Board abolishes Academic Services

By Theresa Livingston

Staff Writers

An academic unit will be dissolved and President John C. Guyon will receive an additional $6,000 for housing expenses as a result of an SIU Board of Trustees meeting Thursday.

The board unanimously approved a resolution to abolish the University's Undergraduate Academic Services department.

The board voted to dissolve the department, which has been in existence in its present form since 1984. The move is effective Dec. 1.

However, Vice President for Academic Affairs and Research Benjamin A. Shepherd said the move was not for "cost-cutting"

Report: University did not reach its goal in awarding minorities business contracts

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

The University has awarded only 3.4 percent of its total contracts to female- and minority-owned businesses, falling well short of its goal of awarding 10 percent of total contracts to these businesses according to a report submitted to the SIU Board of Trustees by Donald Wilson, vice chancellor for financial affairs. The report stated that only about $526,000 out of a goal of $1.5 million in contracts currently are awarded to these businesses. In reference to the dollar amounts only, the University was "to a degree pleased that 35 percent of (its) goal was met."

Of groups identified in the survey, businesses owned or managed by Caucasian females had the highest earnings for fiscal year 1989, with $430,930. Black female-owned or -managed businesses had the lowest, with $1,444.

Under the Minority and Female Enterprise Act as amended in 1988, state universities must strive to fill 10 percent of contracts with businesses who purposes because no jobs would be eliminated and the programs concerned would be retained to better serve students.

The two degree programs and four academic support systems in UAS will continue to operate out of their existing locations, but will be under the jurisdiction of other academic units.

The two degree programs, University Studies and Special Majors, will be absorbed by the College of Liberal Arts. The move will add academic credibility, facilitate improvements and allow closer alignment of the Special Majors Program with the University Honors Program, according to a Board Release.

The plan also provides for the transfer of the Center for Basic Skills, a regional career preparation program and the federally-funded Outward Bound programs to the jurisdiction of the Office of Affirmative Action.

The Pre-Major Advisement Center will now report directly to the vice president for academic affairs and research (planning).

In its decision to raise Guyon's salary, the Board said Guyon should not be required to live in University-owned housing, but that he should receive a housing supplement instead.

Guyon, who possesses private housing in Carbondale, is receiving $12,000 per year in lieu of University-owned housing.

The committee in charge of the action stipulates that, as of Dec. 1, 1989, his salary of $122,040 will be decreased by that $12,000 and a new supplement of $18,000 will be instated to that reduced amount.

Although it's not normally within the board's jurisdiction to do so, the committee recommended the board at this time conduct a review of the housing supplements of the salaries of the University's three chief executives: Guyon, Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit and SIU-E President Earl Lazerson.

Pettit's housing situation will not be affected by this move.

Ground broken for prison work camp

By Chris Walka
Staff Writer

Gov. James R. Thompson officially broke ground for a $3.3 million work camp at the Du Quoin State fairgrounds Thursday.

Bidding for the project will be accepted next April and is expected to be completed by early 1991. The facility will span 15 acres and will house 200 inmates.

State Sen. Ralph Dunn, R-Du Quoin, said the funds for the construction of the camp came from the Capital Development Board.

Dunn said the $2.5 million appropriation for the camp was supplemented by $800,000 Nov. 1, when architects designing the facility said more money would be needed.

The exact location of the camp was unknown by Dunn, but he said it would be somewhere east of the fairgrounds. Dunn said the camp would be administered by one prison.

Dunn said the $2.5 million figure was a guess on the total cost of the camp. The original funds were appropriated June 30.

According to a press release, the facility will operate on a $4.8 million budget, of which $3 million will be employee salaries.

The new facility is expected to bring 110 new jobs to the area, the release said.

Michael Lane, director of the Department of Corrections, said the prison will house inmates within nine months of parole. The prisoners will perform manual tasks for local and state governments, such as general cleanup and other duties.

Lane said the prisoners may come from Vienna, Shawnee or Centralia correctional centers, and a number of local people would be hired.

All Illinois correctional facilities are suffering from overcrowding, Lane said, and this played a big part in the increase of new work camps.

Work camps, Lane said, are operating in Dixon Springs, Hardin County, Springfield, Vandalia, Hanna City and East Moline. Lane said there are three camps still to be announced. The camps house 778 inmates, collectively.

Cafeteria collapses, seven die

MONTGOMERY, N.Y. (UPI) — Hurricane-force winds smashed a glass and brick cafeteria wall during lunchtime at an elementary school Thursday, killing seven children and injuring at least 23 other people, authorities said.

The wall, as well as a section of roof, collapsed with a roar about 12:30 p.m. as 87-mph wind gusts struck the East Coldenham Elementary School in Montgomery, near Newburg in New York's Hudson Valley.

Search for tornado survivors continues

Fifth-grader Robbie Bonfiglio said through frightened sobs that a "strong wind came and knocked over the glass over the cafeteria. When the wall came down, it sounded like they were drilling. The only thing we could see was the wind."

There were about 200 first-through third-grade students and about 30 teachers and their aides in the cafeteria when the collapse occurred, state Education

Sales tax revenues indicate strong economy

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

City officials are smiling because sales tax receipts show the local economy is very strong, but their smiles could turn to frowns within the next two years if the Illinois Center Mall in Marion becomes a reality.

Analysis from the city's finance department revealed that sales tax revenues through November are about 8.28 percent higher this year as compared with the last fiscal year.

This increase translates into about an extra $190,303 for the city's general fund, Paul Sorgen, finance director, said.

Money in the general fund is used for basic services, such as fire and police protection, he said.

Sorgen said projections for the fiscal year 1991 sales tax revenues are $3.1 million, a possible 6.4 percent increase from previous years.

In addition to the sales tax increases, city officials discovered in October an additional $900,000 in the city's budget, a direct result of a two-year income tax hike, Steve Hoffer, city manager, said.

The budget windfall is slated for the creation of the new civic center and development of the downtown area, Hoffer said.

The future, however, may not be so rosy for the Carbondale economy.

East Germans OK reform for coalition government

WEST BERLIN (UPI) — The new East German leadership agreed Thursday on a reformed coalition government and charged Parliament with drafting constitutional and electoral amendments amid demands for revoking the Communist Party's dominant status. In Bonn, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl said East Germans must decide whether they want German reunification. "Freedom is and remains at the heart of the German question," Kohl told the Bundestag or parliament. "That means above all that our fellow countrymen in East Germany must themselves decide the way they want to go in the future."

Salvadoran intellectual shot, beat to death

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Gunmen murdered El Salvador's leading leftist intellectual in a bloody eight person massacre Thursday as warplanes pounded rebel positions and house-to-house battles raged in the capital during a sixth day of heavy fighting. About 20 to 30 men wearing military uniforms and carrying automatic rifles burst into the home of Ignacio Ellacuria, a Spanish-born Jesuit priest and rector of the Central American University, before dawn Thursday and shot and beat him and seven others to death.

