GOP is spending big money to unseat Gray

By Tom Mangan
Staff Writer

Rep. Ken Gray is facing the fight of his political career in the wake of challenger Randy Patchett's announcement that he will try to unseat the veteran Democratic congressman from West Frankfort.

The National Republican Congressional Committee is out to put a Republican in Gray's 22nd Congressional District seat and is promising maximum financial backing of Patchett's campaign to do it.

Although national party organizations are limited in how much they can contribute to a congressional campaign, party backing can prove valuable in ways that cannot be measured in dollars and cents. The NRCC can produce television commercials, conduct polls and provide sage campaign advice to a Republican candidate, says Barbara Pardue, NRCC communications director.

The party can provide these and other services at reduced cost or no cost at all, Pardue says.

And when it comes to actual expenses, the party can save a candidate thousands of dollars by spending money on behalf of the candidate.

According to federal election laws, the national party can donate $5,000 cash per election to a candidate, and can spend up to $21,310 on the candidate's behalf. The NRCC, combined with the Republican National Committee and the state central committee, can contribute up to $15,000 cash to Patchett's campaign.

State parties, if named an agent of the national committee, can contribute an additional $21,810 on behalf of a candidate. These "coordated expenditures" can be spent as the party wishes to ensure its candidate is elected.

All told, that's $56,620 in cash, advice, promotions and other benefits Patchett could receive if Republican support is pushed to its legal limit. Pardue says this is a drop in the bucket in a campaign effort that could easily cost up to $250,000.

Possibly a drop in the Attack won't end terrorism, local political scientists say

By William Waiker
Staff Writer

With uncertainty clouding the current situation in Libya, it is impossible to tell what the results of the American bombing raid there will be, say two local political scientists.

"There's so many things that can happen. There's so many variables," said political science professor William Hardenbergh, who specializes in the politics of the Middle East.

Whatever the eventual outcome, however, Hardenbergh said it will not involve the end of terrorism, and he said Monday's attack, which left a reported 17 Libyans and two Americans dead and at least 100 Libyans injured, will prove to be counterproductive.

"It (the attack) will only improve Khadafy's support and increase terrorism," he said.

"I think everyone in the world except us thinks it was a dumb move," said Hardenbergh, who added that all the bombing did was make Americans "feel good."

Professor Manfred Landecker, foreign affairs specialist, agreed that it is impossible to tell what will happen next in Libya, and he stressed that it is useless to attempt simplistic explanations.

Landecker did say, however, "that the public should monitor the situation," particularly the debate as to whether President Reagan complied with the War Powers Act.

That act prevents the president from engaging American troops in combat for more than 60 days without specific congressional authorization and encourages the president to consult Congress "in every possible instance" prior to using U.S. force.

The act was passed in response to Congressional dismay over numerous expropriations of its Constitutional right to declare war by presidents using their Constitutional power as commander-in-chief of the armed forces, especially during the Korean and Vietnam conflicts.

But despite the attempt to increase Congressional input into foreign affairs, the interpretation of the War Powers Act has been "up for grabs" ever since it was enacted over President Nixon's veto in 1973, Landecker said.

And, he added, the recent developments in Libya will certainly increase the debate, with some insisting Reagan's meeting with Congressional leaders Monday afternoon was a sufficient consultation and others arguing that Congress should have played a greater role in the decision making.

Landecker also encouraged Americans to pay close attention in the weeks ahead to Congressional, domestic and foreign reactions to the bombing, as well as the eventual effect the move will have on the level of terrorism in the world.

Prof describes effects of nuclear war

By Jim McBride
Staff Writer

The air-raid sirens blare. The president and key government officials scramble to Air Force One in an attempt to escape the effects of the first nuclear strike against the United States.

Will many people survive a nuclear attack?

Probably not, according to a science consultant to the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory who lectured Tuesday to a crowd of about 80 in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

Carl Bender, professor of physics at Washington University in St. Louis, said Tuesday that few would survive a full-scale nuclear war.

"I don't see that a nuclear war is survivable, not even a small nuclear war," said Bender.

Bender said there are several effects that would result from a nuclear explosion. First, an intensely hot "fireball" of rapidly expanding air would radiate from the center of the explosion. If the fireball touches the earth, soil would evaporate and would be drawn up into the atmosphere and drop to the earth as fallout.

Following the fireball effect, intense thermal radiation, a high-intensity blast wave and Khadafy tells Libyans to 'dance in streets'

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — Col. Moammar Khadafy surfaced Wednesday night for the first time since U.S. air raids on two Libyan cities, appearing on television in an apparent attempt to dispel rumors he had been overthrown in a coup.

The 20-minute broadcast about midnight, which was also carried by Libyan Radio, prompted Tripoli to erupt in celebration.

Khadafy's appearance came after a day of sporadic machine-gun and artillery fire in that capital that had fueled rumors of a coup. It also followed a Libyan Radio call for Arabs to kill Americans "wherever you may find them" to avenge the U.S. attacks.

Khadafy, speaking calmly and softly in Arabic, accused the United States of killing children and other civilians during the raids on Tripoli and Benghazi early Tuesday, but did not call for new attacks to avenge the U.S. action.

"Turn back on the lights. Dance in the streets," the Libyan leader exhorted his countrymen. "We are not afraid of America. Start playing normal music on the radio."

About 10 minutes after

Khadafy left the air, electricity was restored to the capital — which had been blacked out since the U.S. attack — and jubilant Libyans poured into the streets, heading toward Tripoli's giant Gree Square.

There was no indication whether the speech was live or taped earlier, or from where Khadafy was speaking. However, a reference he made to a large pro-Libyan rally in Khartoum, Sudan, earlier Wednesday appeared to indicate the broadcast — if videotaped — was recorded sometime Wednesday. Khadafy was wearing a white naval uniform and appeared healthy. He urged Arab nations to break diplomatic ties with the United States to retaliate for the raids.

"We are asking for unity from all Arab nations," Khadafy said.

The Libyan leader condemned Britain for permitting U.S. fighter-bombers based in England to be used in the attacks, and thanked France for refusing to allow the U.S. warplanes to fly through French air space en route to Libya.

"We are ready to die for our country if we are attacked," Khadafy said.

Shultz says U.S. to proceed in attempts at summit talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz, courting a European audience, said Wednesday the administration wants to proceed with the second superpower summit despite intense Soviet criticism of U.S. raids on Libya. The Soviet Union, calling the Monday night raids "criminal action," canceled a meeting scheduled for May 14 to 16 between Shultz and Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze to plan for the second summit of President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Nicaraguan children protest aid to Contras

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — About 8,000 school children, chanting "Yankees will die," marched in Managua Wednesday to protest U.S. proposals to aid the Contra rebels seeking the overthrow of Nicaragua's leftist government. The demonstration was one of several across the country to protest Contra aid on a day when the House was to debate and vote on President Reagan's proposed $100 million aid package for the rebels, who have battled the government for five years.

Stevenson on mend, released from hospital

DUBUQUE, Iowa (UPI) — Illinois gubernatorial candidate Adlai E. Stevenson III, who is recovering more quickly than expected from a back injury he suffered while riding horseback, was released Wednesday from an Iowa hospital, an aide said. The Democratic nominee had been hospitalized at the Mercy Health Center since Sunday, when he suffered a "non-displaced hairline fracture of a back process" after he was thrown from an unbroken horse on his farm in Hanover, about 25 miles away, said Bob Benjamin, Stevenson's campaign manager.

Kidnappers release wife of Irish brewer

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — The kidnappers of the wife of a member of the Guinness family released the woman "safe and well" and surrendered to police Wednesday, ending an eight-day ordeal for Ireland's wealthiest dynasty. Jennifer Guinness, 48, a member of the Guinness banking and brewing dynasty, was freed without payment of any of the $2.6 million ransom demanded by the kidnappers, said police Supt. Frank Hanlon. "She is safe and well," he said.

