Revisions to health plan suggested

Editor's Note: This is the third in a series of articles about a University health system which will be reported to the SIU Board of Trustees Friday.

By Jan Tranchita
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The 10 major recommendations of the comprehensive health care proposal for SIU have come under criticism from student health groups. The Health Negotiating Committee (HNC) was formed to negotiate differences between what the proposal suggests and what students feel is needed, according to Charles Newling, chairman.

HNC has posed nine amendments to the Blue Plan, which was authored by health plan consultant Donald DuBois.

The nine HNC revisions, which DuBois said he thought would be considered, are as follows:

—Provision for adequate transportation to health service facilities as demand indicates;

—New health facilities, temporarily expanding the health service to another building in Small Group Housing and establishing a mini-clinic in the Student Center. Permanent facilities should be provided for in the Faner Humanities Building now under construction;

—An emergency full-time physician staff;

—Expansion of psychological and psychiatric services;

—Paramedical help to the fullest extent possible under existing laws;

—Implementation of supplemental care for dependents of students;

—Supplemental optional insurance coverage on medical bills incurred outside the Carbondale area;

—No implementation of the proposal unless the present student fee structure can be altered so that no increase in student fees is incurred; and —Provision for counseling and financing of student abortions.

The Student Senate, in agreement with various student health constituencies, has approved the nine revisions. Members hope to have them included in the final proposal.

DuBois, also president of the California based Health Maintenance Organization Development Foundation (HMO), said he purposely left out some of the explicit details which HNC members are asking for.

"The plan only represents the framework in which the medical director could lay out the details of various programs," DuBois said.

However, DuBois said the HNC recommendations prove "students have voiced their concern for the need of a new health plan."

DuBois termed the plan "well-suited to SIU" because it aims at "minimal costs and maximum services for the amount of money received," over objections to high costs by HNC.

Response

In response to an administrative proposal to restructure the Graduate School, Peter Gorham, representative of the Economics Graduate Student Organization, addressed the Graduate Student Council (GSC) at its meeting Wednesday and discussed the implications of the suggested restructuring. The GSC formed a committee to study the proposal.

GSC will form committee to study restructuring of Graduate School

By Rita Fung
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

In reaction to an administration proposal for restructuring the Graduate School, the Graduate Student Council (GSC) Wednesday passed two motions by which recommendations concerning restructuring may be made and channeled back to the administration.

A two-part, six-person committee will be formed by the GSC. Three members of this committee will be assigned to travel to other Midwestern universities to research the implications of a restructured and decentralized graduate school. The remaining members will assume the task of researching the feasibility of graduate school decentralization on the SIU campus.

The committee will report to the GSC and make recommendations on restructuring the Graduate School by the second week in September.

Funding for the trips to other universities will be provided by the GSC and the office of Willis Malone, vice president for academic affairs and provost, according to Joe Camille, president of the GSC.

Volunteers are now being sought to serve on this committee. Interested graduate students may call 453-5124 to contact the GSC.

The council also moved to ask Malone for more time and information so that the GSC can make more concrete proposals to the administration concerning the restructuring process.

The Graduate Council was first informed of the restructuring concept when Malone sent a letter in July to J.R. Zimmerman, chairman of the Graduate Council, asking him to look into the possibilities of restructuring the Graduate School.

The letter also asked that the Graduate Council consider how graduate education should be administered and what should be the role of deans and chairmen in graduate studies and research.

The GSC was informed of the restructuring process on Aug. 4 when the subject was brought up in a Graduate Council meeting.

A committee composed of faculty members and department chairmen was formed at that meeting to study restructuring of the Graduate School, but no graduate students have been included on the committee.

In response to the anger and dismay of GSC members, Malone explained that the delay in informing them of the restructuring plans was a "breakdown in communication," and suggested that he would meet with graduate student representatives to clarify administration moves.

A broad spectrum of opinion has been raised by GSC members concerning the administration's motives behind the restructuring process; the way the process would function; and how the

U-Senate calls special session to deal with governance 'crisis'

By Bernard F. Whalen
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An emergency meeting of constituency heads is being called by the University Senate Governance Committee to deal with what some members feel is a governance system crisis.

At a two-hour meeting Wednesday, it was indicated that the meeting will possibly center around reworking of the campus governance document as a result of President David R. Derge's recent denial of veto override and legislative powers to the U-Senate.

Committee members said the campus governance system can only be effective if representative bodies are identified and operate as related elements of an integrated system such as the senate.

The campus governance system must have the enthusiastic support of its participating constituency bodies, according to committee members.

Committee chairman Robert G. Laver, chairman of the department of economics and former SIU president, said he plans to contact all constituency body chairmen and presidents in hope of meeting before the senate meets on Monday.

The Governance Committee, in addition to the tentative special meeting Friday, has also scheduled a meeting before the regular senate session on Monday to prepare a proposal from the constituency heads to be presented to the senate.

The committee also discussed what effect Derge's decision will have on the status of the constituency bodies.

Joe Moore, of the Nonacademic Employees Council, said some of his constituents feel it is better to deal with Derge directly rather than through the University Senate.

David Kenney, senate president, said Derge may not necessarily cooperate with the constituency bodies on an individual basis. "Derge may decide to pick and choose and maybe no one will be heard," Kenney said.

