U. S. strikes Iranian ships, oil rigs

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — The United States handed Iran its worst military punishment at sea Monday since the U.S. naval buildup in the Persian Gulf nine months ago and the embattled Tehran government warned of a "severe response" against U.S. forces.

U.S. forces demolished two Iranian oil platforms, destroyed an Iranian gunboat and damaged two Iranian frigates.

Iran later said one of its warships shot down a U.S. helicopter. The Pentagon reported one helicopter missing.

In Washington, Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci said

Thatcher says U.S. raid 'justified'

Monday he knew of no American casualties from a day of hostilities in the Persian Gulf, but that a two-man, U.S. attack helicopter was missing.

Defense Department officials said naval forces were searching for the Cobra chopper, a Marine aircraft that had been stationed aboard the USS Wainwright.

"We have no known American casualties at this point in time. But there is always a certain amount of miscommunication and confusion in these kinds of situations. Until the dust settles we cannot be definitive," Carlucci told reporters at a late afternoon briefing.

He said, "We do have a Cobra helicopter right now that is about 40 minutes overdue" in returning to the ship. "We are concerned about the Cobra helicopter."

Plumes of black smoke from the oil-fed fires billowed into the azure sky, marking the first U.S. attack of its kind since October when two similar oil rigs were demolished.

Iran said the destruction of the two platforms killed and wounded an unspecified number of Oil Ministry personnel and workers.

It began with the destruction of two oil platforms in retaliation for a mine explosion that crippled the U.S. frigate Roberts last week.

Snipping sources said a third oil platform at Raksh also was on fire, apparently confirming a Tehran Radio report of U.S. forces attacking three Iranian oil platforms. In Washington, the Pentagon denied the report of a U.S. attack on a third platform.

Hours later, U.S. Navy ships sank an Iranian gunboat and crippled two Iranian frigates in the worst naval defeat for Iran in the gulf since the U.S. warship buildup began in the turbulent waterway in July.

The frigate Simpson sank an Iranian, guided-missile patrol boat that had fired a Harpoon missile at the cruiser Wainwright and missed, U.S. officials said.

"Abandon ship. We are going to fire on you," the Simpson twice radioed the Council to hear traffic experts

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

Traffic experts will present suggestions on how Carbondale could improve its traffic flow at 7 tonight during the City Council meeting in the council chamber.

Ted Jennings, district engineer for the Illinois Department of Transportation, said two experts will explain the traffic problems then "mix and match" solutions and discuss the impact of each suggestion.

"I doubt they'll give a recommendation, but they'll tell what effect, if certain things are done, will have," Jennings said.

The St. Louis consulting firm of Crawford, Bunte and Brammeier was paid about $87,000 to evaluate Carbondale's traffic problems, he said. But the study isn't complete, Jennings added.

"After their presentation, they (the firm) will go back, finalize their report, make conclusions and give cost estimates," he said. "I have little doubt it (the final report) will be much different than the preliminary report."

Jennings said he would be at the City Council meeting to explain the Illinois Department of Transportation's opinions on the alternatives.

Critic, Pettit make up

By John Baldwin
Staff Writer

State Rep. Ron Stephens, R-Troy, apologized to Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit for any "personal harm" caused by making a public issue of the lambskin business-card holders.

In a letter to Pettit dated April 15, Stephens said: "I must apologize for any inconvenience or embarrassment my recent comments have caused you."

Stephens said in late March that the holders were an example of bad spending habits. Pettit had sent one of the holders to Stephens to show "appreciation" for Stephens' "support of higher education."

Stephens used the holders to support his argument that the state needs to change its spending habits rather than increase taxes. Stephens has said, however, that he feels education does need more state support.

Man found guilty of Nazi war crimes

JERUSALEM (UPI) — John Demjanjuk, a retired Cleveland autoworker who claimed he was a victim of mistaken identity, was convicted Monday of being "Ivan the Terrible," the sadistic Nazi concentration camp guard who sent thousands of Jews to their deaths during World War II.

He faces death by hanging. The packed courtroom erupted in applause and police officers fanned out through the spectators as Chief Judge Dov Levin read from a three-judge panel's lengthy verdict against Demjanjuk, 68.

"We determine a decision without a shadow of a doubt — that the accused, Ivan John Demjanjuk, who is standing to be judged before us, is Ivan, nicknamed 'Ivan the Terrible,' the operator of the gas chambers in Treblinka who perpetrated and performed vicious acts and torture, which have been described," Levin said.

Levin set a Monday date for sentencing Demjanjuk. A death sentence would be carried out by hanging.

Demjanjuk walked out of the courthouse about 30 minutes after the verdict was read, hands cuffed in front of him and surrounded by about a dozen police officers.

"I am an innocent man. I will appeal and I'm sure I will win," he shouted to reporters. "This is ridiculous — what happened ha-yom," using the Hebrew word for "today."

Rioting in Israel persists; 2 more Palestinians dead

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Two Palestinians were killed by Israeli gunfire Monday during a third day of rioting in the occupied territories since the assassination of a top PLO leader, Palestinian sources said. During the weekend, at least 16 Palestinians were killed and 137 wounded by army gunfire in riots that erupted hours after the death of Khalil Al-Wazir, second only to Yasser Arafat in the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Panamanian banks re-open for deposits only

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — Banks in Panama opened their doors for the first time in nearly two months Monday, but only to receive deposits and not to allow withdrawals by cash-strapped Panamanians caught in Washington's efforts to oust Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega. Two state-owned banks and most of the 60 private banks in Panama unlocked their doors, but customers and bank personnel said the financial institutions were limiting operations to accepting deposits.

Final round of Nicaraguan peace talks begin

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Negotiators for the U.S.-backed Contra rebels and the Sandinista government began the last day of their high-level peace talks Monday with little hope of reaching a concrete agreement to end the 7-year-old civil war. A weekend of proposals and counterproposals produced only accusations from each side that the other was trying to block progress to a lasting peace and prolong the war that has killed an estimated 50,000 people.

Trial winds down for 8 in food poisoning case

MADRID, Spain (UPI) — A state prosecutor Monday demanded prison terms of 61,500 years each for eight businessmen accused of selling toxic cooking oil blamed for killing 605 people in history's worst mass food poisoning. The prosecutor's demand wrapped up the state's case in the trial of 38 people charged with selling the oil, which the prosecution said caused a malady that has killed 605 people and affected nearly 25,000 others since May 1981.

Shultz to go to Moscow for pre-summit talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz goes to Moscow for pre-summit meetings this week but an administration official said Monday he takes with him dwindling hopes for a pact to reduce strategic nuclear weapons. Shultz was to fly to Moscow Tuesday to continue a series of meetings with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze to try to resolve differences and smooth difficulties in U.S.-Soviet relations before President Reagan leaves for his May 29-June 2 trip to Moscow for his fourth summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Catholic Church's tax-exempt status argued

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If the Supreme Court allows the Catholic Church's tax exemption to be challenged because it actively opposes legal abortions, the government could be sued to end tax exemptions for churches taking political stands on civil rights and the economy, lawyers argued Monday. Allan Horowitz, arguing on behalf of the government, called the suit involving the Catholic Church "theoretical and abstract," and said if it is allowed to continue it will "expose the government to an untold number of suits."