Second El Salvadoran kidnap ring uncovered

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Authorities are investigating a second kidnapping ring run by the extreme right and apparently led by high-ranking military officers, sources close to the case said Wednesday. One kidnap-for-profit ring operated by right-wing extremists is already under investigation. The disclosure Wednesday marked the first time the existence of a second ring has been confirmed.

$5 billion sought to pay for shuttle aftermath

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An administration task force has been arguing for more than a month on how to come up with $5 billion to pay for a new shuttle and other costs resulting from the Challenger disaster, Sen. Ernest Hollings said Wednesday. Acting Air Force Secretary Edward Aldridge, a member of the Senior Interagency Group working on the accident recovery plan, said the group will meet Friday in an attempt to agree on a proposal for President Reagan.

Cronkite among 100 finalists for shuttle flight

COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI) — Veteran newsmen Walter Cronkite and 99 other journalists have been selected to compete for a coveted seat on a space shuttle to communicate the wonder of spaceflight to the public, officials announced Wednesday. The 100 regional semifinalists, selected from a field of 1,703 applicants, include 37 from newspapers, 36 broadcasters, 12 from magazines, four from the wire services and 11 freelance journalists, including Geraldo Rivera, project officials said.

OPEC again fails to agree on production limit

GENEVA (UPI) — A deeply divided OPEC turned its attention from politics to oil Wednesday but failed to make progress toward an agreement on production controls to whittle down the global oil surplus and shore up sagging prices. As the oil ministers, several of whom arrived through the kitchen to avoid reporters, remained secluded on the upper floors of the Intercontinental Hotel, North Sea oil prices fell by $1.20 to $11.30 per barrel. On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the key U.S. crude closed at $11.43 per barrel, down $1.27 on the day.

Businessmen advise Carbondale to improve ties with University

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

New businesses and closer ties with the University will bolster Carbondale's economy.

This was the message from three community business leaders who spoke on the future of Carbondale's economy during a Citizens Advisory Committee meeting Tuesday at City Hall.

The committee, which reports to the City Council, monitors the city's progress with the "Goals for Carbondale," compiled in 1972, that plots the city's course toward prosperity in the 21st Century.

Don Shay of Burley-Shay Investments, Ltd. in Carbondale said a number of businesses in town survive from just University student profits and reject the idea of competition moving into Carbondale.

"These business people are saying, 'Don't put in competition for me because I don't want to develop my business to compete,'" Shay said.

"Development helps, however, because it will bring in more people to buy at the businesses and new business breeds more business," he added. "Some businesses always get hurt by this but the job of the city is to promote business."

Don Jackson, vice president of First National Bank and Trust Co., said the University "is the one industry mistreated by the town. The University doesn't get the recognition by the city as it should as an industry."

Osbirn Ervin, associate professor of political science, said the city should focus on the University's advantages in part by creating new housing for University students and retirement communities for University retirees.

Shay elaborated on Ervin's point, saying that keeping the retirees here also keeps their money in the community, which can be used for further investment.

Shay also decried the poor connections between the city's business community and the University.

"The University has demonstrated that it is willing to expand its services through projects that examine community problems," but cannot follow through because the city "puts up too many bureaucratic obstacles in the way."

Shay said it's easier for the University to assist surrounding communities with community development problems, allowing these communities to step ahead of Carbondale economically.

Promoting all of Southern Illinois instead of just Carbondale and getting regional communities to work together for more outside dollars are key solutions to Carbondale's economic slump, the speakers said.

"Communities here are too fragmented," Shay said. "They don't want to have anything to do with each other. Put 500 businesses in Mount Vernon or Marion, our business here will grow as well."

Jackson said that "we stress our disadvantages for government help," and added that "this area was settled by people from Virginia and Tennessee who wanted to keep to themselves and this attitude hasn't really changed."

Ervin stressed promoting outdoor and recreational areas in Southern Illinois, such as Giant City Park and Crab Orchard Lake.

Referring to the goals drawn up in 1972, Shay said they would fit the needs "of 1,000 other communities the same size as Carbondale."

"They are fine but they are too broad," he said. "There is no way to say 'OK, we've achieved this goal.'"

Ervin said that "what Carbondale needs to do is make an assessment of the town's strengths and weaknesses and orient development toward that."

bucket, but it's $56,620 Patchett's campaign committee will not have to solicit from individuals and Political Action Committees or borrow from banks.

Gray's campaign will be supported by the Democrats, says Patrick McCaffry, Gray's press aide. However, the Democrats cannot be expected to place such heavy financial emphasis on Gray's campaign, he said.

Paul Gray, the congressman's brother and campaign treasurer, accuses the Republicans of "trying to buy the election." He says word has it the Republicans will spend whatever is necessary, up to $1 million, to unseat his brother.

Although it's legally impossible for the national Republican party to contribute anywhere near that much to Patchett's campaign, donations from the major party could play a major supporting role, if results of the 1984 election are any indicator of things to come.

In '84, Patchett was an relatively unknown former Williamson County state attorney running against Gray, a 20-year veteran congressman returning to the political arena after a 10-year hiatus. Patchett spent his campaign money well, falling just 1,177 votes short of an upset victory.

According to reports from the Federal Elections Commission based on campaign disclosures filed by both candidates between 1983 and 1984, Patchett received $15,694 from the Republican Party, which also spent $39,583 on his behalf. Gray, however, received 3,000 from the Democrats, who spent a mere $400 on his behalf.

But if Patchett's party support kept him in the race, Gray's ability to raise money from other sources combined with 20 years of political savvy may have proved a deciding factor.

Gray, according to the FEC, received $134,923 in individual contributions and $60,675 from PACs. Patchett's committee received donations worth $122,238 from PACs and individual contributions totaling $78,137.

PACs, which have come under increasing criticism for allegedly influencing the outcomes of legislation and elections, played a more prominent role in Patchett's campaign than Gray's.

PACs, which are limited to a $5,000 contribution per candidate per election, have four major divisions as reported by the FEC: corporate, which refers to committees connected to specific corporations; labor, those committees organized by labor unions; trade-member-health, organizations of trade associations and the medical profession; and non-connected organizations, which usually have a particular ideological affiliation.

Patchett was the major beneficiary of corporate donations in the '84 election, receiving $122,238 from 149 corporate committees. Gray reported $4,106 donated by 13 corporate PACs.

Patchett reported zero donations from Labor PACs, while Gray took in $36,825 from 23 labor committees, not altogether surprising in the 22nd District where labor is traditionally strong.

Both candidates received fairly similar amounts from trade-member-health committees — Patchett $20,940 and Gray $15,150.

Non-connected organizations saw a vast disparity in contributions as Gray received $4,600 while Patchett took in $39,717.

Patchett outspent Gray, but not by much. According to the FEC, Patchett's committee spent $225,308, while Gray spent $195,254.

Paul Gray says the Gray committee has not pushed hard to solicit PAC contributions, but instead relies on the congressman's ability to pursue individual contributions.

Patchett, backed by powerful Republicans and the wealthy corporations that will be able to make substantial contributions to his campaign, will no doubt receive the financial support to make 1986 another cliff-hanger election.

GPSC officer election challenged

By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer

A challenge to the validity of the Graduate and Professional Student Council officer elections at a meeting held April 9 was filed with the GPSC Wednesday morning.

The challenge was filed by the six current Law School representatives. One of those, Paul Antonacci, was elected as vice president of administrative affairs after losing the election for GPSC president to Kelli McCormack, of the Department of Health Education.

The six law students are challenging the election's validity because four new members were not allowed to vote, even though three of them were present at the election meeting. Specifically, they charge the new members were unaware of GPSC election guidelines that the GPSC Election Commission says made the members ineligible to vote.

Of the six Law School representatives, four were new GPSC members elected by the Student Bar Association. The law students charge that because the new members were not informed of GPSC regulations requiring attendance at one of three GPSC meetings immediately prior to the elections and were not informed of any meetings before the election, election eligibility guidelines should not apply.

According to the GPSC constitution, there are three requirements that must be met for a person to be eligible to vote in an election.

