Estates' residents reject annexation

By Dave Ibat
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Residents of Crab Orchard Estates have rejected a bid for annexation to Carbondale, but whether they will continue to opt for incorporation as an independent village is up in the air, City Manager Carroll Fry announced Friday.

Incorporation pro or con will be decided by the residents within 30 to 60 days, according to Fry.

Crab Orchard Estates decided to push for incorporation earlier this summer to stop deterioration brought about by stray dogs, junk heaps and poorly maintained trailer parks, according to James Fly, member of the Crab Orchard Homeowners Assn.

"What we wanted to do was to clean up the area," Fly explained Friday. "It's a general mess all over."

Crab Orchard Estates branches off Illinois 13 less than a mile from the easternmost city limit and just beyond the Williamson County Line. The subdivision has a population of 461, and includes Epps VW, the Gardens restaurant, McBride's Truck Stop and Midwest Tractor Sales.

The City Council opposes the creation of a village so close to the city limits. The council has the power to block moves for incorporation by any subdivision within 1½ miles of Carbondale.

In July the council offered annexation in exchange for a new sewer system. "The only thing was, we couldn't afford the sewers," Fly said, adding that installation would cost roughly $1,000 a lot.

"I think the city's bent over backwards as far as trying to get us to become a part of Carbondale, but we didn't want to," Fly said.

The city should oppose incorporation because a new village would be a rival to Carbondale, prevent expansion of a tax and service base, be a threat to orderly growth and be difficult to annex in the future, according to a Task Force set up by the city to study the issue.

While the city should continue to exercise zoning and subdivision ordinances over Crab Orchard Estates, it should refuse to give fire service, police protection and code enforcement, the task force advised.

These services "are entitled to be provided only to city residents," the task force report states.

A new village would mean new police and fire departments, according to City Planning Director James Rayfield. "I don't see how they could finance those things," Rayfield said.

Tax revenues from Crab Orchard Estates businesses might be sufficient, Fly said.

Speaking for annexation, Rayfield said that better municipal services could be provided through one government rather than two. "We have too many governments in Illinois now," Rayfield added.

"Interests of the total public wouldn't be as well served by two municipalities as they could be by one," Rayfield said.

Rayfield agreed that because Crab Orchard Estates falls under both Carbondale and Williamson County jurisdiction, the subdivision is "partially" caught between two governments.

In addition, Crab Orchard Estates schoolchildren go to school in Carterville, Fly noted.

Things will stay as they are for the time being, according to Fly. The homeowner's association will continue to investigate the feasibility of incorporation, and will try to improve conditions by working with the Environmental Protection Agency and the Williamson County Commissioners, Fly said.

Bike decals may oust old plates

By Dave Ibat
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The city wants annual licensing and inspection of bicycles, and may settle for stick-on decals instead of renewed plates for returning students, City Manager Carroll Fry said Friday.

While the city will try to recover costs of bike registration, "we're not trying to make money out of license fees," Fry said. Fry called the University's profit-motive in licensing bicycles "faulty."

Funds for bike racks and bikeways in Carbondale will come out of general taxation, Fry said.

"The University looks at it as a means of control," Fry said. "We look at it as a means of control and prevention of theft and vandalism."

"Control" translates into safety inspections for such bike equipment as bells or horns, working brakes and lights and reflectors at night, Fry said. SIU pays insufficient attention to safety when registering bicycles, Fry claimed.

Once plates are issued, they will be effective indefinitely, Fry explained. But the city may require that bicyclists re-register annually for license plate decals, Fry said.

Saving plates and purchasing decals is a practice followed in licensing automobiles in other states, Fry noted.

The city would retain mandatory re-registration. "You have to have some continuity of licensing," Fry said.

Originally the city and SIU worked out identical bicycle regulations, Fry said. However, "the University changed its mind," Fry added.

The City Council will discuss such changes to the bicycle ordinance at its weekly meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the University-City cafeteria. Fry was uncertain whether the city will go along with SIU bicycle regulations. Because SIU rules do not now require re-registration they conflict with city ordinances.

Local merchants slow in joining SIU-community credit union

The Carbondale University-Community Credit Union, currently soliciting members, is having difficulty persuading Carbondale merchants to open savings accounts, according to John Hardt, director of the Credit Union.

Hardt, whose office is located on the third floor of the Student Center, said that although 65 non-merchant people have joined, only three of twenty merchants asked have agreed to open accounts.

Hardt said he and assistants visited downtown stores asking merchants to join the credit union.

Hardt said he did not know why merchants were reluctant to join since it could benefit them by giving businesses a "chance to serve the community," and it also would be a subtle form of advertising.

He said he knew that one bookstore manager might not be willing to become a member of the credit union because of credit problems the manager had had with students.

When checked Thursday, only two downtown merchants said they were planning to join the union, two said 'no' and five said they didn't know.

The manager of Bobby's Sandwich Shop said, "We're going to join. Why not? I think it's a good thing."

I have to call Hardt. I'm waiting to join. I don't know why other merchants don't want to join."

Robert Kueker, manager of Phoenix cycle Shop, said he and his partner, Steve Loete, are planning to join. He added, "We just haven't had the time to sign the cards, we're all for it. That's for sure."

Eleonore Steinbach, who works for her son, Charles, at Leslie's Shoes, said, "We're not going to join. I don't know why." Her son was not available for comment.

The manager of 710 Bookstore, who is undecided about the union said, "I am waiting to see how it works out."

Ruth Altekruze, manager of Caru's said, "I really don't have any strong feelings for or against it. I am not aware of what they do."

The manager of Golde's Store for Men commented, "We're not going to join. There are certain reasons that I can't give you at the moment."

One of the partners at Hewitt's Drug Store said "I doubt if I'll join it. I have no reasons, though. A couple of fellows came in to talk to me. I didn't get to reading the stuff they left."