House approves pay raise, ethics package

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House approved a plan Thursday that will substantially raise the pay of members while overhauling congressional ethics rules. The bill, which passed 252-174 and now goes to the Senate, would increase members' pay from the current $89,500 a year to more than $120,000 in 1991. The package would prohibit House members from accepting speaking fees and other honoraria, and limit all sources of outside income to 15 percent of their congressional pay.

Senate gives in to Bush on abortion ban

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate quietly acceded to President Bush's demand for a ban on the use of federal funds to perform abortions for victims of rape or incest Thursday and senior advisers urged the president also to veto a more liberal policy for the nation's capital. The Senate, reflecting a calculated decision to put off a major showdown with Bush on abortion until next year, made no effort to put liberalized language into a second version of the $156.7 billion appropriation bill for the Labor and Health and Human Services departments. The bill was passed by a voice vote and returned to the House.

Walesa wraps up historic Washington trip

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Solidarity founder Lech Walesa, in his last major Washington appearance, turned to humor to make his pitch for more investment aid for Poland. Standing at the podium of the National Press Club, where presidents, kings and prime ministers have stood before, the burly shipyard electrician from Gdansk told an overflow audience that "for me, the heroes are the ordinary people because they will grow big; they are the last ones, for they shall be first."

Thompson visits area hit by storms, 100 mph winds

ALORTON (UPI) — Gov. James R. Thompson, after viewing Thursday storm damage in the St. Louis Metro East area, promised quick action to get the economically depressed area back on its feet. A thunderstorm and winds reaching 100 mph ripped through the area east and south of East St. Louis early Wednesday, causing the death of one woman when a mobile home in which she was sleeping was crushed by a tree. The storm left about 30 families homeless, destroyed several buildings, destroyed and damaged about 40 planes at St. Louis Downtown-Parks Airport in Cahokia, and set off several small fires.

USG mall resolution biased, misdirected

THE UNDERGRADUATE Student Government has proved itself to be a voice of the students that does not care enough to take the time to see if the actions it is taking are in the students' best interest.

With the passing of a resolution criticizing the city of Carbondale's lawsuit against the city of Marion, the USG stuck its nose into city business on which it had no background.

THE USG WAS relying on information from the drafter of the resolution, John Musgrave, its governmental relations commissioner. Musgrave is from Marion and therefore should have been recognized as being biased.

Had the USG taken time to examine the issue, it would have seen that Carbondale is within its rights to test the state financing incentive to bring business into areas with economic instability.

TIM HILDEBRAND, USG president, said he will veto the resolution, which he said slipped through the Nov. 8 meeting with a unanimous vote without anyone having a chance to speak on it.

Musgrave wrote the resolution in support of dropping the lawsuit and proceeding with building the mall that would, it is estimated, take $300,000 a year from Carbondale.

MARION'S ILLINOIS Center Mall received questionable financing to build in an area that the city of Carbondale believes is not hurting economically.

One of the city's fears was the loss of current businesses, such as the Sears' department store. Sears has announced that it is leaving the University Mall and moving to the new mall. Carbondale has a responsibility to keep its business community thriving.

KEEPING JOBS open to students in Carbondale is what is needed. The USG should have seized the opportunity to support Carbondale in its quest to keep business in the community. There are few students who would make a daily 15-mile drive to a $4-an-hour job.

Instead of delving into city affairs, the USG should open its eyes to see how it can help resolve conflicts that now are directly affecting student lives. The fact that the USG felt the issue did not deserve argument because of a few yawning sleepy heads should cause University students to give more scrutiny to who is holding their best interests.

Alone on Thanksgiving? Support, food are offered

THE DAYS of sunny 70s weather has turned south and the mid-November chill has returned to Southern Illinois just in time for Thanksgiving break. Many students have already hit the road for home, but there will be just as many who for one reason or another will spend the holiday in Carbondale. But those who stay do not have to spend Thanksgiving alone because Carbondale once again will be opening its arms.

THANKSGIVING DINNERS offered in the community include the 21st annual Thanksgiving Day meal, held from noon to 2 p.m. Nov. 23 at the Newman Center, 715 S. Washington St. The cost is $1. A free dinner for all needy students is offered at the Tuscan Lodge #44 from 1 to 5 p.m. Nov. 21 in the Bethel Anne Church basement, 316 E. Jackson St.

THE UNIVERSITY also offers the Host Family Program that gives international students an opportunity to learn about American tradition by spending not only Thanksgiving with a family in the community, but also Christmas. Instead of viewing the holiday as a break from the students, volunteers with various community agencies have always shown a great deal of hospitality by putting out the time, money and effort to make the holiday special for everyone. Those in the area who want to spend the holiday in the warmth a community like Carbondale can generate should not be afraid to give thanks with others in the community.

Kaul column was racist to Germans

Reinforced stereotypes

Donald Kaul's commentary on East Germany that appeared in the Daily Egyptian Nov. 15 reached into racism and reinforced the stereotypical view that many Americans have of Germans.

The East Germans crossing the border into West Germany are not wearing helmets (except maybe the kind with a beer can holder on each side with tubes running into their mouths) and the suggestion that "they soon will be" is anti-German.

Most Germans are not Nazis. Even though Germany was gripped by the racist terror that allowed a few madmen to take control of the military and the press, most of those responsible for the horror were killed during the war, tracked down and imprisoned, or have died during the 40 years since.

How do I know? My girlfriend's grandmother was there. Those (mostly women and children) who were not lucky enough to make it out of Berlin at the end of the war nearly suffered genocide at the hands of the communist Russians who had decided to starve them to death. If not for the airlift, they would have died.

Aside from those who witnessed the wars, most of those are either fleeing to the West or demanding reform are too young to remember the Holocaust, or were not even born yet. All they want is freedom: Freedom of thought, speech, to choose their own leaders and destiny — freedoms that we take for granted every day.

To use a bogus Isaac Newton quote to suggest that the Nazis are coming (I can see it now, the old Nazis blitzkrieging into Poland with their armored wheelchairs and walker-mounted cannons) as Mr. Kaul did, is as racist as saying that all blacks are criminals, or gang members.

It is just as insulting me as a German-English-American as the latter is to blacks. Oh, I forgot! Mr. Kaul isn't anti-German. After all, "they make great cars, beer and give the world great tennis players." Given the level of anti-German sentiment in Mr. Kaul's commentary, that's about equivalent to the Grand Dragon of the Ku Klux Klan saying he isn't anti-black because blacks make great music, good creole cooking, and give the world great basketball players.

I don't wish to offend anyone. I have only used racism against African-Americans as an example to prove a point. Anyone who assumes something negative about a group of people because of the actions of some from that group is a racist.

We must stand and support the East Germans in their quest for freedom. If we don't, we'll have to build a wall around the Japanese and take their freedom away. After all, when will the next Pearl Harbor be with all that money, technology and power? See how silly that sounds? — Steven Max Marlow, engineer, Olin Corporation, Herrin.

