Nixon speech provokes mixed response

By Ed Dunin-Wasowicz
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The aftermath of President Nixon's televised response to Watergate investigations found the persons interviewed Thursday evenly split on the question of his improved credibility.

"He didn't really answer questions on the coverup," Dave Gename, a Carbondale High School teacher said. "But unfortunately some people are gullible enough to believe him."

Ms. Edith Crawley, Morris Library

attendant, thought the President's explanation was not "perfectly clear."

"He didn't really settle anything," she said. "The issues weren't presented as clearly as they should have been."

"There was a note of optimism in James Rushing's comments. Rushing is on the security force at Mohr-Valu Department Store.

"He didn't really say much," Rushing said. "But I think he will have more to say later."

Some others, like Curt Ayers, a graduate student in health education, weren't so kind.

"It stunk!" he said. "Anyone with over a month to prepare a statement is naturally ready with planned answers."

Ms. Joyce Deany, a sophomore in speech pathology, shared Ayers' observation and wasn't surprised with the President's response.

"Anyone with background in rhetoric should be able to predict what Nixon would say," she said.

Surprise was also missing from the comments of Chris Colmar, a visitor to Carbondale.

"He told his side of the story like I expected him to," he said.

There was a mixed reaction surrounding the question of releasing the controversial White House Tapes.

"I feel things would finally be cleared up with the release of the tapes," Ayers said.

For Ms. Deany, the question involved the weighing of the public's right to know against the President's principles.

"In the end I feel it is more important to release the information rather than having Nixon stick to his principles," she said.

Gename felt releasing of the tapes would have a farther reaching effect.

"They should definitely release the tapes," he said, "because I believe there should be a limitation on executive privilege."

Rushing was hesitant to agree on releasing the tapes as the best alternative.

"I don't know if they should be released," he said. "Maybe a panel should be selected to review the tapes and decide how much of it would be released. Because there may be some confidential things in there."

Colmar was also empathetic towards Nixon's reasoning.

"He might be right about not releasing the tapes because of the confidentiality question," he said. "However, I feel the facts on Watergate should come out, if they are on the tapes."

Ms. Crawley wanted the tapes released. "He could relieve the people's minds about this whole thing," she said.

GSC wants group to find new VP

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Recommendations for establishing a search committee for a permanent vice president of Student Affairs will go to President David R. Derge Friday from the Graduate Student Council (GSC).

George Wilson, president of GSC and spokesman for its executive committee, said he felt the vice presidential office is necessary for providing service, guidance and coordination of student affairs in general.

Wilson's move precedes the appointment of a temporary dean of students to succeed George Mace. Derge is seeking help in deciding on a temporary dean.

and also wants to form a committee to evaluate the general direction student affairs should take.

Wilson said he felt there will be a continuing need for some type of administrative consultation in student affairs. The upper-echelon office would deal with all aspects of student life, activities, services, and government.

Students need high-level input if their desires are to be met, Wilson said. Although the proposed vice presidency would not follow a strict interpretation of the in loco parentis concept, he said it was important to have the services of such an office available for students needing them.

Wilson said he doubted that the evaluation committee would recommend suspension of University participation in student affairs. He felt the vice presidential position would be necessary regardless of the committee's findings.

If nothing else, Wilson said, someone with a student orientation will have to be on hand to read the evaluation committee's report.

Wilson said it is important to have administration service and guidance available for students coming into a school like SIU. Administrative holding of hands of new students is not necessary, he said, but help is needed to coordinate the myriad facets of student life for newcomers to Carbondale.

Wilson added that the student government can not handle the numerous isolated segments of student life. Instead, he said the soundest approach is to have a vice president who could provide coordination and vocalization of student affairs for both students and the administration.

SIU not suggested as member in Phi Beta Kappa organization

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU was not recommended for membership in Phi Beta Kappa (PBK) at its recent national meeting, according to reports received by Lewis Hahn, philosophy professor.

Hahn said Thursday he had learned, however, that a number of delegates at the meeting were speaking in support of SIU's acceptance. Procedural questions were raised, he said, resulting in plans for a committee to study the relationship between PBK criteria for accepting new chapters and censureship by the American Association of University Professors (AAUP).

Hahn headed the effort to establish and SIU chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, a national honorary fraternity. Earlier statements from Hahn indicated SIU would not receive a chapter because of SIU's under censure by AAUP. Many believe the controversial blackball came because of handling in the denial of tenure for Doug Allen, a former philosophy professor.

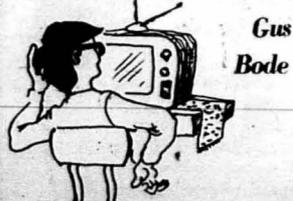

Hahn said the PBK delegate from the University of Illinois was one of the main proponents of SIU's being accepted. Hahn learned there had been arguments suggesting the Allen case was an exceptional one, and that SIU's inclusion into PBK should not rest on such a matter.

The PBK committee will look at whether AAUP actions against a university should be considered in the qualifications for membership in the fraternity. After the study, Hahn said, there may be a basis for granting SIU a PBK chapter despite the blacklisting by AAUP.

But the next meeting of the national PBK is three years away. Hahn did not think SIU could be admitted in the meantime, even if the study committee's report is favorable.

Hahn also mentioned that the Allen case, which prevented SIU's acceptance into PBK, may no longer be argued as exceptional of SIU in general. Hahn referred to the Faculty Senate's call for an AAUP investigation into the Edwin Pearson tenure denial.

Prosecuter meets lawyers of Maryland businessmen

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP)—The Justice Department's top prosecutor met here Thursday with U.S. attorneys and lawyers for two Maryland businessmen who reportedly implicated Vice President Spiro T. Agnew in an alleged bribery and kickback scheme.

The high-level meeting, the second in two days for Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen, head of the Justice Department's criminal division, came amid reports that indictments may be returned shortly.

Petersen and his special assistant, Philip White, spent several hours with U.S. Atty. George Beall. Also present in Beall's suite of offices was Lester Matz, a Baltimore engineering consultant, and his co-counsel, Arnold M. Weiner and Joseph H. H. Kaplan. Matz, who has been granted limited immunity in exchange for his testimony, is said in published reports to have told prosecutors that he turned illegal kickbacks from contractors over to Agnew, a former Maryland governor.

Beall spoke briefly with newsmen following the meeting but refused to say what was discussed.

A special grand jury hearing testimony in the case met two hours

Thursday and then adjourned. The only witness seen entering the hearing room was an unidentified tax agent who has been working with the prosecutors on the case. Beall said the jury probably would not come back into session until next Thursday.

