Faculty members gripe over pay plan

By Andrew Herrmann
Staff Writer

Burrowing over the University's plan to split 1 percent of the 3 percent faculty raise between merit and salary equity, several members of the SIU-C faculty voiced their opposition Tuesday at a question-and-answer session with President Albert Somit during the annual faculty meeting.

John Cumings, professor of mathematics, called for the faculty to "grab what is rightfully ours and that is the University."

With many of the faculty applauding, Gregory Rambo of the SIU-C math department added, "We think it's time for those of us in research and teaching to run this university, to reaffirm our rightful position in society."

While calling the SIU-C administrators "very nice people," Gregory said he couldn't understand how they "could decide on a relatively few merit raises."

John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs, estimated that about 110 to 113 people could receive merit increases with the required base set at $100. Of the 3 percent raise expected to be awarded beginning Jan. 1, 1980, all administrative and professional staff members and faculty will each receive an across-the-board pay increase of 1 percent of their salary and another 1 percent will be divided across the board in equal-dollar raises.

The final 1 percent will be divided up with 0.4 percent being set aside for salary equity, and faculty promotions and the remaining 0.6 percent being available to each vice president to cover merit raises. Merit raises have to be at least $100 in accordance with the plan.

Gregory said that for the University deans to think they are making merit increases than the faculty is ludicrous and should be challenged with the council of deans to debate him and his group.

"Not one of them will know as much about merit as the faculty member," he said.

Guyon also proposed that the University draw median salaries for full professors, and that the median salary is for higher officials of the administration and decide pay raises for administrative ministers until the two figures "are brought closer in number."

He said if the administration's answer is that SIU-C would lose good administrators, "then I am more convinced we've had enough."

President Somit said the $190 minimum raise was established by the Office of Academic Affairs. Guyon and the deans believe "a number of deans" were not available to the University in a "competitive pool," and that the University has, in some cases, "a competitive pool that has the capacity to give merit increases."

Donellsways to faculty to end 'aloofness'

By Andrew Herrmann
Staff Writer

Herbert Donell, president of the Faculty Senate, called on his academic colleagues Tuesday to drop "our aloofness, our air of superiority" and band together to fight for higher education's share of the state budget.

"Donell, speaking at the annual faculty meeting in the Student Center, said that though he believes the governor and legislature usually pay little more than lip service to higher education and that University administrators pay themselves "incredibly high salaries," the root of education's problem is the lack of political cohesion among faculty.

"Where university faculties should be the most eloquent and powerful force for promoting the cause of education, we are, in fact, passive and disorganized," Donell said.

University faculty, he said, should take the lead in advancing their cause for them and themselves, and in improving education as more important in the scheme of things than a "suit step along a highway or a trash barrel in a state park."

In his effort to get his colleagues to drop their "apathetic behavior," Donell suggested that if each of the 4,000 employees at SIU-C, which makes it one of the largest political alliances, higher education, would receive more financial support.

"Put these 4,000 people and those whom they influence with the 60,000 or 50,000 other college and university employees and Illinois along with their network of associations, and then draw aNavbar of a nationwide organization with a program, and tell me that our hope for higher education will not look brighter.

"And suppose we were to form a coalition with students and their parents -- wouldn't that be an awesome team?"

"Analytic can speak of the Catholic or the Jewish vote, the pre-life or the anti-gun control lobby, but I suspect you have never heard of the higher ed lobby, he said.

Quoting former Vice President Walter Mondale, Donell painted the faculty that "brutal, bloody and disputed" recent history as a country over priorities and that academia is one of the main culprits.

Donell said that the university, by "remaining aloof and passive," has let "thieves, politicians, unions, business organizations, Arab sheiks, and whoever else is left talking us into that at the proper time we can take all these machers."

"You know, theoretically, we are the smartest bunch of people around. If we are so smart, why does the future of higher education look so bleak?"

