Bush orders troops to help refugees

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush, denying he was doing "too little too late" to help hundreds of thousands of desperate Iraqi refugees, ordered U.S. troops into northern Iraq Tuesday to set up temporary relief camps.

Instituting the move was not a departure from his promise to stay out of Iraq's internal affairs, Bush said American military forces, joined by British and French air and ground troops, would guarantee "adequate security" for any refugee who wishes to re-enter Iraq for help at one of the camps.

"I want to stress that this new effort, despite its scale and scope, is not intended as a permanent solution to the plight of the Iraqi Kurds," he said. "To the contrary, it is an interim measure designed to meet an immediate, penetrating, humanitarian need."

Under steady fire for a delayed response to the plight of what could be up to 1.7 million refugees, mostly Kurds, fleeing the wrath of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in hard-to-reach mountain areas, Bush conceded that U.S. efforts to date, including a massive air drop of supplies, have proven inadequate.

American officials estimated Monday that the refugees are dying at a rate of up to 1,000 a day along the Iraqi-Turkish border.

"The scale of this effort is truly unprecedented. Yet the fact remains that the scale of the problem is even greater," he said.

He bailed back against those who have called for more help.

GTE may charge city for local calls

By Leslie Colp

Carbondale telephone customers may soon pay for local calls.

GTE announced Monday it asked the Illinois Commerce Commission to add 18 new areas, including Carbondale, to the Usage Sensitive Service.

USS already is in place for 55 areas affecting 230,000 GTE customers, according to GTE statistics. It reduces the monthly service charge, but charges customers for each local call.

GTE serves about $2,000 telephone customers in the 18 areas affected by the change.

Jim Manis, GTE southern division public affairs manager, said most customers will save money because under USS their monthly service charges will be reduced from $18.09 to $13.71 for in-town customers, and from $21.19 to $16.61 for rural customers.

The charge for each local call will be 2.1 cents for Carbondale to Carbondale calls. But calls from Carbondale to other towns that were free before the change, including Murphysboro and DeSoto, will cost 4.5 cents for each call plus 1.5 cents for each minute.

Any telephone customer with a prefix of 457, 549 or 529 will be affected, including Makanda residents with those prefixes, Manis said.

Calls from one SIUC on-campus phone to another on-campus phone will be free. But if people with a 536 or 453 prefix want to call off-campus, they will be charged.

"If a student wants to call a pizza place, he will have to pay for the pizza and the phone call," Manis said.

Tractor deaths lead fatalities on U.S. farms

Second only to mining, agriculture is the second most hazardous industry and is listed at first when the deaths of people under 14 are counted, according to the National Safety Council. Within the agriculture industry, most deaths in agriculture are results of tractor accidents.

Illinois prisoners have their "No Vacancy" signs out and new rooms won't be available for some time, said a department of corrections official.

Spokesman Brian Fairchchild said the state prison level is at 143 percent of capacity. The 23 operating medium and minimum security prisons, combined with nine community correction centers, were designed to house nearly 20,000 inmates. As of April 12, the number of adult inmates was 28,487.

Menard Correctional Center, a maximum security institution in Chester, is one of the many prisons that is experiencing overcrowding.

The prison was designed to house 1,460 inmates, but the current population is 2,575. Fairchchild said.

"We have the 'No Vacancy' sign out," said Menard Warden George Welbon.

Railway strike not to obstruct Amtrak service

By Sherri L. Wilcox
Staff Writer

Carbondale train station workers spent last night wondering if they would have trains to run this morning.

As the 11 p.m. deadline for negotiations between railway union leaders and the Department of Transportation approached, the threat of a potential nationwide walkout by railway workers increased.

Samuel Skinner, secretary of transportation, said yesterday that hopes for a settlement are dim.

"There's no question that sometime after midnight tonight a railroad strike of national proportions will occur," he said.

Most passenger service will be unaffected by the strike, because Amtrak owns and operates half its routes and because the unions, seeking public support, have vowed to keep passenger delays to a minimum.

Don Jones, an Amtrak conductor, said Amtrak will try to find alternative transportation for those passengers whose trains are stopped en route, but will not be able to offer

Three has been best number for softball pitching rotation

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

Three players to fill one position might be an obstacle for some coaches, but SIUC pitching coach Gary Buckles said having three pitchers for the softball team is an ideal situation.

"I have not found it difficult having three pitchers," Buckles said. "At one point in my coaching career I have had as many as five girls rotating within the position." Buckles said three is a good number to have because when the team is playing a doubleheader, it has two starting pitchers and one relief pitcher.

"Keeping the opponents' batters off-stride is my main goal," Buckles said. "And our three pitchers' styles are very different, so that gives us an advantage—we have the choice as to which pitcher to put in at any certain point in the game."

Having three pitchers also benefit the team when one of them suffers an injury, Buckles said. "If you know nobody would get hurt, two pitchers would be perfect," Buckles said. "We play a short season and to satisfy three pitchers is a tough job. It is not an easy decision to make because they are sometimes disappointed."

"I put the best pitchers on the mound and that is what I have to do. It is my job as the pitching coach to help the Salukis win and I have to focus on personalities and look at the situation strictly from a pitching point of view."

As to rotating the pitchers on a systematic basis, Buckles said he has never used a system. He indeed looks at what kind of hitters the opposing team has.

He then bases which pitcher to use on the other team's style of hitting. "I look at the other team and see if it is mainly a bunting team, a hit and run or a slap hitting team and I work from there," Buckles said. "I choose the pitcher who is most effective with its type of play. I also use the pitcher who is getting the job done at the time."

Sophomore pitcher Angie Mick said she isn't sure of how Buckles works the rotation, but he always matches the pitcher to the hitter. "I don't know too much about his info," Mick said. "I just do the best I can."

SIUC student to compete in Iron Man Triathlon

By Wayne Frazer
Staff Writer

Some people make a run at their dreams. Cameron Widoff is running, swimming and biking his way to his dreams.

Widoff, a junior in exercise physiology, competes in the triathlon. The triathlon is comprised of a swimming event, a bike race and a distance run. The events are run continuously, so the athlete must run out of the water and immediately jump on a bike. The bike race is followed by a run, usually of ten miles or more.

Widoff won the Crawfishman Triathlon in New Orleans, La., last week. The victory qualifies him for the Bad Light Iron Man Triathlon in Kona, Hawaii. The Iron Man is comparable to the Super Bowl in football and Widoff said it is a honor just to make it.

"Because it is a prestigious event, it is more popular and more people are trying to get in," he said. "You have to be a pretty elite athlete just to get there."

Widoff was hired into running the triathlon by his older brother Benjamin. The elder Widoff won the Doc Spackman Triathlon, which is held annually on the campus of SIUC at Campus Lake. Widoff, who was at the time on the swim team, followed in the footsteps of his brother.

"I had the swimming background," Widoff said. "I had played around a little bit with biking, but not very much. Benjamin got me involved and I started bringing the three of them together."

In 1989 Widoff entered the Spackman Triathlon, which is much shoter than a normal race. He has won the last two years.