The probe began last December as an investigation of Baltimore County officials and of engineering firms doing business with the county and state, but did not involve Agnew until this spring. The Vice President was notified Aug 2 that he is under investigation for possible violations of bribery, extortion, conspiracy and tax laws.

Atty Gen. Elliot L. Richardson met with Agnew privately Aug 6 to discuss the status of the investigation. Two days later Agnew said at a news conference that the allegations against him were "damned lies."

Foreign press not satisfied with Nixon speech

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Initial foreign reaction to President Nixon's Watergate speech was almost universal in saying he did not tell the American people enough. Nixon's strongest support came from the Soviet press.

The influential Japanese newspaper Asahi said in an editorial it didn't think Americans were satisfied with the remarks on Wednesday.

"Mr. Nixon cannot persuade the people unless he counters the witnesses who have indicated that he knew of the case and the coverups," wrote Asahi. "But President Nixon... failed to produce definite counterevidence."

The Soviet news agency Tass, which has refrained from attacking Nixon on the Watergate disclosures, stressed his statement that obsession with the past should not be allowed to mar the future.

Tass noted Nixon's comments about pieces of legislation awaiting congressional action, including the trade bill in which the Soviet Union has keen interest. It would grant Moscow most-favored-nation status in trade with the United States.

The news agency revealed to Soviet readers for the first time that the Senate hearings and U.S. press commentary point at Nixon himself. It also cited the President's fear of lost trust at home and abroad, an apparent indication that Moscow shares the uncertainty.

Correspondent John Hefferan of the London Evening Standard wrote from Washington that the speech "failed to grip many of those who listened to it" and probably had invited new attacks from Nixon's critics because of its failure to answer the charges.

Gordon Jeffrey of the London Daily Mirror said in a Washington dispatch that it was probably one of Nixon's best television performances.

"He was frank, firm, and didn't budge an inch," said Jeffrey.

In West Germany, the Frankfurter Rundschau bannered its Thursday evening edition: "Nixon sees no spot on his vest."

A Justice Department spokesman refused to confirm a New York Times report Thursday that Richardson told Agnew that prosecutors have statements from more than 20 Maryland businessmen who say they gave cash to Agnew associates in return for lucrative government contracts.

Communications

Building leaks

The pitter-patter of little feet on the roof of the north wing of the Communications Building Thursday morning was caused by physical plant employees.

The men were up there looking for and patching rain-admitting fissures that have been creating trickles and puddles in the journalism wing, Rino Bianchi, director of construction and facilities planning, said.

Bianchi said physical plant workers would "stay on top of" the situation until permanent modifications can be made on the roof.

The roof which covers the mammoth $8 million Communications Building has suffered a crack-up because of the back-and-forth of the building in response to temperature variations.

To correct the condition, Bianchi has said, SIU must come up with about $55,000 it doesn't have now. Expansion joints must be built in to the roof to accommodate expansion and contraction.

Bradley undergoes emergency surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP)—General of the Army Omar N. Bradley was making satisfactory progress Thursday after undergoing emergency surgery to prevent blood clots from entering his lungs, a hospital spokesman reported.

Surgeons placed an umbrella-shaped device in a major blood vein to filter out blood clots.

Bradley's wife, Kitty, said after the operation, "The general has survived surgery. His condition is serious, but the prognosis is very hopeful."

Bradley, 80, the nation's only living five-star general, was admitted Sunday to UCLA Medical Center with blood clots in the lungs. The condition apparently stemmed from an operation on an old football injury he suffered at West Point nearly 60 years ago, a hospital spokesman said.

Price freeze on gas to continue until Aug. 31

WASHINGTON (AP)—A price freeze on gasoline and diesel fuel will be continued until Aug. 31, but will be lifted from other petroleum products this coming Monday, the Cost of Living Council announced Thursday.

It is the second time the freeze has been extended for gasoline and No. 2 diesel fuel. Originally it had been scheduled to expire for the oil industry along with the rest of the economy this past Monday.

Final Phase 4 regulations for the oil industry are scheduled to be released Friday. John T. Dunlop, director of the Cost of Living Council, indicated there would not be enough time for gasoline retailers to work out proposed new ceiling prices by this coming Monday, the date the freeze expires on the rest of the industry.

The action means there can be no increase in the retail price of gasoline or diesel fuel prior to Sept.

1. That is also the deadline for gasoline retailers to post special government stickers on their gasoline pumps listing new price ceilings and octane ratings for gasoline.

Meanwhile, the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers sued the Cost of Living Council and Dunlop.

Charles Bisgaard, president of the group, warned that a rollback on profits and a continued gasoline shortage could bankrupt many dealers.

The suit, filed in U.S. District Court, asserts the proposed regulations are arbitrary and discriminate against gasoline retailers.

Dunlop said 68 major companies had filed notice with the government by Wednesday of their intention to increase prices in 30 days.

He said the names of the companies would be made public later. Dunlop said he expected rubber companies to join auto makers and steel manufacturers, which have already made public announcements, in proposing price increases.

When the final oil regulations are announced Friday, the industry from major refiners to gasoline retailers will have less than three days to put them into effect.

William N. Walker, the council's general counsel, told newsmen he thought this would be enough time, although he noted it would require weekend work by the industry.

The regulations will provide for price ceilings on gasoline and fuel oil based on the costs of the product plus the dealers' added price-or markup—that existed on Jan. 10.

There would be a minimum markup of 7 cents per gallon, although it could be higher for retailers who had a higher markup on Jan. 10. Once the ceiling price for gasoline is established, retailers would not be able to increase prices over the ceiling rules the council approved.

Dunlop cited additional evidence to support the administration view that there is not going to be a serious nationwide beef shortage as the result of price ceilings being left on beef until Sept. 12.

He said a total of 103,000 head of cattle were slaughtered Wednesday, only slightly below the July daily average of 106,000 and up from the recent low of 75,000 on Aug. 6.

The stickers that must be posted on all of the country's gasoline and diesel fuel pumps by Sept. 1 will list the ceiling price and the octane rating, in the case of gasoline.

Personnel newsletter planned

by Diane Mizialko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The campus grapevine is about to be pruned.

A SIU newsletter, "Campus Communicator" will carry "personnel and personal information" of interest to faculty staff and civil service employees "before they hear it by the grapevine," Don Hecke, director of Communications, said, Thursday.