Panel: Independent FAA needed for air safety

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A presidential panel on Monday recommended establishing an independent federal aviation authority with a "safety czar" responsible for keeping America's skies safe for air travel. The panel's report called for an independent Federal Aviation Authority headed by an administrator who is appointed by the president for a fixed term. Under the present system, the FAA is part of the Transportation Department and its administrator reports to the transportation secretary.

Document: Woman planned spouse's murder

SEATTLE (UPI) — A woman accused of killing two people with cyanide-laced pain capsules planned her husband's death for years and asked about hiring a hit man, according to documents released Monday at the start of her trial. Legal briefs by the defense and prosecution in the federal product tampering trial of Stella Nickell were made public as jury selection began from a panel of 100 people.

Food banks to depend on local donations

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

Illinois will have to rely on community groups to give food banks more food and money as the federal government phases out surplus food distribution, an Illinois Department of Public Aid spokesman said.

But Jamie Tuttle, a spokeswoman for the Murphysboro food bank, said she doubts that the food bank will have the resources to pick up the slack.

Dan Pittman, a spokesman for the department of public aid, said Monday that commodities like cheese would be reduced and that the department would rely heavily on community groups to keep food distribution at the same level as it is now.

Tuttle said, "It will be very rough. We're not going to be able to give out as much (food). We can't afford to go out and buy a lot of food."

The United Way gives the food bank $3,500 a year and other organizations like the Key Club and Lion's Club give donations, but churches donate most of its food and money, she said.

"A lot of churches are stressed right now," Tuttle said. "But they're going to have to try and come through with an extra collection. Some (of the churches) just haven't helped out and others can only give $9 or $10."

Jane Hughes, director of Carbondale's Human Development Division, said she doesn't think food banks will be able to fulfill people's needs when the U.S. Department of Agriculture phases out its surplus food distribution.

"If (USDA) food is not available, I can't imagine the community being able to replace the quantity and types of food through private donations," Hughes said. "The loss will be hard to offset unless there are other things out there that I'm not aware of."

The federal government has said it is gradually eliminating its Temporary Food Assistance Program because of a dwindling surplus of food commodities provided by farmers.

However, Pittman said Illinois will meet most of its surplus food distribution commitments through June despite reductions because it has stored a surplus of foods.

Murderer awaits sentencing

By John Mohler
Staff Writer

A Murphysboro woman convicted of the murder of her sister last September will be sentenced Wednesday morning at Jackson County Courthouse.

Dianne Drakeford, 31, will be sentenced for the second-degree murder of Ellouise Burton and for armed violence.

Drakeford stabbed Burton to death with a knife following an argument outside the Palms tavern on North Washington Street in Carbondale.

Burton died the next morning at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale of complications relating to the stab wound.

Drakeford faces a prison sentence of between 4 and 30 years for the Feb. 29 jury conviction.

Drakeford is being held at the Jackson County Jail, Jackson County State's Attorney John Clemons has said. Drakeford will be taken to Dwight Correctional Center after the sentencing.

One of Drakeford's lawyers, public defender Robert Van Derhoff, has said he will appeal the case.

Prison bill supported by state lawmakers

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

Illinois would be required to construct new prisons in counties where correctional centers have been shut down if a bill sponsored by State Rep. Bruce Richmond is passed.

The bill is designed to protect counties, especially those in Southern Illinois, from loss of jobs and revenue if the state decides to close one prison and build another, Richmond, D-Murphysboro, said.

This bill also could save the state money by utilizing abandoned prison buildings, State Rep. David Phelps, D-Eldorado, co-sponsor of the bill, said.

Richmond said threats to close the Menard Correctional Center in Randolph County prompted him to write the legislation.

The Menard Correctional Center has a great impact on the county's economy and if closed it would need to be replaced to keep people employed, Richmond said.

The age of the facility and budget constraints at Menard have been given as reasons to close the correctional center. But Richmond said it probably won't be closed in the immediate future.

The legislation would be a precaution in case the facility is closed, he said.

"County boards would have the option of accepting or rejecting the new facility, so local opinions must be considered," Richmond said. But there is no question concerning the Menard facility — the Randolph County Board opposes closing it, he said.

Under Richmond's bill, construction of any new prisons would have to be completed within five years, Phelps said. This would prevent construction from being delayed and prevent a new legislature from making new laws, he said.

Phelps said his district has more correctional centers than any other district in the state and he wants to guarantee that they aren't shut down.

The bill will go before the House rules committee this week to see if it will have a hearing this session, Richmond said.

Time for action on transit system

THE MASS TRANSIT referendum passed by more than a 2-to-1 margin in Wednesday's student elections. It garnered 1,296 of 2,003 ballots cast. This overwhelming support leaves little doubt that such a system is both needed and desired.

But the Board of Trustees will have the final say. The Board should respond to students' voices and implement a system as quickly as responsible judgment permits. Students should realize, too, that their support must not wane. They must continue to fight for the type of system they want.

AS WITH MOST worthwhile things, the mass transit system is going to cost — $15 per student per semester according to the ballot. It may seem like a lot at first, but the powers-that-be should remember that students, a financially-troubled lot, have decided that the service is worth the cost.

Providing a reliable service requires much research. Surveys and studies should be conducted to determine when students would use the system most. Besides just providing transportation to and from classes, there should be evening and weekend service, including to shopping centers and business districts in the city.

THE UNIVERSITY SHOULD look at options already proposed, too. An unsuccessful presidential candidate in the latest election had proposed a "park-and-ride" system, in which students could park in a spacious lot or lots and ride a bus to classes.

The University could show support and encourage riders by making these lots free for both registered and non-registered vehicles. Eventually, the whole sticker system could be greatly reduced.

There are many other possibilities to be explored, and all should be given a fair hearing before being adopted or dismissed.

Whatever happens, the Board of Trustees cannot deny that they've heard the students' views. They should act accordingly as soon as possible, so all of us can see SIU-C's parking woes vanish and readily-available transportation take their place.

If you must tan, tan with caution

AAAAAH! Those wonderful, glorious, warm rays of the sun!

And with those warm rays comes that quest for the perfect suntan. But also with those warm rays and "healthy-looking" suntans come those painful-looking (and probably painful-feeling) sunburns. And unfortunately, years down the road come those small nodules, patches, or bumps called skin cancer. And also down that same road come those wrinkles and a nice, tough, leathery look on the skin.

Wrinkles and a tough, leathery look may look great on a well-worn leather jacket, but that quality is somehow lost on a 40-year-old face.

I'm not knocking the sun — I enjoy it as much as anyone else. But too much can be very harmful. Over 400,000 new cases of skin cancer are reported every year, and that number will continue to rise unless we cool it a little with that quest for the perfect tan.