The manager of Ben Franklin's said "I haven't talked that much about it to anyone." He added that he has been "too busy" to read the brochure left by Hardt's office. "Hardt never came back. I don't know the advantages of joining," he said.

One of the partners of Atwood's Drugs also said he didn't know whether he was going to join. He added that he has been on vacation, and has not had time to "talk it over" with his partner.

The credit union is affiliated with the National Credit Union Administration and the Illinois Credit Union Association, and is a non-profit organization.

Coed ambulance driver first for SIU

By Pam Black
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

If people aren't too badly injured when the ambulance from the SIU Health Service arrives, they may be surprised to see a female ambulance attendant.

The attendant, who began last June is Diana Lea Wiley, a junior in pre-medicine.

Wiley is the first woman ambulance attendant to be hired at SIU.

Wiley, is currently under the Emergency Medical Technicians Ambulance Driver (EMTA) program. Pre-med students can receive on-the-job training and an EMTA title from the program.

Students must first enroll in Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) class before they can begin on-the-job training. EMT, taught by staff members of Doctors Memorial Hospital, is funded by a grant to John A. Logan Junior College.

The trim 5-foot-2 Wiley said she has not had any problems with her small size while working as an attendant. "There is always someone around to help," she said.

"I couldn't ask for a better staff," she said. The 21-year-old who had expected a lot of resentment from the all male staff said they were very receptive, cooperative and helpful.

Rick Lustig, an ambulance attendant said, it is good to have a woman attendant especially during an emergency when Diana can relate with other women.

"I think all of the guys are satisfied with Diana's work," he said. The only drawback with a woman in the job could be the manual labor involved, but Diana has been able to lift the patients into the ambulance all right, said Lustig.

Wiley, who worked in a hospital and a nursing home as a nurses' aide had never really considered being an ambulance attendant until she heard a position was open.

"A lot of people ask me why I wanted to be an ambulance driver. I wanted the experience and I wanted to get into first aid medicine," she said.

"Everyone thinks I'm pushing my equal rights," she said. "I think everyone should be able to do what they want to do, whether they are male or female."

"Ever since I was a little kid, when someone was hurt, I wanted to know how to help them. The opportunity came, so I took it," she said.

The only problem that Wiley has encountered on the job as a woman is static from bystanders. "I know it was because I was a woman functioning in a job a man usually has," she said. Wiley said she expects a lot more static with exposure to the job.

"When you tell someone you're an ambulance driver, they think that's all you do," said the petite blonde.

One of the first duties of an attendant on an ambulance "run" is to radio in to the hospital to give the arrival time at the scene and to receive further instructions. The attendant must also explain the type of accident so the emergency room will be prepared when the ambulance arrives, she explained.

"Some people think that speed is the most important thing, but it's not," she said. The most important things is to see that the patient is stabilized by checking his pulse-rate, breathing, and checking for broken bones or extensive bleeding, she said.

Calls criticism 'empty rhetoric'

Simon rebuts Oshel's attacks

By Gary Delsohn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Paul Simon, Democratic candidate for the U.S. House of Representatives from the 24th district, said the criticisms of him by his Republican opponent, Val Oshel, are "empty political rhetoric."

Oshel, in a speech made Tuesday night at the SIU Student Center, criticized Simon for supporting George McGovern in the 1972 presidential election. McGovern, Oshel said, supported "unconditional amnesty, abortion and smoking pot."

When reached for reaction to Oshel's remarks, Simon said, "He distorted the McGovern position, which was the old Nixon trick." Simon said McGovern was not his choice prior to the Democratic National Convention, but he was "proud to support and work for George McGovern after he won the nomination."

Simon said up to this point, Oshel has conducted a "negative campaign similar to the one he ran in 1968 against Kenneth Gray." In that campaign, Simon claimed, "Gray was aiding dope pushers," said Simon. He condemned this campaign style and said, "The people of Southern Illinois want a builder, not a destroyer."

Oshel also said his campaign is not supported by "bossism," and he only has funds matching a third of Simon's budget. Republicans in Southern Illinois, he added, are going to "tell the Chicago machine that Southern Illinois is not for sale."

Simon denied these statements and said, "If there is any connection, I'd sure like to know it." He also said he knows "Oshel is spending more on billboards than us and more on radio."

Simon said Oshel has completely avoided the issues before the voters, such as inflation, the railroad problem of Southern Illinois and the coal situation.

Simon also said that each year he has been in public office he has publicly disclosed his income, and supports laws making such disclosures mandatory.

Simon, said Oshel, has always kept his income private and is against such disclosure laws.

Daley aide gets mistrial

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge declared a mistrial Friday in proceedings against Earl Bush, Mayor Richard J. Daley's former press aide. The jury earlier in the day acquitted Bush on charges of extortion.

Judge Philip W. Tone granted the mistrial motion after the jury foreman told him the jury had reached an impasse on the part of the indictment charging Bush with mail fraud. The jury deliberated 19½ hours.

The partial verdict found Bush innocent on nine counts that charged him with extorting $36,000 from his close friend Daniel D. Howard.

Howard received more than $2.1 million work from the city involving psychological consulting and testing after Bush introduced him to Mayor Daley.

But the jury could not reach a decision on the remaining 11 counts of mail fraud in connection with his secret interest in Dell Advertising Inc. The company owned exclusive advertising rights at O'Hare International Airport.

After the partial verdict was rendered, Tone instructed the jury to continue deliberations, adding, "The verdict must be unanimous. Do not surrender your honest convictions solely because of the opinions of your fellow jurors, or simply to obtain a verdict."

When Tone declared the mistrial, a government lawyer noted that "the government is very conscious about the fact that this is a holiday weekend."

Court sources had said it was feared the jury would force a decision because of the Labor Day holiday.

County health bureau gets new clout

By Dave Wiecek
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

In an effort to give local people more control of their health departments, the Illinois State Department of Health has given the Jackson County Health Department new authority, according to John Amadio, County Health Department administrator.