Widoff has progressed quickly since quitting the swimming team to concentrate on the triathlon. He finished 15 minutes behind the winner last year at the Crawfishman and finished third at the Springfield Triathlon. That third-place finish was enough to get him a spot in the Iron Man in Hawaii. Widoff was surprised he did so well in Springfield.

"It was sort of a fluke I did as well as I did," Widoff said. "They gave me the certificate to go to Hawaii and I was like, 'No way.'"

"He didn't want his opportunity in Kona. Widoff finished 86th out of approximately 1,350 participants. That finish is made more impressive by the fact that Widoff had never run a full-length marathon before. A true marathon is 26.2 miles and he had to run the distance after swimming 2.4 miles and bicycling the 112-mile course."

After his strong showing at the Iron Man, Widoff's confidence grew. He worked harder at training with Benjamin. The elder Widoff was the Crawfishman. Widoff's training regimen reads like a 'Rocky' movie script.

"I normally train between three and four hours a day," he said. "It gets harder sometimes because the workouts pile on top of each other. You get done swimming and then run a mile and your arms are tired. Then you try to get on your bike and your legs are dead."

"A normal week I'll run 10 miles, bike between 200 to 300 miles and run 25 to 35 miles."

"It is more than swimming, running and biking, but not more than swimming, running and biking," Widoff said.

Patriot missile effectiveness against Scuds questioned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Iraqi Scud missiles may have done less damage in Saudi Arabia and Israel if they had been left to fall to the ground rather than being broken up in flight by the Patriot missile, a college professor told the House Armed Services Committee Tuesday. At a hearing of two of the panel's subcommittees exploring the relationship between the use of the Patriot to down Scuds to the Strategic Defense Initiative ballistic missile defense research program, Theodore Postol of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology said tumbling Scud debris could have caused more damage than if there had been no defense.

Ozone layer depletion worse than estimated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Wintertime ozone depletion over the northern United States and Canada is roughly one-third greater than the already alarming declines detailed in new NASA studies, a prominent scientist told Congress Tuesday. Earth's protective ozone layer has thinned by an estimated 10 percent over much of North America during the winter months, said Sherwood Rowland of the University of California-Irvine, who in 1974 was among the first scientists to warn of the dangers of ozone-depleting industrial compounds like chlorofluorocarbons.

NASA space station proposal questioned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — NASA officials acknowledged Tuesday they had not included money for an astronaut escape system and other key elements in their new proposal for the $30 billion space station Freedom. Under sometimes frustrated questioning by Sen. Al Gore Jr., Tenn., space agency officials said they had not included more than $2 billion in costs, in part because they did not yet have firm cost projections. NASA Administrator Richard Truly and other officials said the systems would not be essential until after the space station became permanently occupied by astronauts after the year 2000.

Manufacturing group backs plan to extend tax increase

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Gov. Jim Edgar Tuesday picked up an important endorsement in his effort to get the Legislature to permanently extend the state's income tax increase when a statewide manufacturing group backed the plan. Illinois Manufacturers Association Executive Director Greg Baise said the tax is necessary to make sure the state properly educates all of its workers. Baise's group, which represents 4,800 manufacturers, has been a major supporter of educational reform that will produce better-trained workers. "Gov. Edgar faces tremendous budgetary problems this year and the tax is needed to have the financial resources available," Baise said.

Minor earthquake shakes southeast Illinois

LAWRENCEVILLE (UPI) — A minor earthquake that rattled windows in southeastern Illinois was just a slightly larger version of tremors that jiggle the Midwest every day, a Tennessee seismic researcher said Tuesday. No one was injured and few people even felt the earth move in the quake, which struck at about 11:07 p.m. Monday night. The National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Co., said the tremor measured between 2.7 and 3.0 on the open-ended Richter scale and was centered near Lawrenceville on the Illinois-Illinois border.

CCFA students value recognition of honors

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

The recognition of accomplishments can be as rewarding as monetary awards to students on Honors Day, a College of Communication and Fine Arts administration said.

Pam JONES, administrative aide for CCFA, said although students need scholarships and other monetary awards, knowing their work has been noticed by instructors can be equally gratifying.

"Being recognized by major instructors and department chairs as an outstanding student is sometimes more important than the dollar amount (of the award)," she said.

Seven CCFA students received a total of $2,900 in college-wide awards on Honors Day April 7.

Natalie Boehme, one of three recipients of the S275 Robert W. Davis Memorial Scholarship, said she almost forgot she had filled out an application for an award until she received an invitation to attend Honors Day.

Boehme, junior in journalism, said any amount of financial aid is helpful, but she was pleased to receive letters of congratulations from acting CCFA Dean Marvin Kircun and School of Journalism Director Walter Jachnin.

"The recognition and the name that the Davis scholarship carries is more important than the scholarship, " she said.

The other two recipients of the Davis scholarship are Michelle Meloch, junior in communication disorders and sciences, and Michelle Meifie, junior in speech communication.

The $900 Virginia Marmaduke Endowed Scholarship went to Jacqueline Spinner, junior in journalism, and John Augustine, junior in radio-television.

Spinner said she appreciates the scholarship, but having Virginia Marmaduke as a reference is almost as valuable.

Scarlett Coy, senior in art and design, received the $125 Carrie M. Burn Scholarship.

Michael Greeninger, senior in art and design, received the $150 Leah M. Reed Memorial Scholarship.

University blood drive needs 499 more pints to reach goal

By Todd Eschman
Staff Writer

After two days of collecting donations, the American Red Cross needs 499 more pints of blood to reach its 1,050 pint goal for the University blood drive, said Vivian Urgent, drive coordinator.

The three-day drive began Monday and continues from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. today in Ballroom D of the Student Center.

As of Tuesday, the Red Cross has collected 551 pints of blood.

Ugent stressed the importance of maintaining a large supply of blood during the spring. She said warmer weather causes a predictable increase in the number of accidents.

"With the nicer weather, there are a lot of farming accidents. There are more people on the highways and there are more young drivers getting into accidents," she said. "It's really unfortunate when the accident happens and the blood isn't there."

She said people who have already donated before need to continue giving blood to keep the blood banks filled at a safe level.

"We need sustained commitment. People need to do it again and again—to make it a habit," she said. "There is no other place to get blood, other than from the people who give it. The Red Cross doesn't need blood. It's people who need blood."

Donating blood is painless and takes little time, said Laurel Wendt, associate director of the SIUC Law School Library and blood donor.

"It's a good thing to do," she said. "I know it's important to keep supplies high. It doesn't take very long to give and a good paper cut is no problem."

Other donors said removing the bandage is the most painful part of donating blood.

"Once people come out and give they see it really isn't any big deal," Urgent said. "I think most people really feel good about themselves when it's all over with."

Ugent said that donors from the February blood drive are eligible to donate again.

Donors must be at least 17 years old and weigh at least 110 pounds.

SIUC honors mathematician, economist as top teachers

An economist and a mathematician are this year's top teachers at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

Kim S. Harris, associate professor of agribusiness economics, and Mary H. Wright, associate professor of mathematics, were singled out from a field of eight finalists and named recipients of the 1991 SIUC Outstanding Teaching Award.

The finalists represented SIUC's various colleges and schools.

