Gorbachev presents peace plans to Iraqis

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev presented what a spokesman called a "detailed and sensible plan" to end the Persian Gulf war Monday in talks with Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz.

Details of the plan were not released. Gorbachev spokesman Vitaly Ignatenko said it was "fully in line" with U.N. resolutions calling for an unconditional Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait, but he said it also "envisages a wide spectrum of issues which could be settled in the gulf region."

Aziz "accepted the plan with understanding" and immediately left for Baghdad to present the plan to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, Ignatenko said, adding Moscow expected an answer "without delay."

The Iraqi foreign minister flew to Tehran, Iran aboard a Soviet jet and was expected to travel overland to Baghdad because of allied bombing in Iraq.

Gorbachev did not consult with the United States or other allies fighting to oust Iraq from Kuwait about specifics of the plan, but the details were to be presented to the coalition leaders later Monday, Ignatenko said.

"We'll wait and see for the initial reaction of the United States and the allies," Ignatenko said when asked if the plan is likely to be acceptable to Washington. "The plan envisages political means and it is highly unlikely it will not suit any party."

Monday's talks in Moscow were a last-ditch effort by the Soviets to mediate an end to the gulf war and avoid an imminent, bloody U.S.-led ground attack to force Iraq to end its Aug. 2 occupation of Kuwait.

"The president's proposal is a very detailed and sensible program of settlement," Ignatenko said. Asked if the Soviets saw signs of hope, he answered, "Many."

Soviet officials said before the meeting Gorbachev would attempt to convince Aziz that an unconditional Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait was the only way to stop the war and that other issues in the region could only be discussed after a withdrawal.

Iraq said Friday it was willing to consider a withdrawal, but included conditions including a linkage to a solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict that the international allies found unacceptable.

Aziz met Gorbachev for three hours Monday morning after preliminary talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander Bessmertnykh. Soviet presidential envoy Yevgeny Primakov also attended the meeting.

It was Aziz's third visit to Moscow since Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. In the first two visits, he heard little encouragement from its one-time Moscow patron, which cut arms shipment to its former client and voted for U.N. sanctions against Baghdad.

City to get new police chief after Hogan retires in July

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Carbondale got a new deputy police chief Monday.

Don E. Strom, a 1976 graduate of SIUC and member of the Carbondale Police Department since 1977, will assume the role of acting police chief March 1. City Manager Steve Hoffner said. He will take over full responsibilities of police chief when Edward Hogan retires in July.

Strom was chosen from about 100 applicants in a search that began in fall 1990.

The applicants were narrowed to 12 who were asked to provide additional information, including their philosophy of law enforcement and management style.

Three finalists were interviewed by Hoffner and a

Police see no connection between stabbing, fire deaths at same house

By Gregory Norfleet
Staff Writer

No connection has been found between the homicide of one man and a fire that killed two men Saturday at the same residence, Carbondale Police said.

At a news conference Monday, police said they had found no evidence linking the stabbing death of Weldon Bruce Scott, 41, and a fire that killed Hershel W. Scott, 69, and Willie L. Rosemand, 59. The Scotts are not believed to be related.

The stabbing and the fire occurred at 210 E. Green St.

The Jackson County Coroner Don Ragsdale reported that Weldon Scott was killed by a stab wound to the chest. Hershel Scott and Rosemand are believed to have died from smoke inhalation.

Pablo Kenner, 46, arrested in connection with the murder of

Kenner

Weldon Scott, is believed to have had an "altercation" with Scott in which Kenner stabbed him once, Detective Division Commander Lt. Larry Hill said.

Hill said that after two days they have yet to find the cause of the fire, but police still are investigating. Because the stabbing and the fire occurred on the same day and the origin of the fire has not been found, police have not ruled out arson.

Kenner could not have started

Physical Plant boilers break; University loses half its heat

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

Students looking to escape from the cold last week didn't find much shelter in University buildings.

A breakdown in the beds that carry coal into the burners resulted in the University losing half of its heating capacity.

An expected rise in temperatures should help to negate the effects of the boiler breakdowns, but Harrel Lerch, superintendent of building maintenance at the Physical Plant, said the boilers would not be fixed for several weeks.

"We're estimating it will take four weeks to get the parts, and another week or so to put them in," he said.

More than 40 years of use have taken their toll on the huge coal beds and pieces have worn away, said Dennis Conner, control panel operator at the Physical Plant.

He said the repairs will take a few weeks because the steel boiler parts must be specially cast.

Physical Plant employees went around to buildings on campus informing people of the breakdown and telling them to expect a temperature drop Friday.

The freezing temperatures caused a considerable drop in the buildings, but some heat was supplied, Lerch said.

"Basically we've been able to maintain perimeter heat to keep the buildings from freezing up," he said.

Although heat production has been cut in half, students said there was no noticeable difference during the weekend.

Physical Plant employees posted signs on the front doors asking residents to keep their windows shut in order to help conserve heat.

Students on the west side of campus also said the heat loss was not evident. Sherry Laatz, sophomore in psychology from Chicago, said she could barely tell there were heating problems in Smith Hall on Thompson Point.

