seasonal story is playing at the Loretto-Hilton Center through Dec. 29.

The play features a large cast including Loretto-Hilton regular Robert Spencer in the role of Ebenezer Scrooge. Also in the cast are Mickey Hilton, Linda Cook, Joneal Joplin and Robert Darnell.

The 10 children featured in the production encountered special problems. The children have rehearsed after school two to three times a week memorizing lines, blocking, singing, dancing and learning English dialect.

On Sunday a special benefit matinee performance will be given with the proceeds to be donated to the UNICEF-Cambodian Relief Fund.

"We want this benefit matinee to be a family affair," cast member Alan Clary said. "We believe that all the children in the audience should be made aware that the price of admission will go to feed a child in Cambodia."

SIU-C awarded $30,000 grant to help put WUSI back on air

By Leanne Waxman
Staff Writer

The Illinois legislature awarded SIU-C with a $30,000 grant, part of which will be used to put WUSI-TV's sister public television station in Olney back on the air.

The public television station in Olney, WUSI-TV (Channel 16), has been off the air for about two-and-one-half weeks due to damage done to the station's microwave link in a February ice storm. It will cost $10,600 to repair the station's microwave dish, transmission line and the off-air receiving antennae which were damaged in the storm, according to Jim Moore, SIU-C Broadcasting Service chief engineer. Equipment damage severely affected the television signal and eventually, the decision was made to take the station off the air, said C.B. Hunt, dean of the College of Communications and Fine Arts.

Moore said the station is scheduled to be repaired and put back on the air by the middle of December.

"If we hadn't got that money, Channel 16 would have had real financial problems," Moore said.

The Illinois General Assembly approved a bill which would have made available $5 million in grant monies to the six Illinois public television stations, according to Terry Bruce, D-Olney. Gov. James Thompson cut the allocation to $1 million, Bruce said.

Two $15,000 checks were presented to SIU-C Acting President Hiram Lesar earlier this month in Olney. Hunt said the University made arrangements with the state legislature to receive the first installment of its state public television grant early so the Olney station could be put back on the air. SIU-C's Public Broadcasting System will receive a total of about $150,000 from the grant program, according to Hunt. No date was available when the University would receive its next installment of the public television grant, but the money will be awarded before June, Hunt said.

The microwave link carries the television signal from a receiving station in Flora. Channel 16 re-broadcasts programming from its sister station, WSIU-TV (Channel 8), in Carbondale. Since the Olney station is not located within the receiving range of Channel 8, the signal is microwaved from Flora, Moore said.

About $15,000 of the first grant installment will be used to update WSIU-TV's equipment. The remainder of the Olney station's grant will be used to modernize and improve programming and equipment.

Mexican study trip proposed

By James O'Connell
Student Writer

Students may visit 14 ancient monuments in Mexico and Guatemala on a trip proposed by Atilio Gimenez, assistant professor of architectural technology.

The trip, to be taken during the first half of summer semester, would span 28 days and cost about $1,000. Gimenez proposed the trip to "balance out the rather exclusivist focus on technology which out of necessity prevails in any technical-vocational career."

The course is titled "A Look Into the Past: A Window to the Future" and will consist of informal discussions designed to give students a more "humanistic" approach to the society and culture which surrounds the monuments.

The class is limited to 25 persons. Gimenez said many students from the School of Technical Careers have expressed interest in going. The trip is sponsored in part by the Office of Continuing Education and may be offered to students from other universities.

Gimenez viewed these monuments when he and his family took a three-year trip through South and Central America seven years ago.

The first half of the trip would include the oldest monuments from Aztec civilizations such as the Choluta ruins. The ruins, which include the "greatest pyramid in the world," are 75 miles east of Mexico City.

Gimenez said many of these ruins compare with the ruins in Rome.

Opposing abortion groups pressure legislators with letter-writing efforts

By Richard Kern
Student Writer

Debate over the 1973 U.S. Supreme Court decision allowing abortions during the first six months of pregnancy is wrapped in rhetoric.

Is a fetus a "baby" or "tissues and cells"? Are the "rights of women" more important than "killing a child"? Are people opposing the Supreme Court decision "pro-life" or "anti-choice"?

This rhetoric highlights an emotional conflict between groups such as the Southern Illinoisans for Abortion Rights (SIAR), a Carbondale-based group favoring the Court's ruling, and the National Right to Life, Inc., a group without formal local organization which opposes the decision.