Registration plan illegal, judge says

LOUISIANA AP Draft opponents said Tuesday a federal judge's order Tuesday forced the government to scrap its registration program, but the Selective Service warned young men must sign up or face prosecution.

Barry W. Lynn, of the group Draft Action of Washington, D.C., that "the death knell for draft registration" was sounded when U.S. District Judge Donald J. Hatter Jr. dismissed the case against a 21-year-old admitted draft resistor Monday in Los Angeles.

Hatter said the registration rules had been put into effect in 1980 "in mere 21 days" after they were published in the Federal Register, instead of 30 days as required. He also ruled the government had violated the 1973 Privacy Act's guarantee of free speech by prohibiting only vocal opposition of the draft.

U.S. Attorney Stephen Trott said the case would be appealed to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, but no notice of appeal had been filed even by Tuesday afternoon.

A Justice Department spokesman said Tuesday that the administration will appeal the order yesterday by Judge Terry Hatter. This includes all issues in the opinion and order.

The Department of Justice believes the opinion is wrong and will proceed with investigations and prosecutions of non registrants in a routine manner," said Arthur Brell, deputy director of public affairs, in a statement to reporters.

Lynn said he believes the legal problems with the registration plan can be cured "reformatively and that it should be abandoned."

Otherwise, the government would have to start all over again with new regulations and reenlist men, he said. He questioned whether Congress would be willing to appropriate funds to start over.

Kunstler says elite control justice

By Judan Ansteadi
Staff Writer

The judicial system in the United States is controlled by a power-elite and can only moved by fear.

That is the opinion of William Kunstler civil rights lawyer, whose claims to fame include such court cases as the Chicago Seven and the Black Panthers. He is currently defending Leonard Peltier, a native American prisoner at Marion Federal Penitentiary.

Kunstler spoke at a luncheon sponsored by the Leonard Peltier Support Group at Southern Illinois Airport Tuesday after meeting with Peltier who was convicted for aiding and abetting the deaths of two FBI agents in a stand-off at Pine Ridge Reservation, S.D., in June 1975.

Kunstler said he has "no confidence in the system at all. The only confidence I said he does have is in the self-interest and fear that would move Judge Paul Benson to grant Peltier an evidentiary hearing.

"Since Peltier's conviction, his lawyers have obtained information through the Freedom of Information Act that they believe "shatters the prosecution's case on every detail" and proves the FBI falsified evidence, committed perjury and coerced testimony.

Kunstler said that if Benson does grant the hearing, it is because he is personally fearful of having "washed his hands in-glove" with the prosecution in "nailing Peltier for an evidentiary hearing.

"The morale of the agency would be increased if the FBI agents."

New city parking ordinance allows license suspension

By Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

Persons accumulating 10 or more city parking tickets might find themselves losing something besides their money—namely their drivers licenses.

The Carbondale City Council has approved an ordinance based on a new state law that provides stricter enforcement of parking fine collection. Under the law, a drivers license can be suspended if a person does not respond in 60 days to a warrant for more than 10 parking tickets.

Assistant City Attorney Mary Ann Midden said the recent arrest warrants may be issued for parking tickets in that the city has been having problems serving court summons by mail because of incorrect registration information.

Midden said the city will not routinely issue warrants because it would simply increase the backlogs of warrants to be served.

The ordinance contains a provision for consideration of court cases against one person with 10 or more tickets. Previously, the city routinely filed each parking ticket case on an individual basis.

In other action, the council authorized City Manager Carroll Fry to solicit construction bids for a proposed public works garage. The initial estimate for the garage, prepared by Carbondale architects LPS and Associates, was originally roughly $110,475 over the ceiling set by the council.

Fry said the council Monday "you'd be better off to reject all bids and draw up new plans for a smaller building" if the bids received were over the $42,000.