Laver stressed the need for the senate saying, "there are topics the senate discusses which transcend all constituency bodies."

Several committee members said the elimination of the senate could result in

Fire hydrant testing in Southeast Carbondale to begin Wednesday

The testing of fire hydrants in the Southeast section of Carbondale resumed Wednesday morning after city firemen finished testing about 90 hydrants in the Northeast section of the city, Charles McCaughan, fire chief, said.

He said tests in the Northeast section of town did not show any significant problems in the fire hydrants.

"Most of the hydrants were repaired last year," he said, "but the water volume is just a little bit low."

He said the city was aware of the low water volume and has already made plans for future improvement.

McCaughan said after testing in the Southeast section of Carbondale,

SIU police report bicycle, stereo thefts

University Police said Wednesday that a bicycle and stereo were reported stolen Tuesday and that a false fire alarm was set off in Neely Hall.

A girls brown 10-speed Huffy bicycle valued at $80 belonging to Caron McCarthy, Neely Hall, was taken while it was locked and parked in front of the dormitory.

A stereo valued at $120 was reported taken from Brown Hall, Thompson Point. The owner is unknown. The report was filed by James Gullede who said he saw two men carrying the mahogany-colored stereo from the dormitory.

A false fire alarm was turned in Wednesday from the third floor B wing of Neely Hall. No suspects were reported. The University Police report said this has been a frequent happening at Neely Hall this summer quarter and little if anything can be done by SIU policemen without apprehending suspects.

The window of Baskin-Robbins ice cream shop at 401 S. Illinois was discovered broken at 4 a.m. Wednesday morning, according to the Carbondale Police Department.

In a news release, the police department stated that the southside window had been broken again after having been first broken about a week ago.

Tom Langdon, owner of Baskin-Robbins, said nothing was taken from the store and that the window will be fixed Friday.

He said when the window was first broken a burglar took about $5 in nickels and pennies as well as the cash register drawer.

"Last night somebody saw the boarded over window and it was just too tempting," he said adding that merchants never leave cash in the stores overnight.

which began Wednesday and may continue for the next week to ten days. "We'll go into the Northwest and finally the Southwest areas of Carbondale."

He said clothes washing should not be undertaken in the Southwest section of town during testing hours to avoid rust stains on clothes.

He said testing will be limited between the hours of 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Tuesday through Friday until all hydrants have been tested.

This means that clothes washing should be limited to Saturday, Sunday and Monday or before 10 a.m. and after 6 p.m. on the other week days in the area being tested.

Marion Fife, water and sewer distribution superintendent, said the Southeast section of town is bordered by Wall Street on the East, Washington Street on the West, Park Avenue to the South and Walnut to the North.

The fire hydrant testing program began about one week ago when McCaughan announced that 420 hydrants in the city would be flushed and tested for water pressure and rate of flow during the next two to three months.

THE HOUSE THAT DRIPPED BLOOD

The new house

The new president of Central Illinois Tech, Davis D. Erge, seemed a bit restless as he sat down in his empty university house to speak to reporters.

"Mr. Erge, how do you like your new $1 million abode?"

"Oh, it's ok, I guess." Erge brushed the dirt off the new white shoes he bought in Hammond. "But it doesn't exemplify my tastes in architecture. I'm really not all that impressed."

"Well, do you like the furnishings?"

"Of course I do, silly," Erge replied quickly. "Why these furnishings are from Indiana. They must be good."

"What's so good about furnishings from Indiana?"

"Indiana is a great state, my lad. That's why I brought those 144 administrators and assistants from there. You see, it's all in our gross search for academic excellence."

"But how about your wife?" This was quite a surprise question and Erge looked offended as he gazed at a wall seeking an answer.

"Granted she's from Illinois," Erge replied. "But she has a lot of relatives in Kokomo. I can't complain on that account."

"Would you mind giving us a tour?" a reporter asked.

"No, but only for a minute," Erge cautioned. "You see I have to attend a retreat in Evansville. From there I have to fly to Bloomington for a conference with my flight instructor."

As Erge guided reporters up the stairs to his private quarters he said, "See those pictures?" Heads nodded. "They were done by a great artist from Gary. This chair was hand made in Indianapolis. Why, even these toilet seats were hand carved in Terre Haute."

"That is amazing," the reporters chanted in unison.

"Yea, Indiana is a great state," Erge repeated. "Great state."

"But Mr. Erge," a reporter said. "Why don't you have anything to do with Illinois? After all, CIT is in Illinois."

"Well, Illinois is a bit backward," Erge explained. "I'm from Indiana where it is more progressive. We should be proud to get help from our neighbors."

"Mr. Erge, you can't be serious," said an observer. "Illinois has given you a $50,000-a-year job, a $1 million house, a car, an expense account and many other benefits. You never had that in Indiana. What kind of gratitude have you shown us? Why, you go out-of-state for everything."

"You see, my boy," Erge said with a drawl. He picked up a bar of soap in the shower and continued. "I've already had my dream state—Hoosierland."

Letters to the Editor

The truth!

To the Daily Egyptian:

Now it can be told—the truth about Senator Thomas Eagleton!

