Student badly hurt in fraternity ritual

By Dana DeBaumont
Staff Writer

An SIU-C Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity member is in serious condition in a St. Louis Hospital after fraternity pledges tossed him into a pond for an "attitude adjustment."

A spokesman from Firmin Desloge Hospital in St. Louis said Gary R. Harrison, a 20-year-old sophomore in agriculture, was "awake and alert" in serious but stable condition Thursday.

"Harrison suffered a cervical fracture, which is like a break, with no apparent nerve damage," the spokesman said.

Scott Seegmiller, noble-ruler of Alpha Gamma Rho agriculture fraternity, said Harrison had an "attitude and needed an attitude adjustment."

Seegmiller said instead of fining Harrison and three other members who had purposely scuffed up fraternity house floors Wednesday evening, the four were being tossed into a pond as punishment. One fraternity member was tossed in before

Harrison, but was not injured.

"It (Harrison's injury) was a freak accident," Seegmiller said. "Instead of imposing fines, we toss members into our pond. It's our way of punishing someone."

The muddy pond that Harrison was thrown in is located behind the Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity house on Greek Row. Alpha Gamma Rho is a fraternity for students majoring in agriculture or related fields.

Harrison, who was trying to resist being tossed into the pond, was hurt because he tried to pull someone in with him, Seegmiller said.

Charles Conner, fraternity vice-noble ruler in charge of membership development, said after Harrison was tossed into the air, he attempted to drag someone in with him, lost his grasp of the person while in the air, was thrown off balance and landed partially on the bank.

Harrison told others he was "really hurt," but didn't believe he needed an ambulance, Seegmiller said.

After the accident, Harrison walked unassisted part of the way back to the house before telling others he was having trouble walking. After the members helped him into the house, he showered. In the meantime, others called an ambulance, Seegmiller said.

"G. Rodney (Harrison) deserved to be thrown in the lake," Conner said. "It's simple — you mess up, you get thrown in."

"We don't just throw anybody in the lake for fun. Well, it is fun, but we just had an unfortunate accident today."

Conner said the fraternity would continue its punishment procedure after Harrison's injury, but Seegmiller disagreed.

"He (Conner) was unauthorized to say that. The punishment is going to be terminated, no ifs, ands or buts," Seegmiller said. "I can't put that strong enough."

Seegmiller added that Harrison had participated in Alumnus Ralph E. Becker announces his donation of $3 million to establish a trust fund for the College of Communication and Fine Arts.

Radio-TV trust fund could net $3 million

By Sharon Waldo
Staff Writer

Ralph E. Becker, a 1955 graduate in radio-television, says he is doing what he can to help the department move up from an outstanding unit to the best in the nation.

At a press conference Thursday, Becker announced the establishment of a trust fund that could yield up to $3 million over a 15-year period for the radio-TV department and the College of Communications and Fine Arts.

"As I look back on my career, I seriously question whether I could have achieved what I have in this business had I not been given the kind of opportunities I got at SIU-C in the early 1950s," Becker said. "When I come back and visit the campus, I see the same great areas of opportunities."

Becker, of Darien, Conn., is president and chief operating officer of Television Station Partners, Northeastern Television Investors and Toledo Television Investors. The groups own and operate six network-affiliated television stations.

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit, SIU-C President John C. Guyon and SIU Foundation President Anne Carman expressed their thanks at the press conference for the largest gift ever given to the University.

"We have known for some time that we have a great unit," Guyon said. "Mr. Becker's generosity can't go unnoticed."

In 1951, Becker helped launch the University's first radio production studio. He took over operations of WSIU radio in 1959.

In 1985, Becker set up a $50,000 scholarship endowment for the radio-TV department, and added $10,000 to the fund in 1986.

Becker, born in Carbondale in 1931, is married to the former Jane Mulholland. They live with their two daughters, Susan Jane, 23, and Nancy Ann, 21, in Darien.

Maintenance, custodians getting handle on asbestos

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

University maintenance workers and custodians have been told how to handle asbestos on the job, Pollution Control director John Meister said Thursday.

The procedures are aimed at protecting the workers' health and preventing asbestos fibers from entering the air. Meister met with Physical Plant employees and campus custodians last week and instructed them on federal Environmental Protection Agency guidelines governing the clean up of loose asbestos. The guidelines also govern procedures to follow when performing routine maintenance around materials containing asbestos.

A preliminary draft of a campuswide asbestos study shows that all but 12 campus

Missile hits U.S.-owned tanker in gulf

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — A Silkorm missile, suspected of being fired by Iranian forces, ripped into a U.S.-owned supertanker loaded with Kuwaiti oil and anchored off a Kuwaiti oil terminal Thursday, setting the vessel on fire.

There were no casualties in the attack on the U.S.-owned, Liberian-flagged 275,932-ton Sungari, which was moored at Kuwait's Shuaiba anchorage in the northern Persian Gulf, shipping officials said. The fire was brought under control within several hours.

Pentagon officials said they believed the missile was a Chinese-made Silkorm. Iran reported the attack without claiming responsibility. But Tehran's daily newspaper Ettela'at quoted Iranian naval commander Malek Zadeegan as saying Iran's "sophisticated missile systems in the Persian Gulf are ready to confront U.S. aggressions."

Pentagon spokesman Fred Hoffman, in response to questions about possible U.S. retaliation, said, "There is no response indicated at this point. Our shipping has not been struck by the Silkorm and is not affected."

There was no way of telling what the missile was aimed at, Hoffman said.

The attack was the first

Iranian strike on a ship in Kuwaiti waters since the start of the Iran-Iraq war seven years ago and the first on a U.S.-owned ship since U.S. naval forces in July began escorting Kuwaiti tankers registered in the United States and flying the U.S. flag.

The attack came less than 12 hours after Iraqi warplanes hit the Liberian-flagged, British-operated 231,990-ton Pegasus 1 with a French-made Exocet.

Athletic administrators say no to drug testing

By Steve Merritt
and Jim Black
Staff Writer

The SIU-C athletics department is not testing student athletes for drugs.

Instead, the department has implemented the Student Athlete Assistance Program (SAAP), a comprehensive, broad-based educational program designed to prevent drug abuse.

Plans for the SAAP were released publicly for the first time Tuesday afternoon in a report to the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Board.

Gary Carney, assistant athletics director, said the program will utilize resources available on campus to help educate student-athletes about the dangers of drugs and other problems.

Besides drugs, the SAAP will offer education, counseling and informational assistance regarding emotional problems, family difficulties, nutrition and eating disorders, stress management and sexuality.

"By using a broad-based education and prevention program we hope to solve some of the problems student athletes have that may be leading them into other problem areas," Carney said.

Included on the SAAP's personnel roster are representatives from the Drug Education and Prevention Committee, the Wellness Center, the Counseling Center, the University Legal Counsel and the Student Health Service Center. The Women's Center and the Clinical Center will also provide information and assistance for the program.

The policies are based on a recommendation made by an ad hoc committee appointed in September 1986 to evaluate the drug testing question. After eight months of study, the committee, chaired by athletics trainer Ed Thompson, released its recommendation to then-athletics director Jim Livengood for approval.

Livengood approved the policy recommendation in May. The policies went into effect at the beginning of the fall semester.

Carney presented the plan to the IAAC in the absence of interim athletics director Charlotte West, who was attending an NCAA Council meeting.