Councilwoman Sammee Ask

Councillor supports city hall relocation

By Mike Nelson
Staff Writer

Carbondale City Manager Carroll Fry's plan to relocate city hall has received enthusiastic support from the City Council Monday—support which he said had been lacking in the past.

The plan suggests moving the present city offices from Fairfield Building to Arlington Building. Fry has estimated that the project would cost the city $100,000.

Both buildings, which are former dormitories, are located in the University City Complex, in the 600 block of East College Street. The city has occupied the Fairfield Building since 1976.

The relocation plan is on the list of Carbondale's Capital Improvements Projects for fiscal year 1983-84, but at its meeting Nov. 8, the council authorized no preliminary funding and expressed little support for the project. The lack of support grated Fry, who then proposed the project be dropped from the CIP checklist.

Fry pointed out that the city would realize a "minimum of $50,000 annual savings" if city hall was relocated to Arlington. He alluded to a study conducted by Robert Hisgen, city purchasing agent, which found the present city hall badly in need of repairs. Hisgen estimated it would take roughly $50,000 to make necessary repairs to Fairfield.

Fry said the Arlington Building has distinct advantages over the present city hall. The Arlington is structurally superior, as it has concrete floors and ceilings, he said. And Arlington is located closer to the city's public works, finance and central copying departments.

Councilman Robert Hisgen, $14,576.60 contract to Wages and salaries for the first 10 months of this year were $6,066 per car, less than the average of last year's model police car.

The cost of the new vehicles was $38,000, funded by the police department.

The council also approved an ordinance authorizing construction of a pedestrian crosswalk for the handicapped on Mill Street at Rawlings Street. Fry said the crosswalk will cost the city more than $10,000.

In other action, the council awarded a $4,750 contract to Evansville Concrete Finishers Evansville Ill. for construction of the Tatum Heights subdivision storm drainage project.

Councilwoman Sammee Askman objected to the proposed use of electric heating in the garage, saying the estimate might be lowered if gas heating was used instead.

In other business, the council approved a $25,764 contract with Vogler Ford of Carbondale for purchase of four new city police cars. According to Purchasing Agent Robert Hisgen, $39,000 was budgeted for the police cars.

The Wholesale prices up 0.5 percent

WASHINGTON—Sprued by higher costs for new cars, wholesale prices rose 0.5 percent in October, the government said Tuesday. The modest increase, while reversing an actual drop the previous month, was seen as "good news" at the White House, but a related report showed another slip in factory output and pertended more layoffs and lingering recession.

Despite last month's comparative surge, wholesale inflation stands at a modest annual pace of 3.3 percent for the first 10 months. October's rate would translate to 3.7 percent if it held for a year.

Reagan in no mood to compromise

NEW ORLEANS—President Reagan demanded on Tuesday that Congress not tamper with his income-tax cuts, the big buildup in defense spending, or try to enact a big public works program to create jobs, declaring, "We will not negate all the good we accomplished in these first 22 months."

Despite growing pressure to change the course he has vowed to stay, Reagan served notice on the coming lame-duck session of Congress that he is in little mood to compromise on his basic economic program. Those who claim it isn't working, he said, are merely saying "a poor man's program."

Soviet official blasts trade sanctions

MIKONOS—The Soviet Union's foreign trade minister told Zhdanov leading American businessmen that the U.S. government should renounce "once and for all" the use of trade sanctions as a weapon.

Opening the first full meeting of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Trade Council in four years, Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patol'chik said the Soviet Union is interested in expanding business with American suppliers but only when it has "complete confidence that agreements will not be broken."

Davis charged with prison murder

By Jennifer Phillips
Staff Writer

Bruce Davis was charged Tuesday morning with the murder of former Mendon Correctional Center employee Joseph Cushman, according to the Randolph County State’s Attorney’s office.

A date has not been set for the arraignment of Davis, who escaped from Mendon Oct. 28.

Authorities said Davis has verbally admitted to killing Cushman, who was found slain with an ax when Davis escaped from the prison’s minimum-security farm, but they said they do not know how he will plead in court.

