USG presidential elections voided

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

Excessive violations by parties causes ruling

Presidential election results for Undergraduate Student Government were declared null and void by the election commission Tuesday night, but senatorial results will stand for ratification.

The commission nullified the presidential and vice presidential results because of excessive campaign violations made by all student parties involved in the April 11 student elections, Tami Todoroff, election commissioner, said. "Due to excessive campaign violations by the candidates during the election process, we feel it may have indirectly influenced voters in their decisions," she said.

Todoroff said the commission felt the senatorial ballots were fair and accurate and will stand for ratification.

A new election for the spring semester will not be possible because of the short time frame, Todoroff said, and the commission is now looking at the possibility of a fall election.

The commission determined four presidential campaign violations:

■ Brian Hawkins, vice presidential candidate, pleaded guilty to wearing a Trojan Party button in Grinnell Hall on election day.

■ Lissa Kuethe, presidential candidate, pleaded guilty to wearing a Student Party button in the Student Center on election day.

■ A derogatory note posted after the election in the USG offices for Mike Contile, Trojan Party presidential candidate, possibly slandered Contile.

■ Trojan Party members committed a violation by campaigning within 100 feet of a polling place on election day.

The Trojan and Progress parties both received written warnings from the commission for illegal campaign practices April 3. Each party had placed more than one poster in the same location, and the Trojan campaign manager, Kris Fabian, wore campaign buttons in the USG office, where campaigning is prohibited.

Contile said the Trojan Party will file an appeal on numerous charges against the commission, because he has proof of bias shown toward his party by the commission.

Hartigan outlines environmental plan

WEST CHICAGO (UPI) — Attorney General Neil Hartigan Tuesday unveiled an 11-point plan for cleaning up and preserving Illinois' environment, saying the state's residents "are choking on our own garbage."

The Democratic gubernatorial candidate outlined his plan in an appearance in West Chicago, where residents have been battling with Kerr-McGee Chemical Corp. over establishing a permanent dump site for radioactive thorium mill tailings.

Hartigan's GOP opponent, Secretary of State Jim Edgar, criticized Hartigan's proposals as "rhetoric" and said as attorney general, Hartigan has been lax in prosecuting alleged polluters.

Hartigan called the Kerr-McGee controversy the "symbol of a system that hasn't worked" and criticized the federal government for trying "to run away and leave these people alone."

"It's wrong and the people of McDonald's program to use recycled materials

Illinois won't stand for it," Hartigan said.

He called on Illinois residents to make recycling, reduction and reuse their watchwords.

"Illinois' environment has hit a critical state," Hartigan said. "We have a severe solid waste crisis. Our landfills are at capacity. We

Protesters claim incinerator will pollute, endanger area

By Phil Pearson
Staff Writer

The administrator of the Memorial Hospital of Carbondale said the about 30 environmentalists who marched to the hospital Tuesday are wrong when they claim that the hospital's waste incinerator will endanger the public health.

"That is a ridiculous, emotional, unformed statement," George Maroney said at a press conference after a Tuesday afternoon protest by members of the Mid-America Peace Project.

The protesters marched from the ramp on the east side of Faneer Hall, up South Illinois Avenue and west on Main Street to the corner of Main and Poplar where they protested the burning of hospital waste in an incinerator. The protesters said they considered some of the particles released during incineration dangerous.

Sigurd Utgaard, a senior in philosophy from Carbondale, claimed that the incinerator, which is currently operating for test purposes under a revised Illinois Environmental Protection Agency building permit, is releasing heavy metals and other contaminants into the atmosphere. This has to change, he said.

"I think they should do something other than incinerate," he said.

Utgaard offered no alternate solution when questioned, but did say the problem wasn't a simple one.

"The problem is complex, but I don't think incineration is part of the solution," Utgaard said.

John McHale, president of MAPP, proposed his solution.

SIU-C officials to revise Pettit's plan at retreat

By Brian Gross
and Tony Mancuso

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit's 21st Century Plan will undergo revisions during the next few days, but no one should expect major surprises.

"Anyone looking for radical changes in the working document or in the University is going to be disappointed," Vice Chancellor for Administration Thomas C. Britton said.

Britton, along with Vice Chancellor for Academic Affairs Howard Webb, is co-chairing the Executive Committee for Strategic Planning, which has been reviewing Pettit's plan since it was released in November 1989.

The 12-member committee will meet with Pettit, SIU-C President John C. Guyon and SIU-E President Earl E. Lazerson in Springfield April 18 and 19 to submit its proposed changes to the plan.

Pettit said the revised plan will be taken to the Board of Trustees in September. The presidents will

Saluki baseball whips Edwardsville

By Peter Zalewski
Staff Writer

Dawgs improve record to 28-6 with 7-2 victory

The Saluki baseball team beat up on their sister school, SIU-Edwardsville, Tuesday.

The Dawgs' nine-inning 7-2 victory raised their record to 28-6 for the year and pitcher Dale Meyer pitched 7 1/3 innings to boost his record to 4-0.

The Salukis, playing their first game since being ranked 19th in the Collegiate Baseball/ESPN Top 20 Poll, scored their first run in the fifth inning.

Brad Hollenkamp singled to left center with one out. Derek Shelton moved him to second with a base hit down the third base line. Jeff Nelson then advanced the runners to second and third on a ground out to the pitcher. Mike Kirkpatrick followed by stroking a single to right field chasing home Hollenkamp but Shelton was thrown out at the plate to end the inning.

In the eighth inning, Kirkpatrick walked and moved to second on Ed Jenke's ground out. Kurt Enderbrock singled to put runners on the corners before Doug Shields' base hit scored Kirkpatrick. Tim Davis fled out to right, but Boyd Manne picked up the two runners with a triple.

The Dawgs padded the margin with another run in the ninth inning after two outs. Ed Janke singled, stole second and went to third on an overthrow by the catcher. Kurt Enderbrock picked up Janke with an RBI single.

The Salukis continued to play aggressively. Enderbrock stole second base and Shields singled to score him.

Kent Wallace picked up his first save of the season with 1 2/3 innings of strong relief.

SIU-C, which leads the Missouri Valley Conference with a 6-2 record, was ranked in the Top 20 only yesterday. The team plays a doubleheader against Arkansas State at 1:30 today at Abe Martin Field.

The Salukis will put their first-place standing on the line this weekend when they travel to Wichita State for a four-game series against the Shockers.

Wichita State is ranked ninth in the country and is second in the Valley with a 5-3 record.

Blackhawks, Blues to start series tonight

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Blackhawks and St. Louis Blues, second-round playoff opponents in 1989, will do it all over again starting Wednesday night.

The best-of-seven Norris Division final begins at deafening Chicago Stadium, with the Blues trying to do what the Blackhawks did to them last year.

"We have a great deal of respect for them," Blackhawks Coach Mike Keenan said. "I'm sure that they're going to be anxious to get at it because they've had some time off now. I think you're going to enjoy another tough series in the Norris Division. It's a hell of a division as far as I'm concerned."

Chicago, with only one day's rest, will have no time to sit and relish its Game 7 triumph Monday night over Minnesota in the division semifinals. Blues Coach Brian Sutter, whose team eliminated Toronto in five games, watched the game from the press-box.

"That's the process of the marathon you have to go through in the National Hockey League," as far as the playoffs are concerned," Keenan said. "We're aware of that. We know that. We've had some experience in that regard."

The Blues, who took the regular-season series from the Norris Division champs 5-2-1, haven't played since last Thursday. They won three of four at Chicago Stadium this season.

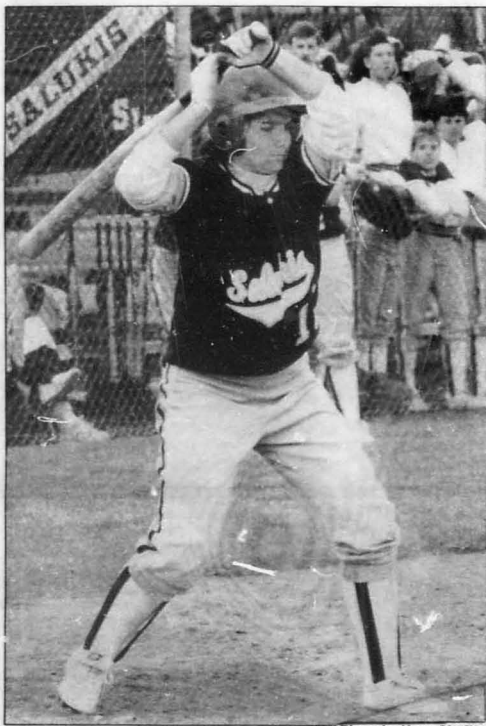

"I'm excited," Blues defenseman Glen Featherstone said. "I love Chicago Stadium. It's going to be emotional."

North Stars Coach Pierre Page said Chicago Stadium could be the key to the Blackhawks-Blues series.

"I think home-ice advantage is a big deal for Chicago," Page said. "If they didn't have home-ice advantage, I think they'd be a lot more worried. I'm sure they're worried, but home-ice advantage is a big deal in the playoffs. It might have been the crucial thing in our series."

The Blues, for at least the first two games, will be without rookie goaltender Curtis Joseph. He suffered a shoulder sprain in Game 5 against Toronto, and team Dr. Jerome Gilden said the injury takes from 10 days to three weeks to heal.