If we must have a tan, though, there are safer ways to do it. Try sunning before 10 a.m. or after 3 p.m., when ultraviolet rays are weaker. Use sunscreens that contain PABA (para-amino-benzoic acid). PABA helps you tan gradually and reduces the chance of sunburn.

Also, a good general tanning program is 15 minutes during your first day and five minutes more each day thereafter until you have a good base tan, according to the American Cancer Society. These tips are especially important for light-skinned people.

If we have to have good tans so we can look healthy, let's do it as safely as possible. Or, better yet, let's just enjoy our own natural, beautiful skin colors. After all, who really wants to look like a well-worn leather jacket with skin cancer on it 20 years down the road? — Andrew Hoffman, graduate student, health services administration

SPC ruining Springfest in quest for glory

Who or what gives the Student Programming Council the authority to dictate what booths at Springfest will contain, who may sell T-shirts, and who will provide sponsorship for these endeavors? Is this not an all-University function?

The fascist tactics used by SPC to thwart sales of T-shirts and the program I was scheduled to perform in are reminiscent of Nazi Germany. The program, which was sponsored by SPC Special Programs and was called the "Big Top Bash," was stopped by SPC because it said the show would interfere with SPC's events. SPC also said the word "bash" connotes alcohol use and that the word therefore could not be used. I believe SPC is interested more in glory than in putting on an event at which students can have fun.

Any person or organization on campus should be able to participate in Springfest as long as University guidelines are followed — without the phony backstabbing and mentorship that SPC feels is necessary to preserve "continuity." If SPC had a trademark right to Springfest, this might be a different matter. But they don't have such a right to deny others the right to participate.

Sadly enough, we who are denied participation in Springfest are not the losers. The big losers are the students who will attend the festival. Springfest could have been so much more this year. — Gregory Calvert, junior, political science

Opinions from elsewhere

Arkansas Gazette, (Little Rock)

Not too long ago, Japanese leaders apologized — sort of — to the Chinese, who had protested because a new Japanese history textbook presented the Rape of Nanking in a light not unfavorable to the Japanese. In fact, the Japanese were an invading army and the atrocities they committed at Nanking have been well-documented, though the exact number of casualties can only be estimated.

Recently, it was reported that newsreel footage of the slaughter at Nanking is cut from the Academy-Award winning film "The Last Emperor" when it is shown in Japan.

WWII was a terrible thing for everyone involved, including the Japanese, who have special reason to remember Hiroshima and Nagasaki and who want everyone else to remember them too.

But if the human race is to learn from history, the learning can't be accomplished cafeteria-style, studying this segment and ignoring that one. It is not enough to reflect on how WWII ended. People and nations also should reflect on how the war began, painful though those reflections may be.

Aid to Contras should help free Nicaragua

I refer to the letter of my colleague, Lee Hartman, (Daily Egyptian, April 11), in which he recommended the allocation of the humanitarian aid voted for recently by Congress. Hartman included specific cases of people harmed or killed by the Contras — among them, Ben Linder.

May I add the name of Maria Mayorga, a family friend, who was shot in cold blood by the Sandinistas while seeking shelter with her husband. Like Linder, Maria was a foreigner (Costa Rica). Unlike Linder, she did not carry a rifle, and, unlike Linder, she was not giving aid to an organization set up as an enemy of the United States, according to the organization's own tenets and precepts.

Much of the humanitarian aid should go to devices and forces that will force the totalitarian state of Nicaragua to become once more an open society that will include the half-million exiles of whom we hear very little because of censorship and American media that have protected a Marxist-Leninist enclave in the Western Hemisphere for 10 years. — Lincoln Canfield, professor emeritus of Spanish

New computers prompt evaluation of job positions

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

School of Journalism Director Walter B. Jaehnic is re-evaluating the job descriptions of eight professional and faculty staff positions at the Daily Egyptian.

Jaehnic said a proposal to purchase new computer equipment for the DE prompted the re-evaluation. The new equipment could change the way the student newspaper is produced, Jaehnic said.

"I could be spending $200,000 on new equipment in the next few weeks," Jaehnic said. "Before we fill the vacant positions I want to be assured we have the right people in them."

Three civil service positions on the production and advertising staffs currently are vacant. The job descriptions of the other positions, which include the faculty managing editor and faculty business manager, also could change with the purchase of the equipment, Jaehnic said.

Jaehnic has formed a three-member subcommittee to review the job descriptions. The members include himself, James J. Brodell, DE faculty business manager, and George Brown, professor of journalism.

Jaehnic said student worker positions will not be eliminated.

Two of the vacant civil service positions — classified advertising supervisor and daytime assistant superintendent of printing — are being held by student workers.

"There are more and more cases where we are giving students the chance to work in key positions," Brodell said.

Brodell also acts as superintendent of printing, the third vacant position.

Jaehnic said he hoped to have the results of the subcommittee's evaluations in the next few weeks. He also said he hoped to begin advertising for the vacant positions and purchasing the new equipment by August.

The subcommittee's evaluations will be submitted to the Daily Egyptian policy and review board for further discussion and approval.

The policy and review board, which consists of journalism faculty, students and professionals, approves policy changes at the DE.

lawyer Yoram Sheftel, who predicted the court would find his client guilty, told reporters "there is definitely going to be an appeal."

Demjanjuk was not in court when the verdict was announced. He said he suffered from back pain and was permitted to listen to the proceedings from a holding cell in the rear of the building where the trial was held. Demjanjuk heard the verdict through headphones while lying on a cot.

Demjanjuk was convicted of all four crimes with which he was charged under Israel's 1950 Nazi and Nazi Collaborators Law. The charges against Demjanjuk were war crimes, crimes against humanity, crimes against the Jewish people and crimes against a persecuted people.

Prosecution witnesses charged Demjanjuk was the guard who jammed thousands of prisoners into the gas chambers of the Treblinka death camp in Nazi occupied Poland. The guard also fired up the engines that fed deadly fumes into the chambers, where more than 850,000 people, mostly Jews, perished in 1942 and 1943.

The judges took about 12 hours to read excerpts from their opinion before they announced their verdict.

Pettit said he thought Stephens' letter was "a very good thing to do."

Pettit has been working to get a tax increase to supplement state funding for higher education.

Stephens said in the letter that he was using the holders to "shift the debate from a tax increase to the greater issue of balancing the budget by looking at both sides of the ledger."

"What you (Pettit) and I agree on is that more funding is needed for education," Stephens said. "I really do not object to spending more money on education — in fact,

I support it."

Pettit said he was pleased that Stephens "took the time to reaffirm his support for higher education."

Stephens said that when he wrote the letter he was not aware that the holders were paid for through a University account rather than by the Foundation as Pettit had originally stated. But he said that did not affect the intent of his letter.

"I never intended to publicly embarrass him," Stephens said. "My intention is to make sure Illinois questions its spending priorities."