Illinois corrections officials are presently arranging for investigators from the 12 areas where Davis has said he committed murders to interview him, said Vic Howell, Illinois Department of Corrections spokesman.

Davis has claimed that he has committed eight murders in Washington D.C., four in New York City, two in Los Angeles, four in Arlington, Va., and one each in Reno, Nev., New Orleans, San Diego, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., San Francisco, New Hampshire and Puerto Rico between 1969 and 1971.

Along with Cushman’s murder and two Davis has already been convicted for, he has admitted to killing 20 people, Howell said.

Authorities have confirmed five of Davis’ murders, one each in Washington D.C., New York City, Reno and Los Angeles and Chester, he said.

Several police departments from these areas have arranged to talk with Davis, Howell said, but he did not know which ones.

depends on the swiftness of punishment and conviction of a ‘guilty’ party,” said Kunstler. “And Leonard caught the heat.

“People in power must retain that power. They use the assumptions of the legal court to paint a false picture for the citizens of this country. They rely on the fact that the sheep line up and plop to work day by day and then come home and sit in front of the TV,” a Nothing unquestionably whatever is thrown at them, Kunstler said.

“These people in power use the media to distract and divert the public from what they are really doing,” said Kunstler, drawing a parallel between the ancient Greek and the mass media in the United States.

“The use of the judicial system and jails for political persecution is standard in any country,” said Kunstler.

“The United States is no different.” Leonard Peltier’s case is a national issue which requires the offensive action of all people of good will,” said Kunstler.

Kunstler was joined at the luncheon by lawyer Bruce Ellison, who has been involved in the case since its inception and Stephanie Autumn, spokesperson for the American Indian Movement and paralegal for Peltier.

Bulimia: an eating disorder that afflicts 5 percent at SIU

I was pleased that the W. chose to write an article on Bulimia (Nov. 9). an eating disorder that affects nearly 1 percent of students at SIU. Indeed, however, I feel that my remarks concerning the physical ramifications of this condition are necessary. Denaturation of teeth enamel is irreversible; expect maxium will go back.

In addition, there are other physical symptoms: eg, abnormal sex addiction to laxatives, menstrual irregularities, and anorexia nervosa. Each one of these can lead to death.

As important, to note that bulimics can and do develop diabetes, heart disease, and other nutritional deficiencies. I am sure this is a partial list of the side effects of bulimia.

Let them make up deficit, not us

In a recent article in the Daily Egyptian, an article was written that the Illinois Board of Higher Education was considering raising the revenue bond fee. The title was "Let them make up deficit, not us."

But why? If the fee is to be used for living expenses of those living in married student housing, does the parent pay for this fee?

In addition, the article was written in a tone of parental arrogance. It seemed to me that this fee should be made up by the student, not the parent. This is not to say that the student is not responsible for living expenses. But I do feel that the student should be held responsible for living expenses and that the parent should not be held responsible.

In America, 4,000 babies killed daily

We protest nuclear armament for fear of annihilation. We deploy armies to assure the survival of our nation. But we have not considered the effects of our nuclear armament on the rest of the world.

In America, 4,000 babies are killed each day. This is the equivalent of the deaths caused by nuclear war. I am not saying that we should not fight the nuclear war, but I am saying that we should not be afraid of the nuclear war. We should be afraid of the effects of our nuclear armament on the rest of the world. We should be afraid of the effects of our nuclear armament on our children. We should be afraid of the effects of our nuclear armament on our future.
Dean warns of pot's long-term effect

By Jennifer Phillips

Because people don't feel the immediate effects of cigarette smoking, they continue to do it. But the long-term effects are detrimental to many smokers, one who then they had never started.

Smoking marijuana can produce the same long-term effects, said Norman Doorenbos, dean of the College of Science. He spoke at Wednesday School in Carbondale Monday night to a group of about 55 parents and elementary school children on "Everything you wanted to know about marijuana but didn't know who to ask."