"Hopefully, we'll have him ready by Sunday, which is 10 days from the date of the injury," Gilden said. "I don't want to push him, but we are being upbeat. We'll wait and see how he feels."

Reds win first home game; Piniella 7-0 as new skipper

CINCINNATI (UPI) — The Cincinnati Reds, the only undefeated team in the major leagues, extended their winning streak to seven games Tuesday with a home-opening 2-1 decision over the San Diego Padres.

A victory Wednesday night over the Padres would tie the Reds' club record of eight straight wins at the start of a season, set in 1980.

The Reds, who won their first six games on the road, attracted 38,384 fans in 49 degree weather for their first home game, a successful homecoming for new manager Lou Piniella.

"Lou must be a genius," said winning pitcher Tom Browning. "We're 7-0."

"It was fun to finally play in front of the home fans," said Piniella. "It's great to open with seven straight wins, but we've got to keep battling every game."

"Everything is flowing real well right now," said Cincinnati shortstop Barry Larkin, who went 3-for-4 Tuesday to boost his batting average to .594 (19-for-32). "We're relaxed, confident and comfortable."

The Reds have scored first in all seven of their games this year and have collected at least nine hits in every game.

"They didn't hit me that hard today," said losing pitcher Andy Benes, "but they're hot and the balls they hit are finding the holes. One through nine, the Reds are a very good team. They're not going up there to walk, they're swinging the bat."

"Anytime you win seven in a row, you've got to be playing good ball," added San Diego manager Jack McKeon. "I was impressed with the Reds in spring training."

Cincinnati's Billy Hatcher, who collected three singles, and Mariano Duncan, who had two hits, singled in runs in a two-run second inning to provide the winning margin.

Softball captain has one remaining goal

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

In a career that has produced all-conference honors, all-region honors, most valuable player awards and several batting titles, Saluki softball captain Shelly Gibbs is concerned that she doesn't have a legitimate stolen base.

Most ballplayers dream of a game-winning home run in the championship game, but Gibbs, a native of Carbondale, just wants to steal a base.

"I'd say one of my goals is to steal a base. I really would," Gibbs said laughing. "I have never stolen a base in the four years that I've been here that hasn't been because of a passed ball or a double steal or something like that. I would really like to steal a base."

"Coach B (Brechtelsbauer) would never give me the signal and I would never go unless we were up by a lot of runs and even then I'm not sure I'd go, but I really would like a stolen base."

A stolen base is a goal for Gibbs, but a more serious goal is for her to help her team to the NCAA Tournament Finals May 23-27 in Oklahoma. The Salukis' record is 27-6 overall and the

Gibbs awarded Player-of-Week

A hot bat last week brought Gateway Player-of-the-Week honors to Saluki softball captain Shelly Gibbs.

In three games, Gibbs hit .706. She had 12 hits, four RBIs and a double. She also had seven walks last week.

Her most important hit last week and possibly all season, came in the ninth inning against conference-foe Southwest Missouri State. With two outs, Gibbs drove the ball to right center to chase home Shannon Taylor for the Salukis' 12th consecutive victory.

"Shelly is a clutch player," SIU-C coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said. "When it comes to conference play and the tough games come she seems to rise one more notch, believe it or not. I think that was obvious this past week."

At second base, Gibbs recorded 25 putouts and eight assists, while committing one error.

Gibbs is SIU-C's first three-time all-Gateway pick.

Senior runner Nunn honored for performance at EIU meet

By Peter Zalewski
Staff Writer

A fifth-year SIU-C senior runner was honored by the Gateway Conference for her contributions to three first-place finishes in women's track at the Eastern Illinois Invitational last weekend.

Gateway Track and Field Athlete-of-the-Week Angie Nunn won the 400-meter dash with a time of 56.40 and contributed to two winning relay teams. She helped the 4 x 100-meter relay team of Nacolia Moore, Theresa Lyles and Crystalla Constantinou win the event with a team-best time of 47.70.

Nunn's dominance rubbed off on Amy Bollinger, Brandi Mock and Danielle Sciano in the 4 x 400-meter run, which the team won in their best time, 3:51.68.

Nunn is a team co-captain who has been an outstanding athlete for four years. She has the potential to make it to nationals, coach Don DeNoon said.

Nunn's performance was just short of excellent because the outdoor meet was held in temperatures that didn't rise above 45 degrees.

Angie Nunn

"With the conditions of the weather, I wanted to get in, run a fast time and get my name high on the list of conference leaders," Nunn said.

The Gateway conference leader list compiles the top performances in each event for the sea-

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union said Tuesday it was cutting natural gas deliveries to Lithuania because the republic ignored an ultimatum to rescind independence legislation. Oil supplies also were reportedly threatened. Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis told British radio he had not expected such a "brutal" move from Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, but said it would not weaken the republic's resolve.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — President Frederik de Klerk, in the clearest indication of his position in advance of talks on ending South Africa's racial conflict, rejected black majority rule Tuesday and declared power sharing as the only solution "fair to all." In an address to a joint session of Parliament, De Klerk unveiled the philosophical underpinnings of his vision for a new constitution that would prevent the country from falling "prey to a section of the population at the expense of the rest."

Canadian Air Force jets collide over Germany

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (UPI) — Two Canadian Air Force jets on a training mission collided in mid-air over a West German city Tuesday, leaving one pilot dead and at least one civilian on the ground severely injured, officials said. Police and defense officials said the two Hornet F-18 fighter jets were flying at an altitude of about 1,000 feet when they collided about 4 p.m. over the central city of Karlsruhe and tumbled to Earth. One pilot was killed and the other, who managed to bail out, was severely wounded, as was a civilian in Karlsruhe, officials said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — City officials from across the country urged President Bush Tuesday to use the prestige of the presidency to promote the 1990 census, which they complain is flawed and likely will result in a major undercount of the population. WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Dunne was sworn in as the government's civil rights chief Tuesday, filling a top Justice Department job that had been vacant for more than a year. Dunne was sworn in by Attorney General Dick Thornburgh, a personal friend for more than 20 years who pushed Dunne's nomination over several candidates being considered by the White House. Dunne praised civil rights leaders for not attacking him for a "lack of technical credentials" in the field and giving "me the benefit of the doubt."

Lowery's job with the civil rights organization had been held by both Abernathy and Martin Luther King Jr. "We did not know his illness was quite so critical. # USG to consider increase in health insurance

By Richard Hund
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Government will give its recommendation on a bill asking for an increase in psychiatric coverage in the proposed health insurance increase at its 7 p.m. meeting tonight.

The senate previously recommended a health insurance increase without considering an increase in psychiatric care.

The bill, written by Graduate and Professional Student Council President Charles Ramsey and GPSC Vice President for Graduate Student Affairs Jeff Kramer, suggests raising psychiatric care limits to $50,000 from the current limit of $20,000.

The increase, which would raise student fees by $5.37, offers four rationales for the increase:

- The counseling center has a 12-session limit for consultation, and students must seek off-campus and more expensive services for further help.

- A $20,000 limit can be reached quickly with an extended stay in a public or private in-patient clinic.

- People using psychoactive drugs must be monitored by a psychiatrist, which adds to psychiatric costs.

- The costs of some patients reach beyond $20,000 for proper psychiatric care.

Both Ramsey and Kramer said only three people have reached the $20,000 limit in the past year, but the need for an increase remains.

"Sure, not everybody is going to need that (higher coverage), but those who do, really need it," Kramer said.

USG President Tim Hildebrand disagreed by saying fees should not be increased for just a few people.

"The numbers aren't there yet," he said. "We should wait until fall to reconsider if there are enough people who reach the $20,000 mark."

"It's an option we can always come back and pick up if there's a need for it," he said. Sam McVay, director of student health, said he could not predict how USG would vote on the matter and may need to respond accordingly if USG fails to approve a psychiatric care increase.

GPSC approved of the health fee increase, including increased psychiatric limits, in their meeting last week.

In other business, the senate may ratify the April 11 election results in order for senatorial positions to be filled.

The election commission nullified the preliminary results Tuesday night because of excessive campaign violations by all parties, Election Commissioner Tami Todoroff said.

Aerobics class held to unite fitness students

By Wayne Wallace
Staff Writer

Aerobics enthusiasts will get a 60-minute workout today at 5 p.m. when the Recreation Center attempts to stage the largest aerobics class in the history of SIUC.

Barbara Tyler, fitness graduate assistant, said the event is held every spring to unite all fitness students from the Recreation Center's many aerobics classes.

"We combine high impact and low impact aerobics together within the same routine," Tyler said.

"We close all the classes (at the Recreation Center) and get all different class levels together," she added, noting that part of the purpose of the annual Aerobics Expo is to raise public awareness about fitness.

Tyler said exercises planned for the mammoth workout include the traditional stretches and cardiovascular cool-downs.

"There's no bounce to low impact aerobics," Tyler explained. "One foot always stays on the ground. Low impact aerobics are designed to build muscular skills."

High impact aerobics are geared toward the more experienced fitness enthusiasts.

Also planned for this afternoon is an exhibition of alternative aerobics styles, Tyler said.

"It provides an opportunity for our aerobics instructors to show off some of their stuff," Tyler said.

Before an audience of aerobics students, the instructors will work out as an ensemble group, Tyler said.

Individual instructors will take turns leading the group in special aerobics moves, including the cardio funk, muscle workout, high impact and low impact aerobics.