Racism 'primitive'

I was stunned to read the commentary by Donald Kaul of Tribune Media Services in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian (Germany): A new menace to peace?). His brutal racist attack on Germans transported me back to my childhood, which was the last time I have heard such vicious, insensitive, unfounded and fearful diatribe against a group of people — in that case, Afro-Americans who marched for their civil rights.

If this commentary had been a racial slur against Asian- or Afro-Americans or against Jewish people, you can be sure that it never would have been printed, but the Germans, because of Hitler, are always "fair game." I'm not trying to gloss over the atrocities of the Hitler era. It is important to realize, however, that the Germans were not the only people in history who have ever committed such inhuman crimes. The American people need to face, from their own past, the genocide of millions of American Indians — also intentionally done, organized by the government and committed in cold blood.

There simply can be no excuse for dehumanizing racism in Kaul's article, other than gross ignorance and fear. He compares the newly won freedom of East Germany with Charles Manson being out on parole and then has the audacity to claim that he is not "anti-German." Would you call that "pro-German"? Is it too much to ask for us to think "pro-human" and forget the racial stereotypes?

Although I don't expect the intense fear that generated Kaul's commentary to disappear, I had hoped that the more virulent forms of it, such as Kaul's, had become a relic of an earlier, more primitive age. — Catherine Bird, procedures and systems planner, Alumni Association.

Social work students are being 'shunned' by DE

As a university newspaper, I would think you'd be concerned with setting examples for your apprentices and for the student body rather than with focusing on the almighty headline.

I speak specifically about the fact that in the past year, our organization, the Social Work Student Alliance, has twice asked the Daily Egyptian to assign at least a photographer to cover our events; we also asked the Southern Illinoisian to cover those events. In each case, your news desk assured us a photographer would cover our event, but each time, the only photographer who showed up was a Southern Illinoisian photographer.

Why? Why have you shunned us? This most recent event was a Halloween party we gave for needy children in conjunction with the Eurna Hayes Center. What did you deem more appropriate to cover? Certainly not the Alliance, whose members spent many hours preparing for and pulling off a spectacular event for about 100 children.

I bring this to your attention not because we feel we deserve a pat on the back, but because Social Work Alliance members consistently set such examples for our fellow students, only to be ignored by you. Why do you deem it inappropriate or unimportant to award coverage to events that concern acts of humanitarianism as opposed to events that depict the more sensational side of campus life? Why aren't you setting better examples?

On another but similar note, why doesn't the DE cover the School of Social Work's events, such as Honor's Day, our recent MSW Accreditation press conference or National Social Work Week activities? It's bad enough that you don't cover alliance functions, but it's unconscionable that you ignore the school's events as well.

When will you recognize that the School of Social Work is a growing and vital part of this University and give us adequate recognition?

By the way, we have another event coming up just before Christmas — think you'll have time for us? — M.A. LeMay, SWSA president.

Mail war: 2 cities fight over revenue

Marion caught up in lawsuits over use of TIF subsidy

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

Marion's use of tax increment financing subsidies to build the Illinois Center Mall has some business owners and community leaders in more than a tiff over its legality.

In fact, foes of the Marion plan have embroiled the city in court challenges.

The opponents are charging that TIF subsidies, as mandated by state laws, are only to be used on land that is blighted or hard to develop.

THE TIF ACT exists to permit cities to redevelop blighted areas that are deteriorating and will not come back economically with tax incentives, Don Prosser, legal counsel for Carbondale, said. The Broeking Property, on which Marion proposes to build its mall, is prime development property near Interstate 57.

According to court reports, the area near Interstate 57 has experienced significant growth and development through private enterprise over the last 15 years.

Carbondale officials filed their lawsuit against Marion and the mall developers, Antonia Investments, in late October, shortly after Sears Department Store executives announced their intentions to move the store from the University Mall to the Illinois Center Mall.

CARBONDALE MAYOR Neil Dillard said the city of Marion and its developer partners will "apparently stop at nothing to lure businesses away from other communities by offering incentives and assurances that are not only outrageously costly, but also a gross interference in the free market and the competitive process."

At the time the lawsuit was announced, Sears executives had not made their final decision.

City Manager Steve Hoffner said he had met periodically with the executives to persuade them to stay in Carbondale. He said he hoped the lawsuit would show the executives Carbondale's commitment to keeping Sears.

BUT TO NO avail. On Sept. 15, four days after the city announced its intention to sue, Sears said they were definitely moving to Marion and Hoffner said it was possible that other stores may follow.

"The store in Carbondale will definitely be closed only when the new mall is finished," Peter Ellison, Sears' real estate director, said. "We're not going to discon-an outdoor strip mall and an indoor mall. The enclosed mall would contain a food court in its 220,000 square feet and would be anchored by Sears and Dillards.

In areas using tax increment financing, the amount of real estate taxes created by the property is frozen. Tax increases created by improvement to the property are transferred into a special fund to pay back redevelopment-related expenses.

our service to anyone."

Carbondale's lawsuit is not the only lawsuit pending against Marion.

The first lawsuit against Marion was filed last January by Marion businessman J.D. Castellano and was later joined by Ron Emery, a Marion resident.

CASTELLANO, WHO owns 100,000 square feet of retail space in a strip mall in Marion, said the developers of the Illinois Center Mall approached his major tenant, Wal-Mart, and tried to persuade the owners to relocate the store.

Castellano contends that Marion city planners will steer businesses away from his property in favor of the new mall.

The Castellano/Emery lawsuit is expected to come to trial in the spring of 1990.

Hoffner said it was possible that Carbondale's lawsuit could be combined with the original lawsuit to save everybody a lot of time. A final decision has not yet been made.

KAI NEBEL, an attorney in Chicago who drafted the TIF legislation in 1977, called the Marion TIF district an "illegitimate progeny of the statute."

"The purpose of economic development is not to shift development from one place to another or give a developer undue advantage over another developer," Nebel said.

Nebel also said the area does not meet the eligibility requirement of being blighted.

Despite the pending lawsuits and criticisms, Marion officials and the developers stand behind the decision to use TIF subsidies to build the new mall.

GARY KOBES, spokesman for Antonia Investments, said the developers felt strongly that the area in not blighted and it does meet the requirement of the TIF Act.

"We are still committed to going ahead with this project, despite the lawsuits," Kobes said.

Marion Mayor Robert Butler said there was no doubt in his mind the area where the mall will be built complies with the state

New mall good for region — developers

By Lisa Miller

One city's loss is another city's gain. The proposed Illinois Center Mall will bring about 3,300 jobs to the Marion area, developers said. But in order to do this, the new mall will take about $300,000 from Carbondale in sales tax revenues.

Ray Saathoff, employee of Antonia Investments, the co-developer of the project, said a considerable amount of money goes out of the Southern Illinois area to shopping malls in St. Louis, Cape Girardeau, Paducah and Evansville.

