IEPA urged to close lab in Carbondale

By David Sheets
Staff Writer

The Illinois Auditor General has advised the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency to close its two-person clean water testing lab in Carbondale.

The advisory was listed in a recent audit report of Illinois' laboratory services.

According to the report, the auditor general's office ruled that "closing the lab would be more efficient in terms of personnel, supplies and administrative expenses," and suggested that the IEPA relocate its equipment and personnel in Champaign.

The report, however, is only advisory and the IEPA has yet to study the feasibility of the closure, said Cinda Schien, an IEPA spokeswoman.

David Oberman, supervisor of the audit, said his office arrived at its conclusion after a statewide study of IEPA's labs last August and September.

An earlier audit of the state's toxicology labs in Chicago "turned up instances of duplicated service" with the IEPA, "so we decided to take a look at the IEPA as well," he said.

Carbondale has "such a small lab and IEPA officials told us their Champaign office could handle the caseload," Oberman said.

Additionally, the report said the IEPA "foresaw no problem in delivering timely service" if the Carbondale lab were closed.

But Rollie Conder, Murphysboro Water and Sewer Department superintendent, said relocating the Carbondale lab "would be unhandy" for communities in the area.

Conder explained that water samples must be tested within 30 hours of their collection. Shipping the samples to Champaign could mean a 30-plus hour delay, which would mean having new samples sent.

"It would probably be a 36 to 48-hour wait" on a single water sample test "before we could cancel a 'boil order' alert" for a community, he said.

What's more, "If you have a boil order," a warning to a community that all of its residents boil their water before consumption, "and you're waiting on the results, and they ask for another

In search of ... a president

Panel reviews credentials of 80 possible SIU-C chiefs

By Carolyn Schmidt
Staff Writer

The presidential search advisory committee evaluated the credentials of about 80 candidates at a meeting at the Ramada Inn in Carbondale Thursday.

The applications and nominations of 122 candidates were narrowed to about 80 after the search firm of Heidrick and Struggles Inc. checked to see which nominees were interested in the position, Lawrence Dennis, search committee chairman said.

Heidrick and Struggles Inc. was to meet with the committee but was unable to fly to Carbondale from Chicago Thursday because of unfavorable weather conditions, Dennis said.

Heidrick and Struggles was to bring files on candidates who had applied or were nominated for SIU-C president within the last week, Dennis said. A meeting will be scheduled with Heidrick and Struggles in about two weeks to look over those files, he said.

Dennis said the firm has not seen who is interested in the position among the 20-25 newer nominees and applicants.

The committee started studying the 80 candidates' dossiers at about 10 a.m. Chancellor Lawrence Pettit joined the meeting at about 3 p.m. and listened to evaluations made by committee members. Pettit has said he hopes to recommend his choice for SIU-C president at the July Board of Trustees meeting.

Dennis said he thought one day was an adequate amount of time to look over the 80 dossiers and share ideas about them.

"We'd have liked longer, but I think it was enough time to accomplish what we had to do, which is only preliminary," Dennis said.

The 19-member committee, which had not previously seen the nominations and applications, was divided into four groups during the evaluation process. Dennis, who received the nominations and applications about a week ago, did not participate in the evaluation groups.

The candidates were categorized in terms of what qualities were appropriate for

No. 1 teacher praises Illinois school system

By Laura Milbrath
Staff Writer

Teachers in Illinois who are faced with money shortages and loss of school programs need to tell parents and community members that "there are tremendous things happening in the schools of Illinois," said Charles Bowen, Illinois Teacher of the Year for 1986-87.

Bowen, a fifth-grade teacher at Jefferson Elementary School in Morton, was visiting SIU-C as a guest of the College of Education for the college's annual Career Day.

BOWEN SPOKE Thursday in the Student Center about his observations of educational programs in Illinois, characteristics of teachers and his unique teaching methods.

As he traveled through Illinois and visited schools, Bowen said he was warned about the mediocrity of the school systems. "I haven't found it," he said.

Instead, he has found "vibrant teachers who are excited about what they are doing," he said.

HE ALSO saw many students "who are interested, who are growing and who are beginning to do high order cognitive things and not just low knowledge level things that I have been told to expect," he said.

Bowen, who has taught in Morton for 13 years, left teaching for one year in 1979-80 because of frustrations with his salary and lack of

GPSC elects new president, vice presidents

By Tracy Bartoni
Staff Writer

Darrell Johnson, doctoral student in philosophy, is the new president of the Graduate and Professional Student Council.

Charlotte Bowens, doctoral student in rehabilitation, was elected vice president of administrative affairs, and Paul Antonacci, graduate student in agriculture, was elected vice president of graduate school affairs in the election Wednesday in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

In other business, Peter Frederick was nominated to run for one of the four graduate council positions. Nominated at the previous meeting were Marilyn Karafia, Joe Phillips and Barbara Jahn.

Council member Eric Landrum said nominations can be made the night of the election, April 29, but those nominated will be write-in candidates. In other business, the GPSC allocated $500 to the African Student Association's "Africa Week," to be held from May 5 to 9. The event, with the theme "Cultural Identity Crisis," will include lectures, films and a dance.

In other business, former president of the Undergraduate Student Organization Phil Lyons, declaring his credentials for student trustee, said he has been at every meeting of the SIU Board of Trustees since April 1982 and is familiar with the issues facing the board.

SIU-C and SIU-E each have a student trustee who serves on the board. Student trustee votes are advisory.

The student trustee election will be held April 28.

Officer accused of torture takes refuge in Army base

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Police surrounded a military base where a rebellious junior officer holed up to avoid prosecution for allegedly torturing prisoners during the "dirty war" against dissent waged by the former military government in the 1970s. President Raul Alfonsin called a crisis meeting of his Cabinet to deal with the rebellion led by army Maj. Ernesto Barreiro, who vowed to ignore a subpoena to appear at a civilian court hearing on the charges.

Pope keeps tradition by washing priests' feet

ROME (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, in keeping with a 14-century-old tradition, washed the feet of 12 priests Thursday at a mass recalling the last supper of Christ and his apostles. The Holy Thursday rite in the Basilica of St. John in Lateran opened the most solemn period of the liturgical year, marking the betrayal, crucifixion and burial of Christ, which precede the joyous Easter Sunday mass of his resurrection.

Hong Kong to remain capitalist for 100 years

BEIJING (UPI) — Hong Kong, the British colony slated to be returned to Chinese control in 1997, will keep its capitalist system "for 100 years" thereafter, twice as long as the treaty guarantees. Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping said Thursday. Under an agreement signed by China and Britain on Dec. 19, 1984, Hong Kong will retain its capitalist economy for 50 years and remain an international financial center after it reverts to Chinese rule on July 1, 1997. But Deng told a meeting of the Hong Kong Basic Law Drafting Committee in the Great Hall of the People, "Hong Kong will remain unchanged for 100 years, so long as the Communist Party is in power."

Gunmen miss Mafia boss; hit, wound his sister

CROTONE, Italy (UPI) — Six gunmen forced their way into a city hospital at gunpoint and tried to kill a rival Mafia boss today but missed their target and severely wounded the gangster's sister. Police identified the intended victim as Bruno Dima, 27, a Calabrian Mafia boss who is in the Crotona hospital recovering from fractures sustained when rival gangsters blew him up with a car bomb April 1. Dima's sister Rosa, 37, was staying in his hospital room to look after him when the gunmen forced their way up to Dima's third floor room around 3 a.m.

Process to determine Marine's fate delayed

QUANTICO, Va. (UPI) — The criminal proceeding to determine whether Sgt. Clayton Lonetree will be court-martialed for espionage recessed Thursday until May 11 because of new evidence submitted by the Navy, the Marine's attorney said. Attorney William Kunstler said he requested the delay because of the volume of new evidence presented by the Naval Investigative Service, and the Marine prosecution team headed by Maj. Frank Short agreed to his request.

Judge says Secord need not release records

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge denied a bid Thursday by Senate investigators to compel retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord to release his foreign bank records. U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson, who earlier called the move to force Secord to sign over his records a "charade," said: "The court shall deny the committee's application as violative of Secord's Fifth Amendment right against compelled self-incrimination." Robinson had acknowledged earlier his ruling likely would be appealed.

Lightning may have caused rocket to crash

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — An Atlas-Centaur rocket destroyed after launch in a rainstorm last month was hit by up to nine lightning bolts, and instrument readings before liftoff showed a high potential for electrical activity, NASA revealed Thursday. In a major breakthrough, the rocket's electronic brain, sealed and intact, was pulled from the ocean later in the day.

Weinberger suspicious of Soviet's 'glasnost'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger warned Thursday the Soviets may be using their "glasnost" or openness campaign as a cover for their worldwide espionage programs. "I hope 'glasnost' is a reality," Weinberger told a luncheon of The Navy League, an unofficial organization dedicated to maintaining a strong Navy. "But one is permitted to be a bit suspicious when we know that behind it lurks the continuous threat of Soviet espionage."

Challenge conventional thinking, editor says

By William Brady
Staff Writer

Much of the conventional thinking that is guiding educational reform must be challenged if the United States is to remain No. 1 technologically and economically, says David P. Snyder, a former consultant to the Research and Development Corp., a think tank.

Snyder, lifestyles editor of The Futurist magazine, spoke Thursday afternoon to faculty and students in the Student Center Auditorium on "Future Forces in American Education."

The United States is experiencing truly revolutionary times, he said. "We are going from an industrial-based society to a knowledge-based society."

Educators, Snyder said, must anticipate such a future because of their crucial role in determining the nation's future. They must provide students the intellectual tools needed for a knowledge-based society if the United States is to remain a dominant nation, he said.

Snyder gave recommendations for educational innovations that would provide the intellectual tools. His recommendations were based on research he conducted.

Rewriting course materials to include such elements as clear outlines, statements of purpose and concrete examples of theoretical concepts was one innovation. Research test results for such, he said, showed a 50 to 100 percent increase in student performance.

Another innovation recommended by Snyder was experiential learning. As opposed to rote learning where facts and figures are taught, experiential learning provides students knowledge on how to use and apply their rote learning in real world situations, he said.