Claude Forest, a University of Illinois professor and an expert in urban planning, is scheduled to describe the benefits of an east-west bypass project that would route westbound traffic one way on Main Street and eastbound traffic one way on Walnut Street.

That project would link the two routes with a diagonal road running north and south from Walnut to Main that would be built behind National Supermarket at a cost of about $1 million, Jennings said.

Route 13 traffic is already one way west on Main Street and east on Walnut Street from Lewis Lane to University Avenue.

In additional business, City

Manager Bill Dixon said a report on the city-sponsored retreat on downtown revitalization April 9 will be presented.

Dixon said that he wasn't sure if the Council would discuss the report or what its next move in planning downtown development might be.

Dixon said the council would know more after the Carbondale Downtown Revitalization Committee meets at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Unitarian Church, 201 W. Elm Street.

The committee and the city are working on downtown revitalization with a "team approach," Dixon said.

Iranian warship, according to monitored transmissions.

Two warplanes from the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise struck the Iranian frigate Sahand after the vessel approached three U.S. warships and an A-6 Intruder jet attacked another Iranian frigate, the Sabalan, with a laser-guided bomb, the Pentagon said. Both ships were damaged, it said.

Iran later acknowledged that two of its frigates had sustained "heavy damage," but said they had hit an American warship. The Pentagon did not report any damage to its ships.

The conflict at sea quickly became a war of words as Iran condemned the U.S. attack and warned through its Islamic Republic News Agency that a "severe response" awaited the United States from Tehran "now that it has overtly involved itself" in the Gulf war on the side of Iraq.

At the same time, Iraq claimed its forces recaptured the strategic Faw Peninsula and occupied the Iraqi strip of territory for the first time in two years, pushing Iranian troops east of the vital Shatt al-Arab waterway that divides the two warring countries. Heavy fighting was reported under way.

Iran denied Iraq captured Faw, situated 350 miles southeast of Baghdad and 50 miles south of the heavily defended southern Iraqi port of Basra, and charged that Iraqi planes attacked Iranian troops with chemical bombs.

The Iraqi claim of a major success in its offensive against Faw, if true, was overshadowed by the U.S. naval and Marine assault against Iranian targets in the war-stricken Gulf.

'Snowy II' destroys original

By Richard Nunee
Entertainment Editor

"Return to Snowy River" is a classic example of Hollywood destroying a good thing in an attempt to mine box office gold.

The movie is the sequel to "The Man From Snowy River," a highly successful Australian film, which became that county's version of "Gone With the Wind."

"The Man From Snowy River" was a breathtaking western set in the outbacks of Australia. The movie successfully meshed an absorbing, though somewhat predictable, plot with beautiful scenery and astonishing horsemanship.

Film Review

In "Return to Snowy River," Walt Disney Studios must have thought it would be a good idea to let plot take a back seat to action and scenery.

The movie opens with Jim Craig (Tom Burlinson) returning to Snowy River after three years of rounding up wild horses in the mountains. He has gathered the horses so he can "build up a stake" to support himself and Jessica Harrison (Sigrid Thornton), the woman he loves. It's a fine beginning, but the plot soon becomes convoluted in a sappy love story. Two evil horse barons, who want to take control of Snowy River so they can monopolize the horse industry, also are injected into the plot.

The cinematography and stunt work in "Return to Snowy River" surpasses its original. There are some scenes that look almost unreal in their beauty, as if they were painted on the screen by wildlife artists.

In the movie's most stunning scene, Craig, while in pursuit of the men who have stolen his horses, takes a shortcut and tries to ride down a steep mountainside. The scene is borrowed from the original movie and, though it works again in the sequel, it serves only as a reminder of its much better predecessor.

Artists' contributions overlooked — teacher

By Dena Schulte
Staff Writer

Artists' contributions to society often are overlooked but have a direct effect on the images around us, including the images of television and advertising, an art professor said.

"I'm not saying the public is ignorant or doesn't care," Ed Shay, a University art professor, said. "I'm saying it's our responsibility to make sure the public is aware of what an artist does and what good art is."

Shay, other artists and art administrators from the Midwest discussed problems they see in the art world at a retreat April 11 and 12 in Cleveland.

The group also discussed ways to educate the public about art and generate a greater interest in art, Shay said.

"It was a brainstorming session," Shay said. "We saw a need to do a better job of communicating to the public how important art is."

During the two-day retreat, the group decided to create educational television programs explaining what artists do in their studios, he said.

"In most cases, TV programs show an artist in a studio working with an unorthodox material, such as toilet paper," Shay said. "People laugh and the artist is seen as a baboon, not a person with serious ideas."

He said most public misconceptions about art come from the media. The media focuses on stories about artists who are doing something off-the-wall.

In most cases, people don't buy quality art works for their homes, he said.

"It's because they aren't educated about what kinds of art are available," Shay said. "We need to encourage the public to become aware of what good art is."

Richard Stone, undergraduate student in design and one of the 1988 winners of the Rickert-Ziebold Trust Award, said a lot of negative publicity about art comes from the lack of motivation some artists have about displaying their works.

"I think everyone (artists) needs to be more motivated. A lot of people are, but a lot of people aren't," Stone said.

Lack of motivation also keeps many graduates from working in their field after they graduate, he said.

More publicity about art exhibits is needed on campus, Stone said.

Some students are trying to promote awareness of art on campus.

Members of Students for the Arts sponsored the "SIU Forum for the Arts," April 1, a forum which combined poetry, visual and performance art by University students and area artists.

The next forum will be at 7 p.m. April 28 in the Student Center Ballroom A, she said. Poetry, theater, visual art and music will be included in the forum.

'Eccentric' N.Y. sculptor dies at 87

NEW YORK (UPI) — Louise Nevelson, the flamboyant grand dame of American art whose pioneering work in wood and steel sculpture gained her international acclaim, died Sunday at the age of 87.

The fiercely independent, some would say eccentric, artist known for her heavy, false eyelashes and bizarre jewelry, had been in poor health for several months but continued to work until her death with the aid of her son.

She recently completed a 35-foot black steel sculpture which is being installed at the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md.

Nevelson died Sunday evening at her home in Manhattan's Soho artists' quarter.

Former grad student has second transplant

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A former University graduate student woman was in critical but stable condition Monday following the first single-lung transplant in Missouri, officials at Barnes Hospital said.

Robin Sigler, 26, Carterville, underwent a six-hour emergency operation Sunday.

She had previously undergone a heart-lung transplant at Barnes Hospital in 1986. Since then, she had experienced scarring in her transplanted lungs caused by chronic inflammation, but her heart was working well, said Dr. R. Morton Bolman, who headed the transplant team.

Sigler is the first known patient in the United States to receive a single lung transplant following a heart-lung transplant, Bolman said.

Sigler, a former graduate student at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale, was admitted to the hospital on April 15 because of her breathing difficulties. Doctors then determined she had only a few days to live without a lung transplant.

Authorities won't talk about deaths

COLLINSVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — Police remained tight-lipped Monday about their investigation into the apparent beating deaths of two men whose bodies were found in a motel room over the weekend.