First, the person must be a

Debate team skills arguably were best

IF YOU HAPPEN TO RUN into any debate team members, give them a pat on the back for coming through their season as national champions.

Debate team members might be a little hard to find, however, unless you know them personally. There are only 14 of them, seven of them comprising a "core" team. You can't tell them by their physiques, as you can football players.

Their competitions were not well-attended and supported by their fellow students, nor discussed Monday morning by arm-chair quarterbacks. And they don't wear letter jackets.

That doesn't mean what they do isn't as significant, though. In some ways, their achievements will benefit them more when they graduate than will the more publicized skills of athletes.

For to be good at debating, you have to be good at doing research into all sides of an issue, preparing your position, and presenting it persuasively. You have to be quick on your feet, mentally.

THESE ARE THE KINDS OF skills executives, lawyers, and other professionals in many fields must have. That isn't to say sports aren't important or that athletes are stupid, but there's really not much call in the corporate world for the ability to throw a football or jump a hurdle.

And it's rewarding to see people representing SIU who are known for using their brains. It reinforces the public relations campaigns the University conducts to persuade Illinoisians that this is not a party school. Maybe Coach Jeff Bile and the debaters could present the case for SIU-C to convince parents, school administrators and state legislators.

And maybe the Undergraduate Student Organization ought to send them to talk to the trustees the next time a tuition increase proposal comes up.

United States is a bully

So it is finally done and I hope that the United States is for the moment satisfied with itself. We've been led to believe that Col. Moammar Khadafy is the evil one and should be blamed for every terrorist act in the world.

Yup, we sure kicked butt on that one. That will teach them terrorist-sympathizers to mess with the U.S.

So who's next? Why don't we launch a full-scale attack on the Sandinistas in Nicaragua and put the Contras in power? What about the Iranians? What about kicking the Jews, the blacks and the Hispanics with the United States.

Before being accused of being a bleeding-heart terrorist sympathizer, look at yourself and ask yourself what you really know of the rest of Libya, or the rest of the world for that matter.

The media here has focused on Khadafy's so-called insanity and his terrorist affiliations. What do you really know of the social systems in Libya?

Launching a sneak attack on a much smaller country is the right way to show that might is right. See how easy it is to sink to the levels of terrorism?

What is called terrorist activities; there is a great victory for the United States here.

The night is right philosophy and the incessant echoing of American pride may be the signs that this society is beginning to take itself too seriously. So, take a step back and look closer at what you really are but please don't expect the rest of the world to bend over backwards to serve you. — Ramesh Loganathan, graduate student, Telecommunications.

Way to go Cathy Sullivan. I am glad you took a stand for heterosexuality. I feel that the time is now for the gays and lesbians to sit down and shut up, and just live their lives like normal human beings. Gays are not special and should not be given special treatment. Many people came to SIU because this is a school known for its freedom. Gays like other groups on this campus need to just live their lives and stay far away from the rest of us.

A few gripes about the library

It is that time of year again, folks. You know, term paper time. Well, again I have gone to the library to search for more enlightening material to write another term paper for a class which I need to graduate.

No offense, staffers at the library, we know you are overworked and underpaid just like the rest of us poor (financially poor) students. I am not going to pick on you today.

Instead, I am going to pick on the people who attempt to operate what many say is the center of this university's learning system, and the idiots who are making money hand over fist with the copier maintenance contract at the library.

Let me address the latter first because it relates to the problems which plague the library and cause headaches for administrators. I wonder if people at Vending Services ever go into the library and try to copy a magazine at a copier which takes your dime and returns you a sheet of white paper with nothing on it, a little bit on it, a big black mess covering the entire page or a combination of all three. On more than one occasion this has happened to me, and most likely has happened to almost every other student as well.

This is not isolated to one machine either; it is every damn machine in the library.

Now there are two solutions to this problem. One is to fix all the machines correctly, or second, dispose of them and start over again. It's no wonder the library is missing pages from many magazines and books. We knowledge-seeking students are forced to transcribe the originals and then take them instead of making copies because most of the copy machines are broken, malfunctioning, out of paper or toner, or all of the above, all the time.

I honestly don't think the machines were ever maintained properly from the beginning, and are now being neglected. Each time a machine eats a dime, a student gets frustrated and could possibly give the copier a right cross. Each time a student hits a machine, it will break more often or cause greater problems. If you fix them and maintain the copiers correctly at the outset, students' blood pressures would remain low, the library would keep its pages in the books (where they belong), and we would all live happily ever after. Fix the copiers!

Now for the second item. Student workers are not to blame for books not being in their places when you need them most. Recently, I visited the Undergraduate Library. There were in the magazine area five book carts overflowing with magazines waiting to be reshelfed. I asked the only student worker on the floor reshelfing when the magazines would be reshelfed. She replied, "The books would not be returned to the shelves until the middle of tomorrow."

It is no wonder students can't find any materials for their papers or research. And with the end of the semester approaching, about half this campus will be doing research for papers and not returning books to the shelves, just like the library asks on the posters at the end of each shelf.

During the heaviest use period, additional workers should be brought in to keep the shelves properly stocked and arranged. Next fiscal year, take this into consideration. You would not need to keep long hours during the year if books were reshelfed so students don't spend half their valuable time searching them when they're not in their rightful places. — Michael G. McCarthy, senior, Radio-Television.

Springfest will be called 'Heterosexual Day'

LaRouche fame believes that gays should be rounded up and put in one scenic location, like a deserted island. I feel that those of us who are heterosexual should rally and form our own group. I find it rather odd that there is not a heterosexual union on this campus. There should be one. The heterosexual union would serve to enhance heterosexual activity at SIU by providing information dealing with birth control and relations between the heterosexuals. It may even provide a chance for heterosexuals to meet.

Someone once said the world would be a much better place to live in if there were more heterosexuals making love. A member of the U.S. Army once told me that gays, from a military standpoint, help to promote a weak nation. He also suggested that homosexuality breeds communism. It should also be noted that homosexuals are well represented in all areas of work, including Congress. The time is now for the heterosexuals to have their day to bask in the sun. I am proclaiming next Friday and Saturday as heterosexual days!

So guys, grab your favorite gal or gals, and gals grab your favorite guy or guys and celebrate the heterosexual revolution while celebrating next week's Springfest the way it should be celebrated, partying and enjoying the company of your favorite heterosexual. Someone might also want to start a heterosexual society, because if the gays can be a RSO so can the heterosexuals. — Mark Czmyrd, junior, Political Science, and six others.

Letters

Will the U.S. fight Nicaragua?

It now appears that the Contras will get their military aid and for some reason this whole Nicaraguan crisis seems to be developing into a war far worse than many realize. And this prophecy of mine brings with it many thoughts to mind.

First of all, anyone with reasonable intelligence knows that the $100 million will not be enough for the Contras to defeat the Sandinistas, and Reagan is a very intelligent man. Secondly, a communist government isn't going to sit down and negotiate with a handful of guerrillas who are talking about overthrowing its power. So with these two thoughts in mind, it is relatively easy to see that the Nicaraguan crisis has much potential to develop into a World War III.

We have this president (the commander-in-chief) who says we must protect freedom and peace in Central America by use of force. And then we have the Sandinistas saying that they are doing the same thing. One might ask, who are the good guys?

It was said, "Our mistake has been seeing communism as the cause of injustices rather than the result of injustices." I know, for a fact, that those who say they're advancing democracy and stopping communism are mostly concerned with advancing the economic interest of a few imperialist capitalists. Yes, I'm saying that both countries are equally advancing communism. But Reagan will call the advancement of communism an advancement in democracy as if America is full of democracy.

Reagan knows where we're headed, so he considers sending advisers to train Nicaraguan guerrillas along with the $100 million. I'm not an economist on war, but I predict that figure will reach over $300 million before Reagan addresses the nation in the twinkling of an eye and says that "the money and advisers weren't enough. What we need over in Nicaragua are well-trained American troops so we can end communism and advance peace." We will then officially be in a war.