"After looking at the issue, we decided not to drug test but rather to tackle the whole problem from an educational standpoint," Carney said. "This approach looks at the student as a whole. We looked at the long term as opposed to Saluki offensive coordinator Mike Michaels takes time out of Thursday afternoon's practice to explain a fine point to an unidentified football player.

Western goes for title as Salukis fight for life

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

A Saluki win against Western Illinois Saturday at McAndrew Stadium could keep the Salukis alive in the Gateway title chase, but a loss would put them in the "also ran" category.

Meanwhile, the ninth-ranked Leathernecks, 4-0 in conference and 5-1 overall, come to Carbondale knowing that a win would give them at least a share of the Gateway championship.

"I don't know how we're going to beat Western right now," Dorr said. "I don't have the answer to that, but I know we can. It's our job as coaches and it's our job as players to unlock that secret and to find a way."

The Salukis must find ways to prevent turnovers, improve the kicking game and control WIU quarterback Paul Singer.

In practice this week, Dorr placed a premium on protecting the ball as fumbles have played a large part in the disappointing Saluki performance this season. SIU-C averages three fumbles a game.

The Saluki kicking game also has undergone some changes after Fresno State blocked two punts for safeties last week. Punter Dave Peters has switched to a two-step instead of a three-step approach in an effort to get the ball away quicker.

The kickers were put through game situations in practice and John Brda is still the team's best kicker, although he missed his last three field goal attempts, Dorr said.

The Saluki defense, the strength of the team, will be tested to its limit by Singer's aerial attack. Singer throws for an average of 250 yards a game.

"I don't think we're going to stop him cold," Dorr said. "I think he's going to get his yardage. We can't give him the big play. He's a great innovator. Once he gets running around back there he just looks downfield, finds a guy and makes a big play out of it."

Dorr has placed emphasis on the defense to force fumbles.

"Singer isn't going to throw it to us," Dorr said. "So once we get to the guy we have to rip the ball out."

SIU-C's defense is bolstered by the return of defensive

NFL strike over, says spokesman

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With the resolve of striking NFL players in snafus, union chief Gene Upshaw Thursday declared an end to the 24-day walkout and handed club owners a crushing labor victory.

Upshaw, faced with an onslaught of defections, said player representatives voted to return to their camps without a contract. However, management extended non-union games for a third straight weekend and said regular games will resume Oct. 25.

Upshaw vowed the fight against team owners would continue in court. The union filed a 37-page suit in federal court in Minneapolis, charging owners with "conspiracy" to violate antitrust laws in the areas of player reserve system, college draft and player contracts.

Cardinals, Twins battle in Series

Pendleton out for opener, Pena hurt in scrimmage

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Rookie Joe Magrane was named Thursday to start Game 1 of the World Series for the St. Louis Cardinals, who may be forced to play without injured third baseman Terry Pendleton.

St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog termed the switch-hitting Pendleton "questionable" for the best-of-seven Series beginning Saturday night against the Minnesota Twins. Pendleton knocked in 96 runs and hit the Cardinals' biggest homer of the year. He hurt his left rib cage going from first to third on Tony Pena's hit in the second inning of Wednesday night's pennant clincher against San Francisco.

Herzog lifted him in the third inning and expressed hope Pendleton could play. In the Cardinals' workout Thursday evening, however, Pendleton reported substantial pain when swinging from the right side.

When asked about his chances of playing in Game 1 against Minnesota southpaw Frank Viola, Pendleton shook his head no. If Pendleton proves unavailable, the Cardinals would enter the Series without two of their regulars. Slugger Jack Clark still appears unable to run on a torn ligament in his right ankle. He took simulated batting practice Thursday and did not hit the ball hard.

Asked if he could play, he answered, "Now what kind of question is that?" Presumably, that meant no.

Magrane, a lanky left-hander who throws hard, went 9-7 in the regular season and started Game 3 of the NL playoffs, yielding four hits and four runs over four innings. Herzog plans to pitch Wednesday night's hero, Danny Cox, in Game 2 and John Tudor is slated to start Game 3 Tuesday when the series shifts

Batting an unfamiliar affair with Minnesota pitchers

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — Minnesota pitchers have two more days to familiarize themselves with a foreign object—a baseball bat.

The Twins worked out Thursday at the Metrodome in preparation for Saturday night's Game 1 of the World Series against St. Louis. The designated hitter rule will be in effect for games at the Metrodome, but Minnesota pitchers will be in an unaccustomed position in the batter's box at Busch Stadium.

Twins pitchers took turns in the batting cage Thursday. Some chose their bats selectively while others grabbed any weapon available.

"I've tried 'em all," said reliever Keith Atherton, "and none of 'em work. I'm thinking about going up there with a fungo bat. I had to hit a couple of years ago in spring training and I got a hit off (Cub reliever) Lee Smith. It's been a long time without a hit. It's been about 11 years, I'm due."

The Twins' pitcher with the best batting credentials appears to be reliever Dan Schatzeder, a lifetime .253 hitter in the National League.

"I had one of Kirby's bats yesterday, but I broke it," Schatzeder said, referring to All-Star center fielder Kirby Puckett. "I'm going with (designated hitter) Randy Bush's today."

When Schatzeder was obtained from Philadelphia June 23, he was just about to break in a new shipment of bats.

"I asked the Phillies to ship them to me," he said, "but they didn't. You should have seen them, they were beauties."

Most Twins' pitchers turned to former and current battery mates when selecting a bat. Frank Viola chose starter for Game 1, and Tim Lardner's m... Game 2 starter Bert Blyleven wielded a bat belonging to ex-Twins

Italian airliner crashes with 37 people on board

MILAN, Italy (UPI) — An Italian airliner with 37 people aboard crashed Thursday near a lake in the Italian Alps about 15 minutes after taking off from Milan's Linate Airport on a flight to Cologne, West Germany, officials said. It was not immediately known if there were any survivors. ATI airlines Flight AZ 460 left Milan at 7:13 p.m. and vanished from air traffic controllers' radar screens 13 minutes later, said Franco Bruschi, a spokesman for Alitalia, the parent company of the mainly domestic airline.

Contra rebels attack helicopter, four towns

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Contra rebels shot down a Sandinista helicopter and launched simultaneous attacks on four towns in south-central Nicaragua, military sources and radio reports said Thursday. A Defense Ministry spokeswoman said the attacks were repelled. Sandinista military sources said only sketchy information was available about the attacks Wednesday and early Thursday, but described the Contra offensive as probably the largest launched by the U.S.-backed rebels since President Daniel Ortega declared a unilateral cease-fire Oct. 7 in three small zones of the country.

Hundreds killed in Indian-Tamil confrontation

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — Indian troops trying to storm the Tamil rebels' main stronghold on the Jaffna peninsula were met with booby traps, mines and bullets Thursday in bitter "last-ditch" fighting that has killed hundreds, officials said. The Indian forces, deployed in Sri Lanka under a July Indo-Sri Lankan peace accord, began their offensive against the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam on Saturday, days after the guerrillas broke a 10-week-old cease-fire.

U.S. warned not to support Philippine coup

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — President Corazon Aquino visited an embattled province Thursday as communist rebels warned they will attack U.S. diplomats, soldiers and journalists if Washington supports a coup or the imposition of martial law. Meanwhile, moderate and left-wing trade unions threatened to paralyze the capital and other key cities Friday on the fifth and final scheduled day of a nationwide general strike to press demands for a 50-cent wage increase.

Nicaraguan rebels ask Sandinistas for peace

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nicaraguan rebel leaders, in a challenge to the Sandinista government they are fighting, said Thursday they will attempt to go to Managua to talk peace and invited members of Congress to join them. Contra leader Pedro Chamorro said the delegation was seeking direct negotiations with the Marxist-led Sandinista government for a cease-fire and political reconciliation.