Amadio said the County Health Department now has complete control of health and sanitary inspections of all business establishments in the county.

"At the July 25 meeting, the Board of Health of Jackson County decided that stricter enforcement of health and sanitary codes was necessary," said Amadio.

He explained, "The state had the authority over all food outlets. However, under the Jackson County Food Service Ordinance, which was drafted in the early 50's, the county has authority only over bars and restaurants."

Amadio added, "If the county health department wanted to revoke the license of a bakery or a grocery store owner, the county would have to go through the state because the county ordinance does not cover this area."

Amadio said anytime a citizen has a complaint about sanitary or health conditions in a business establishment, he can contact the County Health Department at 342 North Street, Murphysboro, 684-3143.

"We don't encourage complaints," said Amadio, "but we will accept any legitimate complaint that is signed. We can't accept anonymous complaints."

Should an inspector rule that business is not meeting the health and sanitary codes he can tell the owner to close down, said Amadio.

He said if the owner appeals the ruling and takes it to court, the complaint will be void if not signed.

According to Amadio, before Jackson County assumed health inspection duties, there were numerous other counties in Southern Illinois having their inspections done by the state.

"Most of the counties in Northern Illinois have a higher tax base so they can afford their own inspections," said Amadio. "Essentially, our problem was a lack of funds, plus the fact the state preferred to do its own work."

In the past, Jackson County was receiving about 15 complaints a year from citizens who were concerned about the health and sanitary conditions of food outlets, said Amadio.

"When the state was working in the county these complaints were referred to the state health inspectors," said Amadio.

He said complaints have now risen to about 50 a year and to cope with this situation, Jackson County has hired six state-trained inspectors.

"Yearly inspections will be made of all establishments in the county. If there is a special problem with an establishment it could be visited up to 10 or 15 times," said Amadio.

By special problems, Amadio said he meant cases where a business has been warned before about unhealthy or unsanitary conditions.

He added that over 1100 complaints about sanitary conditions in restaurants were handled by the health department last year. He said the new inspectors will begin work this month sometime.

The six inspectors, enforcement of rulings and the extra paper work will cost the Jackson County Health Department an estimated $100,000 according to Amadio. He said the department's total budget is approximately $315,000.

Ordinance may change addresses

The city council will discuss Tuesday an ordinance that may bring about every postman's nightmare.

The council will study a proposal to create a more uniform street system by renumbering throughout Carbondale, according to James Rayfield, city planning director. The council's informal meeting will begin at 7 p.m. in the University City cafeteria.

"We're changing (street numbers) we feel need to be changed to make some sense out of the system," Rayfield said. He added that almost every part of the city, and whole blocks in some areas, will be affected.

Street names may also be changed. According to the proposed system, South Snider would become South Lake Heights; Old 13 West, Murphysboro Road; West Dale, West Freeman; Hunter, North Hunter Woods; and South Cherry, South Moe.

East-west and north-south baselines would be, respectively, West Old Main to Main Street, Main Street to South Lewis, and South Lewis to East Old 13; and the entire length of Illinois Avenue.

The council will also meet the new police chief, George Kennedy.

Apparent discrepancies between SIU and city bike regulations, and why Crab Orchard Estates rejected a plan for annexation to Carbondale will be studied.

Publish or perish

BOSTON (AP) — A good college lecturer had better publish his thoughts if he hopes to get ahead in the academic world, a sociologist finds.

William C. Yoels, a Boston University sociologist, took a statistical look at the career of fellow sociology professors and their promotions.

He found that less than 4 per cent of the faculty in the nation's top 20 college departments of sociology got promoted without having published books and articles to buttress their teaching reputations.

Good, bad news for consumer

Economic developments mixed

(AP) — Inflation-weary Americans got a little good news from the government this week, but the average consumer was still a long way from winning the battle of the budget.

On the bright side, the Commerce Department said its indicator of future economic trends showed "over-all industrial strength," and Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz predicted that the nation will have plenty of beef in the coming year, despite crop losses in the Midwest.

The bad news came from farmers who said recent rains wouldn't really help the corn harvest.

Among the developments that affected consumers during the past week were: Butz said he doubted food prices would rise as much as 10 per cent in 1975 — below the 15 per cent boost predicted for this year. But other economists declined to make predictions and one Agriculture Department researcher said: "Less grain will mean higher prices." Farmers and state officials said recent rains in the Midwest may help the soybean and winter wheat crops, but would not affect the already-stricken corn harvest.

Petroleum prices: The price consumers pay for petroleum products may have to be pushed up as part of Project Independence, Jack Bennett, undersecretary for monetary funds, said. He said the government might have to act on prices to cut demand and encourage development of alternative energy sources.

Shortages: A congressional survey of major manufacturers showed shortages of everything from aluminum to ink. Five hundred industries were questioned; 258 responded. Of the 258, all but 13 said they were short of at least one commodity.

Sugar: Manager Noel Perloff of the Country Club Restaurant in Philadelphia said he no longer leaves sugar on the table. Customers were loading up their pockets with the envelopes of sugar, Perloff said. "We decided to remove it when the cost of sugar went up so high, so fast," he said. Now the waitress doesn't bring the sugar until coffee or tea is ordered. Meanwhile, Amstar Corp., the nation's largest sugar refiner, boosted prices to food processors by $2.25 per 100 pounds in the second such increase in a week. The higher costs could lead to higher prices for soft drinks, ice cream, candy and other foodstuffs with a high sugar content.

Dangerous Light: The chief judge of the U.S. District Court in Washington is asking the news media to help warn the public about a household trouble light he calls "an extraordinary hazard." The light, made by A.K. Electric Corp. of New York, consists of a long plastic cord attached to a light bulb protected by a metal cage. The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission says the light's soft plastic handle poses a hazard by enabling the user's hand to touch the metal electrical receptacles. This could cause a fatal shock, it says.

