Campus Fire Station Bids Opened

The Oakes Construction Co. of Metropolis submitted the apparent low bid for construction of the proposed fire station for the Carbondale Campus.

Bids were opened at 3 p.m. Tuesday in the Agriculture Building Seminar Room, and read by Willard Hart, Carbondale Campus architect.

Also received at this time were bids for the heating, plumbing and electrical work for the building.

The bid by the Oakes Construction Co. was $41,428.

This was nearly $3,500 less than the next lowest bid of $46,900 made by the R. B. Stevens Co. of Carbondale. Other low bids were submitted by the A. J. Cargnino Construction Co. and J. and L. Robinson Co., both of Carbondale.

The apparent low bid for plumbing was submitted by the John J. Calnan Co. of Chicago. Its bid was $4,848.

Cool-rite Frigidare of Urbana was the apparent low bidder at $2,293 for station's heating system.

Carbondale Electric submitted the apparent low bid of $8,450 for the electrical works.

The fire station will be located on U.S. 51 adjoining the coal storage yard at the SIU steam generating plant.

The bids will be received by the University Architects Office and with recommendation be submitted to the University Board of Trustees for final approval at their next meeting May 26.

Session Set 1 to 5 p.m.

VTI Will Hold First Alumni Day Sunday In Conjunction With Annual Open House

"Alumni, come home!"

That's the call being issued to graduates of VTI which is holding its first "Alumni Day" on Sunday, April 30.

The event is part of the sixth annual Open House at VTI. The first university-connected school of its kind in the state, it was founded in 1952 and has a current enrollment of 1,500 students in 26 one-year certificate and two-year associate degree programs and options.

"We're inviting our graduates to come back and see the changes in the school and renew old friendships among faculty and alumni," said E.J. Simon, dean of the Division of Technical and Adult Education. "We'd appreciate it if those who can't come to the open house would drop us a line and let us know where they are and what they're doing now."

The open house will be held April 28, principally for high school students. The session from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday is designed for alumni and representatives of business and industry.

The general public is welcome to attend either day, and alumni who can't make it on Sunday are urged to come on Friday if possible, Simon said.

The VTI Campus is nine miles east of Carbondale on Old Route 13 in the northern edge of the Crab Orchard National Wildlife Refuge near Cartersville. Among programs offered there are architectural technology, automotive technology, dental hygiene and laboratory technology, business, electronic data processing, mortuary science, practical nursing and forest products technology.

A two-year associate degree program in aviation technology also offered through VTI will hold open house concurrently with the main campus event in its hangar-laboratory-classroom facility at the Southern Illinois Airport west of Carbondale.

Council Seats Led by Eaton, Kirk, Nelson and Ragsdale

With 10 of the 11 precincts in, contender David Keene led incumbent D. Blaney Miller by 511 votes in Tuesday's Carbondale mayoral race.

Miller piled up an early lead as precincts two, four, six and ten reported in. However, his lead slipped fast as the larger districts on the east side of town were totaled up.

The only precincts Miller polled a majority in were two, four and six, those covering the northeast section of town.

In the Council race, William Eaton, Frank Kirk, Randall Nelson and Joseph Ragsdale led the remainder handily. Archie Jones ran fifth, about 250 votes behind Ragsdale.

Early in the evening, Jones racked up an impressive lead winning a majority in four precincts. His lead, like Miller's, slipped fast, as the west-side precincts began reporting in.

Lynn Holder, Gene Ramsey and Sidney Schoen ran in the last three slots in all precincts.

Voting was substantially heavier than in any previous election. The total vote was expected to 5,000—at least 600 more than February's primaries.

In the 1963 general election the total vote ran 2,382 and in 1959 it was 2649. Early in the campaign, voters were predicting a heavy turnout due to the spirited campaign each slate was conducting.

During the election City Manager C. William Norman said he received a number of complaints to the effect that the students were being challenged by poll watchers when they attempted to vote.

Norman said if a voter is challenged because of residency, he must produce a witness known by the poll judges to verify that he is a resident. He said the challenges caused a slow-up in the voting in some polls.

Earlier in the day, campaign literature bearing the names of Keene, Kirk and Nelson was strewn about residential areas of the city. A spokesman for the Keene group said the Blue Ribbon slate had not authorized the printing or distribution of the materials.

Mrs. George McClure of the Keene, Kirk and Nelson committee said the handbills did not reflect the thinking of her organization.

In a telephone interview early this morning, David Keene said, "I am happy with the results. We all worked hard and never backed off during this campaign."

He said he planned to "take a breather for a day or two," and then is going to "follow up his campaign platform all the way."

The Daily Egyptian was not able to reach Miller for comment.

The two councilmen receiving the greatest number of votes will serve four-year terms and the two with the next largest number will serve for two years.

With the one precinct outstanding, it appeared as though the two four-year councilman are Eaton and Nelson. In the primary, Kirk drew the heaviest vote, but he appears to have lost some ground in the general election Tuesday.

In the primary, the top four vote getters in order were Kirk, Nelson, Eaton and Ragsdale. For the Mayoral nominations, Keene led Miller by more than 700 votes and polled 49 per cent of those cast.

In Tuesday's election Keene drew 55 per cent of the votes cast in precincts two through eleven.

New Student Week Forms Available

Applications for membership on the 1967 New Student Week steering committee are now available at the Information Desk of the University Center.

Students who wish to serve on the committee, for fall quarter orientation, are asked to return the applications to the Student Activities Center by May 3.

Spring Festival Activities Include Midway, Picnic

The Miss Southern contest, the midway, a dance and "Mom's day" picnic are the principal events for the Spring Festival May 3-7.

Rides and attractions as well as the dance will be featured at the midway, which will be situated just south of the SIU Arena.

Applications and fees for the Miss Southern contest were due April 14. No list of contestants has been released yet.

Sponsoring this event will be the all-student Spring Festival Steering committee.

Not A Question of Ideology

Big Fight Concerns Who Can Best Feed Vietnam Peasant, Says Returned Marine

By Lee Cohen

"The big fight in Vietnam is not between Democracy and Communism. It's between the ones who can best feed the belly of the Vietnamese peasant."

This was the observation of Nick Harder, a returned veteran of the Vietnamese war. He is now enrolled at SIU to study journalism.

Harder left Northern Illinois University in 1964 to enlist in the U.S. Marine Corps. Between January and December, 1966, he was Cpl. Peter Nicholas Harder, combat correspondent in Vietnam. "It was a rare job," the lanky 22-year-old said with a smile. "Most of the time I was totally on my own, moving back and forth through the front lines. I saw all phases of the war."

Harder's job was to write feature stories that showed the service in a good light. He also served as a liaison between the armed forces and the civilian press. Harder was trained as a press information man and as a photojournalist, but he also received schooling in guerrilla warfare.

"I always carried a rifle. I was as much a soldier as I was a correspondent. In fact, most of the civilian correspondents carried guns," Harder said.

Harder had occasion to use that rifle. On March 18 of last year, the Viet Cong had pinned the company Harder was stationed with. Although the company had become separated and he had been wounded, the correspondent continued fighting. For his bravery, Harder was nominated for the Bronze Star and the Navy Commendation.

While in Vietnam, he also took part in Operation Hastings, the biggest Marine operation of the war, spent 30 days on a medical ship off the Vietnamese coast and worked on a radio station on a military base.

According to Harder, "The major problem American forces are dealing with is trying to hold large land areas with small numbers of men. There are too many holes in our defense."

This is compensated for somewhat by what Harder calls a "higher degree of professionalism" on the part of U.S. soldiers. He explains that Americans in Vietnam have a "they started it, let's finish it" attitude.

Harder feels strongly about the civil affairs program started by the Americans. "Through this program of aid to the Vietnamese people, we are helping them to help themselves."

While in Southeast Asia, Harder made many Vietnamese friends. He divides the people into two classes: the city dwellers and the peasant farmers.

"The peasants are overwhelmingly in the majority. But they are, for the most part, illiterate and uneducated. They do not know or care about the differences in ideologies. All they know is who gives them more to eat. If we want to win the war against Communism, we must be the ones who give the most."

"Vietnam isn't our responsibility—but if not us, who?"

Harder is now busy as a full-time student, but he finds time for talking to student groups about his experiences, and for completing a book he is writing about the war.