America has already sought after South Africa, Libya, and Russia. I can remember reading about how Hitler tried to conquer the world. Some would argue that we have been the international police since World War II. Our government has, indeed, helped maintain order and law throughout the world. We've helped maintain order and law in South Africa quite well. This order that we've maintained for so long is one which has morally justified the military to use force for peace but has morally condemned the oppressed to use force to obtain peace and justice.

Maybe peace and order to the imperialist capitalist means knowing that he has power over everyone else. Western European government has a long history of advancing peace through force or power and this is why we're headed toward a bloody war. — Larvester Gaither, sophomore, Public Relations.

America exploited by whites

I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the White republic, for which it stands, one nation, under God (?), with exploitation and oppression for all people of color.

It all started about 300 years ago with the slave trade. Africans were stripped from their homeland by white settlers of America, the "New World." The slave trade went on for about 150 years. What halted it was the Emancipation Proclamation by President Abraham Lincoln, freeing slaves. He didn't free them out of the goodness of his heart, mind you, he did it because he wanted to win the Civil War. While all of this was going on, an awesome display of greed and jealousy was taking place — the attempted and successful conquest of the "American Indian."

In case you didn't know, the title should be the Original American instead of American Indian, since they were here long before Columbus "discovered" America. Well, it seems the white man figured it was his right to "tame" or even better, eliminate these red-skinned savages. What gave him this right? The answer has yet to be discovered. Maybe it lies in the title "Manifest Destiny." That's the title your ancestors gave to the Westward expansion, white folks. They felt that it was their divine right to conquer whatever land they found out west, despite the fact that the land was already claimed.

They conquered all right, but by doing so, the Original Americans were booted off their land and put on reservations. Oh, how thoughtful of the white man. He kills, mauls, and rapes Original Americans, takes their territory, then shows that there are no hard feelings by limiting Original American's dwelling places to white man's government-issued reservations.

Is that justice? Is that what this country stands for, exploitation and oppression? Is that the policy the Founding Fathers had when they wrote in the Constitution: "...All men are created equal..."?

In the past, though, the actions of the white man make me wonder if it should read: "All white men are created equal and people of color are of much lower breed, therefore, they must be disregarded." I'll remind you of this white man, it weren't for people of color, this so-called "Great Nation" wouldn't be where it is today.

Sure, America is the home of the free and the brave but the majority of the free and the brave are hypocrites who have somehow forgotten the real meaning of the principles that this country is based on — Montrose R. Hughes, sophomore, Marketing.

Health service director misled on premiums

Evidently Sam McVay, the director of health services, has been "lowballed" by an insurance company. Many times an insurance company quotes a low initial premium to secure a contract while counting on a large premium increase at renewal. One other possibility is that the insurance company was not aware of the many potential claims of SIU students.

Last year Mr. McVay said that about 200 of the approximately 300 pregnant students sought abortions.

How long would the insurance company pay out $60,000 in abortion claims in exchange for $40,000 in premiums? How long would they pay out $220,000 in pregnancy benefits in exchange for $80,000 of increased student fees? How long would they forgo their profit and administration expenses? What would happen when claims increased because coeds no longer had to pay for their own care?

Again, if anyone doubts the $2 or $4 fee was misleading, ask a local insurance agent.

After 15 years as a licensed insurance agent I am confident what the result will be.

I do not oppose pregnancy coverage. I do oppose referendums based on misleading figures that deprive students of an informed choice. If Mr. McVay was a victim of a lowballing insurance company, I apologize to him and advise him to obtain assistance from the many local insurance professionals. — Ronald L. Isaacs, law student.

Jeans day showed judgemental attitudes

Cathy Sullivan (DE, April 15), you are too close to the woods to see the trees. The point of Blue Jean Day was to make the public more sensitive and more aware of the daily choice homosexuals are forced to make: whether to be themselves and be comfortable or to hide behind a starchy mask.

Most everyone aware of the fact that Friday was Blue Jean Day had to make a conscious decision much like this concerning what "face" to show to society: To wear blue jeans and be comfortable, yet to be conscious of the fact that because people see you in jeans they may pass judgement upon you, or to alter your wardrobe and wear slacks or shorts or whatever in order to avoid strange looks, while at the same time making you hyper-aware that you are succumbing to society.

In her letter, Sullivan wrote: "I find it difficult to believe that anyone would let this group of people intimidate them into not wearing jeans." Well, Cathy, every second of every day homosexuals are intimidated by society into altering their behavior to avoid harassment.

Blue Jean Day was an attempt to bring this idea home to everyone. — Thea Rubin, freshman, English.

House GOPs deny Contra aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House Republicans, condemning tactics by the Democratic majority as a "damn charade," voted Wednesday against aid to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua in a surprise maneuver to strip the aid from a spending bill and buy time for President Reagan.

House GOP Robert Michel of Illinois sprang the upset on Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., in an effort to bring up the $100 million aid request independent of the $1.7 billion appropriation bill that Reagan has threatened to veto. The Republicans' vote would deny all aid, at least for now.

"I think the president deserves better treatment than we are giving him today by this damn charade," Michel said to cheering Republicans and hooting Democrats.

"This procedure under which we are forced to debate is a variation of the old con game — heads I win, tails you lose. "When you have a rotten rule to play by, we're forced to be somewhat unconventional in our approach to the process," Michel said. He said his tactic was "the only way to not be a party to a procedure that debases the legislative process."

That process was the package approved by the Democratic majority Rules Committee last week. It coupled the Contra aid request to a catch-all spending bill that Reagan said was "so brimming with waste and excess that aid to the freedom fighters may never see the light of day."

Republicans said Democrats were trying to blackmail Reagan by forcing him to accept a spending bill containing many programs he opposes in exchange for sending military and other aid to the Contras.

House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas rejected the idea.

"Only when the president decided that he wanted to demagogue against the supplemental appropriations bill did they start their anguished cries about railroad barrels of pork and all that stuff, which they don't really believe," Wright said.

Michel acted when the House voted on a proposal by Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-Ind., to deny any aid at all to the Contras — a proposal backed by O'Neill but which he had expected to lose.

Top math teams in high school to vie at Math Day

Several hundred Southern Illinois high school students will participate in the 30th annual Mathematics Field Day at the Arena Saturday.

The students will take a standardized math test from 10 a.m. to noon. Results and awards will be presented at 2:15 p.m.

Individual awards in each high school grade level and trophies for team winners in three divisions, based on the schools' enrollments, will be given. Returning with bragging rights from last year's competition are Belleville East, Sparta and Gibault High School of Waterloo.

While the students are laboring over their equations, teachers will meet informally and discuss current issues in math with SIU-C faculty members.

The event honors top young mathematicians and school mathematics programs in Southern Illinois.

ROTC's image is improving, major says

By Ken Seeber
Staff Writer

The negative image that was attached to the U.S. military by many people after the Vietnam war is wearing off and recruitment in the Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps is up.

Since going to an all-volunteer force in 1973 after the Vietnam war, the U.S. armed services have been using plenty of dollars and polish to put a shine back on its image and make its ranks more desirable for enlistees and hard-nosed officers alike.

After a setback in the late 1970s — an exodus by mid-rank personnel fed up with dead-end military jobs and their comparatively low pay — the services believe they are back on course. Pay is up and so are re-enlistment rates.

"There was a negative image of ROTC 10 or 12 years ago on college campuses because of the bad taste of Vietnam," said Maj. Floyd Miller, marketing officer with SIU-C's Army ROTC. "But that has turned around. There's a better attitude now."

Miller said that when students enroll with the ROTC program as freshmen, they have no commitment for the first two years. Students take classes for one or two credit hours that are designed to familiarize them with the ROTC.

Students can also take voluntary adventure training to learn what the service is about, Miller said.

Students contract into the program their junior year. They receive scholarships that pay tuition, as well as $100 per month for subsistence and $180 per semester for book allowance. Students graduate as second lieutenants.