"We believe a lot of business can be recaptured and kept on the Southern Illinois area," Saathoff said.

The $65 million enclosed mall and a $10 million strip center near the mall will be located on the area west of Interstate 57.

Saathoff said the cost of the entire project would come to $165 million, construction and development included.

The enclosed mall will contain a food court and small shops in its 220,000 square feet. Sears and Dillards will be the two main department stores, and Saathoff said another one would be named at a later time.

Gary Kobes, a spokesman from Antonia Investments, said the two developers, Antonia Investments and the Edward J. DeBartolo Corp., chose Marion for the mall site because it was a very strategic location for long term marketing in Southern Illinois.

Despite pending litigations against Antonia Investment and the city of Marion, the groundbreaking ceremony for the new mall has been set for Nov. 21.

Katy O'Brien, attorney for Antonia Investments, said at this point the lawsuits have no bearing on the construction. "The lawsuits are still in the early stages. There is no legal reason for construction not to begin."

O'Brien said said she feels certain the developers as well as the city of Marion will prevail in the lawsuits.

The lawsuit centers around Marion's use of tax increment financing to fund the project.

O'Brien said even if they are not successful in the lawsuit, there are alternative financing methods available.

Alternative options include:

■ The developers can require the city of Marion to issue special service area bonds, to be repayed from the city's share of sales-tax returns from the new mall or from other taxes imposed on the mall property.

■ With notice from the developers, the city must set up a business district for the mall and then issue bonds from the mall under the Illinois Business District Act to replace money it would have had from the TIF district.

■ The Marion City Council could call a referendum to change Marion to a home rule city, which would make it easier for the city to exercise additional financing options.

■ The developers could disconnect the mall property if the city does not undertake any of the alternate financing options in the agreement after gaining home rule status.

University Mall expansion will heat competition

The battle of the malls are heating up and the University Mall has some heavy artillery.

The University Mall may be losing the Sears department store, but it could be gaining a Venture discount center and a Famous-Barr department store.

"The store owners have announced their intentions to come to the University Mall, but we're still in the process of completing the final paperwork to make the deal final," John Korey, University Mall manager, said.

Korey said he hoped to have the deal finalized after the beginning of the 1990.

In the meantime, the University Mall is expected to undergo a $23 million upgrade and expansion project that would add new shops to the mall plus a food court.

Councilman Keith Tuxhorn said the mall owners asked the City Council in October 1988 for about $5 million to help fund the project, but the council did not appropriate any money at that time.

"We (the council) wanted to wait until the mall owners had all the specifics," he said.

The council has been supportive of the renovation and Tuxhorn said he speculated that the council would donate a substantial amount of money when the specific plans materialized.

Mark Pulliam, vice president of development for Hocker and Associates, the mall owners, said the renovations would "secure our positions in the market place. We will certainly be one of the major retailing focus in Southern Illinois."

Korey said although the mall would probably feel the impact of the Illinois Center, the competition would make the University Mall better.

"I'm not sure the Southern Illinois region is big enough for two malls this size, but we'll soon see," Korey said.—Lisa Miller

Education budget to gain little in '90

By Tim Crosby
Staff Writer

University Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said Thursday that SIU had a successful fall veto session, but warned that there would be little growth in the Illinois education budget next year.

"We cannot expect as good a session as we had this time," Pettit said at the SIU Board of Trustees meeting.

Pettit said there would only be about $300,000 growth in the state budget for all education programs.

"Higher education will not get much of that," he said.

Pettit said that proposed property tax relief, whatever its final form, will have a negative impact on higher education.

"It will take back the money we got through the income tax increase," Pettit said.

Despite the dismal forecast, Pettit said the University had managed to get every veto it had asked for signed by Gov. James R. Thompson.

"All but one of those were sustained by the legislature," Pettit said.

Another success of the veto session was getting $600,000 restored to an Alzheimer's Disease study to be conducted by the University. Gov. Thompson had vetoed the money earlier this year, but the legislature overrode the veto.

Pettit said a technical error, which involved leaving an effective date off this year's budget, had been fixed during the session as well. The effective date makes it legal for the University to spend money.

Pettit also responded to the recent Illinois Board of Higher Education's review hearings, one of which took place at SIU-C Tuesday.

The five hearings, the last of which was concluded Thursday at Western Illinois University in Macomb, were to review the effectiveness and role the IBHE plays in Illinois higher education, and how it might be improved or replaced.

The SIU-C hearing featured testimony from several witnesses including Albert Somit, former SIU-C president, who was in favor of a new system. Robert Berdahl, vice chancellor of academic affairs at the University of Illinois, testified against Somit's proposals.

Pettit called the tone of the SIU-C hearing "fairly predictable," though he wasn't sure what would come out of the hearing.

"I think we've come up with by far the most appropriate use of University funds with this plan," A.D. Van Meter, Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees, said. "This issue has been before the ad hoc (housing) committee repeatedly. This is a fair and reasonable solution."

Lazerson has been required to live in University-owned house in Edwardsville, but under the new policy, he may choose to move into private housing and receive the $18,000 supplement or remain in University-owned housing. Lazerson indicated he will seek private housing.

Ivan A. Elliott, chairman of the financial affairs committee, said the University-owned house where Lazerson lives is in need of many repairs including a new roof, gutters and carpeting and probably would not be worth the money to fix it.

Elliott said proceeds from the sale of the house, which is owned by the SIU Foundation, will go toward a new scholarship.

meet the requirements. At least half of that 10 percent must go to female-owned businesses.

A January Supreme Court ruling made it illegal to "set aside" certain contracts for those businesses exclusively, making it more difficult to meet that goal.

The report also cited SIU-C's rural surroundings as one of the difficulties in meeting the goal because it "does not attract minority vendors."

Wilson said the SIU-E campus was the most successful of the three SIU campuses in efforts to reach the goal, mainly because of its close proximity to St. Louis.

"Taking the business to out-of-state vendors is generally against the rules," Wilson said, adding that Chicago area vendors are usually too large to qualify for the program.

Trustee William R. Norwood said if the rules imposed on the University were too restrictive, the University should talk to the rule makers.

"In theory, every business we contract with will grow," Norwood said. "We want to still be able to use them after that."

$20,000 cash award for art talent available to seniors

By Carrie Pomeroy
Entertainment Editor

Undergraduate art majors who will receive their degrees between the fall semester 1989 and the end of the summer session 1990 can start gearing up to compete for the Rickert-Zicboid Trust Award, the largest cash award offered at the University.

The $20,000 award, endowed by the estate of the late Marguerite Rickert, has been divided in the past between as few as two winners and as many as six. The cash prize has no strings attached and can be used however the winner chooses.

Last year, 25 students entered the competition.

Candidates must be graduating seniors in art; they must submit an application, a maximum of 20 slides of their work and a vita form stating their artistic goals and background by Feb. 15.

To help prospective entrants brave the entry process, two meetings will be held to explain what entrants need to do to participate. Harris Deller, chairman of the award committee, said.