Funerals: Roy Thompson, secretary of the Connecticut Board of Examiners and Funeral Directors, said funeral costs have risen sharply. "What you could get five years ago for $1,000 is now up to $1,300," he said, blaming the increase on higher wages and other costs.

"After my terrible accident, I was sick and disenchanted. Life held no meaning for me. Then I got my clean, shiny new

Now I am WHOLE again."

It happened in Carbondale

Carbondale offered diverse services

By Marion W. Mitchell
Fourteenth in a Series

There was ample opportunity for work in turn-of-the-century Carbondale. The Illinois Central Railroad ran 30 passenger trains and 50 freight trains a day through Carbondale, and employed some 350 men to keep its local offices and services in operation. Also, the Ayer Lord Tie Preserving Company (now the Koppers Company) employed over 200 men in its railroad tie factory.

Keeping informed in Carbondale was no problem. The community and the surrounding area supported two newspapers, The Free Press (a predecessor of today's Southern Illinoisan) and the Southern Illinois Herald. Two telephone companies also vied for patrons in the community. The Carbondale Telephone Company had over 300 telephones in the city and the Farmer's Telephone Company had about 250 telephones in rural Jackson County.

The old Electric Light Company which started out on Graham Street by Mr. Graham had, by 1905, become the Carbondale Water, Light & Power Company. It now boasted 50 street lights located around the town. Too, its water system had improved to the point where 195,000 gallons of water were available at any given time.

Business was thriving. The Carbondale Mill & Elevator Company produced up to 150 barrels of flour per day from the $20,000 worth of wheat purchased each year. The Carbondale Steam Bakery at 206 North East (Washington) Street transformed a good portion of this into a daily capacity of 5000 loaves of bread.

The Carbondale Crystal Water Works bottled up to 2,500 bottles of water per day from the artesian wells, and, just to cool off all that water, the Fasig Perrine Ice Company could manufacture nearly 15 tons of ice each 24 hours.

If a new house or other building was in order, the Carbondale Clay Manufacturing Company could produce 15,000 bricks each day or, if bricks were not used, one could contract for fine building blocks which the Carbondale Pressed Stone Works could produce up to 400 daily.

After Carbondale's businessmen became prosperous enough, they could deposit their profits in one of the three banks then operating in town. They were: The Carbondale National Bank at 100 North West (Illinois) Street—where it today does business under the same name, The First National Bank at 101 North East (Washington) Street—present site of the Bank of Carbondale, and the Carbondale Trust and Savings Bank at 110 North West Street—where it still operates as Carbondale Loan and Improvement Association.

If the religious needs of an individual could not be met in Carbondale it was because he was something other than Methodist, Baptist, Christian, Presbyterian or Catholic. These denominations were represented by at least one and sometimes two or more churches. Several of the churches in present day Carbondale were built around the turn of the century and many occupy the same site they did at that time. Examples which come immediately to mind are the Christian Church on South University Avenue built in 1902 and the Grace Methodist Church on South Marion Street built in 1904. The Rockhill Baptist Church on the corner of Monroe and Marion Streets has always occupied that site and St. Francis Catholic Church, although in a new building, is on the same site occupied by the first church built there in 1900.

The public could purchase all its needs right in Carbondale in 1905. Real Estate? See R. E. Renfro—Phone 24—or Hamilton & Cherry—Phone 35. Shoes? The Leader was the place to go, or A. S. Johnson at 100 West North (Jackson) Street could fit you for $3.50 to $5.00 a pair. Can't see as good as you used to? L. J. Weiler was a graduate optician—free examination and 30 days trial.

If you needed hardware, a stove, furniture, paint, fancy china, a buggy, or a fine casket, Stoelzle & Compton at the corner of North West Street and West North Street was the place to go—Phone 40.

Your horse could be provided with the most comfortable and enduring harness at C. J. Bates Harness Shop at 204 North West Street.

At E. K. Porter's Opera House and Drug Store in the First National Bank Building, you could purchase wallpaper, paint, and have your prescriptions filled.

Bercher & Schwartz at 104 East North Street could dress you in Kuppenheimer's finest suits for $15.00 to $40.00. W. G. Spiller at 601 South Wall—Phone 215—guaranteed he would deliver the best Cartersville coal and the finest Mound City kindling wood to your home more cheaply than anyone else in town.

A brief note concerning how words change their meanings: The Edwards House—"A Hustler's Home"—was a reputable hotel.

The list goes on: dress goods, millinery, furs, shoes, drugs, stoves, groceries, animal feed and medicine, horses and rigs for rent, lawn mowers—hand, horse and motor (!) powered, buggies and surries, bricks, coal, straight razors, gravestones, and what-have-you were available. Services of all sorts were also available: doctors, dentists, lawyers, photographers, tonsorialists and even an osteopathic physician—a woman doctor at that!

There was even a fire department. When the fire whistle blew, everyone listened to see where the fire was. There would be three ascending and descending tones which would be followed by one, two, three, or four short, lower-toned blasts to indicate in which ward—1, 2, or 3 or 4—the fire was located. Then, all volunteer firemen and interested parties could scurry to that part of town to participate in or watch the action.

Taken as a whole, Carbondale in the early 1900's looked a good deal like a blueprint for "the good old days".

The housing crisis comes home to haunt

Within the last 20 years, the U.S. has been faced with a growing housing crisis.

It is not so much the number of houses that are the underlying problem, but rather, the cost of adequate housing. There are thousands of units available in every metropolitan city and suburb, but the question remains—are they suitable for living?

The grand, old American dream of owning your own little home is slowly vanishing because that luxury may soon be limited to a small segment of society.

According to former secretary of housing, George

Romney, four-fifths of U.S. households can no longer afford single family units.