Experiential learning employs curriculum that requires analyzing problems systematically, gathering and organizing information, identifying and comparing alternative solutions, prioritizing and planning purposeful tasks and implementing and evaluating specific actions, Snyder said.

Tests also indicate that

Society fails sex ed

A RECENT POLL conducted by People magazine disclosed some alarming facts about high school and college students' attitudes toward contraception. The poll found that only 39 percent of high school students and 58 percent of college students used contraceptives during sex. The poll also found that more than half of the high school students — 56 percent — and 50 percent of the college students surveyed felt abortion was the best method of birth control.

If anything, the poll indicates a fundamental failure of American society to inculcate its youth with responsible attitudes toward sex and birth control.

The United States has one of the highest teen pregnancy rates in the world. According to a 1985 study by the Allan Guttmacher Institute, a U.S.-based population research group, the pregnancy rate for Americans between 15 and 19 years old was 96 per thousand. In contrast, the rate in France was 43 per thousand and in Sweden 35 per thousand.

The study suggested three reasons for the high teen pregnancy rate in America: contraceptives are hard to get, sex education is not widely promoted in schools and conservative attitudes toward sex prevail in American society. Combined, these three factors prevent teenagers from learning until its too late about the risk of pregnancy and the steps that can be taken to guard against it.

EVEN THE MOST cursory examination of American sexual mores shows that the Guttmacher report is right on the mark. The last state statute on the books prohibiting the sale of contraceptives was repealed in New England just last year. Conservative religious groups continue their campaign against sex education in America's schools, while at the same time railing against abortion.

The television networks carry programs that present sex as a "no-risk" venture, while steadfastly refusing to air advertisements for contraceptives for fear of offending public taste. (In all fairness, we must note that one network recently aired a program that presented a highly realistic portrayal of teenage pregnancy. Unfortunately, such programs are the exception rather than the rule.)

Many parents still swear by the inane belief that sex education will only encourage sexual activity among teenagers. But the Guttmacher study found that European teens are no more sexually active than their U.S. counterparts, despite the wide availability of sex education and contraceptives in European countries. Besides, teenagers probably always will experiment with sex. Surely it is better to be certain they know the risks and have something to prevent their experiments from going awry than to just ignore that fact.

FORTUNATELY, ATTITUDES toward sex education seem to be changing. A recent Gallup poll found that seven in 10 Americans favor providing sex education in grades four through eight. Support for sex education in elementary school has been increasing steadily, the poll found, from a rate of 45 percent in 1981 to 52 percent in 1985 and 71 percent in 1987.

Much of the change in public sentiment seems tied to fear of AIDS more than anything else. It is unfortunate indeed that it took a crisis of such magnitude to shake society out of its old-fashioned modesty.

Opinions from elsewhere

Pakistan still troubled

Chicago Tribune

The Soviet Union keeps talking about withdrawing its occupation force from Afghanistan and seeking a conclusion to the war that has bogged it down there for going on eight years.

But Afghan pilots flying warplanes supplied by the Soviets continue to bomb refugee villages across the border in neighboring Pakistan. The United States and Pakistan should not cave in to Soviet intimidation.

This country is now weighing another installment of its military aid package for Pakistan. But the United States should maintain its pressure on Pakistan to halt development of its nuclear weapons program. Nuclear nonproliferation is also a major U.S. interest.

This country should also take into account the concerns of a nervous India, which has fought three wars with Pakistan in recent times.

Marines face spies or celibacy

The Marines that guard the American embassies have the title "On The Minute." When an emergency arises they are prepared. This explains why the president has them stationed at every U.S. embassy. All men wishing to become an embassy guard undergo a training program tougher than bootcamp. Each is also subjected to an S.B.I. (Special Background Investigation). The investigators can cancel a security clearance for the smallest of reasons, i.e., cheating on a test in high school or cutting classes too often.

The guards, once accepted, are put on a two-year tour of duty, serving one year each at two separate embassies. While at their new duty stations, they have little or no extended leaves. Instead, they are encouraged to take advantage of what the surroundings have to offer, including the female population. The proactive eagerness taught to the young Marines is in direct conflict with the directive not to associate with people of the communist persuasion. Yet both ideas originate from the same place.

In the past several days, the U.S. Marines stationed in the Soviet Union have been receiving some pretty heavy P.R. Sex, extortion and espionage have been plastered across every newspaper. As a one-time member of the United States Marine Corps and in particular as an intelligence clerk who had to go through the rigors of being checked for security clearance, I can say the whole thing is being pushed in the wrong direction. Rather than capitalizing on this live and in-color soap-opera, we should be pushing for reform to prevent this embarrassing situation from happening again. Make security clearances more strict, give the guards a regular extended leave, and don't stick them in isolated countries for long durations of time.

Everyone blames everyone else for spying. Until changes are made, a Marine can either take a chance on getting caught while negotiating a horizontal detente, or he remains celibate for a whole year. He will either receive punishment for being a traitor, or he will face the punishment of going from an active libido to one that is nonexistent. A person joins the Marines to serve his country, not to suffer for it.—Michael White, ex-Marine, freshman, radio-television.

Marriott ousts Lions in poor P.R. decision

I want to express my disappointment in a recent management decision made by the Marriott personnel at the Student Center. The Lion's Club of Carbondale has held their annual spring pancake day on the Saturday of Springfest under a tent near Anthony Hall. With much appreciation, they have had very successful days there, which they attribute to the well-organized Springfest and the many SIUC students, faculty, staff and community people in attendance.

What a disappointment when they were told by SIUC personnel that they would not be allowed to have their pancake day on campus during this year's Springfest because Marriott Food Services did not want the competition!

The Lions contribute all proceeds to charitable causes. Their activities include donating eye glasses to the needy, eye research and a recently formed cornea bank. What a poor public relations move by Marriott! The Carbondale community supports pancake days, and I'm sure they contribute to the attendance at Springfest. — Sandra Walker, secretary, health education.

Blacks can truly understand discrimination

This is in response to the letter written by Sandra Nowers, "Letter took a cheap shot at 'racist race'" (4-9). I totally disagree with you, Ms. Nowers. What you fail to realize is that the reason blacks exclude themselves is because the majority of the time, we aren't accepted in white organizations and if we are, we have to culturally assimilate ourselves. (I am black, therefore I know what it is like to be discriminated against).

I agree, the majority of the people have to look for racism, but we do not, because sooner or later we will have contact with it. Obviously you have never experienced a racist situation, so until you do, you should think before you accuse a race, who is a minority, of being prejudiced. — Sonji Rudd, sophomore.

DE at fault for unknown candidates

Did I miss something? I was pleased to see the DE give some coverage of the USO presidential hopefuls in the Opinions and Commentary section (4-14), but why wasn't there coverage of the candidates for student representatives for the colleges on campus? I decided to show my support for our campus government by voting and when I received my ballots, all I found were the names of people I had never heard of and spaces for write-in candidates.

If I had known that there was a lack of candidates prior to my visit to the polls, I would have attempted to find a representative from my college (Education) to run. As a student, I am often wrongly accused of being apathetic because of my lack of participation and my lack of knowledge about voting and candidates. My source of information about such matters is the Daily Egyptian. In it, I find an ad placed by the USO telling me where to vote and when. I have no source of information about any candidates other than the two presidential hopefuls. Yes, I would say that I definitely missed something. — Jill Rogers, sophomore, early childhood education.

Al Campanis is ignorant of black potential

I witness something a few nights ago (4-6) which caused me to not only ask questions, but strengthen a negative realization of mine. I listened to Ted Koppel's interview of Al Campanis on Nightline, and Campanis (the vice president of the Los Angeles Dodgers) spoke on his relationship with baseball's first black player, Jackie Robinson. The thing that hit me the hardest was Campanis's comment as to why there weren't any black general managers in major league baseball. He stated that "blacks don't have the necessities" for such tasks, and he said it as if he really believed it. Campanis also stated that he only looks at the physical attributes of black ballplayers and how they play the game mentally. Granted, Campanis doesn't speak for every white man, but he sure said a lot of things I've heard come from white men's mouths. He went on about how blacks weren't good swimmers because they don't have the necessary ingredients.

For too long, blacks have been considered inferior in almost everything we do. Everyone says what great athletes we are, but they (whites) feel we don't have the brains for much else. Well, somebody's asleep! And a statement like "blacks aren't intelligent enough to hold any position of authority" coming from Campanis, is ludicrous! He even said that blacks don't have the desire to be in top positions. If anything, I believe that black people have more desire to succeed than any other race of people. My reason is because for too long, whites have been reluctant to give up their powerful positions that they've established; be it in baseball, or as the head of a major news network (there are no blacks there, either). Some might say blacks don't try hard enough. It's quite hard to move to the top when those you are passing up are white and disagree of your promotion. Campanis stated how blacks can "run on the field, or in the cotton field, but as far as running a baseball team, they don't have the intelligence."

Well, for a man who played on the same team with baseball's first black, and for a man who had worked in baseball very successfully for over four decades, I see now that Al Campanis is the unintelligent one.

Black people show intelligence when given the chance to, and even when they aren't pressured to — because blacks are intelligent as a whole. Black people have just as many tools and necessities to be successful. And when given the chance, black people have the desire to reach the top. When statements spoken in the 1980s come from the narrow-minded thinking of the 1960s, we, as black people, are right back where we started...only getting reassurance and praise from each other, moving seemingly in place, at a snail's pace, on a long road backwards...like we're expected to... — Bill Hebert, junior, radio-television.

Disillusioned black youths turn to streets

Perhaps readers read my letter in the Sunday, March 29 issue of the Southern Illinoisian. This letter, edited and entitled "Racist Appearance" by the editors, left out some points I feel should be made more clearly.

An example, "Many Blacks are no longer interested in whether or not actions are labeled racist" was not followed by my statement that blacks' real concerns are the negative social and economic problems for both white and black citizens as a result of certain actions regardless of how they are labeled.