"They get pretty frantic and we don't want to see them make mistakes," he said.

Deller said the first meeting, to be held at 4 p.m. Nov. 29 in room 102 of the Allyn Building, will inform graduating seniors about eligibility, entry procedures and the award itself. At the second meeting, scheduled for 4 p.m. Dec. 4 at the same location, School of Art and Design faculty member Bill Boyesen will give candidates hints on how to photograph slides of their work.

Art and design faculty will review applications and slides and vote to narrow down the field to about 10 to 15 finalists. John Foster, coordinator of the competition, said. The finalists will display work in the Allyn Building and entries will be voted on March 5.

Oldest woman to celebrate 115th birthday Saturday

PALATKA, Fla. (UPI) — A woman who spent 75 years behind the walls of an insane asylum will set another longevity record when she turns 115 Saturday.

Carrie White, certified already by the Guinness Book of Records as the world's oldest living person, lives at the Putnam Memorial Nursing Home. She is unable to offer any advice about aging because she is senile, according to her guardian, Majorie Allen.

What investigators have been able to establish about her life is sketchy. They do know that she was born Carrie Joyner on Nov. 18, 1874 in Gadsden County.

Rescuers continue search for survivors of tornadoes

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UPI) — Rescuers searched for trapped survivors Thursday in the wreckage left by a tornado that cut a 4-mile swath of destruction through the city, killing at least 17 people and injuring at least 463 in what one witness called "an eternity of 20 seconds."

The tornado, which devastated a shopping center and an apartment complex, was one of a series of twisters that roared through six Southern states Wednesday afternoon and evening. Another twister hit West Virginia Thursday morning, injuring three people as the cold front that spawned the storms moved north, producing at least one funnel cloud in Pennsylvania and severe thunderstorms in New Jersey.

Huntsville was battered by as many as four tornadoes during Wednesday's evening rushing hour, trapping dozens of people in collapsed buildings and overturned cars, police said.

"It's incredible destruction — vehicles and debris stacked on top of each other, in some places 10 to 12 feet deep," said Danny Cooper, director of the Alabama Emergency Management Agency. Huntsville police said at least 17 people were killed, including a 7-year-old boy and at least 463 were hurt.

"There could still be bodies in there," rescue worker Benny Anders said. "It's really slow and methodical. All we can do is move and search, move and search. It's a matter of unpinning these buildings."

Earlier Thursday, police had placed a death toll at 19. Police Sgt. Ron Fudge blamed that report on the chaos accompanying the search for survivors in the tons of rubble.

The most destructive tornado in Huntsville hit at 4:30 p.m. and slashed through an area a half-mile wide and 4 miles long, damaging an apartment complex, homes, schools, churches and a shopping center containing at least 10 stores.

Department spokesman Chris Carpenter said.

Seven children were killed and 19 people were treated at St. Luke's Hospital, spokeswoman Debbie Sgroc said. Four children were treated at Cornwall Hospital's emergency room.

Travis McCall, a fifth-grader, said teachers were telling the children to remain calm.

"I heard my friend Cherie got hit in the head. She was smashed by the wall and I started crying," McCall said. "Everyone started crying. They just picked her up and she was in the library lying down."

Another student, 7-year-old Mike Miller Jr., recalled, "I was just sitting there next to the wall and all of a sudden there were bricks falling in."

Campus presentation details Japanese women and men

Lecture explores Japanese ideology and cultural uniqueness

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

The annual Madeleine Smith Lecture Wednesday evening featured Janet Fair-Christianson's talk, "Japanese Women's Language and the Ideology of Japanese Uniqueness," which provided a detailed view of many cultural and social differences between Japanese women and men.

The lecture, taken from Fair-Christianson's dissertation research at the University of Chicago, was highlighted by insightful examples of Japanese communication habits that delighted the audience.

Fair-Christianson actively demonstrated how differently women board trains from men by acting as the female, with the body straight and close together, then as the male, behaving more openly.

"It was interesting to see how movements went along with speech," Margaret Winters, chairwoman of Foreign Languages and Literatures, said.

"I see communication as a total-ty," Fair-Christianson said. "I did not stress a separation between verbal communication and non-verbal communication, because it involves both."

Fair-Christianson also demonstrated a lengthy conversation between two women about a garden. One woman gave many exaggerated compliments, while the other replied with exaggerated modesty. She then repeated the same conversation between two men, where one offers a quick, simple compliment of the garden answered by a mere grunt.

The lecture also discussed the choice of words women use to address men to indicate a level of politeness. Women generally occupy lower status than men, which is reflected in the language where women typically use more polite speech.

"I thought she did an excellent job of pulling together sociology, linguistics and kinesthetics, making it into a very interesting, cohesive presentation," Winters said.

Fair-Christianson said she first learned some Japanese when, as a child, her father was stationed at an Air Force base in Japan. She studied Japanese in America from 1976-80 and then returned to Japan for two years to teach at a Catholic girls school.

"For the sake of research, it let me be a part of a community of people," Fair-Christianson said of her stay in Japan. "I lived with a Japanese family for the first year. Spending time with Japanese people was a tremendous help."

"They have a different writing style, which makes it more difficult to learn than French or Spanish, because its not an Indo-European language," Fair-Christianson said. "It is demanding, but people can learn it. Japanese is not something foreigners can't learn if they take time."

Fair-Christianson said she enjoyed learning the differences in women's speech, such as pronunciation and vocabulary and did not mind using more polite speech when talking to men.

"What I didn't like so much was when my superordinates spoke politely to me," she said.

Live panel discusses HIV, AIDS

By Diana Mivelli
Staff Writer

"AIDS in the College Community: From Crisis to Management" was the topic of a teleconference shown in the Student Center Auditorium Thursday afternoon.

The National University Teleconference Network aired the live panel discussion from New York through its facilities, Jim Osberg, of the Division of Continuing Education at SIU-C, said. The program itself was produced by Ohio University, he said.

The panel featured experts from the medical, legal, student affairs and health education fields. A person with AIDS also was on the panel.

David Kamens, the panelist with AIDS, said he didn't like to be referred to as an AIDS victim.

"The term is archaic. I'm not defeated. I don't want to be labeled," Kamens said.

Laura Pinsky, psychotherapist and AIDS educator at Columbia University, said people easily lose sight of those on campus most severely affected by AIDS.

"HIV-infected students are the most severely in need of help," she said.

There are studies that show some people have been placed in very high risk groups for AIDS, Pinsky said. They include men who have had sex with other men and sharers of needles in drug use. People who have been in high risk groups should be tested on a regular basis, she said.

The panelists agreed that more campus organizations and administrators need to focus on AIDS. Pinsky said campuses with gay and lesbian groups are the best candidates for peer counselors.

Sixteen people attended the teleconference at the Student Center. Osberg said the program probably will be aired again at a convenient time in concordance with other campus organizations because the issue is of importance.