The median sales price of a new single family home jumped 6.5 percent from the first quarter of 1971 to the first quarter of 1972. The average price of an existing home jumped 7.5 percent from April, 1971 to April, 1972. The National Association of Home Builders estimates that for each $100 increase in the cost of housing, 14,000 families are priced out of the market.

Aside from the economic side of the coin, add the problems of deteriorating units, landlords who abandon their buildings, the racial integration problems and the ever growing population, and you have a dilemma that better be solved soon.

At one time, government subsidized housing was thought to be the answer, and it was, if you liked to live in rat-infested quarters, not to mention the areas where the subsidized housing was built was definitely not fit for rearing children. So, now we find the middle and lower classes faced with the same problem. What was once limited to the poor has found its niche within the lives of most Americans.

Forest under land use plan

Shawnee National Forest Supervisor, Charles J. Hendricks, said today a major effort in Land Use Planning will occur on the Shawnee National Forest.

The Land Use Plan is a very significant step in the Forest Service's effort to allocate the natural resources of the forest to meet rising public demand.

The planning will combine the professional expertise of Forest Service planners with informed public input to objectively resolve land use conflicts occurring or in the forest. The people of Illinois will be asked to play an active role in the decision making process.

Two Forest Service planners, Lowell Patterson and Arthur Zdzielowski will be principally responsible for the writing of the plan for the Shawnee National Forest. Patterson, a native of Indiana, a Purdue University graduate and a former district ranger at Laona, Wisconsin will head the project.

Zdzielowski, a Michigan State University graduate and a three year resident of Harrisburg will work with Patterson.

The Land Use Planning effort will be a two part process. The first phase involves developing "A Guide for Managing the National Forests in the Midland Planning Area." In this phase we will be working with the Hoosier National Forest and residents of Illinois and Indiana and adjoining states. The guide will highlight the most significant issues affecting management of the National Forests in Illinois and Indiana.

For a serious purpose

NEW YORK (AP)—The comic book has joined the more serious text books of education to help developing readers.

"The Electric Company," television's contribution to easing education's reading crisis, has published "Spidey Super Stories," a new four-color comic starring the super-hero "Spider-Man" as an education device.

While not the first time the comics have been used as an educational tool, Spider-Man's adventures for the Electric Company are believed to be the first in which educational researchers have applied their knowledge of the way in which young children—particularly beginning readers—approach the printed comic book page.

Nature programs open at Giant City

Weekend interpretive programs will be offered to the general public at Giant City State Park. Saturday's activities include: 10 a.m.—Interpreted Hike on the Giant City Nature Trail (meet at Trail Entrance sign). 2 p.m.—Bird Banding Demonstration (meet at Visitor Center). 7 p.m.—Live Snake Program followed by a slide program, "Snakes of Illinois, the U.S., and the World." (meet at Visitor Center Amphitheater).

Sunday's activities include: 10 a.m.—Interpreted Hike on the Post Oak Trail (meet at Visitor Center).

2 p.m.—Candlemaking over an open fire (meet at Visitor Center). Monday's activities include: 10 a.m.—Interpreted Hike on the Post Oak Trail (meet at Visitor Center). 11 a.m.—Bird Banding Demonstration (meet at Visitor Center). 2 p.m.—Candlemaking over an open fire (meet at Visitor Center).

All programs are free. In case of rain, the activity will be canceled. For further information stop at the Giant City State Park Visitor Center or call 549-6151. The center is open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. seven days a week.

SIU's new phone equipment pioneers statewide network

SIU became the pioneer switching center for a projected statewide telecommunications network for state agencies Aug. 20, with the installation of additional telephone equipment and the initiation of a new dialing system for toll calls.

The changeover, a joint effort between the State of Illinois, General Telephone Co. and SIU, will not only provide improved telephone service for the University at lower cost but will open its long-distance facilities to other state agencies in Southern Illinois, according to Carlton F. Rasche, auxiliary and service enterprises director.

University officials and representatives of General Telephone Co. observed the occasion with a luncheon at the Student Center, although the actual switchover did not occur until 5:30 p.m.

L.F. Dooling, Illinois State Division of Telecommunications manager, hailed the changeover as "a necessary first step in the development of a fully automated capability in the Southern Illinois area."

"The fiscal constraint imposed on all public institutions dictates that positive steps be taken to insure that those fiscal limitations do not impair the ability to meet essential communications requirements," he said. "It is to the University's credit that it chose to move ahead aggressively rather than wait until circumstances foisted the decisions upon it."

Six additional trunk lines to Springfield have been installed at the University's central switchboard facility in the Student Center, Rasche said.

Under the new system, all toll calls will go through the switchboard, and each caller must furnish the operator with uniform information, including his own name, providing an "audit trail" of all such calls, thus giving departments a new tool to verify their phone bills, he said.

The changeover does not affect on-campus calls; inter-campus calls to the Edwardsville or Southern Acres campuses; calls to Carbondale, De Soto or Murphysboro; or the special lines to neighboring towns of Carterville, Herrin, Hurst, Johnston City, Marion, Ordill or Royaltown.

The new system has been under development for more than a year, Rasche said. At each stage General Telephone has completed its installations of components ahead of schedule, he added.

"The new toll procedure is a step in the direction of our long-range planning to install electronic equipment in the telephone company's downtown facility to handle our calling needs," he said. "This would give us 24-hour service and more effective service and maintenance. Although plans are still tentative, depending on costs, target date for such a move is August, 1978."

Following the luncheon, the University and telephone representatives inspected the new facilities. Representing the University were Rasche; Vice-President for Administration Dale A. Knight; Gene Peebles, business operations manager; Clarence G. Dougherty, director, Student Center; Melvin Brewer, assistant director of Auxiliary and Service Enterprises; and Gordon Hankla, supervisor auxiliary services supervisor.

General Telephone Co. personnel were Robert Reel, division manager; Marion; Jim Whiting, division sales superintendent; Jim Hargrave, senior communications consultant; Southern division; Brooks High, communications consultant for SIU installations; and Virgil Kemp, Carbondale district service manager.