Members of both groups brought pressure on legislators of the 58th District as they decided to override Governor Thompson's veto of a bill requiring male consent and a 24-hour waiting period before receiving an abortion.

The pressure came largely through a letter-writing campaign, according to Sherry Yassin, a Right to Life member and Jan Susler, a charter member of SIAR.

Rep. Vincent A. Birchler, D-Chester, said letters came to him at the rate of 100 every three or four days as the anti-abortion law was being debated.

"We got letters from people in various church groups urging us to pass bills like the anti-abortion bill. Some people from church groups asked us to oppose the bill, but not many. The people for abortion are usually private individuals. We get very few letters from people for abortion," Birchler said.

Debate over the Illinois anti-abortion law stems from a question of constitutionality. Susler said the waiting period, consent and warnings against abortion hindered a woman's "right to make the private decision to terminate her pregnancy" as the Supreme Court allows. The bill will ultimately be declared unconstitutional, Susler said.

Legislators who realized the bill's unconstitutionality yet voted for the law have committed the ultimate in irresponsibility," she continued. "When there's no question that an action runs contradictory to the constitution, the legislature ought to vote it down. Now the pro-choice people will have to take it to court. It will take the time of the state's attorney and the taxpayer's money to get a bill declared unconstitutional which ought not to have ever been made law," Susler said.

Jacque Abel, a SIAR member, said she believes legislators are responding to lobbying pressure in passing the anti-abortion bill.

"There is an organized right to life movement that is exerting political pressure. Even though the representatives realize the law will be declared unconstitutional, they vote for it anyway because they think 'my constituency will vote for me if I vote for this bill,'" Abel said.

The Right to Life group hopes the constitutionality question of the Illinois law will reach the Supreme Court and result in the overturning of the 1973 law, according to Yassin.

"The legislators' aim is to show how the state stands philosophically and legally. Hopefully, the law will challenge the decision in effect now. Legal statements of the court have been changed before. We hope that these changes can be made again," Yassin said.

Abel said another method to stop abortion would be through a right-to-life constitutional amendment. Fourteen state legislators have drafted a petition asking Congress for an amendment declaring a fetus to be human from conception. The Illinois petition is on its third reading in the House.

Yassin said the amendment would make abortion, except to save a woman's life, murder.

Pro-choice groups see the fetus as part of the mother, and not a human being until birth, Abel said.

Susler, speaking for the members of the SIAR, said "we do not see ourselves as pro-abortion as much as favoring a woman's right to do what she wants with her body, which includes having an abortion."

The two groups agree there should be legislative tightening of controls on doctors who perform abortions and abortion clinics.

National trend results in enrollment decline at SIU

By Linda Hamilton
Student Writer

A decline in enrollment is expected at SIU-C in the coming years.

Roland Keim, associate director of admissions and records, attributes this projection to a national trend of decreasing numbers of high school graduates due to a declining birth rate. By 1999 the number of high school graduates will have declined by 25 percent, Keim said.

"If you look at a chart the enrollment growth years at all levels of education have already tapered off," Keim said.

Keim said a combination of variables must be considered in determining the cause of declining enrollment at SIU-C and other universities.

"One must take into account the many socio-economic factors that might affect enrollment such as changes in the employment level and economic system," Keim said. If the employment rate is high, enrollment is more apt to decrease, he said.

The rising cost of gas is one of the factors accounting for the enrollment decline in recent years at SIU-C because it is primarily a commuter university said Howard W. Webb, system academic officer.

More Illinois residents going to out-of-state universities is another condition which may add to the decline in future enrollment at SIU-C, according to Frank Horton, vice president of academic affairs.

SIU-C officials are beginning to direct themselves to some of the problems an enrollment decrease can cause.

"The University has considerable investment in student housing," Webb said. "If enrollment goes down and the University can't fill its housing spaces, it will run into fiscal problems, such as in paying off bonds."

Fewer courses, sections, and therefore, faculty, are further consequences of an enrollment decline, Webb said.

Universities throughout the country are approaching the problem by addressing themselves to the adult learner through continuing education programs, Webb said.

"Increasingly, universities are looking off their campuses for possible solutions," Webb said. SIU-C has extensive off-campus continuing education programs within the state and on military bases.

"The University has an enrollment size that will support any comprehensive program, such as new technical or professional degrees," Keim said.

Map librarian tells of visit to foreign map libraries

By Melissa Outland
Studem Writer

All map librarians should try maps of other continents, according to Jean Meyer Ray, Morris Library map librarian and assistant librarian, after her sabbatical to 16 Western European countries.