Melvin Haun, faculty member in the College of Technical Careers, was found guilty Wednesday on two counts each of aggravated criminal sexual assault and abuse of a girl under the age of 13.

Haun's two-day trial at the Jackson County Courthouse ended at about 11 p.m. Wednesday after 12 jurors handed down a verdict of guilty. State's Attorney Chuck Grace said.

Haun, 55, was convicted of committing "unspeakable acts" against a girl who was 11 and 12 years old in 1985 and 1986, when the alleged assaults occurred, Grace said.

During the trial the girl charged that Haun sexually assaulted her on numerous occasions at Haun's home in Makanda, his office at SIU-C and in his car on rural roads in Jackson County, reports said.

Haun testified Wednesday that he went driving with the girl in rural Makanda, where some of the assaults allegedly occurred, on several occasions in 1985 and 1986 to look at horses, reports said.

Haun's defense attorney Brian Lewis said he was very disappointed with the ruling and will more than likely appeal the decision as soon as he discusses the matter with Haun.

Lewis said Circuit Judge David W. Watt has not sentenced Haun and will not do so until a pre-sentence investigation is held, which probably will be scheduled around Dec. 16.

Lewis said Haun's conviction is a class X felony and carries a six-to-30-year sentence without parole.

"His sentence could turn out to be a real injustice," Lewis said.

"Haun is a man with a 21-year military career, a Ph.D. and a spotless record."

Haun was arrested on July 19, 1988, after an investigation was initiated by the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services and conducted by the investigation division of the Illinois State Police, according to reports.

Haun's son, Robert Haun, also faces charges of six counts each of aggravated sexual assault and aggravated sexual abuse, according to a Williamson County Courthouse spokesperson.

Deanna Marie St. Germaine, the doctor who examined the girl in 1987, testified Tuesday the girl told Germaine that both Melvin and Robert had sexually abused her.

Watt revoked Haun's bond and he is being held at the Jackson County Jail in Murphysboro.

guidelines.

Butler said the property in question has been next to Interstate 57 for nearly 25 years

"How long do you have to wait to determine it's not going to be developed without some kind of incentive," Butler asked? "It's so prime, why hasn't it been developed before now? Are we supposed to wait around 150 years before we say it won't develop?"

An independent telephone survey conducted by the developers showed that of the 300 Marion residents polled, 91 percent supported the mall and 72 percent supported the TIF financing for the mall.

But the residents of Marion aren't the only ones to support Marion's endeavor.

The Undergraduate Student Government passed a resolution criticizing Carbondale's lawsuit against Marion.

Tim Hildebrand, USG president said he would veto the motion after Christmas break, when the USG will reconvene to decide whether or not to uphold the motion.

Hildebrand said the resolution slipped by at the end of the meeting last week and no one really had a chance to speak on the issue.

The resolution, a last minute addition to the agenda, was written by Governmental Relations Commissioner Jon Musgrave and passed unanimously.

The resolution specifically criticizes Carbondale for not working to promote regional development and attract industries that would benefit University research and programs.

Musgrave claimed employment opportunities for University students would be hurt if the new mall construction is delayed or terminated.

Sun may go down in St. Louis

By Marlo Millikin
Staff Writer

The Sun is going down in St. Louis, Michael Kupinski, senior securities analyst for A.G. Edwards, said during a lecture Wednesday.

Kupinski, who spoke on the battle between the St. Louis Sun and the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, said the Sun's future is less than bright.

"The outlook for the Sun is bleak," he said. "It (the Sun) is going to have to compete aggressively for the advertising dollar."

Kupinski said primary advertising accounts from businesses such as Famous Bar and Dillards are needed by both publications and the Sun begins the competition at a disadvantage.

Using the tabloid format, advertising opportunities for the Sun also is limited because of layout restrictions.

"A lot of the upscale retailers really don't like the tabloid format," Kupinski said.

Color quality and lack of content detail are two additional factors that Kupinski said will contribute to the paper's eventual failure.

While there is a current market for the Sun, it is not a profitable or lasting one, Kupinski said. In order to stay competitive with the Post-Dispatch, Kupinski said the paper would have to get harder on the news and put more of a punch in their headline work.

With St. Louis advertising not large enough to support two papers, Kupinski said the Post-Dispatch will remain dominant.

The proposed Illinois Center Mall in Marion could take away about $300,000 a year from the Carbondale economy in sales tax revenues, a court report stated.

Carbondale officials have filed a suit against the city of Marion and the mall's developers, claiming they are illegally using tax increment financing subsidies to fund the mall and lure businesses away from Carbondale.

The Sears Department Store already has made plans to move to the new mall and other businesses may soon follow, Hoffner said.

Sorgen said the financing department has not yet taken the new mall into account for the budget projections for fiscal year 1992, when the new mall should be completed.

The new mall will take business away from Carbondale, but Sorgen said Carbondale will fight back through new developments.

Despite the litigations, the real estate developers of the mall, Antonia Investments, have announced the groundbreaking ceremonies will begin Nov. 21.

Katy O'Brien, attorney for the developers, said it was legal for the construction to begin.

Men's basketball team signs 5-11 prep star from Indiana

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

The Saluki men's basketball team announced the signing of their second recruit in 24 hours when the Salukis received a mailed letter of intent from Chris Lowery, a 5-11, 165-pound senior from Harrison High School in Evansville, Ind.

Lowery averaged 10.3 points per game last season when coach Jerrill Vandeverter's club finished the season 19-2. Lowery sank 52 percent of his attempts from three-point range and 53 percent overall.

On Wednesday, the Salukis announced the signing of Marvin Kelly, a 6-6, 200-pound forward who averaged 23 points, 8.3 rebounds and 2.3 blocked shots during his freshman year at Hinds Community College in Utica, Miss.

Head coach Rich Herrin said the two players will fill different dimensions for the Salukis in the future.

"We have a powerful and quick forward in Kelly and an exciting player in Chris Lowery," Herrin said. "At 5-11, Lowery can dunk the ball two-handed and he can also hit the three-point shot. He's a very explosive player. He can play the point guard and the shooting guard."

"He's a high class individual," Herrin said. "He gives us another dimension that we don't have. He's going to be a crowd pleaser."

"I was probably leaning toward a couple of other schools until I visited SIU-C."

—Chris Lowery

Lowery made his decision after visiting SIU-C earlier this week and was looking forward to playing with the Salukis.

"I feel really good about SIU after having visited there," Lowery said in a released statement. "I was probably leaning toward a couple of other schools until I visited and became better acquainted with the coaches and players. All of the coaches really seemed to be sincere about me coming to SIU and that was important to me.

"I believe I can help out next season, in some way or another. I like to penetrate and don't mind dishing the ball off to someone else. Whatever skills I have I've learned from my coaches and I owe everything to them and to my family. They are very supportive."

After picking up two signatures on the last two days of the early signing period, which ran from Nov. 8-15, Herrin was looking to the spring signing period to add some big post-players.