Inmates given degrees

Twelve inmates of Marion Federal Penitentiary graduated Thursday night in a special ceremony attended by about 80 inmates, guests, prison officials, members of the press and representatives of SIU, John A. Logan College in Carterville and Franconia College in Franconia, N.H.

Victor L. Taylor received a master's degree in psychology from SIU. He completed his bachelor's degree in 21 months, graduating in 1972 magna cum laude.

"The degree is no less demanding and meaningful than degrees earned on campus," Keith Leasure, SIU vice-president of academic affairs, said. "This is indeed a landmark."

In addition to his M.A. degree, Taylor received a certificate of parole from Oklahoma, presented to him during the ceremony by Bob and Dixie Jordan, as representatives of Oklahoma Gov. David Hall. The parole was a surprise to Taylor who said "this is more than a dream come true."

Taylor said his main plan for the future, once he is released, is to get his Ph.D. degree. Then he plans to write articles and books, both popular and technical in nature. Jordan, Taylor's lawyer, said Taylor will be eligible for parole in 1976.

Allan Berube and Victor M. Daniels received bachelors' degrees from SIU. Billy Clark and Walter Mott, no longer at Marion, received in absentia bachelors' degrees from SIU.

Joe Denson, Peter Donohue, William Edinger, Michael Cassidy, Normal Williams and Patrick Patterson received associate degrees from John A. Logan College in Carterville. Joseph Brown was awarded a bachelor's degree from Franconia College in New Hampshire.

"SIU, like other institutions of higher learning, has felt a financial pinch in recent times," Leasure said. "One measure of the importance attached to this program is that we did not cut from it. Our work here is an important part of our service to Southern Illinois and to the country."

Others representing SIU were Thomas Mitchell, dean of the graduate school and Stanley Smith, dean of the college of human resources.

SIU has been a pioneer in providing educational opportunities for inmates. The first classes from SIU to area prisons began in 1956. In 1961 the SIU Board of Trustees approved a partial tuition waiver for any incarcerated person taking University courses, charging them only 25 per cent of the regular cost. In 1967 Marion and Menard Penitentiaries were established as residency centers, making credit earned there equal to credit earned on campus.

Candidates lively

By Gary Delsohn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The two candidates seeking the office of Jackson County Coroner said they plan to "get out" and meet as many people as possible before the Nov. 5 election.

Don F. Ragsdale, the Republican incumbent, was appointed county coroner after the Jan. 22 death of Harry Flynn. Flynn had started his third term in office.

Louis Russell, a Murphysboro barber, is the Democratic opponent. Russell said he has nine years experience as deputy coroner. Both candidates won nominations from their respective parties in a special Aug. 6 primary held because of Flynn's death.

Russell said he is conducting a "door to door" campaign trying "to get out and meet as many people as I can and still have enough time to earn a living."

Ragsdale said he is conducting the same type of campaign as his opponent. Ragsdale has served as county coroner since Jan. 22. He added that the Nov. election winner will serve for two years.

Flynn's term was to end in 76. At that time there will be an election to fill the post for a full, four year term," Ragsdale explained.

Festivities designed to promote the American quarter horse will begin at 9 a.m. and run until sunset at the B&S Western Arena on Boskydell road. Two hundred horses and up to 2,000 persons are expected to attend, according to Mike Travelstead, show manager.

The Southern Illinois Quarter Horse Assn. will sponsor the event. Admission is free and open to the public.

The quarter horse is "the most versatile breed in the world," Travelstead said. "We want more people to utilize them."

Breeders initially developed the quarter horse as a rugged ranch horse. The horse has traditionally been considered mainly a cowboy's mount, Travelstead said.

Forest officials

meet to talk about highway

During the past year, the Shawnee National Forest official held two public meetings and received public comments about various alternatives regarding a proposed George Rogers Clark Scenic Highway. The alternatives reviewed and talked about by the public are:

To maintain status quo.

Develop a new limited access highway traversing high ridges and vista points.

Combination road and trail.

Scenic trail only.

A scenic route using existing county, state and forest service roads.

Forest Supervisor Charles J. Hendricks announced recently that a Forest Service review indicates the most acceptable alternative is a scenic route over existing roads. The Environmental Policy Act of 1969, need for energy conservation and the current national economic situation were factors influencing the decision.

Hendricks said this alternative is in harmony with a Scenic Highway Plan recently developed by the Illinois Department of Transportation and submitted to Washington, D.C. for further review and consideration. The Forest Service will work with the Illinois Department of Transportation in exploring this alternative.

"These animals are very athletic," according to Travelstead, vice president of the University Bank in Carbondale. "They can jump 20 to 30 feet sideways."

Classes offered

There'll be something for everybody at the Carbondale Park District this fall—aspiring belly dancers, rock climbers and photographers not excluded.

"We hope to be able to continue to increase our programs and facilities to provide better recreational service to the community," according to Tom Langdon, park district president.

Persons interested in yoga, furniture refinishing, competitive sports and even candlemaking must register in advance at the Park District Office, 206 W. Elm, 8 a.m. through noon and 1 p.m. through 5 p.m. Monday through Friday (Tel.: 457-8370).

Playboy picks Seaman as player to watch

In the September issue of Playboy, the annual Pigskin Preview named SIU's Ken Seaman as one of the top players in the Midwest. Seaman, a kicking specialist from Hazelwood, Mo., ranked eleventh nationally last year in kick-scoring with 61 points.

Playboy previewed the 1974 Salukis saying, "As Southern Illinois enters major college ranks, new coach Doug Weaver hopes to seal a sieve-like defense. Quarterback Fred McAllej, previously just a passer, has adapted well to running the new option attack installed during spring practice."

Playboy picked the Salukis to finish the year with a 6-5 record.

Michigan and Ohio State are co-favorites for the Big Ten crown with identical 10-1 records, according to the Pigskin Preview.