The newsletter will appear for the first time this fall, probably Oct. 1, Hecke said. It will be mailed once a month to the homes of SIU employees.

The "Campus Communicator" will help employees "develop a better understanding of what they and their fellows are doing," Hecke said.

Because the newsletter will disseminate information of interest to the people who work for SIU but not necessarily of interest to general readers, the publication will not compete with the Daily Egyptian or any local medium, Hecke said.

The administration is interested in "better communication with employees," Hecke said, but the newsletter will not be a "vehicle of the administration."

The publication would lose credibility with its readership, Hecke said, if it became an organ for any one segment of the campus community.

When he came to SIU in January,

Hecke said, he was amazed there was no employee newsletter.

"Professionally," Hecke said, "I believe a need must be filled."

Dick Kaszner, writer for University News Service, will serve as editor of the "Campus Communicator." Layout and design will be handled by University Graphics.

The publication will be printed on campus, Hecke said. He said he could not say whether Daily Egyptian presses would be utilized for the project.

Funding has not been planned, Hecke said. He also was unable to provide cost estimates.

"Over the long haul, it will reduce administrative costs in communicating with employees," he said.

Senators deaf to Nixon plea

WASHINGTON (AP)—There was no sign Thursday the Senate Watergate committee will yield to President Nixon's plea to turn the scandal over to the courts while the administration turns its attention to other issues.

Only one of the seven Watergate senators, Sen. Edward J. Curney, R-Fla., openly advocated that view. Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., repeated his urgent requests that the President release tape recordings of relevant presidential conversations and said it was unfortunate Nixon had taken the attitude the committee is "out to get him."

Reporting responses running from 5 to 1 to 6 to 1 in overwhelming support of the President's views, the White House said Nixon is determined to get on with the pending national business of foreign policy, the economy, inflation, the energy crisis and legislative proposals.

Ervin's office reported a flood of telegrams received after Nixon's speech ran 441 in favor of the committee's investigation with 88 supporting the President's position. Offices of other committee members reported a similar response.

White House Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon will face the Watergate issue at least one more time, at a news conference—his first in five months—to be held at San Clemente, Calif., just prior to Labor Day.

Before that, Warren said Nixon will begin a series of policy statements on national issues in a speech Monday to the national convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in New Orleans.

The Watergate committee, now in a one-month recess of its televised hearings, is seriously considering speeding the investigative process when hearings resume in September.

In his speech, Nixon said: "The time has come to turn Watergate over to the courts... The time has come for the rest of us to get on with the urgent business of the government."

Gurney echoed that sentiment when he said, "The committee hearings have dragged on far too long and are seriously affecting the ability of the government to function. The economy and our relation with nations abroad are being seriously neglected by both the executive and the legislative branches."

Some committee members had no immediate reaction. Others expressed disappointment with what they said was lack of a detailed presidential defense.

The extinction of the middle class student

The SIU campus may soon be inhabited only by the rich and the poor as students from middle-class families find themselves squeezed out of higher education.

Increasing college costs and tight financial aid requirements are making it more difficult for middle-class students to afford SIU.

The cost for tuition and fees and room and board in 1970-71 at SIU was estimated at $1,246. This same cost is estimated to be $1,734 for next year. This is an increase in three years of $488 or 40 per cent. This does not take into account additional expenses such as books and supplies ($145) and personal expenses ($566) for 1973-74. This comes to a grand total of $2,445.

There are many forms of financial aid available to students at SIU. That is, if one qualifies.

John Barnes, coordinator of program development and special projects of student work and financial assistance at SIU, says that the student financial assistance programs are administered to "help the needy."

The On-Campus Work Program is also based on financial need. A student who is not in financial need may get a job on campus, in a department though. But the department must pay for three of every five hours that the student works. The Federal Government pays the rest.

Barnes says that the squeeze in financial aid to students is due to the increase of the number of trade schools in the country. The Nixon Administration has appropriated nearly the same amount each year for education, but there are more schools to spread the money around to. This means less money for each college.

The Federal Government funds the work-study program and some of the grants and loans.

With less money from the Federal Government, the colleges are forced to increase their tuition to operate. Yet the $143 tuition at SIU accounts for only about one-sixth of the total cost of running the University. Rising college costs blamed on inflation and higher salaries are outpacing family income and general price levels. From 1970 to 1971, college costs rose 10 per cent while family incomes rose only 4.3 per cent and the cost of living jumped 3.3 per cent.

In order to qualify for financial assistance a student must show evidence of financial need. His need is computed by adding together the costs of tuition and fees, room and board, books and supplies and personal expenses less expected family contribution. In other words, financial need is based on what the parent's apparently can do for him.

A family's contribution is figured by taking into account the family's adjusted gross income, the income tax paid to the government, the number of exemptions claimed, the number of brothers and sisters in college and the family's assets.

To qualify for an Illinois State Scholarship Commission Monetary Award, the SIU Scholarship and Activity Award or the Junior College Scholarship, the student must show financial need. The Illinois Guaranteed Loan requires a student to pay seven per cent interest on the loan while he is in school, unless sufficient need is shown to waive interests payments until after graduation.

For the Law Enforcement Education Program, again the student must show financial need to qualify.

The Educational Opportunity Grant gives preference to students whose parent's income is below $6,000.

College costs are expected to rise at 7 percent for the next four years.

The Nixon Administration's aid programs will give an initial grant to needy students. All other students will have to take loans. This will hurt the middle-class the most. They will have to borrow the money.

Contributions from parents of middle-class students will have to increase.

The rich will be able to afford higher education because they have the money. The poor will be able to go to college because they qualify for financial aid. But the middle-class student, rich not poor, will have to foot his own bill for his college education.

IPIRG president answers critic of pharmacy survey

To the Daily Egyptian:

Mr. Denoms has failed to look deeply into the problem of the pharmacist failure to inform the public of their prices. It would seem Mr. Denoms' editorial presents totally the point of view and excuses that the IPIRG investigators received during the recent survey from the pharmacist. In answering his editorial we ask the reader to consider that there are two points of view to every controversy.

Mr. Denoms' statement, or speculation, that IPIRG was trying to embarrass the local pharmacist is totally false and unfair. IPIRG requested, under federal law, information on drug prices, and at no time did our investigators threaten or harass the pharmacists. However, Mr. Denoms, our investigators were cursed and vilified in several of these including the S.I.U. Health Service. It seems strange you would have not mentioned this in your editorial.