"They've really worked hard at doing a great job for us," Tyler said of the Recreation Center's aerobics instructors.

Special care a must for scooters, cycles

BUZZING AROUND CAMPUS Like enormous mosquitoes, scooters and motorcycles have made their annual return to campus and Carbondale city streets. A springtime ritual, their return indicates good weather and good times ahead.

Even though this spring has been relatively cool, by now most of us have seen these two-wheeled freedom machines pass by. From the confines of a comparatively sluggish sedan, they are enviable, desirable.

THEY ALSO CAN BE DEADLY, as we have witnessed already this year. Twice, at least. No doubt by the time summer skies go gray, the number of those injured or killed in motorcycle/scooter accidents will increase.

Some of the assets associated with motorcycles and scooters double as prominent hazards. For instance, the high gas mileage most models get is a result of their compactness. In turn, some motorists fail to notice such small vehicles.

MOTORCYCLES AND SCOOTERS operate by some of the same rules cars must follow. Those of us in cars sometimes fail to recognize this, especially since the power and size difference is so great between two- and four-wheeled vehicles.

Those of us on scooters or motorcycles who recognize the ignorance of some four-wheelers willing watch out for road hogs. However, the responsibility of avoiding an accident never can be shouldered by just one motorist.

BECAUSE THE ODDS are against two-wheelers escaping impact with a car or the ground unscathed, special caution should be afforded these motorists.

Bright, protective clothing increases a motorcyclist's or scooterist's chances for detection by other motorists.

Riding double usually doubles injuries. Especially on smaller scooters and motorcycles, riding double should be avoided.

And, as always, helmets save lives.

GRANTED, motorcycles and scooters are more safe in some hands than in the hands of others. But unlike other vehicles, their safety is more dependent on the driving practices of other motorists than those of their operators.

All this talk of the dangers of motorcycles and scooters is not intended to scare folks. An appreciation of the special hazards of two-wheeled vehicles may save lives in the months ahead.

Congress re-election negative sign of out-of-state donations

Scrrips Howard News Service

The statistic is by now gloomily familiar to anyone who worries about the Imperial Congress. More than 98 percent of congressional incumbents who sought re-election in 1988 were victorious.

The reason incumbents have such an easy time is that they have weighted the game in their own favor, particularly with the extensive free mailing privileges they enjoy. But fund-raising is also crucial, and a recent computer analysis by the Federal Election Commission shows how that game is played, at least in the United States Senate.

The commission found that of the 31 senators seeking re-election this year, 17 have raised most of their campaign funds from outside their home states. Several are indebted almost exclusively to out-of-state donors. This continues a trend begun in the mid-1980s; before then, incumbent senators historically built up their war chests from in-state contributions.

Most of this out-of-state money comes from informal networks of contributors ideologically allied with the incumbents. Liberal Democrats, for example, often make pilgrimages to Hollywood, where the wealthy and left-leaning entertainment community is famously generous to friendly politicians.

The reliance on out-of-state contributions is politically unhealthy because it unfairly favors incumbents. They have the prominence needed to attract large amounts from out of state; most challengers do not.

DE cartoon reflects stereotypical Arab

I am deeply offended by the "Yosemite Saddam" cartoon which appeared in your April 16 issue, and which appears to be part of an organized hate campaign against Arabs. Let me state at the outset that I am not an admirer of Saddam Hussein, primarily because of his oppression of his own people.

However, the cartoonist, I am sure, knows nothing about the modern political history of Iraq. He only knows what the TV news has taught him; that there is a group of people whom it is very fashionable to hate. The implication of the cartoon is that Arabs are evil madmen—all of them, presumably, since the Middle East is dubbed a "lunatic asylum." The politics of the Middle East are complex, and the rhetoric of Arab leaders is shaped by a history—colonial brutality, attacks, invasions and massacres by the Israelis, continued economic exploitation by the West—of which the cartoonist seems unaware. The best interests of the Arab world frequently do not coincide with the interests of the United States. This does not make us madmen.

However, while it disturbs me to see the scapegoating and slander of Arabs that pervades the American media, I am more concerned about the consequences of such malice and ignorance on a university campus. I was shocked a few days ago to listen to a song entitled "Killing an Arab" on the Student Union Radio—and now this cartoon.

Perhaps I come from a backward country, but in my culture a university is a place where young people come to learn new ideas, to broaden their perspectives and knowledge of other cultures and to trade their ignorance for knowledge. But it is a great deal easier to hate the Arabs than to study history, isn't it? And how much more pleasant to see all evil and irrationality concentrated in someone so very different from Americans!

But it is that difference so great and the lesson of history so easily avoided? A thousand years ago, the Arab world was one of the most politically and intellectually advanced cultures in the world. But because it grew rigid and unable to see its own defects, the Arab culture decayed. Now the United States is one of the world's most advanced societies, but within it is the same combination of ignorance and arrogance. Does a university really do a service to its culture by perpetuating ignorance and bigotry?—Mamoun H. Fandy, graduate student, political science.

Concerned citizens address reproductive rights

On February 14, a group of concerned Southern Illinoisans met to form a coalition to address the issue of women's reproductive rights.

This group, the Southern Illinois Voice for Choice, organized itself to participate actively in the preservation of the constitutional right of a woman to make informed choices concerning her reproductive health.

The group endorses:

- 1. That the ultimate decision concerning a pregnancy must be made by the woman involved and not by the government.

2. That Americans have the right to build families by choice, not by accident.

3. That accurate knowledge of modern, safe birth control methods will reduce the number of unwanted pregnancies.

Reflecting these beliefs, it is the intent of this group to conduct activities which will include raising community awareness of the responsible nature of a pro-choice stance, and lobbying for political support for pro-choice issues.

We welcome interested women and men to attend the next meeting of the SIVC, Wednesday April 25 at 7 p.m. in the Mackinaw Room of the Student Center. Bring concerns, considerations and ideas for an affirmative plan of action.—Randi Chervitz, junior, art / metal; Adam Lieberman, graduate student, sculpture.

Gays rewrite history to make 'single' people gay

I am writing in response to an earlier letter. The letter contained a laundry list of famous gays. I would caution the writer against TWWIGS (The Whole World IS Gay Syndrome). TWWIGS strikes historical figures when gays rewrite history. Gays think if the whole world used to be gay, it makes their abominations OK. Because of TWWIGS, historical figures must prove they were not gay rather than be given the benefit of the doubt.

For example, there is no evidence Leonardo di Vinci or Michelangelo were gay. They were single men. Applying the doctrine of TWWIGS means since they were not married, it proves they were gay. Socrates was bisexual. According to TWWIGS, this proves his student Plato was gay and Aristotle's student Alexander the Great was gay.

I guess since I have had gay teachers, TWWIGS dooms me to go down in history as gay.

Nowadays, most art critics are gay. Since they determine our tastes for us, it is no wonder gay artists are given undue acclaim. It wasn't always this way. But I digress. When will TWWIGS take us? Maybe our founding fathers will be discovered to all be closet queens.—Alexander M. Wilson, graduate student, law.

SIU-C football program worth saving

In one year, I have read half-a-dozen letters in the DE trying to kill football at SIU-C. I played football six years, officiated eight years and have coached. I've observed many young men build self-confidence and reach personal goal because of their association with football.

Research revealed positive things about SIU-C football graduates. SIU Alumni football players have influenced students, both traditional and non-traditional, to attend SIU-C. Please keep in mind that attendance equates to money.

Here's a list: Carl Mauc played and coached in the NFL for twelve years with Baltimore, Miami, San Diego, Houston and Kansas City; Kevin House, played with Tampa Bay and L.A. Rams; Isaac Brigham, Dallas Cowboys (and was one of few players ever to manhandle Ray Nitzke, all-pro linebacker from Green Bay, on national television). Now Dr. Isaac Brigham, Dean of Admissions at John A. Logan College; Lionel Antoine, Chicago Bears; Terry Taylor, Seattle Seahawks and Minneapolis; Tom Baugh, Kansas City Chiefs; Huston Antwine, AFL all-star team Patriots, Marion Rushing, St. Louis; Sam Silas, St. Louis; Jim Hart, St. Louis, now Athletic Director SIU-C; Carver Shannon, L.A. Rams, now top official in airline industry; Bill O'Brien, former faculty member and coach and received numerous awards at SIU, was NFL official, now NFL observer; Abe Martin, former baseball and basketball coach SIU; Bill Norwood, Chairman of Board of Trustees, SIU-C; Current Alumni Director George Loukas, successful Chicago businessman; SIU former faculty members Frank Bridges, William Freeburg, Lynn Holder and the list goes on. STOP. There are hundreds of men with college degrees in the United States, making positive impacts on society, who played football at SIU. With a football talent, many would not have degrees.

SIU has, no doubt, lost a few quality players in the recruiting process because of negative media attention. If we change coaches every year or two we will probably see football eliminated. Changes equate to rebuilding, which usually leads to a losses than wins. Lombardi and Patton both said, "Americans love a winner, and will not tolerate a loser." Maybe some on the abolish football at SIU handwagon just can't stand losing? I have not read any letters proposing cancellation of basketball, baseball or swimming programs at SIU and those are winning programs.

Coach Bob Smith is a winner, build winners and has had tremendous success as a football coach. Winners breed winners. SIU is large enough to have competitive football.