The program was sponsored by The Carbondale Association for Talented Education. A representative of the group said he doesn't think there is much of a problem with drugs at the grade-school level but parents want to be prepared.

Fifteen years ago, researchers didn't know that smoking marijuana was harmful, Doorenbos said, but they now know it "has the same chemicals as cigarettes and causes cancer and many other illnesses."

Doorenbos, who has seven children, is a leading authority on marijuana. Marijuana reduces peripheral vision and affects how the mind works. "People can't think things through," he said. Smoking marijuana damages the lungs, possibly causing emphysema, and can cause heart problems because the heart can't get enough oxygen, he said.

It can also cause permanent brain damage, he said, although "the last person to notice is the one using it."

He told the group about a friend who is a pediatrician. She wrote Doorenbos that she is distressed by the increasing number of children she is treating for symptoms of marijuana smoking.

"One does not have to be a scientist to notice long-term effects anymore," she wrote him.

Doorenbos told the children to listen to their own judgment, not the pressure of their peers to use drugs.

One example of how people take the word of others occurring in the 1960s, he said, when people started smoking banana peels. They scraped the white skin off the inside of the peeling, baked it, rolled it and smoked it. They thought they were getting high, he said.

"The experience depends on your imagination," he said. "Our minds can play tricks on us."

These examples are funny, he said, but there are others that aren't, he said, telling the group about a boy who died trying to eat the wrong kind of mushrooms.

"Don't take the drug because a friend tells you to," he said. "It can hurt you. It can hurt them."

We've been given a wonderful mind and a wonderful body," he said. "Drugs won't help."

A "SPEAK Out on Aging" program will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday in the Missouri Room. It is an opportunity to communicate feelings about the needs of the elderly and the value of services being provided, sponsored by the Advisory Council of the Egyptian Area Agency on Aging.

Doc Severinsen fills jazz prescription—

Another D'Angelo composition, with a Secret Love," began with the melody from Severinsen on flugelhorns and quickly changed into a free-form jazz piece with almost no recognizable melodic line in which the group played pass-the-solo with no predetermined jumps. The second standard received great encouragement from the audience. Severinsen chose it as "Impression of the St. Louis Blues" and said, "You aren't going to recognize it after a few bars." Right as usual.

The real showpieces of the night, however, were the original compositions. Most of them were composed either as a tribute to real places or ideas to fantasies, the one exception being bassist Jeff D'Angelo's funky tribute to "Ambles." Several of the charts performed were his compositions. Severinsen, while introducing another D'Angelo composition, said, "He writes so many songs because he has no social life." D'Angelo, who has played with Chuck Mangione, was also the composer of a theme to his seaside home called "House by the Sea." Another fine composition was guitarist Tom Rizzo's tribute to the group's favorite Mexican restaurant, "El Gato." Rizzo, who had just recently joined the group, used his guitar to compliment perfectly the lead lines of Severinsen's trumpet and flugelhorn. Although fairly new in the group, Rizzo appeared to be a strong part and often took the lead. Percussionist Ron Davis treated the older crowd to something they usually don't hear—a no-holds-barred drum solo that brought onsets and also from the crowd for over five minutes. Davis, who has also performed with Mangione, Woody Herman, Benny Goodman, and the Manhattan Transfer, said that he loves the workout and release playing drums gives him.

The final member that makes up Se-bien is keyboardist Bill Harmon, who has toured with Buddy Rich and Maynard Ferguson. Harmon's playing often reinforced the melodies and doubled Severinsen's trumpet. The start of the night and the man they came to see, however, was Severinsen. The Doctor has been musical director of The Tonight Show since 1964, which is quite well known as a nightclub entertainer. Fusion jazz is, however, a departure for him.