How does he feel about his tour of duty? "I wouldn't do it over, but I wouldn't trade the experience for anything."

Miss University Park

Toni Benson Reigns

By Dan VanAtta

Toni Benson, a tomboy beauty, has been selected Miss University Park.

Miss Benson, who will go on to the Miss Southern contest, lists her interests as hunting, fishing, swimming and playing pool.

With this repertoire of talent, Miss Benson said "It's sometimes embarrassing to my guy when I outshoot him, or beat him at pool. I've always been athletic, because in a town of 1,100 you can't be much else." Her hometown in Stonington.

The four runners-up to Miss Benson were: 1st runner-up, Linda Reiniger; 2nd runner-up, Linda Hussang; 3rd runner-up, Lynn Gollus, and 4th runner-up, Barb Ohlendorf.

Miss Benson is a home economics major. She plans to go into merchandising with the hope of someday becoming a buyer. She eventually would like to reach her utopia, she said, owning her own clothing store.

She has been designing her own clothes for as long as she can remember. Her mother and aunt are both seamstresses.

She said that her name has often been confused with the boy's name Tony. Even Uncle Sam gets confused.

"I've received several brochures from the U.S. Army and the Marine Corps," she said, "and I just hope I don't accidentally get drafted." However, the boys in uniform may hope just the opposite.

Warrant Issued For Suspect in Robbery Case

A warrant has been obtained by Carbondale police for the arrest of a former Carbondale resident wanted for questioning in connection with the April 10 armed robbery of Saluki Currency Exchange, Jack Hazel, chief of police, said.

"We've traced the suspect's movements as far as Effingham," Hazel said. He added that it is believed the suspect has returned to the Chicago area where he has lived for the last two to three years.

Wanted fliers for Michael France, 22, were issued by the local police to law enforcement authorities in the state, Hazel said.

Saluki Currency Exchange reported $12,000 taken in the robbery.

Is My Country Right/Wrong?

My central thesis is that we have seen an increasing use of propagandistic means to justify and continue the war in Vietnam. My concern here is to point out the absolutist mentality which governs propaganda and the threat which it poses to democratic institutions which rely upon open and reasoned debate.

The first direction taken by a propagandistic appeal is to absolutize the "good guy/bad guy" distinction. It is a hard thing to maintain relative distinctions and it is even harder to argue complexity rather than simplicity. I appeal of the propagandist was always been to simple solutions and absolute sides.

In its clearest form this type of simple-minded absolutism goes to its ultimate conclusion in the form of, "My country right or wrong." This saying was American in origin — yet it was precisely for this type of thinking that we have condemned and hanged war criminals. At Nuremberg the appeal of the defense was frequently that the accused was doing no more than following the laws and dictates of his country—he was being perfectly loyal and patriotic. The prosecution contended, however, that an individual does have a responsibility to a higher moral law (not to lawlessness) when the laws themselves are bad or when the country is clearly going against the higher moral law.

Those who are convinced that we are wrong in Vietnam not only have the right to be heard, but they ought not to be accused of fomenting anarchy. They appeal to morality as their justification, not to taste or mere preference.

This tendency to distinguish clearly between the "good guys and bad guys," however, does not always remain on the blatant and obvious level. During World War II, the "stupid, crew-cut and fat Nazi-pigs," and the "slant-eyed and buck-toothed Japs" appeared everywhere—now they appear ridiculous, particularly since they are now strongholds of Western-type democracies. So far this simple-minded absolutism has not appeared. But its concomitant movements have.

The first associated idea based upon the assumption that we are the clearly established "good guys" and the "Enemy" clearly the "bad guys" is again related to the notion of "My country right or wrong." It is the use of the well tried and successful "guilt by association technique."

The reasoning goes somewhat as follows: If my country is right (and doubt cannot be entertained if one has already reached that conclusion under the species of absolutism we've described), then whoever criticizes my country is suspect (in some degree). Has this form of propaganda appeared? The answer must be a clear "yes." It takes several forms:

The first form of association by guilt is one which attempts to associate all criticism and questioning, whether scholarly or opinionated, whether left or respectable middle, whether reasoned or passionate, with some form of irresponsibility. The appeal, of course, has to resort to some common prejudice. A shocking example of this is to be found in our own "Daily Egyptian." In its policy with cartoons about the Vietnam war, a large number of these show the critics of the administration as shaggy bearded, scroungy, blue-jeaned types. Never does a demonstrator-critic appear as a pin-striped, conservatively dressed scholar! The implication is clearly that criticism is to be associated with the "irresponsible" detractor from our society."

I have two serious objections to this propagandistic campaign (three if one counts a plea for more balanced cartooning): First, supposedly a democratic society is one in which all shades of opinion are to be heard. And this includes the blue-jeaned detractor. He has as much inmakes the critic a conservative in the best sense. Supposedly the conservative is one who wishes to conserve or preserve personal and civil freedoms—which include the right of free speech and free press.

The second idea based upon a version of absolutism is one which results in a vicious circle. The argument goes as follows: Because our national security is involved in this war certain information must be restricted. Only those in the government inner circles have access to this information. Therefore only they have the right to decide and we must follow their wisdom. This is contra the critics who are now claimed not to have enough or proper information for criticizing the government.

Again this piece of reasoning is based upon the "My country right or wrong" type of absolutism. The conclusion that critics have no right to criticize because of lack of information contains a number of half, or really at best quarter truths.

Dissent Over Vietnam

President Johnson has said that the war in Vietnam is a test of endurance; and at least at home, his war is being won in these terms. Two years of persistent escalation and innuendo have left his critics frustrated and despairing. They have told the President that the war is immoral and irrational, but the response has been hostile indifference. Their final arguments have been offered in vain; and no new course of action seems open but bitter acquiescence and silence—the total victory the President envisions in his battle for consensus.

We feel that dissent also must endure. We maintain that the war is immoral and irrational, and that no man who believes that it is should allow himself to be silenced. Dissent must persist, just as Johnson has, because it is based on moral and rational alienable right to speak freely and publish freely as his business-suited peer. The right to free speech and a free press does not distinguish between "American" and "un-American" ideas! Besides, I suspect that if our bearded friend were to be listened to we might find that he has a few legitimate gripes—after all we would hardly claim to be perfect (unless we were really absolutists).

The second objection is more serious. Not all criticism is of the same type. As a matter of fact most of the printed criticism I've been able to see has not come from bearded, blue-jeaned collegians, nor even from the occasional artist who refuses a White House invitation. Rather, most of it has come from seasoned reporters, scholars of the political scene, and students of Asian studies. If the cartoonist wants to represent things accurately he ought to draw a keyed professor rather than the barefooted student.

What is rather sad about this logic which begins with absolutizing the "good guy/bad guy" distinction and ends with the discrediting of the critic is that it is precisely the critic who vehemently and openly defends the democratic institutions which are being threatened in the very name of Democracy. I suppose this of information cannot be openly public domain (troop movements, etc.). But usually this type of information does not substantially effect the issues of debate. The reasons why we are fighting supposedly are public and that is what is being debated. (I have no interest in fighting myself or in encouraging anyone else to fight for something about which he has no knowledge. This is clearly irrational.)

Secondly, this argument usually relies on a hidden assumption, i.e., that all facts of whatever kind need to be available in order to make a proper judgment concerning our position. This is just not true. In the first place, one never has all the facts in any issue before having to make a decision about the appropriate action. And in the second place, what is much more important than the sheer amount of factual material is the amount of relevant material. The Administration has not, nor do I hope they ever will say that they are withholding information relevant to the central issues in Vietnam.

And thirdly, if vital information, particularly the information relevant to public debate is being withheld, then this is a most serious and grave threat to democratic institutions and should be protested loudly and vigorously, undermine morale. Therefore, one ought to cease such open criticisms because it weakens the war effort.

This is at once the weakest and strongest of the arguments. It is the strongest because it is probably factually true that prolonged debate on the home scene does weaken morale.

But it is the weakest argument because it most clearly depends upon the "my country right or wrong" assumption. It assumes that the war must go on no matter what, that morale must be high in order to win this war, etc. But if this assumption is not supportable, then the conclusion does not follow at all.

That is not, however, all that is involved. In the first place I suspect that morale does not depend entirely upon the arguments of the folks at home. I suspect that some of the low morale people have their own doubts (some have been voiced by persons of high rank who have resigned over the issue; others have expressed questions over their orders to shoot at civilians, etc.).