Laatz said signs were put up around the hall, and if there were any questions or concerns students were told to talk to their resident assistant.

Gus says evidently, the cold snap kept the boilers from getting charged up for classes too.

Ministers to protest city betting

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Local ministers will be on hand Tuesday night when the City Council discusses bringing an off-track betting parlor to Carbondale.

Ministers have sent letters opposing the parlor to City Manager Steve Hoffner and the task force, which is now forming a group to attend the meeting said John C. Taylor, a member of the Jackson County Board and retired minister.

The council will consider the off-track betting facility's unanimous endorsement made Feb. 11.

The task force was

Dawgs run away from ISU 90-70

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

The Illinois State Redbirds should have stayed on the porch Monday night because they didn't stand a chance of running with the big Dawgs in the Arena.

The Salukis pounded ISU for a solid 40 minutes of basketball. They easily handed ISU its 20th loss of the season by a score of 90-70.

The night was a perfect ending for the three Saluki seniors, in their last basketball game in the Arena. Guard Sterling Mahan and forwards Rick Shipley and Erik Griffin had their moments in the spotlight as they received several standing ovations.

The Salukis poured it on from start to finish. It was a 1-point game until the Dawgs went on a 15-0 run in the middle of the first half to go up 23-7. The SIUC defense was out in full force as the Redbirds were held scoreless for more than five minutes during the run.

"The game was dictated by Southern's very fine play and their aggressiveness," ISU coach Bob Bender said. "They were tremendous on putting pressure on the ball and getting in the passing lanes. They really punished us in the first half when we took some bad shots."

The Salukis managed a 20-point lead with 4:51 to go in the first half when freshman guard Chris Lowery dished up an alley-oop to senior forward Ashraf Amaya, who pounded the ball in with a slam. The crowd went crazy and remained on its feet throughout SIUC's timeout after the monstrous dunk.

The Salukis kept the lead right around 20 points for the remainder of the half and went into the locker room with a 46-26 advantage.

When the whistle blew for the second half to begin the Dawgs were caught sleeping as ISU came within 14 points. But SIUC would have none of that and quickly got the lead back up to 18 when Shipley tossed another alley-oop to Amaya, who came down with the same ending as before.

Junior guard Matt Wynn also helped kick the Redbirds' feet out from between the door as he nailed two 3-pointers, keeping ISU from gaining any momentum.

The Salukis took their biggest lead when Wynn hit a trey from 25 feet to up the Dawgs lead to 65-41 with 12:08 left in the game.

Junior forward Kelvan Lawrence did his share to add to the excitement in the Arena when he coast to coast and skywalked to the basket for a one-handed slam dunk.

For the second consecutive game the Salukis shot the lights out of the Arena. Against Wichita State Saturday SIUC hit 68 percent from the field. Monday night, the Dawgs hit an impressive 59 percent.

Amaya led the Salukis' with 22 points and 11 rebounds. He shot 9 for 12 from the field and was a perfect four for four from the free throw line.

Four other Salukis scored in double figures. Lawrence hit nearly everything as he scored 14 points, including two trifectas. Shipley contributed 11 points and four assists.

Mahan and sophomore center Emeka Okenwa added 10 points. Mahan also recorded five assists, while Okenwa pulled down five boards.

"We don't care who does it, as long as the Salukis get the victory," SIUC coach Rich Herrin said.

ISU had four players in double figures with junior Reggie Wilson leading the way with 14 tallies.

Herrin's objective for the rest of the season is to prepare his ballclub for the Missouri Valley Tournament in March. The Salukis go on the road to Creighton and Drake to finish up their regular season.

"I think we're in a good position to win the whole tournament," Lawrence said. "We just have to take this one game at a time and come out and play as hard as we can."

Three senior Salukis savor last home game

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

Most "lasts" in sports are usually season-ending losses or sad retirements.

However, the last home game for Saluki hoop seniors Sterling Mahan, Rick Shipley and Erik Griffin, a 90-70 win over Illinois State, was beautiful.

From Mahan's three consecutive second-half steals, to Shipley's taking a charge and coming back with an alley-oop dunk pass to Ashraf Amaya, to the crowd's chanting for Griffin each time he touched the ball, it was their final act.

The trio has seen it all in their careers. They were here for the down years and the winning seasons. Most of all, they saw and anchored the resurgence of Saluki basketball.

Mahan, the little 6-foot pocket-picking defensive terror and possessor of the deadly long-range jumper, leaves the Arena as the Salukis 9th all-time scorer with 1,373 points.

"I came in when the program was down," Mahan said, "and now it's on the rise. I hope it keeps going. It's been fun."

Griffin, the "King of Spring," didn't see the minutes Shipley and Mahan did, but his selfless attitude stands true. The former Illinois Basketball Coaches Association slam-dunk champion also had the most on-target Rich Herrin imitation this side of Benton.

"It gave me a good feeling to have the crowd cheering at the end," Griffin said. "But the most important thing was winning the game, not the minutes I got. I've seen a lot and have some great memories."