Give Coach Smith and his staff an opportunity to build a successful program. That means playing with seniors Coach Smith recruited as freshmen. Figure four years minimum, to build a solid program. Thanks to all football players for being at SIU. Stick around, Coach Smith and staff will build a winning tradition.

If the team wins, the stadium fills, more money schools want to play SIU, an the program makes money. Then, Professor Handler and associates won't have a leg to stand on.—Tom Tate, graduate assistant, vocational education.

Cardinals' record not a matter of luck

You can tell its "that time of year" again when the clueless majority of fans start popping off about those "lucky" Cubs and those "poor, injury-riddled" Cardinals. Usually I refrain from such mudslinging, but this Greg Scott character has buried his editorial "predictions" under a very thick layer of doo doo.

I'm sick and tired of Cardinal fans crying every year when someone other than their team wins the NL East. How come when the Cubs win it's either due to luck or Cardinal injuries?

How come St. Louis fans are so quick to point to "career years" by opposing players on division winning teams? Has Tommy Herr eve: approached the numbers he had in 1985? Has Jack Clark found the success he enjoyed in 1987 in either of the last two seasons? Remember Darrell Porter?

Greg, your canonized "white rat" just couldn't do it in 1989. Why don't you just admit it? Jerome Walton was Rookie of the Year in 1989. Why not admit Walton could be a good, perhaps, one day, great player? Why not admit Don Zimmer did a brilliant job of managing by getting the most out of his bench and handling his young talent? It wasn't luck and it wasn't a mistake.

They did it all season long and displayed the consistency that the Cardinals lacked. I also say that if Todd Zeile has a season, like you and your "Deadbird" cohorts think he will, his rookie season will have nothing to do with luck as Walton's was. Zeile will simply be a great young catcher.

Grab a hankie, Greg, because your tears are wasted on Mathews, Cox, McGee and Worrell.

If you'll remember, the Cubs overcame a little adversity of their own last season. At one time, the entire starting outfield was injured, along with an excellent young catcher whose absence forced Zimmer to platoon two catchers with no major league experience. But Greg would have you believe that other Cubs had career years to make up for it. 1989 was clearly not Andre Dawson's career year.

To say that Walton, Dwight Smith and Mitch Williams won't be secrets anymore is especially ridiculous. Do you think that major league teams don't scout their opponents during the season?

Looking at the 1989 stats of each of these players, one can only deduce that the Cubs opposition could not find a way to stop Walton, Smith and Williams.

Greg, I know St. Louis sports fans are born ignorant, but in the future, please use your allotted columns to spout opinions based on facts instead of allowing your St. Louis ignorance to drag it down.

Oh, and one more thing...Let me give you a little hint. Forget this baseball season. It will be football season in St. Louis by June. Oops, I forgot. St. Louis doesn't have a football team anymore.—Ken Gerrans, Carbondale.

Springfest change of location not appreciated

I'm really wondering about the people in control of this University. Do they even recognize the students as the heart of this school? Do they actually think about the decisions they make? How many views are stated about a problem and reviewed?

I saw a while ago in the far back pages of the DE an article about Spring Fest being shoved back in some remote field. A good reason wasn't given, but it said the move was "for a bigger and better event." I don't remember any complaints about it being too small or a terrible event. Was

The saga of Bill and Sally, concerned citizens

Once upon a time there was a man named Bill who lead a very busy life. He worked. He took good care of his family. Bill didn't have time to worry about the problems of the world. Sure, Bill cared. Why, he voted every four years! But he wasn't going to waste his time making an extra trip to the recycling center, no matter how many cans of coke he consumed each year.

Once upon a time there was a student named Sally who worked very hard to put herself through medical school. Sally wanted to make a difference in the world, to save people's lives. Some of her friends saved newspapers or plastics, but Sally thought this was silly. She was going to do the "important" stuff.

Once upon a time there was an Earth overflowing with people like Bill and Sally, people who meant well, but just had priorities in different places. Once upon a time, there was an Earth. Recycling saves our natural resources, slows down pollution and prevents our overflowing garbage dumps from suffocating us. For recycling locations, call 529-4148.—Amy Katz, senior, speech communication, for Mother Nature's Communicators.

work on their own institutional plans based on discussions at the retreat, he said.

Britton said three documents will serve as sources for the discussion of the University's future: a revised draft of the plan, a review of the University's environmental outlook and the record of comments from all the constituency groups on the original plan.

"We used the chancellor's document as a beginning...as a way of assessing where we are," Britton said, adding that many things have been restated in the new document.

"Over the past few months, we have spent a great deal of time studying the environment and the competition," he said. "We have studied where the University is strong and where it is less strong."

He said the committee also has taken extensive notes on comments from student, faculty and employee groups, and has tried to incorporate some of the insight from those comments into the document.

"Now is a critical place to analyze the direction he (Pettit) proposed," Britton said. "We are trying to analyze and amplify the themes and challenges of the chancellor."

Pettit said theme, direction and strategy play a big part in the strategic plan because it serves as a framework for the entire University. He said he does not expect a change in values.

"I think there will be greater...more detailed changes in the (presidents') institutional plans, because they deal with more specifics," he said.

Pettit said he was impressed with the way the committee has handled the revision process, adding that it is an important part of getting the entire University to function as a unit.

"To me, this is a very significant change in the way we have been doing things. It is an important part of coordinating our efforts," he said.

Pettit said his plan will be reviewed every year, a process which will come easier with time.

"The hardest part is the first couple of years, when you have to define the process and people look at it with apprehension," Pettit said.

Apprehension has been expressed by SIU-C faculty and student constituencies that the plan is calling for a radical shift in the student population toward graduates and that money would be reallocated from liberal arts for research purposes.

The apprehension surfaced from section five of the working document, unifying themes and directions, which states "as an explicit goal, we should target

SIU-C's moving up to 'Research I' status within the next five to 10 years."

As part of the goal to obtain Research I status, Pettit's working document calls for an increase in the number of graduate students to 20 to 25 percent of the student population. Currently, graduates make up 16 to 17 percent of the population.

The document also recommends the enlargement of the engineering building and a new research facility for the biological sciences, but the first goal in section five is maintaining comprehensive undergraduate education and strong liberal arts programs as the essential core of the University.

The University currently has Research II status, according to the Carnegie classification of public universities.

Research I universities offer a full range of baccalaureate programs; are committed to graduate education through the doctorate degree, awarding at least 50 doctoral degrees each year; and receive $33.5 million or more in federal support each year.

Research II universities differ only in the amount of federal support received each year, $12.5 million to $33.5 million.

The University of Illinois is the only public university in Illinois with Research I status.

Todoroff said it is interesting that Contile would charge the commission with bias because a specific party was not named by the commission in nullifying the election.

"All parties are at fault," Todoroff said. "All things named involved more than one party."

Todoroff said the commission has received verbal harassment and violent threats within the last few days, which mandated an SIU police officer's presence at the meeting.

"The integrity with USG is essentially lost with this kind of behavior," she said.

Two other charges were referred to the student judicial board by the commission Tuesday, and another charge was declared a dead violation.

Tim Hildebrand, USG president, charged that a threatening note was placed on his car by the Trojan Party, while Contile counter-charged that Hildebrand violated the student conduct code by pursuing suspects at high speeds. Both complaints will be handled by the judicial board.

A charge that someone ripped down campaign flyers in the Communications Building was declared a dead violation.

"We have received the restraining order issued by Attorney General (Richard) Thornburgh and our lawyers are reviewing that now. They're reviewing those materials and accounts to determine what the depth of the situation is. We can't say anything further until the lawyer's have completed their review," said Lorraine Person, First Chicago assistant vice president for public affairs. No one at Harris could be reached for comment, though a bank officer confirmed they had received the papers from the Justice Department.

The money, generated from street sales of cocaine, was first deposited into U.S. banks, the Justice Department said. In addition to the 22 states, the move involved banks in the District of Columbia. Of the $400 million, all but $50 million was then transferred abroad. It was subsequently returned to the United States to finance activities by the Medellin cocaine cartel, the Justice Department said.

Justice Department officials made it clear that they do not know how much money remains in the accounts.

are choking on our own garbage." Hartigan said the time for tough decisions has come.

"We can either recycle now or have citizens fighting against landfills and incinerators in their communities well into the next century," Hartigan said.

Hartigan rejected what he called Gov. James R. Thompson's "outrageous proposal" to provide $500 million to help fund construction of seven more incinerators and seven more landfills.

"The people of Illinois have said 'no' to more landfills," Hartigan said. "We cannot continue to shuffle our garbage from point A to point B. We have to set goals."

Hartigan said the state must put its resources to better use because "we can no longer sit back and watch the sun come up and go down each day without a strategic plan for making Illinois a healthy, clean place to live."

Hartigan's plan calls for:

- Reducing the amount of waste being sent to landfills by 25 percent before 1995 and 50 percent by 1998.
- Banning recyclable materials from landfills and incinerators.
- Saving the $500 million proposed for constructing new landfills and incinerators.
- Gaining community approval for incinerators before they are sited.
- Updating and reorganizing environmental laws.

Northern Illinois that handles hospital waste is too expensive.

"It is the best option because it makes sense," he said.

Maroney said incineration can be done safely, and the ash takes up less space in landfills than does the 550,000 pounds of unburned waste the hospital generates each year. Also, substances that would create pollution harmful to the environment, such as laboratory chemicals, radio-active implants and oil products, are handled in other ways than incineration. Many protesters said that hazardous particulate matter is being released into the air, especially on the grounds of a hospital.