And finally, this argument relies upon an absolutist mentality among the military. It believes that the only commitment arises from the feeling of complete and solid agreement rather than the commitment to relative stands. (I personally would feel better in Vietnam were I to know that some people were still debating the issue, at least then I would be convinced

To Professor Barry Sanders

With slashing, savage motion
The vicious-ripping blade sweeps low
Over plain and jungle land,
Cutting weaknesses, tearing strength,
Searing the living...and dead,
Indifferent apocalypse,
Melting flesh, broiling bodies,
Radiation of hell,
Terror—truth.
The monster rises over no
man's land,
Then starts its pendulum path
of death,
Diving downward, shriek of doom,
Returning, continuing mutilation
of mankind,
To rise again, again, again
In dreadful, timeless, senseless rhythm:
Rise and sweep, Rise and sweep,
Tear and burn, Tear and burn.
In time with this we breathe,
we pray,
We turn to those of yesterday,
And asked the taunting, echoed phrase,
Many now or all tomorrow?
Many now or all tomorrow?

The ghostly skeletal figure, grinning in ghastly joy of pain,
Swings the blade with love of history,
With fleshless form, unfeeling
faith,
Seasonal endurance, ever care.
From out the gumless
less gap,
Gnashing fangs in fixed Thunders with machine-like passion,
Many now or all tomorrow?
Many now or all tomorrow?
The printed word we pass
before
Our tear-dimmed eyes,
When words of now grasp
our hearts,
Only say to this one man,
This has been before, before,
This will come again, again.

Mutant, screaming, mangled masses,
Writhing in the aftermath,
As crushing skies explode around
And sirens tear the eardrums'
life,
Many now and all tomorrow,
Many now and all tomorrow.

The Other Side of the Coin

Dear Editors:

Have you heard an interesting speak-out lately? You are lucky if you have. Most seems to be the commonplace jibes at President Morris, and his policies. Because of the fact that these "speak-outs" aren't well listened to, I thought that KA was the best possible way that I could be heard.

No, I'm not here to heap criticisms on Dr. Morris, or the Board of Trustees. I want to examine the facts as one student sees them.

1. Housing and Motor Vehicle Policies.

It seems that most students would advocate almost nil regulations on these two items. It was interesting to hear a student at speak-out say that he was here for an education, not to worry about whether his cycle would be ticketed. He told how the idea of "in loco parentis" was being extended at Southern, while at most universities was being broken down.

Maybe, this student was right about "in loco parentis" being extended here. Why is it? After all, we are the responsible students who got this school rated as one of the top party schools in the country. We are the students who broke windows last spring. This is the side that faces the public. You can't threaten the administration with more of these riots. That just isn't a responsible act. If a student needs a car, he is given every opportunity to get one. It is a rough fight, I know; I went through it for a work permit, but it isn't impossible. As for housing rights. Don't tell me a student wants unsupervised housing so that he can study better; he wants it so that he can party better.

2. The unwillingness of the administration to listen.

What has the administration got to listen to? A bunch of cherry bombs going off in the Moo parking lot only says one thing: I'm a little kid, I can't handle the responsibility of being mature. I'll give you an example of what Dr. Morris listens to. Fall term a friend of mine moved into his room on Thompson Point. The room was not one of the best in the house, so my friend wrote a letter to Dr. Morris asking what could be done about it. He had complained to his resident fellow and to other authorities with no results. At seven-thirty on a Saturday morning, Dr. Morris came to his room to see for himself. Mr. Morris agreed that something should be done, and it was. How many of you student rights advocates would have the nerve to face this man you criticize so much; and then have the intelligence to offer a valid suggestion?

3. Rocks, shrubs and trees. It might seem like a waste to you would-be rioters that so much time and energy should be spent on trees, rocks, and other assorted shrubs. How many of you have ever been to the campus at the University of Illinois? Not too much to complain about there is there? Not a rock in sight. Just a lot of closely packed ordinary buildings. Doesn't sound too beautiful, does it?

In 1927 no Nobel Prize was awarded. In 1928 Oscar Wilde, who had produced nothing that year, was awarded the Nobel Prize.

Last Friday Delyte Morris was named Mr. Southern Illinois.

Maybe the students are too busy criticizing this campus to notice it. Beyond those rocks and trees sits Lawson Hall, which Professor Schlipp, one of the leading philosophy instructors in the nation, calls the finest lecture facility in the country; the student union, which wasn't there ten years ago; the library, one of the finest in the state.

Before you go out to the Moo parking lot, and lose some more of the rights we have, look around. "If you don't like it here, you can leave." I like it here. I'm staying. Maybe I'm square.

Ka Review

of Come Blow Your Horn

WHY LAUGHTER?

Culminating a four-week USO overseas tour of military bases, a select group of Southern Players presented a snappy production of COME BLOW YOUR HORN at the SIU theatre last week. James Harrington's setting seemed to solve one of the most difficult problems of our proscenium opening—how to design a living room that would be equally visible from every seat in the house. And director Christian Moe's staging effectively utilized the entire playing area and coordinated a fast-paced and nearly precise production which was well received by our audiences. One could only wish that the furniture in a realistic setting be placed realistically, i.e., all the chairs of a room seldom face the same direction. But was the setting realistic? This swell New York bachelor apartment sported black walls unadorned by paintings. (Have you ever attempted to light a black-walled room with G-E lamps?) And the exit doorway seemed to lead either to a fire escape or into thin air.

Of the actors, Peter Goetz seemed to acquit himself most admirably. Without wasting time or movement, he handled the semi-Yiddish accent well and incorporated the mannerism and attitude of the absurdly fanatic father to provide some of the funniest moments in the play. Z. J. Hymel IV was equally adroit as the older brother, exhibiting a natural ease which gave the play smoothness. Both he and John Callahan, as the younger brother, did much to sustain the swift pace which gave the comedy its necessary impetus. However, Mr. Callahan seemed to be playing a high-pitched boy of fifteen instead of a young man celebrating his twenty-first birthday. Charlotte Owens' delightful characterization of the "dumb broad" was inventive and consistent. Constance Brennan, as the suffering mother, and Judy Sink, as the on-again-off-again bride, seemed to have a difficult time finding the proper key and tempo.

WHAT IS COMEDY?

COME BLOW YOUR HORN

was Neil Simon's first palatable Broadway hit. Since then, he has enjoyed extraordinary success with BAREFOOT IN THE PARK, THE ODD COUPLE, and SWEET CHARITY. Thus, one may assume that the author's ethos, having been established in New York, would act as a cue for the hinterland audience's cheerful reception. However, when all the laughs have been laughed, what exactly is funny about COME BLOW YOUR HORN? Buddy Baker runs away from home to live with his older brother, Alan. As a birthday present, Alan offers Buddy one of his girlfriends as a bedmate. This is not a problem for Alan because we soon hear him manipulating a business deal over the phone in which he procures a prostitute for a prospective client. An old-fashioned, tyrannical father enters and accuses his sons of being "bums" because one is a delinquent employee living a lecherous life and the other is about to become the same. We are asked to laugh at the joys of fornication. Later a "typical," befuddled mother, who cannot remember simple telephone messages, wanders about the stage continually complaining of nausea. Furthermore, we are asked to be titillated by a character who swings his backside in our faces. At play's end, we are told that immoral experiences serve as beneficial training for a young businessman. (Please do not compare this play to HENRY IV.)

In the tradition of those "memorable" Doris Day-Rock Hudson epics purporting to be sex comedies which the whole family could enjoy, COME BLOW YOUR HORN is a bedroom farce sans bedroom which asks us to suspend our sense of propriety and to laugh at the very things we take most seriously. In the end, comedy is that which is risible at a given time and place. It is motivated by a regenerative impulse which seeks not to understand life but to hold "it" up for observation so that we can tease and enjoy it. However, Mr. Simon's brand of comedy isolates two essentials: brevity and togetherness (in its most emotionally sentimental form).

The jokes must fly fast and furiously so that we will not have time to think about them. Only when the crowd laughs together can we allow ourselves the prurient pleasure of laughing at someone else. (We would feel guilty if we were caught laughing as individuals at mental illness and immorality.)