Shipley, Mr. Consistency on the boards and scoring in the post, was the Salukis enforcer during his time. He always had

Utah breaks into UPI's Top 10

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nevada-Las Vegas was the undisputed No. 1 choice for the 10th straight week Monday in the United Press International college basketball ratings, while Utah cracked the Top 10 for the first time in 10 years.

The Runnin' Rebels, who have received every first-place vote from the UPI Board of Coaches since Dec. 17, was at the top of all 40 ballots cast Monday by the 42-member board and finished with 600 points.

UNLV ran its record to 22-0 on the season last week with victories over Santa Barbara and New Mexico State, though its 86-74 triumph over the Aggies was its second-smallest margin of victory this season.

Ohio State maintained its hold on second place with 553 points after beating Indiana 97-95 in double overtime on Sunday. Treg Lee hit a baseline jumper with four seconds left in the second overtime to give the Buckeyes, 22-1, the inside track to the Big Ten title.

"It was one of the greatest basketball games I've ever been a part of," Ohio State Coach Randy Ayers said. "We just kept clawing away, especially in the second half. The intensity we showed was tremendous. I don't see this as clinching the title, but it's a huge win for this program."

No. 3 Arkansas and No. 4 Indiana retained their positions from last week, while No. 5 Syracuse and No. 6 North Carolina both moved up two places.

Bulls win over Cavaliers 110-95

RICHFIELD, Ohio (UPI) — Michael Jordan scored 32 points, 11 in a 24-7 third-quarter spurt, and Horace Grant added 20 points Monday to lead the Chicago Bulls to a 110-95 win over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

The win was the sixth straight for Chicago and ninth in a row against Cleveland. Brad Daugherty had 30 points for the Cavs.

Cleveland led 50-46 at halftime and increased the lead to 56-48 before the Bulls took control of the game. Jordan scored 10 of the first 14 points in the 24-7 run that Chicago used to take a 72-63 lead on Grant's 15-footer with 2:49 left in the third period.

The Bulls led by as many as 11 before Cleveland slowly worked into the advantage, closing to within four points twice, the second time on a John Morton dunk with 7:15 to play. But Jordan's pass to Stacey King for a dunk ignited a 23-6 Chicago run that iced the game.

Jordan's defense played a large role in the final spurt, with the NBA's leading scorer making four steals and blocking a shot.

The Bulls made 13 of 19 shots in the final period and for the game forced 19 Cleveland turnovers that led to 29 points. B.J. Armstrong had 17 points and Scottie Pippen 15 for Chicago, while Craig Ehlo had 16 and Chucky Brown 14 for the Cavaliers.

Daugherty had 14 first-quarter points for Cleveland, which led by as many as eight points twice before taking a 28-24 lead after one period. Cleveland shot 62.5 percent from the field in the first half to 42.6 percent for Chicago, but the Cavs could manage only a four-point halftime lead.

Suspected IRA bombs kills one, injures 40 in railways

LONDON (UPI) — Two suspected Irish Republican Army bombs exploded at London railway stations Monday, including one hidden in a trash bin that killed one person and wounded 40 others in a morning rush-hour attack that closed mainline rail stations and severely disrupted travel. Officials blamed the outlawed IRA for planting the bomb in the bin at Victoria Station, which if confirmed would be the first random IRA attack on civilians on the mainland in more than seven years. There was no claim of responsibility, but before the deadly attack a caller with an Irish accent told authorities bombs would go off in train stations "in 45 minutes." Three hours earlier, a bomb exploded in the nearly empty Paddington Station, causing some damage but no injuries.

Peru cholera epidemic may infect 200,000

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — The cholera epidemic sweeping Peru could infect up to 200,000 people in Peru, Health Minister Carlos Vidal said Monday. Vidal also said the country's economy was being harmed by trade embargos other countries have slapped on some Peruvian products to prevent the spread of the disease beyond Peru's borders. "The figure of 200,000 cases (of cholera) is a projection, but we don't think that it will reach that figure," Vidal told foreign journalists Monday. He said that as of Monday morning 16,600 people had contracted the bacteria infection since it broke out three weeks earlier. Of those, 3, 730 people were hospitalized. Vidal said preventive trade embargos ordered in other countries "is the worst damage that can be done to us."

Ethics committee nears Keating verdicts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Ethics Committee appears close to reaching verdicts on five senators alleged to have pressured a federal agency on behalf of S&L kingpin Charles Keating, who contributed $1.3 million to their campaigns and causes. Waiting for the committee's decision are the so-called Keating Five — Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., Donald Riegle, D-Mich., John Glenn, D-Ohio, and John McCain, R-Ariz. The outcome is crucial for the political futures of the senators, although Cranston, suffering from prostate cancer, has already announced he will not seek re-election. The other four are inclined to run again but no senators found guilty by the Senate in the past have won re-election.

Actor Kirk Douglas released from hospital

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Kirk Douglas was released Monday from the hospital where he had undergone treatment for injuries he suffered in a helicopter crash last week. Douglas left the hospital at mid-morning in good condition, said Ron Wise, spokesman for Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. Douglas, 74, was seriously injured Feb. 13 when the helicopter he was in collided with a homemade biplane as both aircraft were taking off from the Santa Paula airport about 80 miles north of Los Angeles. Two people in the plane were killed. Helicopter pilot Noel Blanc, who also was injured in the crash, was in serious condition at Santa Paula Memorial Hospital.