Morris Library granted Ray a year's sabbatical leave to visit European map collections, study their organization and examine some of Europe's examples of early cartography (mapping).

Ray's 19 page article, entitled "From Aberdeen and Aberystwyth to Rome, From Lisbon to Helsinki — A Map Librarian's Sabbatical Journey to Cartographic Collections of Western Europe," appeared in the June 1979 Special Libraries Association Geography and Map Division Bulletin 116. The article describes map libraries Ray visited.

She was accompanied by her husband, David Ray, who was then a cataloger at Morris Library. He was granted a sabbatical to study European Buddhist groups.

While in Western Europe, Ray visited "more than 80 institutions ranging from those with large, fully developed map libraries to those with only a few specimens of early mapping."

Ray also attended four professional meetings during the first part of her sabbatical.

At a Lausanne conference, Ray discovered that a world directory of map collections had just been published, which was "helpful in planning where to go and what collections to include."

Ray's journey began Aug. 16, 1978. She toured European countries until April 1977 when she returned to Tuftonboro, N.H. She stayed there until Aug. 15, 1977.

Map collections in Western Europe were divided into five types by Ray. There were "those forming part of national libraries, those in universities, those maintained by societies, those in semi-public research institutions and in special institutions."

She studied maps dating back to the 1500s. At Madrid's Museo Naval, Ray saw the original Juan de la Cosa map of 1500, which shows Columbus' early discoveries in the New World.

On returning to the United States, Ray visited map collections at Harvard University, New York Public Library, Brown University,

SPOT BUYING SIGNS

Most stations surveyed by The Associated Press display signs saying their prices are in compliance with federal laws that determine maximum pump prices.

Federal regulations require each operator to post a statement saying he is complying with the legal selling price, either in 4-inch high letters inside the station or in smaller letters on the pump.

Cornell University, Boston Public Library, the National Archives and the Library of Congress.

"There is no question that this sabbatical project has given me a much broadened view of both cartography and librarianship. So when a Finnish map librarian, whom you met in Lausanne in August, suddenly accosts you on the streets of Amsterdam in November, welcomes you to Helsinki in March and visits you in New Hampshire in July, you know you are both part of one world," Ray's article says.

Government 'too bullish on corn' according to agricultural economist

By University News Service

"The government and many grain analysts may be too bullish on corn, according to Walter J. Wills, an agricultural economist at SIU-C.

Despite price-strengthening predictions of record exports, Wills said there are many factors that could put a lid on prices or drive the bottom of the market lower than the U.S. Department of Agriculture's $2.2 prediction.

"The government's forecast for exports may be overly optimistic, and the whole market is going to hinge on how much we can sell overseas," Wills said.

"We are not at all sure that foreign ports can handle the 17 percent grain increase that the USDA has predicted we will ship out. We've never expected that much grain before."

And there is little recognition by either the transportation industry or the government that the magnitude of the problem of hauling this record (7.6 billion bushel) corn crop will require more dedication to efficient movement of product than has been evidenced by past performance," Wills said.

Transportation backlogs have cut into corn prices in recent years, Wills said, and it may happen again.

"The ability to move large quantities of export grains also assumes there will be labor tranquility in both the U.S. and foreign labor transportation industries, including rail, barge, shipping and truck traffic," he said.

Wills said he perceives undercurrents of increased militancy in labor leadership. And he notes past dock and shipping strikes that nearly crippled the United States' ability to export grains.

According to Wills, the unstable political atmosphere in many parts of the world could potentially cut into exports. And new strength of the U.S. dollar relative to foreign currencies is making U.S. grain relatively more expensive.

Other factors that could have a negative, or bearish, impact on the corn market include livestock feeding and production of other feed grains.

Wills said the profitability levels of feeding hogs, cattle, broilers and turkeys is low. These livestock operations generally account for about three-fourths of all the feed grains fed to livestock and early 80 percent of the U.S. corn that is fed.

A drop in feeding in these livestock sectors, because of the decreased profit likelihood, could change the total grain supply picture.

Competing grain production is up, and that could dampen corn prices. Wills said sorghum production is up 25 percent and barley production has doubled.

It could mean that by harvest next year there still will be 1.7 billion bushels of corn unsold in the United States, Wills said.

The government is predicting a carry over of about 1.2 billion bushels, a little less than last year. But Wills said the negative forces in the markets now and the possibility of another bin-busting crop next year could preclude such a low carry over.