What is comedy? This is an easier question to ask than to answer, because in attempting an explication we leave the realm of comedy. It cannot bear too close a scrutiny because analysis of comedy (and life) is a serious business. In the modern idiom, the range of comedy extends between the conflicting social polarities of what the oddball (who is "in") finds funny and what makes the average person (who is "out") laugh.

This antagonism is proper since comedy is founded in social interaction. In McLuhan's language, the "in" comedy of the oddball (whether egghead or beatnik) is a cool medium; the "out" comedy of the average man (whether rich or poor) is a hot medium. Thus, a play like COME BLOW YOUR HORN is basically a hot comedy because it does not directly involve the audience. It unifies them in a briefly blissful togetherness in which they laugh at someone else. On the other hand, the grotesque or ironic comedy exhibited in such avant-garde plays as WAITING FOR GODOT, WHO'S AFRAID OF VIRGINIA WOOLF, and HOMECOMING (or movies such as ALFIE and BLOWUP) would be cool because it endeavors to isolate audience members by forcing them to laugh at themselves (if they dare). By forcing personal involvement, this kind of risible drama threatens to expose us and, thus, in retaliation we label it as blasphemous. However, I submit that COME BLOW YOUR HORN (and similar plays) is a greater threat and the actual blasphemy; in its sugar-coated, mendacious form it makes believe it is other than it is and causes war by tempting us to laugh at the serious weaknesses of others.

Charles Gattnig, Jr.

As an occasional reader of Jenkin Lloyd Jones' enlightening columns in the Daily Egyptian, the column last Thursday entitled "Guidelines Promote Reverse Racism" did not necessarily surprise me.

What has continued to surprise me, however, is the general quiet of the university community—especially the faculty and students—concerning his views about race relations. I'm not sure whether this quiet indicates general agreement.

The "equality" cry presently being offered by many whites in America in reaction to the Afro-American struggle for freedom is no more than a continuation of our already disgraceful history of discrimination.

Shibboleths of tolerance and equal opportunity are used by Mr. Jones in an attempt to discredit any attempts by slightly more enlightened federal officials to help the minority groups.

Mr. Jones' argument is that after a continuous history of barbarism, brutality, and forced servitude for Afro-Americans, the white power structure in America has the responsibility of issuing no more than an edict stating freedom of opportunity for all. In an apparent logical lapse, Mr. Jones adds that it might be proper to verbally castigate the white majority for past sins.

The ridiculousness and impracticability of such a policy should be evident in an educational environment. An analogy might be evident if we were to amputate a student's legs and then declare that he will have an equal opportunity to compete with other students for a place on the basketball team.

The hypocritical attitude is clearly evident. The attitude of hypocrisy is merely an extension of most American policy as preached by that great progressive and libertarian, LBJ.

LBJ tells the nation that we must have law and order, that we must stop crime in the streets. He tells us that violence never accomplished anything—that violence will only hurt the cause of freedom—that we must come together and use reason.

SURE. While he bombs the hell out of the people of Vietnam!

Museum's Move May Improve Status

By Gary Anderson

The SIU museum will be moved from Altgeld Hall to the ground floor of Old Main next fall.

According to the curator of exhibits, Frederick Schmid, the move to Old Main should improve the status of the museum.

Gallery of Creativity

To Begin April 28

The sixth annual Gallery of Creativity, sponsored by the Activities Programming Board, will be presented April 28, 29, 30 in the University Center Ballrooms.

The event enables students and faculty to display their achievements in arts and crafts.

Nine entry categories include art, photography, pottery, applied art and design, graphic arts, engineering design and architecture, creative writing, sculpture and musical composition.

Judging and awards will take place on Friday, April 28. Applications for the Gallery of Creativity may be obtained at the information desk of the University Center.

SIU Group to Be

Convention Hosts

Pi Sigma Epsilon SIU marketing fraternity will be host to the fraternity's national convention Thursday to Sunday at the Chase Park Plaza in St. Louis.

Phillipine College Head Visiting Campus Today

Mario P. Manese, acting president of Tarlac College of Technology, Tarlac, the Philippines, will be on campus this week to incorporate ideas with foreign students and to study techniques of the SIU Technology Department and Agriculture Industries Department.

Manese will meet with faculty members and students to get ideas for his current administrative studies of Philippine education.

Today Manese will observe the foreign mechanism system and the test farms of the Agriculture Department as guest of Eugene Wood, associate professor of agriculture industries, and William A. Doerr, instructor in agriculture industries.

Manese will be a guest of Dean Caldwell of international services committee at 9 a.m. Thursday and of John Hawley, director of community development service at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Anyone wishing to meet Manese may do so at a coffee hour at 9 p.m. Thursday in the Wham faculty lounge. The coffee hour will be co-sponsored by the Asian studies committee and the international services division.

On Friday, Julian Lauchner, dean of the School of Technology, will be Manese's host.

Manese received his bachelor's degree from Northern Philippine College in 1952. Manese is hoping to learn from his visit ways to better Philippine administrative and educational programs.

Texan, Missourian Will Join Agricultural Industries Faculty

Two appointments to the Department of Agricultural Industries faculty have been approved.

Thomas R. Stitt, a native of Gladewater, Texas, was named instructor to fill a vacancy left by the resignation of Charles Worstell, agricultural engineer. His appointment is effective immediately.

Donald D. Osborn of Fairfax, Mo., was appointed assistant professor as a resource economist, beginning Sept. 1. He currently is a post-doctoral fellow at the University of Missouri working on a study of economic development in the Ozarks region.

Stitt, whose major field is agricultural education, received his bachelor's and master's degrees at Oklahoma

State University and is a Ph.D. candidate at Ohio State University.

Osborn is a 1960 graduate of the University of Missouri and received his doctorate in 1964 in agricultural economics from North Carolina State University, Raleigh. He was on the North Carolina State faculty from 1963 until taking his present position last June.

Atomic Commission Head to Speak

Glenn T. Seaborg, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission since 1961, has accepted an invitation to speak at the Edwardsville campus May 26.

Discoverer of numerous radioactive chemical elements and former chancellor of the University of California at Berkeley, Seaborg will appear on one of the final programs in SIU's dedication of its new Science Building and the year-long dedication of the 2,600-acre campus.

His address will be at 2:30 p.m. in the Science Building. Seaborg was cowlinner of the Nobel Prize in chemistry with E.M. McMillan in 1951, and he received the Enrico Fermi Award in 1959. One of the books he has authored, Elements of the Universe, won the Thomas A. Edison Award in 1958.

The year of dedication of the Edwardsville campus started with ceremonies last May 13, and a jam-packed series of public events, particularly in the areas of science and fine arts, have been held since that time.

The $4,183,000 Science Building opened in the fall of 1966, and the first classes in the $3,453,000 Communications Building were held with the beginning of the winter quarter in January of this year. The $5 million University Center opened last month.

WILSON HALL

Accepted Living Center

Complete Opening September, 1967

Room Only Summer '67

WHAT'S WITH WILSON HALL?

Why another big resident hall? What will it be like?

How's the food? The rooms? Is discipline childishly tight or will anything go? If you sign up and don't like it are you stuck with your contract?

Here are some straight answers -

With encouragement from SIU administrators, we — a group of Illinois businessmen — invested in the construction of a resident hall for men students. WILSON HALL!

When we started this venture several years ago, housing was in short supply. While this is not the case in 1967, we knew this situation would occur. But we also knew there was still a need for the "right" kind of living-learning men's dorm.

By the time your younger brother comes here two things will have happened. The housing supply will be in balance with the number of students. And we hope we will earn his patronage because he will have heard from you that Wilson Hall is the finest "living - learning" environment for the dollar at SIU.

We're starting now to build the Wilson Hall reputation for value by offering you the kind of place you'll enjoy. Leading architectural and interior decorating firms have planned excellent facilities. With the guidance of educators and young men at SIU we are incorporating flexible policies that are built around suggestions.

In every sense, this will be YOUR HALL.

There will be rules, of course. But they will be the kind of rules you want enforced. You will have responsibility, authority and freedom. You will have your rights at Wilson Hall . . . and also the right not to have others trample on your rights. If you're a man who intends to succeed in your academic life . . . and wants to enjoy life while doing it, then Wilson Hall is for you.

We use the phrase, a "living - learning environment" to sum up what we offer. The living part simply means those comforts and conveniences that make life pleasant—good food, lots of it, comfortable beds, healthy environment, academic and recreation facilities, etc.