Mr. Denoms, before you print what the druggists say, I suggest you thoroughly check it out. There is NO law forbidding the pharmacist from releasing any price information. The druggists have found a person who is willing to buy what they say, hook, line, and sinker, and who is not interested enough to check the information he has been given.

I can personally acknowledge the fact, that almost every one of these pharmacists knew in advance about IPIRG and before the last survey was taken

Square peg in the round...

To the Daily Egyptian:

Perhaps it is high time that we rid ourselves of those small, murky, vicious, unimportant things and concentrate on the significant business of these United States. I propose that we commence by "wallowing" our way into the Oval Office and ex-licitating its occupant.

Ronald L. Graves
SIU Alumnus

To the Daily Egyptian:

The Man in the Oval Office is a Rounder.

C. Harvey Gardiner
Research Professor of History

they were expecting something of this nature to take place. There excuse about not knowing IPIRG not only doesn't hold water, but surely makes no difference in the fact, that they were required by Federal law to divulge their price information.

Mr. Denoms, you have managed to make IPIRG sound like some radical organization which uses devious means. I suggest you may carry a bias towards this organization for a reason unknown. Many organizations like IPIRG have been accused of not being fair in their tactics. I can only suggest, Mr. Denoms, that you become involved with IPIRG as an interested observer and perhaps it will help you get the facts straight.

I would suggest only one other thing. Seeing as how there is NO law, state or federal, against pharmacists disclosing their prices and that IPIRG conducted this survey in such a manner as not to threaten any of the pharmacists, then WHY do the Carbondale pharmacies refuse to disclose their prices. The only thing the pharmacists distrust, is the consumer knowing their prices. This is the main question which you have so conveniently overlooked.

Daily Egyptian Opinion & Commentary

EDITORIALS—The Daily Egyptian encourages free discussion of current issues through editorials and letters on these pages. Editorials—labeled Opinion—are written and signed by members of the student news staff and by students enrolled in journalism courses and represent opinions of the authors only.

LETTERS—Readers are invited to express their opinions in letters which must be signed with name, classification and major or faculty rank, address and telephone number. Letters should be typewritten, and their length should not exceed 250 words. ## Bible belt town shuns rock festival with apprehension BENTON, Tenn. (AP)—This obscure east Tennessee town, snuggled deep in the Bible belt, wants a rock festival about as much as it does hoof and mouth disease for its cattle.

In this area of religious fundamentalism, mere mention of the words "rock festival" spurs apprehension and aggravation.

Northern rock concert promoters came to this placid Great Smoky Mountains farming region about two weeks ago and announced plans for a Labor Day weekend music festival. They are predicting a crowd of more than 10,000. Benton's population is about 800.

Part of the townspeople's opposition stems from the late July "Summer Jam" rock festival at Watkins Glen, N.Y., where 600,000 music fans caused that small town's worst traffic snarl over.

Around Benton's town square, everybody is talking about the festival and few are boosting it. A survey of the town's merchants and street people turned up no one willing to speak openly in favor of the festival, young or old. But there is one man prominently in favor of the affair—Polk County Judge Dennis White, who leased 500 acres of his cattle farm to festival promoters.

"Give 'em hell, judge," whispered an old-timer into White's ear as they stood outside the courthouse.

Firefighters down police 4-2

The firemen put the heat on the police and won their donkeyball baseball game 4-2 Wednesday night. The Carbondale Police and Fire Departments clashed from atop donkeys in the 90-minute game.

"I was so sore this morning I could hardly move," Capt. Allan Jackson, one of the firefighters, said. "This is just one of those things where the firemen and the police meet. There's no hard feelings afterward."

The baseballers collected $241 from ticket sales. Proceeds from the game will go to the police officers and firefighters associations and may be used for public education purposes.

David Koch, editor of ICarBS, looks through a book in one of the Morris Library collections. The new literary journal will publish its first issue Sept. 3 (Photo by Tom Porter)

First issue of ICarBS to be available Sept. 3

By Linda Lipman -
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

ICarBS, a literary journal of Morris Library will be available by Sept. 3. David Koch, editor of the journal and rare book librarian, has announced.

"ICarBS" is the National Union Catalog symbol for Morris Library. "I" stands for Illinois, "Carb" for Carbondale and "S" for Southern. The symbol is used in all volumes of the catalog and Koch feels the ICarBS publication will be easily recognized as representing SIU.

Publication was made possible by more than 400 Friends of the library who donated and raised money at last year's annual book sale. Subscriptions for the twice-yearly publication are $5 per year which includes membership in the Friends.

ICarBS will contain articles based on research in the library's special collections. Most of the articles will be part of manuscripts, papers or letter in which the library owns the majority of one collection.

The lead item in the publication will be an excerpt from a novel in progress by Kay Boyle, professor of creative writing at San Francisco State University. She has won two O. Henry Short Story awards. The library owns the bulk of the Boyle manuscripts.

A primary objective of the journal is to let persons at other universities, graduate students, and faculty members become familiar with the working base of the library and encourage prospective donors for the library, Koch said.

He explained that if a person is considering donating a manuscript or money, his gift will be enhanced at SIU where it can become part of a collection.

The Friends Koch explained, are persons who "realize that a top library needs private monies to fill the holes of state funds."

Koch believes a state university library will "not get anywhere without donations. SIU does not have a long list of wealthy alumni who are willing to give away their money. Therefore, the library needs Friends."

Koch said the library needs a broad base of Friends membership to influence other persons to become Friends. Koch also said he feels the library should be committed to the people of Southern Illinois and therefore collect records of Southern Illinois history.

The Friends will help the library find these records and documents, and organize and preserve them for future scholars or interested persons. Koch said county centers do not have the facilities to preserve these papers and they are ruined. He said he would like to see Morris Library become the center in Southern Illinois for collection and arranging these articles.

The Friends sponsor an annual book sale in mid-October, Koch said. They sold about 10,000 used books last year. The books are donated to the library by various individuals and agencies and redistributed at a low price. Koch said about 95 per cent of the books offered in the sale are sold.

Friends of the Library was organized in 1960 by 85 residents, faculty and alumni.

Four businesses charged with air, water pollution

CHICAGO (AP)—Four Northern Illinois businesses were charged with pollution Thursday by the attorney general's office.

In suits filed before the Illinois Pollution Control Board, the Chrysler Corp. in Belvidere; the Chippewa Paper Co. in Joliet and the Egg Farm in Monee were charged with air pollution.

The Howell Co., a furniture manufacturing company in St. Charles, was charged with water pollution.