Group makes 40-mile march in support of 'Storm' troops

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A 40-mile march from Decatur to Springfield in support of Desert Storm troops culminated in a rally attended by an estimated 2,000 people. The 35 members of The Last Patrol, a veterans group that raises awareness about prisoners of war and those missing in action, began the trek Saturday. The group spent Saturday night in Illiopolis and arrived in Springfield late Sunday. Hundreds of people joined the march along the way, and the crowd had swelled to about 2,000 at a Sunday night rally. Robert Walker, a Vietnam veteran said the march was intended to show troops they will not be greeted with hostility when they return home.

Media's war coverage manipulated — experts

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

The media are being manipulated by the military and are not neutral in the first place, said three professors in communications.

"Media Coverage of the Gulf War: What's Wrong With This Picture?" was the title of a teach-in held Thursday that dealt with the relationship between the press and the military.

Walter Jaehnig, director of the School of Journalism said modern warfare involves high technology and propaganda.

He criticized the media for tolerating press pools that keep reporters together and are easily supervised by the military.

An emphasis on live, unreflective broadcasting and military or political influence on stories of the day also reduce the effectiveness of the media, Jaehnig said.

"The political establishment has gotten way ahead of the press establishment in manipulating the news," he said.

Jaehnig said the press is inexperienced in war coverage and has adopted some military terminology.

By using phrases like "sorties"—quick raids made by defenders on their attackers—for U.S. air bombing missions, and "KlAs" for soldiers killed in action instead of the word "deaths," Jaehnig said the media are beginning to reflect military views.

The press fails to show a historical perspective of the Middle East and U.S. relations with Middle East countries, he said.

William Elliott, director of graduate studies in the School of Journalism, pointed out the similarities and differences in the press and the military—two of the biggest industries in the United States.

He said both are patriotic to the core and want the United States to win the conflict. Both love technology and both need the other to succeed in the war.

"Neither side tells the truth in a war, but if the press can report the lies of both sides the truth can come out."

Media correspondents need military leaders for information on the war, and the military depends on the press for favorable coverage, but both differ in their approach to war, Elliott said.

"The press wants today's events, this hour's events, and—if possible—this minute's events," he said. "The Pentagon looks at the campaign."

The press wants to cover both sides of controversial issues, but the military just wants to tell its side of the events. Elliott said neither side tells the truth in a war, but if the press can report the lies of both sides the truth may come out.

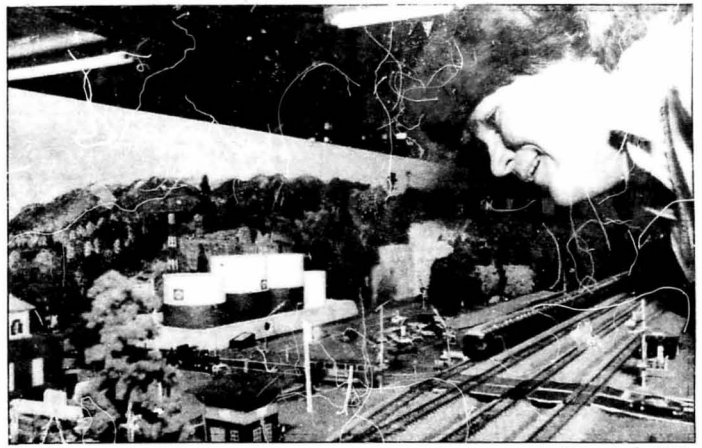

Censorship of news from the Gulf is not needed, Elliott said. The press doesn't want to give out information that will endanger troops.

Richard Lanigan, speech communication professor, said he dislikes calling the Gulf war coverage a media event, which implies that it is controlled by someone.

"After watching (the Cable News Network) for ten minutes, you can tell no one is in charge," he said.

Lanigan said he is disappointed that only military briefings from English-speaking countries are reported in the news.

He said multilingual people may be interested in learning what Spanish or Arab-speaking countries are saying about the war.

Students nabbed by police after forging check for pizza

By Amy Cooper
Staff Writer

Two SIUC students were arrested outside of Boomer III residence hall when they attempted to pay for a LaRoma pizza with a stolen check, SIUC police officer Brad Barham said.

LaRoma employee Brendan Hannigan said Burl Williams, manager of LaRoma, called the police when they received an order Sunday night under the same name as an order from Saturday night.

Saturday night LaRoma employees delivered a pizza to Boomer III, but brought it back when the person said he had no identification for the check, Hannigan said.

On Sunday, another order was placed under the same name and same residence hall. The person said he had no phone and would be waiting outside Boomer III for the delivery person.

LaRoma employees stalled the two people until they handed the stolen check over to the LaRoma employees, said LaRoma employee John Patterson.

When the check was exchanged for the pizza Patterson signaled the police by tipping his hat and they moved in and made the arrests.

Barham said everything went smoothly.

"Cooperation from LaRoma was excellent," he said.

Barham said one of the women told police that she was given a stolen-forged check and told to buy a pizza with it. The women gave the names of the people who asked them to use the check.