But these are not frills. These comforts and services are designed to conserve your energies for study and learning—which is the primary reason you are here at SIU.

To further help your study, we offer rooms that are "sound proof" study lounges, optional tutoring services, and—well, come see for yourself. Visit Wilson Hall at Park and Wall Streets, and talk with Don Clucas the resident manager.

Ask him about our unique "one-quarter contract". This is a solid way of proving that the "living-learning" values offered at Wilson Hall are everything we promise. We are so sure you'll like living at Wilson Hall that if you stay even one week, you'll want to stay with us until you get your PH.D.

U.S. Will De-escalate if Viet Does Likewise Says Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Southeast Asia Treaty Organization opened its annual foreign ministers meeting Tuesday with flashes of discord which threw a cold and bitter light on the efforts of some members to ignore or paper over the deep rifts in the alliance.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk used the initial public session to issue a new peace appeal to Communist North Vietnam, saying, "I urge Hanoi to make use of some machinery or diplomatic process to engage in discussions that could lead to peace."

He said the United States is prepared to de-escalate the conflict "whenever we are assured that the North will take appropriate corresponding steps."

But Rusk himself had just told the conference that Hanoi has met with "curt refusal" every peace overture so far offered. And he indicated he does not expect any quick change in that attitude, speculating that Hanoi still believes it can win the fight for south Vietnam.

In a review of SEATO's connections with the war in Vietnam, Rusk recalled many occasions on which foreign ministers like those assembled here had issued warnings against "Communist aggression" or expressed "increasing pressures in Southeast Asia."

But Thailand's foreign minister, Thanat Khoman, bluntly blamed much of Southeast Asia's warfare on "SEATO's inaction and impotency." He said SEATO's failures "gave the Communist expansionists the green light for launching into a much bolder adventure in South Vietnam."

SEATO was organized in 1954 and Khoman said it failed to meet its "first test" in 1959 when Communist forces undertook to overrun much of Laos.

Khoman also said his government's recent decision to allow its SEATO allies, particularly the United States, to use military installations in Thai territory "is designed to give a meaning to the organization or otherwise it would be reduced to a useless carcass."

The eight-nation alliance is holding its 12th annual meeting of foreign ministers. France, which is opposed to the U.S. role in the war in Southeast Asia, did not send any representative, boycotting the session.

Pakistan is represented only by its ambassador to Washington, Agha Hilaly, instead of its foreign minister—which diplomats took as a slap at SEATO and the United States. Pakistan has opposed U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and would like to see the Vietnamese war ended quickly, a point which Hilaly made clear in his speech to the opening meeting at the State Department.

Surveyor on Target For Moon Landing

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Surveyor 3, its course refined by a series of short rocket bursts in space, headed "right down the old barrel" Tuesday toward its target on the moon.

All it has to do to continue looking like a textbook success is:

Brake itself to a gentle landing on the Sea of Storms Wednesday night, send earthward photos of itself and the terrain, then scoop some soil with its spindly arm and send back an analysis.

Scientists at the jet propulsion laboratory, controlling the mission, said odds don't favor perfection. But they said the same of Surveyor 1, which returned 11,250 pictures after landing last June. Surveyor 2 crashed due to guidance failure.

U.S. Approves

Saigon Suggests Pullback

SAIGON (AP)—Welcoming a Canadian peace proposal, Premier Nguyen Cao Ky's government suggested Tuesday that warring forces pull back from the demilitarized zone to help create a climate for talks. A U.S. spokesman said the United States approved.

Hanoi's public response to Canada's bid, set forth by Foreign Secretary Paul Martin, had been a rejection from Nhan Dan, the newspaper of the North Vietnamese Communist party.

A buildup of combat divisions on both sides has made the zone, a buffer territory extending three miles each way from the border between the two Vietnams, a flashpoint that could set off the biggest battle of the war. U.S. intelligence officers consider Hanoi has 35,000 regulars in position for a possible invasion attempt.

State Senators Call for Illinois Constitution Change Next Year

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Without a dissenting vote, the Illinois Senate passed Tuesday a resolution calling for a constitutional convention to redraw the state's nearly century-old charter.

The measure sailed to the House on a 50 to 0 vote. If approved by the required two-thirds members of the House, the proposition would be placed before the voters in a statewide referendum next year.

The Illinois Constitution was drafted in 1872 and changes since that time have been piecemeal. In 1922, when the last constitutional convention offered the voters a new charter, it was rejected.

It was not known whether Tuesday's Senate action would kill other pending constitutional amendment proposals. Among House leaders there was strong sentiment for an amendment to permit annual legislative sessions.

In the House Executive Committee, an amendment calling for a reduction in the voting age from 21 to 19 was endorsed and sent to the floor.

Sen. W. Russell Arrington of Evanston, GOP leader, said it was the consensus of the constitutional study commission that the constitution needs to be revised in a number of areas.

Brezhnev Wants Red Conference

BERLIN (AP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev declared Tuesday the time had come to prepare for a world conference of Communist parties. But to avoid the feud with Red China, the Soviet party leader keyed the call to a need for greater unity in supporting North Vietnam.

The Kremlin has been calling for a world conference with the apparent aim of kicking Red China out of the Communist movement. But wishing to avoid a break with Peking, Romania, Yugoslavia and the Italian Communists have balked at such a meeting.

Commenting on Vietnam, Brezhnev charged that the United States is fighting a "robbery war" that would eventually end in its defeat.

Carmichael Urging Draft Resistance

NEW YORK (AP) — What are the aims of Stokely Carmichael, the black power advocate, and his Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee?

As gleaned from a series of speeches Carmichael has been making on college campuses, they range from mass Negro resistance to the military draft to the introduction of Swahili as a foreign language in Negro schools.

Carmichael also urges Negro students to be proud that they are black.

"We must stand up and say 'our noses are wide, our lips are thick, our hair is nappy, we are black and beautiful', he told an audience at Texas Southern University in Houston.

At a University of Texas campus meeting in Austin, Carmichael said that "hopefully the full strength of black power will be felt in the national elections of 1972—it's at least a five-year organization plan."

In a speech at Florida A. & M. Carmichael called on Negroes of military age to form "a gigantic antidraft system."

The first few Negroes who tell their draft boards, "Hell no, we ain't going," might wind up in jail, Carmichael said, "But we'd soon get it so Negroes wouldn't have to get drafted."

He counseled Negro students in several of his speeches that "if a white man hits you — break him . . . if a hunky tries to shoot you, kill him before God gets the news."

Speaking at a meeting at predominantly Negro Bethune Cookman College in Daytona Beach, Carmichael asked:

"Are you studying German? What good will that do you? Why not study Swahili: If you know Swahili, you can talk to your African brothers and the white men won't know what you are talking about."

Swahili is a language of the Bantu tribe and is commonly used in trade and government in East Africa and the Congo.

Carmichael also set forth his definition of black power: "the coming together of black people to fight for their freedom by whatever means necessary."

"It's not a question of civilization, baby," he said in a talk in Tallahassee, Fla. "It's a question of survival."

Coppolino Sent for Drug Says Doctor

NAPLES, Fla. (AP)—A New Jersey physician said Tuesday that seven weeks before Carmela Coppolino died, he shipped a supply of a lethal drug to her husband, Dr. Carl Coppolino.

Dr. Edmund Webb said Coppolino "told me he wanted to determine if the drug succinylcholine could be detected in the body of a cat after death."

The witness, associate medical director of the Squibb pharmaceutical laboratory at Fords, N.J., was the last of the prosecution's medical witnesses.

Immediately after Webb left the stand, State Atty. Frank Schaub said the state would go with its next witnesses into motives for the charge that Coppolino murdered his wife by drugging her.

These motives, he said, were a desire to collect a $65,000 insurance policy on the life of his tiny, 32-year-old wife, also a doctor; and to free himself to marry a well-to-do divorcee, Mary Gibson, a few weeks after Carmela's death.

Schaub outlined the next steps in his case while trying to introduce John L. Keaveney, a Freehold, N.J., banker and former FBI special agent, as a witness.

In a flurry of defense objections, Schaub said Keaveney would identify threatening letters and postcards written by Coppolino to a nurse in a hospital where he was employed in 1962.