Bookstore ready for fall opening

The addition to the Student Center bookstore will be completed by the beginning of fall quarter. Clarence Dougherty, director of the Student Center, said Wednesday.

Dougherty said tile is being laid in the new addition and book shelves will be arriving Thursday.

Dougherty said workers are making "good progress" with the addition, which is being built because of the elimination of the Textbook Rental Service.

"The wall between the bookstore and the Magnolia Lounge (where the expansion is taking place) has been removed and the wiring is completed," he said.

He said once the floor is finished, light fixtures must be installed before the store will be complete.

Dougherty said the bookstore, which is being expanded from 12,000 to 16,000 square feet, will be large enough to stock the textbooks needed by students.

However, he said there will be problems accommodating all the students who will be using the store during fall rush.

He added the store will be open until 9 p.m. the first few weeks of each quarter so "everyone has an opportunity to get into the store."

Dougherty said the bookstore will stock both used and new books.

"We will have available all the books that were in the Textbook Rental Service," he said. "These will be sold as used books."

Books not available from the rental service will be ordered from publishing companies and sold as new books, he said.

Dougherty also said the bookstore will be initiating a "buy-back" program which will allow students to sell their books at the end of each quarter.

He said this program will become part of the bookstore operation and will probably take place during finals week every quarter.

Two devaluations cause Americans higher prices

WASHINGTON (AP)—American consumers are now feeling the worst economic consequences of two devaluations of the dollar: sharply higher food bills.

Few people inside or outside the government foresaw that result when the U.S. currency was devalued 8 per cent by President Nixon in December 1971 and 10 per cent in February this year.

But now the Nixon administration and many economists and businessmen share the view that the dollar's steep tumble in the past two years has had a significant impact on U.S. food prices.

How much, nobody knows. It is not the only, and perhaps not the major, reason food prices have climbed so sharply.

But the government's attitude about the effect on dollar devaluation on the U.S. economy has changed dramatically since 1971. John B. Connolly, then serving as Treasury secretary, remarked that most Americans wouldn't notice the dollar had been devalued.

A spokesman for President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisors said the administration now sees devaluation as an "important and substantial factor" in the food-price spiral. Consumer food prices have increased by more than an annual rate of 20 per cent since January.

The two devaluations, along with a third big decline in the dollar's value this spring, came at a time when nations around the world were beginning to experience tighter food supplies and rising incomes.

The dollar's drop in value suddenly made U.S. agricultural products relatively cheaper overseas. This fueled the already-high demand for American food products, stepped up exports from the United States, and reduced available supplies here.

Tighter supplies of agricultural products, including such key commodities as feed grains, have driven up prices in this country.

Industries to help antipollution costs

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Environmental Protection Agency adopted regulations Thursday requiring industries to share in the costs of municipal waste-water treatment.

EPA also proposed waste discharge limits for two industries and formally announced its municipal discharge standards.

The actions open a drive to set discharge limits for all major polluters by the end of 1974, and they pull the cork from a bottleneck in the flow of federal funds for municipal treatment facilities.

Acting EPA administrator John R. Quarles Jr. told newsmen the discharge limits, now beginning to emerge, "will be the most critical part of the administrative machinery to implement the 1972 Federal Water Pollution Control Act."

He said they will "cut the pattern which this country's water pollution programs will follow for the next 10 years."

Quarles had no precise estimate of the cost of the clean water controls, but he guessed that industry would have to double or triple its present anti-pollution spending of about $5 billion a year for the next decade.

Under the 1972 act, industries discharging waste water must apply the "best practicable" control technology by July 1977, and the "best available technology economically achievable" by July 1, 1983.

Municipal waste-water treatment plants must apply "secondary treatment" by July 1977.

Industrial discharges are to be controlled through a system of discharge permits setting specific control requirements for each plant.

Quarles said some 26,000 plants have applied for permits but only about 500 permits have been issued so far. EPA must issue the rest by the end of 1974.

One major action links both industry and municipalities in the antipollution effort.

It requires industries discharging wastes through federally financed municipal systems to share both the construction and operating costs of the facilities.

The cost-sharing provision applies only to facilities which received federal grants after March 1, 1973, thus exempting most existing municipal treatment plants.

But industries would have to share the cost of any improvements made on existing plants with the aid of federal funds.

The cost-sharing requirement bars the common practice of granting "volume discounts" to industrial users of municipal systems.

Quarles said that "large industrial users will find their bills increased."

The "effluent guidelines" which began emerging Thursday prescribe the antipollution performance required of each industrial group.

The first two guidelines require sugar beet refiners and insulation fiberglass manufacturers to eliminate completely their waste water discharges by 1983.

A few more industries may face zero-discharge by 1977 and others by 1983, he said, but many could not achieve such a strict limit.

Newsprint demand outstripping supply

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP)—The demand for newsprint is outstripping the supply and the future for newsprint consumers is gloomy, says the president of MacMillan Bloedel, Canada's largest forest company.

President Denis Timmis says the future holds higher newspaper prices and higher advertising rates across Canada.

"We are turning people away every day," Timmis said in a recent interview.

"Some of them are actually weeping, but there's nothing we nor anyone else in the industry can do. Every mill in North America is already running as close to capacity, as possible."

His company operates eight newsprint machines in British Columbia and co-owns two machines in St. John, N.B.

The current economic boom, inflation and increasing demand from developing nations are some of the causes for the rising newsprint demand, up 5.3 per cent so far this year.

But no new newsprint machines are being built in North America and none are planned because the business is considered a poor sector in which to invest money on new production.

Newsprint prices are rising, but production costs are reducing profit, said Timmis. For example, mill labor costs are expected to rise 13 per cent this year and mill goods and services are expected to rise six per cent.

The uncertainty of the market is above all bothering the producers. Three New York newspapers alone use nearly a million tons of newsprint a year, about 7.7 per cent of the entire North American newsprint capacity.

A strike involving these three would tip the supply and demand scales and the newsprint market would plunge.

A fourth New York-based newspaper, the Wall Street Journal, uses 740,000 tons a year.

Howard Post, U.S. Commerce Department forest products specialist, recently estimated that newsprint would have to move from its current price of about $173 a ton to $225 a ton before companies could consider investing in U.S. or Canadian newsprint machines.

Rep. Ken Gray 'fit as a fiddle'

U.S. Rep. Kenneth J. Gray of West Frankfort needed rest" at his Virginia home after being discharged Wednesday from Bethesda Naval Hospital, a spokeswoman in Gray's office said Thursday.