In recognition of their contributions to the University, Harris and Wright each will receive a $5,000 cash award and will be honored during SIUC's spring commencement ceremonies.
Reform Party offers SIUC realistic goals

STUDENTS WILL HAVE THE CHANCE to show interest in the University Thursday with the undergraduate student government elections. The United, Student and Reform parties all presented strong, well thought out platforms. Improved campus safety, expanded University recycling programs and better distribution of funds for registered student organizations are common goals of the three parties. But the goals of the Reform Party beat out the competition. If elected, the party will revive the Commission System within USG. This commission represents research and student input to USG committees before decisions are made.

THE REFORM PARTY ALSO PLANS to join the Student Programming Council and USG to sponsor a Fall Music Festival featuring a variety of music and activities. A textbook rental system aimed at cutting the cost of buying books by issuing a rental fee is high on the party's platform. The party supports a program to match international students with an SIUC student. The program is aimed at fostering smoother transitions to the SIUC and Carbondale communities.

The Reform Party offers the student body experienced leadership with realistic goals. The party wants student input and participation. Casting a vote for the Reform Party is the best choice.

Hall still best choice for student trustee

ALTHOUGH EACH STUDENT TRUSTEE candidate could be a strong representative to the Board of Trustees, incumbent William Hall remains the best voice of the students.

Hall, running under the Reform Party, has years of experience with representing students in various areas. These include financial matters on the Illinois Board of Higher Education, housing concerns in the Landlord-Tenant Union and legal matters on the Students' Legal Assistant Board of Directors.

While having all this experience, Hall has not become jaded in his various positions. He still takes an active role in finding how students feel and recognizes the process of learning from his mistakes.

FOR INSTANCE, HE HELPED TO create the Presidents Council to give the leaders of Registrar-Employee Student Organizations a chance to voice their concerns.

The other two candidates, Richard Pasano of the Student Party and Dill Wheeler, an independent, also have a multitude of experiences across campus and have proven their worth on the boards and committees on which they have served.

Hall, however, has successfully shown that he is concerned both with improving the lives of students as well as listening to their voices in representing SIUC to the Board of Trustees and the state.

Quotable Quotes

"There are people who could do a better job (at running student government), but we can't get them in here."—USG President Lisa Kuehne said about students not getting involved in student government because of its negative image.

"Although many Americans are forced to admit that racism still exists, only a few people are courageous enough to point out the root cause of racism in America—the system.

"African-Americans have always viewed racism as a systemic problem, simply meaning that the very social, political and cultural culture in America is, in itself, the problem.

"Given that all governmental systems, democratic or otherwise, exist to maintain the society in which it is employed; all systems, in essence, reproduce the same society over and over. Therefore, if racism still exists in America, and it does, then it is because American society from the government down was racist yesterday and, because no abrupt changes occurred, it maintains that racism today.

"Programs and policies change according to time. But the objective remains the same..." (Malcolm X) In other words, only the face of racism or at least some of its vulgar physical manifestations have changed and not the covert institutionalized forms. So, no significant change has occurred.

The late, great Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. asserted that "...While America must recognize that justice for black people cannot be achieved without radical changes in the structure of our society. Either America must become a fully-functional, equally-integrated multicultural society or allow for the "separate but equal" rule of America by each individual ethnic group in the manner of independent states (e.g., the Baltic states of the Soviet Union). Otherwise, so-called minorities will be the repeated victims of "taxation without representation.""

Until America is willing to completely revamp its institutions—government, education, media and the like—allowing them to be redrafted and reformed equally by each ethnic group based on independent, yet harmonious multiculturalism.

America will always be a racist country, fortuitous in many ways and grossly underdeveloping Black America.—Nate Luster, junior, political science.

tractor accidents are the leading cause of fatal farm accidents in the United States, said Larry Williams, district coordinator for community education at the Cooperative Extension Service, an insurance and investment group.

Nationwide more than 300 farm residents die in tractor accidents each year and thousands suffer disabling injuries, Williams said.

He said since July 1990, 17 Illinois farmers have died in 56 tractor accidents. He said more than 50 percent of tractor-related deaths are caused by tractor rollovers.

"A tractor roll-over is one of the worst things a farmer can experience," Williams said. "It is a moment of pure terror." He said the side roll-overs usually occur with front-end loader tractors. He said these tractors have a bucket on the front and are used for moving dirt.

When the bucket is full and is raised too high, it creates a high center of gravity. If the tractor makes a sharp turn or even runs over a small rock, it could tip over, he said.

He said the tractor does not always turn over in the case of a side roll-over, and it is less likely to be fatal.

Rough ground, sharp turns and hills can cause a tractor to overturn, he said. Leaving the transmission in first while shutting off the tractor also can result in a deadly accident, Williams said.

Williams said a very simple device can be added to tractors to prevent such tragic events. The device is called a roll-over protection structure (ROPS).

"ROPS is a metal frame which covers and protects the driver from being crushed under the tractor," Williams said. He said a seatbelt is used along with the ROPS, the chances of surviving an accident greatly increase.

"If a seatbelt is not used with a ROPS, there is a much greater risk of being seriously or fatally injured," Williams said.

Only one-third of the tractors in the United States have ROPS, according to the National Safety Council.

Williams said it would cost about $1,000 to add a ROPS to a tractor that does not have one. He said it is cost dependent on the type and the weight of the tractor.

Smith said leaving other people besides the operator on the tractor is particularly dangerous — when a critical hour comes, they usually fall directly in front of the truck, so the operator has no time to stop the tractor.

Williams said he recommends avoiding holes, ditches, road shoulders and obstacles that might cause the tractor to tip over.

The more than 176 percent of capacity level has created situations that have become problematic, Welborn said.

Menard has been overcrowded for several years and now must use tactics such as double-celling to house its inmates, he said. Inmates in Menard have grown 21 percent since 1989, Fairchild said.

The prison level on Jan. 1, 1991 was 27,712, meaning more than 700 inmates are being held in about four months, he said.

Although 15 correctional centers were built since 1976, Fairchild said the department still is losing inmates.

"The fact that 143 inmates are being held in an area designed to hold 800 is a serious concern," he said.

The Department of Corrections received $10 million more than it did in fiscal year 1991, but the amount was $34 million short of what was needed, Fairchild said.

State Rep. Larry Wooldred, D-Carterville, said the funding shortage in Gov. Jim Edgar's proposed 1992 budget could create safety problems — not only for the public, but for the inmates and inmates themselves.

Wooldred said everyone should be able to believe that criminals are being kept off the streets, while prison employees should not be exposed to rotten situations and the inmates should remain safe.

Although the lack of funds is creating problems within the prison, no permanent solutions can be created without more money, Fairchild said.

The end result was cutting into existing programs and not expanding on any new ones in order to "live within our means," Fairchild said.

"It's an extraordinary year that calls for extraordinary measures," he said.

These measures include not holding several prisons and work camps currently nearing capacity, not allowing the closing of some juvenile homes, despite the prison's creation of 3,000 to 4,000 additional inmates in fiscal year 1992, he said.

One of the prisons that will not be expanded is the Big Muddy State Penitentiary located near Rend Lake in Jefferson County.