The originally written letter stated that black parents throughout America are seeing growing numbers of disillusioned youth becoming society's parasites — even criminals ignoring encouragement to stay in school and become law-abiding citizens. Instead they are going for "big money" via "street education" when they feel there is little or no hope for "better" higher paying jobs in their communities. Then occasionally these communities are suddenly confronted with tarnishing headlines of drugs, racism, suicide and other crimes often traced to unemployment and school dropouts.

Therefore, these local citizens feel every minute process or resource should be used to prevent this from happening to their youth in their All-American City. — Martha Farris, assistant chair of the labor committee, Carbondale NAACP.

Amnesty International favors communists

Linda G. Nelson wrote a letter (4-14) concerning Amnesty International's cooperation with SILASC (Southern Illinois-Latin America Solidarity Committee) in procuring an anti-contra speaker. I was quite happy to see that letter because I was beginning to feel like a voice crying in the wilderness concerning SILASC's pro-communist stance. It would not be difficult to associate both AI and SILASC with attempts to help the Sandinista communists get away with many murders.

If AI is not communist, or at least a sympathizing organization, why is it that they can only find abuses among the U.S. and her allies? There can be no debate among honest, reasonable people that the Soviet Union and her allies are the worst abusers of human rights in human history. Why is it that AI has nothing to say about the Gulag, (a system of slavery in the Soviet Union without which the Soviet economy would collapse)? How does AI think all the great projects were built? They were built by slaves owned and operated by the government of the Soviet Union!

With all these things upon which to report, what does AI spend most of its time reporting? South Africa, Chile, the Contras, the Angolan resistance, etc. Why this sudden interest in anti-communist guerrilla organizations? Could it be because they are anti-communist?

If AI is concerned with abuses by guerrilla organizations where were they when the Viet Cong were disemboweling people as examples to others not to defy the VC's forced conscription of young men? Where was AI when it was revealed that SWAPO was taking whole villages of black Nambians and selling them as slaves, using the young women as breeders to ensure future troops and using children as young as 8 years old to bear loads into battle for them? But then both AI and SWAPO receive support from the World Council of Churches. This last statement is easily proven upon request. Why hasn't AI said anything about the slave markets of Libya?

I suppose it's difficult to find this information. I had to read three news magazines to get it. However, when you have people like SILASC screaming about a few relatively well-documented cases of abuses it's tempting to dwell on them because it takes little effort.

AI, you should beware. Your course is being charted by organizations that are undoubtedly communist. The people of the free world will not long tolerate a view of human rights that is totally based against them and their allies. Your already thin credibility is disappearing altogether. — Jeffrey W. Seffert, senior, engineering.

DE at fault for unknown candidates

Did I miss something? I was pleased to see the DE give some coverage of the USO presidential hopefuls in the Opinions and Commentary section (4-14), but why wasn't there coverage of the candidates for student representatives for the colleges on campus? I decided to show my support for our campus government by voting and when I received my ballots, all I found were the names of people I had never heard of and spaces for write-in candidates.

If I had known that there was a lack of candidates prior to my visit to the polls, I would have attempted to find a representative from my college (Education) to run. As a student, I am often wrongly accused of being apathetic because of my lack of participation and my lack of knowledge about voting and candidates. My source of information about such matters is the Daily Egyptian. In it, I find an ad placed by the USO telling me where to vote and when. I have no source of information about any candidates other than the two presidential hopefuls. Yes, I would say that I definitely missed something. — Jill Rogers, sophomore, early childhood education.

Al Campanis is ignorant of black potential

I witness something a few nights ago (4-6) which caused me to not only ask questions, but strengthen a negative realization of mine. I listened to Ted Koppel's interview of Al Campanis on Nightline, and Campanis (the vice president of the Los Angeles Dodgers) spoke on his relationship with baseball's first black player, Jackie Robinson. The thing that hit me the hardest was Campanis's comment as to why there weren't any black general managers in major league baseball. He stated that "blacks don't have the necessities" for such tasks, and he said it as if he really believed it. Campanis also stated that he only looks at the physical attributes of black ballplayers and how they play the game mentally. Granted, Campanis doesn't speak for every white man, but he sure said a lot of things I've heard come from white men's mouths. He went on about how blacks weren't good swimmers because they don't have the necessary ingredients.

For too long, blacks have been considered inferior in almost everything we do. Everyone says what great athletes we are, but they (whites) feel we don't have the brains for much else. Well, somebody's asleep! And a statement like "blacks aren't intelligent enough to hold any position of authority," coming from Campanis, is ludicrous! He even said that blacks don't have the desire to be in top positions. If anything, I believe that black people have more desire to succeed than any other race of people. My reason is because for too long, whites have been reluctant to give up their powerful positions that they've established; be it in baseball, or as the head of a major news network (there are no blacks there, either). Some might say blacks don't try hard enough. It's quite hard to move to the top when those you are passing up are white and disagree of your promotion. Campanis stated how blacks can "run on the field, or in the cotton field, but as far as running a baseball team, they don't have the intelligence."

Well, for a man who played on the same team with baseball's first black, and for a man who had worked in baseball very successfully for over four decades, I see now that Al Campanis is the unintelligent one.

Black people show intelligence when given the chance to, and even when they aren't pressured to — because blacks are intelligent as a whole. Black people have just as many tools and necessities to be successful. And when given the chance, black people have the desire to reach the top. When statements spoken in the 1980s come from the narrow-minded thinking of the 1960s, we, as black people, are right back where we started...only getting reassurance and praise from each other, moving seemingly in place, at a snail's pace, on a long road backwards...like we're expected to... — Bill Hebert, junior, radio-television.

Disillusioned black youths turn to streets

Perhaps readers read my letter in the Sunday, March 29 issue of the Southern Illinoisan. This letter, edited and entitled "Racist Appearance" by the editors, left out some points I feel should be made more clearly.

An example, "Many Blacks are no longer interested in whether or not actions are labeled racist" was not followed by my statement that blacks' real concerns are the negative social and economic problems for both white and black citizens as a result of certain actions regardless of how they are labeled.

The originally written letter stated that black parents throughout America are seeing growing numbers of disillusioned youth becoming society's parasites — even criminals ignoring encouragement to stay in school and become law-abiding citizens. Instead they are going for "big money" via "street education" when they feel there is little or no hope for "better" higher paying jobs in their communities. Then occasionally these communities are suddenly confronted with tarnishing headlines of drugs, racism, suicide and other crimes often traced to unemployment and school dropouts.

Therefore, these local citizens feel every minute process or resource should be used to prevent this from happening to their youth in their All-American City. — Martha Farris, assistant chair of the labor committee, Carbondale NAACP.

Prince's reign continues on Billboard charts

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Prince's ninth album in nine years, "Sign 'O' The Times," continued to outshine all other hot black singles in nationwide popularity as it climbed to No. 3 this week on Billboard magazine's Hot 100 chart.

This marks the third week last year's 29th-best-selling pop album artist landed "Sign" atop the black singles chart and the third week the track appeared on Billboard's top-10 single list. The cut showed up at No. 4 last week, and at No. 7 the week before.

The song is taken from the album of the same name — a package of 16 tracks half of which are hot, half of which sound like typical radio stuff. And the album's his first two-pack since his 1982 double album "1999," which put Prince on the top-10 pop album chart for the first time.

BUT "SIGN" is important for another reason. It represents the first release since his film "Under the Cherry Moon" gave some of the year's worst movies a run for the money.

Back to the Hot 100 chart, Aretha Franklin and George Michael continued to glow as their duet "I Knew You Were Waiting" remained at No. 1 for a second week. "Don't Dream It's Over" by Crowded House rose from No. 3 to No. 2 during the period, while Jody Watley's "Looking For A New Love" came up No. 4 and "Died In Your Arms" by Cutting Crew jumped to No. 5.

ON THE Top LP chart, the Beastie Boys' "Licensed To Ill," having clung to No. 1 in national popularity for seven straight weeks, fell to No. 2. Rising into the catbird seat is U2's "The Joshua Tree," the Dublin band's splendid mixture of songs, some driving, others gently rolling, all unmistakably U2. Bon Jovi's "Slippery When Wet," meanwhile, clung to No. 3 for a second week; Poison's "Look

What The Cat Dragged In" pulled down No. 4 and Paul Simon's "Graceland" garnered No. 5.

BEHIND PRINCE'S "Sign 'O' The Times" on the Hot Black 100 Singles list are, in descending order: The System's "Don't Disturb The Groove," "There's Nothing Better Than Love" by Luther Vandross and Gregory Hines, Atlantic Starr's "Always," and Gregory Abbott's "I Got The Feeling."

The Hot Country Singles starts with Waylon Jennings' "Rose In Paradise," which took the spotlight away from the Bellamy Brothers' "Kids

Of The Baby Boom." T. Graham Brown's "Don't Go To Strangers" finished the period at No. 2, one ahead of Michael Johnson's "The Moon Is Over Her Shoulder" and "A Face In The Crowd," a joint effort by Michael Martin Murphy and Holly Dunn. "To Know Him Is To Love Him" by Dolly Parton, Linda Ronstadt and Emmylou Harris captured No. 5.

THE HOT Adult Contemporary shows "The Finer Things" by Steve Winwood at No. 1 for a first week, followed by "I Knew You Were Waiting" by Aretha Franklin and George Michael at No. 2.

17 named in drugs-for-stock tips scandal

NEW YORK (UPI) — Seventeen people, including 15 Wall Street brokerage house employees, were named Thursday on cocaine charges in an investigation of a firm where drugs were traded for stock information.

U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani said the 17 people were charged with possession and distribution of cocaine as result of a four-year investigation.

Giuliani said search warrants for additional evidence of narcotics and securities law violations were being executed at the offices of the Wall Street firm of Brooks, Weinger, Robbins and Leeds Inc.

Giuliani said a civil action seeking forfeiture of part of the Wall Street firm because of narcotics violations also was filed.

The federal Drug Enforcement Administration and the New York Police Department cooperated in an anti-drug operation called "Buy and Cry" that concentrated on the vicinity of the Vietnam Memorial Liberty Park,

'Man of La Mancha' play well choreographed, slow

By Debra Keen-Cooper
Staff Writer

The dark and dreary story of Don Quixote came to life on the stage of the Marion Cultural and Civic Center Tuesday evening when "Man of La Mancha" was presented by the Nebraska Theatre Caravan.