Speck Sees First Visitors

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard Speck, convicted killer of eight student nurses, said Tuesday he could have escaped from his cell at the Peoria County Courthouse.

Speck also saw his first visitors since arriving Monday at the Cook County Jail. He had an hour-long talk with his mother, Mrs. Margaret Lindbergh, and his youngest sister, Mrs. Carolyn Wilson, both of Dallas, Tex.

Speck, 23, said he could have escaped from his Peoria County Courthouse cell a number of times during the two-month trial.

"I could have grabbed a pistol which the guards kept holstered but I didn't see what I could gain," Speck told Wardens Jack Johnson at Cook County Jail.

Birth Control Regulations Still in Effect Says Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican sternly warned Roman Catholics Tuesday that they must still observe their church's teachings against artificial contraception.

The reaffirmation of the traditional stand appeared in a blunt editorial in the Vatican newspaper "l'Osservatore Romano." There was speculation that Pope Paul VI himself had written it or ordered it written.

The unsigned editorial declared that the Pope's encyclical "Populorum Progressio" the development of peoples issued last March 28 must not be misinterpreted as containing any changes on birth control. It said the encyclical's reference to the problem "must be read in the context of the teaching of the church."

While the editorial was essentially another restatement of the church's established position, its timing and length gave it special importance. It was the longest editorial yet on the developing birth control debate.

It was the first official comment to come from the Vatican since the weekend publication in an American Catholic weekly of the secret report from the Pope's birth control commission urging him to permit contraception.

Public disclosure of the report's contents upset Vatican officials. Many saw it as an attempt to force the Pope before he was ready into making the statement on birth control that he has promised.

Pope Paul has also asserted that until any changes in the birth control rules are made the rules are not in doubt and Catholics must reject mechanical or chemical means of contraception.

Runs Through Saturday

Pan American Festival to Begin Thursday

The 14th annual Pan American Festival begins on the SIU campus Thursday and will continue through Saturday.

The theme of this year's festival is "Ruben Dario; Symbol of Latin American Cultural Unity."

The festival will open at 8:30 a.m. Thursday in the Morris Library Auditorium with the registration and reception. Ralph W. Ruffner, vice president for Student and Area Services, will serve as greeter at the opening session.

A luncheon will be held in the Renaissance Room of the University Center at noon.

The Thursday afternoon session will begin at 2 p.m. in Morris Library Auditorium with Charles D. Watland, University of South Carolina, speaking on "Ruben Dario y la Generacion del '98."

Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Experimental Theatre in the Communications Building, SIU theater students will present "The Rogues' Trial," a play by Brazilian dramatist, Ariano Suassuna.

Friday's activities will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the Agriculture Seminar Room, with William R. Garner, associate professor of government at SIU, speaking about the "Organization of American States, 1890-1967."

A banquet and closing ceremonies will be held in the Renaissance Room of the University Center beginning at 7 p.m.

According to A. W. Bork, director of the Latin American Institute, the purpose of the festival is to help promote interest in Latin America. "SIU's affiliations with Latin America began in 1958 with the presence of eight or ten specialists in Latin American affairs here on the SIU campus," said Bork. "Then in 1958 the Mexican summer study program began. At first the program ran on alternate years, but in 1960 the program became a yearly event."

The Latin American Institute is willing to help people who are interested in Latin America with research information whether for tourism or business needs, Bork said.

Brazilian Play Slated

"The Rogues' Trial," a play written by contemporary Brazilian dramatist Ariano Suassuna, will be staged at 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday at the Experimental Theater in the Communications Building.

The play deals with problems of church, prejudice and social injustice, according to Anthony Seminerio, director of the play and a graduate student in theater.

The play is being presented as a feature of the 14th annual Pan American Festival being held this week.

The cast includes Naggy

Student Files Railroad Suit

An SIU student has filed a $100,000 lawsuit against the Illinois Central Railroad.

Suane B. Huff, a sophomore from Chicago, is seeking damages from the railroad for injuries suffered in an accident in April, 1965.

The suit claims the student's motorcycle was struck by an Illinois Central engine, resulting in major damage to Huff's right leg. The leg was later amputated. He also received multiple external and internal injuries, the suit said.

Folk Arts Society To Sponsor Concert

Jimmie Tarlton, 75-year-old folksinger from Phoenix City, Ala., will present a concert at 9 p.m. May 6 in Morris Library Auditorium.

Tarlton is known for his steel guitar style of playing and for his blend of mountain folk, city blues and Hawaiian pop music.

Tickets for the concert, sponsored by the Campus Folk Arts Society, go on sale Monday at the University Center information desk. All seats are $1.

Sex Education Factor

Illinois Program to Stop Syphilis Under Study

By Pam Arnold

An Illinois program to aid in a campaign to stamp out syphilis is now under consideration.

The campaign, under the leadership of the U. S. Public Health Service, involves such problems as sex education, according to Dr. Walter Clarke, director of the Carbondale campus Health Service.

A state committee is now studying the advisability of sex education in Illinois elementary schools, Dr. Clarke said. If approved, the program would be introduced in to elementary schools within the next two years, he added.

Such a program would help overcome one of the problems faced by the U. S. Public Health Service in their campaign to stamp out syphilis by 1972.

One of the biggest obstacles is the failure of physicians to report approximately 100,000 cases of venereal disease each year, according to U. S. Surgeon General William H. Stewart. Along this same line, many patients do not report contacts to their physician.

Another problem, the one the Illinois program would relate to, is the reluctance of public education systems to inform students about venereal diseases through sex education programs.

Dr. Clarke also stressed the necessity of reporting cases of venereal disease to the Public Health Service by name and address so that chronic offenders can be apprehended and statistics can be kept up to date.

Although the Health Service doesn't treat many cases of venereal disease, the cases of gonorrhea outnumber those of syphilis, according to Dr. Clarke. He added that many students may go to other doctors or may not seek treatment at all, so no accurate count for the University is available.

Dr. Clarke said that students sometimes hesitate to come to the Health Service for treatment because they think they will be reported to University authorities.

Although cases must be reported to the Public Health Service, they are otherwise treated like any other infection—usually with large doses of penicillin, according to Dr. Clarke.

Doctors who don't report cases that come to them are usually operating on the "good fellow" principle, Dr. Clarke said. They don't report friends or patients who ask that they not be reported.

Another important aspect of the campaign against venereal disease is reporting contacts to a physician at the time of treatment. "By not reporting contacts," Dr. Clarke said, "patients are actually doing a disservice to someone instead of protecting them."

This part of the fight is also stressed by Dr. James Lucas, assistant chief of the venereal disease branch of the Communicable Disease Center in Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Lucas said that known contacts are urged to take treatment immediately, without waiting for the development of symptoms. By their doing this, the disease can be cured in its earliest stages.

The symptoms for gonorrhea may be unnoticeable in the female, but males usually notice genital and urinary tract discomfort almost immediately, according to Dr. Clarke.

After the initial phase, the disease may subside spontaneously (this is very unlikely) to an inactive but infectious stage, or may eventually cause female sterility. In a more acute form it can cause arthritis and heart disease as secondary effects.

There is no blood test for gonorrhea, and this is one of the reasons it may not be discovered in the early stage.

The symptoms of syphilis develop over a long period of time. The primary stage is usually marked by a sore which does not easily heal. Dr. Clarke pointed out that many people fail to notice this primary stage. Blood tests are negative at this time.

Other stages include a secondary phase which may be much like a cold, with mild fever, sore throat and a rash. This is followed by an infectious latent stage during which no symptoms are noticeable. Next comes a late latent stage during which the disease is progressing, but is not infectious.

The dividing line between the two latent stages is extremely hazy, but usually comes about four years after the disease is contracted.

The final stage comes many years later, when damage to the central nervous system or contracting of heart diseases may occur.

Besides observable symptoms, there are many laboratory tests used to determine syphilis. The most common is the blood test, performed before marriage licenses are issued, during pregnancy, and for many pre-employment physicals.

The blood tests are run by state or state-approved laboratories. All positive reactions must be reported to the Public Health Service.

Visiting Instructor to Speak On Music Skills for Retarded

Music as a vehicle to help develop skills and confidence in mentally retarded children will be explained when Richard Weber visits the SIU area May 4, 5, and 6.

Weber, associate professor of music at Trenton (N.J.) State College, has done special research with the mentally retarded since he was a young man living in Peoria, where he was born.