The prison will be finished in 1992, but there won't be enough money to staff the prison or feed any inmates, Fairchild said.

"Essentially everything is complete, but there's no money," he said.

director for GTE telephone operations, said USS will begin in two phases. Phase One begins July 1 and ends Dec. 31. During this time, customers in the affected towns will receive two bills but only will pay one.

One bill will be calculated the usual way, but the rate will be the one customers pay, Pierce said. The other bill will be calculated for USS to allow customers to compare costs.

"It's a way of a get-acquainted process," he said. "It helps (customers) accept change." Fierce said Phase Two, which begins Jan. 1, 1992 if the ICC agrees to change the 18 communities to USS.

Manis said ICC probably will agree to make the change because other exchanges already are using USS.

"We want to be 100 percent USS," he said.

Manis said GTE wants to switch customers to USS because GTE is close to losing its monopoly for local service in Southern Illinois, becoming a political football, and offer telephone service at a lower price.

"We know competition is coming," he said. "We want to be as cost-conscious as we can," he said.

Pierce and Pierc said GTE favors the plan because it will save most customers money. Pierce said about 65 percent of GTE customers save money under USS.

"It may be only a few cents or a few dollars, but they're saving money," he said.

Manis said groups such as senior citizens in other areas have been complaining when their telephone systems were changed to USS. Those citizens have a limited income and they thought their rates would increase.

"It's a matter of education and understanding," he said. "We have more than the public (USC) is a very good program."
Local dance group to perform

By Jeff Pavlu
Staff Writer

Contrary to how it sounds, Southern Illinois Repertory Dance Theater’s “Dance Expresso” is caffeine-free.

The show is a series of commissions works as well as several faculty- and student-choreographed works that will premiere Saturday, April 27, in Shryock Auditorium. The concert will include modern, jazz, and ballet dance styles.

Motion Systems Dance Company, a local dance group directed by SIUC graduate Kathleen Gits, also will perform in a trio routine titled “Cascades.” Donna Wilson, artistic director for SIRDIT, said the group has worked toward the concert all year.

“We have many different choreographers, which creates a lot of variety in the style and mood of the show,” Wilson said.

Wilson said the most interesting piece is by the originator of modern dance, Doris Humphrey. Wilson, who chooses the students productions for the show each year, must decide between as many as 12 based on performance, direction, quality, style and mood.

Wilson will direct a duo called “A Man and A Woman.” She also will perform in three other routines. The commissioned works include “Shakers,” by Doris Humphrey, “What Was That,” by Suzanne Grace, “Siblings,” by Eddie Glickman, and “Chair Pillow,” by Yvonne Rainer.

The concert will begin at 8 p.m., and tickets are $5. For further information, contact Donna Wilson at 453-3120.

Plastic surgeon slain by disgruntled patient

BELLEVUE, Wash. (UPI) — A 60-year-old woman spurred her facelift, shot and killed her plastic surgeon and then killed herself, police said Tuesday.

Dr. Selvin Cohen, 41, who was married with four children, was found dead of multiple gunshot wounds Monday evening.

His body was discovered about 45 minutes after officers were called to a Bellevue residence where they found the woman, still alive, with an apparently self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head, police said.

The woman, identified as Beryl Challis, died at Overlake Hospital about 10:30 p.m. Monday.

General strike urged to oust Gorbachev

MOSCOW (UPI) — Former dissident Vladimir Bukovsky, back in his homeland after 15 years in exile, said Tuesday that only a nationwide general strike can remove Mikhail Gorbachev from power and end Communist rule.

“By the end of the year, hunger will start in the Soviet Union, and kind-hearted capitalists will drop food from planes like they are doing now for the Kurds,” said Bukovsky, who with the late Andrei Sakharov helped draw world attention to the Soviet dissident movement in the 1960s.

In an interview, Bukovsky showed no signs of having softened his virulent anti-Communist beliefs while living in his adopted home of England.

How Important Is One Vote

• In 1695, one vote gave Oliver Cromwell control of England.
• In 1649, one vote caused Charles I of England to be executed.
• In 1776, one vote gave America the English language instead of German.
• In 1845, one vote brought Texas into the Union.
• In 1868, one vote saved President Andrew Johnson from impeachment.
• In 1875, one vote changed France from a monarchy to a Republic.
• In 1876, one vote gave Rutherford B. Hayes presidency of the United States.
• In 1923, one vote gave Adolf Hitler leadership of the Nazi party.
• In 1941, one vote saved Selective Service — just weeks before Pearl Harbor was attacked.

Bible preacher riles students

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

Students were riled once again Tuesday afternoon — Brother Jim Gilles was back on campus.

Gilles, a Pentecostal evangelist whose outspoken fundamentalism sparked a heated scuffle at the Free Forum area April 10, made his second in a series of three appearances at the school.

Although the crowd was less physical Tuesday, Gilles was no less confrontational, calmly decrying everything from the issues of sex, rock 'n' roll and a woman's role in society.

"I will not attempt to put the women of SIU down," Gilles said. "I will only attempt to put them in their proper place."

Over boos from the audience, Gilles asked, "Do you know what ERA stands for?"

"Equal Rights Amendment," someone in the crowd responded.

"Earned run average," another said.

"ERA stands for 'Ever Ruined Adam,'" Gilles said. "Adam was your first hump-backed husband wimp. Adam was the first women's libber feminist."

Gilles said a woman's role in society is to support and help her husband.

"She can help him the greatest by having him supper ready when he comes in," he said.

Gilles returned to campus after an incident last week where a young Muslim throteed Gilles for saying "Allah is the devil."

Gilles said he returns, "Because I love every woman, whoremonger, masturbator and punk rocker at this university."

"The sinners of SIU can be saved if they forsake their sinning and follow Jesus Christ for the rest of their lives," said Gilles, who said he also was once a "drug-crazed, boozing-guzzling manic."

Gilles' audience fluctuated between 30 and more than 100 during the afternoon, depending on how lively the debate became.

This time students used the Bible rather than brute strength to counter Gilles' arguments.

"Let him who is without sin cast the first stone."

"Whether your sin is in the past or the present, you've had it," Conaway said. "You've had sin. You admit it."

Gilles disagreed. "I presently am without sin by the grace of God," he said.

During the debate, Gilles refused to shake hands with people in the crowd.

Students said they found more humor than threat in Gilles' proclamation.

"This is fun," said Chris Kozakka, a senior in English. "I think it's most fun because he takes himself so seriously."

Kozakka said, "Everyone else is just here to enjoy it."

"I don't know how a person who supposedly loves God can be filled with so much hatred," said Heather Poets, a sophomore in radio and television from Palatine.

Gilles defined rock as "mill music" as "cultural brain rot."

A student asked if Christian rock bands such as Strayer were an exception, because its lyrics praise and glorify God.

"They never did glorify God," Gilles said. "You know why? They had long hair. Strayer even wore makeup. They were more makeup than Tammy Faye Bakker."

He offered a $20 reward for the return of his briefcase, which was stolen at his April 10 appearance.

Parents, residents want to create Christian high school; name picked

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

A new Christian high school in Carbondale is a reality, if only in name.