Girl in water well sings, rescuers get closer

MIDLAND, Texas (UPI) — Jessica McClure sang nursery rhymes Thursday, raising the spirits of rescuers working to free the 18-month-old child from a 22-foot-deep abandoned water well she fell into while playing. Under the direction of a U.S. Bureau of Mines expert from New Mexico, police and volunteers gingerly chipped away at the solid rock surrounding the dry well shaft into which the blond, blue-eyed toddler fell while playing in her aunt's backyard.

House committee approves plan to cut deficit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee, setting the stage for confrontation with President Reagan, split down party lines Thursday night to approve a $12 billion tax plan designed to help cut the deficit. The proposal, drawn up by committee Democrats during days of private meetings and passed on a 25-13 party line vote, includes a wide range of new fees — many of them endorsed by the White House in past years.

Planned space station saved from budget cuts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate rescued NASA's planned space station from a devastating blow Thursday by refusing to slash an additional $118 million, but the NASA administrator said the project would still be delayed by months if earlier Senate cuts are not reversed. As it worked on a more than $57 billion bill to pay for housing programs and various federal agencies, including NASA, the Senate voted 84-12 to table an amendment from Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

Poultry buildings bulldozed; new construction proceeds

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

The metal shells of the old poultry buildings were lined up, waiting to be crushed by a bulldozer Thursday morning.

They had stood for more than 30 years off McLafferty Road west of campus.

Less than a mile away, at the agriculture farms just off Pleasant Hill Road, construction continued on new buildings, which will contain the latest technology and state-of-the-art equipment.

The School of Agriculture poultry buildings, built in the early 1950s, are being torn down because they are unsafe and are not worth repairing, James Tweedy, School of Agriculture dean, said.

"We are also trying to improve the appearance of the farms," he said. Hopefully, said Tweedy, this will make our facilities more appealing to prospective students and other visitors.

The demolition work, contracted by J. and L. Robinson Construction Company of Carbondale, is being done now to take advantage of the heavy equipment already in the area to construct new facilities for the farms, he said.

A new swine center and several other facilities recently have been added to the farms with $1.3 million from Gov. James R. Thompson's Food for Century Three program, Tweedy said.

"The completion of these facilities, along with existing ones, will allow SIU to run as many pens of research cattle as anywhere in the United States," Anthony Young, dean of research, said.

The new facilities will include a swine center with a breeding and gestating building and a growing and finishing building, with digital weighing systems in each; a beef cattle finishing facility; a new reproduction physiology lab; a remodeled sheep barn to be used for animal metabolism studies; a new dairy calf barn; and a confinement and lot facility.

"The purpose of these new facilities is to provide laboratories for research and teaching and demonstration plots for livestock producers," Young said.

Most of the basic facilities were built in the 1950s and

Faner Hall vandals are campus blights

THE FANER HALL vandals have struck again. Only this time, instead of using relatively harmless chalk and grease pencils to scribble their messages, an obnoxiously bright shade of red spray paint was used. The University could have done without this latest assault on Faner's off-marked upon walls.

In the second largest college in the state, the presence of at least a few social malcontents is inevitable. However, it is unfortunate that physical evidence of their displeasure periodically is splattered across the walls of a University building.

THIS DEFAECING MAKES the school look generally shabby, and helps substantiate SIU-C's unjustified reputation as a shallow, hard-partying school.

The disoriented ramblings about Sid Vicious, the ever-topical Elvis and boredom with the United States that greeted the campus crowd last week were hard to miss — and stomach.

Abhorrence of vandalistic practices is an individual decision, the extreme opposite of the act of vandalizing — which strongly is influenced by peer pressure and mob rule. Individuals need to cement the notion in their minds that spray painting University — or any other — buildings is reprehensible, ignorant and in direct violation of the social education this institution is attempting to engrain in its student population.

Peer pressure can be a strong influence on an individual. But a strong individual can have even farther-reaching influences on crack-brained peer groups.

Female, male support needed at Night rally

WOMEN AND MEN will join forces tonight in Take Back the Night marches and rallies. An event of extreme social importance and concern, the event allows participants to physically address the problem of sexual abuse and assault in the United States.

The pre-rally and march for men and women will start at 7 p.m. at the Interfaith Center, on the corner of Illinois and Grand Avenues. The pre-rally and march for only women will begin at 7 p.m. at the corner of Walnut Street and Illinois Avenue. Both marches will come together at College Street, where they will proceed as one to SIU-C campus for a rally at Shryock Auditorium.

Sexual abuse and assault are social cancers that can be eradicated only by public awareness and participation, an opportunity offered by Take Back the Night. Take a few hours out of your activities tonight and give your support to an event that truly is worthy of it.

Opinions from elsewhere

Arkansas Gazette, Little Rock

Sharon Trakas, a spokeswoman for a group called Women Against Pornography, (said) that Playboy preyed on Jessica Hahn, a "friendless rape victim," and exploited the trauma Hahn suffered from her tryst with PTL founder Jim Bakker, in order to increase sales and "get back at the right wing."

We'll stipulate that Playboy hoped to raise circulation with its coverage and uncoverage of the Hahn-Bakker affair, and we don't doubt the magazine enjoyed taking a shot at the religious right, which has been angling to put Playboy out of business as part of a larger scheme to squeeze the life from the First Amendment. But if being paid $1 million to tell your story and pose semi-nude is being preyed on, there's a whole bunch of people in this country who would like to be preyed on, and a whole bunch more who'd like the chance to say that the offer was made, but they turned it down. As Hahn could have done.

Hahn and Rice's fame and fortune: Do good guys always finish last?

By Jim Bakker
Staff Writer

I'M WONDERING: is anybody else bothered as much as I am that people like Jessica Hahn and Donna Rice are reaping such large rewards for their less-than-virtuous behavior?

I would have an easier time accepting the new-found fame and fortune of these two women if they were a bit better looking. Now calm down — this is not meant as a sexist slur. Their basic unattractiveness disturbs me because of the large sums of money both have made in fields normally reserved for uncommonly beautiful women.

The fact that Rice is earning big bucks as a model for a line of jeans and that Hahn recently got rich from an interview and topless pictorial featured in Playboy magazine indicates a disturbing tendency of Americans to reward those people who deserve it the least.

PERHAPS THEIR recent prosperity would be more understandable if these two women were extremely gorgeous. But neither of them possess such rare beauty to warrant it. Obviously, this is a question of taste. But it seems to me unlikely that many men find Hahn or Rice extremely attractive.

Hahn appeared semi-nude in the October issue of Playboy. It's obvious that the only reason she is in the magazine is because of the nationwide fame she garnered from her sexual escapades with former PTL head Jim Bakker.

The underlying problem here is that certain people are benefitting greatly from socially unacceptable behavior. Because Hahn committed adultery with Bakker (in the Playboy interview she claims she was raped), she is now rolling in money. I think that's a shame.

I THINK adultery, as unfortunate as it may be, is a part of our society and its existence must be recognized. The fact that Hahn engaged in sexual activities with a married man is not the real crime here. Rather, I find it especially disturbing that she is being richly rewarded for this behavior.

A basic lack of taste and class is shown on the part of Playboy (which should come as no great surprise) to print the interview and especially the pictorial. However, the blame should rest entirely with Playboy magazine.