The victims were identified as Nathaniel Johnson, 21, and Thomas Duncan, 26, both of East St. Louis.

The bodies were found by an acquaintance about 10:30 a.m. Saturday in a room at the Thrifty Inn on Illinois Route 157 at Interstates 55-70, police said. Collinsville is about 10 miles east of St. Louis.

No suspects were in custody Monday, and no additional information about the case was being released, a spokesman for the Collinsville Police Department said.

The victims were beaten to death, Madison County Coroner Dallas Burke said.

Mayor of suburb indicted

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dixmoor Mayor Kenneth Fisher was indicted Monday by a federal grand jury for allegedly accepting bribe money to allow a gambling operation to flourish in the south suburb for at least five years.

Benjamin Laster of Downers Grove, who allegedly supplied the bribe money, and Samuel Perry of Calumet City, who allegedly acted as a "bagman" and brought the bribe money to the mayor, also were indicted in the scheme.

Fisher was charged with racketeering, racketeering conspiracy, lying to the FBI and obstruction of justice. He faces a maximum 55-year prison term and a $1.2 million fine if convicted, U.S. Attorney Anton Valukas said.

Laster, who allegedly paid bribes to Fisher from 1982 through last August, was charged with racketeering and conspiracy. Perry also was charged with racketeering and conspiracy, Valukas said.

The gambling operation allegedly was run by Laster at Benji's Lounge in Dixmoor. Fisher allegedly assured Laster that Dixmoor police would overlook gambling at the establishment if he paid bribes, the indictment said.

The bribery scheme was uncovered when Laster allegedly offered a bribe to Dixmoor Police Chief Anton Graf, who then accepted the payments while working undercover for the FBI.

Israel blamed by Tunisia in slaying of PLO leader

TUNIS, Tunisia (UPI) — Tunisia blamed Israel Monday for the assassination of the PLO's No. 2 leader, Khalil Al-Wazir, and said an Israeli military aircraft circled just outside Tunisian airspace as up to 40 commandos carried out the slaying.

Meantime, Palestinian sources said Al-Wazir will be buried in Syria Wednesday in a move that could signal improved ties between Damascus and Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat.

Better relations between Arafat and Syria could reunite the feuding factions of the PLO, allowing the group to give its full support to the Palestinian uprisings in the Israeli-occupied territories, a guerrilla leader said.

Al-Wazir, known as Abu Jihad, was widely viewed as the coordinator behind the 4-month-old Palestinian uprisings in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. He was killed Saturday by a commando team that burst into his Tunis villa firing submachine guns and silencer-equipped pistols.

The PLO blamed the attack on Israel. But Israel, which does not acknowledge operations carried out by its commandos, has declined comment on the assassination.

Tunisian investigators Monday handed President Zine El Abidine Ali a report that blamed Israel.

"The inquiry has established that Israel planned and carried out this cowardly terrorist act," the official Tunisian Press Agency quoted the committee as saying.

"The terrorist group that assassinated the Palestinian leader at dawn had sophisticated technology. Only states are capable of carrying out this kind of terrorism," the report said.

Police sources said the commando unit was made up of about 40 armed men, and while about eight commandos stormed the villa, a woman used electronic gadgets to knock out the telephones of the villa and the local police station.

The report said an Israeli military Boeing 707 with registration IX977 was flying just outside Tunisian airspace at the time of the killing. The airplane remained 33 miles from Tunisian territory to avoid retaliation from the Tunisian Air Force while it also neutralized tel phones in the area, the report said.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Charles Redman said the United States condemned the killing but "had no knowledge of nor was it involved in any way in this assassination."

Bombs explode in Frankfurt

FRANKFURT, West Germany (UPI) — Bombs exploded within a few minutes of each other early Monday outside the downtown Jewish Community Center and the Saudi Airline office, causing considerable damage but no injuries, police said.

There were no claims of responsibility for the bombings.

The first device exploded about 18 feet outside the entrance to the Jewish center at 20 minutes after midnight.

Eight minutes later, another bomb went off outside the Saudi Airline office about 1 and a half miles from the center, breaking windows in the office.

U.S. renews its calls for Iranian sanctions

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United States renewed calls for an arms embargo against Iran Monday, hours after U.S. forces blasted Iranian vessels and oil platforms in the Persian Gulf.

U.S. Ambassador Herbert Okun told U.N. Security Council President Peter Zuzo of Zambia that the U.S. attacks were in self-defense as allowed by the U.N. Charter but that new developments in the seven and a half year war between Iran and Iraq can be solved only through political measures.

"This proves more than ever the need of an enforcement measure," Okun told reporters after his meeting with Zuzo. "What we have here are isolated incidents, each one of them is a form of escalation."

"Our goal is to end the war (through Security Council resolution 598)... and we need a second resolution," he said. "It has to be applied to the party that is not complying with the resolution, and that's Iran."

Resolution 598, adopted unanimously in July by the 15-nation council, calls for an immediate cease-fire, troop withdrawal, peace talks and determination of responsibility for the war that began in September 1980.

The resolution calls for an arms embargo against Iran or Iraq if they disobey a cease-fire.

Iran wants Iraq labeled as the aggressor before any cease-fire is imposed. Iraq says it will abide by the resolution if Iran does the same.

The renewed U.S. support for the Security Council resolution came hours after the United States struck back at Iran for sowing a mine that damaged the frigate USS Samuel B. Roberts last week in the Persian Gulf.

Washington said U.S. naval and air forces destroyed two Iranian oil platforms in the gulf early Monday, sank an Iranian guided-missile patrol boat and set fire to two Iranian frigates.

Britain supports Gulf raid

Soviet TV labels attacks on Iran as 'aggressive'

LONDON (UPI) — British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher called the American attacks on Iranian oil platforms Monday "entirely justified," but Soviet television labeled them "aggressive actions" that aggravated the Persian Gulf conflict.

Elsewhere, reaction to the U.S. operation was mixed, with Italy offering moderate support and calling for an end to the gulf war and Greece saying the U.S. attack could "dangerously escalate the conflict between Iran and Iraq."

The most supportive reaction abroad came from Thatcher's government in London, which said Washington's forces were making a balanced reaction to Tehran's "cowardly act" of laying mines in the gulf.

American jets, warships and Marines destroyed two Iranian oil platforms in the Persian Gulf in retaliation for the renewed mine-laying. U.S. forces later blasted two Iranian frigates and sank a gunboat that fought back.

"We are satisfied from evidence we have that the mines were laid by Iran and therefore that the American action was entirely justified as a proportionate response," Thatcher said. The English government has deployed warships in the gulf to protect British-flagged shipping.

Italy's foreign minister indicated that the Iranians should have known what to expect.

"Laying mines is an illegitimate act which puts shipping at risk," Giulio Andreotti said. "Today's incidents and the reactions follow the tough logic of military actions and reactions."