A group of about 20 parents and local residents came one night last week to establish a private secondary school at its Monday meeting, selecting the name Emmanuel High School.

But even with a name, which may change after the first year of the school's operation if a more appropriate name is found, Emmanuel still needs instructors, funding and a tuition policy.

The meeting at Murdale Baptist Church opened with about 30 minutes of group prayer, asking God for a blessing on the group's endeavor before moving on to name the school for purposes of incorporation.

Darrell Dunham, SIUC law professor and member of the group, said papers he will file with the state and the Internal Revenue Service list Emmanuel as a charitable institution outside the public school system, which makes donations to the school tax deductible.

The group said it hopes to begin operation in fall 1991, holding classes for up to 10 students at Murdale Baptist, 2701 W. Main. Dunham said although Murdale only would act as housing for Emmanuel, he felt having the school closely tied to a church is important for its protection.

"As Christian education grows...it steps on toes and gets people annoyed," Dunham said. "I can see attacks in the future on Christian schools, and the closer you are affiliated to a church, the better you can claim constitutional protection."

The group considered several names for the new school, designed to receive students graduating from Covenant Christian School on Streigel Road, a grammar school processing students up to eighth grade.

The group also nominated a possible two-person school board, tapping Roy Kechn and Wyatt George of Murphysboro as administrators. George, a businessman and pastor at First Presbyterian Church in West Frankfort, expressed reluctance to serve on the board and asked to give his answer at the group's April 22 meeting.

So far, nine applicants for teaching positions have come forward, but whether Emmanuel will be able to pay its teachers or ask for volunteers is not yet clear.

The group said it acknowledged that getting the school running will take time and effort, but it believes the need for a Christian secondary school is too great to ignore.

Electronic monitoring system reducing prison population

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

Technology and the police have teamed up to help reduce the growing strain on the prison population.

The electronic monitoring system used throughout Illinois keeps the police in constant contact with offenders while they serve their sentences in their homes, said Milton Maxwell, chief management officer for the Jackson County Department of Probation.

Maxwell said the county was one of the first in the state to employ the system, which currently includes eight to 10 people.

"It's a very successful program, but it's not for everybody," Maxwell said. "It's not a replacement for real violent offenders."

If a person is found to be in violation of the home incarceration, they could be sentenced to prison for the initial crime, he said.

Maxwell said 120 days seems to be the most effective time period for the electronic monitoring.

Once the time period becomes longer, the number of violations increases, he said.

Although the electronic monitoring system has been successful, there is still more that must be done, Fairchild said.

Effects of drinking alcohol different for women than men

By Susan Mojeske

Wellness Center

Spring break has been here and gone, and many passages officially mark the beginning of spring in Champaign-Urbana — the time of socializing outside with friends.

Many gatherings will include alcohol as part of the activities. Rarely do women realize that they are not created equal to their male counterparts where alcohol’s effects are concerned.

Since the mid-1960s, the number of women who choose to drink has steadily increased. The 18- to 34-year-old age group, which includes traditional college-age women and the growing number of non-traditional, is the largest group of drinking women.

Current research is showing that on-campus women’s drinking is becoming similar to men’s drinking. Women are drinking for similar reasons — to socialize and to relax or reduce tension.

At the same time, young women are making up a greater portion of defendants in drunk driving cases. Women also are at a higher risk for date rape or assault when drinking.

The flip side of this epidemiology is that alcohol problems are clinically different and progress more rapidly in women.

Women have more body fat and less muscle tissue than men. This means that women will have a higher blood alcohol concentration than men the same size after drinking the same amount.

To Your Health

Women who drink if they are pregnant risk Fetal Alcohol Syndrome or Fetal Alcohol Effects in their offspring. Women also are more likely than men to abuse prescription drugs, experience depression and attempt suicide.

Symptoms that a woman is drinking too much may include irritability, depression and anxiety. She may have trouble sleeping. Often these symptoms are medically treated with other mood altering drugs.

If you think that a woman you know is having a problem with her drinking, carefully encourage her to seek help.

There are alternatives to drinking alcohol. At Spring Fest, visit the Juice Bar for a refreshing alternative to alcoholic drinks. For more information, contact the Wellness Center at 536-4441.

Pampered pets

Americans don’t scrimp on their animals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Recession-pinched Americans may scrimp on other spending during hard times, but they pamper their dogs and cats, even buying premium foods for their pets, industry specialists reported Tuesday.

Strong sales of blue-chip premium foods and a projected steady registration rate for purebred dogs suggest that pets become more important during recessions, said Jerry Brady of New York-based Brady Associates, a consulting firm for the pet industry and food companies.

Brady said the pet industry reports healthy briskness during recessionary periods, although hard data on total pet products sales are not available.

"I think it’s a reasonable conclusion that one of the reasons pet ownership has been increasing is that pets provide love without boundaries, without conditions," he said.

"Certainly in a recessionary period, we know what happens to confidence, to people’s feelings about their job, feelings about the economy and various conditions which they cannot control," Brady said. "Through that, the reason they bought the pet in the first place — the fact they get unconditional love from the animal — remains."

Sales of premium brands in the $7 billion to $8 billion pet food industry remained strong in recent months despite a sharp erosion in consumer confidence, pet food companies said.

"Sales of cat and dog foods continue to increase," said Elizabeth Hodgkins, pet nutritionist for Hill’s Science Diet, a maker of upscale pet foods based in Topeka, Kan. "Even when household budgets must be limited, pet owners are still willing to provide the health benefits associated with specialty pet foods."

At Rainbow Petina Co. sales of an expanded line of super-premium pet foods introduced recently are doing well.

Baby rescued; police charge Marion man with abduction
By Gregory Norleef
Staff Writer

Pincineville was the scene of a baby abduction this past weekend that resulted in an arrest and five charges brought up on a Marion man, Pincineville Police said. Lonnie J. Henry, 24, was charged Monday in Perry County with home invasion, armed violence, child abduction, aggravated assault and aggravated battery. Henry was charged as an offender, Perry County States Attorney Andy Gard said.

Police said on Saturday Henry wrenched a shotgun and fleed from police at Diamond Terrace Apartments to another apartment complex in Marion with a 15-month-old child taken from Jackie L. Luces, 23, of Pincineville.

Gross said Henry could still be charged in Jackson and Williamson Counties because the charge and negotiations occurred within those counties.

Originally he was arrested and taken to Perry Wilson County Jail but was transported to Perry County Jail when the incident began here, Gross said.

At about 1:10 a.m. Saturday Pincineville Police Department and Perry County Sheriff's deputies responded to a home invasion complaint at Diamond Terrace Apartments No. 8 at 1000 W. Water St.

At the scene, police reported hearing a firearm discharge from inside and seeing Henry flee the apartment with a shotgun and the child. The officers said they ordered Henry to drop the gun and give up the child, but he refused and threatened to harm the child.

Police reported the child was taken from the mother at gunpoint by Henry. Henry fled with the child in his car. The PFPD and PCSD were assisted in the pursuit by Illinois State Police and Du Quoin Police.