As a money-making enterprise, Playboy prints only that which would be financially beneficial. According to the Oct. 5, 1987 issue of Time magazine, Playboy paid Hahn "a sum in the high six figures" for the pictorial and interview. Playboy apparently is convinced that enough Americans want to see Hahn in the buff in order to make its investment worthwhile.

I WOULD hope that the number of people out there who are buying the October issue of Playboy for the Hahn feature is small. But it's doubtful.

Unfortunately, Americans seem determined to perpetuate the sorry tradition that "good guys finish last."

A friend of mine used to say, "You gotta cheat to win, and when you win, you cheat." I never was sure of what he meant by this, but since Hahn's recent fame and prosperity, I think I'm starting to get the point.

The case of Donna Rice is no more encouraging. Rice is the national model for a line of jeans, a position which she in all likelihood would not hold had she not become famous for her so-called tryst with Gary Hart.

WHILE RICE may be more credible a model than Hahn, the means by which she attained success are not very admirable. Her fame sets, or perhaps simply perpetuates, a bad example for young Americans (and old Americans, for that matter).

Perhaps it is naive of me to assume that success not earned in a morally and legally upright manner is not quite as good as success earned through perseverance and adherence to a sense of morals. Perhaps the work ethic is no longer relevant to society. But I hope not.

Do you really have to cheat to win?

DE editorial cartoon was successful because of blasphemous message

In response to Maher K. Abou-Jabal's letter, I would like to offer some defense of the DE staff. Mr. Jabal, I believe you were incorrect in claiming that Koran is a misspelling of Qur'an, the Muslim Holy Book. If you will check just about any English dictionary, you will find that, in ENGLISH, Koran is a perfectly accepted variant. It may not be the best one, but it is an accepted one. Translating Arabic into English always has been a problem, as the recent controversy over the correct English spelling of the leader of Libya's name (which I will not even attempt) indicates.

I should also point out that it was a syndicated cartoonist, not the DE staff who prepared that cartoon. (The DE should have such cartoonists.) Of course, they did print it, which I suppose makes them accessories in your eyes.

Nevertheless, I think you have misunderstood the American institution of political cartoons: they are supposed to be disrespectful, infuriating and blasphemous. That is what makes them effective. They are similar, you might say, to demonstrations in which various peoples, including on occasions Muslims (or Moslems...look it up) burn the American flag, an act which certain people in America find offensive.

As for being disrespectful to the Qur'an, I think if you will re-read the cartoon, you will find that the disrespect is directed not at the book, but at the gentleman supposedly reading from it.

And if you find that disrespectful to Muslims, well, then I would suggest that when Muslims cease killing one another and non-Muslims and claiming they are doing the will of God, then they will receive a great deal more respect from people like me. I am not on intimate terms with God, but I seriously doubt it is God's will that sends SCUDs into the Baghdad suburbs or Exocets into Australian fishing boats. And if it were, then God would not deserve respect, either. — Gary K. Shepherd, alumnus, Carbondale.

Islam not slighted by cartoon

I am writing because I, along with many others, am both amused and distressed by the rabidly self-righteous, paranoid letter in the Oct. 8 edition of the DE.

I do not personally know Maher K. Abou-Jabal, the author of the letter, but it looks like he obviously is not educated or perceptive enough to interpret a rather straightforward political cartoon. Mr. Abou-Jabal is correct in asserting that uninformed prejudice on the part of non-Muslims is inexcusable. However, the trouble with Mr. Abou-Jabal, along with zealots of any other persuasion, is that he himself is prejudiced.

In his fervor to defend his sacred cultural artifact, he has forgotten that not all non-Muslims are hostile toward or ignorant of Islam. He has made a complex world more simple by recklessly adopting the preconception that all references to Islam, which could be construed as anything other than unreserved praise, are openly hostile attacks upon it.

The cartoon to which he refers is neither for nor against Islam. It is neither for nor against the Qur'an (the wisdom of which undeniably is invaluable to world literature.) The obvious intent of the cartoonist was to accuse an individual Muslim, the Ayatollah Khomeini, of misquoting the Qur'an — of blaspheming against it, if you will — in order to manipulate certain other Muslims into carrying out his political ends.

Please, Mr. Abou-Jabal, before you get your dander up and dash off another petty, paranoid argument, carefully re-read the preceding sentence and note that the cartoonist accused the Ayatollah, and not myself. — Timothy W. Camper, junior, University studies.

Smokers have right to life free from habit

I hate pollution. I come from a Western city where the air we breathe is measured in levels of pollutants. I believe smoking is a pollutant. But since I don't yell at, gesture obscenely at or run cars off the road for emitting excess pollutants, I also don't display irrational behavior toward a smoker who pollutes my immediate air supply. In fact, my experience finds most smokers — when — addressed politely and in an adult manner — responsible and responsive to the needs of the non-smoker. Although pollution is my concern, my deeper concern is for the smoker.

I remember the pleasure of an after-dinner smoke. I also remember aggravating a nauseated, early morning stomach by smoking, not because it was pleasant, but because the nicotine fit dictated I do so. I remember the physical and emotional distress of quitting, but I now know the freedom to smell, taste, run, climb stairs and kiss without cigarettes getting in the way.

Quit smoking any way you can. Don't do it for me or us. Do it for you. I don't care about your right to smoke, only your right not to smoke. It is your right, no matter what the habit tells you. Do it for yourself — you'll breathe easier for it. And so will I. — Gregory Hall, graduate, her 1th education.

Humor misinterpreted in cartoon; English, Arabic alphabets differ

In response to Maher K. Abou-Jabal's letter, I wish to let him and other Muslims know that there are some "Westerners" around who have seen a Qur'an. No matter how you spell it, it is going to be inaccurate because the alphabet we use is completely different from Arabic. We have no sound in English that approximates the sound represented by the apostrophe in Qur'an, and the 'k' sound can be written any way and be as close as it can get.

Mr. Abou-Jabal has said that the cartoon quoted "from a book..." The cartoon did not quote the book, but rather it depicted the thoughts of a person interpreting a book. Had he read carefully, Mr. Abou-Jabal would have realized that the cartoon was making fun of a leader who reads his scripture literally and uses it to justify behavior that others have found offensive. This is an old argument: the letter of the law versus the spirit of the law. No one made fun of the Qur'an.

Misinterpretations of 'law' (and I intend to include scripture in my use of the word "law") occur in all cultures, and so do misinterpretations of humor. The tendency to misread and miss the point is the reason that most religions depend on clergy to interpret writings (with wisdom, one hopes!).

— Nancy A. Walker, admissions and records officer, School of Art.

Parking complaints continue to trickle in

I, too, have a campus parking grievance that has yet to be considered: When the administration made its primary goal to heighten the educational quality of SIU-C, didn't they consider the remote possibility of an increased stature that would attract more students, boost enrollment and therefore raise the proportion of students who will have cars and who will need parking spaces?

Second, with the increased housing push to get sophomores out of the residence halls and off campus, can't anybody reason that not all sophomores will live within walking distance of campus and therefore must have cars? Consequently, some, who live off campus and have on-campus jobs, should be allowed parking decals for parking spaces.

Obviously no one has considered these points, much less the fundamental question: "Hey, with better education, more students, more money and more cars, shouldn't we have more space for these students and cars? Should we use their money for that?" Naaah. — Jonnette Amy-Samantha Huntley, junior, cinema and photography.

Drive kicks off campaign to boost business college

By Tom Trotter
Staff Writer

The College of Business and Administration, for the first time in SIU-C history, will begin a campaign to raise $4 million dollars from the private sector.