Attorney to seek circuit court seat

William H. South, a practicing attorney in Carbondale, has announced he will seek the Republican nomination for Circuit Judge for the First Judicial Circuit of Illinois to fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Judge Peyton H. Kuncze of Murphysboro.

The circuit includes the nine counties of Jackson, Saline, Pope, Williamson, Johnson, Union, Alexander, Pulaski and Massac.

South opposed and lost to Howard L. Hood for State's Attorney of Jackson County in 1976.

He has been an Assistant Attorney General of Illinois, an Assistant Public Defender of Jackson County and chairman of the Carbondale Fire and Police Merit Board.

South served as president of the Jackson County Bar Association in 1964 and 1965.

South, 57, was born in Marissa and attended SIU-C and Lincoln College of Law in Springfield.

Scanning device may help pregnant women's health

By University News Service

The health of thousands of pregnant women across Illinois stands to improve over the months ahead thanks to a sophisticated computer scanning device and the nutrition expert who is putting it to work.

And several thousand soon-to-be-born infants are the ones who stand to profit most from the efforts of Jeannette M. Endres, assistant professor of food and nutrition at SIU-C.

Endres will help the Illinois Department of Public Health (DPH) evaluate its Women, Infant and Child (WIC) Supplemental Food Program—a vehicle for providing needy pregnant women and children with milk, cereal, juice, eggs and cheese in an effort to improve their diets.

Under terms of a three-year $37,000 DPH grant, Endres will examine the diets of some 8,000 pregnant women and the children they bear, and analyze those diets for their nutritional contents.

She will employ a comprehensive nutritional inventory she has developed over the past several years and recently adapted to a format compatible with SIU-C optical computer scanning equipment.

The inventory allows for quick and comprehensive analysis, as well as easy and accurate recording, factors which improve the chances of getting meaningful information from clients and providing fast feedback that will enable them to make needed alterations to their diets, Endres said.

"Our dietary questionnaire is similar to others being used elsewhere for dietary counseling, but what makes it unique is the fact that nutritionists and dieticians don't have to manually code their answers to questions," Endres said.

"The process of coding an individual's diet can get very laborious and tends to lead to inaccuracies. The availability of optical scanning equipment here at SIU-C has enabled us to develop a form that will speed and simplify the process."

Endres and research assistants will analyze diets of participants in the WIC program for 17 nutrients, several kinds of sugars, cholesterol, alcohol and fatty and non-fatty acids.

"The state is spending a lot of money on the WIC program to try to improve the diets of pregnant women, their infants and small children. Naturally, DPH officials want to know if, and how much, these dietary supplements are improving participants' diets," Endres said.

The DPH has been supporting her Nutrient Dietary Data Analysis (NDDA) project for about four years, and preliminary studies she has done for that agency indicate the WIC program is helping participants.

The current NDDA study will provide DPH officials with a better overall picture of the WIC program, enable diet counselors to be more exact in their counseling, and aid health care professionals who deal with WIC participants, Endres said.

"Being able to quickly analyze a pregnant woman's diet allows physicians and other health care professionals to help the woman avoid anemia, overweight and other health risks common to many

Jeanette Endres, assistant professor in using computers to study the health of human development (standing) and pregnant women. graduate researcher Marge Sawicki are pregnancies," according to Endres.

The NDDA program also is being used by state health departments in Wyoming, Kentucky, Tennessee, and North and South Carolina.

The SIU-C program is also being used by hospitals, day care centers, head start programs and rural health projects in several states, according to Endres.

"What we're doing is not designed as a replacement for nutritionists and dieticians, it's aimed at helping them do their jobs more completely and accurately, and speeding the turn-around time on evaluation of diets," Endres said.

"Without such an aid, many dieticians didn't have the time or tools to calculate nutritional content of diets; they just compared food intake to the basic four food groups and discussed their clients' basic needs. Doing much more tended to be very tedious and extremely time-consuming."

But, with the help of Endres' NDDA program, participating dieticians and nutritionists can take the time to be more exact, and that should benefit several thousand Illinois mothers and their children in the months ahead.

Literary editing group picks head

By Brenda Wilgenbusch
Student Writer

John Y. Simon, professor of history, has been chosen president-elect of the Association for Documentary Editing (ADE), which was formed a year ago to bring together people who are editing, or interested in editing, papers about literary and historical figures.

"The idea is that editors spend a lot of time with books and papers and don't get a chance to get together to share ideas," Simon said.