The presentation of this classic musical continued the Civic Center's 1986-87 Patron Series, which is supported in part by grants from the Illinois Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts.

Written by Dale Wasserman with music by Mitch Leigh and lyrics by Joe Darian, "Man of La Mancha" is set in a common room of a stone prison vault in Seville, Spain at the end of the sixteenth century. Miguel De Cervantes and his manservant, Sancho Panza are sent to the prison for imposing a stiff tax sentence on the Catholic Church. There Cervantes and Panza are put through a ritualistic trial by fellow inmates during which Cervantes reveals his fantasy alter-ego, Don Quixote.

The prison is transformed into a variety of settings such as a country inn, a church and a stable. During the scenes, the prisoners assume many character roles including that of horses, Gypsies, muleteers and ladies.

Despite the numerous scene and character changes, the action moved slow at times and often appeared over rehearsed, a common characteristic for touring groups that perform the same show every night for many weeks.

But the acting and singing was wonderfully choreographed. The voices were well-groomed and fitting for the atmosphere of the play. "Man of La Mancha" isn't a musical that leaves one humming its songs. The only popular song in the whole piece is "The Impossible Dream." "Man of La Mancha" is a story about madness. It is a story about a man who quests for the impossible dream and never quite reaches the stars.

'Climate regulators' discovered

SEATTLE (UPI) — Two University of Washington scientists have discovered a possible missing link in the global climate system that may operate like a "planetary thermostat" to offset the warming trend known as the greenhouse effect.

Robert Charlson and Stephen Warren, members of the university's department of atmospheric sciences, reported their findings in Thursday's edition of the British journal Nature.

Charlson, Warren and two other colleagues say microscopic marine organisms known as phytoplankton are responsible for the creation of clouds over the world's oceans.

The scientists said that because clouds reflect sunlight away from the upper atmosphere, thus cooling Earth, phytoplankton's role in regulating climate may be critical.

Such cooling, they said, could compensate for the increased heating of Earth's atmosphere caused by the burning of fossil fuels.

Such man-made activities produce carbon dioxide and other so-called greenhouse gases that absorb outgoing infrared radiation.

Charlson said that because water covers 70 percent of the Earth's surface, marine clouds are a big part of the overall climate picture.

But this connection between cloud formation and organisms floating in the upper layers of the ocean had not been made previously by either biologists or atmospheric scientists.

Charlson said it took a collaborative effort between himself, Warren, German oceanographic researcher Meinrat Andreae and British climatologist James Lovelock to develop a new way of looking at this "geophysical feedback system."

The scientists state that phytoplankton, through photosynthesis, produce a sulfur-containing gas called dimethylsulfide. This gas reacts in the air to make tiny sulfur particles, said the scientists.

3 Pulitzer Prizes scooped by Philadelphia Inquirer

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Philadelphia Inquirer won three 1987 Pulitzer Prizes Thursday, including two for an investigative series on the criminal justice system, in a year when Joseph Pulitzer Jr. also was honored with an award.

Pulitzer, 74, grandson of the publishing magnate in whose name the awards were created 71 years ago, was given a special last-minute citation for his "extraordinary services to American journalism and letters." He is chairman of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and retired from the Pulitzer Prize Board last November.

IN ADDITION TO the Inquirer, other multiple winners were The New York Times, the Los Angeles Times and the Washington Post Writers Group, each of which won two awards.

The Pittsburgh Press won the coveted prize for public service for a series of stories reviewing the "inadequacy" of the Federal Aviation Administration's medical screening of airline pilots.

The series by Andrew Schneider and Matthew Breilis "led to significant reforms," the Pulitzer Prize board said.

It was the second consecutive year Schneider won. He shared a Pulitzer last year for specialized reporting, the first time the Pittsburgh Press won a Pulitzer Prize.

MADELYN ROSS, the newspaper's managing editor said, "We've been working in a concentrated manner for the last four or five years to make the paper better. The Pulitzer is one sign we're doing something right."

In Philadelphia, there was pandemonium in the Inquirer newsroom as about 150 editorial workers and their families celebrated. Reporters popped champagne amid back-slapping and speech-making. Several staffers poured champagne over the head of Inquirer editor Eugene Roberts.

Inquirer reporters Daniel Biddle, H. G. Bissinger and Frederic Tulsy won the award for Investigative Reporting for their series "Disorder in the Court." The Prize board said it "revealed transgressions of justice in the Philadelphia court system and led to federal and state investigations."

"THIS IS something I've wanted all my life," said Bissinger, 32. "It was a grueling series which many thought was impossible to do because the court system was too huge ... and rotten to the core."

Another Inquirer reporter, John Woestendiek, won the investigative prize for "outstanding prison beat reporting" that resulted in a new trial for a man convicted of murder.

Yet another writer for the paper, Steve Twomey, won the prize for feature writing for his "illuminating profile of life aboard an aircraft carrier."

"I went from total depression to total numbness; to have this happen is sheer heaven," he said.

THE BOARD awarded two prizes in National Reporting. The first went to the staff of The New York Times for coverage of the aftermath of the Challenger explosion. The Miami Herald won the other for "persistent coverage of the U.S.-Iran-Contra connection."

The New York Times also won the Specialized Reporting category with Alex Jones taking the award for his story "The Fall of the House of Bingham," a "sensitive report of a powerful newspaper family's bickering."

The staff of the Akron (Ohio) Beacon Journal won for General News Reporting for its coverage "of the attempted takeover of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. by a European financier."

DOUG OPLINGER, the newspaper's business editor, said reporters worked an average 60 to 70 hours per week on the stories.

The Los Angeles Times won

Both sides claim 'victory' in CBS job security battle

NEW YORK (UPI) — Striking CBS newswriters voted overwhelmingly Thursday to accept a proposed contract and end their bitter 46-day walkout with both sides claiming victory in the battle over job security and budget cuts at the network.

Writers Guild of America spokeswoman Mona Mangan said the strike showed it is possible "to say no to a Fortune 500 company that believed it could undo a hard-won contract simply because it wanted to."

"This agreement is a result of the courage and tenacity of our members and the broad support we have received from so many within and outside our industry," Mangan said.

The guild represents 525 newswriters, producers, editors, graphic artists and others who struck CBS and ABC. About 175 employees at ABC remained off the job and union and management negotiators planned to meet later Thursday in an attempt to reach a settlement.

The CBS employees voted 266-24 to accept the contract — a 91.7 percent vote for ratification, union spokesman Martin Waldman said.

The contract reached for CBS provides for an immediate 3 percent wage hike and 3 percent hikes at the end of both the first and second years of the pact.

The contract approval immediately ended the strike against CBS and workers at the network's news studios could be back on the job by Friday, Waldman said.

Jeff Tolvin, an ABC spokesman, said the vote by CBS workers was not expected to have any impact on the continuing talks between ABC and the guild.

The week the strike began, CBS laid off more than 200 employees in its news division in a $30-million belt-tightening that prompted anchorman Dan Rather to write an angry article in the New York Times accusing CBS of sacrificing quality for higher profits.

Waldman said CBS relented on key issues that determine how future layoffs will be handled, backing off its demands for the right to fire employees without arbitration, to lay off people regardless of seniority and to use temporary workers in union jobs.

But CBS spokesman George Schweitzer maintained the network "achieved its objectives" in the areas of temporary workers, protection of key employees in layoffs regardless of seniority and expansion of the right of management and on-air people to do news writing.

two awards. Reporter Michael Parks won for International Reporting for his coverage of South Africa. Richard Eder won the prize for Criticism for his book reviews.

The Washington Post Writers Group also won two prizes, with Charles Krauthammer winning Commentary for his "witty and insightful columns on national issues" and Berke Breathed winning Editorial Cartooning for "Bloom County."

JEFF LYON AND Peter Gerner of the Chicago Tribune won the prize for Explanatory Journalism for their series "on the promises of gene therapy which examined the implications of this revolutionary medical treatment."

The prize for Editorial Writing was awarded to Jonathan Freedman of The Tribune of San Diego, Calif., for "editorials urging passage of the first major immigration reform act in 34 years."

The prize for Spot News Photography was awarded to Kim Komenich of the San Francisco Examiner for his photographic coverage of the downfall of Ferdinand Marcos.

Photography went to David Peterson of The Des Moines Register for photographs depicting the "shattered dreams of American farmers."

In the literary awards, Peter Taylor won the prize for fiction for his book "A Summers to Memphis." August Wilson won for drama for his play "Fences," and Bernard Bailyn won the prize for history for his book "Voyagers to the West: A Passage in the Peopling of America on the Eve of the Revolution."

David Garrow won for biography for "Bearing the Cross: Martin Luther King Jr. and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference."

RITA DOVE won the prize for poetry for "Thomas Beulah."

David Shipler won for general non-fiction for "Arab and Jew: Wounded Spirits in a Promised Land."

John Harbison won for music for "The Flight Into Egypt." The piece premiered Nov. 21 by the Cantata Singers and Ensemble at the New England Conservatory in Boston.

The prizes are awarded by Columbia University on the recommendation of the Pulitzer Prize Board. Winners get $1,000 each from the fund set up by Joseph Pulitzer Sr.

The public service award in journalism is the only prize that does not carry a cash award. Winners receive a gold medal instead.

There were 1,533 journalism entries this year, compared with 1,634 submissions last year.

U.S. measures threatening Korea's economic boom

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — The "Three Blessings" of low oil prices, low interest rates and the sinking value of the dollar have fueled South Korea's economic boom, but that prosperity is now being threatened by a curse in the form of protectionist measures being written in the United States.

The blessings have helped Korea become the world's 12th-largest trading nation and seventh-largest U.S. trading partner, bartering nearly head-to-head with sixth-place Britain.

BUT THE curse currently being brewed in the U.S. Congress threatens to slow the Korean "economic miracle" at a crucial time in its economic and political history.

A U.S. campaign to open Korean markets wider to U.S. goods as a way of avoiding protectionism will be given a high profile Sunday when U.S. Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige arrives for trade talks.