Police said attempts to stop Henry's car were unsuccessful. At one point of the chase Henry's car kannst a Du Quoin Police squad car in a parking lot. No injuries were reported in the collision.

Henry continued but police said they were concerned for the safety of the child and terminated the pursuit south of Du Quoin. They said they continued to follow Henry's car through Jackson and Williamson Counties, where authorities helped officers pass through potentially dangerous intersections.

When Henry arrived at an apartment complex in Marion, heavily armed, police established negotiations with him over the phone.

The Illinois Department of Children and Family Services convinced Henry to surrender the child unharmed.

Police said he voluntarily surrendered himself to authorities.

He was transported to Williamson County Jail.

Later, police said they learned that the shot heard inside the Pincineville apartment was fired during a struggle between Henry and Reggie Martin, 28, of Carbondale.

Martin was in Luces apartment when Henry forcibly entered, police said. Martin, Luces, and three of Luces' other children in the apartment were unharmed.

Police said Henry is involved in a custody battle over the child with Luces.

Art project to examine stereotypes, portrayals of women by ad media
By Annemarie Holder
Staff Writer

A SIUC student is trying to capture the women's movement through an art project.

Mary Lou Wilshaw, graduate student in stained glass from Elkton, Missouri, is asking women to send her art depicting the way women are portrayed by the advertising media.

She has organized a showing called "peCKAGING Women, cel­ling Women" that encourages women to display in art the way they are presented in the media.

Wilshaw described the women's movement as a revolution that is occurring today. She said she was inspired to do this project because of other artists who have portrayed revolutions in history.

One example of this is Gabriel Caro, a Mexican artist. She and another artist, Greg Allende, two novelists who wrote of South American upheaval. Another is Pablo Picasso, a painter who evoked the terror of the Spanish Civil War through the painting of "Guernica," a small fishing village bombed in the war.

Wilshaw limited the entrants to women because she wanted to get women's reactions about how they are treated and portrayed by the media in advertising.

"A man could apply as a woman, but I just don't think they will," she said.

She said she does not think any man will submit under a woman's name because some would consider it an insult, although many women submit art under men's names.

Wilshaw said for many years women have submitted art under men's names because otherwise it might not have been accepted. An example of this is George Elliot, a woman who wrote under the name of a man.

The judges are Sylvia Greenwood, artist at SIUC, Ann-Janine Morey, English professor, Jan Roddy, cinema and photography professor and Sue Stotlar, an independent artist.

Wilshaw said she chose Greenwood because of Greenfield's interest in studying women artists. Wilshaw began the "Women in the Visual Arts" class, now taught by Jo-Non, in the 1970s. It was the first SIUC women's course.

Morey was chosen because she was selected as the class's feminist viewpoint, and Roddy was chosen because she has a reputation for being concerned with women's issues, Wilshaw said.

Wilshaw chose Stotlar, an independent artist, because she wanted a jury composed of more than one woman.

An award for Best of Show will be given for poetry and for artwork. Prizes have not been decided yet.

For further information call Mary Lou Wilshaw at 546-3091. Applications can be picked up in Alumni Building, room 115. Entries must be received before April 27.

Police: Phone calls misrepresenting authorities

By Gregory Hortitect
Staff Writer

The police don't want money from Carbondale residents.

Carbondale Police Department is not sponsoring a fundraiser, but police officials have received calls from residents who claim the police are raising funds.

Carbondale Police Spokesman Art Worth said the calls are not true and if people do give money to the solicitors, they should get a receipt.

The phone solicitor even has offered to pick up the money at the resident's home.

"We are concerned that they are using our name," Worth said. He said it is better to call the police before making a solicitation.

"There are certain procedures to follow in phone soliciting," Worth said. "Organizational legitimate organizations usually contact the department to tell us they will be doing phone solicitations. People can call us to check if the phone call they just received was from a legal organization."

Glenna Davis, deputy city clerk, said an organization does not need a license to solicit by phone, but it cannot misrepresented itself.

This is not the first time people have misrepresented themselves in Carbondale.

"This has happened before, and people have been arrested and prosecuted," Davis said.

City Attorney Michael Wespicie said deceptive practices or theft by deception is a Class A misdemeanor. The penalty for such practices is up to 364 days in jail and up to a $1,000 fine.

"A couple times a year police magazines will use our name to sell their product," Worth said.

Wright said residents should not give personal information.

"Do not give your address or times you can be reached at home, and do not give your credit card number or information on the rest of the family," he said.

Steve Gantt, green belt and freshman pre-law from Seattle, said although his instructor is bigger than he is, he could defend himself if needed.

Jones said one defense is simple. It is when an attacker charges a ninja and the ninja backs away. The attacker perceives this as a sign of weakness and will charge again.

The ninja again dodges the attacker, but then attacks because the defender does not expect it.

Unlike other martial arts, which feature only one form of defense, ninjutsu incorporates several forms of defense from different kinds of martial arts, Jones said.

Judo uses throwing, karate uses striking and aikido uses joint locks on joints. Ninjutsu incorporates all three.

Russell Spangler, junior in administration of justice from Manteno, said ninjutsu teaches a person to move their body as a total weapon.

"Ninjutsu is a whole body weapon," said Spangler. "You are using everything you have."

Spangler is a black belt and works for Saluki Patrol. He has been practicing Ninjutsu for 10 years and teaches a class at the Recreation Center on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The three levels of ninjutsu are distinguished by white, green and black belts worn over black shirts and pants.

White belts are worn by people who have practiced for two to three months. Green belts are worn by those who have practiced two to three years. The black belt is 10 levels and is the highest level attainable except for Grand Master, of which there is only one. The Grand Master wears a black belt.

"Ninjutsu training" works on people who want to hurt," Spangler said. "If we're not showing pain, they will just leave (practice) because they will get bored."

Real ninjas not violent, unlike cartoons on TV

By Annette Holder
Staff Writer

Some peace-loving SIUC students want to change their killer image.

Nine students who are studying Ninjutsu, an art that the Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles spoof, are seeking to prove the children's idols are not anything like the practicing ninjas.

Ninjas are not superhuman (as the Turtles are), said Brian Jones, third-degree black belt and an English major at the University of Missouri at Columbia.

Jones said the Turtles always end up using violence to solve their problems.

"We learn to apply the laws of physics," Jones said.

Jones said the only ninjutsu system authenticly authenticated by the Japanese government is bujinkan ninjutsu. This system incorporates nine ritsu (or schools) in its learning.

People who want to take classes in ninjutsu should make sure the instructor - as a certificate from Masakaki - ritsu in Japan, Jones said.

"Many people are claiming to be a black belt in ninjutsu, but instructors are authenticated only through Japan," Jones said.

Although ninjutsu has been practiced in America only 15 years, it has a 1,000 year history in Japan. Ninjas originally operated like the FBI or CIA as intelligences gathering.

In the Kojiki, a historical book, it describes how Japan's first prince came to power by using ninjas to gather information.

The philosophy of the ninja is based on ethics. Instructors teach their students to love their enemies.

Ninjutsu teaches people to use the laws of physics to defend themselves only when their lives are in danger, he said.