"We'd like to sign at least two or three big players if we can," Herrin said. "I don't know if we can or not, but we're going to try."

Vandeverter had a few words to say about Lowery's role at SIU-C.

"Chris Lowery is an outstanding human being," Vandeverter said. "He's just an exceptional person who knows right from wrong and who also happens to be a fine basketball player. He may not be an immediate impact player, but he'll be a great role player."

Tyson scheduled to fight in Tokyo

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mike Tyson will make his next heavyweight title defense against Buster Douglas Feb. 12 in Tokyo, it was announced Thursday, bringing cries of foul from the Canadian promoter who had signed the champion to fight Razor Ruddock.

The Tyson-Ruddock bout, originally scheduled for Nov. 18 in Edmonton, Alberta, was postponed last month when Tyson was diagnosed as suffering from pleurisy. Canadian promoter Sonny McPhee wanted to reschedule the bout for Jan. 20 but could not close the deal in time to meet HBO's Wednesday deadline.

King's director of boxing, Al Braverman, said Thursday Tyson will go ahead with plans to fight Douglas in Japan.

"Douglas has always been the opponent for Japan," Braverman said. "Never has Ruddock been mentioned for Japan. The Japanese promoters have approved Douglas, not Ruddock."

"Ruddock will get his fight in time. (Evander) Holyfield will be next, although maybe Ruddock will fight Tyson before him if the Holyfield deal doesn't fall in line."

HBO's Seth Abraham said the Canadian promoters told him

Wednesday they needed a week to 10 days to guarantee the $2.5 million they promised King for the Tyson-Ruddock bout. HBO, which has an exclusive contract with Tyson, will televise an IBF middleweight title bout between champion Michael Nunn and Marlon Starling Jan. 27 in Las Vegas, Nev., instead of Tyson-Ruddock.

"Don did not make the decision (to cancel the January date)," Abraham said. "HBO made the decision. We couldn't wait. We had to know if Tyson was going to fight in January or move it to February."

L.A. Clippers trade for Ron Harper

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Clippers took a major step toward respectability Thursday, acquiring Ron Harper and three draft picks from the Cleveland Cavaliers in exchange for Reggie Williams and the rights to Danny Ferry.

In addition to Harper, the Clippers will receive Cleveland's first-round draft choices in 1990 and 1992 and the Cavaliers' second-round selection in 1991.

Harper, a 6-foot-6 shooting guard, averaged 27.9 points as a rookie three years ago and 18.6 points in 82 games last year. He will replace the poor-shooting Williams in the Los Angeles starting lineup.

"Anytime you do get traded you can feel bad, but I feel this trade is good," Harper said. "I'm going to a good young ballclub."

Missouri and Illinois State were tied for place with an 8-1 conference record. The Lady Bears beat the Panthers in three games, 15-1, 15-13, 15-4.

The Salukis, who have qualified for the Gateway finals since 1984, have been beaten by the Redbirds in each meeting of the two teams at the championship level.

For the last three years, Southern Illinois has finished fourth in the Gateway. In 1985, the Salukis had their best showing in the six years of the Gateway tournament by finishing second. They were defeated 15-9, 14-3 and 15-11 by Illinois State in the final round.

Earlier this season, the Redbirds barely beat the Salukis in a five-game match. Hagemeyer said she wasn't disappointed with the loss because the Salukis played like a "winning" team.

This season, the Redbirds have moved out of Horton Field House into the new $17 million Redbird Arena.

Women's forward sprains ankle

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

Cyd Mitchell can attest to the fact that good fortunes sometimes turn into bad luck in a hurry.

Mitchell, a 6-1 junior forward from Harrisburg, was beginning to make her move into the Saluki women's basketball lineup. But during practice Friday, Mitchell sprained her ankle on a drive to the basket.

"It happened during transition on offense and it was a three-on-three break," Mitchell said. "I was cutting to the basket and I hit someone's foot or my ankle just gave out on its own. I don't remember what happened."

Mitchell said she was told to wear a cast for five days. Her ankle will be examined by the doctor Monday and if things go according to plan, Mitchell's cast will be taken off and she will be ready to play early next week.

"I want to be ready for the Hawaii tournament," Mitchell said. "That's our goal."

The Salukis open the season in the Wahine Classic in Honolulu Nov. 24-26.

Mitchell's ankle injury isn't her first setback of the preseason. A knee injury three weeks ago kept her out of action for a week. Mitchell sprained her ankle just a week after recovering from the knee injury.

"I was really down," Mitchell said. "I knew the Hawaii trip was coming up and I also had just came back from the knee injury."

Saluki coach Cindy Scott said earlier in the preseason that Mitchell had shown improvement and would play a lot.

"I am going to give 100 percent if I start or not," Mitchell said. "I just want to contribute and help the team."

As one of the Salukis top subs last season, Mitchell averaged 14.9 minutes per game compared to only 5.4 the year before. She averaged 4.4 points and 3.5 rebounds per game and led the regulars with 51 percent from the field.

"I think the main thing is that I have more confidence now," Mitchell said. "I know what Coach Scott expects out of me."

Oregon discusses NBA betting

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon's interest in starting a state-run "Sports Action" betting game based on NBA outcomes has certainly caught interest of the league and the players' union.

Charles Grantham, executive director of the NBA Players Association, will address the proposal during a news conference Friday in Portland.

Also taking part will be Portland Trail Blazers forward Buck Williams, an officer in the players' union.

State Sens. Jim Hill, D-Salem, and Bill Kenemer, R-Milwaukee, arranged the news conference to discuss concerns about the Oregon Lottery's proposal to add NBA basketball to state sports betting.

NBA Commissioner David Stern will be in Salem Monday to appear before the Oregon Lottery Commission. Stern will discuss the NBA's concerns over including NBA games in "Sports Action" betting, which currently is based on NFL outcomes.

Both NFL and NBA officials have said the leagues are opposed to any gambling connected with their games.

In "Sports Action," gamblers make wagers on NFL games.

Salukis hold on to defeat Brazilians

Jones leads Dawgs in exhibition win

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

Senior Jerry Jones pulled down an offensive rebound and laid it in with :42 seconds left in the game to break a 93-93 score and lead the Salukis to a hard-fought exhibition victory over the Brazil National Team Thursday at the Arena.

Junior Rick Shipley sank two free throws with :22 seconds remaining and freshman Tyrone Bell added a slam dunk just before time ran out to seal the victory for the Salukis.

Salukis sign 2nd recruit

The Salukis never trailed in the game and led by as many as 14 points in the second half before Brazil clawed back and tied the game with under a minute to play.

Although Jones had an impressive evening, he downplayed his efforts and said the victory for his team was the most important thing.

"It was a physical game, I tried to play physical with them," Jones said. "I wasn't counting the points, I just wanted to win the game."

I tend to play harder when it's a close game," Jones said. "I was just doing what I could to win the game. It just worked out for me tonight. All I wanted to do was win."