After graduating, students take a three-month officer basic course to learn more about the military. They are then committed to the service for eight years, serving six years on active duty and two years on inactive duty or they may serve all eight years in the National Guard or Reserve.

Capt. Michael Gough, public affairs officer at SIU-C, says the greatest advantage students have in being in the ROTC is the leadership and managerial skills they learn.

"The advantages, especially for people who are in social sciences that want to enhance their employment opportunities, are the leadership skills they get that can provide extra opportunities in leadership roles," Gough said.

Advertising team slated to compete in national meet

A five-member presentation team of SIU-C's chapter of the American Advertising Federation will compete for $3,000 in prize money and a chance of go to a national contest when it competes in the 6th District AAF competition Thursday.

SIU-C and nine teams from Illinois, Michigan and Indiana will take their ad campaigns for Levi Strauss' Blue Shadow line of women's jeans to the contest at the Westin Hotel in Chicago.

The winning team will receive $3,000 and an expense-paid trip — provided by the Chicago Advertising Club — to the national contest set for June in Chicago.

The local AAF chapter finished second in the nation in 1984 after winning the district title.

Faculty adviser William A. Nevious said Michigan State University — 1985 district champ — and SIU-C should be the top contenders in the district event.

Fifty-page plan books describing SIU-C's campaign have been sent to Chicago for preview by each of the five district judges.

Graduate student Karin Williams, who helps Nevious advise the group, said the campaign strategy is completed. Nevious credited previous chapter president Scott P. Pitoli and chapter vice president Patrick J. Morrison for directing the ad campaign.

additional radiation would result, he said.

Multiple pulses of thermal radiation would cause instant blindness and lethal radiation burns to some immediate victims, Bender said, adding that large firestorms capable of melting bricks would probably result from the intense heat.

Some victims of bomb blasts in Japan at the end of World War II were "seared in place" by radiation, said Bender, reading the testimony of one victim.

After the initial explosion, a high-pressure blast would result, he said.

A blast from a ten-megaton explosion—a bomb equivalent to ten million tons of TNT—would instantly kill all persons within about six miles of the center of the explosion. The blast would also splinter glass from windows into thousands of tiny slivers capable of traveling at extremely high speeds, he said.

The "most feared effect" of a nuclear explosion, Bender said, is radiation. Radiation exposure is measured in "grays" of radiation, he said, noting that exposures between one and five grays can cause nausea and headaches and affect the body's ability to produce blood. Exposures above five grays will cause death.

"What happens in your body simply stops producing blood cells," said Bender. "What is happening, in effect, is your blood is turning into water."

Death from radiation sickness is a slow process and may take more than two months, he said. Following radiation exposure of five grays or more, cells in the gastrointestinal tract stop dividing, the gastrointestinal system begins to digest itself. Death due to such complications is the eventual result.

"Within a few hours you are digesting your way from your inside out," Bender said.

Another possible effect of a nuclear explosion, Bender said, is nuclear winter.

This condition, the result of smoke from explosions and fires entering the earth's atmosphere, could reduce the intensity of light hitting the earth's surface by 85 percent for at least one month, he said, thus dramatically lowering the earth's temperature.

The effect of such a condition in the Midwest region of the Northern Hemisphere could reduce summer temperatures by 30 degrees, Bender said.

The increasing range and effectiveness of nuclear weapons since World War II presents a "serious" problem, said Bender.

Increases in the world's nuclear arsenal now place the U.S. and Soviet nuclear arsenals at 9,300 and 7,700 warheads respectively, he said, noting that the world's nuclear destructive capability now stands at 13,000 megatons or the equivalent of 1,000 Hiroshima bombs.

voting member of GPSC or a designated proxy of the member. Second, the person must have attended at least one of three GPSC meetings immediately preceding the election or be an appointed proxy of a GPSC member who has attended one of the three meetings. Finally, the person must present a currently validated student I.D.

Antonacci said he was not told that the new members would not be included on the list of eligible voters, or that they would need to receive proxies from former Law School members to be eligible. Because they were new members, Antonacci said they were unaware of the election bylaws.

The representatives argue that because the election meeting was the first they received notice of, and that because they were not informed that they would need to vote as proxies for one of the former Law School representatives, they should not have been ineligible.

To be a proxy for an eligible voter in the election, a letter of consent signed by the voter must be received. Antonacci said outgoing council members would not think they were expected to provide a proxy because they would assume the new members would be eligible to vote.

The law students were declared ineligible to vote, said Mary Brown, president of GPSC, because they had not attended one of the three required meetings.

It was a problem of timing, she said, that the dean's membership confirmation and the elections occurred so close together. Brown said that those four persons might have been eligible if they had been appointed proxies for departing Law School members.

For this requirement to be met, the four departing members would have had to have attended one of the three required meetings. According to attendance records, only one of the four departing Law School representatives had attended one of the meetings.

Any challenges to the election must be presented in writing within seven days following the election. Tom Marcinkowski, GPSC election commissioner, said that everything surrounding the filing of the challenge was in order.

Du Quoin fair contracts will be conference focus

State plans to rejuvenate the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds will require contracting some jobs to local businesses.

A "matchmaker" conference will take place from 7 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Student Center to instruct minority- and female-owned businesses in landing such contracts.

Topics on the agenda include bid preparations, contract awards, license requirements and certification.

In 1984 the state enacted the Minority and Female Business Enterprise Act to encourage such businesses to participate in state contracts. A state goal for agencies under the governor is that 10 percent of

Auditions slated for workshop's summer roles

The Theater Department will hold a second round of auditions for its summer Playwright's Workshop at 7 p.m. Thursday in the Communications Building Lounge.

There are roles for 20 males and 12 females in the workshop.

The playbill for the workshop consists of four original plays written by SIU-C playwrights. The plays are "Hazardous Waste" by Grand R. Walker, "Pontalba" by Kenton Kersting, "The Prince" by Gary Graves and "St. Nick?" by Michael J. Herzoni.

All those interested in auditioning are encouraged to do so. Experience is not necessary.

Secretary's role to be discussed at seminar, lunch

The Southern Lakes Chapter of Professional Secretaries International will sponsor a seminar titled "Expanding Our World" from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. April 24 at the Student Center Auditorium.

The seminar is in conjunction with Professional Secretaries Week, April 20 to 26.

Topics of discussion will include the changing role of the professional secretary, influencing managers to effectively delegate added responsibility to secretaries and making impressions on others.

The speaker will be Ruth Gallinot of Gallinot and Associates, a Chicago-based consultant group specializing in human resource development.

A registration fee of $25 includes lunch in the Student Center and style show presented by The White House in Murphysboro. Music will be provided by Judy Hopkins.

The registration deadline is April 21. To register, call Kathryn Adams at 457-8264 or 457-2282.

all those agencies' services and products be purchased from minority and female businesses.

State purchases routinely cover items ranging from file folders to janitorial services, says Irene J. Carlton, director of the Small Business Development Center at SIU-C.

There is no charge for admission to the conference but preregistration is encouraged. To register, call the Small Business Development Center at 536-2424.

1,400 registered to participate in language bowl

A Foreign Language Scholar Bowl competition is expected to draw close to a record number of high school students Tuesday for the University's annual Foreign Language Day.

More than 1,400 students have already registered for the day-long event and David A. Bedford, one of the Foreign Language Day coordinators, said more are expected.

The Foreign Language Scholar Bowl, in its second year, starts at 10:10 a.m. in the Student Center ballrooms with final rounds to take place at 11:50 a.m. Forty-six high school teams will field questions on such topics as language, grammar and foreign cultures.

A fair in the Student Center Gallery Lounge will feature video presentations, travel opportunity displays, a foreign book sale, music of foreign cultures and recruitment information.

Members of the foreign languages faculty will give presentations on themes ranging from ancient Greece to French gestures. The presentations are scheduled from 10:30 a.m. to noon in the Student Center river rooms.