Do you know that a six pack of beer equals roughly 1,000 calories? Many students blame their college eating habits for their weight gain when alcohol may be the real culprit.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an apparent warming of U.S. relations with Jordan, Secretary of State James A. Baker said Tuesday he will visit the Middle East next week. Jordan did not receive approval for a meeting until Monday evening.

President Bush and Jordan soured last year when the king opposed the U.S.-led intervention against Iraq and allied himself with President Saddam Hussein.

Congress swiftly froze $35 million in foreign assistance to Jordan, a decision the Jordanians will likely protest during Baker's visit.

On Tuesday, before his evening departure for Luxembourg to attend a meeting of European leaders, Baker was careful to say that a peace settlement could not be imposed on Israel and the Arab world.

"We are willing to see if we can serve as catalysts, recognizing all the while that we are not going to be able to impose peace in the Middle East," he reported.

Nonetheless, the iron is hot, he said, and the time to act is now.

"We believe that there is a window of opportunity here that might permit us to move toward peace in the Middle East. We don't know how long that window is going to be open," he said.

White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater went further saying, "The secretary is returning because there is some hope...some optimism."

Israel welcomed Baker's return trip. Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy said, "This is a good sign. It shows his labor is bearing fruit."

But the search to bring warring factions together to forge an agreeable solution to disputes over territory and autonomy will be arduous.

Several Arab nations have said they will not attend a conference unless their goals are based on U.N. resolutions that call on Israel to return Jordanians and Syrian lands it has held since the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Meanwhile, Israel continues to build Jewish settlements for Soviet emigrants in the occupied territories, which the administration has said is an impediment to peace.

In London, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir Tuesday rejected any linkage between a peace conference and new Jewish settlements on Jordan's occupied West Bank.

Judge orders railroad to run commuter trains

CHICAGO (UPI) — A federal judge in Chicago ordered the Chicago & North Western railroad to allow union workers to run commuter trains during a threatened nationwide strike against the railroad's freight system, giving some 80,000 Chicago-area commuters a reprieve.

The railroad, which has argued that it would be unsafe to allow commuter service during the strike slated to begin Tuesday night, said it would abide by the ruling.

Three other railroads affected by the freight strike — the Burlington Northern, the Norfolk Southern and the South Shore — also agreed to run full schedules.

The C&NW, which provides daily service to 45,000 Chicago-area commuters under a contract with the Metra regional-rail system, was the largest of the Metra carriers to be affected by the looming strike.

The unions, scheduled to strike the nation's freight system at 11 p.m., offered to continue operating commuter service for all four Metra contractors during the strike, but the C&NW had said if its freight system was shut down, its commuter lines also would be shut down.

"It is not unusual for acts of vandalism, et cetera, to occur in a strike situation. We are not going to take a chance of operating our commuter trains in that environment," a C&NW spokesman said.

Illinois Public Action, a citizens' activist group, accused the railroad of attempting "to hold Illinois commuters hostage with bogus threats about their safety."

And Metra went to court seeking an emergency order to force the railroad to accept the unions' offer to keep commuter trains running.

U.S. District Judge Sophia Hall issued the order late Tuesday and the C&NW said it would not contest her ruling.

The Burlington Northern and Norfolk Southern, also under contract with Metra to provide service to Illinois suburbs of Chicago, indicated they would follow the Chicago & North Western's lead in providing service during any strike.

The South Shore, which provides commuter service to Chicago from northwest Indiana, also said it would accept the unions' offer and run its regular schedule in the event of a freight strike.

The railroads' agreement averts what was shaping up as a nightmare for commuters.

Companies prepare for strike to weather production slump

United Press International

Ample advance warning and contingency planning mean Illinois businesses might not feel an immediate slump in production if railroad workers go on strike, business officials said Tuesday.

State and federal officials said a strike by 150,000 railroad employees was inevitable, but one businessman predicted the work stoppage would last four or five days, then we really start to get hurt by it."

Skal said the fertilizer manufacturer and distributor had shipped products heavily by rail in the past two weeks to gear up for a walkout it knew was coming.

State officials saw the job action — the first national railroad strike since 1982 — could cut production because most manufacturing companies have only a small amount of spare parts or raw materials in stock.

"There is no doubt that the rail strike would have a devastating effect on manufacturing in Illinois," said Greg Baise, president of the Illinois Manufacturers Association.

Manufacturers, however, said they had expected a railroad strike for months and prepared for it by building up inventories and finding alternate suppliers.

Robin Skiles, a spokeswoman at the massive Chrysler-Mitsubishi Diamond Star auto plant in Normal, said the company should be able to continue production without slowdowns or layoffs.

"We have enough supplies for production throughout the rest of the week," Skiles said. "Our contingency planning is in place."

All 50 states and the federal Environmental Protection Agency soon may have the authority to levy fines and penalties on federal agencies whose facilities violate hazardous waste laws. Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, introduced the legislation to the Senate panel Tuesday.

Currently, no penalties can be levied by a government agency against a federal agency, but penalties can be levied by a judge if a case is brought against the agency, said Bruce Rodman, legislative liaison for the Illinois EPA.

HE SAID ILLINOIS does not have as many federal facilities or problems with the facilities as other states such as Ohio, Colorado and Washington.

Rodman said the problems generally occur with the U.S. Department of Energy facilities.

He said Illinois does have the Argonne National Laboratory and Fermi Lab, but both focus primarily on research so there is not much danger of soil or water contamination by the facilities.

Rodman and EPA officials say the Army ammunition plant south of Joliet has had some contamination problems.

Greg Michaud, manager of community relations at IEPA, said the Joliet Army Ammunition Plant leaked contaminants into the soil and possibly the ground water.

THE U.S. EPA, the state EPA and the Defense Department have a feasibility study, he said. He said the remedial investigation already is underway and will identify and determine the extent of the contamination.

Michaud said the main contaminant at the site is TNT, an explosive.

He said confirmed reports by local farmers indicate that there is a reddish color in the soil, a characteristic of TNT contamination.

Other contaminants include lead and toluene.

Michaud said the investigation is under way to determine whether bans should be lifted to protect the environment or if they should be tightened.

The Army Toxic and Hazardous Materials Agency is taking soil samples at 16 locations on the manufacturing portion of the plant and on 11 locations on the processing side which housed the assembly lines and the demilitarized zone.

Rodman said the manufacturing area covers 14 square miles and the LAP area covers 22 square miles.

The remedial investigation will be completed by December and a feasibility study will follow. This study will come up with options for dealing with the contamination.

Rodman said the IEPA supports the states having the authority to levy penalties, but fortunately Illinois does not have much of a problem with the federal agencies.

Chicago (UP) — Goaltender Greg Millen has a trained eye and can clearly see his days with the Chicago Blackhawks are over.

He cleaned out his locker Tuesday and resigned as an alternate along with the rest of his teammates, a day and a half after the Blackhawks were eliminated by Minnesota North Stars in the first round of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

"The players met as a group and individually with Coach-General Manager Mike Hanson, and I accepted," GM Bob Pulford said during the playoff drive, "realizes his fate although Keenan refuses to discuss any moves just yet. I'm sure there are going to be certain things that are going to transpire this summer," said Millen, who turns 34 in June. "Obviously I feel I can play in the league. I'm really looking forward to making a comeback in this league. June is the month where most things happen, so it'll be an interesting month for me."