A couple of weeks ago, a man with gleaming black eyes and long stringy black hair, named Jack Anderson ("Jack" is just a nickname; his real name is Ian) sidled up to me at President Derge's Civil Service address and thrust a dirty brown envelope into my pocket. He'd evidently mistaken me for someone else, because he muttered what sounded like a code phrase, something about "Are y'all the kind you have to wind up on Sundays?"

Anyway, this envelope contains conclusive proof that Thomas Eagleton and pop singer Don McLean are really the same person! No, it's true! In the late fifties, the man we all thought was Don McLean died of an overdose of Thunderbird wine while piloting a plane that carried Buddy Holly, Richie Valens and J.P. Richardson. Is it coincidence that Eagleton began his meteoric climb after this crash?

Of course, I can't give you the whole story in this letter, but just ask yourself these questions: During Eagleton's period of psychiatric "confinement," where was Don McLean? Did you see McLean in concert? Did you hear any of his records on AM radio? Did you write the book of love? Well, did you?

And what about Eagleton's oath of office, with that mysterious reference to having faith in God above?

And if that doesn't convince you, I'll give you one final clue: play "American Pie" backwards at 66 and two-thirds rpm. See what I mean?

Listen, I'll get back to you later. I've got to work on my latest project—final proof that Carol Channing is really Johnny Winter.

C.K. on the media

To the Daily Egyptian:

"Protect newsmen" (should it not be newpersons?) says the caption to Lynn Burris' Editorial of August 8. It would have one to believe that American newsmen—these knights in shining armor—are martyred because of their single-minded devotion to truth.

Well, anything for a joke. Remember Jack Anderson, the one who went about calling everybody a liar and received honors all over. Well, nobody was able to protect Senator Eagleton from his vicious and proven lies. If a journalist ceases to be an objective relayer of news and a commentator based on scholarship and becomes an apologist, he forfeits his claims for immunity. Earl Caldwell's is a case in point. Senator Cranston's bill is a ploy and if it could get the same support that the humiliation of Staggers got because of the muscle of CBS, it might give rich dividends. For instance, the equation of a minor fracas like the watergate caper to the Himalayan Omissions of the current democratic standard-bearers.

From an international point of view, the best method of developing an enemy for the United States is to give aid to a given country and follow it up with one of the eastern seaboard journalists. These garbage-picking vultures can so dramatize the minor mistakes, partly cultural in origin, that the world has come to believe that only a saint could be a friend of the United States and that the only way to get a good press in America is to be an enemy.

But I agree with the heading. The newsmen have to be protected, from their own show of pseudo-omniscience, (heard Severied or read Reston lately?), their apparent gullibility (read Tom Wickers or heard Murray Icmpton lately?), and their arrogance (heard Marvin Kalb or read William Shannon lately?). They also have to be protected from a favorable libel law. The millenium which seems so possible now should not be destroyed by a bunch of primadonnas.

Investigative reporting as a vehicle for identifying the anti-social elements is a great thing but as an instrument of the latter-day vigilantes it becomes a prelude to lynch law.

Campus leaders react to Derge's action

(Editor's note: This is the second of a two-part series examining the reaction to President Derge's action in denying legislative and veto powers to the University Senate.)

By Sue Roll
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

President David R. Derge's recent action curbing the powers of the University Senate has been criticized as part of a move to consolidate power in the President's Office at the expense of faculty, student and staff input.

Others defend Derge's action, saying that he must have the ultimate decision making power in order for the University to function.

But despite particular positions on this one issue, the future role of constituency groups is being questioned by the University community in general. The formation of task forces outside the established committees in the constituency groups to examine University problems is part of this controversy.

Graduate Student Council View

Joe Camille, president of the Graduate Student Council, said that he called Derge to make a recommendation concerning the composition of the teaching-learning environment task force and was told that the task force was not yet being formed.

"It's hard to find out about things like this," Camille said. Derge extended a broad invitation for recommendations concerning the task forces at his state of the campus address. "If he really wants input, why wasn't there any more follow up than just mentioning it in his State of the Campus Address?" Camille said he thought at least a letter to each of the constituency groups was merited.

Tom Pace, chairman of the Faculty Council, said the council was not asked to give advice in formulating the task forces, but "the president has promised that the recommendations from the Task Force on Salary, Tenure and Promotion will come before us. We have sent nominations to him for the teacher-learning environment task force and I hope he will choose some of these highly-qualified persons."

Garth Gillan of the CFUT said he had recently participated in formulating recommendations for a five-year plan through his department by which allocations for institutional resources would be based. He said these programs indicate that there will be little flexibility for teaching and learning in the future.

"I can't see what difference it really makes whether the task force studies it or not," he said. "From what I have seen most of these plans are based on the past. There is no indication that in the next five years the University is going to take any new directions in priorities."

J.R. Zimmerman, of the Graduate Council, said Derge had every right to formulate his own committees to study various policies in the University. He said it is the job of the constituency groups to study problems on their own and submit recommendations to the president regardless of whether he requests it or not.

"The constituencies must take the initiative and can't sit back and not do it just because they think the input is not wanted or will be rejected," Zimmerman said.

Zimmerman said this way may be better in that it forces constituency bodies to keep alert, be aggressive and work harder to get their recommendations to the administration.