"Particulate matter in my lungs and in your lungs causes anger," McHale said.

Maroney said the incinerator, first installed in 1986, has suffered a few problems, such as a fire and has had several design changes, but he is confident incineration can be done safely, despite charges by Utgard and other activists that the particulate matter won't be monitored.

Operation of the incinerator, which has been limited to "test burns" up to now, will be tested for operating efficiency by the IEPA in May.

To burn all matter to a safe point, the incinerator temperature will have to be maintained at about 1,650 degrees Fahrenheit and can burn 400 pounds of waste an hour.

Cousteau Society member to discuss abuse of oceans

By Phil Pearson
Staff Writer

Human abuse of the oceans will be the focus of a presentation by a member of the Cousteau Society at 8 tonight in the Student Center Ballroom D.

Peter Burtchell, the Cousteau Society's newest team member and speaker, is a naturalist and former National Park Ranger whose specialty is water environments and the issues concerned with those environments, according to information provided by the society.

Burtchell, sponsored by the Student Environmental Center and the Student Programming

Council Expressive Arts Committee, will discuss issues such as the release of wastes into water environments faster than the environment can absorb them and the demand of too many people on too few resources.

Burtchell also will discuss the conversion of high-diversity ecosystems into low-diversity ecosystems for use by humans.

The information will be based mainly on the Cousteau Society's "Rediscovery of the World" expedition, which included studies of river systems in North and South America, Caribbean islands, the Mediterranean Sea, the California coast and coral reef systems.

Burtchell will also lecture on data collected on a series of expeditions on rivers around the earth that was launched in 1978.

The non-profit Cousteau Society was founded in 1973 by Jacques-Yves Cousteau, the underwater explorer who also invented SCUBA gear.

McDonalds to promote construction recycling

'McRecycle' goal to buy $100 million worth of materials

OAK BROOK (UPI) — McDonald's Corp. Monday announced creation of "McRecycle USA," a program promoting use of recycled materials in construction and remodeling of McDonald's restaurants.

The goal is to purchase $100 million a year worth of recycled materials — 25 percent of annual expenditures for building, remodeling and equipping the fast food emporiums.

Officials said they will seek sources of recycled insulation, landscape timbers, tabletops, waste containers, wallboard, roofing materials and other products for use in the project.

"Recycling is one of the most important environmental steps America can take," said Ed Rensi, president of McDonald's USA. "But there is an urgent need to expand the market for recycled materials so that individuals, communities and businesses can sustain — and even increase — their recycling efforts." Rensi said the "McRecycle" program should be a challenge to recycling companies.

"We are a new $100 million-a-year market, waiting to be tapped," he said.

McDonald's officials said the company already is the largest user of recycled paper in the restaurant business and is testing a recycling program for polystyrene food packaging in 450 New England restaurants. The new program is in addition to those efforts, they said.

McDonald's also will establish an information center and a registry service to put manufacturers of recycled products in touch with its purchasing officials.

Manufacturers will be able to register by telephone and will be put on a mailing list for announcements about the program and requirements for participation, the company said.

About 375 new McDonald's restaurants are built each year and another 1,000 are remodeled. Worldwide, the company has more than 11,000 restaurants in 52 countries — 75 percent locally owned.

King's Wok owner says she will appeal decision

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

A local business owner is challenging the Carbondale Local Liquor Control Commission's denial of a Class A liquor license by appealing to the Illinois Liquor Control Commission.

"I'm going for the state," Lin Chang, owner of King's Wok, said. "Without a liquor license King's Wok can not survive."

An official for the Illinois Liquor Control Commission said that Chang has 20 days to file an appeal, and that the commissioners will review the case and it may be sent back to Carbondale for another hearing. The next hearing date in Springfield is on May 16.

The decision to deny the license came after a strong showing of opposition from local residents to any liquor licenses in the Route

Residents objections to liquor licensing persuade council

51 South area. Residents in the area have traditionally been opposed to liquor licenses.

King's Wok had a "bring your own policy," before being annexed into the city in 1989, but with the annexation came the city's policy that a liquor license must be acquired before alcohol can be sold.

Chang presented the commission with more than 600 petitions in support of the restaurant obtaining a license. Residents protesting the license also had given the commission petitions in their favor, and about 25 people turned out for the meeting.

At the restaurant business has decreased by 50 percent since the BYOB policy was banned, and without a license the restaurant can't compete with other oriental-style restaurants that have licenses, Chang said. A letter from the American Marketing Association stating that the group was cancelling its banquet because of the alcohol ban also was submitted by Chang. The letter said that AMA preferred King's Wok and would hold future banquets there if a liquor license was issued.

She also said that King's Wok should be treated like part of the city not Highway 51.

Mayor Neil Dillard emphasized that the license was being considered on its merit not on race or the personality of the owner or the opposition. Location and the type of license were two of the considerations Dillard discussed. Dillard voted to deny the license.

Commissioner Keith Tuxhorn, voted against denying the license and said, "We're not opening a new liquor establishment, it's simply a status change caused by our annexation."

He went on to say that now that the restaurant is in city limits there will be more control over the operating hours and code enforcement of yard maintenance and litter.

Tuxhorn, although voting against the denial, said he did have a problem with a Class A license being issued since it includes the selling of package liquor. He announced his support of a Class D license that would allow beer and wine only.

Commissioner John Yow didn't hesitate in voting for the denial. "I feel a license will have adverse impacts on the area and neighborhood," he said.

The decision was harder for Commissioner John Mills. Mills said that both sides had some valid arguments and some arguments he just couldn't buy. In the end though, Mills listened to the people and voted for the denial.

Commissioner Richard Morris voted against the denial and spoke about the ordinance. He said that it states that those who meet the criteria of the ordinance will be given a license.

He continued by saying that his decision was a hard one, and that he isn't sure if the commission is implementing the law correctly.

Tuxhorn reminded the audience and commission that the decision "sometimes leaves this realm and goes beyond us." He was speaking of an appeal to the state commission.

The commission also approved a Class D license for the N&S Kai restaurant, 206 S. Wall St.

Scientists discover gene related to alcoholism

BOSTON (UPI) — Scientists for the first time have found a gene that appears to be linked to alcoholism, providing strong new evidence the disease affecting 18 million Americans is caused at least partly by heredity, it was reported Tuesday.

A study of tissue from the brains of 70 human cadavers concluded the gene was present in 77 percent of alcoholics and absent in 72 percent of non-alcoholics, researchers reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

This is the first reported link between a particular gene and the presence of alcoholism in individuals, although there has been a growing body of evidence suggesting a role for heredity.

The findings could lead to better ways to identify people at risk of becoming alcoholics.

The gene, a form of the so-called "dopamine D2 receptor gene," is believed to influence how an individual's brain responds to alcohol.

Child mortality rate spurs public outcry

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A report showing Illinois' child mortality rate is higher than rates in Western Europe and some Third World countries illustrates the need for a universal health care plan in the state, a consumer watchdog group said Tuesday.

While per capita health care spending in Illinois exceeds all other nations including the United States, many countries have lower infant and child mortality rates, said Robert Creamer, executive director of Illinois Public Action.

"If we are ever to bring health costs under control and improve the quality of care, we need to institute a universal health program as our competitors have in every country of the world but South Africa," Creamer said.

The group backs legislation to force the state to fund and provide health care to all citizens, bills (S1587 and H3291) introduced by Chicago Democrats Rep. Anthony Young and Sen.

Margaret Smith. IPA has said the program would be financed with federal and state funds, employer payroll taxes and by doubling tobacco and alcohol taxes.

Creamer released a study prepared by Citizen Action, a national public interest group. The study found Illinois' health care services cost 8 percent higher than those in Japan, West Germany, Canada, Britain and France. It also showed 22 countries had better infant mortality rates than Illinois. Infant death rates in Pulaski County in far Southern Illinois ranked below the lesser-developed nation of Malaysia.

In addition, the state's mortality rate for children under five is higher than all Western democracies and Illinois has a higher percentage of low-weight births than the Soviet Union and Kuwait.

Fulaski County was among the worst counties in Illinois for the percentage of infant deaths.

Students at Blackburn will get a day off work

CARLINVILLE (UPI) — Students at Blackburn College are going to get a day off from work — almost.

Blackburn, located about 60 miles northeast of St. Louis, is one of only five colleges in the nation that requires resident students to work at least 15 hours per week, said Shelley Mansholt, a spokeswoman for the school. That dictum will be lifted for one day next week — April 25.

In honor of Student Appreciation Day, administration staff and faculty will do the students' work — which includes things like laying bricks at a building under construction, cooking, working a switchboard or cleaning a dormitory.

Although the students will have a day off from work, college President David W. Brown said classes would be held.

"That will be up to the individual professor, some will hold them, some won't," Brown said.

The work rule applies to the college's 361 resident students.

Legislation proposed to help pets

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Ward Howland says he frequently receives telephone calls in the summer when dogs and cats are left locked in sweltering automobiles as their owners shop inside air-conditioned malls.

Howland, executive director of the Anti-Cruelty Society in Chicago, is hoping for help for animals in proposed legislation to make the owners criminally liable and allow law enforcement officers to break into the vehicles.

"What we're really trying to do is legalize a situation that we have to do illegally. The life of an animal is very important to us," Howland said Tuesday.