Each team has a chink in its armor: the Buckeye second stringers are only about as good as the first-stringers on the other Big Ten teams. Thus, should Ohio suffer many injuries they'll defeat their opponents by only a touchdown or two. Michigan will need luck to compete once again with Ohio State for the Big Ten crown. Despite a strong running attack and a solid defense, the staples that have won them four Conference titles in five years, the tackle positions on both lines are weak.

An 8-3 record is predicted for third-placed Wisconsin, whose reinforced defense and talent-laden offensive backfield bring an optimistic glow to Madison. But the schedule is a nightmare: Wisconsin's first six games are against Purdue, Nebraska, Colorado, Missouri, Ohio State and Michigan.

According to Anson Mount, who writes Playboy's annual Pigskin Preview, Oklahoma will be the Big Eight champion with an 11-0 record. Although there have been no strong replacements for seven graduates from the Sooners' outstanding defensive team, the offense will be "terrifying." Steve Davis, notes Mount, passes with greater confidence; the receivers are outstanding; the line is excellent; the runners are mercurial. Barry Switzer has built a team that has everything necessary to capture this year's national championship and he is Playboy's Coach of the Year.

Mount again picks Notre Dame as the top individual team in the country, saying the national champions look even stronger this year. Only four offensive and three defensive starters were graduated and their replacements are more than adequate. The Irish are also loaded with All-America candidates this season, the best of the lot being quarterback Tom Clements and linebacker Greg Collins. Notre Dame's only real liability, thinks Mount, is as always a preposterously easy schedule: except for games with Purdue and Miami (Florida), the season's schedule will consist of a series of warm-up exercises in preparation for the finale with Southern California.

The following Midwestern players were also named to the Playboy All-America team: offensive lineman Marvin Crenshaw and Center Rik Bonness of Nebraska, defensive back Dave Brown of Michigan, running back Joe Washington and linebacker Rod Shoate of Oklahoma.

Other teams picked to win their Conference titles are: Texas—Southwest; Arizona—Western; Southern California—Pacific East; San Diego State—Pacific Coast; Alabama—Southeastern; Maryland—Atlantic Coast; Kent State—Mid-American; and Dartmouth, Brown, Yale and Pen-

Cards cut 10

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Rookie free agent Greg Johnson of Wisconsin and 15th-round draft selection Vincent Anzell of Arkansas State were among 10 players cut Thursday by the St. Louis Cardinals, who reduced their National Football League roster to 64.

Also cut by the Cardinals, who are preparing for a Saturday night preseason game at Busch Stadium against the Minnesota Vikings, were guards Chris Miller of San Diego State and Ron Clark of Illinois State, both free agents.

Others released were tight ends Leroy Sledge, Mike Detling and Gary Fairchild, wide receivers Keith Denson and Curtis Biggers and kicker Pat Leahy.

The Cards said Greg Hartle, a 10th-round draft choice from Newberry, S.C., College, will start tonight in place of veteran Mark Arneson, a middle linebacker who suffered a broken finger Wednesday during practice.

Powder puff play begins Tuesday

Tuesday marks the beginning of the women's intramural Fall activities.

The Bowling Club will meet at 7 p.m., University Lanes. Beginning dance starts at 5:30 p.m., Furr Auditorium, and Intermediate dance will follow at the same location at 7 p.m. The Gymnastics Club is slated for 7 p.m., Women's Gym 207, while the Synchronized Swimming Club will get under water at 5:45 p.m., Pulliam Hall pool.

Women are encouraged to sign up now for flag football, volleyball, tennis and bowling. Roster sheets may be picked up and returned to Room 205A of the Women's Gym.

The Table Tennis Club will begin Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Student Center.

Matchmaker is set

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—The $100,000 Matchmaker Stakes will be run at the Atlantic City course on Monday, Oct. 14. The winning distaff thoroughbred will earn service to Graustark, Mrzibeau, Nijinsky II or What A Pleasure.

Stakes winners among the nominees for the Columbus Day race include Chris Evert, Desert Vixen, La Prevoyante and Special Team.

sylvania all tying for the Ivy League championship.

Playboy's picks for the nation's top twenty teams are, in order, Oklahoma, Notre Dame, Southern California, Alabama, Houston, Nebraska, Louisiana State, Ohio State, Michigan, Texas, Georgia, Penn State, Auburn, UCLA, Maryland, South Carolina, Texas A & M, Pittsburgh, Wisconsin and Tulane.

UNWANTED HAIR REMOVED

'Would've scratched' Hambo winner

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

DU QUOIN—Bill Houghton would have scratched the horse he was to guide in Friday's 49th annual Hambletonian Stakes trotting classic if it had been his option.

That would have made it 25 years and 16 tries without a Hambo win for the veteran driver.

Instead, Friday afternoon, Houghton was standing in the Hambletonian Victory Circle for the first time in his life, and his horse, Christopher T., had made owner John L. Thro of Mankato, Minn., $80,075 richer.

"I really didn't think we had much chance," Houghton said twice as he accepted the trophy from Sen. Kenneth Buzbee of Carbondale in the Victory Circle. "I'm not so sure I'd have run him if it had been my horse."

Later he remarked, "After Indianapolis, I would have taken him out of this race, but I asked Mr. Thro, and he said, 'Well, take him all the way.'"

And that he did, as Christopher T. pulled out of a pack early in the race and finished strong for a 1½-stride win over the early leader Split Stock. The winner was clocked at 1:58.3, with Split Stock and Anvil both timed at 1:59. Favorite Golden Sovereign finished a disappointing fourth in 1:59.3.

"I didn't intend to lead with him all the way, and I thought Stanley's horse (Golden Sovereign) got off real well," explained Houghton. "When I started to move out just before the half, another horse came out and went up head-and-head with Stanley, and that took the sting out of both of them."