The ADE provides the chance for editors to meet one another and provides "a minimum of competition, and a great deal of cooperation," Simon said. There are about 220 members, mostly active editors, who provide sessions at scholarly conventions and compile a newsletter, as well as the annual meetings. They also gather funding for editing projects.

One of the ADE's main concerns, said Simon, is finding a new archivist of the United States. The archivist "is the guardian of all our records," Simon said, so they want the right person for the job.

Simon's duties within the organization include preparing himself to become the president next year, handling business meeting affairs, and planning the program for next year's meeting, to be held in Williamsburg, Va.

"SIU-C is a leader of major editing projects," Simon said. SIU contributes to the Center for Dewey Studies, an editing organization for John Dewey, as well as the Ulysses S. Grant Association, a scholarly organization which edits Grant's papers. Both organizations publish their works through the SIU press. "Which is one of the major reasons why the Grant Association moved here from Ohio in 1964," Simon said.

Because the Dewey and Grant associations are both in Carbondale, "there are as many members in ADE from Carbondale as Chicago," he said. "It's one of the very few schools with both big historical and literary editing projects in the same place."

Simon teaches a class on the Civil War at SIU-C. He received his M.A. and Ph.D. at Harvard University. His wife, Harriet, is also a member of the ADE and a researcher for the Dewey Association.

Master's degree to be revived, new accounting chairman says

By Carrie Sweeney
Student Writer

The revival of a master's in accounting program, effective spring 1980, is one change which the Accountancy Department's new chairman, Bartholomew Basi, says is designed to improve the professionalism of SIU-C's accounting students.

The program was originally approved three years ago, but the enrollment was down to three people and the department had decided to let it die, Basi said.

"In the professional accounting area, the old master's program didn't fit certain standards set up by national accreditation boards," said Basi, a certified public accountant and lawyer.

According to Basi, the implementation of the new program was a combined effort among the faculty in the department. "We completely revamped the master's program according to those accreditation standards. We now have a 30-hour program with a solid accounting background."

"The students that graduate with this master's degree will definitely be a step above others just starting out in the accounting profession," he added.

To qualify for the master's program, a student must have acquired 42 hours of approved business education courses. Transfer students should not have any problems meeting the prerequisites, he said.

"We hope to have 15 students enrolled in the program this spring, and to have the number increased to 100 by fall," Basi said. "Twelve classes will be offered at the graduate level this spring."

"The Accountancy Department is really moving places. We've got enthusiastic people willing to make the progressive changes necessary to have the Accountancy Department of SIU recognized as a professional school," he said.

After teaching seven years at Penn State, an Ivy League school that sticks to tradition, Basi said he welcomed the challenge offered at SIU. He replaced Jack White as chairman of the department June 1, nine months after coming to Southern as an accounting professor.

"I wanted the challenge to do things the way I had always wanted them done, from a faculty perspective," he said.

"I want the professors in the department to use me as a catalyst, whether to get articles of practical emphasis published so that people can better understand accounting, or to set up new programs," Basi said.

"I want to provide leadership and stimulate innovations. Basi said that an accounting program is like a law school where students are trained for a profession. Subsequently, Basi has made a proposal to have the Accountancy Department regarded as the Professional School of Accountancy, still within the College of Business and Administration.

"It is important to know that accounting is an essential component of the business school and should not be separated," Basi said.

One aspect of program planning that Basi says he will focus on with some depth is that of the outside participant. This includes both professionals and students.

He is developing an advisory board, made of representatives from various accounting firms, to give input into program evaluations. Once a year the board will help plan academic programs that fulfill criteria the firms require from a prospective employee.

Students, Basi said, are welcome at any time to give suggestions on course material and instruction. They also are invited to sit in on discussions with perspective faculty members and give evaluations to the department based on those discussions.

"I want direct input from students so that we can offer to them the best educations possible," Basi said. "The students are important."

Basi, who is teaching six hours of classes this semester, said he realizes the concern being raised over the fast-moving changes within the Accountancy Department. However, he added, the other departments within their respective areas of marketing, finance and administrative sciences, are also going through a lot of positive changes.

"I have changed a lot of the format in the department, especially regarding the way people and programs function. Accounting is a profession, and we have to run this department like it, too, is a professional business," Basi said.

Lady cagers win three of four

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

A season-opening victory and a second-place finish in the Southwest Missouri State Turkey Tournament highlighted Thanksgiving break for the SIU women's basketball team.

The Lady Salukis lost to Oklahoma, 58-46, in the championship game at Southwest Missouri State, 58-43, and Southwest Missouri, 65-43. On Nov. 19, SIU won at Murray State, 72-69.