Violence erupts as protestors denounce attack

By Mona Megall
United Press International

Growing anger over the U.S. attack on Libya sparked worldwide protests Wednesday that erupted into violence as demonstrators burned American flags and effigies of President Reagan in Pakistan and attacked U.S. facilities in several capitals.

In London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who stood before Parliament to defend her decision to allow British-based U.S. warplanes to be used in the attack, faced widespread opposition at home.

The list of nations condemning the United States for bombing the North African nation grew longer, but offered few new surprises as America's traditional enemies and Third World nations added their voices to swell the outcry against Washington.

Malaysia, Surinam, Vietnam, Uganda, Sudan, Ethiopia and Tanzania issued statements of condemnation.

The Philippine government of President Corason Aquino said only it could not endorse the U.S. strike.

Violent protests and threats against U.S. citizens — including an assassination attempt Tuesday against an American Embassy employee in Sudan — forced authorities in several capitals to tighten security against possible reprisals.

Pakistani protesters burned Reagan in effigy and set fire to American flags in front of the U.S. consulate in Lahore, about 150 miles southeast of Islamabad. Some demonstrators threw rocks at the building, but no injuries were reported.

The angry crowd then heavily damaged the American Express travel agency, shattering its windows and doors and breaking furniture inside. Police arrested four students after the attack.

INDIVIDUAL CONTRACTS AVAILABLE IN SOME INSTANCES. SUMMER SUBLEASES AVAILABLE. MUST RENT SUMMER TO OBTAIN FALL.

Even if you're not going to be here for summer, it would be cheaper in the long run to rent the house and let it go empty. Having a summer house saves you the expense of:
 1. Furniture storage
 2. The expense of coming back to look for a place to travel to and from the city and last minute timing time off from work.
 3. Lost work from coming back a week early to get your house set up. (If you have a summer house, you can stay up north & work until the last day of your summer break.)
 4. Add Travel, Storage and lost work time and it more than equals your share of total rental.

Over 400 expected to participate in cleanup event, chairman says

By Brett Yates
Staff Writer

Gary Heflin, chairman of Carbondale Cleanup '86, says he is expecting in "the neighborhood of 400 to 500 people" this year to participate in the project Saturday.

Heflin said fraternities, sororities, Registered Student Organizations and community groups are expected to participate in the project. He said that the Undergraduate Student Organization is sponsoring the event, with several other RSOs.

Heflin said that Carbondale Cleanup is an opportunity for students to do something for the community. "This is our way of showing we care about the community," he said.

"This is our way of thanking the community for allowing us to live here."

Registration will be from 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. Saturday at Turley Park. No late registration will be allowed. Trash will be brought to Crispus Attucks Park to be weighed. Transportation will be provided for participants.

People interested in participating in the cleanup may be picked up at about 8:45 a.m. Saturday at Grinnell Hall, the Erma Hayes Center, the Delta Chi House, Carbondale East High School and the National supermarket parking lot.

The cleanup will begin at 9 a.m. and last until 1 p.m.

Following the clean-up will be ceremony at Turley Park from 1 p.m. to 2 p.m. conducted by Carbondale Mayor Helen Westberg, who will present the Undergraduate Student Organization with a certificate on behalf of Carbondale Cleanup.

Heflin said organizations and individuals who collect the most trash will be awarded prizes.

Prizes will be given in six different categories: Greek organizations, Registered Student Organizations, community organizations, individuals age 11 and younger, individuals 12 to 16 years old, and individuals from 17 years old.

Call it a trailer. Call it a mobile home. We call it "affordable accommodation."

How affordable is it? Like $50 a month*

It's all how you look at it. Some students wouldn't be caught dead in a mobile home/trailer. Others wouldn't be able to get by without it.

Let's face it. Unless you're living in a geodesic dome, your "home away from home" has four walls. Within those four basic walls are 1 or more baths, and none or more roommates.

At Carbondale Mobile Homes, you have access to that, and then some. Like a year-round indoor heated pool open to tenants only. A convenient nearby laundromat and post-office. Even free roundtrip transportation to SIU on school days. Oh yes, there's free water, free lawn care too! Look, if you're driving a 'vette and living off dad's credit cards, we're probably not your kind of place. But if you count pennies between meals and still want luxuries unheard of on a tight budget, give us a call!

America's homeless and hungry to be helped by 'hand chain'

By Brett Yates
Staff Writer

Forming a chain of six million people stretching 4,350 miles across the United States may seem like an impossible task to some but the members of the SIU-C steering committee for Hands Across America believe it can be done.

USA for Africa organized Hands Across America and is hoping to enlist six million people to participate in the human chain. Organizers are hoping to raise between $50 million to $100 million to be distributed to hungry and homeless people in America.

Eric Quek, graduate student in business administration, thought of organizing a local Hands Across America effort and is responsible for the participation of the Association of South East Asian Nations, a student group on campus.

"I am going home in four months," Quek said. "I want to show my gratitude to the American system for the education I have received."

Other student organizations such as the Undergraduate Student Organization, Black Affairs Council, Mid-America Peace Project and the People Living the Dream are also involved in the effort, says Jean Emiling, a member of the SIU-C steering committee.

Emiling said the groups are hoping that 42,000 participants will fill the link in the chain between Cape Girardeau and Cairo. She said that participants will line up Route 5, and that they are hoping $420,000 will be raised locally.

"We are not trying to get 40,000 people ourselves," Emiling said. "We are just trying to get as many people as possible."

Emiling said she is optimistic that enough people will participate. "Maybe when people see the people lined up in front of their doorsteps, they will join in the effort."

Emiling said the groups are primarily working as a research committee and are trying to enlist other groups organizations to help with the project. She said Southeast Missouri University is also working on the project.

Tom French, the Southern Illinois and Southeast Missouri regional field representative for Hands Across America, said the local response to the project has been encouraging. He said that next week they will be going to communities in the area to try to enlist their help.

On Friday from 10 p.m. to 1 a.m. the ASEAN students for Hands Across America will hold a charity dance at the Student Center Big Muddy Room to raise money for the effort. The cost of the dance is $3 a person. Tickets will be available at the door.

Those interested in participating in the local Hands Across America effort may call the USO Office at 536-3281 or the Hands Across America's regional office at Cape Girardeau at 314-335-3400.

The first of the Illinois State Geological Survey spring geological science field trips will be held in the Carbondale area Saturday.

The trip is open to the public at no charge and will be held rain or shine.

Participants must provide their own transportation and sign an indemnity waiver as part of the registration. They should bring a sack lunch.

Those interested should meet before 8:15 a.m. along the south side of Carbondale Community High School, 200 N. Springer.

Peach crop good despite weather

BELLEVILLE (UPI) — Some Southern Illinois peach growers say the prospects for a full crop this year still look good despite cold snaps before Easter and this week.

Lary Eckert, president of Eckerts, Inc., at Belleville, said the temperature only dropped to 38 degrees Tuesday night in the Belleville area.

He said most growers he's talked to expect a full peach crop this year if there's no late freeze. They hope to make up for some lean years caused by the cold.

"We don't know how to act," said Eckert. "We've even started to do some thinning of buds on peach trees."

Last year's Illinois commercial peach crop was wiped out by cold weather. "We had a 60 percent crop in 1984, 40 to 50 percent in 1983 and we were wiped out in 1982," Eckert said.

In Cobden, Larry Flamm of Flamm Orchards said the dip in temperatures Tuesday night in the Cobden area did not worry growers.

Shoplifting is no joke, retailers say

By John Tindz
Staff Writer

Shoplifters cost Illinois retailers $850 million in merchandise per year, according to an attorney for the Illinois Retail Merchants Association.

B. Tucker Olson, speaking at a seminar on retail security in the Student Center Auditorium Wednesday, said that each year Illinois merchants lose the equivalent of $400 per family in Illinois.

"It's like a TV set for every family in Illinois," he said.

Olson said that a survey conducted among Chicago area retailers showed an average value of recovered shoplifted items to be $150, which "coincidentally" is the maximum limit for misdemeanor retail theft. A theft over $150 would constitute a felony charge, which carries a stiffer penalty. In suburban Cook County, the average recovered shoplifted item was $250, he said.