But in Moscow, Soviet television said, "Instead of using joint efforts of the world community to end the Iran-Iraq conflict and to promote political means of normalizing the situation in the Persian Gulf, the United States deliberately has resorted to aggressive actions and this only exacerbated the situation in the region and creates the threat of direct involvement of the U.S.A. into the local conflict."

In Cairo, the Egyptian foreign minister said, "We have an understanding for the U.S. response."

Kuwaiti prince asks for release, dampens hope of end to ordeal

ALGIERS, Algeria (UPI) — Hijackers holding 31 hostages aboard a Kuwait Airways jet forced a Kuwaiti prince to mouth their demands Monday, dampening hopes that the start of the Moslem holy month of Ramadan would lead to a breakthrough in the 14-day ordeal.

"Please free the prisoners," said Fadhel Al-Sabah, 33, a member of the large Kuwaiti ruling family, in a radio transmission to the control tower at Boumediene Airport. He then lapsed into unintelligible statements apparently caused by exhaustion and nervousness.

One of the sky pirates then grabbed the cockpit radio microphone from Al-Sabah and said the prince was unable to repeat his message directed to Sheik Jaber Al-Ahmad Al-

Sabah, the Emir, or constitutional monarch, of Kuwait.

"I want to confirm that he is one of the Kuwaiti royal family. He is Fadhel Al-Sabah," the hijacker said.

Monday's feeble transmission was the first time one of three members of the Kuwaiti royal family aboard the jet have joined the hijackers' forced procession of passengers pleading for government concessions.

A Kuwaiti hostage released Thursday said that Prince Al-Sabah apparently had suffered a nervous breakdown, shaking and weeping constantly.

Some Middle East experts had speculated that the hijacking saga would end as Ramadan, a traditional period of peace and reconciliation, began. But there was no sign of a major breakthrough.

The suspected pro-Iranian hijackers have demanded the release of 17 convicted Shiite guerrillas jailed in Kuwait for the 1983 bombings of the U.S. and French Embassies. The Kuwaiti government has refused to capitulate to their demands, even though the hijackers have killed two of their hostages.

The terrorists have promised not to harm anyone while the blue and white jetliner is in Algiers, but over the weekend they demanded fuel and threatened to fly to another country so the would not have to carry out the massacre in Algeria."

The normally discreet security around the airport was tightened as police and security officers lined the runways.

Marine's reported death denied by U.S. officials

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — A Christian-run radio station said Monday kidnapped U.S. Marine Lt. Col. William Higgins was killed by his pro-Iranian Moslem captors this month in southern Lebanon, but the report was promptly denied.

A spokesman for the Shiite Moslem militia Amal, which has participated in the search for Higgins since his February capture, issued a denial, and U.S. officials said they could not confirm the report by the Voice of Lebanon radio station.

Citing "special information," the station said the decorated Vietnam veteran was killed by members of the fundamentalist pro-Iranian Hezbollah movement during fighting this month between Hezbollah and Amal in southern Lebanon.

The radio, which did not give a source for its report, said Higgins' captors killed him because they feared that Amal gunmen would rescue him during the fighting. There were no other details of Higgins' reported death in the village of Siddiqine, 47 miles south of Beirut.

But Abdel Majid Saleh, Amal's political officer in southern Lebanon, said in a statement to United Press International, "Higgins was not killed, and he is not held in our area (of southern Lebanon)." He did not say how Amal obtained this information.

In Washington, a Pentagon official said there had been no independent confirmation of the radio report and the U.S. Embassy in Beirut said it could neither confirm nor deny it.

Timor Goksel, the spokesman for the United Nations Interim Forces in Lebanon, said, "I can't confirm or deny this report. I simply don't have information in this regard."

Higgins, 43, the head of a 75-member U.N. truce observation team, which oversees accords among Middle East nations, was kidnapped while driving in a two vehicle U.N. convoy Feb. 17 on the coastal road south of the port city of Tyre, 46 miles south of Beirut.

The Christian Voice of Lebanon, which is run by the Christian Phalange Party, an opponent of the various Moslem groups, said Higgins was kept in the village of Jibshit, a main Hezbollah stronghold 39 miles south of Beirut, after his capture but was taken to Siddiqine with an escort of Iranian Revolutionary Guards shortly before Amal stormed Jibshit on April 5.

Three days of fighting between Amal and Hezbollah for the control of mainly Shiite southern Lebanon ended April 8 in a cease-fire.

Project funded to help older adult education

An Illinois Board of Higher Education and University project designed to encourage older adults to become involved in higher education has been funded by the Retirement Research Foundation.

The project director is Jane Angelis of Academic Affairs and Research.

One of the issues the project addresses is bringing young students in contact with older adults and retirees in order to benefit from their experience, according to a press release from the Office of the Vice President for Academic Affairs and Research.

The release states that a coalition of 40 aging, education and volunteer organizations came together to create a model program to examine the educational needs of older people, to promote more contact between younger and older generations and increase "interest in aging education from preschool through graduate levels."

Forums have been held in recent months in Chicago, Carbondale, Peoria, Bloomington and Springfield to examine the problems facing older adults in education including a lack of sensitivity with some teachers who work with older adults.

According to the release, the project staff will work with the State Board of Education, the Department on Aging and the Board of Higher Education to increase opportunities for retirees in education.

Project needs faculty, staff

Full-time faculty and administrative staff are needed to serve as mentors to incoming freshman for the project, Maximize Academic Growth in College.

The program matches faculty and staff with new freshman.

About 250 volunteers are needed for the 1988-89 academic year.

Mentors should meet informally with their assigned students at least three times a semester. Faculty and staff members offer guidance and counseling to help students reach their academic goals.

This year, the fourth year of the program, nearly 400 students and 186 faculty and staff members volunteered to participate in the project, making it one of the largest programs of its type.

For details, call Dan Nadler, assistant director of student development, at 453-5714.

Reducing eating disorders

Thin may be in, but balance is key to dieting

By Kate Zager
Wellness Center

Jane is a college sophomore. She is 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighs 115 pounds. An athlete, she runs sixty miles per week.

Jane feels fat. She'd like to lose ten pounds. After all, the bottom weight on the charts for someone her height is 105, and her coach has even mentioned that she could better her time if she were leaner.

So, Jane goes on an 800 calorie diet. She is "really good" for about two weeks and loses about five pounds.

She eats no sweets nor high-carbohydrate breads. Potatoes, cereals and pastas are completely off-limits. The coach encourages her efforts and all her teammates envy her willpower.

But her weight loss tapers off and she begins feeling tired and irritable. She thinks about food all the time. It becomes harder to sleep at night and she has trouble concentrating in classes.

One afternoon she passes by a bakery. Before she knows it, she has finished off a dozen sweet rolls and is starting in on a bag of chocolate chip cookies. By the time she finishes, she is painfully full and feeling miserable.

Jane finds a nearby bathroom and forces herself to vomit. The next morning, she wakes up feeling disgusted with herself and vows this will never happen again.