But the women still could be charged as an accomplice to forgery, he said.

Police met Monday afternoon with four people named by the two women.

The names of the involved people are not being released pending formal charges. Barham said.

Four sets of fingerprints and handwriting samples have been

Dorm cable proposal just about plugged in

DORM RESIDENTS are one step closer to having cable television literally at their finger tips.

A $112 housing fee proposal for the fall/spring school year will be voted on at the next Board of Trustees meeting. If the fee increase is approved, $69 of the increase will be used for the installation and service of cable in the dormitories.

Separate surveys conducted by the Daily Egyptian and University Housing last year showed a significant student interest in getting cable in the dorms.

THE DE surveyed 305 people and three out of four said they would be willing to pay for cable.

The survey showed that 56 percent of those polled would be willing to pay an extra $10 or less a month for cable, with 30 percent willing to pay between $15 and $20 a month for the service.

The higher the cost, the lower the interest.

Now students have an estimated dollar amount to consider. Now is the time to check support of the project again.

IF THE PROPOSED housing fee increase is approved, all dorm residents will be charged the additional $112. More than half of the money in that increase will be used to get the cable project going and hooked up in every dorm room—whether the resident wants it or not.

University programs such as the Student Center and the Recreational Center are supported by fees collected from all students and not just those who use the facilities. Cable in the dorms should operate in the same manner for all students who live in the dorms and are eligible to receive the service.

AFTER THE PROJECT has paid for itself in about five years, the University will take ownership of the service. This will allow SIUC to charge only what is needed to operate the service.

If dorm residents want the service and are willing to pay for it, cable could prove to be beneficial to students.

In addition to the entertainment cable offers, news stations such as CNN provide breaking coverage of events such as the gulf war as well as general, everyday happenings that students need to be tuned in to.

Letters

Advertisement's AIDS assertions historically false

On Feb. 12, the DE carried an advertisement, prepared by the SIUC Wellness Center, designed to warn readers against some of the hazards of sex.

Among other things, this ad stated that "Heterosexuals are just as likely to contract AIDS as homosexuals" and "AIDS is predicted to be the second leading cause of death in heterosexual men."

These assertions are not correct, based on the history of the HIV epidemic in the United States.

However worthy the goals of this ad campaign, such a careless disregard for accuracy on the part of an agency of our university suggests that we should perhaps consider whether our institution's limited resources are being properly allocated.—Jack Parker, professor, microbiology.

Medical field needs animal experiments

The DE ran a letter on Feb. 12 by a Ms. Stephanie Alley. Ms. Alley passionately argued that hundreds of animals are maimed and tortured on this campus in the pursuit of useless knowledge.

According to Ms. Alley, the students and researchers involved can use computers and models to examine biological systems.

I suggest Ms. Alley enroll in a basic biology course, because she obviously doesn't have a clue to the complexity of living systems.

I have used both animals and computers to study biological mechanisms and have come to the conclusion that computer models are inadequate to teach students with.

Ms. Alley also is unaware that the animals in Life Science II and Lindegren are not tortured.

I have worked with animals, both as a student and a research assistant, and nowhere have I seen the cruelty Ms. Alley describes.

Certainly some animals die, but they die instantly or under anesthesia. No one I worked with expressed joy with that aspect of our job, but if people want medical advances experimentation is necessary.

Ms. Alley can thank animal experimentation to adding 20.8 years to her life expectancy.

Sure some animals have died, but now she'll be able to see her grandchildren. I have two suggestions for Ms. Alley.

First, she should carry a card on her person telling medical personnel that if she or her children are unable to speak in a medical emergency that she doesn't want to be treated by any medical or surgical device, procedure or drug that was developed by using animals as experimental subjects.

Second, because you are a senior without a major, you could study one of the life sciences, get your Ph.D. and show the world how to do clinical research with the "alternatives" you mentioned.—Sean Theisen, senior, physiology

SIUC International Festival promotes unity, broader cultural perspectives

Nabarun Ghose and the International Student Council deserve high praise for the exceptional coordination and results of the recent SIUC International Festival.

Especially in light of the current Persian Gulf crisis, the event and the overwhelming response, as reflected in record-breaking attendance, was an impressive and touching expression of how people, rather than nations or politicians, can respect and appreciate each other.

In the current state of world affairs, it is very easy to lose sight of this truth in the name of concern for loved ones directly involved in the conflict, patriotism, general fear of the unknown, etc.

I think that the festival offered a much-needed outlet for how individuals, and record-breaking large crowds of individuals, can grow from the rich cultures and philosophies of others.

The current conflict and loss of lives in the war on both sides is clearly appalling to many. Still, others have reasons which are considered just as valid for supporting the cause through to the bitter end.

However, SIUC's International Festival made an important contribution in attempting to bridge the gap between ignorance and knowledge of different cultures, serving to broaden the perspectives and education of us all.

Activities like this may seem trivial to some, but beyond the surface, they serve as an important first step for many in learning to appreciate and live peacefully with others.

It is, in my opinion, the cultural diversity of students and faculty that makes education at SIUC such a rich experience.