"With our inexperience, 3-1 is a real good start for us," Saluki Coach Cindy Scott said. "All in all, I'm pleased."

Scott said, however, there is room for improvement.

"We still need to get used to playing with each other," she said. "Sometimes our transition game from offense to defense was a little slow. And we definitely need to improve our rebounding."

Rebounding was a problem against Oklahoma, as was shooting. The Salukis, who shot just 36 percent from the field and 31 percent (4-13) from the free throw line, were outboarded 38-18 by the Sooners. The game was tied 22-22 at halftime, but OU outscored SIU 36-24 in the second half.

"It was a matter of not getting good position on the boards," Scott said.

Scott was happy with the Salukis' performance at Murray State. SIU, down by nine at the half, rebounded with a strong second-half effort led by sophomore Diane Ruby and freshman Mary Boyes. Ruby scored 23 points and grabbed 10 rebounds, while Boyes tallied 18.

"We just executed better in the second half," Scott said. "I don't know if our problem in the first half was first-game jitters or what. That was our first game while Murray had already played a few games."

Scott said four of the five starting slots are set, as Ruby and Kellye Rogers start at forward, while Lynne Williams and Connie Erickson are the guards. Any one of four players — Alondray Rogers, Mary Boyes, Leola Greer and Mary Scheafer — could start at the other position.

"Ruby played a super game against Murray," Scott said. "She's going to be a real key to our success. Kellye Rogers (33 points in three games at Southwest Missouri) showed us what she can do, and Connie Erickson played super all weekend." Erickson had four assists against Southwest Missouri and five against Oklahoma.

Scott said she is hopeful that Sue Faber, who has been out with a knee injury, can return to action soon.

"We talked to Sue's doctor," Scott said, "and we got a real good report."

The Lady Salukis' next games are Friday at the Arena against Fur University, and Saturday at Louisville.

Harriers take 27th at national meet

By Scott Stahmer
Staff Writer

A 27th-place finish in a 29-team field may seem like a poor performance, but SIU men's cross country Coach Lew Hartzog felt otherwise after the Salukis finished in that slot Sept. 19 in the NCAA finals at Bethlehem, Pa.

"The caliber of runners cut it down to the top people in the United States," Hartzog said. "I'm very proud of how the kids conducted themselves. They made a try at something I've wanted them to do all year."

That, said Hartzog, was the way SIU ran during the race's first several miles. He said all five Salukis were in the top 50 after 1-1/2 miles.

"At the end of 2 1/2 miles, Karsten Schulz was up with the leaders," Hartzog said. "He ran so hard that he developed a sideache and finished next to last for us. He had to walk part of the way."

Schulz finished 210th, four places ahead of Tom Ross. Mike Bisase was the Salukis' top finisher in 129th with a time of 31:20, and he was followed by Tom Fitzpatrick, 139th, Chris Riegger, 187th, and Bill Moran, 204th.

"If Bisase had been our fifth man, we would have finished very well," Hartzog said. "Again, I'm not faulting the kids. They didn't want to just be there. They were very disappointed with their finish."

Texas El-Paso, one of two pre-meet favorites, edged out Oregon for the team championship, 116-119. Penn State, 254, Colorado, 255, and Auburn, 302, rounded out the top five.

Individually, Washington State's Henry Rono won the championship for the third time in four years. Rono, whose winning time on the 10,000-meter course was 28:19.6, paced seven seconds ahead of last year's titlist, Alberto Salazar of Oregon.

The Salukis, who finished with 869 points, placed ahead of Harvard and the University of Houston.

"Some great teams weren't there," Hartzog said. "Just being at the nationals established this as a super season for us. Like I said before the nationals, I would have been pleased if we had finished 29th out of 29."

six passes for 147 yards to add to his career receiving yards total. He finished with 1,524 yards. He broke the single-season mark, 653, and tied the records for touchdown catches in a single season (five) and for a career (11).

House has been invited to play in the Blue-Gray All-America Bowl and the Senior Bowl.

Joining Quinn at 1 House on the all-MVC team were guard Byron Honore, injured defensive tackle James Phillips, linebacker Joe Barwinski and safety Oyd Craddock. Defensive tackle Dave Callahan was named to the second-team unit, while tight end Larry Kavanagh, defensive end Jim Farley and nose guard Tom Pihl were honorable mentions.

"You had a great year," said Dempsey, beginning his post-game talk to the players following the victory over New Mexico State.

The statistics bear that out.