He said legislative and veto powers of a University Senate are not needed if constituency groups will assume their responsibilities. Zimmerman said the board will see that good data from constituency groups is being refused just as it would if a senate-president deadlock were presented to it at a formal board meeting. "If the groups have good data, the administration will listen, so the effect will be the same."

Blacks Criticize Derge

Malvin Moore, president of the Black Faculty and Staff Council, criticized Derge for not including blacks on the task forces and for not having blacks in high administrative positions in the University.

Moore acknowledged Derge's attempt to recruit George Taliaferro from Morgan State College in Maryland as vice president for student affairs, but said that there are plenty of qualified blacks at SIU already who have not been considered for such positions.

The Management Task Force is the only one of the three presidential task forces which has really gotten underway as of yet. Its preliminary report which was released at the June Board of Trustees meeting called for sweeping administrative reform and established four vice presidency positions under which all the units of the university will be organized.

Bill Clarke, assistant to student body president Jon Taylor, said the new organizational chart makes it easier to know who answers to who. But he said it was disappointing because "in creating an organization chart, communication has dropped tremendously over the campus. There no longer seems to be an open door policy with the president," he said.

Camille, of the Graduate Student Council, also said communications with Derge's office were becoming bad. "When he first got here it looked like he would be a very accessible president. I think I saw him two or three times during his first few weeks on campus. But the longer he's here, the less accessible he becomes," Camille said.

'Feeling of Optimism'

U-Senate president David Kenney said he shares Derge's feelings of optimism that the administrative organization will help to streamline the business of the University. "I believe he did have a problem because of the two or three years of make-shift administration during the interim presidencies and separation of the two campuses which resulted in a rather ramshackle structure," Kenney said.

Zimmerman of the Graduate Council said he thought the reorganization would help to create straight-line authority and accountability. Zimmerman said he hoped the other task forces would create broad guidelines for campus-wide procedures on such things as tenure, promotions and salary. Such guidelines, he said, would help to eliminate discrepancies between policies of individual departments.

Gillan of the CFUT was critical of the reorganization attempt. "SIU is an intellectual wasteland," he said. "Departments don't communicate. There's interdepartmental jealousy. Culturally there is little being done to make SIU an exciting place to be. Educational and cultural leadership is what is needed, not administrative leadership."

"It is an illusion to think that administrative reorganization lays the groundwork for academic excellence of an institution," Gillan continued. "Primarily it lies in the strictly academic areas of faculty and student relationships and this Derge has given very little attention at all."

Gillan said Derge obviously is trying to run a tighter ship and concentrate the lines of authority, and the effect of this is to depersonalize the faculty and student relationships.

Gillan called the whole situation "demoralizing" to faculty members and said it was forcing them to contemplate more and more extreme measures.

Camille had a similar view. "Thus far I can't see how academic excellence has been achieved."

Gladden of the Nonacademic Employees Council said it was too early to tell what effect the reorganization would have until its second and third phases are completed.

Pace of the Faculty Council said that academic excellence is a fine goal which must be "fostered in an institutional atmosphere where the student body and the faculty are confident that they have a strong voice in formulating goals and policies."

Moore said he thought Derge was sincere in his desire to create academic excellence at SIU. "Dr. Derge is a politically and academically astute man and I think that his organizational structure will reflect the progress being made toward achieving the kind of academic excellence he wants," said Moore.

Too early for assessment

Zimmerman said while it is too early to assess many results, "already the leadership impact of this administration has netted a special major building program of approximately $10 million—a program with little expectations as late as fall, 1971. The administration acts like it knows where it is going and how to get there. Strong input from the Graduate Council is what the administration wants. It is the way for mutual participation of all concerned to meet the goals of academic excellence."

One move which has stirred some controversy on campus was the administrative pay raises and addition of two of Derge's colleagues at Indiana University to SIU's administrative staff.

With the exception of Gillan, most of the heads of the campus groups interviewed said that to get good administrators, SIU must offer competitive salaries.

Most of the constituency group heads said that it also was understandable for Derge to want to bring people to SIU who he had worked with and could depend upon.

"It's too early to say the administration is too heavy to get the job done," said Zimmerman. "Hopefully, the streamlining of the administrative organization from the top to bottom will create economies although particular salaries may be raised."

Gillan said that in an overall review of University policies begun by the CFUT soon after Derge announced the formation of his task forces, the CFUT found that "raises of administrators by far exceeded the percentage of raises given to faculty members." Gillan said the complete CFUT report will be released fall quarter after the first full meeting of the full CFUT membership.

Gillan said that the University seldom gives raises or promotions to those already at SIU but usually brings people in from other universities for promotions. "The University does not encourage working your way up through faculty ranks," Gillan said. "Getting promotions and pay raises through the academic ranks is very, very difficult."

'Some bad feeling'

Generally most of the constituency group heads acknowledged some bad feeling toward Derge on campus, but said that the majority of the campus community is willing to give Derge a chance and welcomes having a permanent president of the University.

Various members of the constituency groups said that Derge cannot run the University with policies which most of the campus disagrees with for long. For instance, some say a continuation of the apparent short shift given the governance system could ultimately result in another crisis such as the riots of spring, 1971, (which catalyzed the establishment of the governance system) or forceful unionization of faculty and other mass groups.