"I'm sure that it's time for me to move, considering the circumstances during the season."

"Mr. Pulford and Mr. Witz (owner Bill Witz) have been very loyal. Mr. Pulford's been a very honest man with me through this entire experience. I'm very grateful."

"I remember Keenan's comment in that last sentence is no accident. After starting 14 playoff games for Minnesota and then getting the decisive Game 7 in the Norris Division semifinal against Chicago," Millen added, "I'm sure that it's time for me to move."

"Keenan brought five goalies into camp, and rookie Ed Belfour won the job. Belfour excelled to the point where he is a serious candidate for Vezina Trophy honors, but Millen, in his 13th NHL season, got buried further and further, playing just 5 minutes.

"When Belfour needed a break, Keenan called up Jimmy Waite or Dominik Hasek from the team's Indianapolis farm club, then Millen would sit on the bench with a mysterious groin pull near the end of the season and then be named the last man in the net."

"No one thought it would play out that way during the season," Millen complained publicly. Only Tuesday, after leaving the Stadium probably for the last time as a-Hawk, did he express his frustration. "It was only a very difficult individual year not playing," he said. "Everybody wants to play, and at times it can be difficult because you don't feel a part of it. I have to thank my teammates the way they helped me through it. They tried as hard as they could to make me feel a part of the team. I'll be always grateful to my teammates the way they reacted toward me.

Millen's days in Blackhawks' uniform are over

Lyle Alzado gets maced after scuffle

Los Angeles (UPI) — Former Los Angeles Raider Lyle Alzado was arrested Tuesday after a fight with a 110-pound woman county marshal who was trying to serve him with court papers at his home, authorities said.

The 6-foot-3 Alzado, who was a good candidate to make him one of the most feared players in the NFL, was taken into custody after Marshall Linda Armstrong sprayed him with pepper spray.

Alzado, 42, was booked on suspicion of battery on a peace officer after he was taken to a nearby hospital and treated for the effects of the chemical.

Sheriff's Deputy Fidel Gonzalez said Armstrong knocked on Alzado's door on the 10th floor of a building in Marina del Rey about 7 a.m. to serve him with court civil documents regarding a business dispute.

"After subjecting to being disturbed at 7 a.m., a physical altercation occurred between Alzado and Marshall Armstrong," Gonzalez said. "Pleading for her safety, the 5-5 Armstrong pulled a canister of Mace and sprayed it on the 205-pound former defensive lineman and called for assistance.

The bruising Alzado played 16 seasons in the NFL, with the Denver Broncos, Cleveland Browns and Raiders.

but in the fifth inning, Smith again led off the inning with a single and Endebrock followed suit with a single of his own. Senior designated hitter Bob Greany walked to load the bases and up stepped Janke to crush a 3-run triple to left field to tie the score 5-5. Mehringer continued to shut down the Cougars, recording seven strikeouts and retiring the side in order five times.

He pitched effective when I was ahead," Mehringer said. "The whole key was getting ahead of the hitter. I could say it with them and get ahead of them. It helped that I got most of my off-speed pitches over.

SICU took the lead in the bottom of the seventh when Nelson led off the inning with a double to left. He went to third on a ground out and scored on a wild pitch to put the Dawgs up 6-5.

The Salukis pulled their lead with four runs in the eighth inning. Nelson advanced to third on a single run over the left field fence to cap off the inning after Smith slapped an RBI double to left center.

"Jeff (Nelson) made good runs today," SICU coach Sam Riggelman said, and that's all he has to do. He's got the ability if he was to hit and get pitches he can handle.

The Cougars threatened in the top half of the ninth with two runs, but were stopped short of a comeback by senior Al Levine, who came in relief for Mehringer with nobody out in the inning.

The Salukis' offensive attack was well balanced today. Nelson ended the day going three for five in the plate, driving in 3 runs and scoring twice. Janke drove in 5 runs in a two-for-four effort and Smith went three for three, scoring three times.

The Dawgs are back in action at Abe Martin Field at 1:30 p.m. today with a doubleheader against Arkansas State. Riggelman will start on the hill in the first game and senior Sean Bergman will work the second game.

over the Phillies.

"He (Williams) threw a fastball down the middle," Berryhill said. "I think anybody on this team knows what he's going to throw. That's the only thing I was looking for was a fastball over the plate to hit. He hit me on a home run or anything.

Williams probably would prefer giving this reason to be happy he acquired him April 7. The Chicago Cubs have won 36 games for the Cubs in 1989, had two saves in four appearances prior to his trade with the Chicago White Sox for first baseman Gary Maddox, which has been anything but successfully.

"I feel fine," Williams said. "I was a ball over the middle of the plate. He (Berryhill) did what he's paid to do. He hit it."

After building himself up for the Crawfishman, Widoff said he wasn't surprised at how well he did.

"I knew I had a real good chance to win," Widoff said. "I had been training hard for a real long time. It was by far the biggest win of my career. I walked away with a $1,000 check. That made me really happy.

The money is important for Widoff because he is still an amateur. Most triathlete stars are fully funded by bicycle and sporting goods companies. Widoff gets some help in the form of free meals and free clothing, but he cannot receive the big checks the sponsors give to top finishers for giving their companies exposure.

Widoff hopes the victory will bring the attention of even more sponsors to him because most of the triathletes he beat in New Orleans were professionals.

"Most of the top 10 or 15 finishers were professionals," he said. "I just sort of came out of the woodwork." Widoff was such an unknown the organizer and press had no idea who he was. As he led the race, the press truck that leads the runners to the finish line was shouting at Widoff to find out who he was.

It has hard for Widoff to balance school and athletics with his training and competitive schedules. He said his priorities must be straight at all times.

"Basically it's school first, training second and racing on the weekends third. As for social life, something has to give and that's it. I see a lot of movies, but I can't afford to spend a whole evening out. I pretty much know what I'm going to do from five in the morning until 10 at night. It's time management more than anything else."

Widoff travels to Springfield for a repeat of the triathlon he placed third in last year. It is just a warm-up for the Iron Man in October.

"I think I can improve quite a bit," he said. "I've been working on my running and with the experience of having run the course once, I believe I can be in the top 30.

Widoff said aspiring triathletes have to remember to set realistic goals and not to take the competition too seriously.

"Have fun with it," he said. "It's great to think you'd like to try the Iron Man, but it takes time, just like anything. The Iron Man isn't something where you just wake up and say 'I'm going to be there in two years.' I think the Doc Spackman Triathlon is awesome. For someone who has never tried one and never trained, it's perfect. Start small and don't overswitch it."

Newkirk will be playing for "Team Ohio" this summer, touring the Midwest in all-star competition. He was his high school's starting quarterback and was recruited by a variety of NCAA Division I teams. In basketball, he was the team's Most Valuable Player, earning All-Conference honors with a 21 points average.

"I'm happy John will have the opportunity to play in a program like SICU," Eaton coach Stave Johnson said. "He is very competitive, a good kid and handles situations well."