The spokeswoman said Gray was "fit as a fiddle" and "looks splendid." He had been in Bethesda since July 31 for tests. His condition was diagnosed as high blood pressure.

It is not certain when Gray will return to work at his Washington office, the spokeswoman said.

No test week for 11-week courses

A final exam week will not be scheduled for courses offered during the 11-week summer session.

According to a spokeswoman at the Registrars Office, exams will be the responsibility of faculty members and should be given at the end of the quarter during regular class time.

Scott W. Hinners, poultry specialist has been awarded the 1973 Ralston Purina Teaching Award of $1,000 and a special citation and plaque honoring his long service as an outstanding teacher.

The award was presented during a banquet session of the international Poultry Science Association last week in Brookings, South Dakota, by Daryle Greene, Ralston Purina director of poultry research. The citation pays tribute to Hinners for demonstrated success as a teacher, pointing out that excellence in teaching is considered basic in the future welfare of the poultry industry.

Hinners joined the SIU faculty in 1951.

Hijacker 'slightly tipsy'

Gunman takes jet to Israel

TELAVIV, Israel (AP)—A Libyan gunman described as slightly tipsy hijacked a Lebanese jetliner with 126 persons on board and forced it to land in Israel where Israeli troops stormed the plane and captured the hijacker.

The plane was released Thursday night and was flown to Beirut with the crew and passengers aboard.

The hijacker was held for interrogation. The Middle East Airlines Boeing 707 was commandeered to Tel Aviv's Lod airport, scene of a massacre last year by guerrillas. It was the third Middle East hijacking in less than a month. It apparently was not related to the Arab-Israeli conflict.

The Israeli chief of staff, Lt. Gen. David Elazar, said the hijacker carried two pistols but "half gave himself up" to security troops who stormed the plane.

Police identified the hijacker as Mohammed Toumi, 37, an Arab merchant working in Lebanon. He apparently was seeking Israeli asylum to protest against the Libyan regime of Col. Moammar Khadafy. Palestinian guerrilla organizations denied they had anything to do with the incident, or that any of their members were on board.

Airport officials said the hijacker seized control of the plane on route from Libya to Lebanon over the Mediterranean 45 minutes after takeoff.

The passengers, most of them Lebanese and Syrians, were shaken by the ordeal. Elazar said one person was hurt while jumping from the plane. There apparently were no

Cambodian insurgents delay all-out attack against capital

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)—Communist-led rebels made a limited withdrawal from resupply Thursday south of Phnom Penh, but insurgent pressure continued to the north-west. Western military attaches said.

There was no indication on the second day of the halt in U.S. bombing operations that the city was threatened with an all-out attack.

Western military attaches said the Khmor Rouge rebels dug in near the approaches to Pochentong airport, 4 1/2 miles from the center of the city.

"There is very little going on politically," said one attaché. "The negotiations have to be on the ground here with whoever wants to come out from the faceless side." He said the Khmor Rouge are in a strong enough military position to dictate terms rather than negotiate.

The insurgents control 80 per cent of Cambodia and virtually surround the capital. The attaché gave these reasons for the limited southern withdrawal:

—The insurgent forces have been fighting on the southern front since June 2. Their supply system is complex and fragile, and they used up what they had on hand.

—The insurgents had only a few avenues of approach. American bombers inflicted serious losses on these approaches before ending aerial attacks in Cambodia Wednesday.

—The monsoon water table is rising rapidly, making it difficult for the Khmor Rouge to find infiltration routes.

"It is possible they will come back in the near future but I have no timetable," said the attaché.

In Paris, a spokesman for Prince Norodom Sihanouk, titular leader of the insurgents, said Cambodia "will be taken no matter what happens." "It is only a matter of time," the spokesman, Chau Song, told a news conference. "We are ready militarily, but we must also be ready politically, that is to say we must have the total support of the population and must prepare them to avoid unnecessary bloodshed."

He said a fifth column of Sihanouk forces was in the capital enlisting the support of the population and undermining the morale of the government troops. He added that members of the Lon Nol regime would be tried as traitors if captured by Sihanouk forces.

An Associated Press newsman said Highway-1 to the naval base at Noak Laong, 32 miles southeast of Phnom Penh, was busling with traffic. He said most of the villages along the highway had been destroyed by air strikes and refugees were returning to salvage household valuables or their crops after the American bombing halt.

A B52 bomber mistakenly bombed Neak Imong on Aug. 6, killing 137 persons and wounding 268.

other injuries. The hijacking came less than 24 hours after the U.N. Security Council censured Israel for briefly capturing a Lebanese airliner last Friday in an unsuccessful hunt for Arab guerrillas.

Democrats celebrate day at State Fair Thursday

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—The governor drove a tractor, the lieutenant governor watched a circus and the state treasurer shook a few hands as Democrats celebrated their day Thursday at the Illinois State Fair.

The day was designated Governor's Day, but the usual speech-making and high-pressure politicking that have accompanied such events in the past were missing. As on Republican Day Wednesday, no special events or speeches were planned.

"I think people come to the fair to have fun and not to stand around listening to a politician make speeches," Gov. Daniel Walker conjectured.

Walker, who has been at the fair every day but Wednesday, arrived early to get in on the tractor pulling contest on the track in front of the grandstands.

In the tractor pull, farmers hitch their vehicles to a sledge and see how far they can pull a specified weight. The weights are tractors or pieces of construction machinery mounted on the sledge.

While the tractor pulls the weight, a pace tractor races alongside. The driver of the racing tractor is not allowed to go faster than the pace trailer.

After viewing two drivers spin their wheels and come to a halt, Walker left his wife, Roberta, and children Will, 10, and Margaret, 14, and made for the track.

Swinging up into the seat of the pace tractor, Walker took drivers through three runs down the strip. "I enjoyed driving the tractor, but I think it would take some practice to do it right," he told about 10,000 persons packing the grandstand.

Then he walked to the Democratic tent where Dorothy Bafford, Sue Walter and Leona Dean of the Macon County Democratic Organization were passing out leaflets and seeing that those who wanted a chair or a free cup of ice water got one.

Along the way, Walker talked to people like Jim Clark, a white-haired retired railroad engineer from Trafalgar, Ind., who wore a white railroad man's cap and told the governor he was enjoying being there.

At the livestock commodities tent Walker got on a scale and clocked in at 184 and then joined Agriculture Director Robert Williams for a sandwich of Illinois grown pork tenderloin.

Walker said he plans to meet with Williams and State Fair Manager Robert Park after the fair to "discuss some ideas I have about how to improve the state fair."