After a few weeks, Jane is restricting her food intake most days and binging and purging about three times per week. She has gained back the weight she lost and is inching toward 120 pounds.

She doesn't understand... all that running, no food, she can't keep gaining weight. Discouraged, Jane goes to the drugstore and buys herself some over-the-counter diuretics and a package of laxatives...maybe she's just retaining water.

In a society that is infatuated with slim figures, Jane is not an unusual case. She doesn't know the methods she uses to control her weight are ineffective. If she continues binging, it will lead to further weight gain and to a downward spiral of depression, malnutrition, and physical injury.

Consider these points:

—The body needs energy (calories) to perform all its complicated functions.

—Laxatives, diuretics and vomiting are not effective weight loss aids.

—Carbohydrates are not fattening and should be included in a balanced, varied diet.

Most eating disorders (anorexia and bulimia) are the end result of chronic dieting by women and men who force themselves to maintain a weight below a genetically natural range.

April 24-29 is Eating Disorders Awareness Week.

Africa fights AIDS plan, doctor says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The World Health Organization is forcing AIDS programs on underdeveloped African countries without sufficiently considering their needs and desires, an African doctor said Monday.

Testifying before the president's AIDS commission, Dr. Samuel K. Adeniyi-Jones, a Nigerian who is a visiting researcher at the U.S. National Institutes of Health, charged that WHO has gone beyond its mandate to coordinate programs to fight AIDS and now "claims to have the mandate from the United Nations to 'control' AIDS worldwide."

"WHO's Special Program for AIDS insists on controlling the AIDS programs in all these African countries," Jones said.

"The insistence on controlling programs in each 'developing' country will prove counterproductive because it appears as an unnecessary imposition to the countries involved. And of course resistance develops. As an African official said, 'How come WHO is not imposing its programs on developed countries of Europe and the United States?'" Jones said.

Jones said in Uganda, for example, WHO's program was supposed to be designed in collaboration with local officials, but in fact was developed by the WHO Special Program for AIDS.

Women's diving team signs Oklahoma's top prep star

By Steven Welsh
Staff Writer

The two high school recruits signed last week by the women's diving program include one of the top high school divers in the country. Laine Owen is a two-time state diving champion from Norman, Okla. Owen also has been runner-up twice and all-state four consecutive years. She is a three-time winner of Norman High School's Outstanding Athlete award.

Laine Owen

Owen will attend SIU-C on an academic scholarship and plans to major in engineering.

"She's one of the top 30 divers in the country," diving coach Dave Ardrey said. "She's also academically very sound. She's ranked No. 1 out of a class of 718."

Owen considered LSU, West Point, Arkansas and Texas

Christian before signing with SIU-C.

Ardrey said Owen gave two reasons for choosing SIU-C.

"Number one, she said she was pleased with the diving program," Ardrey said. "Number two, she was very impressed with our recruiting. She said our recruiting program was the best of any school she considered."

The team also signed Michelle Albrecht of Holland, Mich.

Albrecht was regional diving champion during her junior and senior year and is ranked 10th in the state on the one-meter springboard. She is an honors student at Holland High School and will attend SIU-C under the University Honors Program.

"I happened to see her last summer and thought she had great talent," Ardrey said. "She's only been diving for four years and I know she's going to improve while she's here. She'll give the team the depth we've been looking for."

High winds drive women golfers to 6th-place finish at Illini Classic

By Steven Welsh
Staff Writer

The women's golf team, hampered by bad weather for its second-straight tournament, finished sixth at the Illini Classic this weekend in Champaign.

The Salukis were in fifth place after the first round on Saturday with 320 carded, just two strokes behind third-place Missouri and Michigan State and three strokes behind second-place Indiana.

But 50 mph winds on Sunday caused the teams' score to shoot up to 341, allowing Illinois to finish ahead of the Salukis.

Ohio State won the tournament with a 635 total, followed by Michigan State with 653. Missouri and Illinois had 656. Indiana had 658 and SIU-C followed with 661.

"I was disappointed because we were close to doing so much better," Coach Diane Daugherty said. "We had to play under extremely difficult conditions."

"I watched Tracy Chapman (of Indiana), one of the best in the country, shoot a 72 on Saturday and then throw away shot after shot on Sunday and shoot an 84," Daugherty said.

Tina Kozlowski was the Salukis' low scorer with a 162, including a 76 on the first round. Vicki Higerson shot a 165, Lisa Johnson 167, Lisa Meritt 170, Julie Schumaker 173 and Jennifer Sayles had 178.

The team was also hurt by bad weather at the Mizou Invitational last weekend.

"Finishing sixth isn't bad, considering the weather," Daugherty said. "But the high score doesn't help us at all in the NCAA rankings."

Daugherty said the team is ranked 53rd, ahead of any other Illinois school.

Radio-TV.

The Salukis have added five players since the fall signing period and are still recruiting an off guard and a small forward.

"It's been a good year," McCullum said. "I've been really happy with the players we've signed. I hope it's not over yet."

"We're still in the running with two players. We'd like to get one of those two. One player I don't think we'll get. We have a good chance to get the other player. We're one of his two final choices."

Guard Terrence Lewis, one of the top-100 prep players in the country, has narrowed his choices to SIU-C and Temple.

Bill Rodgers, 40, a four-time winner at Boston, was the top American finisher, at No. 26, more than nine minutes behind Hussein. Most of the top U.S. male competitors skipped the race to compete in next week's U.S. Olympic Trials in New Jersey.

Last year's winner, Toshiko Seko of Japan, did not race in this year's event.

John Treacy, silver medalist in the 1984 Olympic marathon, finished third at 2:09:15.

Mota finished 4:56 ahead of her closest competitor, Finland's Tuija Jousinna. Finishing third among the women was Odette LaPierre of Canada at 2:30:35.

"I'm so happy to win here for the second time for two reasons," Mota said. "First, I like to run here, and second, it's important to all the Portuguese people."

The rain-slicked streets proved no obstacle for men's wheelchair champion Moussetapha Badid of France, who set a world record of 1:43:19 seconds, six seconds below the record set by Canadian Andre Viger in Boston in 1986.

Candace Cable-Brookes of San Luis Obispo, Calif., won the women's wheelchair division for the sixth time with a time of 2:10:44. It was her fourth straight Boston win.

The start of the race was free of the mishaps that marred the start of last year's race, when de Castella tripped and fell over the starter's rope and six wheelchair competitors crashed and fell.

Johnny Kelley, 80, finished his 54th Boston Marathon with a time of 4:26:30.

In the over-40 masters division, the winner was Ryszard Marczak of Poland at 2:17:53. The women's masters champion was Priscilla Welch of Great Britain with a new course record in her division of 2:30:53.

Hussein, running in Boston for the first time, changed his strategy during the race.

Rugby team wins twice at Banshee

The rugby football club improved its record to 6-3 at the Banshee Tournament held Saturday and Sunday at the University of Kentucky.

Sunday, the team won the consolation victory by downing Indiana University 14-0. Club president Tom Eunson said the team had avenged its 22-0 home loss to Indiana on March 26.