For the export-addicted nation, which ships 40 percent of its exports to the United States, the specter of trade barriers like those being raised against the Japanese is deeply troubling.

WITH THE first peaceful transfer of power in modern Korean history scheduled to

"They complain bitterly about comparisons with Japan. I say if they don't want to be a second Japan, don't act like one."

— a U.S. lawyer living in Seoul take place early next year when President Chun Doo Hwan steps down, moves that might destabilize the economy and fuel social unrest, "scare the hell out of them," said one diplomat.

But there is sentiment among U.S. businessmen in Seoul that Korea is pursuing a similar path to Japan, the only difference being the 20-year economic head start held by their neighbor across the Sea of Japan.

"They complain bitterly about comparisons with Japan," said one U.S. lawyer living in Seoul. "I say if they don't want to be a second Japan, don't act like one."

U.S. OFFICIALS say Korea is not as big a prober. as Japan, with its $58.6 billion U.S. trade surplus, but admit their strategy is to head off trouble by pushing Korea to become a more equal trading partner.

"Ironically, it is our national success that has caused these problems," said Unsuh Park, director general of the Bureau of International Trade Promotion in the Ministry of Trade and Industry.

Last year the nation's gross national product grew 12.5 percent in real terms. The government recently revised its estimated 1987 GNP upwards from 7 or 8 percent to 9 percent.

ALSO IN 1986, Korea posted an overall trade surplus of $4.4 billion and for the first time the world's fourth-largest debtor nation paid off $2.3 billion of its $46.8 billion foreign debt.

The Hyundai Motor Co., which shipped its first car into the United States in January 1986, sold 168,000 cars by the end of the year, 28,000 more than it predicted and the most ever sold abroad by a foreign automaker in its first year of exports to the United States.

This year Hyundai plans to ship 250,000 cars to the United States, and the Daewoo group and KIA Motors have begun to send sub-compact models to their U.S. dealers.

WITH TEXTILES, cars and electronics leading the way, exports grew nearly 35 percent last year, with 40 percent of all goods being shipped to the United States. Exports in the first quarter of 1987 were up 35 percent from the same period last year.

Tutu, 46 Anglican clerics send open letter to Botha

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — In defiance of a government edict, Archbishop Desmond Tutu and 46 Anglican clerics sent an open letter Thursday to President Pieter Botha demanding the release of political detainees.

"With respect, sir, we believe that the valid response that law-abiding citizens should make to these regulations is openly to disobey them as we are doing now," said the letter mailed to the president's office.

It was signed by Tutu, the leader of the South African Anglican Church and 46 leading Anglican clerics, all of whom said they were prepared to accept the consequences of their act.

The Rev. Chris Ahrends, Tutu's clerical assistant in Cape Town and one of the signers, said the letter demanded the immediate release or trial of those detained under the 10-month-old state of emergency.

Ahrends said the churchmen were aware that they were breaking regulations imposed by the government last Friday banning any organized campaign to free the detainees, including group letters to ministers of state.

"We do so deliberately and consciously out of Christian conscience," the letter said.

"The fact that many of those detained are children simply underscores the seriousness of the situation," the letter said.

Church demands stall talks with officials in Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Seven months of talks on easing tensions between the government and the Roman Catholic Church have bogged down over church demands for the return of two exiled priests and the reopening of a church radio station, officials on both sides say.

But neither side considers the impasse insurmountable, and the dialogue is scheduled to continue — a development considered positive by many observers.

Cardinal Miguel Obando y Bravo, a leading opponent of the leftist Sandinista government and head of the church in Nicaragua, said in an interview with United Press International. "Things are not so easy. On the specific points, (the talks) are stagnated.

"But we must continue trying," the cardinal said. "It is not sufficient that only one of the sides has good will."

Carter agrees with stance Amy took on CIA actions

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. (UPI) — Former President Jimmy Carter said Thursday he agrees with arguments about CIA covert activities used to acquit his daughter and 14 others on charges stemming from an anti-CIA protest.

"Rosalynn and I are pleased that our daughter, Amy, has been found innocent of the charges filed against her," the former president said. "She protested actions of the CIA in Central America which she, and her parents, consider to have been improper and illegal."

Amy Carter, 19, and her co-defendants — including veteran activist Abbie Hoffman, 50, — relied on a "necessity defense" against trespassing and disorderly conduct charges.

Defense attorneys argued the civil disobedience at a Nov. 24 demonstration at the University of Massachusetts in Amherst was necessary to expose far more serious crimes committed by the CIA. A six-member District Court jury acquitted the defendants of all charges Wednesday after three hours of deliberations.

"I know from my own experience that it is not necessary for our intelligence services to violate American or international law in order to be effective in performing their duties."

"I know from my own experience that it is not necessary for our intelligence services to violate American or international law in order to be effective in performing their duties," Jimmy Carter said in Atlanta.

CIA spokeswoman Sharon Foster said the agency would not be damaged by the trial.

"The only way it would hamper the agency would be if the college didn't invite the agency to recruit there," Foster said in a telephone interview at CIA headquarters in Langley, Va.

Foster defended both the CIA's right to recruit on college campuses and the defendants' right to protest those sessions.

"I don't think there is person in this agency who would deny a person's right to speak out about something," Foster said. "If they have a disagreement about the CIA, they have their rights to bring out that view."

Juror Ann Gaffney, 64, an employee at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Northampton, said she thought the trial was evidence of the fairness of the country's judicial system.

"I feel better about the judicial system than I did before this," Gaffney said. "I guess I never realized how democratic the jury system is in the United States."

"I'm very proud of the young students who made this all possible and who made themselves open to arrests to get an important point across," she added.

Hinckley's dad: Hysteria stops son's Easter visit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Hinckley Sr. said Thursday his son, President Reagan's assailant, wrote a serial killer simply "as one human being to another" and the denial of an Easter trip came out of unwarranted hysteria.

"We've been hearing all week long that John is still dangerous and all sorts of other terrible things and a certain hysteria has developed that we feel is not necessary, not pertinent to the case," said the elder Hinckley.

St. Elizabeths Hospital, bowing to government concerns Wednesday, formally withdrew its application to a federal judge to allow Hinckley a one-day, unescorted visit to see his parents. He will not be allowed an escorted visit either, officials said.

The move capped three days of court hearings on the question, made dramatic by revelations that Hinckley regularly corresponded with Florida death-row inmate Theodore Bundy last year and received letters from other convicts.

Bundy is on death row at the Florida State Prison in Starke for the murder of two sorority sisters and a 12-year-old girl. He is suspected of killing more than two dozen other women across the country and mutilating their bodies.

"He wrote him as one human being to another," Hinckley said on NBC's "Today" show. "It may not be something that you or I would do, but because John did write him does not mean that he is still dangerous."

Hinckley has been hospitalized at St. Elizabeths since 1982, when he was found innocent by reason of insanity of the March 30, 1981, assassination attempt on Reagan. Three other men were wounded, one seriously, in the attack.

Hospital superintendent Dr. William Prescott conceded that much of Hinckley's correspondence was unknown to the staff, which stopped monitoring his mail in 1984.

Prepaid funerals initiate grave industry debates

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The issue of prepaid funeral arrangements is pitting funeral directors against cemetery operators in a battle over who and how such services should be sold to the public.

The dispute involves proposed rule changes by the Registration and Education Department that would allow only licensed funeral directors to sell funeral services and ban telephone solicitation of customers.

At a public hearing on the issue Wednesday, officials from the Illinois Funeral Directors Association said pre-nec contracts should be banned entirely.

"A prearranged funeral ought not be sold," said Robert Ninker, executive director of the Illinois Funeral Directors Association. He said lawmakers never intended to allow non-funeral directors to sell such packages and argued that the rule change was just clarifying current law.

recognition for his efforts. He returned because he realized he truly loved his job.

"I found out that I'm happiest when I'm teaching," he said. "I don't think anybody goes into teaching to be rich. A person goes into education with the purpose of making an impact on people's lives."

TEACHERS, LIKE other professionals, need time to prepare and reflect on their methods of teaching and their students' needs, Bowen said.

Parents are an important part of the educational process, Bowen believes. In his own teaching practice, newsletters and phone calls are used to keep parents informed of what goes on in his classroom. He refers to his students as "Bowen Arrows."

THE "Arrow Parents Survival Guide," is a newsletter he publishes at the beginning of each school year to inform parents of his grading policies and expectations for the children.

Parents are anxious to support their children and become involved in finding solutions to problems that may arise, Bowen said.

Bowen advises college graduates hoping for teaching jobs to look for a school district that "has a solid administrative structure that supports teachers."

BOWEN SAID that teaching requires dedication and a drive for achievement.

The most important reward for Bowen has come in those moments when he has been working "with a child who is struggling and then to see that lightbulb go on behind their eyes."

experiential learning increases student performance by 50 to 100 percent, he said.

Precision teaching was yet another educational reform proffered by Snyder. Precision teaching is a process that involves giving students frequent diagnostic quizzes for measuring dimensions of learning, Snyder stated in a handout, "Learning for Life in Revolutionary Times."

The quizzes would identify the areas where teacher intervention is needed in aiding the student, the handout says. It notes that precision teaching increases student performance by 25 to 50 percent.

Still another innovation for education recommended by Snyder in his handout was teacher retraining. Included among the skills that he said educators should have is computer competency, especially for designing instructional materials.

Computers "will be absolutely essential for the continued effectiveness of public education," the handout says.

To innovate rapidly and effectively, educators must share information with other educators about their innovative experiences, he said. He also said there should be a means by which evaluations of innovations can be exchanged quickly.

SEARCH, from Page 1

SIU-C president, Dennis said. "We have a range of candidates from people we're very excited about to the other end of the scale, stressing of course that these are recommendations, not decisions," he said.

Dennis declined to say how many candidates were in the "very-excited-about" category but said there were no fundamental disagreements among committee members about who the strongest candidates were.

Despite the delay in reviewing the files of the other 20 to 25 candidates, Dennis said upcoming stages in the search, such as an on-campus interview with students, faculty and staff, should go as planned.