The legislation (S2039), sponsored by state Sen. Judy Baar Topinka, R-North Riverside, would specifically prohibit a person from confining an animal in a motor vehicle and subjecting it to extreme heat or cold. It would allow an animal control officer, law enforcement officer or Department of Agriculture investigator with probable cause to use "reasonable" means to enter the vehicle. The officer would have to feel the animal was in a "near-comatose" state and Illinois' Humane Care for Animals Act was being violated to justify entering the vehicle.

The penalty for people who leave their animals in such situations would be a petty offense.

Global conference convened

World leaders assail Bush on global warming policy

Daily Egyptian wire services

WASHINGTON — President Bush got a cold shoulder from international experts on the hot topic of global warming Tuesday when he told them the United States wants more research before it takes action.

The predominant feeling among environmentalists at the White House Conference on Science and Economics Research Related to Global Change is that action is needed now to prevent a serious environmental problem and that it's better to be safe than sorry.

BUT BUSH, with Earth Day coming up on April 22, made no move to mollify them.

He warned sharply that lives will be lost if nations speed ahead to curtail economic development without understanding all the science involved in the warming of the Earth.

He warned that curbing development in poor countries "doesn't mean just another point in the gross national product; it's measured in human lives, an end to hunger, lower infant mortality, longer life expectancy. Not just quality of life, but life itself."

BUSH TOLD DELEGATES from 19 nations at the conference, which he convened, that economic considerations must be a vital part of environmental protection. "Environmental policies that ignore the economic factor, the human factor, are designed to fail," he said.

The delegates, listening to Bush in their own languages via simultaneous translation devices, clapped only briefly when he entered the ballroom of the J.W. Marriott Hotel and when he left.

To illustrate the confusion over the issue, Bush cited a recent television talk show where two scientists disagreed over whether studies had confirmed a warming trend was occurring because of the buildup of carbon dioxide and other heat-trapping industrial pollutants in the atmosphere.

"TWO SCIENTISTS, two diametrically opposed points of view," Bush said. "Where does that leave us? What we need are facts."

"I know there is a debate raging out there," he said. "This conference provides an opportunity to sort out the science on this complex issue and to work from what we know on the many uncertainties that remain."

Bush said reductions in carbon dioxide emissions had to be achieved in a way that would not retard global economic growth essential to pay for costly environmental clean-up.

"In a climate of poverty and continued economic struggle, protecting the environment becomes a far more difficult challenge," he said. "There is no better ally in the service of our environment than strong economies."

THE PRESIDENT'S speech drew criticism from some European delegates who said Bush's cautious approach was holding up international action on global warming.

They said industrialized nations — particularly the United States, which is the world's largest emitter of carbon dioxide — had to show leadership on emission reduction if there was to be a concerted world effort to address the problem.

"If we do not act, you cannot expect the developing nations to act on their account," said Laurens Jens Brinkhorst, director general of the environment for the European Community.

KLAUS TOPFER, the West German environment minister, issued a tough statement saying Bush was stating the obvious in calling for more research and that global warming might be worsening while the world waited.

"It goes without saying that additional, more intensive research is urgently needed," he said. "Gaps in knowledge must not be used as an excuse for worldwide inaction."

Topfer said he soon would submit a proposal to his government calling for West Germany to reduce its carbon dioxide emissions by 25 percent by the year 2005, largely through greater energy efficiency.

OTHER EUROPEAN officials, while generally praising Bush's emphasis on economics, expressed irritation that the conference agenda was dominated by U.S. officials and U.S. viewpoints. They noted that only one foreign delegate, a Polish official, was scheduled to speak at the conference's open sessions.

"It's a pity that the agenda does not permit ministers to express the differing views of their governments," said Hubert Curien, France's minister for science and technology.

Bush received a warmer response from delegates from developing nations, who agreed with the president's insistence on balancing environmental protection with economic development.

MARCILIO MARQUES Moreira, Brazil's ambassador to the United States, said, "We do agree with the so-called 'no regrets' policy. We should not take any measures that would aggravate the problems of developing nations."

"Poverty is still a major stumbling block," he said. "It is not only a problem of a better life, it is a matter of life."

Jan Janowski, deputy prime minister of Poland and director of Poland's office for science and technology development, echoed the Bush line, saying there is no way Poland's fragile economy can cut back significantly on its emissions of carbon dioxide right now.

HE TOLD THE conference Tuesday that Poland's state-controlled economy has badly polluted the environment but said it will take time to undo that "sad legacy."

Janowski praised the United States and suggested that economic loans swapped for environmental improvements might work.

Topfer said industrialized nations should consider taxing themselves, perhaps through a fee on carbon dioxide emissions, to create an international fund to help developing nations.

GLOBAL WARMING is the recently discovered phenomenon. It holds that by burning fossil fuels, such as coal and oil, we are gradually heating the Earth's climate and could elevate the average temperature by as much as nine degrees over the next 100 years. That could cause massive coastal flooding and play havoc with agricultural growing patterns. But some scientists have urged more study, saying that the whole effect is not well enough understood for governments to order lifestyle changes and prevent developing nations from forging ahead with development that may cause environmental damage. That's Bush's position.

BUSH SAID THE conference is unique because it brought together environmentalists, experts on energy and science and economists to "search for common ground."

Bush told the delegates the United States has "moved one step closer to a great victory for the environment" by moving toward passage of a stronger clean air law, "hopefully possible in May."

HE ALSO BOASTED about U.S. efforts to plant more trees, phase out chlorofluorocarbons, encourage conservation and explore market-based incentives for pollution control.

But he said that when scientists have "diametrically opposed points of view" on whether global warming is occurring, "what we need are facts — the stuff that science is made of."

Bush has proposed spending $1 billion in fiscal 1991 to "reduce the uncertainties surrounding global change."

Scientists believe funding level for AIDS research is about right

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The majority of U.S. scientists think the level of federal funding for AIDS research is about right, a survey commissioned by Congress showed Tuesday.

A nationwide survey of 138 scientists by the Office of Technology Assessment found about 46 percent thought the government was allocating the right amount of funds for research of acquired immune deficiency syndrome. About 31 percent of respondents said they thought the federal funding level was too low; 18 percent said it was too high, and about 5 percent had no opinion.

Total federal expenditures related to AIDS and the AIDS-causing human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) were $2.9 billion in fiscal 1990 — with about $1.2 billion of those funds going for research.

The scientists, who represented a variety of disciplines, were more sharply divided over whether too much money has been diverted to AIDS from other research fields. About 47.5 percent of respondents said they thought too much diversion had occurred; 44 percent disagreed, and 8.5 percent had no opinion.

The survey also found most scientists believe AIDS research has made important contributions to other medical fields.

About 37 percent of the 400 scientists who received the poll by mail responded.

Retired Methodist minister writes 'truths' of Christianity

By Omonopee O. Whitfield
Staff Writer

CHRISTIANITY HAS tried to provide hope and stability for believers. Now a Methodist minister from Mount Vernon says that many of the standard Christian beliefs are merely superstitions.

In his recently published book "Christian Superstitions," Floyd Hale challenges some of the basic tenets of Christianity.

Hale said that the purpose of his book is to reveal "truths" about Christianity that he has known but kept secret since he began his ministry 30 years ago.

"As a young Christian minister I began to be frustrated at having to keep 'secret' many of the religious 'truths' I was learning," Hale wrote in the preface. "To partly relieve that frustration I would retreat to my 'closet,' write my insights down, and file them away under 'classified'—not for the eyes of others. The volume grew."

HALE SAID that when he finally shared some of his knowledge with people in the congregation, trouble began. "And trouble in the church is 'bad'—even for a good cause."

Controversy surrounding Hale's teachings soon prompted him to discontinue openly teaching his beliefs. Hale said because he retired from pastoring and therefore was no longer a threat to any church, he published his teachings in "Christian Superstitions."

Printed and published solely by Hale, "Christian Superstitions" contains 17 chapters, each giving Hale's views on a different subject relative to Christianity. Some of the subjects Hale covers include the Bible, faith, the Resurrection and heaven and hell.

Hale said that chapters five, six and seven teach the "true essence of Christianity." These chapters give Hale's views on grace, stewardship, and the baptism of the Holy Spirit.

Hale said God gives grace unconditionally—not only when one sins.

"GOD HAS always looked upon his human creatures graciously—accepted them without rejection or discrimination—and always will. Instead of religion declaring this openly, and thus letting it have a chance of working, it has placed conditions on it. Any condition whatsoever placed on the grace of God denies grace."

CHRISTIAN SUPERSTITIONS

Hale also said that most Christians misunderstand salvation and the role that grace plays in the salvation process. "Grace is usually defined in terms of religious experience, 'getting saved.' The experience of 'getting saved' is just discovering the grace of God—trusting in it for one's security."

"When Christ is made to be the bringer of grace, His true mission is missed."

Hale said that one of the greatest Christian superstitions is the myth that Christ brought grace to man. God, Hale said, is solely responsible for grace, not Christ.

"ALTHOUGH SO much of God's grace has abounded because of Jesus Christ, he did not bring it to the human scene. His life and death is a great lesson in God's grace (if they are viewed for what they really were), but to make grace possible because of him—or impossible without him—is not only to misunderstand grace but to misunderstand what Jesus was all about. This is one of the evils of this superstition. When Christ is made to be the bringer of grace, His true mission is missed."