The team opened the eight-team tournament with a 16-13 loss to the University of Kentucky Wildcats. Eunson said that while the team played hard and won the scrimmages and many lineouts, a fast-running, hard-to-catch Wildcat fullback kept getting by the SIU-C defense.

Dave Teaford scored two tries for SIU-C in that match.

In the second game Saturday, SIU-C beat the Western Kentucky Old Boys 24-0.

The University of Kentucky club beat Middle Tennessee State in the championship match Sunday.

The rugby team will play at the Western Illinois Scrumdown Tournament on Saturday.

Middleton set for pro shot in USBL

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

Saluki guard Steve Middleton is continuing his quest to hit the big time.

Middleton was selected in the fourth-round by the Long Island Knights of the United States Basketball League last week.

Middleton views the opportunity as a chance to show people outside of Carbondale how well he can play while improving his chances of making the NBA.

"They (Knights) are aware of what I have done," Middleton said. "They're aware of the unique situation I've been in and the reason I haven't played in any all-star games. They're willing to help me and that's what I really need."

Middleton averaged 25.4 points and 6.4 rebounds per game and was a first-team Missouri Valley selection last season. He finished as the Salukis' third all-time career scorer with 1,710 points, but was often overlooked playing on a team which finished in the second division of the Valley for most of his career.

If Middleton makes the USBL, he will be paid between $400 and $800 per week. The nine-team league begins a 30-game schedule on May 13. Middleton said he will stay in Carbondale until then.

Players who played in both the NBA and USBL include

Tyrone Bogues and Michael Ray Richardson.

Middleton was aware of the league but wasn't aware he had been drafted until last Thursday, the day after the draft, when the wife of Long Island coach Mitch Williams called him.

Middleton is looking forward to the chance of playing professionally.

"I'm not getting nervous. If anything, I'm getting excited. It's a challenge and I love challenges. Basically, it's the biggest challenge of my life. That's the way I'm approaching it. I feel I'm going to make it and I will make it."

Middleton is playing basketball everyday to prepare himself physically for the tryouts.

"I'm going to show up to this thing in the best physical shape I've ever been in. I'm going to be ready to play and be ready to produce. At this level, it's all about production."

With his college days drawing to a close, Middleton said he is ready to return home and see his family and friends in Brooklyn, N.Y.

"It's a good opportunity for me to go back home and play against some good talent. It is essential for me to leave SIU at this time. I have a lot of feelings for some of the people here, but it is time to leave SIU and say goodbye."

Men's basketball team signs 'sleeper' junior college forward

By Dave Miller
Staff Writer

The men's basketball team's recruiting success has allowed it the luxury of signing a player whose full ability has yet to be tapped.

Darin Parker, a 6-foot-8, 215-pound junior college forward, signed a letter of intent to play for the Salukis Monday.

"He has tons of potential," Saluki assistant coach Bobby McCullum said.

Last season, Parker averaged nine points and seven rebounds per game for Dodge City Community College in Kansas. Saluki coach Rich Herrin said Parker can only improve.

"He's a sleeper," Herrin said. "He's a young man that's only going to get better. He's a fine rebounder and a good defensive player. He's a very, very hard worker."

In high school, Parker originally played at Corliss before his family moved to Wichita, Kan. during his junior season. As a senior at Wichita Heights, he averaged 14 points and seven rebounds per game while leading the team to the Wichita City League championship with a 19-5 record.

Parker missed more than half of his first season at Dodge City because of a hernia operation. His best game this season was a 17-point, 13-rebound, four-block performance.

McCullum began recruiting Parker in January. After visiting SIU-C on the weekend, Parker chose SIU-C over Ball State, Fairleigh Dickinson and Missouri-Kansas City.

"I loved my visit here."

Parker said. "I really had a good time. Coach McCullum seemed a lot more interested in me than the other coaches I talked to."

Although McCullum said it was premature, both Herrin and McCullum agree that it may be in Parker's best interest to sit out his first season.

"We'll have to evaluate him when he gets here," McCullum said. "We very well might red-shirt him. It would be good for him. He could really develop into an outstanding player."

McCullum said Parker is a power forward and might be able to play center.

"He's just a class young man," Herrin said. "He's an outstanding student. He'll do anything you ask him to."

King hits the turf on first day at work

Head football coach Rick Rhoades appointed Stanley King as the team's defensive secondary coach Monday.

The new assistant jumped right into his new surroundings by attending the Monday afternoon practice.

King, who has spent the past four years as defensive secondary coach at the University of Tennessee-Chattanooga, is the last of six assistants to be named by Rhoades since he came to SIU-C nearly a month ago.

King is the second coach from UT-Chattanooga to join Rhoades' staff. Fred Riley of UT-Chattanooga was named the Salukis' offensive coordinator on April 1.

"I've known Coach King since the mid 1970s," Rhoades said. "He was a great player and he's been a fine coach as well. It's just a great way to complete our staff."

Rhoades said he has wanted to get King at SIU-C "since the day I got the job."

King received all-conference honors and All-America honors in 1975, 1976 and 1977 at Livingston (Ala.) University, a Division II school. He was captain of the team for two years and played in the Senior Bowl game.

"Stan's hiring exemplifies what we are trying to do here," Rhoades said. "He's an outstanding person and I consider him to be one of the finest defensive backfield coaches in the profession."

Kenyan edges Tanzanian to win 92nd Boston Marathon

BOSTON (UPI) — With a single sprint, Ibrahim Hussein of Kenya edged Jumo Ikangaa of Tanzania by one second Monday to become the first African winner in the 92-year history of the Boston Marathon.

In the closest finish of the world's oldest continuing marathon, Hussein triumphed in a time of 2 hours, 8 minutes and 43 seconds. The Africans were locked in a two-man duel for the final 5 miles before Hussein burst from just behind the Tanzanian's right shoulder to pull away in the final 50 yards.

"I didn't even hear his shoes," Ikangaa said.

"I like to make history," said Hussein, 29, who was also the first African to win the New York City Marathon in 1967.

Temperatures were 49 degrees at the Hopkinton starting line and a light rain fell for the first hour.

"When we ran the first 2 miles I was feeling my muscles were tight," Hussein said. "I thought it was going to bother me, but fortunately it didn't at the end."

Rosa Mota of Portugal successfully defended her women's crown, taking the lead in the third mile and never being threatened. Her time was 2:24:30, nearly two minutes off the course record of 2:22:43, set by Joan Benoit in 1983.

The diminutive Mota, 5-foot-1 and 99 pounds, was so fresh after completing the race she jogged away from the finish line. "I tried to run as fast as I can and think only about myself," she said.

Hussein and Mota each won $45,000 and a Mercedes-Benz valued at $35,000.

Hussein fell short of both the world record of 2:06:50 set in Rotterdam, the Netherlands, on Sunday by Belayneh Dinsamo of Ethiopia and the Boston Marathon mark of 2:07:51 set by Rob de Castella in 1986.