The college will formally announce the effort, dubbed the COBA Capital Campaign, at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in the Mackinaw Room of the Student Center. A large donation is expected to be announced at that time.

"Faculty and staff have donated $61,782 to the campaign, but the total amount pledged so far is much more," Thomas Gutteridge, dean of the college, said. "We are showing it can be done."

In the last 10 years, undergraduate enrollment in the college has grown from 1,795 to 2,397 students. Graduate enrollment has grown from 95 to 200 students.

"This college can't do all that we are expected to do with present funds," he said. "We are a good college, but under stress."

"So, now we are going to the private sector to break that margin of excellence," he said. Business colleges at other universities across the nation are initiating similar campaigns, he said.

The theme for the campaign is "Time for Pride."

"It's no accident we chose 'Time for Pride' as the theme," Gutteridge said. "SIU-C seems to be viewed as a second-class university in comparison with universities up north — but we are just as good as they are."

The college has five priorities for the funds, Gutteridge said. Money will go to faculty for chairpersons and research professorships; to research and outreach centers; to students in the form of fellowships, scholarships, and career planning; to funding for equipment and improving facilities; and to unrestricted funding.

Assistant Dean Rebecca Fines said, "We also want to use the money to attract big-name faculty to the college."

Gutteridge said planning for the campaign started in summer 1985. Later, the University agreed to help the college find out if a campaign was feasible.

In June 1986, the University chose Ketchum Corp., a consulting firm, to conduct a feasibility study. In December 1986, the study targeted $4 million as a feasible goal.

The college will announce a general chairman for the project and the total amount pledged to date at Saturday's meeting.

W. African leader overthrown

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (UPI) — Burkina Faso leader Capt. Thomas Sankara was overthrown Thursday in a violent coup led by his childhood friend and second-in-command, Capt. Blaise Compaore, radio reports and witnesses said.

Officials at the U.S. Embassy in the Burkina Faso capital of Ouagadougou said gunfire erupted in the city about 4 p.m. and rang out sporadically until nightfall. Other witnesses in the capital said an undetermined number of people apparently were killed in an attack on Sankara's residence.

Radio Ouagadougou announced Compaore had seized power "to put an end ... to the autocratic regime of Thomas Sankara, to stop the process of neocolonial restoration under way by this traitor of the revolution."

The radio announcement, monitored in Abidjan, was preceded by several hours of military music. It said Sankara was arrested and the ruling left-wing body, the National Revolution Council, had been dissolved.

The radio broadcaster, who said he was speaking on behalf of the "Popular Front," ordered a dusk-to-dawn curfew and said the country's borders had been closed. He said Friday was declared a national holiday. Communications were still open to the country of 7 million people.

It was the fourth coup in the land-locked west African nation since 1980 and the fifth since the country, one of the poorest in the world, gained independence from France in 1960. Compaore was deputy leader and justice minister before the coup.

The radio broadcaster said the coup against Sankara, a left-wing leader with close ties to Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi, was "to stop the degeneration of our revolutionary process and give hope back to our people and our country."

"The government is dissolved. The military revolutionary organization is dissolved," he said.

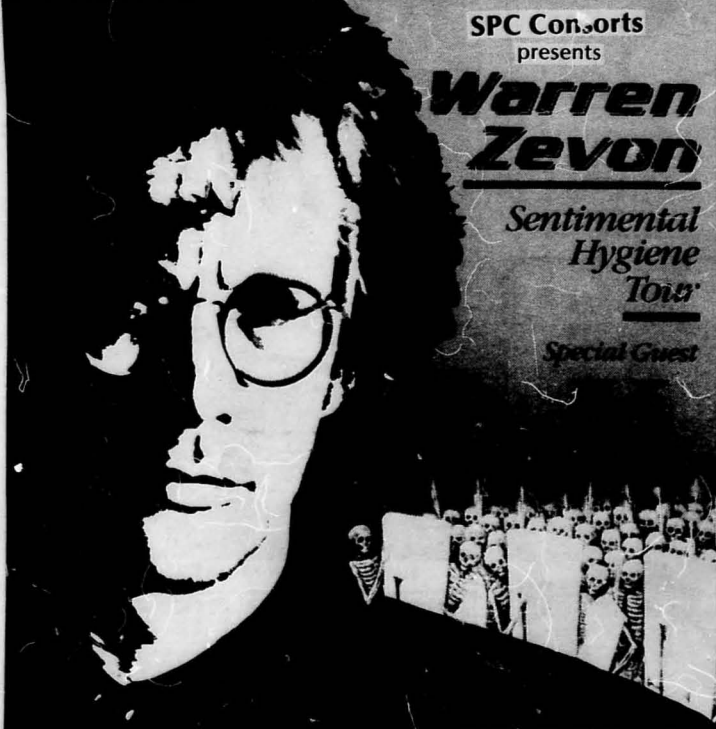

The witnesses said it was unclear how the coup unfolded but that forces loyal to Compaore apparently had advanced on Sankara's residence.

Meister, director of pollution control, said.

Building materials in other areas also were tested to determine the extent of asbestos in them, Meister said.

"This is to gather more extensive data for the contractors to consider when they do removal work," he said. "We sampled some materials we knew contained asbestos to find out how much was there."

Similar testing will be conducted in the International Relations building and at Wheeler Hall, he said.

A campuswide survey has identified the presence of asbestos in all but 12 buildings. The library has been the subject of further testing because it has asbestos in general use areas, Meister said.

Although many other buildings were built with materials that contain asbestos, most of it is confined to areas restricted to maintenance personnel, he said.

Results of the survey, which will be released to the public next week, will be used to determine whether asbestos will be removed.

"Some of it is in good condition and can be maintained," he said.

"Some of it will be removed."

Pulliam Hall is the only other building with asbestos in general access areas and asbestos will be removed when the building is remodeled next year, he said.

"We're concerned about it because the people there are concerned," he said.

"We're going to deal with it. We're recommending air monitoring in buildings and locations where there is a potential for exposure and areas where there is asbestos insulation that has been damaged or physically not in good condition."

throwing other fraternity members in the pond.

Alpha Gamma Rho adviser Robert Arthur, chairman of animal industries, said Harrison's toss into the lake was "good, clean fun," but no activity resulting in injury will be allowed.

"It (throwing members into the lake) probably should have never happened," Arthur said. "We set rules and regulations for a lot of things like underage drinking, but there wasn't a need to set a rule against throwing people into the pond until now."

"Anytime you harrass somebody or do physical harm to them, it's hazing," Arthur said. "But tossing an active member, who has accepted policies, into a pond does not constitute hazing."

Arthur said there have never been any reports of hazing at the fraternity. If there were, he said, he would report it to the University immediately. Hazing, as defined in Illinois Revised Statutes, is "any pastime or amusement...whereby such pastime or amusement is had for the purpose of holding up any student, scholar or individual to ridicule for the pastime of others."

Nancy Pei, director of student development, said Harrison's accident doesn't meet hazing criteria.

"Folks just horsing around, attempting to have fun and no one objecting isn't hazing," Pei said. "Even though someone was hurt, it doesn't necessarily mean the act constitutes hazing."

have been found to cause cancer and other respiratory diseases when breathed into the lungs.

Meister said safety precautions to be followed by the workers are "basically common sense." For instance, workers who must handle asbestos-containing materials should spray them with water first. The materials will not release as many fibers if they are wet, Meister said.