He said Xebion wasn't really an overnight thing like most people believe. He worked with these fine musicians painting pictures with music for a while now. Severinsen had no previous experience with live music, which is an easy thing to do... As musical director of The Tonight Show since 1964, which is quite well known as a nightclub entertainer. Fusion jazz is, however, a departure for him.

Fraternity searches for ugliest man

By Sheila Washington

People with ugly faces or ones only a mother can love have a chance to get campus-wide recognition and raise money for the Big Brother-Big Sister charity through entering the ugly-man contest sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega service fraternity.

The contest for the ugliest man, traditionally an inside-fraternity function, is taking off as a campus-wide event as a pledge project from the prospective members of the fraternity, members said.

Nominations for repulsive-looking gents or the cuties who entered for the fun of it, started two weeks ago, said Bob Janssen, chairman of the contest.

Although the contest is becoming popular and the number of candidates is increasing, many nominees are not bringing the pictures of themselves, which are imperative for judging, Janssen said.

"So far, of 32 candidates we only have six pictures to post during voting," he said.

The fraternity thought of having the contest last semester but never pushed past the stage of planning, Janssen said.

"It's hard getting this type of contest off the ground because people have a hard time accepting sarcasm," he said. "From the pictures we have so far, these guys aren't really ugly, they just want to join the fun of being in the contest."

Janssen said the fraternity will have tables in the Student Center Wednesday and Thursday for voting. Each contestant will have a picture of himself on a canister and voters will contribute money to the canister which they think has the ugliest picture on it. The winner of the contest will be the one whose canister has the most money.

As king of the ugly world, the winner will receive money from his canister and an ugly-man key. Other proceeds from the contest will go to charity.

Janssen said the contest is the first of what the fraternity hopes to be annual seminars of ugliest, biggest and other "ins" projects involving students.

He said the winner of the contest will be announced after Thanksgiving break.

Who slew Annie Mae Aquash? Indians, FBI swap suspicions

By Juliana Anastasoff
Staff Writer

Rain falls, quenching Mother Earth's thirst, germinating seeds that will soon grow into tall, firm, rooted trees to shade, comfort and bear fruit.

"I'll come back to you in the rain," was the promise of Annie Mae Aquash to her people.

The death of an Indian, an American Indian woman is depicted in a film titled "Annie Mae Aquash: A Hearted Woman," shown Monday night in David Auditorium.

The film, sponsored by the Leonard Peltier Support Group, told of her life on reservation land in the 1950s and her involvement in the American Indian Movement. It is presented in images and words of friends, and in her own words, taken from letters written to friends and family.

Annie Mae was found dead Feb. 26, 1973. According to initial FBI coroner reports, she had died of exposure.

A second coroner claimed that the cause of death was a bullet hole in the back of her head, hercause of death, and not the bullet hole in the back of her head, as claimed by the second coroner.

Annie Mae was an activist in AIM, the American Indian Movement. She was instrumental in the establishment of AIM in 1968.

Leonard Peltier, a member of AIM, is currently facing charges of conspiracy and murder in the death of two FBI agents, Bert H nie and Roycec Hall, in 1975.

The film includes interviews with fellow AIM members and footage of Peltier and others involved in the height of AIM's activities.

Annie Mae was an important figure in AIM's early years, and her death was a tragic loss for the movement.

The film aims to honor her memory and to shed light on the circumstances surrounding her death.

It is hoped that the film will inspire viewers to learn more about Annie Mae and the American Indian Movement, and to support the efforts of AIM in the present day.

The film is a powerful reminder of the ongoing struggle for justice and equality for American Indians.

Georgia top college poll again

By Herschel Nissenbaum
AP Sports Writer

Penn State, fresh from a 24-14 victory over Notre Dame, moved ahead of Nebraska into third place Tuesday, in The Associated Press college football poll, while Georgia and Southern Methodist remained 1-2. Arizona State fell from third to eighth and Alabama missed the Top Twenty for the first time in six years.