In livestock judgments Thursday, Castle Farms of Joy took the grand champion boar and sow Tamworth titles, while E. and W. Brattain of Greencastle, Ind., took the reserve boar and sow titles in that breed.

Lowell Keim of Mount Carroll showed the grand champion Brown Swiss dairy cow while John Ellis of Pinfield had the grand champion Brown Swiss bull.

Larry Durham of Walnut showed the champion Oxford ran and Joe Reid & Sons of Hauslonia, Mo., the reserve Oxford ran.

In the Oxford ewe judging the titles went in reverse order with Reid showing the champion and Durham the reserve.

In the tractor pulling contest, Norman Huff of Bluford took first prize by driving his 1,050-pound tractor 225 feet, and nine inches.

Gene Kick of Ixonia, Wis., took first place in the 7,000-pound tractor class with a 270-foot 11-inch run and Ron Shafer of Texaco took the 5,200-pound class title with a run of 261 feet and 6 inches.

Plan to humanize state prisons begun

CHICAGO (AP)—Allyn R. Sielaff, director of the Department of Corrections, says he has begun a program to transform the state's prison system into one which emphasizes humane treatment and individual attention to the inmates.

The present system, Sielaff said Thursday, is a para-military, dictatorial one which holds little promise for releasing prisoners as valued citizens.

Among the initial steps, said Sielaff, are the appointment of a prison advocate, a restructuring of stateville Penitentiary, the appointment of a new superintendent of Joliet Penitentiary and an end to "inmate slavery," the practice of assigning inmates to do household work for prison employees.

Also, Sielaff said, "Clean the places up; get rid of the cockroaches, get rid of the dirt." "It didn't take the Babcock report for some of us to see that some of these places were really unsanitary," Sielaff said.

He referred to a report, officially released today, prepared by Dr. Kenneth B. Babcock indicating that most Illinois prison medical facilities are understaffed, "old, cramped and crowded."

Babcock said he found a shortage of doctors and nurses at nearly all the state's correctional institutions and that housekeeping and medical record-keeping was poor.

Sielaff said he is "very pleased with the Babcock report. It tells us where we're right and where we're wrong and it provides us with a comprehensive guide to follow in initiating all the improvements called for."

Clean-up of the prisons already is underway, Sielaff said. "Other deficiencies... will be taken care of just as soon as it is physically possible to do so. Funds will be sought from the General Assembly."

Clean-up of the prisons already is underway, Sielaff said. "Other deficiencies... will be taken care of just as soon as it is physically possible to do so. Funds will be sought from the General Assembly to improve existing medical care facilities."

Sielaff said one possible step toward better, less costly medical care would be pulling hospital insurance for the inmates, a practice which he said would be unique in the nation. His office is negotiating new with Blue Cross, Sielaff said.

Sielaff said the underlying philosophy of his administration is one in which there is humane care and greatly expanded training and educational opportunities for the inmate; "so we have input by the staff and by the inmates... where previously we had a para-military organization where the warden is dictator."

Sielaff announced that his prisoner advocate will be Nelson C. Miller Jr., a 33-year-old black correctional counselor who served sentences in two federal prisons.

Miller is a native of Alton and presently is assigned to the Peoria Work Release Center in Bartonville.

"Miller will, in effect, be my eyes and ears in the institutions," Sielaff said, "and he will report directly to me."

Appointed superintendent of the Joliet Penitentiary, the Old Joliet Prison, is Charles A. Felton, 29, assistant deputy commissioner of special services for the Georgia Department of Offender Rehabilitation.

Stateville Penitentiary, Sielaff indicated, is an impossible place.

Inmates there have been locked in their cells 24 hours a day "for weeks" because of a disturbance, he said.

Good penology, Sielaff said, "would unlock the place within hours" after a disturbance.

He said he hopes to reduce the population there from about 1,800 now to about 1,500 when each inmate has his own cell, to about 1,300 ultimately.

Church bells to toll for bridge suicides

Francisco (AP)—Church bells will toll 491 times here Friday in memory of those who have jumped to their deaths off the Golden Gate Bridge.

"A melody rising over the San Francisco Bay area should dramatize the seriousness of the suicide problem on the bridge," said Charlotte Ross, director of the Suicide Prevention Center in San Mateo.

Dozens of churches in San Francisco, San Mateo, Marin,

Alameda and Contra Costa counties will toll their bells at 10 a.m. for the 491 men and women who died in the 240-foot fall into San Francisco Bay, she said.

The bells will provide background for Golden Gate Bridge directors discussing a proposed $800,000 suicide barrier—slender upright railings—to keep people from jumping from the 6,451-foot-long suspended span.

The graceful cables and mist-shrouded towers of the bridge have attracted more known suicides than any other bridge in the United States since it opened in 1937, bridge officials say.

Electrical supplier plans transfer port near Metropolis

METROPOLIS (AP)—A major electrical supplier plans to build a $16 million, 900-acre coal transfer port on the Ohio River three miles from Metropolis.

A spokesman for the American Electric Power System, New York, said Thursday the facility will permit transfer from rail to river barges of low-sulfur coal mined in the West. Shipments will be made to Ohio Valley power plants, mainly in Ohio and Indiana.

Construction is at least six months away, the spokesman said.

Osark Lines tells of aid during strike

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Osark Air Lines announced Thursday that it received $6.5 million in aid from other air carriers during a 11-week mechanical strike earlier this year. Edward J. Crane, Osark president, told stockholders the aid, received through an airline mutual aid pact, "reduced Osark's net loss for the second quarter of this year to $100,251. In the second quarter of 1972, the company earned $1,071,000.

A net loss of $506,089 was recorded for the first six months of 1973 compared with a net profit of $1,063,886 for the same period last year, Crane said.

The 560-member Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association went on strike April 19 in a dispute over wages and working conditions. The walkout ended June 30 with acceptance of a contract that provided for a pay increase to $7 an hour by March 1.

Normal operations were resumed five days later. The mechanics had received $6.92 an hour under the old contract.

Aaron crunches Cubbies with No. 702

CHICAGO (AP)—Hank Aaron smashed a three-run homer, the 702nd of his career, and Frank Tepedine and Ralph Garr crashed two-run doubles in a wild nine-run eighth-inning explosion that carried the Atlanta Braves to a 10-2 victory over Chicago, saddling the staggering Cubs to their 11th straight defeat.

The homer, his 29th of the season, moved Aaron within 12 homeruns of Babe Ruth's all-time career record of 714. It came on a 2-2 pitch off Jack Aker, the second of three Cubs pitchers in the inning.