In addition, when cleaning areas that contain asbestos-containing materials, workers should use damp mops and washcloths. Dry cloths, brooms and dry mops will increase the chances of asbestos fibers becoming airborne, Meister said.

Workers also will use special equipment when working with asbestos-containing materials, Meister said, including respirators, special vacuum cleaners and a special wetting agent. Dust masks do not prevent workers from breathing asbestos fibers and regular vacuum cleaners fail to catch most fibers, he said.

However, the workers will not have to undergo the extensive physical examinations required of workers who remove asbestos, Meister said. The EPA requires workers who remove more than three feet of asbestos to undergo physical examinations prior to beginning their jobs and periodically thereafter.

University workers will not be removing more than three feet of asbestos during any job, Meister said. Jobs that require the removal of more than three feet of asbestos will be contracted out.

"We don't want to expose our workers to that danger," Meister said. "To us, it's worth extra to bring people in from the outside."

"The occasions where our people have to get involved with asbestos will be few and far between," he added. "They're being exposed, but it's not an intensive-type exposure, so there's little danger."

Encampment planned

Fine performances carry presentation of 'Hill House'

By Richard Nunez
Staff Writer

The Stage Company has undertaken a difficult task in presenting "The Haunting of Hill House," and though there is room for improvement, the Company's efforts proved admirable.

Theater Review

"The Haunting of Hill House," adapted from Shirley Jackson's classic horror novel of the same name, is a supernatural thriller about four people who investigate a haunted house that psychologically torments its visitors.

Two of the lead performers, Mike Dolan (Dr. Montague) and Kimberly L. Frick (Eleanor Vance), deliver the two superior performances of the cast.

Dolan gives a believable and consistent performance as a concerned, inquisitive Montague.

Frick also delivers a fine performance as Eleanor Vance, a timid, but respected psychic who slowly succumbs to the influences of Hill House. Her slow deterioration is convincing. Frick's only flaw is her long, melodramatic stares into space.

Anita Turpin (Theodora) and Jim Wheeler (Luke Sanderson) turn in satisfying performances as supporting actors, but Roy Weshinsky's hilarious interpretation of the bumbling Arthur Parker, a boys' school headmaster, steals the show.

Mary Watson also turns in a humorous performance as Mrs. Montague, but the play's humor detracts from the atmosphere of horror, which is the most crucial element of the story.

The Company's adaptation remains faithful to the novel,

Eleanor Vance (Kimberly Frick) is comforted by Theodora (Anita Turpin) in "The Haunting of Hill House."

Times & Tickets

Dates:
"Haunting of Hill House" will be performed at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Stage Company, 101 N. Washington. The play also runs on the weekend of Oct. 23, 24 and 25.

Tickets:
Available at Stage Company box office 4 to 6 p.m. weekdays and noon to 4 p.m. Saturdays. For more information call 549-5466.

Prices:
Friday and Saturday — $6.
Sunday matinees — $4.

unlike the film version, which departed from the novel and relied upon impressive special effects to convey the horror.

The difficulty of reproducing the horror for the stage is not easily overcome and made much more difficult with the minimal budget The Stage Company has to work with.

At times, the performances are contrived, creating dialogue exchanges that have no fluid transitions and cause the play to seem like a competition between caricatures.

Some of the characters can benefit greatly from observing Dolan's subtle performance.

The Stage Company has time in future presentations to improve the performance. As it stands now, "The Haunting of Hill House" is a passable alternative to viewing a motion picture.

Group advises education majors

By Dena Schulte
Staff Writer

An organization that provides education majors with information and advice about their chosen field from faculty and administrative guest speakers was set up during the summer.

The Elementary Education Student Organization encourages students to become involved in professional educational organizations. Janet Lancaster, EESO secretary, said. These organizations will help student professionally prepare for the education field.

"It gives us an opportunity to get together and discuss what's going on in the education field and how we feel about it," she said.

The organization was formed in the College of Education.

The next scheduled event is 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Wham Building, Room 303. Speakers will give information about how teachers are evaluated in the classroom, she said.

There were about 33 people at the first meeting and many others have joined since, Lancaster said.

"We would like to have more speakers and plan some social functions," she said. "Maybe even go to some conventions."

The organization is open to all elementary and early childhood education majors.

Lancaster said she expects the organization to become a Registered Student Organization later this month.

Lancaster said there are no monthly meetings. Information about membership, dates of programs and social functions will be posted on the EESO bulletin board on the second floor of the Wham building.

Myerson denies bribing judge for boyfriend

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former Miss America Bess Myerson Thursday pleaded innocent to charges of trying to fix her boyfriend's alimony payments with a state supreme court judge by giving the judge's daughter a city job.

"Not guilty," Myerson stated in a strong voice before

U.S. District Magistrate Leonard Bernikow to charges of bribery, conspiracy and mail fraud.

Her boyfriend, contractor Carl Capasso, brought in from prison for the arraignment, and former state Supreme Court Justice Hortense Gabel also pleaded innocent to the same charges.

Myerson, 63-year-old former cultural affairs commissioner and close friend of Mayor Edward Koch, was also charged with obstruction of justice.

She gave Capasso a quick kiss on the cheek before the arraignment and again before they were led away.

Judge Bernikow assigned the case to Judge Robert Sweet, who was to set a court date.

Later, outside federal courthouse, Myerson, wearing a black suit and red blouse stood in the chilly sunshine and told reporters she was sure she would be vindicated.

"I am innocent of all the charges that have been brought against me," she said in a steady voice. "I have not committed any illegal act."

"These have been very difficult and very troublesome times for myself and for my family," she added.

Inner beauty separates Miss Ebness from field

By Amy Gaubatz
Staff Writer

While Miss Ebness may display a beautiful outward appearance, it will be inner beauty that will separate the winner from the six other contestants.

"The emphasis is on portraying their inner beauty and overall determination to turn out a good act," said Paul Cunningham, coordinator of the pageant. "Besides exposure before about 800 people, the contestants will be forming a bond with fellow contestants."

Donna Bourne, senior in radio-television; Venus Lavis, junior in marketing; Berlando Drake, sophomore in political science; Crystal Holliday, freshman in sociology; Kimberly Smith, freshman in mortuary science and Renee Whitty, freshman in accounting, will be judged on poise, evening wear and talent.

One of the seven contestants will be crowned at the pageant to be held at 8 p.m. Saturday at Shryock Auditorium.

"The purpose of the pageant is to display the essence of what black women represent on campus," Cunningham said.

A "spotlight" during the pageant will feature Gina Nelson, senior in radio-television and Miss Ebness 1986, performing a modern dance to the music from Street Life. The dance will be an improvisation as well as rehearsed steps.

"There are a lot of minorities on campus who have a lot of talent and poise, who would serve as good role models," Nelson said. "The pageant is there for them as an outlet."

The contestants also are judged on a complex system of interviews held prior to the show.

"These interviews are important because a person couldn't win without having the interviews," Cunningham said.

The talent portion of the pageant will range from classical piano and modern dance to various types of songs ranging from spiritual to contemporary.

The panel of judges, which is made of faculty members, consists of: Harriet Wilson Barlow, assistant director of the Office of Student Development; Harry Schuler, withdrawal officer at Student Life; Robert Conner III, graduate assistant to the Black Affairs Council; Patricia Black-Clay, MED-PREP coordinator; and Carol Felder, chief academic advisor to the College of Human Resources.

At the end of the pageant, Nelson will crown Miss Ebness 1987.

"My job is done," said Nelson, "I've got to start concentrating on the future. It was my goal, I accomplished it, and now it's time to move on."