Robert Harrell, AAUP president, said he hoped the faculty would organize and resist Derge's measures, "even if it does mean collective bargaining, although I see it as one of the last measures."

Harrell said he did not know whether anything like this would happen. "The faculty here has always been willing to take almost anything that was done to it. But everyone I talk with is to the point of despair, to the point that they don't know how to resist. It's that hopeless. When there's that kind of morale problem, I don't know what will happen."

Harrell said he thinks Derge wants a confrontation with faculty, such as a strike. "The Board of Trustees is absolutely behind him and with the governor we've got now, he would probably prevail."

"Unless there's a strike, I don't know. The faculty just is not that well organized. It just doesn't have that kind of guts," he said.

Most of those of the campus community are ready to give Derge a chance to prove himself, despite their reservations.

Clark, who served on the presidential selection committee, summed up his philosophy on Derge this way: "Give him the benefit of the doubt until he cuts your throat."

Clark said he saw Derge as a smart, strong, powerful, ambitious man. "If he sets out to do something, he's going to accomplish it."

It is these qualities of strength and leadership which simultaneously frighten and encourage the campus community. Although a strong, dynamic leader for SIU is needed, memories of the negative aspects of the Morris regime cause reservations about proclaiming Derge the new savior of SIU.

One administrator put it this way: "I'm convinced that excellence is what Derge is after—but for the University or for himself?"

Comprehensive health care recommendations under fire

DuBois said he has tried to remove himself from controversies surrounding the mandatory nature and payment procedures for the system. He said he never intended students to pay the total $25 per quarter.

"It's up to the students themselves to deal with the priorities of funds available on campus," DuBois explained.

The $25 per quarter figure was determined by calculating building and maintenance costs and doctors' salaries, he said.

Funding, which has evoked the most criticism from HNC, will be partially maintained by a state health subsidy.

HNC is studying possible reallocation of general fee categories in addition to the state subsidy to temper fee increases for students.

Newling, who is also vice-president of the Graduate Student Council, said HNC has two representatives each from the Student Senate, Graduate Student Council, Student Health Consumer Council (SHCC) and two appointees of the student body president.

The restructuring of the "present ambiguous fee structure," is the top concern of HNC, according to Newling.

HNC hopes to alleviate any great fee increase for students by redirecting Student Welfare and Recreation Funds (SWARF) presently financing the projected co-recreational building. The co-recreational facility will be built north of the Brush Towers housing area.

"Students already pay a little more than $4 in health fees, so there is a strong hope we can reallocate SWARF funds and cause little or no increase in student fees," said Newling. The possible $8 in state subsidies included with the present $4 health service fee, reduces the $25 per quarter expense to $13.

"If money can be reallocated from SWARF, students will pay even less," Newling added.

HNC advocates additional details in the proposal which DuBois termed "warranted contributions," which should be considered by the new health director when implementing the plan.

General recommendations in DuBois' proposal include:

—Outpatient services at the University Health Service and improved accessibility of physical care plus auxiliary services;

—Specialist physician care including psychiatry, surgery, internal medicine, urology, neurology, dextrology, anesthesiology, orthopedics and ophthalmology;

—Up to 30 days hospital care without charge;

—Extension of infirmary care from 10 to 15 days;

—X-rays without charge when required by attending physician;

—Reduced prescription charges, with no prescriptions costing more than $1.50;

—Eye examination without charge on health service referral with eye glasses provided at reasonable prices;

—Maternity care for pregnancies commencing after students are enrolled at SIU. Mothers would be eligible for $1,500 in benefits if complications arise and would receive all other care including delivery at a $200 fee;

—Emergency care during evenings and weekends without additional charge; and —Ambulance service under physician orders without charge.

Moroccan king flees downed jet

RABAT, Morocco (AP)—Moroccan air force fighters tried to shoot down a Boeing 727 carrying King Hassan II Wednesday and when he escaped, started bombing his royal palace.

It was not known if the king was in the palace.

Fighter planes circled over the city, apparently engaging in dogfights, presumably between loyal and rebel pilots.

Troops took up posts at key points in the city and surrounded radio headquarters.

Earlier, fighters shot up the airport where the king's Boeing landed with damage to the cockpit area and only one of its three engines operative. Several persons were reported dead and others wounded.

There was near-panic in the city as shops and office hastily closed and people milled through the streets seeking refuge from the fighting above their heads. The streets were quickly deserted.

Organ recital scheduled

Jeffery Mills, former organist for the First United Methodist Church in Carbondale, will present an organ recital at the Lutheran Student Center at 8 p.m. Tuesday. The center is located at 700 S. University Ave.

Mills is a national merit scholar at Indiana University in Bloomington. He is currently organist at the First Church of Christ, Scientist in Bloomington.

Mills will perform selections by Bach and several other composers. The recital is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Protect back-country

WASHINGTON (AP)—A trial program to protect some fragile back-country areas, by limiting each area's use to the number of persons it can accommodate without environmental damage, has been started in three national parks.

The three where it has started are Kings Canyon National Park in California, Rocky Mountain National Park in Tennessee and North Carolina.

The progress applies only to the back-country of the three parks, not to normal visitor usage of developed areas within the parks.