There an incommunicative neighbor boy interested Weber, who tried out the therapy of music and found it successful. Weber taught the youngster to play the organ.

"The boy's attitude improved and he developed to the point where he holds a job," Weber remarked. "If it hadn't been for the mechanics of music, he probably would have continued to sit on his front porch and rock."

Weber, who says the primary goal is not to make musicians out of children as much as to use music to develop self-confidence and skills, such as reading and writing, will have a busy schedule here.

Thursday he will be on campus with teachers and students in special education and music education, speak over WSL-TV (Ch 3) on "The Hour" between 4 and 5 p.m., and address the SIU student chapter of the Council for Exceptional Children during the evening.

Friday he will visit special education classes in the Murphysboro, Marion and Carbondale schools. Saturday, from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the University Center ballroom, Weber will conduct a workshop for area teachers of special and music education and other interested persons including volunteer workers with the mentally retarded.

Weber's appearances here are sponsored by the Egyptian Association for the Mentally Retarded, with cooperation from concerned departments of SIU, the Council for Exceptional Children, and the Marion, Murphysboro and Carbondale schools.

Social Work Careers

Topic for Discussion

"Careers in Social Work" will be discussed by Henry Stern of the Jewish Community Centers Association at the meeting of the SIU Social Work Club at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Missouri Room of the University Center.

Election of club officers will also take place. All students are invited to attend.

'Family' Workshop Set for July 3-14

An anthropologist, Dorothy Lee, will conduct a two-week workshop on "Working with Families of Many Cultures" in the Department of Home Economics Education this summer.

Mrs. Lee, who was born in Constantinople, Turkey, of Greek parentage, is a graduate of Vassar College, holds a Ph. D. degree in anthropology from the University of California at Berkeley. She taught at Vassar for 13 years, three at the Merrill Palmer Institute and three at Harvard University and currently teacher part-time at Iowa State University.

The workshop, Miss Fults said, is designed for teachers, home advisers and others concerned with the role of the teacher, and the cultural relationships in family life and family life education. It will be held Monday through Friday July 3-14, meeting from 12:30 to 2:20 p.m. and will provide two quarter hours of graduate credit.

Decline of Rural Population

Article Analyzes Problems Of Southern Illinois Towns

The shift in population from rural to urban regions and its effects on three small towns in southern Illinois is the subject of a recent article appearing in the April edition of Trans-action, a publication of the Community Leadership Projects at Washington University, St. Louis.

"The Decline and Fall of the Small Town" was written by William Simon and John H. Gagnon, senior research sociologists at the Institute for Sex Research at Indiana University.

The article is an analysis of three neighboring rural towns in southern Illinois. Although fictitious names (East Parrish, Clyde and Spireburg) were used, all are located within 40 miles of Williamson County.

Simon and Gagnon explore the problems which face the three small communities. Population changes in all three, range from six to 21 per cent.

East Parrish has had very little change, while Clyde is hoping for improvement through federal water and land development projects. Spireburg, the smallest of the three, has attracted several new industries and is reconstructing its economic base.

Despite the progress shown, the authors feel that the leaders of the towns are not concerned with the town's future and that most of the small towns will become "isolated and decayed." They see a time when "only the aged, the inept, the very young—and the local power elite will be left in the small town."

The decline of the small town has been gradual, but steady. Unless action is taken to preserve them they will die off and the megalopolis conditions of the east coast will become a reality throughout the United States, the authors wrote.

Future Teachers Studied

Pressure to Publish Distasteful

A study of a select group of would-be college teachers shows that they expect many satisfactions from their chosen career and one major dissatisfaction--the pressure to publish.

The study supported by the U.S. Office of Education reveals that members of the group "undoubtedly will be among those who do publish and publish often."

What bothers them is the expectation of being "pressured to publish before they have something to say--publication for its own sake."

On the plus side, the investigators find that these career-minded teachers expect most satisfaction from "work, association, and friendship with college-age students," and the intellectual challenge of the academic community.

These expectations are reported in a sample study of the factors that led nearly 100 college seniors to pick college teaching as a career. The seniors won graduate fellowships in 1965 from The Danforth Foundation, a nonprofit educational group.

The study explored the backgrounds, motives, and characteristics of these Danforth Fellows. For example, it found that the most common reason for wanting a college teaching career was: "I felt that I could make the greatest contribution to society in this area."

Understanding the reasons, hopes and personal traits that influence a vocational choice of this kind, the investigators believe, can be of great help in identifying and encouraging potentially good college teachers at a time when higher education faces an urgent need for high-caliber faculty.

Other significant findings of the study are:

About a fifth of the Danforth Fellows wanted to be college teachers before entering college, and better than two fifths had made up their minds by their junior year. Virtually all had chosen this career by their senior year.

As new faculty members, the Fellows would like to spend about 55 per cent of their time in teaching activities. Twenty years later they would prefer to cut back on teaching and devote more time to research and writing. Ideally, they would like to give no more than eight per cent of their time to administrative duties.

The would-be teachers hope to begin their careers at the kind of institution where they did their undergraduate work, usually a private college or university.

Salukis Grab Baseball Honors

The Governor's Baseball Tournament is over and SIU walked off with everything except the umpire's chest protector. The Salukis carried home the Governor's Trophy, the Most Valuable Player Trophy and placed two men on the all-tournament team.

Don Kirkland won the Most Valuable player award for his two-hit masterpiece against Eastern Illinois. Kirkland also turned his talents from pitching to hitting, driving in the winning run as the Salukis nipped the University of Illinois, 7-6.

Kirkland was also selected to the all-tournament team as the best righthanded pitcher.

Rich Hacker, the Saluki shortstop, also was selected to the tourney team. Hacker had five hits in 13 trips to the plate in the tourney for a .385 average.

Arkansas State placed three players on the team. The Arkansas team placed infielder Dana Ryan, outfielder Wayne Pitcock and catcher Criss McGuire on the team. Pitcock was also named the most outstanding outfielder in the tourney.

Western Illinois also placed three players on the team. Infielder Terry Brecher, outfielder Bruce Bickhaus and pitcher Joe McLaughlin represented the Leathernecks. Brechner was voted the most outstanding infielder in the tourney.

Illinois placed two men on the team to complete the selections. The Illini placed infielder Mike Murawski and outfielder Mickey Smith.

Gene Jordan of Eastern had the best batting average in the tournament. Jordan pounded out eight hits in 14 at bats for a .571 average.

Rich Duewel of Western was named the best base runner in the event on the strength of his four stolen bases.

The Salukis now own a record of 22-3-1 on the heels of the four wins in the tournament plus a doubleheader win over Indiana State Monday. Southern also has a winning streak of eight starting with the 16-0 victory over Memphis State April 8.

Coach Joe Lurz will take his team to Columbus, Ohio, this weekend for double headers Friday and Saturday with Ohio State. The Buckeyes are the defending NCAA baseball champions.

Southern's baseball team is

2 Teams Will Represent SIU In Skydiving Championships

It will be raining people over Tahlequah, Okla., this weekend. The air will be filled with white mushrooms of parachute canopies, as this small Oklahoma town will be the site of the 1967 Collegiate Skydiving Championships.

Southern will be ably represented by two teams, both of which will be out to bring the championship trophy back to SIU for the second consecutive year.

SIU skydivers won the championship last year at Texas A&M University in College Station. The event will get underway Saturday and proceed through Sunday evening.

The SIU Skydiving team will be represented by Gordon Cummings, Richard Makurat, Denny Niemann and Jim Reider.

Cummings and Makurat were the big SIU scorers in last year's meet, finishing 1-2 among SIU parachutists. Cummings has logged over 410 jumps in his career and Makurat owns 160 jumps.

Niemann has 150 jumps to his credit and the newest member of the team, Reider has about a dozen jumps.

SIU will also be represented by the SIU Sport Parachute Club. The club president and coach is Miss Pat Meiron. Representing this club in Oklahoma will be Tom Stowell, No. 4 scorer for SIU last year, Mike Lanigan, Roger Neuman, Fred Weinert and Bill Huff.

The SIU Skydivers have already defeated Alabama, last year's collegiate runner-up, and St. Louis University skydivers this season.

The Air Force Academy took third in last year's meet.