Tickets for the show are $5 and can be purchased at the ticket office on the second floor of the Student Center and at the door Saturday night.

Men, women will begin apart, converge to take back the night

By Amy Gaubatz
Staff Writer

A boycott of last year's Take Back the Night march has led this year's organizers to try to restructure the annual march against sexual violence, according to Women's Studies graduate student, Julia Pachoud.

The march is scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday. It will begin with two individual groups meeting and then converge into one group to march to the rally at Shryock Auditorium.

Last year, some individuals protested because they felt it excluded men, Pachoud said.

This year, individuals who wish to march as a group consisting of men, women and children, will meet at the Interfaith Center. Women who wish to march alone will meet at Walnut and Illinois Streets. The two groups will then meet at College Street before marching to Shryock.

"There are some women who feel that they want to experience a women's only empowerment. These individuals will more fully experience the event as a group," Pachoud said. "They are not excluding the men from experiencing the march, they simply wish to claim their own space before joining everyone else," she added. "It's a symbolic aspect of women wanting to care for and take care of each other without the aid and assistance of men.

"I think attendance will be varied," she said. "I think the perception of the march last year will affect how people will react to it. They don't have to make a choice of leaving a child at home, who would have marched if he was not male."

About 80 women and children participated in the march last year, while about 40 men participated in the Brother Peace Rally.

"I hope the attendance will be higher than before because individuals feel their needs are being met, and no one is being excluded," Pachoud added.

Simon's book gives insight to problems facing the U.S.

By John C. Walbiay
Student Writer

U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, one of the Democratic presidential candidates, has packaged his political ideals for presidency in hardcover.

Simon's book, "Let's Put America Back to Work," gives a simplistic and straight-forward account of today's economic problems. With ample evidence, Simon points out how the United States is in danger of becoming another has-been world leader. Simon focuses on unemployment, education and foreign policy.

He analyzes each of the areas individually and initiates seemingly valid solutions. The solutions are not the latest in economic theory; instead, they reverberate to the pitch of Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal Programs.

THE CHRONOLOGICAL framework, which concentrates on the problems of the jobless, is a sufficient testimony of the problem. However, it is drooled upon by an entire chapter of sympathetic interviews that do nothing but drag and dull the readers' interest.

Book Review

The unemployment situation would be remedied by higher training for the unskilled, conservation and community work programs, and monetary encouragement for the private sectors which provide job training opportunities. Simon said the estimated 7 percent unemployment rate should be considered shameful in a country as resourceful as the United States. His approach to joblessness is hard-lined and calls for full employment in the future.

THE EDUCATIONAL system would be afforded more funds for the salaries of teachers, which would make the field more desirable and thus enhance competition and the overall quality of the system. Nationwide programs would make it mandatory for those collecting unemployment to earn the equivalent of a high school diploma. Simon notes the current illiteracy rating, which is estimated near the 23 million mark, and says that another 40 million are functioning on a fifth-grade literacy level or below.

Simon's foreign policy could possibly shake, or rather, push over, the nice guy image the United States has maintained in the past. His plan would include intensifying existing tariffs and trade regulations, bringing in revenue from imports equal to that which other nations recently levied on the United States.

It is uncertain what sort of an impact, if any, Simon's book will have on the country or political forum. It seems to be selling moderately well in the Carbondale area and presumably the same throughout the country.

Parent education program set

The SIU-C Rehabilitation Institute will offer a free parent education program for young parents and parents with young children who would like to learn child-rearing skills.

The state-supported program will meet from 5 to 8 p.m. three times a week for nine weeks. The first session is tentatively scheduled for late October, although the exact date and location have not yet been determined.

The program, designed for parents who are under 25 or who have children under five, will cover basic parent-child communication, child management, planning family activities and coping with stress and anger. A parent support group will be formed to provide further assistance.

Child care and refreshments will be provided during each meeting, and transportation will be provided for parents who need it.

Gateway slate opens for struggling spikers

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

The Saluki volleyball team opens Gateway Conference play with matches at Wichita State on Friday and at Southwest Missouri State on Saturday.

The team will finish the weekend in a non-conference match-up at Missouri on Sunday.

The team has won six of the last nine matches to raise its record to 8-11, 4-7 on the road.

Coach Debbie Hunter said the team, devastated by injuries to starters Sue Sinclair and Dorothy Buchanan, wants the challenge despite the odds.

"I don't think this team has arrived by any means," Hunter said. "But they are seeking to even up the record. They are talking about sweeping the three matches. It's a high, yet a realistic goal for them."

The key is whether the Salukis can string three victories together, a feat they have accomplished only once this season.

"It's an opportunity to learn about the kids and see if they are prepared for the conditions of road play," Hunter said.

"This team is so young (with only two seniors on an active roster of 9) that it will help us in the future."

The first match against 3-12 Wichita State will be in the 10,700 seat Henry Levitt Fieldhouse.

Playing in such conditions will be a challenge, Hunter said. "It's a big facility, a much different atmosphere than we're used to. Hopefully we can get on that court for practice before hand."

The Shockers, led by P.J. Barrett, average 2.7 kills per game. The Salukis won last year's meeting in three games.

The Salukis will start Gateway player-of-the-week Nina Brackins at middle blocker and Dawn Thompson, conference leader in assists (10.47 apg), at setter. Teri Noble, Beth Winsett and Joan Wallenberg are the hitters while freshman Amy Johnson is at middle blocker.

The next challenge comes against the 11-7 SMSU Bears in Springfield, Mo.

"This will be a real contest. It is such an important match that it could be critical in deciding the conference's final four," Hunter said.

Women harriers use Invitational to prepare for NCAA Districts

By Jim Black
Staff Writer

The SIU-C women's cross country team will compete in the Mid-America Invitational this afternoon in Columbia, Mo.

The meet will be held on the same course as the NCAA district meet on Nov. 14. Coach Don DeNoon said today's meet will give the squad a chance to get used to the course before the more important NCAA meet.

The Salukis also will get a chance to see competition they'll face in the NCAA District meet. In addition to the Salukis, five of the nine teams expected at today's meet will compete in the NCAA District V meet — Northern Iowa, Iowa State, Kansas State, Kansas, and Missouri.

"It'll give us some idea of what will happen at the NCAA meet," DeNoon said.

DeNoon said he expects the Salukis' stiffest competition to come from Iowa State, Western Illinois and nationally ranked Kansas State.

SIU-C defeated Western Illinois in the only meeting of the two teams this season at the Midwest Invitational in Parkside, Wis.

"I think we're probably shooting for another second-place finish," DeNoon said. The women harriers have finished second four times this season.

DeNoon said SIU-C's senior star Vivian Sinou, who is undefeated this season, should claim the individual title. Sinou has won Gateway Conference cross-country athlete of the week three times this season. Junior Lisa Judiscak should challenge Laura Hagerty of Kansas State for second place, DeNoon added.

The Salukis' roster will be filled out by junior Jane Schumacher, sophomores Cathy Brown and Amber Wiencek and freshmen Michelle and Danielle Sciano.

As a team, the Salukis have finished second in four of their five meets this season.

Women's netters at Gateway Invitational

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

The women's tennis team travels to St. Louis this weekend to play in the Gateway Fall Invitational.

The top seven singles players and the top three doubles combinations from each Gateway team will compete in separate flights to determine the conference champion in each position. Team scores will not be kept. The Gateway coaches will seed the players in a meeting before the tournament.