Free Clinic to aid migrant farmers

By Dave McGregor
Student Writer

A pilot project to test the feasibility of providing medical services for migrant farm workers in the Cobden and Murphysboro areas is underway.

Joel Lee, medical coordinator of the Carbondale Free Clinic, said a $27,000 subcontract between the clinic and the Illinois Migrant Council will fund the project. The project will last until Oct. 31, he said.

In addition, $10,000 of the funds has been set aside for possible hospitalization expenses, specialist referrals and special laboratory tests, Lee said.

A clinic, with a full-time nurse and nurse's aide, has been set up in Cobden to provide medical and laboratory services as well as dental and mental health counseling referrals.

Lee estimated there are nearly 200 people in the migrant worker camps now and that approximately 800 to 1200 migrants will pass through the camps during the season.

He added that 50 persons have been treated under this program so far. He pointed out that the funds were allocated only for the Cobden clinic.

Lee said part of the project consists of taking an in-depth survey of migrant workers. Eighty questions are asked that will hopefully provide a better understanding of migratory patterns and health problems.

Lee said that it was hard to pinpoint the major medical problem of the migrants.

One reason is that migrants often do not have money for medical treatment or do not stay in one place long enough for follow-up treatment.

This program will make it possible to keep records on individuals, thus making it possible to forward any information to other medical facilities around the country if necessary, Lee said.

One important part of the service, Lee said, is a program of immunizations and screening for intestinal parasites, diabetes and tuberculosis.

"The parasite screening and education program will be one of the important aspects of the program," Lee said. "It was determined last year that about 80 per cent of 150 persons tested had intestinal parasites of one kind or another. There were little kids who had five different kinds of parasites."

The program got off to a slow start but it is gaining momentum, he added.

"About half of the migrants are Spanish and don't speak English," Lee said. Because they are in a different environment they tend to be suspicious. This creates other problems.

Results of the project will be sent to the Illinois Migrant Council, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and the Shawnee Regional Health Maintenance System, a pre-paid health plan being developed for Southern Illinois.

Psych 330
new this fall

By University News Service

Undergraduates at SIU are going to have a chance to straighten out their heads as well as broaden their minds in a new psychology course starting this fall.

"Psychology Applied to Personal Adjustment" will help students learn how to modify their own behavior for the better, according to Instructor Clay Ladd. They'll also get four hours of course credit.

Ladd said the course will be offered in four class sections. One will be for students who want to get rid of depression and "develop more positive self-concepts." In the process, the course will try to help them cope with guilt, failure, disinterest, and "the blues."

Another section will be limited to those who have trouble controlling behavior, and who have problems like stealing, cheating, lying, temper outbursts, or who have poor study habits and aren't interested in school.

Two other sections will be reserved for psychology majors and non-majors who wish to learn and experiment with behavior-change techniques.

Ladd said the course has been formalized after an experimental run last year. It is not yet listed in the catalogue, but will be offered this fall as Psychology 330. Prerequisites are eight hours of psychology or the instructor's consent.

Health research grant given

By University News Service

Two members of the administrative sciences faculty in the School of Business, David A. Lipp and Robert S. Bussom, have received an initial grant of $6,588 for their research on developing a regional health information-decision system. Funding agency is the Bi-State Regional Medical Program of St. Louis.

Ronald Bishop, chairman of the department of administrative sciences, said the researchers have a formal confirmation of $6,588 for the next quarter and a statement of intention of support through at least the summer of 1973. Total amount sought is $26,349, Bishop said.

The researchers said the project's aim is to construct a system of methods to develop a preliminary design of a regional health information-decision system. Emphasis is placed on identifying information needs of health care decision makers and consumers, and when these information needs have been determined, they said, the appropriate system to collect, process, and disseminate the information can be designed.

McGovern denies peace message

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Sen. George McGovern denied Wednesday a report that he had sent Pierre Salinger to tell North Vietnamese they should make peace with President Nixon rather than wait for a possible new administration.

"Pierre Salinger had no instructions whatsoever from me," the Democratic presidential nominee said.

McGovern said he understood Salinger went to Paris to attempt to find out what was going on at the Paris peace talks.

"But there wasn't the slightest instruction on my part to him," McGovern said.

A news report from Paris had quoted unnamed friends of McGovern as saying Salinger met three times in the last three weeks with North Vietnamese negotiators and conveyed a message from McGovern recommending they make peace with Nixon.

McGovern, asked about the report shortly after speaking at the Illinois State Fair, said he had not seen Salinger for several weeks and has not sent him any messages while in Paris.

City goals document called opinionated, unrepresentative

By Monroe Walker
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A survey taken by the Goals for Carbondale steering committee was called opinionated and not representative of the informed community by Carbondale City Councilman Hans Fischer during the informal City Council meeting Tuesday.

"Some of the goals were obtained from opinion surveys," he said, "and the people were completely uninformed on the problems of the community."

Basil Hedrick, chairman of the goals steering committee, said the City Council had the responsibility of serving the uninformed as well as the informed citizens of Carbondale.

Fischer said his responsibility was to "ferret out what the goals are and what the opinions are."

For more than four hours councilmen and steering committee members deliberated the goals document in an attempt to clarify the intent of the goals.