Thank you to Nabarun Ghose and the International Student Council for doing such a fine job of enhancing that wealth.—Lety Workman, graduate, business administration.

Quotable Quotes

"The Army relies a lot on team effort; everyone is part of that team no matter what sex they are."—Lt. Col. Margaret Winslow, commander of SIUC's Reserve Officer Training Corps, in reference to woman in the military.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potential libelous material or because extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

Shuttle crew prepares for mission

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The shuttle Discovery's crew flew to the Kennedy Space Center Monday to review emergency procedures and take part in a practice countdown Wednesday, a major milestone before launch March 9 on a "Star Wars" research mission.

Discovery was hauled to launch pad 39A Friday and engineers spent the weekend installing the shuttle's Air Force payload and running a series of standard tests to make sure the spaceplane's engines and fuel lines are leak free.

The dress rehearsal countdown was scheduled to begin Tuesday and end Wednesday with the simulated ignition of Discovery's three main engines. Vice President Dan Quayle, chairman of the National Space Council, was scheduled to visit the space center Wednesday and to meet the ship's crew.

The astronauts flew to Florida from the Johnson Space Center early Monday to review emergency launch pad escape procedures.

They plan to don spacesuits and strap in aboard Discovery on Wednesday for the final hours of the mock countdown, a traditional test that gives NASA managers, engineers and the astronauts a chance to practice launch-day procedures.

"We're excited to be down here today," commander Michael Coats, a Navy captain, told reporters.

designed to study the positive and negative aspects of locating a betting parlor in Carbondale.

Taylor was the only person at the task force meeting on Feb. 11 who opposed the parlor.

"We're a significant minority," Taylor said. "We've been completely overlooked."

Taylor could not estimate the number of people who will attend the meeting, but he said it would take about 500 people to make a difference.

set aside for people 18 years old and older.

Officials from Fairmount Park, a race track in Collinsville, have been in contact with city officials since summer 1990 about locating a parlor in Carbondale.

Brian Zander, vice president and general manager of Fairmount Park, told the task force Feb. 6 that unlike the Illinois law that allows anyone 17 and older to place a bet, Fairmount restricts betting to those 21 and older.

The age limit is set because alcohol is served at the parlor, Zander said.

from Zander, if a parlor is built in Carbondale, it would probably resemble the facility in Springfield.

The 17,000-square-foot parlor in Springfield cost $1 million to construct and furnish, according to the letter. It brought more than $164,000 in wagering taxes to the city in 1989 and created 26 full-time and 41 part-time jobs.

The Springfield facility, Capitol Teletrack, opened in 1988 and allows betting on thoroughbred and harness racing from Fairmount Park, Chicago-area tracks and major horse races in the rest of the country.

Although the task force endorsed the parlor, Richard Fasano, a graduate assistant at the SIUC Wellness Center asked the Council to consider three things before making a decision:

- make Sundays a family day at the parlor to send a better message to children;
- designate a percentage of the city's profits for specific projects such as low-income housing;
- and one day a week should be

An exact site for the parlor has not been chosen, but a location on the east side of town near University Mall is favorable because there would be ample parking, Zander said at the Feb. 6 meeting.

Fairmount Park already owns off-track racing parlors in Springfield and Grayville.

According to a letter to Hoffner

Capitol Teletrack shows racing broadcasts on more than 100 closed-circuit television monitors.

Zander and task force members were invited to attend the Council meeting to answer questions.

Other items for discussion at the 7 p.m. meeting are the presentation of the plan for the Town Square and a report on the Depot Restoration Workplan.

committee of eight community representatives last week.

Hoffner said the committee unanimously agreed Strom was the top candidate.

"He is a hard worker who will not expect more from his workers than he could do himself," Hoffner said.

Strom also is a graduate of the Southern Police Institute at the University of Louisville and the FBI National Academy in Quantico, Va.

His work at the Carbondale

Police Department includes primary responsibility for coordinating the department's participation in the National Accreditation Program for Law Enforcement and a brief stint as Acting Investigations Division Commander in 1989.

Strom is involved in such community activities as the Carbondale United Way and the Southern Illinois Dream Factory, an organization that fulfills the dreams of chronically ill children.

Although Strom said it is too early to predict changes in the department, he has made plans.

"We need to look at the overall picture of how we're doing policing," Strom said. "We could stand to improve our relationship with all parts of the community."

Strom said he wants to work with SIUC administrators and students to develop a good relationship.

"I'm very concerned about getting the police department involved in the community," he said.

"At this point we have our prime suspects, but no formal charges," he said.

One of the six people involved was described as the main suspect by Barham, but he said evidence is still being received.

After the investigation is finished it will be presented to State's Attorney Chuck Grace, but the investigation is only a third of the way done, he said.

"Forgery is hard to pin down," Barham said.

The checks were stolen at 4 p.m. Saturday from the Mac Smith residence hall room of Jennifer Webb, a freshman from Wheaton.

LaRoma employees called Webb after receiving the order Sunday night to determine if the checks were stolen.

Webb said she was surprised when LaRoma called her.

"They didn't even ask if I ordered a pizza. They just asked if I had checks stolen," she said.