As a result, Christopher T. had taken charge by the ½-mile post, and no one was able to catch him.

"When I got to the stretch, I was just clear and we trotted right on in," Houghton. "I thought we had it clear back at the ½-mile, though."

Houghton credited some new lighter shoes on Christopher T. as a key factor in the win.

"I changed his shoeing after September, put very light shoes on and took away the toe weights," he explained. "I think that, before, he was sore at the knees, and he needed the weight for balance. It seems like now he is getting sounder, and with the lighter shoes, he clears himself a lot better."

A brother of Timothy T., the 1970 Hambletonian winner, Christopher T. had won only two of 12 trots this year and was not considered a contender by anyone. The crowd waited for the charge by Golden Sovereign, an unofficial 2-to-1 favorite at the no-betting event, but it never came.

"I was disappointed in Golden Sovereign's race to the point that, before the race, I thought he looked like a ton the best," commented Houghton, a native New Yorker. "I saw him once before and that was in Springfield, and he just looked to me like he could play with these horses."

The favorite, driven by Dick Richardson, finished third in the earnings with $19,218, behind Nevele Diamond, driven by Stanley Dancer, which earned $40,038. Nevele Diamond won easily in the first heat, but found the second heat to have all the talent as he finished seventh in the 10-horse runoff.

Houghton, who gave Christopher T. two light days of practice early in the week and then worried over him having two more days off, had a busy day himself Friday. He drove Keystone Gabriel to a second place finish in the first heat, before turning the reins over to Del Miller of California in the third heat.

Houghton, who originally thought Keystone Gabriel had a better shot at the championship than Christopher T., said after the first race that the horse wasn't capable of beating Nevele Diamond. In the third heat, Nevele Diamond was seventh, and Keystone Gabriel finished eighth.

The second heat was actually the highlight of the day, as Christopher T. pulled out a thriller before a roaring crowd of 9,200 observers. Many veteran race officials and reporters at the track called it the greatest race they had ever seen as the winner. Golden Sovereign and Sing Away Herbert were all clocked at two minutes flat, and Stock Split finished two-tenths of a second behind. Split Hanover, just three-tenths of a second from first, was sixth, disqualifying him from the third heat.

The heart-thumping finish pumped life back into a crowd which had grown quiet from once-again threatening skies. A hot morning sun, which sparkled on the morning trots, disappeared about 15 minutes before noon, but the moisture never got closer than Lexington, Ky., until the races were finished.

"I'm amazed at the crowd, I think it's gratifying," said Bill Hayes, Hambletonian Society president and owner of the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds. "Hopefully, we'll have betting next year."

Referring to the Hambletonian, itself, he added, "It certainly is a justice of everything (Bill Houghton's win). This man is a great horseman."

It seemed to sum up everything—and wash away the thoughts of the three days of haunting gray clouds which could be used so much more by farmers another day.

Meriweather: Malone's decision may be right one

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Joe C. Meriweather is a 6-foot-11 center for Southern Illinois University. He almost became a 6-foot-11 center for the American Basketball Association Utah Stars.

Moses Malone is a 6-foot-11 center for the Utah Stars. He almost became a 6-foot-11 center for the University of Maryland.

Meriweather doesn't regret his decision to finish his collegiate career, but he doesn't necessarily believe that Malone will regret his move not to begin his.

"I figure if I had quit school now, I don't think I'd have come back to finish," mused the Saluki center, a first round draft pick of Utah last year as a junior. "Besides, the ABA is having financial problems and they can't offer security."

"The league probably won't have any big problems this year, but they might lose more money next year and the next year. What happens if they have to sell Malone? I'm sure he's worked out some kind of deal."

So it is that Meriweather remains unsold on the idea of turning pro early. He only excepts Malone's case because he assumes his $3.3 million package includes security. He particularly likes the clause which assures $120,000 for the Petersburg, Va., star's education, if and when he decides to pursue it.

"That was smart of him to put that in there," remarked Joe C. "In the summertimes, he could go to school without any problem. It'll take him longer, but he could do it."

Malone's move to turn professional not only surprised the general public in recent weeks, but apparently also fooled some people "in the know." Meriweather, while in Puerto Rico this summer playing for a United States team, was able to find out a little about the prep star from guard John Lucas, Maryland's star player who will retain that label through at least next year now.

"He expected Malone to go to Maryland when I talked to him in July," recalled Meriweather. "Lucas had checked him out on the courts, though, and said he was real bad (hip talk for 'good'). He said he would fit right in."

"I think he'll be able to deal with the pressure," commented the Saluki star, who said he had not discussed the situation with any other early signers this summer. "In two or three years, he'll be a better ballplayer with the better competition."

"I think they should be able to draft juniors and sophomores, but I don't think so with freshmen. I think it was wrong to take Malone, but they know what they're doing."

"Maybe he had some type of problems at home, maybe it was the best thing. I don't know what was on his mind."

And what happens to Meriweather after he completes his career? Any inhibitions about the ABA, whom he turned down once?

"I've been looking hard at the NBA, but it'll depend on who I'm drafted by," he said. "I'll check out the town, because getting stuck in the wrong one ain't too hip for me."

Three to start

There will be some changes seen when the Saluki gridders scrimmage for the fourth time this year, Saturday at 9 a.m., on the varsity practice football field.

Junior Leonard Hopkins will be at the quarterback position replacing senior Fred McAlley. Hopkins, a junior from West Frankfort, was the back-up quarterback to McAlley last season.

In other changes transfer student Andre Herrera was elevated to first team tail back, after several impressive showings on the second team. Herrera replaces junior Joe Laws, who is suffering from a slight knee injury. "Andre looks as good on films as he does on the practice field," said SIU coach Doug Weaver. "Those runs of his are something else."

Freshmen offensive tackle Chuck Blume has moved ahead of junior Mike Thompson at offensive left tackle and junior John Doherty has taken over for Peter Harth at offensive left guard.