Georgia, seeking its second national championship in three years, is No. 1 for the second week in a row following a 19-14 victory over Auburn. The Bulldogs received 42 of 60 first-place votes and 1,867 of a possible 2,100 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Stilwell pulled out a last gasp 34-32 triumph over Texas Tech on a 91-yard run with four seconds left following a bobbled kickoff and a lateral. The Mustangs, the only unbeaten unit in the college league besides Georgia, received eight first-place votes and 1,180 points. However, they lost ground to Georgia, which SMU last week 25-18 in the first-place votes and 1,130-1,126 in points.

Penn State jumped from fifth to third with two first-place ballots and 1,097 points. The Nittany Lions took over third place when Arizona State suffered its first setback of the season, bowing to Washington 17-13.

The other two first-place votes went to Nebraska, which held onto fourth place by trouncing Iowa State 48-10. The Cornhuskers received 986 points.

Washington's victory over Arizona State lifted the Huskies to a second place to fifth with 932 points. Pitt rebounded from its only loss with a 24-6 triumph over Army and climbed from eighth to sixth with 860 points.

Florida State vaulted from ninth to seventh with 771 points. It rebounded from Pitt's triumph with a 23-10 win over Georgia Tech after a 35-0 licking of Arizona State, 96 points.

Arkansas, after crushing Louisville 49-14, fell from tenth to ninth with 682 points. However, it grew one point over its last week ranking.

Ten schools received first-place votes. Nebraska, Iowa, Oklahoma State, Georgia, SMU, Penn State, Florida State, Pitt, Arizona State and Texas Tech.

In 1977 he became a born-again Christian. He remembers that some people looked at that and said he would stay with it for maybe six months. Others predicted maybe a year because of his interests.

"It's been five years now," said Dempsey. "The actual experience happened in a day and it grows from that.

His old interests and drive is still there, but it is tempered, he says, with the Holy Spirit changing me; he has said on more than one occasion. "I think when I found the Lord in 1972, I became more compassionate."
Fighter's family to decide life-death question

By Tim Dahlberg

AP Sports Writer

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — (AP) — The mother and brother of South Korean fighter Duk Kun Kim traveled to the United States Tuesday to meet with doctors and decide whether to disconnect the life support system keeping the brain-dead boxer alive.

Kim, 23, suffered a critical head injury Saturday in a lightweight title bout against World Boxing Association champion Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini at Caesar's Palace. The Korean was knocked out in the 10th round.

"The medical decision will be made with them in consultation," Dr. Lonnie Hammargren said. "The tests still show no sign of cerebral life. It is now a moral and ethical question what to do when the brain is dead."

Hammargren has said that once the life support machinery is disconnected, Kim would die "within a matter of minutes." The boxer still has a "strong heart and constitution," said Hammargren, but tests showed no blood was getting past the base of Kim's skull to his brain.

Kim's mother and brother were flown here by the Korean government Diplomatic personnel, who were awaiting them in Los Angeles, where they were scheduled to board a flight to Las Vegas late Tuesday afternoon.

Hammargren, who operated on Kim nearly three hours Saturday night, said he would give the family "all the facts," but would not advise them whether to disconnect the machinery.

The surgeon displayed X-rays Tuesday showing where four holes were drilled into Kim's skull. The procedure was taken to relieve pressure building up after an artery in the brain burst and a blood clot developed...
Dempsey tempers intensity with faith

Rey Dempsey is a self-described perfectionist. Some of his colleagues call him a workaholic. His record suggests that he is too good at what he does to fashion a long career at SIU-C, especially now that the Salukis are in their third NCAA Division I-A school as long as there are dorm rooms and college football programs, there will be a market for a coach with a proven track record.

Dempsey's career advancement hasn't been the usual, predictable route. A lot of head coaches start as graduate assistants, then become assistants, maybe offensive or defensive coordinators and then head coaches when the old coach runs out of aliens or finds a better job.