"I still think we'll be on schedule. I hope we'll have an on-campus interview by late June," he said.

sample, you could be waiting an additional 48 hours," Conder said.

Boil orders usually are issued if drinking water tests positive for contamination, he explained.

"It's also more expensive for small communities to ship water samples" to Champaign rather than have the testing done locally, Conder added.

The Carbondale branch, located in the state's Department of Public Health laboratory on West Chautauqua, has the sole function of testing for contamination in drinking water for all of Illinois' counties south of Effingham.

About 22,000 drinking water samples were tested at the lab last year, said John Craig, Carbondale lab director. Most communities in his testing area, including the University, have their water examined at least once a month.

If the IEPA takes the auditor general's advice only the IEPA's portion of equipment and personnel would be affected, leaving the Public Health labs unscathed, although the IEPA has assisted the Department of Public Health in some of their studies, said Robert Casteel, IEPA's Division of Land Pollution Control spokesman.

He said the Carbondale IEPA branch takes up about $65,000 of the agency's $3 million annual statewide lab program budget.

The Carbondale IEPA lab was created in 1983 after a similar audit determined that six members of the Marion IEPA's eight-person lab should be relocated to Champaign and two to Carbondale, Schien said.

Judge rules Texaco can pay $2.3 million payroll taxes

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — The judge handling Texaco Inc.'s bankruptcy case ruled Thursday that the oil giant can pay federal taxes owed prior to filing for protection under Chapter 11.

In the U.S. Bankruptcy Court of the Southern District of New York, Judge Howard Schwartzberg ruled Texaco could pay $2.3 million in payroll taxes after archrival Pennzoil Co., Texaco's largest unsecured creditor, posed no objection.

The nation's third-largest oil company and two subsidiaries filed for Chapter 11 under the U.S. Bankruptcy Code Sunday to protect its assets from Pennzoil in the firms' $10.3 billion legal feud over Getty Oil Co. ownership.

Texaco stock was down 12.5 cents to $31.125 a share at mid-afternoon on the New York Stock Exchange. Pennzoil stock was up $2 to $78.50 a share.

Schwartzberg also said he received a motion from a Texaco shareholder to dismiss the Chapter 11 petition.

But the judge returned the motion, filed by Houston bankruptcy attorney John DoNofrio, who owns 10 Texaco shares, because it was flawed technically.

DoNofrio said in a telephone interview that Texaco filed for bankruptcy "in bad faith." He said Texaco, which repeatedly had threatened to seek bankruptcy protection, contradicted its original reasons when it actually filed.

Pennzoil has said it is considering challenging Texaco's bankruptcy filing, but Pennzoil attorney Kenneth Klee told reporters outside the court Thursday the Houston-based company was studying "a number of options."

While in Chapter 11 Texaco will keep appealing a judgment of $10.3 billion, including interest, that Pennzoil won in 1985.

A Houston jury found Texaco illegally enticed Getty Oil Co. to back out of a planned merger with Pennzoil. Texaco acquired Getty for $10.1 billion in 1984.

Klee, fellow Pennzoil attorney Michael Cramas and Texaco bankruptcy lawyer Harvey Miller appeared in court Thursday on a Pennzoil motion that it be allowed to continue actions responding to Texaco's appeal in Texas courts.

A Houston state appeals court Monday recessed indefinitely further proceedings, saying Texaco's bankruptcy filing halted additional steps in litigation pending against Texaco.

A.H. Robins sets up compensation fund

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — The A.H. Robins Co. filed a reorganization plan Thursday that includes establishing a $1.75 billion trust fund to compensate injuries arising from the company's Dalkon Shield contraceptive.

The pharmaceutical giant, which sought protection under Chapter 11 of federal bankruptcy laws in August 1985 in the wake of thousands of Dalkon Shield injury claims, will contribute $75 million to the fund. The balance would be covered by a letter of credit from a syndicate of banks headed by Manufacturers Hanover Trust, said James Roberts, a Richmond lawyer who advises the firm.

Roberts told U.S. District Judge Robert Merhige and U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Blackwell Shelley that Manufacturers Hanover has issued a "letter of credit" for up to $500 million available for the fund.

"The letter of credit, we believe, has the same certainty of payment as cash," said Roberts, who added that Robins needs to find more banks to contribute to the fund. "We think it is a fair plan," said Roberts.

Merhige said he was pleased that a plan had been filed. Lawyers representing stockholders, creditors and claimants now must study the plan before it is approved. Robins also will have to determine exactly how many Dalkon Shield claims are valid.

Thousands of women have filed claims against the Richmond-based company over its Dalkon Shield intrauterine device that was marketed in the 1970s. Robins, which took the crab-shaped IUD off the U.S. market in 1974, has never acknowledged negligence in manufacturing the device.

The claims, filed by women in 80 countries including the United States, allege injuries ranging from defective births to infertility and in some cases death.

FCC obscenity guidelines not confined to '7 words'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government warned broadcasters Thursday of a new crackdown on language that goes beyond the famous "seven dirty words" and promised stricter enforcement of bans on the airing of offensive material.

The Federal Communications Commission ruled that television and radio stations will have to adhere to narrower standards of what can be aired permissibly, primarily on the content of the material and the time of the broadcast.

In the last decade, the FCC said, broadcasters have relaxed definitions of what is offensive material, using almost exclusively the "seven dirty words" as a yardstick.

But the FCC said it now will return to applying "the generic definition of indecency," defined as "language or material that depicts or describes, in terms patently offensive as measured by contemporary community standards for the broadcast medium, sexual or excretory activities or organs."

That definition came from the FCC's 1975 Pacifica decision, upheld by the Supreme Court in 1978, in which the "seven dirty words" were ruled to be obscene material not suitable for broadcast.

Thursday's FCC decision will apply to American radio and television stations. Officials said violators would be subject to fines and the ultimate penalty in the broadcasting industry — loss of licenses.

"What we are doing here today is to correct an altogether too narrow interpretation of decency," said FCC Commissioner Dennis Patrick, expected to take over from Mark Fowler as chairman of the agency next week.

Fowler said, "Is this the way we want to entertain and inform and inspire people in the audience? Is this a legacy you, the broadcasters, want to foster, preserve and bequeath?"

Plaintiffs win discrimination suit against N.Y. Daily News

NEW YORK (UPI) — A jury's decision that the New York Daily News discriminated against four black employees is a landmark ruling showing "the little people can beat the big people," says a lawyer for the journalists who filed suit.

In a case that could have impact in newsrooms nationwide, a U.S. District Court jury late Wednesday agreed with the plaintiffs that the Daily News gave them fewer promotions, worse assignments and lower salaries than were given to white journalists with comparable experience and qualifications.

The jury also found the newspaper retaliated against copy editor Causewell Vaughan, reporter David Hardy, reporter Steven Duncan and editor Joan Shepard when they complained of unfair treatment.

The four journalists sought back pay and promotions they said they had been denied. Attorneys said the jury will reconvene Monday to set a timetable for the awarding of damages.

"This is the first case that has analyzed the practices of a major metropolitan daily newspaper in the United States and how it discriminates against blacks," Alterman said. "Every newspaper in the country is looking at this case, and blacks in the media, especially in high-level positions, now will not fear to go further."

The Daily News, the nation's largest general newspaper with a daily circulation of 1.3 million copies, said it would appeal.

"The Daily News... remains convinced that it did not discriminate against four of its black staff members in the late 1970s and early 1980s," said Jack Dunleavy, assistant to the publisher.

Mayor denies using drugs

ATLANTA (UPI) — Mayor Andrew Young confirmed Thursday his name was on a list of alleged cocaine users given police by the estranged wife of civil rights leader Julian Bond, but he called allegations of his involvement "absolutely ridiculous."

Young denied ever using cocaine and said he never has seen the drug — "except in the movies."

"Any allegations about my involvement with these kinds of drugs, is absolutely ridiculous," Young told a City Hall news conference, less than 24 hours after returning from a three-week trip around the world.

Several blocks away, a federal grand jury opened its investigation into allegations by Alice Bond that her husband and other prominent public figures have used cocaine.

The grand jury reportedly will focus on why three Atlanta police narcotics detectives were removed from the investigation and given new assignments one day after they filed a written report on the allegations.

Scientist: U.S. may be missing real cancer risk

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Chemophobia" may be leading to over-regulation of some chemicals that are far less likely to cause cancer than natural substances in food, beverages, air and water, a noted researcher said Thursday.

Writing in the journal Science, Bruce Ames, chairman of the department of biochemistry at the University of California, Berkeley, said low levels of chemical pollutants in the environment present minimal cancer risks "relative to the background level of natural carcinogens."

"We are ingesting in our diet at least 10,000 times more by weight of natural pesticides than of man-made pesticide residues," Ames said.

"Obviously prudence is desirable with regard to pollution, but we do need to work out some balance between chemophobia with its high costs to the national wealth, and sensible management of industrial chemicals," he said.

"If you spend all your time on trivia, you miss the important things," Ames said. "We need to set priorities."

Ames and two associates calculated possible cancer hazards from lifetime human exposure to substances known to cause cancer in rats and mice. The three dozen substances included pollutants, pesticides, foods, food additives, drugs and chemicals encountered in the workplace.

The university said the study was "the first effort to rank the potential hazards to humans posed by real-life exposure to dozens of ... substances known to cause cancer in animals."

The scientists found cancer hazards from daily consumption of raw mushrooms, basil, peanut butter, wine, sake or beer, for example, were many times greater than the potential hazards from residues of banned pesticides ethylene dibromide and DDT, or chemicals that lead to the condemnation of some California wells.

Chlamydia disease costing nation $1.4 billion per year

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chlamydia, the most common sexually transmitted disease in the United States, costs the nation more than $1.4 billion a year, primarily because of serious complications in women, government researchers reported Thursday.

Dr. A. Eugene Washington of the Federal Centers for Disease Control said the study highlights the need for more active screening for the bacterial infection in women, who account about half the 4.6 million new cases every year but nearly 80 percent of the medical and related costs.

"Every sexually active woman who is of child-bearing age, who is not in a monogamous relationship and who is not absolutely certain she does not have chlamydia should be tested for this at least once a year," said Washington, who works for the Atlanta-based CDC out of the University of California at San Francisco.