In a survey of 750 stores in Illinois, 50,000 apprehensions for shoplifting in 1984 were recorded, 23,000 in one retail chain alone, he said.

Olson said the crime of shoplifting is not taken seriously enough by the courts, the offenders or lawmakers.

"Shoplifting's a joke" is the pervasive attitude in the Illinois Legislature," he said.

Although only about 6 percent of shoplifters are apprehended, Olson said that about 90 percent of the cases prosecuted end in convictions. He cited recent legislation making it possible for retailers to prosecute offenders in civil court as well as criminal court as a potential deterrent for shoplifting.

Retailers can bring suit for $100 to $1,000 in civil cases to recover losses, and the losses are not limited to the value of the item shoplifted. These costs are in addition to criminal court fines and costs. Previously, the fines paid by the offender went to the court system, he said. Hopefully the cost incurred by offenders will cut down on shoplifting attempts, he said.

Olson said retailers profits are only about 3.2 cents per dollar spent, which means that stores must dramatically increase their prices to consumers to cover their shoplifting losses. People don't think it's any of their business when they see people shoplifting, he said, but it's the consumer who ends up paying for the stolen merchandise.

Also speaking at the seminar was John Velke, director of security for Lord and Taylor retail stores.

Velke stressed that retail security "is not just catching shoplifters."

"Retail security means protecting the profitability of the company," he said. Minimizing the company's exposure to civil liability becomes important in protecting the profitability of the company, he said.

The seminar was one of many being held on the last day of the College of Human Resources' annual conference. In addition, this year marks the 25th anniversary of the Crime Studies Center. About 60 people participated in 23 sessions during Wednesday's Administration of Justice Day.

Topics of the day ranged from the privatization of prisons to international criminology and was topped off with a reception and a banquet for alumni in celebration of the anniversary.

Midnight hour

As the midnight hour looms over procrastinating tax filers, Sean Kirby, junior in international marketing, asks Carbondale Postmaster Hubert Goforth if his forms are in order. Goforth worked the tax bins in the outer lobby of the main post office until after the midnight deadline for tax forms. The IRS reported it received 66.9 million forms and processed 51.6 million forms, or 77 percent, by April 11.

Mo should look at sports and forget about terrorism

INSTEAD OF backing international terrorists to focus attention on their rabid political views, maybe the Libyans and their leader, Col. Moammar Khadafi, need to sit down and think about the future of their nation.

For a nation that has practically no athletic events, maybe baseball would be a good idea. Libya is a recently urbanized nation in arid and semi-arid regions, which left little time for the rapidly-expanding Libyans to think about or develop a system of athletic entertainment.

Maybe this lack of good, clean sport is leading to pent-up frustration for Mo and his followers. Other than a little soccer and wrestling, the Libyans have nothing. Their national pastime is hating Americans and studying explosives. They need a national sport of some kind in the worst way.

WHAT THE Libyans need is a good, mean football team. Recruit guys from all over the nation, build an incredibly modern training facility and put some of those oil dollars to good use. Hire away the best American coach with a lucrative contract, build a team and come to America and play with the best the National Football League has to offer.

Think what an accomplishment that would be for the Libyans. Instead of having to finance world-wide terrorism, Mo could brag about beating the Americans at their own game. Instead of blowing up innocent women and children, Moammar could save a few lives by beating up on an American fullback, or by roughing the quarterback or bruising an offensive lineman.

OR MAYBE the Libyans need a baseball team. Their environment is more suited towards baseball anyway and the thin desert air would be great for high-scoring, offensive baseball.

And to make practical use of the stadium they'd have to build for either football or basket ball. Moammar could hold prayer services there before big games. Think how unifying that would be for a stadium full of Libyans. Think how gratifying it'd be for them to beat us afterwards.

If he managed to muster a decent team, the positive publicity and good public image created by a national sports team would far surpass anything Mo could hope to create with terrorism. He could tour his team in America, beat the pants off our all-stars, and then gloat internationally over his victory over the Americans.

Mo could name his team the 'Yankee Busters' or the 'Mad Dogs,' and the Libyan fans could cry "That imperialistic dog was out by a mile!" when an American slid safely into home plate.

OR MAYBE the Libyans need a professional wrestling league, like we do, that one can tune in at practically any time of the day on Saturday or Sunday. They could establish the league, establish their favorite big name wrestling stars then import a few Americans to wrestle their heros. Kind of like the Russians and the guy from Iran in the World Wrestling Federation. People would turn out in droves to boo the American wrestlers.

The American wrestler - clad in red, white and blue, of course - could carry in an American flag and sing the national anthem and in

NFL settlement offer rejected by USFL owners

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (UPI) — The eight surviving franchises of the United States Football League voted unanimously Wednesday to reject any settlement offers in its $1.32 billion antitrust suit against its rival National Football League.

"We are very bullish, very bullish indeed, to get this trial going," said USFL Commissioner Harry Usher, following an all-day closed meeting of league owners near Orlando, Fla., home of the Orlando Renegades.

Usher refused to comment when asked if the league's vote implied a settlement offer had been made by the NFL.

In its lawsuit, set to go to trial May 12 in U.S. District Court in Manhattan, the USFL charges the NFL has impeded the 4-year-old league by unfairly cornering the market on players, coaches, stadiums and especially network television.

The USFL has signed a contract with cable network ESPN to broadcast 18 weeks of Sunday evening games beginning Sept. 14, Usher said. And the USFL's Thursday night games will be broadcast on syndicated TV, as the USFL goes head-to-head with the NFL's fall schedule for the first time.

with 300 meters remaining in the race but Keyworth overtook Pettigrew down the stretch to help the Wildcats pull out the victory.

"I chose to pass Keyworth with 300 meters left because I knew he had a good kick and I wanted to take it out of him early," Pettigrew said. "He has a lot more speed than I do and I tried to hold him off in the last 100 but I just couldn't do it."

EVEN THOUGH the Salukis didn't win the race, Pettigrew said he was happy that the team broke the school record.

"It felt real good once we broke it because the previous record was a quality time," Pettigrew said. "Especially since it was Coach Cornell who helped set the old record."

Pettigrew said he hopes to break Cornell's school record of 3:42.74 in the 1,500-meter run this weekend at the Arkansas Invitational.

Garrett, who ran the third leg, says he was surprised with his split time of 1:48.89 in the 800.

"I DIDN'T expect to run a 1:48.89, but coach told me I could do it and kept reassuring me," Garrett said. "Coach told us that we had the potential to break the school record and I thought in the back of my mind general, make the Libyans just madder than hell. Then the Libyan wrestlers could walk in to the tune of some spirited nationalistic music and pound the Americans into submission.

NO MATTER if it were baseball, football or wrestling, all the Libyans would leave the stadiums satisfied with the brutality in which the Americans were defeated. They'd all be fairly safe, rational people — at least, for a week, until they could make it back to the next big athletic event.

I encourage Moammar and his staff to seriously consider this proposition. I have tickets for the Cub-Cardinal series in St. Louis on June 7 and 8 and more tickets for the September series. I would be happy to take Mo to a game, buy him a brew and tell him a little about our national pastime. I'd even buy him a Cub hat (even though he'd probably root for the Reds). Maybe there would be a wrestling match in town one of those nights, giving Moammar the chance to see another way to vent his nation's frustrations.

It'd be better than having Tripoli slide into the Mediterranean, wouldn't it Moammar? Think about it.....

that we could do it."

Even though it took 24 years for the Salukis to break the record, Elliott thinks the new standard could fall soon since Mason, Garrett, and Pettigrew are all underclassmen.

"The record had stood for 24 years and the new record we just set might stand for the next 24 years," Elliott said. "But since there are three sophomores on the relay team, it might go in the next couple of years."

SURPRISINGLY, the Salukis will not compete again this season in the distance medley relay because it is run only in relay meets. The Salukis have two invitations and one dual meet remaining on their schedule before the Missouri Valley Conference outdoor championships.