"I'm glad we're playing in an individual tournament right now," Saluki coach Judy Auld said. "At this stage of the season the players will get to see how much they have progressed." Ellen Moellering, 3-10, will play in No. 1 singles. Beth Boardman, 9-6, will be in the second spot. Dana Cherebetiu, leading the team in wins at 10-6, will play in No. 3 singles. Missy Jeffrey, 7-7, will play in No. 4 singles, while Su Steuby, 8-5, plays in the fifth position. Maria Coch, 4-5, will play in No. 6 singles. Michele Toye, 2-5, will play in the seventh spot.

The Salukis' No. 1 doubles combination of Moellering and Boardman, 6-6, can break the SIU-C career record for doubles victories with a win. The duo is tied with Mary Pat Kramer and Maureen Harney with 40 wins.

Cherebetiu and Jeffrey, 4-6, will play in No. 2 doubles. Coch and Julie Furgess, 2-5, will play in No. 3 doubles.

The Salukis concluded their fall team competition last weekend with a 9-3 record.

Men's cross country coach wants win at Mid-America

By Jim Black
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's cross country team will get a preview of the NCAA District V meet today at the Mid-America Invitational in Columbia, Mo.

The NCAA meet, from which the top two teams qualify to compete in the NCAA national finals, will be run on the same course on Nov. 14. Many of the teams at today's meet also will compete in the NCAA district meet.

Coach Bill Cornell said, "I want our guys to get a good feel for the course."

Cornell expects Iowa, Kansas State and Kansas to give the Saluki harriers their stiffest competition. "It'll be an interesting race because Iowa State, Kansas State and Kansas are all very good teams that could qualify for nationals."

However, Cornell thinks the Salukis have a shot at winning the 10-team meet. "I'm going to try to get them pumped up for this meet," he said.

Last weekend, the Salukis finished eighth out of 12 teams at the Indiana Invitational. Cornell said the team made the mistake of starting out too slowly, adding, "that he wants to see a more aggressive race from the squad today."

Seniors Andy Pettigrew, Jack Shepherd and Joe Taylor, juniors Jobie Kelly and Dave Beauchem and freshman Mike Kershaw will complete the Salukis' roster.

Field hockey squad on road in Kentucky

The Saluki field hockey team plays Eastern Kentucky 3 p.m. today and Virginia Commonwealth 9 a.m. Saturday in Richmond, Ky.

Coach Julie Illner's squad is 1-9-1 for the season after defeating Northern Illinois 2-1 to snap a nine-game losing streak.

Cindy Oppermann and Marianne Wulkop are the Salukis' leading scorers with two goals each.

Eastern Kentucky, 6-3, has had trouble on offense, scoring 11 goals in nine games. Karen Tatum leads the team with three goals and Pam Hamley has two goals.

Virginia Commonwealth is 4-1 for the season with recent wins over America and Wake Forest. Celly Chamberlain tallied three goals against America and two against Wake Forest, giving her seven goals for the season.

The Salukis' final home game of the season is against St. Louis 2 p.m. Sunday Nov. 1 at Stehr field.

Women golfers at Lady kat

By Todd Mounce
Staff Writer

The Saluki women's golf team faces its toughest competition of the fall season this weekend at the Lady Kat Invitational in Lexington, Ky.

"Anytime we compete with Big Ten schools, we have our hands full," coach Diane Daugherty said.

Big Ten schools enrolled include Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Michigan State.

The Invitational will be played on 5,900-yard, par 72 Spring Lake Country Club course. Last year, the Salukis tied for seventh place while host Kentucky won.

Tina Kozlowski, Julie

Shumaker, Peggy Ellsworth, Lisa Merritt and Lisa Johnson will represent SIU-C at the meet.

Other teams scheduled are Alabama-Birmingham, Illinois State, Western Kentucky, Mississippi, North Carolina, Texas A&M, Texas Christian, and James Madison.

Rugby team faces Indiana

By Greg Huber
Staff Writer

The rugby team, 3-3 on the season, plays host to Indiana State in its homecoming match at 1 p.m. Saturday at the rugby pitch behind Abe Martin Field.

The ruggers game plan this weekend is to focus on ball control. Team captain David Graham said ball control is working well for the team — as opposed to a kicking game which keeps it on the defensive too much.

"We'll count on the pack to be in the rucks and mauls quick and we're going to need good lines out of the backs," Graham said.

The lineup is in good shape with no serious injuries and Graham said the team is looking good going into the game — "We ought to be able to do it."

SIU-C and Indiana State ruggers haven't played together before, although Indiana did play at the Halloween Tournament here last year but in a different bracket than SIU-C.

the short term."

Carney and Thompson said the committee had decided that random drug testing as called for by the NCAA was not an effective solution to preventing drug abuse by student athletes.

"Teaching an athlete not to abuse illegal substances during the testing period or teaching them to quit using substances just to be eligible for an NCAA event are not the right reasons for not using illegal substances," Thompson said. "As a committee we felt the NCAA guidelines were just not enough of an effective deterrent."

"For example, alcohol abuse is documented as the No. 1 drug-abuse problem on college campuses across the country and the NCAA's drug test doesn't even provide for an alcohol test."

Thompson went on to say that "the NCAA's drug testing program is really just a slap in the face."

"They're just trying to prevent any more bad headlines," Thompson said. "Look at Maryland and the Lenny Bias case. They had a drug testing program and it didn't prevent that tragedy from happening."

"What we hope to do is teach our athletes to make good decisions about drugs now and later in life too," Thompson said. "We want to teach them to make the right decisions over a long period of time."

Carney said the drug-testing issue was "a volatile one" and added that there were still a lot of questions to be answered.

"A plan like SAAP is unquestionably safer and less risky than drug testing from a legal standpoint," Carney said. "And it should prove to be cost-effective."

Thompson said his committee was not told to circumvent drug testing simply because of the lofty expense of testing student athletes.

"Our committee came to these decisions without cost in mind," Thompson said. "We were never told that cost was a factor. It just didn't play into the outcome of our decision."

Carney said the methods of recognizing a drug problem under the SAAP plan wouldn't be as easy as "peeing in a bottle," but he did outline the methods of determining if a student-athlete had a drug problem.

"There will be no test, so we'll use observation and documentation on the part of coaches and trainers. Athletes in question will be confronted, and if there is a problem, we'll follow the same steps as if a student-athlete had tested positive for drug use," Carney said.

Other methods of recognition include class and athletic practice attendance, significant changes in grade point average, increased injury rate, performance at practice and in competition, physical appearance, health changes, athletic and academic motivation, emotional stability, mood swings and legal involvement.

tackle Brad Crouse, who has not played since since he injured his left knee in the Austin Peay game.

The Saluki offense also has its work cut out. WIU's defense, stingiest in the conference, allows just 272 yards per game.

"We don't necessarily have to throw just to throw," Dorr said. "We have to throw the ball with some consistency."

Dorr said quarterback Fred Gibson 4-for-17 against Fresno, "must throw more play-action passes against WIU but also said the team would stick with its strength — the running game.

receiver Mark Salas.

"When Mark was traded, he left me a couple of bats," said Blyleven, who spent three years in the National League. "Salas said these bats still had some hits left in them. It's a good model for bunting because it has a big head."

Game 3 starter Les Straker, a rookie, chose utility player Gene Larkin's bat while veterans Joe Niekro and Juan Berenguer virtually picked the first bat at random out of the rack.

"I don't know whose bat this is," said reliever George Frazier, gazing down at the barrel with a smile. "I do know it's corked."