CONCERNING THE importance of stewardship in Christianity, Hale said stewardship and not being righteous is the main purpose of Christianity. If taken seriously, Hale believes stewardship could transform the earth into a paradise.

Hale said that not only is being faithful steward required for living an effective Christian life, but is beneficial in all areas of life. Hale said that stewardship is the answer to unemployment and lack of ambition and vision.

Perhaps the most controversial chapter in "Christian Superstitions" is chapter seven "The Baptism of the Holy Spirit." Hale gives his opinion of the functions of the Holy Spirit and its significance in Christian life.

"ARE PEOPLE today to seek the baptism of the Holy Spirit? No. It is not a religious experience to be sought. Luke (Biblical writer) was careful not to say that the Disciples were 'baptized' with the Holy Spirit. They were filled with it in an empowering way in certain situations."

Hale addresses the topic of speaking in tongues in chapter seven, and said that the concept of speaking in tongues originated not with the Palestinians but with the Greek Mystery Cults.

Ken Wallace, president of the Wesley Foundation, said that study sessions covering "Christian Superstitions" are being considered.

When asked what advantages he saw in reading Hale's book Wallace said, "The element of superstition in any religion needs to be studied. (The) book addresses issues that need to be looked at. They are his views, but they are open for discussion. In leading this series of discussions, we are not espousing that Hale's views are accurate."

God calls blind man to trek across rugged Appalachia

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (UPI) — A blind man with a strong faith said God called him to walk the rugged and sometimes treacherous 2,126-mile Appalachian Trail alone to bear witness to people he meets along the way from Georgia to Maine.

"I don't know why God wants me to do this, I just accept it," Bill Irwin, a 49-year-old hiker, blind since he was 28, said during a rest at a hiker stop on the trail Monday.

"There are times when I wanted to cry when I was so tired and cold. I was absolutely miserable. This is a tremendous test of faith," he said.

If Irwin is able to complete the journey on foot, he will possibly be the first blind hiker in the United States to accomplish the feat.

He has had some close calls and once almost slipped over the side of a steep ravine, but he got out of it by clinging to a small sapling.

Twice he almost got hypothermia.

"I must have fell 50 or 60 times the first few days," he said, "but I've gotten better and now it may be only a couple of times."

Irwin, carrying a 60-pound pack with food and other supplies, including chow for his guide dog Orient, manages five miles every three hours. Other than his guide dog, he is making the trip alone.

Orient, his two-year-old German Shepherd, learned not to stop at every three-inch step-up as he would if they were walking back in his hometown of Burlington, N.C.

Since leaving Spring Mountain, Ga., five weeks and 250 miles ago, Irwin has faced serious injury and death on sharp drops, rubble and narrow ledges along the trail.

Krishnas to march on Washington

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A group of Hare Krishna devotees Tuesday left Philadelphia on a march to protest a federal court ruling they say could cripple their religion in America.

The group of about two dozen devotees headed to Washington to join in a round-the-clock prayer vigil to protest a federal court ruling that would force them to sell five U.S. temples to pay a $5 million damage award.

The march and prayer vigil stems from a 1977 lawsuit by an American woman who contended her daughter was brainwashed and held against her will by the sect.

Student to present paper in Washington, D.C.

Susan M. Hanna

Future of hazardous waste at University topic of national prize-winning essay

By Eric Reyes
Staff Writer

Susan M. Hanna said she is too worried about finals to think about having to present her award-winning paper in Washington, D.C., this summer.

Hanna, from Highland, will present "The Present and Future Status of Hazardous Waste at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale" to the National Conference on Environmental Engineering in July in Washington, D.C.

Hanna's paper won first prize in the undergraduate division of the Fifth National Hazardous Waste Essay Competition sponsored by the American Society of Civil Engineers.

"I used to work at the Department of Pollution Control on campus. I based it on job experience, articles and research,"

Hanna said.

Hanna said her essay is about the University's waste management and the University should work toward minimization.

"The chemistry department orders chemicals and some of that sits there forever. More communication is needed," Hanna said.

Hanna learned about the competition from the ASCE adviser. She said she incorporated a paper she wrote for an engineering class into her essay.

She has been presented with other honors in the past two years. In 1989, Hanna was named the first winner of the CH2M Hill-ACEC National Scholarship Award by the American consulting Engineers council.

In 1989 and again in 1990 she won the College of Engineering and Technology's David L. Eddingfield Award.

COBE probe findings support 'big bang', but raise questions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A space probe exploring the evolution of the universe has produced a "disturbing" lack of evidence to explain the uneven distribution of galaxies through the cosmos, scientists said Tuesday.

While preliminary data from the Cosmic Background Explorer, known as COBE, continues to support the "big bang" theory of the universe's creation, the information gathered so far has failed to explain its current "lumpy" formation.

"The smoothness is disturbing us a lot. At this point we're beginning to expect little warts and dimples to appear," said David Wilkinson, a professor of physics at Princeton University.

Wilkinson spoke at a news conference at an American Institute of Physics meeting about the latest results from COBE, an ultra sensitive satellite launched in November 1989 on a two-year mission.

The $160 million orbiting space probe was designed to answer fundamental questions about the formation and evolution of the universe by collecting data about faint radiation left over from the big bang explosion.

Scientists theorize the universe exploded into existence 15 billion years ago in a hot, dense fireball that instantly began expanding in all directions.

During the news conference, scientists from NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md., and the University of California at Berkeley said the data collected so far by COBE appears consistent with those theories.

"It's astonishingly consistent with the big bang theory," Wilkinson said.

The NASA scientists also released a new color photograph of the Earth's home galaxy, the Milky Way, based on a composite of data collected by COBE.

"This thing that he gave you is spectacular. I mean that's wonderful," said Wilkinson of the image.

St. Louis area group pursues 14-day U.S. Olympic Festival

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — A regional group announced Tuesday it hopes to bring the U.S. Olympic Festival, one of the nation's top amateur athletic events, to the St. Louis area in 1993, 1994 or 1995.

Officials of the Metropolitan St. Louis Festival Organizing Committee Inc., a group formed by the St. Louis Regional Commerce and Growth Association, said hosting the Olympic Festival would benefit the entire St. Louis area for years to come.

"We project that the festival could bring $50 million to the St. Louis region," said Edward "Tee" Baur, chairman of the St. Louis Sports Committee, which set up the organizing committee. "Also, the facilities developed can be used for amateur sports after the festival."

The U.S. Olympic Festival is a 14-day event held during the summer of every non-Olympic year. More than 4,000 athletes participate in 37 summer and winter Olympic sporting events, as well as some events for disabled competitors. The 1989 festival was held in Oklahoma City, while this summer's event will be staged by Minneapolis-St. Paul, Minn. Bids for the 1993, 1994 and 1995 festivals will be awarded in February 1991.

A survey conducted by the St. Louis Sports Committee determined that a swimming and diving venue, a bicycling velodrome and a track and field site would need to be constructed in the St. Louis area to prepare for the festival.

Gary Heifetz, chairman of the festival organizing committee, said sites on both sides of the river were being considered for those facilities, including Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville.

"The university is very interested in making track and field part of their athletic program," Heifetz said. "They feel they can get the balance of the money from the Illinois General Assembly to rebuild the track facility they now have."

Heifetz also said McKendree College in Lebanon, Ill., and the University of Missouri-St. Louis have expressed interest in building swimming and diving facilities. The bicycle velodrome probably would be located in a St. Louis County park.

In the past, several world-class athletes from the St. Louis area — including track star Jackie Joyner-Kersey and diver Wendy Lian Williams — have had to travel to other areas of the country to train because of a lack of facilities in the St. Louis area, committee members said.

Heifetz said the fact that St. Louis needs to build some facilities should not hurt its chances.

"Minneapolis-St. Paul was in the same situation that we are in," Heifetz said. "They had to build a new swimming and diving center and a bicycle velodrome."

Heifetz also said that for St. Louis to be considered for future events — such as the 2004 Summer Olympics — hosting an Olympic Festival would be a step in the right direction.

Mayor would like new Raiders talks

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Mayor Lionel Wilson Tuesday proposed that the city withdraw from the $486 million deal to bring back the NFL's Raiders and begin new talks with the team's owner.

Wilson aide Carol MacArthur said the mayor would ask the council at its Tuesday night meeting to signal its intent to withdraw from the city's offer. However, because the issue was not on the pre-published agenda, no formal action could be taken until next week.

"The mayor will ask the council to pull the deal off the table and open new talks," said MacArthur. "What new proposals would be offered — I don't know now."

Verbal sparring over the deal, which began Monday when Wilson said he wanted to put the deal to a public vote, grew more heated Tuesday when Los Angeles Coliseum officials commented on the mayor's decision.

When asked about the apparent unraveling of the Oakland deal, Los Angeles Coliseum Commission member Stanley Sanders told the Orange County Register in Tuesday editions: "I knew that deal could not go through. It was too rich for anybody and especially too rich for Oakland."

"Oakland is a city that is 70 percent Third World. They have monumental problems with their school district, they have major earthquake seismic problems downtown. They can't even use their city hall."

MacArthur was outraged by Sanders' comments and invited the commissioner to visit Oakland.

"We definitely want him to come here, to educate him about what this city is all about," MacArthur said. "I think our residents would be outraged at somebody from another region attacking the city like this. This is totally out of line."