A second CDC study indicates all women with gonorrhea should receive a two-drug regimen that would also kill chlamydia, "since between 25 and 50 percent of women with gonorrhea also have a chlamydial infection, which in most cases may show no symptoms," Washington said.

Reports on both studies were published in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Chlamydia trachomatis has been recognized as a sexually transmitted disease for only about 15 years, but is now more common than gonorrhea and syphilis combined. The bacteria are considered a major cause of pelvic infections, ectopic pregnancy and infertility in women. They also cause pink eye in infants and urinary tract infections in men.

About three-quarters of these costs ($726 million in direct medical costs and $687 million in days of work lost due to illness) can be attributed to an estimated 402,200 pelvic infections in women.

EPA says formaldehyde probably cause of cancer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency concluded Thursday that formaldehyde, a chemical used on fabrics and in construction materials, is probably capable of causing cancer in humans.

The EPA's finding now goes to other federal agencies and departments within the EPA to determine whether other uses of formaldehyde should be regulated. The most likely area where new rules could be proposed is in mobile homes.

Presenting a report on the risks of the chemical, the agency said that studies on humans and animals showed that breathing traces of formaldehyde could lead to irritations of the eyes, nose and throat and ultimately could cause cancer of the mouth, nose and lungs.

Various federal agencies have studied the effects of formaldehyde since 1978. In April 1982, a type of insulation using formaldehyde was banned.

Although the ban was later overturned, urea-formaldehyde insulation is no longer widely used.

Richard Hefter, the EPA official who headed the risk study, estimated that formaldehyde in mobile homes could contribute to two cases of cancer for every 10,000 people who live their entire lives in mobile homes.

IS YOUR THESIS IN THE FREEZER?

Mine was. By the time I had written 190 pages, I was convinced that my house would burn down. I kept my note cards on ice, too.

In May there was a power failure. A half-gallon of Mint Chip ice cream infiltrated my study of industrial espionage.

I should have made copies at Kinko's.

Dear College Graduates:

Vogler Motor Co. is happy to announce the College Graduate Purchase Program.

What does this mean to you? It means a new Ford or Mercury with no down payment, pre-approved financing. AND $400.00 cash!!!

What's the catch you ask?

1. You must receive at least a Bachelor's Degree between October 1, 1986 and October 1, 1987.
2. You have verifiable employment beginning within at least 120 days of your vehicle purchase.
3. Your salary will be sufficient to cover your usual living expenses and a car payment.
4. Your credit record, if you have one, is in good standing.

Vogler Motor Co., and Ford Motor Co. says you earned it.
Come in and see us at 301 N. Illinois Ave.

Sincerely,
J. Michael Blach

Long-knocker, low-scorer

Kozlowski leads women golfers, takes it in stride

By Darren Richardson
Staff Writer

Although her last four rounds have been in the 70s and she's been named Gateway Conference player of the week two weeks running, Saluki junior Tina Kozlowski remains unassuming about her golf game.

"I'm happy with the way I'm playing now," the 20-year-old marketing major said, smiling and looking bashfully to the ground. "But there's always room for improvement."

Kozlowski's motivation to constantly better her game dates back to her childhood in Valparaiso, Ind., where she grew up playing golf with a brother one year older and several of his friends.

"When I was growing up I had to play with all the boys," she said. "Until I got to high school, I had to hit from the men's tees in all the local tournaments. I think that may be why driving is the strong point of my game, because I had to hit the ball farther for my size than they did."

Kozlowski was eight years old when she got a set of golf clubs she could call her own, and she promptly put them to good use. She challenged the links of the Valparaiso Country Club on a regular basis, playing in junior golf leagues during the summer. Within three years, Kozlowski's game was good enough to earn her a tournament win.

"I was 11 when I won the nine-hole championship at the club," she said. "My score was somewhere in the high 40s."

Kozlowski has blossomed from her days of sibling golf rivalries and kiddie tournaments. During her senior year, she was recruited by such universities as Indiana and Michigan, but settled on SIU-C for a variety of reasons.

Tina Kozlowski watches the flight of her drive at Jackson Country Club Tuesday. Koz swings a streak of four 70s rounds.

"I really liked the campus here," she said. "The people seemed friendly, and I felt that I could make a difference in the golf team."

Junior Vicki Higerson, an electrical engineering major from Belleville, feels Kozlowski has done just that.

"She's a super asset for the team, definitely the leader at practices and tournaments," Higerson said. "She's always ready to help the players and won't let the rest of the team get down."

First-year Coach Diane Daugherty agrees with her players on Kozlowski's influence.

"She's a good thinker on the course and seems to keep getting better and better for us," the coach said.

With all the praise levied Kozlowski's way, it might Tina Kozlowski won Gateway Conference golfer-of-the-week two weeks straight.

seem that more is expected of the talented junior than she can deliver, but she sees things differently.

"I don't think there's any added pressure on me by being our number one golfer because we're all friends on the team," she said. "We're just a group of golfers out there trying to represent our school to the best of our ability."

After playing two seasons for former women's golf coach Sonya Stalberger, who resigned the position to become a stockbroker, Kozlowski views Daugherty as a boon to the team.

"Coach Daugherty seems to intrinsically motivate us individually," she said. "Her support and team spirit has helped to mold us into a team that works well together."

Kozlowski sees golf as a sort of "live and learn" sport.

"You almost have to make the mistake in order not to do it again," she said. "If you're one stroke off the lead on the 18th and you start thinking about the tournament instead of concentrating on the hole, you'll double bogey or do something careless. So the next time you're in that situation, chances are you won't do it again."

Although she's had many memorable moments that stand out as far as her individual accomplishments go, such as 12 rounds in the 70s this spring alone, Kozlowski hasn't abandoned the original reasons that brought her to SIU-C.

"To win as a team is the most important thing to me. It's no fun if you go out and have a good game if everyone else has an off day."

Kozlowski, who leads the Gateway Conference with a 77.9 average through 16 rounds, sees the upcoming conference championship tournament in Wichita, Kan. April 24-25 as a great opportunity for the entire team.

"We've got a couple of special reasons we want to repeat," she said. "We want to give Pat Putman, our only senior, a memorable finale. And we want to show Coach Daugherty how exciting it is to win a championship."

And with the dedication she, her teammates and coach continue to display, the modest housier's wish may very well come true.

Men golfers hold seventh into last round

The SIU-C men golfers hold seventh among a 22-team field at the Rail in Springfield and enter final round action today.

The golfers opted to attend class rather than play a practice round at the club that plays host to an LPGA event.

Coach Lew Hartzog said, "I'm sure they'll do better, now that they've got a feel for the course."

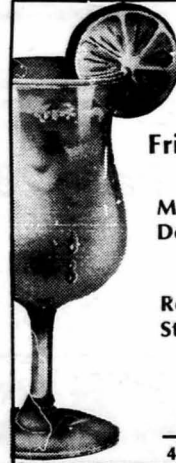

Jay Sala, Bobby Pavelonis and Mike Tucker carded 75 on the Par-72 course. Mark Maslauski finished in 80, and Jeff Mullican, who hurt his neck in a car accident, did not fare well at 84 strokes.

Northeast Missouri leads the field with a round of 292.

Rugby men go, women tackle Mizzou at home

MEN'S RUGBY: The undefeated men's rugby team will take on the Elgin City Club at Elgin April 18 at 1 p.m. It will be the 4-0 ruggers last regular-season match before tournament play begins.

WOMEN'S RUGBY: The 3-2 women's rugby team will battle Mizzou April 18 at noon. The match will be held at the Grand Avenue Fields across from the Recreation Center instead of the rugby pitch because ROTC helicopters will be using the field for a demonstration.

Coach B disagrees

Softball coach Kay Brechtelsbauer has a different opinion than that of the umpire during the SIU-C vs. Indiana State game earlier this season. The Salukis play two Gateway Conference doubleheaders at home this weekend.

centrates more on defense and when she's at bat, she just swings for singles.

Espeland has played 72 games for the Salukis and has 46 hits in 173 trips for a .266 career batting average to go along with 12 RBI.

Shupryt came in and made a quick impact on the team.

In 1985, her first season, Shupryt was selected team MVP and made all-conference while leading the Salukis with a .341 batting average that ranks sixth on the SIU-C all-time list. Shupryt also set the school record 46 hits during one season.

Shupryt has collected 101 hits, seven game winners and 33 RBI. Shupryt also holds the school record for most doubles in a career with 16.

This year Shupryt has had back problems that don't always allow her to play both games of a doubleheader.

"A lot of people would have quit with an injury like this, but I decided to mentally overcome it," Shupryt said.

Brechtelsbauer said Shupryt has a tremendous knowledge of the game to go along with excellent bat control and an ability to read defenses.

Shupryt described playing softball at SIU-C as a learning experience that has allowed her to see different attitudes and talents. "I have a ton of memories," she said.

Riedel is an outstanding base runner and has a great personality, Brechtelsbauer said. "She keeps us loose with her humor."

Riedel has played in 70 games and is 8-for-10 in stolen bases. She has scored 22 runs and knocked 12 RBI. Riedel led the team in walks with nine last year and has a total of 19.

"Softball keeps me in school and in shape," Riedel said. "I also play because I just want to have fun."

DeNoon said. "The bad weather really took its toll. Not a single one of our top scholarships athletes is healthy for the Kansas Relays."

With key relay people injured this week, DeNoon looks for strong individual performances from hurdler Kathy Raske (seeded fifth going in), heptathlete and high jumper Sue Anderson and long-distance star Vivian Sinou.

Raske is the Gateway Conference's top-rated 100-meter hurdler, having best defending GCAC champion Angie Taylor of Illinois State two consecutive weekends in the event. Last year, Raske set an SIU-C record in the 100 hurdles at the Kansas Relays, clocking in at 13.98 seconds for a sixth-place finish.

Sinou is rated No. 1 in the Gateway in the 3,000-meter run, while Anderson is rated tops in the conference in the high jump. Anderson's best effort in the high jump is a school-record five feet, nine inches, set at the Saluki Invitational March 9.