In Dempsey's tortuous route to a major college head coaching job, he found himself coaching high school kids in Ohio, an offensive line at Bowling Green, a Division II school at Youngstown, Ohio, and the special teams of the Detroit Lions. Had he messed up anywhere he might be back where he started.

Dempsey admits that his career trek might not be over. He was one of the final four candidates for the West Virginia basketball coaching job several years ago. And during his year and a half there with the Mountaineers his goal was to become the head coach of an NFL team in six years. Realizing that few special teams coaches were tapped as head men, and sensing that he might be stuck in that role for a while, Dempsey leaped to SIU-C in 1976.

His first team went 7-4, which matched the win total that Saluki coaches had guided the team to in its previous four years. If SIU-C beats West Texas State Saturday it will be the Salukis' fifth winning season in Dempsey's seven-year reign.

"I want to be the tops in my profession," he said. "I want to be very good."

For Dempsey, that means spending off-season weekends with potential recruits, working 15-hour days during the season.

"If I work a 16-hour day, or even a 12-hour day, I feel bad," said Dempsey. "People in our profession call me a workaholic. It's almost like a disease. I've been an intense person since I was a young kid."

Dempsey was the captain of his football, basketball and baseball teams as a high school senior, and as a college quarterback, before being knocked out of a job. He knew everybody else's assignment too. He took economics classes, partly, he said, because they were the easiest to get.

Spikers seek conference title, but tough foes stand in the way

With the chips falling where they may, the SIU-C basketball team remains the only Saluki fall sport nurturing a hope of gaining an NCAA tournament bid.

And with the chips falling where they did, SIU-C finds itself the second seed in the tournament behind Illinois State, which means it must play tough competition in its fight to the top.

Does this mean Coach Debbie Hunter and her team must watch out for falling chips when they look at the Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference title in Springfield, Mo., beginning Thursday?

"Well it's been a while since I've seen a No. 1 seeded team lose in the tournament, she said. "And the easiest route is not the way we play our best. We have to be given a challenge all the way."

Hunter expects all nine conference teams could provide a healthy challenge to the Salukis, pointing out that in a tournament setting even the highest rated team sometimes gets upset and knocked off a top contender, like SIU-C.

The only reason the Salukis are seeded behind the ISU, 4-10 record through earlier season losses to ISU. SIU-C occupied a spot in the Top 20 for two weeks earlier this season.

The double-elimination GCAC tournament allows a team to come back through a losers bracket to get back in the title run. The winner of the Conference will gain an automatic berth to the NCAA tournament.

Hunter said her team should win the title, and if it doesn't, "I'll be very disappointed." She said she believes her players know they are the best team in the tournament.

In its first-round match on Thursday, SIU-C will face No. 7 Northern Iowa, which posted a 41-10 mark this season. Half of the Hawkeyes' 18 wins came via conference play.

Dempsey: "I think we have a tentative agreement."

Paul Martha, a former NFL running back and now a lawyer who served as mediator in the final round of negotiations, said the tentative contract totals $1.28 billion over five years.

Dolan said that Super Bowl XVII will be played Jan. 30 in Pasadena, Calif., as originally scheduled.

Jim Miller, a spokesman for the Management Council, said that only one of the eight weekends missed during the strike will be made up and that each team will be play at least four of the season's nine games at home.

NEW YORK (AP) — A tentative agreement was reached Tuesday night to end the 57-day National Football League strike, the longest and costliest walkout in sports history. The season is to resume Sunday, limited to nine games with an expanded and juggled 16-team playoff format.

The settlement, subject to ratification by player representatives of the 28 clubs and the owners' NFL Management Council, and then three-quarters of the owners and a majority of the 1,500 players, was confirmed by management negotiator Jack Dolan, union director Ed Garvey and union president Gene Oleshak.

"I think we have a tentative agreement," Donlan said. "I am hoping it can be ratified tonight. I am happy and elated."