Head coach Rich Herrin said aggressive play would be the trademark of his team and this held true as the Salukis played tough defense, ran the fast break and used a strong inside game to win the game.

"Jerry Jones has always been a great scorer," Herrin said. "Jerry hit the big key bucket for us to give us the lead. We had a lot of good effort. We were in foul trouble but it showed that our players know how to win the basketball game down the stretch. Freddie got us going and Jerry got the big basket for us."

"We beat a good basketball team," Herrin said. "We did play a good defensive ballgame. It was a game of spurts. We played to win the ballgame."

McSwain, who ignited the team with a couple of slam dunks in scoring 12 first-half points, said Jones and Shipley deserved a lot of credit in the game but the freshmen also played well.

"It showed that two, three, four, five players don't make a team," McSwain said. "I think tonight everybody is a star because everyone put forth the effort to win. I'm not looking for this team to be the best ever, but I think it's going to be good. I think we put a good effort in during the whole game. We're pretty comfortable right now but we know we have a long way to go."

The Salukis were led by Jones' 27 points and 15 rebounds, nine offensive, while senior guard Freddie McSwain scored 18 points before fouling out. Junior point guard Sterling Mahan scored six points and dished out 11 assists.

With the absence of Randy Hogue and Kai Numburger, both of whom were seniors last year, the Salukis were suspect from three-point range.

As a team, the Salukis made only 2 of 11 shots from three point range while holding Brazil to 3 of 8.

The Salukis out-rebounded Brazil 50 to 39. The Salukis hounded the offensive boards and collected 28 on the evening.

Head coach Rich Herrin was happy with the overall play from the team.

Herrin is now 6-0 in exhibition games during his coaching career at SIU-C. Herrin will have a chance to improve on that record when the Salukis battle Athletics in Action Tuesday at the Arena.

The Salukis start their regular season when they travel to Chicago State Nov. 26. Their first regular-season home game will be Nov. 30 against Tennessee State.

The Salukis first Missouri Valley Conference game is against Creighton Dec. 4 at the Arena.

Smith: Southern Illinois sells itself to recruits

Editor's note: The last in a series on Saluki football recruiting.

By Daniel Wallenberg
Staff Writer

Recruiting football players to the University and the Southern Illinois area should be easy despite the team's 2-9 record, Bob Smith, Saluki head coach, said.

"It will be an easy place to recruit to," Smith said. "It's a beautiful campus. It's a great academic institution — you don't have to oversell the academics here. And it's a friendly place."

"When you bring recruits in, they are going to like it here," Smith said.

Ralph Young, Saluki defensive line coach and recruiting coordinator, said once the coaches are able to get a recruit on campus the University sells itself.

"This University is the best product available, in Illinois and around the Midwest," Young said. "This should be a parent's dream come true for quality education at midprice."

"As coaches see what the education is here, what it can do and the advantages," Young said. "Not only do we have a tremendous academic university but a tremendous university setting."

Young said once an athlete sets foot on campus SIU-C is able to compete with similar universities.

"We are bigger than a number of Big Eight schools," Young said. "If a man is interested in the University of Kansas or Kansas State, I'm not backing off that kid because we have just as much to offer. That is something we are real proud of — and we are."

Before an athlete visits the campus the coaches have to decide what it will take to acquire his services.

"You have to know who your competition is," Young said. "Will a full scholarship or a half scholarship be enough?"

"Through the evaluation process, you don't allow the competition to influence your decision of what you offer," Young said. "If you feel very strongly a person is worth a set amount of money and your opponent comes in and offers him more, you have to stick to your guns."

Young said the coaches must trust their evaluation and evaluate the recruits' potential before making the final scholarship offer.

"Will he be a four-year starter? Will he be an all-Gateway Conference player? Do you project him as an All-American or an impact player?"

"If he doesn't fit any of those criteria, he is a low dollar offer," Young said. "You really have to use a scholarship up on somebody you really question as being a contributor. It's not good for the program and it certainly is not good for the young man to just kind of hang around for three or four years. But in order for a kid to be beneficial to us he has to be here for an education. That's the priority."

Spikers face ISU in tourney

By Tracy Sargeant
Staff Writer

While some students are worried about how they are going to get home for the Thanksgiving holiday, the Saluki volleyball team is preoccupied with a different task — a Gateway Conference title.

The Salukis found out last week they were on their way to the Gateway finals in a fourth seed position after the Western Illinois Westerwinds lost to Southwest Missouri, 10-15, 12-15 and 2-15.

The Westerwinds improved their overall record to 20-9, but their conference record of 5-4 wasn't good enough to qualify for the tourney. The Salukis edged them out with a 6-3 conference record. Overall, the Salukis are 18-10 for the season. The Salukis will face the No. 1 seed Illinois State Redbirds at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in Normal. The Redbirds carry a perfect 9-0 conference record into the tourney.

Saluki coach Patti Hagemeyer had only one piece of advice for her team — to play like they know they can. Hagemeyer said being a young team, they sometimes have trouble believing they can play with the big teams.

Hagemeyer, in her first year with the Salukis, told her team they were going to approach the conference with a different attitude.

"We are going to win," she said.

But it is going to be tough, if the Salukis can defeat the defending Gateway champion Illinois State Redbirds, they will face the winner of the Northern Iowa-Southwest Missouri game on Sunday.

Northern Iowa, (22-4, 8-1) will face Southwest Missouri State (22-9, 7-2) 3:30 Saturday in the Redbird Arena to determine who will make it to the final game.

The Redbirds have been the only team in the conference to have participated in all six years of the tourney. They finished first in three of the six years; 1984, '85 and '88.

In last year's matchup, the Redbirds defeated Southern Illinois 15-4, 15-9 and 15-11 in the first round of play. Illinois State clinched the championship by beating Southwest Missouri 15-7, 13-15, 15-8 and 15-1 in the final round.

All of last year's conference participants once again compile this year's top four. Last year Northern Iowa, Southwest

Payton seeks St. Louis NFL team

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The St. Louis NFL Partnership announced Thursday former Chicago Bears star Walter Payton has joined cofounders Fran Murray and Jerry Clinton in seeking an NFL expansion franchise for St. Louis.

Payton, 35, will become the principal representative of the St. Louis NFL Partnership to the NFL.

"When we began the St. Louis NFL Partnership over a year ago, we dedicated ourselves to bringing an NFL franchise to St. Louis and to building a winner once we obtained a team," Clinton said. "The St. Louis application will be second to none and no one could provide our fans with the prospects for a great football team like Walter Payton."

"We have the best town, the greatest fans, a state-of-the-art facility and now the man whose knowledge of football and dedication to the game make him the best man for the job in the country," Clinton introduced Payton as

"the newest member of the Partnership — one of the most respected players in the history of the National Football League, a former running back on the field but today the quarterback of our expansion franchise game plan."

"I have devoted most of my life to football in one way or another," Payton said. "To help bring a new team to St. Louis — to participate in the ownership of the team — represents an important goal in my career."