Teams will compete in four events: novice accuracy, for skydivers with less than 50 jumps; advanced accuracy, for those with better than 50 jumps; team accuracy, three members of team are measured for combined accuracy after exiting the plane simultaneously; and style, where the jumper is judged on speed and performance of aerial acrobatics.

Team and individual trophies will be awarded to the top finishers and SIU has two chances to own the team trophy for another year.

Rehabs Increase Lead in Bowling

The Rehabs added one-half point to their league lead in Faculty-Staff bowling. The Rehabs beat Chemistry 2.5 to .5 and VTI could only manage a split with Zoology.

Data Processing regained the first division by taking a four point forfeit from the University Center. The Alley Cats also swept four points from Financial Assistance.

Zoology had the high series of the week with a 2,684. Dean Parsons of the Zoology team had the high individual series with a 520. The high game for a team was rolled by Counseling and Testing with a 938 and the high individual game was rolled by Lew Runkle of VTI who had a 201.

Don Kirkland, Rich Hacker Named to All Tournament Team

Two Saluki baseball players were given special praise for their performance in the Governor's Tournament.

Don Kirkland, the Saluki pitching ace, and Rich Hacker, Saluki shortstop, were selected to the all tournament team. Kirkland also won the award as the most valuable player in the tournament.

Kirkland's story isn't strange. Last year, Kirkland appeared in 14 games as a pitcher and finished with a won-lost record of 7-3. He also had an earned run average of 3.33 and struck out 93 batters in 78 innings.

Lutz would have a harder time winning.

Both Kirkland and Hacker will return next year. Kirkland is a junior from Boonville, Ind., and Hacker is a sophomore from New Athens. Lutz only has two seniors on the roster, Nick Solis and Paul Pavessich, so that the future for baseball at SIU looks bright indeed.

Investigation of Scandal Frustrated

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—The executive director of the National Collegiate Athletic Association said Tuesday the NCAA's investigation of an alleged college football betting scandal has been frustrated by a district attorney.

The NCAA official, Walter Byers, released to the Birmingham News his correspondence with William Cahn, district attorney of Nassau County, New York.

Cahn announced at Mineola, N.Y., on Feb. 10 that he had crushed a nationwide betting syndicate and that he had evidence that one of the leading coaches in the country had bet on his own team.

Cahn has declined to identify the coach, except to say he was not from the east.

"We have been frustrated... in our efforts to discharge the responsibility which has been given to our office by the member institutions of the association," Byers wrote Sports Editor Benny Marshall in response to a request for a progress report.

Cahn had said earlier that he would not release the name of the coach he said had bet.

Asked for his position, Cahn issued a statement from his Mineola, N.Y., office which said:

"Whenever I believe that the ends of justice will be served by the public release of information, I'll do so."

SHARES RECORD—SIU's Mitch Livingston jump Saturday. He shares the MacAndrew Stadium record with Ron Tull of Oklahoma.

NFL Play Will Open Sept. 17

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League, sporting a 16th team and four new divisions, opens its 48th season with a full schedule of games Sunday, Sept. 17.

The world champion Green Bay Packers open at home against Detroit while Dallas, the Eastern Conference champion, visits Cleveland. The league's newest team, the New Orleans Saints, will be at home against Los Angeles.

The other openers are Atlanta at Baltimore, Chicago at Pittsburgh, Washington at Philadelphia, New York at St. Louis, and San Francisco at Minnesota.

For the first time, the league will be divided into four divisions—the Capitol and the Century Divisions in the Eastern Conference and the Coastal and the Central Divisions in the Western Conference.

The Capitol has Dallas, New Orleans, Philadelphia and Washington; the Century has Cleveland, New York, Pittsburgh and St. Louis; the Coastal has Atlanta, Baltimore, Los Angeles and San Francisco, and the Central has Chicago, Detroit, Green Bay and Minnesota. Under the new schedule, each team will play the other teams in its division two times, the teams in the conference's other division once and the teams in one of the divisions of the other conference once, making a total of 14 games with 11 teams.

For the first season under the new schedule, Capitol teams will play Coastal teams in inter-conference play while Century teams will play Central teams.

Instead of 14 interconference games, there will be 32. The realignment also has all of the teams in one division playing identical schedules.

The regular season will close Dec. 17 with playoffs beginning the following weekend. The Western Conference title game will be held Saturday, Dec. 23, at the home of the Central Division champion, and the Eastern playoff will be held Dec. 24 at the home of the Capitol Division champion.

Griffith to Get Return Match

NEW YORK (AP)—Nino Benvenuti, the newly crowned world middleweight boxing champion, and Emile Griffith signed Tuesday for a return bout Thursday, July 13, in New York at either Madison Square Garden or Shea Stadium.

The handsome 28-year-old Italian, winner of a unanimous decision over Griffith despite a fourth-round knockdown, will get 40 per cent of all receipts for the rematch. Griffith, who went into the ring Monday night a 13-5 favorite, will receive 20 per cent.

Although plans for television still are in the talking stage it is likely that the bout will be carried on home television with the New York area blacked out and also be beamed to Europe on the Early Bird satellite.

The smiling Benvenuti, a national hero in his native land after his exciting upset victory, wore a patch on the bridge of his nose Tuesday as a souvenir of the 15-round struggle. Griffith's left eye still was half-closed from a lump on his cheekbone.

Both the new champ and the old appeared at a noon press conference where the rematch contracts were formalized.

Griffith was down for a compulsory eight-count in the second round when Benvenuti drove home a right uppercut. The Italian was draped across the ropes and took an eight-count in the fourth when Griffith landed a long, looping right hand to the side of the head.

The crowd of 14,251 that paid $141,799, despite a chilling rain outside, turned the Garden into a little Italy with its chants of Neeno, Neeno. They swarmed into the ring after the decision with a host of small Italian flags and hoisted the new champ on their shoulders. Police had to break up the demonstration.

Injuries to Livingston, Benson Sidetrack Jumpers' Careers

It's tough enough on a coach when he doesn't have the material to get the job done, but probably even tougher when he does have the material but can't keep them healthy.

The situation is particularly hard to swallow when your trackmen have proven they can do the job time and again. Track Coach Lew Hartzog has a pair of high jumpers, who show promise of becoming among the top collegians in their field.

Hartzog has a tough time getting the two together, though. Both Mitch Livingston and Chuck Benson have spent a large part of the 1967 outdoor season getting their legs taped up on the sidelines.

Livingston made a sparkling recovery from several weeks of inactivity Saturday by topping his best effort to that date with a 6'8 1/2" jump in the triangular meet with Oklahoma and Kansas State.

Livingston's effort tied him with Sooner Ron Tull, who has cleared 7'1" before. But Tull was awarded first place on the basis of fewer misses at lower heights.

Livingston's outstanding performance had to lose some lustre when you spied Benson sitting on the side nursing a bad knee. Benson has gone 6'7" already this year and Hartzog thinks he has the potential to be a 7-foot jumper.

Benson has completed all spring for the Salukis, until he aggravated the knee last week. With him in the lineup Southern could have taken both second and third in the event and perhaps even better in the future. Just how long the knee will keep Benson out is not known.

Benson's loss is a double dose for Hartzog, because the 6-4 Adantan runs the third leg on the Salukis' 440 relay team and according to Assistant Coach Harvey Cannon, "will always give you his best effort, and you can bet that will be a good one."

Benson was also one of the top 440 men in Georgia in his high school days. He is, in fact, one of the most versatile athletes at SIU, having just completed his sophomore year in a sixth-starter role for the NIT Champion Saluki basketball team.

Both Livingston and Benson will have a chance to show what they can do among the country's best collegiate high jumpers, provided they are well, next Saturday and the following weekend at the Kansas and Drake Relays.

If both are able to go at top strength they should bring home some points for SIU.

Willard Unsure

About Returning

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — San Francisco 49ers' running back Ken Willard said Tuesday he was impressed by an appeal from his teammates but is still undecided about returning to the West Coast National Football League team for the 1967-68 season.

Willard, who gained more yards and scored more touchdowns from rushing than any other 49er in 1966, had said previously he would quit professional football unless traded to either Baltimore or Washington.

He confirmed Tuesday a meeting last Saturday in Washington with four of his 49er teammates — captain Clark Miller, quarterback John Brodie, and David Parks and guard Walter Rock.

Willard is in business here and wants to play for a team closer to his home.