Cornell said if the distance medley relay was an NCAA outdoor championship event, the Salukis would have qualified for nationals with their time Saturday.

Men's tennis team facing Evansville

The Saluki men netters meet the Evansville Aces at 2 p.m. Thursday at the Arena courts for a predictably close meet.

SIU-C, 4-16, beat the Aces, 16-13, last October at Evansville. "It was a real squeaker last fall," said Coach Dick LeFevre. "It was 5-3 when we had to call the last match on darkness."

LeFevre again expects a "squeaker" on Thursday. "It should be a good match. Our play is so erratic that anything can be Evansville coach Eric Rogers thought back to previous meets with SIU-C and said, "Traditionally they beat us. I think we beat them only once in the last 10 years."

Saluki distance relay team second in nation

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

When Bill Cornell teamed with John Saunders, Jim Dupree, and Brian Turner to set a school record of nine minutes and 37.94 seconds in the distance medley relay in 1962, he never thought the record would last for 24 years.

The record was finally shattered Saturday in the Dogwood Relays at Knoxville, Tenn., when senior Mike Elliott and sophomores Connor Mason, Bret Garrett, and Andrew Pettigrew combined for a 9:35.62 effort, which bettered the previous standard by over two seconds.

The Salukis' 9:35.62 effort in the distance medley relay ranks as the second-best collegiate time in the nation. Only Villanova, which defeated SIU-C at the Dogwood Relays, has a better time (9:35.13).

Cornell, the men's track coach at SIU-C, says he is happy that the old school record he helped establish was broken.

"I WOULD LIKE to see all of them go," said Cornell of the two individual school records he still holds and the three remaining relay school records he helped establish.

As a motivating factor, Cornell said he always challenges his athletes to break his existing school records.

"As the track coach, I want to see these records broken," he said. "When we have athletes that can break our existing school records, it means we have the qualities of a good team."

FORMER SALUKI track coach Lew Hartzog, who retired following the 1984 season, says one of the reasons the distance medley relay record stood for so long is because on a given day, one of the runners would have an off-day or the pace was to slow.

"I felt like we should have broke it several times but we never did," Hartzog said.

But fortunately for the Salukis, Villanova set a fast pace and all of the Saluki runners ran solid split times on the relay. Elliott ran a 2:57.60 in the first 1,200 meters; Mason ran a 47.33 over 400 meters; Garrett ran a 1:48.89 over 800 meters; and Pettigrew finished the last 1,600 meters by running a 4:01.80.

ELLIOTT, Mason, and Garrett each maintained a second-place lead among the 33-team field for Pettigrew, the anchor man.

Salukis travel to Edwardsville; keeping win streak alive is goal

By Ron Warnick
Staff Writer

The baseball Salukis seek to extend their seven-game winning streak with their second bout against the SIU-Edwardsville Cougars at Edwardsville Thursday at 3 p.m.

Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones will send out rookie pitcher Tim Hollmann, Southern Illinois' 1985 "Player of the Year," to the mound for his first start of the year.

Hollmann had thrown early in the season, but has pitched well enough lately to earn a starting spot. He has thrown four innings with no decisions, allowed seven hits and five walks with one strikeout for a 13.50 earned run average.

With the Salukis playing their ninth game in six days, Jones doesn't hardly have anyone else to turn to.

"We're a little down on our pitching because we have to save it for this weekend against Wichita State," Jones explained.

The Cougars will probably start Chuck Flearke, who is 3-0 with a 6.75 ERA, and save their outstanding rotation of Tony Duenas, Pete Dukus and John Groennert for more important games. Last Thursday, the Salukis beat their sister school 11-3 at Abe Martin Field, highlighted by Robert Jones' two-run homer and eight stolen bases. However, the Salukis' offensive character may have an entirely different look in Evansville.

Because of Evansville's Roy E. Lee Field, it will be extremely difficult for Robert Jones to repeat last week's performance. The canyon-like park measures 330 feet down the lines, 388 feet in the power alleys and 410 feet in center field.

American golfers on European tour worried about Libya crisis

CANNES, France (UPI) — John Slaughter, a 24-year-old Texan making his debut on the European tour, said Wednesday he might go home if there was a Libyan terrorist backlash to the American bombing raid on the country.

Slaughter, from Abilene is one of 10 Americans playing in the vicinity of the Libyan conflict. The first three events on the $8 million 1986 circuit are in the Mediterranean with the Cannes Open followed by the Madrid and Italian Opens.

"If it gets too bad, I will consider quitting and going home," said Slaughter, who finished fifth at the European Tour school in Spain last November.

"The United States is well away from the trouble, but we are playing on its doorstep. My parents and grandparents must be worried sick."

Peter Teravainen, a more experienced American golfer, is unconcerned.

"I was in the Philippines in the middle of the recent revolution, so this will not worry me," he said.

"I can understand the fears, it is the first time in Europe for some of the American players. But I believe your number is up when it comes and that could be any time or anywhere."

Spain's Seve Ballesteros, who lost the U.S. Masters to Jack Nicklaus at Augusta last Sunday, is the favorite at Cannes. He was two shots in front playing the 15th hole before hitting a 4-iron into the water.

"I still don't know what happened," he said. "I tried to play a soft shot and it went horribly wrong. It was one shot in a thousand. I don't expect that to happen again for a long time."

Ballesteros said there was a miracle over the last four holes "and it happened to Jack." He refused to say whether he was upset by the noise from the gallery accompanying Nicklaus.

But everything went right for me at Augusta. Maybe I will say what happened when I write a book, but not before then."

McKendree swept in 2 as Dogs win 7th straight

By Ron Warnick
Staff Writer

It wasn't pretty, but the Salukis won their sixth and seventh game in a row with a doubleheader sweep of McKendree College at frigid Abe Martin Field Wednesday.

Gerald Pitchford hit a solo homer and scored three runs in Todd Neibel's fifth victory of the season in a surprisingly close 6-4 game. In the second contest, Robert Jones hit his 10th home run of the year to lead the Dogs in a 12-4 romp.

Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones wasn't happy about the team's noticeable listlessness, though it could be partly explained by the Dogs' rat-race schedule of playing eight games in the last five days.

The Salukis' numbness was epitomized in a comedic incident in the second game when Robert Jones, standing near home plate awaiting his time at bat after a Steve Finley RBI single, absent-mindedly blocked an overthrow to the catcher with his hand to keep another run from scoring. Jones suddenly realized what he was doing and backed away from the ball like it was radioactive.

Their lack of intensity was also displayed by several poorly executed defensive plays in the two games.

"They're going through the motions, and you can't play that way," Jones said. "They have to put out an effort to win ball games."

One who hasn't been lifeless at the plate is Chuck Locke, who had two RBI with a triple. Since hitting .138 in his first 25 games, Locke has driven in 14 runs with a .500 average, raising his season average to .288.

"I just started swinging, the bat harder," Locke explained.

The Salukis jumped out in front 3-0 in the first inning of the first game with four hits and a throwing error on a pickoff attempt. SIU-C added one run in the third with Locke's long RBI triple in the right field gap and tallied another with Pitchford's solo homer — his third in as many games — in the fourth.

McKendree scared the Salukis with a five-hit, four-run rally in the fifth inning to narrow SIU-C's lead to 5-4. The Salukis added an insurance run in the sixth on Finley's RBI single. Reliever Jay Hammond hung on to finish the game, and Todd Neibel got the win.

In the second game, McKendree nicked the Salukis for two unearned runs in the first inning by Terry Jones' error on a bunt.

The Salukis took back the lead with three runs in the same inning and never looked back. The Dogs scored one run on Finley's second inning RBI triple, scored two in the third with four hits and lambasted Dan Schaller for six runs in the sixth, including Robert Jones' two-run shot.

Pitcher Robb Osborne, who left the second game Tuesday with a sore elbow, will be out of the rotation for about 10 days with tendonitis and won't be making the weekend trip to Wichita State, Jones said.