Alabama still tops in nation

By The Associated Press

Alabama held onto first place in The Associated Press college football poll for the seventh week in a row Monday, but Southern California inched past Rose Bowl opponent Ohio State into second place.

Alabama, which was idle and winds up the regular season against Auburn on Saturday, received 34 of 62 first-place votes and 1,193 of a possible 1,240 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers.

Salukis down Aggies; begin winning tradition

"Kevin House, Burrell Quinn and all you other guys are invited back to the Rose Bowl next year," Saluki quarterback Gerald Carr yelled to all seniors within hearing range.

While it is highly unlikely that next year's Saluki team will travel to Pasadena, SIU has established something associated with Rose Bowl-bound teams — a winning tradition.

The Salukis' 45-28 victory over New Mexico State Nov. 17 gave SIU an 8-3 record. Not since 1960 has any Saluki team won that many games. Moreover, SIU now has had winning seasons in three of the last four years.

The Salukis, however, could not win their first conference title. West Texas State won its second in three years when it beat Drake, 28-18. The Buffaloes finished with a 5-0 conference record, 5-5-1 overall, while SIU finished with a 4-1 conference mark.

"If you can be 8-3 at Southern Cal or Notre Dame, or any school with great tradition, you've really accomplished something, let alone at a place where there isn't an established football tradition," said Rey Dempsey, who has guided SIU to records of 7-4, 3-8, 7-4 and this year's mark in his four seasons as head coach.

"It was even more of an accomplishment for us when you remember that we came back from 2-3," Dempsey continued. "As a football coach, I really have to respect the kids for coming back like that. They came back to win a lot of close games — Illinois State, Northern Illinois, the Drake game, — and even though we scored a lot of points against Wichita State, there were times when that game could have gone either way."

There was no question of a Saluki victory in the game against New Mexico state, played before 8,700 at McAndrew Stadium. SIU led 31-0 at the end of the third quarter. Dempsey cleared the bench in the fourth period, playing the second and third strings.

SIU jumped to a 17-0 lead on Les Petroff's 24-yard field goal, Clarence Robison's 1-yard run and House's 44-yard reception of a Carr pass. Quinn's 1-yard plunge gave SIU a 24-0 lead at half time. House gathered in a 59-yard aerial from John Cernak to give SIU the 31-point lead after going into the final quarter.

In all, SIU gained 457 yards in total offense. The effort gave the Salukis 3,683 yards this season, a team record.

Quinn, who was one of five Salukis named to the all-Missouri Valley Conference team, added to his rushing record. His 48 yards gave him 2,798 yards in his career.

House, another member of the all-conference team, caught

CRAFTY CARR—Saluki quarterback Gerald Carr attempts to elude New Mexico State defensive back Andre Francis during SIU's 45-28 win Nov. 18. Carr, who threw a 44-yard touchdown pass to Kevin House, helped the Salukis gain 457 yards in total offense. SIU finished the season 8-3, 4-1 in Missouri Valley Conference play.

Cagers to play last intrasquad game

By Jeffrey Smyth
Staff Writer

The Saluki basketball team will conclude its pre-season play Tuesday with an intrasquad game at 7:30 p.m. at Murphysboro High School.

In an intrasquad game last week at Eldorado, the White team defeated the Maroon, 72-56. Coach Joe Gottfried described the effort as "sluggish," saying that both squads lacked the ability to control the game. One reason for this Gottfried said was that the game was played without senior guard Wayne Abrams, who scratched the cornea of his right eye earlier this month.

"It was the first time we were without Wayne Abrams this year," Gottfried said. "Wayne is wearing goggles in practice and will play in Tuesday's game."

Gottfried said he will divide the team into two equal squads on Tuesday's game, and will do some switching of players during the game. He said the game will be a preparation for the Salukis' season opener against Evansville University Saturday at Evansville, Ind.

"We will do the same things on Tuesday that we will do this Saturday," the coach said.

Gottfried said his team is progressing well. He said that because of injuries and the ruling that junior college transfer Rod Camp is academically ineligible, the Salukis will be counting on Abrams and junior Barry Smith to help overcome inexperience. "Everyone has been progressing well," the second year coach said. "We'll have to overcome a lack of experience by playing a lot of people."

Gottfried said the intrasquad game is a chance for local residents to have a chance to see the Salukis which they normally wouldn't have.

This is the second year we have been doing this," he said.

The SIU mens' swimming team opened its season last week by dominating the water in two meets. Coach Bob Steele said his swimmers turned in better times in the maroon and white intrasquad meet, but they still captured 24 first-place finishes.