After going through 20 pages of the 38-page document, the council postponed further discussion until the next informal council meeting on Aug. 29.

The council did not take a strong stand either for or against the goals document but voiced general disagreement with the goal to elect city councilmen by wards.

City Manager Carroll J. Fry said he had worked under three forms of city government including the ward system and the ward system "was like working for six cities at the same time."

"Each councilman had to answer to his own ward," he said, "because the ward system indicates an affinity for the ward that elects you."

He said if the ward system was so effective then Chicago and St. Louis should have excellent government, "but, I think it all gets back to the quality of the people elected."

Also, the council discussed the ordinance to provide for the collection and disposal of garbage and refuse in Carbondale.

Fry said there was no way to enforce the old ordinance because "everybody in the city did not have mandatory pick-up."

"In the past," he said, "maybe two people in a particular block paid and others in the block free-loaded by piling his refuse with the ones who paid."

He said that under the new ordinance "everybody will pay for garbage and refuse pick-up."

"Billings will be made and collected by the city," he said, "but the householder may hire a private collector and after paying monies to the city, the private collector will be remitted money for the refuse that he picks up."

He said that if a householder refuses to pay his garbage bill, the city will shut his water off.

The council decided to bring the ordinance up for action at its meeting Tuesday.

GSC will research proposed change in Graduate School change in Graduate School structure would affect them in their academic pursuits.

Peter Gorham, graduate student in economics and member of the Economics Graduate Student Organization, said so far the organization has not received any funds yet for traveling to other universities to do research on the possibility of restructuring.

"As a body, we have to consider the question of restructuring in terms of Derge's goal of 'academic excellence,'" Gorham said.

"I think that division of the Graduate School is a great movement backward," he stated. "We do not know what kind of decentralization is being considered by the administration, but we know that some decentralization is being considered."

"What will happen with funding of the departments? What will happen to entrance requirements? Will they vary between the schools? Will a graduate student be qualified to take courses in other departments if the Graduate School is divided? How will interdisciplinary studies be worked out?" Gorham asked council members.

He questioned if restructuring the Graduate School will make life easier for the graduate student and whether this is the way to achieve academic maturity.

Dennis Goodman, graduate student in forestry and economics, speculated that restructuring the Graduate School will make it harder for graduate students to take courses from different departments.

Gerry Carruba, graduate student in philosophy, questioned the orientation of the restructuring idea.

"We don't know what they (the administration) are thinking," Sally Wright, graduate student in economics, said. "We have to take first line, second line and third line defense positions against what may happen. 'We cannot permit ourselves the luxury of waiting to get answers from the administration,'" she said.

"If restructuring means it's harder to take a course in another department, it's bad," Camille said.

In other action, the GSC carried a motion lending support to the University Senate "despite the fact that the senate had been stripped of legislative and override powers."

The motion reads: "Let it be known that the Graduate Student Council supports the University Senate as a forum representing all constituencies of the University community. Furthermore, the Graduate Student Council intends to utilize the University Governance System in matters concerning other constituencies as well as graduate students."

Archeological dig to be halted

KAMPSVILLE (AP) — This summer's archeological excavations at the Koster site near Kampsville will halt two weeks early for lack of funds, Dr. Stuart Struever said Wednesday.

Struever, a Northwestern University archeologist, said operations will stop Sunday because a drive for $11,000 to continue the dig until Labor Day netted only $3,500.

"We're feeding 135 people a day and the cost is very large," he said.

But Struever said he expects to find financing for resumption of excavations there next year.

Excavation at the lower Illinois Valley site the past two years has uncovered ruins of 14 prehistoric settlements, stacked layer-cake fashion tracing Illinois life back to 5000 B.C.

Struever directs the work of a team composed of eight other scientists and 75 graduate, undergraduate and high school students.

Thomas' confidence shaken by weak hitting, fielding

By Elliot Tompkin
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Danny Thomas isn't setting the Texas League afire. Thomas, the former Saluki baseball standout, is playing Double A ball for the San Antonio Brewers, a Milwaukee Brewer affiliate.

He has managed only nine hits in 46 at bats for San Antonio. That's a meager .195 batting average.

Nobody is quicker to admit his shortcomings thus far than Thomas himself. He even feels his presence with the team is unfair to other players. He told Karl O'Quinn, of the San Antonio Express, "They're (San Antonio management) going to play me because they've got a lot of money invested in me and I'm the top draft choice, but I'm not doing the job and I know it. I don't know exactly why, but I know that."

"I give them 100 per cent, but they've changed my whole stance. They've taught me 100 different swings. I don't even remember how I used to hit."

Thomas hit .351 and .369 during two seasons at SIU. His bat also earned him a spot on the Sporting News All-American team this year as a first baseman.

Danny echoed Ted Williams' words about hitting being 90 per cent mental and said he had read much of Williams' writings on the subject of hitting. "But I'm worrying too much about my form when I'm in the batter's box. I'm thinking about my feet and how I'm holding the bat. That third strike comes by and I think, boy, I had good form on that one. No major leaguer could have looked any better striking out."