'Sir Charles' Barkley is best in a field of great NBA stars

By Paul Finebaum
Scripps Howard News Service

Who is the best basketball player in the world today? If you say Magic Johnson? Go to the back of the line. Don't give me Larry Bird. The hick from French Lick is washed up.

Michael Jordan is the most exciting. But his mind already has shifted to playing the PGA Tour.

Isiah Thomas has taken Detroit to the Promised Land. Karl Malone certainly can deliver the mail on time.

But the best basketball player in the world today — ounce for ounce, or better yet, ton for ton — is none other than Charles Barkley.

Growing up in Leeds, Ala., he took Auburn by storm (to say nothing of Domino's Pizza). And now, this 27-year-old man-child is the talk of the NBA.

His team, the Philadelphia 76ers, is on the verge of doing something no one thought possible: win the Atlantic Division of the Eastern Conference.

A 6-4, 250-pound forward, affectionately known as "Sir Charles," is the main reason.

As the league heads toward the playoffs, Barkley is near the top of the NBA in several key categories. He is averaging 25.3 points per game and is sinking .605 percent of his shots. His 11.6 rebounding average is unbelievable for a mere midget among giants.

Not only that, Barkley, who recently signed a six-year, $19 million contract, has gone Hollywood. He has appeared on the "Arsenio Hall Show" and "Late Night with David Letterman."

Not to be outdone by Bo Jackson, another former Auburn star, Barkley also is doing commercials. He has a hilarious one for Gillette in which he sits on top of a horse.

Mostly, Barkley is just having fun.

"I've been blessed," he said. "If you put effort behind anything, you can be successful. But winning this year has just been so much fun."

"I promised granny that I would go back to Auburn and graduate. I just have to get off my lazy behind and get it done."

—Charles Barkley

To most people, staying focused during the grueling 82-game regular season would be difficult. But not to Barkley.

"The reason you go all out is for home-court advantage. You have to have it for at least two rounds to have a chance."

As a result of the seemingly endless season, Barkley seldom gets home to Leeds.

Yet, in the summer, it is not unusual to find him around town, playing hoops or simply eating.

Barkley is particularly close to his grandmother. But the relationship has been tested since he recently had his ears pierced.

After the Sixers went on a recent winning streak, Barkley and some teammates dared each other to get their ears pierced if the success continued.

"I had to do it," Barkley said. "But my granny nearly killed me."

Said Granny: "I didn't like it. But if he is to be a team leader, he has to do what he says he will."

There have been some problems. Barkley initially hired sports agent Lance Luchnick, the man who represents Alabama linebacker Keith McCants. But the Texas agent no longer works for Barkley.

Still, there are times when Barkley has to pinch himself.

"It's the most incredible feeling in the world. You rarely have time to think about it. Ten years ago, I would have never been able to imagine what I'm doing now. Or to be able to make this kind of money. But the best part of it is being able to help my mother and grandmother, my two brothers and my wife and little daughter, have the finest things in life. That makes it all worth it."

With his wide-body-jet-like frame, people have wondered why he didn't chose football instead of basketball.

"Actually, I talked with (Auburn) coach (Pat) Dye about that from time to time. But I'm on the gutless side when it comes to pain. Although I would like to try football sometime. Maybe play tight end."

Barkley might have thought of football at Auburn. But what he thought of even more than that was food. His proclivity for pizza is world famous.

"The problem in college was that we ate too early. After practice, we immediately went to dinner and a lot of times, I was too worn out to eat. So every single night, we ordered pizza. My goal in life each night was to come up with three dollars and go in with someone else for a pizza."

However, Barkley's coach at Auburn was not crazy about the idea.

Sonny Smith verbally brutalized the player because of his weight problem. The freshman, who was the toast of the Southeastern Conference, couldn't understand the criticism.

Barkley also was timid with the books. That is something he would like to rectify. Barkley is a half-court shot away from graduation.

Aside from winning the NBA championship, getting a degree has become one of his primary goals.

"I promised granny that I would go back to Auburn and graduate. I've had the opportunity to go to schools up here (in Philadelphia) like St. Joseph's and Villanova. But I want to do the work at Auburn."

"I just have to get off my lazy behind and get it done."

Considering what Charles Barkley has accomplished in his career, one would have to believe this goal will not be difficult.

team is in first in the Gateway Conference.

"I think if we keep going with the same attitude, with the same approach that we have been, then I see us going a long way," Gibbs said. "I see us going as far as we want to go."

In her four years at SIU-C, Gibbs says she never has experienced the feelings for her teammates that she does this year.

"If you were to look up the word 'team' in the dictionary I think this team is everything I would have in that dictionary," Gibbs said. "It's everything that you ever imagined about a team. It has taken everybody to win every game this year."

Gibbs' personal success is revealed through her statistics.

Her .412 batting average is tops in the Saluki lineup and among the leaders in the conference. Gibbs also leads the team with 30 hits and is tied for the lead in RBIs (22), doubles (7) and walks (18).

Gibbs credits a lot of her personal success to the success of her teammates.

"If I'm hitting for a poor average that will bother me," Gibbs said, "but I've come to realize this year that if I don't hit, someone else in our lineup will pick me up. That is what has made this year so much fun. It's taken a lot of pressure off me and that may be one reason why I am hitting better this year."

Not that Gibbs hasn't hit well in the past. She holds 12 school records, including career marks for hits (182), doubles (33), home runs (12) and RBIs (90), and is quickly closing in on several other school records.

Gibbs has been named MVP for the Salukis the last two years. She also has received all-Gateway and NCAA all-Region honors.

One honor that has eluded Gibbs is all-America and she hopes to tackle that one this year.

"That is one goal that I have always had...to be an all-American," Gibbs said. "I just have never gotten it and that's a little disappointing. That's what I've always wanted to be."

Gibbs' play over the past four years certainly has gained SIU-C coach Kay Brechtelsbauer's respect.

"There isn't a whole lot I can say about Shelly that I haven't already said. I've been talking about her for four years," Brechtelsbauer said. "She's just a great athlete. This is her last year and she wants to win. She's a great individual to have in the program."

"Shelly is definitely a team leader, both on and off the field. She is like a second coach on the field. Shelly is mentally tough and is a student of the game. It's no accident that she makes good decisions."

Gibbs' success hasn't come easy. She is constantly battling injuries. Her right shoulder and right knee have been on the operating table and her left knee probably could use surgery, she said.

"The team calls me grandma, so I guess that speaks for itself," Gibbs said. "I used to see myself as a power hitter, but not this year. I'm really falling apart. It's hard for me to get any drive with my legs. It's really frustrating."

Gibbs, majoring in social work, is productive both on and off the field. Her 3.35 fall GPA is nothing to sneeze at and between studies and softball, it seems impossible that Gibbs would have time for a part-time job, but she enjoys her work at Jackson County Senior Services.

"I love it," Gibbs said. "My career is going to be with the aging anyway, but I really love all the people there."

NUNN, from Page 24

Nunn said her time in the 400-meter dash was good enough to win but did not meet her expectations.

"It is not a fast time, but my conference I would like to be in the 52 second range, but good weather will bring it down an awful lot," Nunn said.

She said her personal-best time outdoors in the 400-meter dash is 55.1 seconds.

The attitude of the 4 x 100-meter relay team was one of confidence entering the event, she said.

"I think the team had a pretty good attitude. I went out really fast trying to win," Nunn said.

"That was one of the fastest (4 x 100-meter) I've ever run."

"This was one of my better outdoor meets but it wasn't my best. There are still better meets to come as far as the outdoor season goes," Nunn said.

Pirates get '94 All-Star Game

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh will be the site of baseball's 1994 All-Star Game, it was announced Tuesday.

Pirates President Carl Barger and Pittsburgh Mayor Sophie Masloff made the announcement about the July 12th game which will mark the 50th anniversary of the first All-Star Game, also played in Pittsburgh at Forbes Field in 1944.

The 1994 contest will be the fourth All-Star Game held in Pittsburgh, with the last one in 1974, also at Three Rivers. The other game was at Forbes Field in 1959.

"It is with great pleasure that the National League and Major League Baseball is awarding the 1994 All-Star Game to Pittsburgh," National League

President Bill White said. "We look forward to all of the All-Star festivities that are being planned by the Pirates and the great city of Pittsburgh."

Barger said Pittsburgh could have hosted the 1992 All-Star Game but there was a conflict with a Baptist Church convention.

"Several years ago, the Pittsburgh Pirates made an exhaustive proposal to representatives of the National League and Major League baseball to serve as the host team for a future All-Star game," Barger said. "The reception, quite candidly, has been outstanding."

Barger directly was responsible for putting together the public-private coalition that purchased the Pirates from the Galbreath family in 1985 and kept the franchise in Pittsburgh.

WHAT CAN YOU DO TO HELP?

1. Be a responsible shopper - re-use shopping bags, avoid excessive packaging, styrofoam, etc. THINK recycling!
2. Be aware - does the business that produces your merchandise practice sound environmental and social responsibility?
3. Consider lifestyle changes now - What can you do to conserve our natural resources, i.e. water, energy, etc. Use your bike, or walk more often.
4. Recycle - the more we return back into use, the more we will have in the future.
5. Remember - we share this planet with others, in other countries, with the people of the future, and billions of plant and animal life forms.
6. Consider the "Spaceship Earth" concept - there is no magical place called "away", waste, pollutants, and problems do not just disappear.
7. Remember - Only YOU can make a difference. WE together can do it.