Four Salukis were double winners as SIU won 10 events at the Cyclone Invitational at Iowa State Nov. 16-17. David Parker won both the 500- and 1,650-yard freestyle and Kees Vervoorn won the 100- and 200-yard butterfly. Roger Von Jouanne captured the 200-yard backstroke and the 400-yard individual medley.

Fabio Restrepo took the 100- and 200-yard breaststrokes.

"We showed we have a lot of depth," Steele said. "Our swimmers have been going faster in practice. It was hard for them to get excited in some of the preliminary races because our swimmers were ahead by so much."

Ral Rosario, in the 200-yard individual medley, and the 600-yard freestyle relay team were the other winners at Iowa. Rick Theobald finished second in both the one-meter and threemeter events. He turned in the highest individual score, an 8.5, on a reverse 2.5 somersault. No team scores were kept in the seven team meet.

Steele said Vervoorn, a freshman, swam consistently well in the butterfly races. He was pleased with Restrepo's performance in the breaststroke also.

The coach said he needs faster times in the sprint events, and wants faster splits in the relays. Steele added that the swimmers are still competing for position on the relay teams.

SIU broke four Eisenhower

Pool records in defeating the Illini, 87-26 in Springfield Sept. 16. About 100 persons attended the meet, which was a fundraiser for the Springfield Park District.

The Salukis won 14 of 15 events, finishing first and second in eight of them. Parker, Restrepo, Vonjouanne, Rosario and Theobald were double winners for the Salukis.

Parker won the 500- and 1,000-yard freestyle. Restrepo duplicated his performance at Iowa by winning the 100- and 200-yard breaststrokes, and Vonjouanne captured the 100-yard backstroke and 200-yard butterfly. Rosario took both the 100- and 200-yard freestyle and Theobald was the winner in one- and three-meter diving. He qualified for the NCAA national pre-qualifying meet in both events.

Bob Samples won the 50-yard freestyle, and Dean Ehrenheim won the 200-yard backstroke. "We broke four records set during the AAU Championships, but we would have broken more if we weren't so tired," Steele said. "The Illini are having some financial problems, too, and their swimming program is hurting because of it."

Blair utilizes early experience to coach badminton

Most high school athletes use their lunch breaks to talk about the used cars they buy or the previous night's practice. Paul Blair was an exception. He played badminton with his basketball coach.

"We'd set up a net in a corner of the gym and play until lunch was over," Blair said. "I liked to play because it helped me with my quickness. It was a good workout for my feet."

The lunchtime practices proved beneficial to Blair, who is now in his second year as SIU women's badminton coach. In his first season, he guided the Salukis to an eighth-place finish in the AIAW nationals.

Blair came to SIU with only one year of coaching experience at Cuba High School in 1975-76.

The 32-year old Blair played badminton intermittently since the days of the lunchtime games at Cumberland High School, located 25 miles south of Charleston. While at Cumberland, he lettered in cross country, basketball and track.

Upon high school graduation, Blair enlisted in the Air Force, where he played badminton and many other sports.

"I entered into a few badminton tournaments while serving," Blair said. "But whenever any team was being formed, I would try out for it, no matter what sport it was."

While in the Air Force, Blair participated on U.S. military teams in volleyball and basketball, and played individually in racquetball.

As coach, Blair hopes to continue the success he had his first season and eventually squash and tennis.

After 3 1/2 years overseas, Blair returned to the United States and enrolled at Eastern Illinois University. He received his bachelor's degree in 1975 and master's in 1978. While at EIU, he played for the men's badminton club, coached by Bob "Doc" Hussey.

"Doc's entire family would play, so I really got caught up in the sport," Blair said. "I guess that's where I really started my badminton career."

While playing for 17 years, Blair discovered many similarities between badminton and other sports. For one, he said, the arm motion required for an overhead smash in badminton is very similar to that needed for a tennis serve, baseball pitch, football throw and volleyball spike.

Blair added that, in badminton, a player must have quick feet, like in tennis, volleyball, racquetball and basketball.

"Most people who watch the sport think it is very slow," Blair said. "But what they're watching as spectators is the bird and not the players. If they were to watch the players, they would see the game is very fast-paced."

build a solid badminton program, but he foresees a problem because of the sport's relative obscurity.

"Badminton is a minor sport which the general SIU population has very little understanding of," Blair explained. "If the athletics department has to cut back because of financial problems, badminton would probably be the first sport to go."