Webb said when her purse was stolen it contained money and credit cards, in addition to her check book, and an electronic dictionary valued at $130. A typewriter was also taken from her room.

Those who reported the fire said flames first were seen coming from the southwest living room window, Hill said.

Hill said neighbors reported a great deal of alcohol consumption at the residence that day, but police did not run a test to check Kenner's blood alcohol content.

Kenner is to be formally charged today at Jackson County Courthouse possibly with first degree murder, Hill said.

Evidence found at the residence has been transported to the Fairview Heights state crime laboratory to be analyzed.

In a few days police hope to have a better idea on the origin of the fire, Hill said.

Police said the residence was being cared for by Hershel Scott, and that it was "a place people would come to stay a night or two when they could not find anywhere else."

Local soldiers to get plethora of letters from folks at home

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

Dropping a line to soldiers from Southern Illinois serving overseas just got a little easier.

A program called Operation Gulf Line provided stationery, envelopes, postage and addresses of Southern Illinois soldiers Saturday and Sunday for people in the University Mall who wanted to send letters to them.

The program was sponsored by WTOAO radio, the University Mall and the Bravo Company of a group called the Patriots.

Perry Murry, a member of the Patriots, said the Murphysboro-based company is a non-partisan group wanting to promote patriotism.

Murry said the group has collected more than 200 letters during the past couple months in Carbondale and Murphysboro locations and that the letters will be mailed to the soldiers later this week.

He said soldiers, especially those who have served overseas, know that mail is important to morale. The Patriots want to make sure as many Southern Illinoisans as possible get mail.

To ensure this, Murry said the Patriots collected and listed the names, overseas addresses and photos of as many Southern Illinois soldiers as they could find for letter-writers.

Soldiers' relatives, friends, classmates and strangers stopped by the two Patriot tables in the mall to write letters. The photos made it easier for people to locate soldiers they know by sight and want to contact, Murry said.

Cristi Koffard, junior at Du Quoin High School, said she was writing to give her support to soldiers.

Hoffard said she wrote one letter to a cousin in the military and was going to write two more letters addressed to 'any serviceman.'

She said she was trying to pick out good-looking ones to write.

David Lindsey, SIUC junior in computer science from St. David, said he was looking for the name of a classmate whose unit recently was activated.

"It's not easy to write to someone you don't really know, but it will help (soldiers') morale," Lindsey said.

Caroline Bowman, freshman at Carbondale Community High School, said she wrote eight letters to soldiers—one to a friend and seven to soldiers she chose at random.

She said she is telling the soldiers she supports and cares about them.

Bob Marcy, a member of the Patriots, said he encouraged fraternities, sororities, student groups and individuals to send letters to soldiers. Marcy said the Patriots will provide envelopes, postage and addresses from local newspaper articles to groups interested in writing letters.

He asked that letters sent through the Patriots do not include return addresses on the envelopes for security reasons.

The envelopes should be left open so the Patriots can include gum, packets of powdered drink mix and newspaper clipping of parades and rallies.

Anti-war demonstrator burns himself to death

AMHERST, Mass. (UPI) — A peace demonstrator set himself on fire with paint thinner and burned to death Monday on the town common in apparent protest against the Persian Gulf war, police said.

Stunned bystanders rushed to the man's aid and tried to smother the flames with coats and a blanket moments after he set himself afire, authorities said. A police officer sprayed the burning man moments later with a fire extinguisher.

The victim lit a Massachusetts driver's license taped to a sign reading "Peace," which was found near his body, but police refused to release the name until relatives could be notified.

Police said he was not a student at any of the several colleges in the Amherst area, which include the University of Massachusetts and Amherst and Hampshire colleges. Witnesses said he appeared to be acting alone.

The victim, who was found covered with two coats apparently used in the attempt to put out the fire, was pronounced dead at the scene by a medical examiner. The body was later taken to a mortuary in Springfield where an autopsy was to be performed Tuesday, state police said.

"We have not made positive identification on the individual at this time," said state Trooper Michael Habel.

Johan Gelbach, a sophomore at the university, who witnessed the immolation, said he could hardly believe his eyes.

"This blew my mind, seeing someone light themselves on fire," said Gelbach. "It puts things in perspective. It really makes rallying (against) the war look insignificant."

Witnesses told police and reporters the man appeared on the Amherst Common about 2 p.m. and doused himself with two cans of liquid, later identified as paint thinner.

"The man then lit a match which went out and then lit another one, which resulted in a fireball engulfing him in flames," Amherst police said in a statement.

The two empty cans of thinner were found near the body, police said.

"What struck me was coming back to the campus and people were just walking around and they had no clue as to what had happened a half mile away," said Jason George, another University of Massachusetts sophomore.

International students claim festival 'superficial, unfair'

By Tiffany Youtner
Staff Writer

Some SIUC students have expressed negative opinions of the International Festival 1991, calling it "superficial" and "unfair."

Partha Banerjee, SIUC doctoral student in plant biology from India, wrote a letter to the Daily Egyptian on what he felt was an uncaring attitude by the International Student Council.

In the three years he has attended SIUC, everything the ISC has done has been superficial, he said.

He said international students have a very hard time attending U.S. universities because employment options are limited.