It was a monstrous shot, sailing well over 400 feet and completely clearing the 20-foot-high left field bleachers about 380 feet away from home plate. The homer was Aaron's first since July 3.

Bob Locker, 5-5, apparently en route to his 11th save of the season, had taken over for Milt Pappas in the seventh inning and owned a 2-0 lead.

But in the eighth, he walked Aaron and Dusty Baker with one out, then Tepedine batted for Marty Perez and ripped a two-out double off the left field wall, tying the game. Sonny Jackson then batted for Paul Casanova and singled to put the Braves ahead 3-2.

Dick Diets followed with a pinch-single to make it 4-2 and knock out Locker but Aker couldn't slow down the Atlanta assault. Garr doubled off the left field fence for two more runs, then Garr scored on Mike Lum's single. Darrell Evans, who had opened the inning with a ground out, walked and Aaron unloaded his three-run blast.

Baker followed with a single to knock out Aker. Ray Burris came on and was tagged for a single by Dave Johnson, then Tepedine struck out to end the uprising. Dietz' single, a grounder by Garr and Lum's single brought home the Braves' final run in the ninth inning.

The Cubs scored in the first when Dave Roselle led off with a double, reached third on an infield out and, after Billy Williams walked, slid home safely on the front end of a double steal.

A walk to Williams, Rice Carty's single and Ron Santo's double-play grounder gave Chicago a third-inning run.

Pappas still is three triumphs shy of 100 National League victories in his quest to become the second modern pitcher to win 100 games in both major leagues. Pappas left the American league with 110-74. Jim Bunning won 106 in the NL and 108 in the AL. Aaron's three-run blast in the eighth, clear over the left field stands, was his first since July 31. He singled in the first inning, flied out in the third, hit into a force play in the fifth and walked in the eighth.

Joe Niekro, who replaced Atlanta starter Roric Harrison in the seventh inning and escaped trouble in the frame despite Aaron's two-base bobbles of Roselle's fly, an error and a wild pitch, got the victory. Lum led Atlanta's 16-hit attack with four singles in six trips while Garr slammed a double and two singles in six at-bats.

Aaron didn't get the ball he slammed for his 702nd home run Thursday, but he did get a chance to autograph it.

Aaron said a boy-about 15 came to the Atlanta clubhouse with the ball he said was the one Hank hit over the left field bleachers at Wrigley Field, but only wanted the veteran's autograph on the ball he intended to keep.

"I would have liked to have had the ball but I don't blame the boy for keeping it," said Aaron who delivered a three-run homer his second time at bat in the nine-run Atlanta eighth inning as the Braves walloped the Chicago Cubs 10-2.

involved," said Aaron. When Hank recently hit his 700th homer in Atlanta, a youngster who returned that ball was rewarded with 700 silver dollars.

U.S. Basketball team victorious

MOSCOW (AP)—America's young, eager basketball team won its opening game impressively, but the host Soviet Union took four gold medals Thursday in the first full round of competition in the World University Games.

It was a disappointing day for the big and ambitious America squad. It was limited to a single silver medal, won by 6-foot Kathy Schmjdt of Long Beach Calif. State in the women's javelin throw.

The Soviet winners included shot putter Valery Woikin, women's javelin ace Svetlana Korloeva, fencer Basil Syankovich and the sparkling women's gymnastics team, led by little Olga Korbut.

The day's other gold medal went to Yugoslav Daniel Korica, who won a one-step victory in the 10,000-meter run.

Miss Korloeva won the women's javelin with a toss of 203 feet, 5 inches. Miss Schmidt's best was 197, 11½.

Valery Voikin, a sturdy Russian won the shot with a put of 64 feet, 2 inches, leading a 1-2-3 east European sweep. Poland's Leazek Gajdzinski won the silver and Alesander Karisnikov of Russia the bronze, although the latter's 62 feet, 4½ inches was equalled by that of American Jeff Stuart of Western Kentucky University.

The U.S. cage team of collegians led by Dave Thompson of North Carolina State and 6-foot-9 Marvin Barnes of Providence College, smothered Great Britain 123-74.

Blue pitches A's past Red Sox; Jackson hits two

BOSTON (AP)—Vida Blue hurled a four-hitter and Reggie Jackson drove in four runs with his 28th and 29th homers Thursday, leading the Oakland A's to a 6-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

For Blue, 13-7, who struck out eight Boston batters and walked three, it was his fourth straight complete game and his ninth complete game of the baseball season.

Jackson, the American League's home run leader, crashed a sole homer in the fifth inning, and then unloaded a three-run shot in the seventh.

Bonapartes to represent area in ASA state softball championships

Bonapartes will become the first 16-inch softball team ever to represent the Southern Illinois area when they compete at the American Softball Association (ASA) State Tournament this weekend at the University of Illinois.

Nine Illinois teams will compete for a five-foot trophy and the right to represent the state at the ASA National Tournament in St. Louis later this month.

Games will begin Friday at the U of I's Centennial Field, and will continue in a single elimination tournament through Sunday.

In order for Bonapartes to go to Champaign, they had to first become the All-University champions and then be accepted as the state's regional candidate.

Bob Hinkle, Bonapart's player-coach, is taking 16 men with him to Champaign. This is almost the identical team that captured the intramural title Aug.

8. The team has lost only three games in five years.

Explaining Bonaparte's perennial success, Hinkle says with a smirk, "It may sound funny, but a team that drinks together, stay together. And we've stayed together long enough to really want to win this one."

The rest of the tournament field will be made up of teams from Decatur, Mattoon (2), Aurora, Granite City, Champaign (2), and Normal, last year's champion.

SIU prof grabs four medals at long course swimming championships

Larry Good, associate professor of physical education at SIU, picked up four medals over the weekend at the Masters Long Course Swimming Championships held at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle Campus.

Good won silver medals for his second place finishes in the 1,500 meter freestyle and 200 meter backstroke events. Good's other two medals, both bronze, came in the 100 meter backstroke and the 200 meter freestyle races.

The meet was conducted on a 50 meter pool, twice the normal length, and was restricted to those age 25 or older. Many of the swimmers were former collegiate and Olympic stars as far back as the famous Buster Crabb, who himself competed this year.

"It was a lot of fun to swim against the guys I used to compete against," said Good who swam collegiately at the University of Indiana.

The meet hosted 517 participants making up more than 100 teams from nearly every state including Hawaii. Good was the only SIU representative.