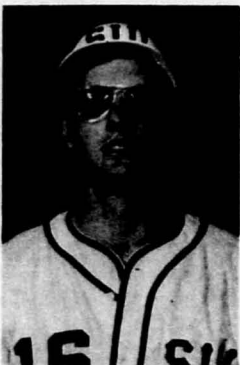

The Brewers have Thomas playing second base. "I don't know how to play it," he told O'Quinn. "I've always been taught to throw overhand, hard. Now I have to throw sidearm to first and shovel it over to second. I have to think about catching the ball, touching second and getting out of the way of the runner. I'm just not a second baseman."

Gary Gossett, director of public relations for San Antonio, thinks Thomas has potential. "Scouts working our games feel he has definite potential if he can overcome an attitude problem he has developed," Gossett said.

The attitude problem Gossett mentioned could be a serious one for a young ballplayer. "At times Thomas gets really discouraged. He talks about next year, as if this one were already a complete washout, but then he'll get fired up again in the next sentence," Gossett said.

Thomas has a friend in San Antonio—his manager Jim Walton. "He's going to be a good ball player," Walton told O'Quinn. "It may not be this year, perhaps not even next, but he's got everything he needs to be a good ball player and he will be a good one."

Sox blow 6-0 lead; salvage win, 8-6

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago White Sox built a 6-0 lead, with Luis Alvarado hitting a three-run inside-the-park homer and Rick Reichardt slamming a two-run triple, and beat the Milwaukee Brewers 8-6, as Wilbur Wood struggled to his 21st victory Wednesday.

The victory moved the White Sox to within one-half game of the first-place Oakland A's in the American League West, pending the outcome of the A's game with Baltimore Wednesday night.

Wood, now 21-11, failed to finish, leaving in the seventh after giving up five runs on 10 hits, including four in a row in the sixth when the Brewers rallied for four runs.

Alvarado's second-inning, inside-the-park homer, came off starter Gary Ryerson, 3-5, following singles by Reichardt and Ed Herrmann.

The Sox made it 6-0 in the third when Reichardt tripled after Walt Williams singled and Dick Allen walked and then scored on Carlos May's double.

Wood weakened in the sixth, giving up successive singles to Brock Davis, George Scott and Ollie Brown and a two-run double to Tommie Reynolds, and a run-scoring pop single misjudged by first baseman Tony Muser.

Super Bowl favored to win Hambletonian

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—Super Bowl remained the favorite to win the Hambletonian two weeks from today by taking both heats of the $21,970 Review Futurity 3-year-old trot at the Illinois State Fair.

It took a photograph to determine that Super Bowl had nipped Spartan Hanover in the first heat but Stanley Dancer had the bay colt under the wire two lengths ahead of driver Bill Houghton and Spartan Hanover in the second heat.

Times for the heats were 1:59.4 and 1:59.3 with the last quarter of the second heat in 27.1 seconds.

Four other colts were in this annual pre-Hambletonian test with Glen Garney getting Flush home third both times, Klaus finishing 4-4 with Lou Huber driving, LaSalle Hanover 5-5 with John Simpson Jr. in the sulky and Star's Chip 6-6 with Robbie Dancer, Stanley's son, driving.

Arlington Heights wins Illinois Legion title

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS (AP)—Pitcher Mark Leonhard's run-scoring single in the 12th inning Wednesday boosted Arlington Heights to a 5-4 victory over Belleville and gave the suburban Chicago team the Illinois American Legion baseball championship.

Leonhard, who started the game playing center field, came in to pitch in the eighth and was tagged for two runs as Belleville narrowed the score to 3-2. He returned to center until the tenth, when he came in to pick up the win.

Leonhard's shot to left pushed Burt Newman, who had singled and stolen second, across for the winning run.

Arlington Heights struck first, scoring two runs in the fourth and adding another in the seventh to take a 3-0 lead. Belleville narrowed the gap to 3-2 in the eighth. Arlington Heights took a 4-2 lead in the ninth but the Southern Illinois team rallied in their half of the inning to force the game into extra innings.

Arlington Heights now advances to regional play, which starts next week in Richmond, Ind.

Area swimmers set new marks

Carbondale men made a showing at the National AAU Masters Swimming Championships in Bloomington, Ind. over the weekend.

Bill Livingood, director of the Jackson County YMCA swimming program, accounted for two titles while SIU Associate Professor Larry Good took a third mark.

Livingood won the 100-meter backstroke in 1:07.1 and the 200-meter backstroke in 2:32.3.

He was sixth in the 200-meter individual medley at 2:43.8.

Good swam a record 2:52.2 in the 200-meter backstroke for men in the 35-39 age category.

Wildcats name assistant coach

EVANSTON (AP)—Northwestern University Athletic Director Tippy Dye announced Wednesday the appointment of former Northwestern cage star Dan Davis as an assistant basketball coach.

In three years as basketball coach at Chicago's Crane High School Davis compiled records of 17-9, 18-8 and 27-6, leading Crane to the Public League championship last season.

Noting that Davis played for Crane when it won a previous championship in 1965, Northwestern basketball coach Brad Snyder said, "If Dan can help accomplish for his college alma mater what he did for his prep alma mater, things will be on the upswing for the Wildcats."

At 22, Davis was the youngest coach in the Chicago schools. He holds Northwestern's alltime record for free throw accuracy with a mark of .822.