Sinou, who missed much of the indoor season with a muscle tear, is SIU-C's No. 2 all-time 3,000 runner at 9:45.19.

has the best long jump mark at 24-6.

Harrer is also ranked second in the javelin with a toss of 197-10 and third in the hammer throw and shot put with throws of 169-5 and 54-9 3/4, respectively.

Eric Bomball is listed sixth in the discus at 148-1 and fifth in the shot put at 49-1.

Behind Bradley in the long jump competition teammates Larry Holloway is fourth with a leap of 22-9 1/4, Aaron Smith is ranked seventh at 21-11 1/2, and Modiba Crawford is eighth at 21-10 1/4.

Crawford is also third in the triple jump with a leap of 47-6 1/2.

Mike Michels and Shane Weber are ranked second and third in the pole vault with efforts of 16-3 and 16-2, respectively.

In the high jump Demetris Theocharous is third with a leap of 6-10 and teammate Clark Dixon is fifth with a jump of 6-8.

In track events David Lamont is ranked first in the 5,000-meter run with a time of 14 minutes 27.65 seconds. Jack Shepherd and Ken Leek are eighth and tenth in the event with times of 15:13.52 and 15:20.94, respectively.

Pettigrew is second in the 1,500 meters with a time of 3:48.42 and Lamont is fourth at 3:50.70.

In the 10,000 meters Shepherd is fourth with a time of 30:49.02.

Grid battles, Boosters BBQ

Hot scrimmage cooking for Dorr, squad at P.H.S.

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

Saluki football fans will get the best of two worlds Saturday morning if they make the trip to Pickneyville High School.

Besides getting to see the 1987 edition of the Saluki grid team, fans will be invited to attend a barbecue sponsored by the Saluki Boosters Club. The barbecue is slated to begin at noon, immediately after the scrimmage. The scrimmage begins at 10 a.m.

As of Thursday morning, Saluki coach Ray Dorr had led his squad through 10 full practices and one scrimmage, and he says he's quite pleased with "every angle of the game we can look at."

"I'm not yet ready to say that we're going to be a better team than last year, but I do see a lot of things that are leading me to believe that we can be a better team," Dorr said.

Comparing this preseason squad to last year's spring roster, Dorr said he feels the players simply know what to expect.

"They understand what we're looking for as a coaching staff," Dorr said. "They know what to expect from us as coaches and they seem more determined to provide what we're wanting to see."

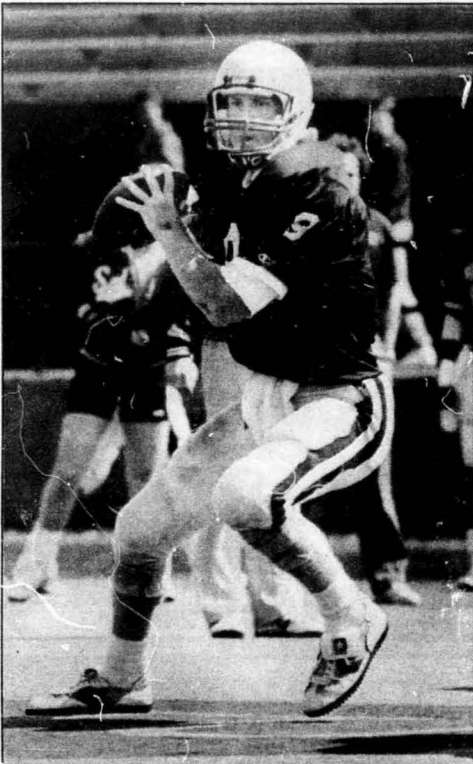

Dorr said his assistant coaches are now determining three things about the players competing for playing time.

"First we determine who the most intelligent player is. Second, we determine who is the most willing to learn. And then we must figure out who has the best shot to help the team," Dorr said.

A lot of names are popping into all three of the categories, a fact which leaves Dorr optimistic.

"Right now, the coaching staff feels that 90 percent of our players can help us out in the fall," Dorr said. "That figure leaves me feeling very excited about the development of our depth."

Dorr said depth would be a definite factor, as always, when the real season starts, and he's putting top priority on developing that depth.

Junior Kevin Brown searches for a receiver in a 9 of 17 outing in the gridder's first spring scrimmage. Brown will lead the quarterback charge into the second scrimmage 10 a.m. Saturday at Pickneyville High School.

Dorr, who has led SIU-C through four springs now, said the area he's noticed the most improvement in is the player's abilities to compete against each other.

"Last season and the year before, the players seemed a little reluctant to really get fired up and go out to play against each other in practice," Dorr said.

"They might be going a little bit overboard right now," he said, reflecting on several scuffles that have occurred in practice. "They are so intense, so enthusiastic, so determined — they're really showing some intestinal fortitude."

Dorr said the intensity of the practices would be good for the Salukis as long as the players remember not to carry their personal battles off the field.

"We've got to be big enough to go into the locker room, look the other guy in the eye and face the fact that we're all on the same team," Dorr said. "If we can't do that, then the intensity would become a negative factor, but I haven't seen anything like that and I just don't think its going to be a problem at all."

In other Saluki football notes, two more members of the team have exited.

Mark Kleist, a 6-0, 225-pound defensive lineman, has been relieved of his football obligations by Dorr and staff.

Also departing is Ryan Schumaker, a 6-4, 221-pound defensive lineman.

MVC doubles

Baseballers try two pairs vs. Shockers

By M.J. Starshak
Staff Writer

SIU-C's baseball team and the Wichita State Shockers, both tied for first with Bradley in the Missouri Valley Conference with 5-3 records, will slug out back-to-back doubleheaders Friday and Saturday at noon on Abe Martin Field.

The Shockers (33-13) swept four games from Illinois State last weekend and boast a 21-4 massacre over Nebraska Wednesday. Wichita State has powered its way into the top 25 in both the Baseball America and Collegiate Baseball polls.

The Salukis (25-9) knocked off Big Ten foe Wisconsin in a three-game series as well as taking three of four games from Creighton in their first MVC matchup.

Slugging percentage may be an important factor in this weekend's games as the Shockers have hit 87 doubles, 26 triples and 32 homeruns to SIU-C's 56 doubles, seven triples and 18 homers.

While the Shockers may put the ball in play a lot, the Salukis should be able to field cleanly, since they lead the league in that department with a .970 percentage.

Wichita State has averaged three stolen bases per game, but SIU-C catcher Joe Hall has been impressive in nailing would-be thieves. Hall has caught 18 baserunners this season. The Salukis have 50 stolen bases to their credit in 61 attempts.

The Shockers' offense is led by Tim Raley, who is hitting .374 with 35 RBI and six homers and Rick Olivas, .323 average with 31 RBI and six homeruns.

SIU-C ace hurlers Dale Kisten and Todd Neibel are scheduled to pitch Friday's twinbill.

Kisten is 6-1 with a 2.38 ERA. Neibel is 4-1, has a 4.39 ERA and has struck out 29 in 41 innings pitched.

The Shockers will send David Haas (9-1 and 2.87 ERA) and Greg Brummett (6-2 and 2.18 ERA) to the mound against the Salukis in Friday's twinbill.

Springfield's Mathiot signs Saluki baseball intent letter

Mike Mathiot, of Springfield, signed a letter of intent to play baseball for SIU-C and he could wind up playing many positions.

Saluki coach Richard "Itchy" Jones always seeks well-rounded athletes, and Mathias fits that bill as "the type of kid who can play two or three sports — he's the city champ in golf and went to state in tennis."

"He's an offensive player who will be able to fill in gaps on defense," Jones added.

Mathiot bats .420 with seven homeruns. He struck out only five times in 112 at-bats.

His high school coach, Jim Steinwart, says Mathiot "is so versatile, he can do anything but pitch."

Although he has potential to make the professional draft this summer, Mathiot inked the letter for Saluki assistant coach Kirk Champion Thursday evening at Springfield.

Injuries still concern SIU-C women's track coach Don DeNoon going into the Kansas Relays this weekend. Among the missing will be 1986 All-America field specialist Rhonda McCausland.

McCausland is suffering from a pinched nerve sustained in a November 1986 car accident, and will be lost for the season, DeNoon said, adding that the team will miss her point totals from the shot put, javelin and discus. She holds the school record in each event. Also missing from the Kansas Relays but expected back in training next week are sprint and relay runners Angie Nunn and Carlton Blackman. Both are suffering from pulled hamstrings.

McCausland, Nunn and

Blackman were all sidelined after the SEMO Relays, April 3-4. Cold and windy weather at Cape Girardeau, Mo., that weekend caused a variety of Saluki injuries. "The SEMO meet killed us,"

Three Saluki softball team members will play their last home games this weekend.

First the Salukis, 16-13 overall and 7-3 in the Gateway, play host for a doubleheader against conference rival Western Illinois 2 p.m. today at the IAW Fields. SIU-C follows with a home doubleheader against league foe Bradley at noon Saturday.

The Salukis are tied for the Gateway's second place with Wichita State and they need to turn the home field advantage into four wins for a good chance to claim the conference title. Captain Cindy Espeland,

Jenny Shupryt

Dana Riedel

Jenny Shupryt and Dana Riedel will make their last senior appearances.

Espeland is known for her outstanding defensive play at third base, but this year she has added extra offense with a .342 batting average.

"Cindy felt she could hit and all of the hard work has paid off," coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. "She is doing an outstanding job this year and has really helped the team with her leadership."

Men's track and field coach Bill Cornell said he expects the Salukis to be one of the top three teams at the non-scoring Arkansas Invitational today and Saturday in Fayetteville, Ark.

Cornell said host Arkansas and Missouri will be strong teams and he doesn't expect much from Tulsa and Oral Roberts.

"At each meet we are looking for Andy Pettigrew, Bret Garrett and Ron Harrer to qualify for nationals and for everybody to peak for the Missouri Valley Conference Championships," Cornell said.

As of April 12, the Salukis have a few athletes atop their respective events in the MVC outdoor track and field standings.

In field events Harrer is first in the discus with a throw of 184 feet 4 inches and Brian Bradley