International graduate students can work a maximum of 20 hours a week in their departments and their spouses are not allowed to work at all, Banerjee said.

Banerjee said many insurance companies refuse to cover international students.

International students have to work to be successful in the United States because often there is little chance for them to find work in their native countries, he said.

For this reason, Banerjee said, many international students are afraid to voice their opinions or work to improve their situations.

"We are not as welcome here as we look to be," he said. "That really frightens us."

Banerjee said nobody really cares for the international students at SIUC, including the ISC. He said he feels their only intention is to show more and more Americanness and to side with the establishment of the University.

"That's very disheartening and very disappointing," he said.

Banerjee said he did not attend the 1990 festival because the flamboyance of it made him angry.

A member of the SIUC Graduate and Professional Student Council, Banerjee said GPSC has worked to fight SIUC insurance premium increases, and has tried to solve many important problems concerning the welfare of students.

He said he does not understand why the ISC concentrates on festivals and soccer games instead of using its resources to improve the lives of international students at SIUC.

"If you don't work for the welfare of the students in any form, then you don't really deserve to be their leader," he said.

Nabaran Ghose, International Student Council president, said he respects all opinions on the festival and is glad individuals on campus have chosen to express them.

He said, however, he feels these people are misinformed about festival policy and are nit-picking.

"With a festival of this magnitude and with the phenomenal success that we have had this year, a few individuals are desperately trying to find a loose end," Ghose said.

SIUC drew about 15,000 people for International Festival 1991.

He said the ISC has been congratulated on the success of the festival by members of federal and state government, SIUC officials and many international students at SIUC.

"Are they trying to say the thousands that participated are heartless or don't have a conscience?" Ghose asked.

Julieta Monteiro, SIUC graduate student in educational psychology from Brazil, co-wrote a letter to the DE.

She said she represents a consensus of SIUC students who feel awarding prizes at the international festival is contrary to the policy of ISC to represent all cultures without bias.

"Each culture in its own way has its own beauty," Monteiro said. "Awarding prizes is out of line with the whole ideology of the international festival."

She said she would like to see the festival present the uniqueness of each culture in a non-judgmental, non-competitive way.

Monteiro said only three international student associations were declared first-place winners for the festival events.

"Thirty-two groups were left out," she said. "What are the criteria that they didn't meet?"

Ghose said nobody objected to the awarding of festival prizes when they were discussed at an ISC meeting.

He said two kinds of participation in the festival are possible: performance—participation in the fashion and cultural shows—and attendance and support of the festival.

ISC is open to everybody, Ghose said. If people really are concerned about trying to make the festival better, he said, they should become involved.

"It's easy to sit outside and throw stones at somebody," he said. "But, come and do the job. You have good ideas, we appreciate your ideas, so please get involved and help us out."

Soviets face price hikes

MOSCOW (UPI) — Premier Valentin Pavlov told deputies Monday that the government will increase prices by an average of 60 percent, but he did not say when the hikes would take effect lest it incite panic buying.

Pavlov, speaking at the opening of the Soviet Parliament's spring session, also said that the Kremlin and leaders of the country's 15 republics had failed to agree on a compensation plan to cushion the blows of the price rises.

The national legislature adopted a 46-point agenda for its four-month session, including a landmark emigration and travel bill that has been stalled for nearly a year.

Deputies also agreed to tackle the controversial issue of military reform and a host of measures aimed at implementing the Communist nation's hesitant transition to a market economy.

"The session is politically important because political stabilization in the country will depend on its results," Parliament Chairman Anatoly Lukyanov told the 542-seat assembly.

The plan will stimulate consumer goods production in which revenue from price hikes will average 60 percent.

Polish bus-driver strike spreads through nation

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Hundreds of bus drivers in western and southern Poland struck Monday for higher wages amid mounting protests against the Solidarity-led government over its inflation-fighting efforts.

In another development, a newly appointed advisory council to President Lech Walesa said the hated excess wage tax has failed as an economy-regulating mechanism and recommended that it be lifted for at least some of the sectors of the economy.

Polish television said Prime Minister Jan Krzysztof Bielecki disagreed with the advisory council's view during government talks with representatives of the Solidarity union.

The bus strike began in Poznan, where workers demanded a 50 percent wage increase, but quickly spread to four southern provinces where drivers backed by the Solidarity union demanded more state subsidies as well as wage hikes.

Workers at 600 state-run farms in 15 provinces also went on strike Monday, the latest of several protests over low state prices for their produce. And labor unrest was reported in Lodz, the center of Poland's textile industry.

At Warsaw's giant tractor-manufacturing plant Ursus, workers called a strike for Tuesday to press their demands for a 30 percent wage hike, which management has already refused because of the government's excess wage tax.

The one-day strike would be followed up by a sit-in action Wednesday which strike leaders said would not end until management raises wages.

Management has said the excess wage tax, which imposes severe tax penalties on companies who raise wages above a given level, prevents it from considering any increases.

The Polish Transport Ministry declared the bus strikes illegal, saying January was well within the limits of the national average of about $150.

The Poznan strikers recently got a 10 percent raise, and the ministry said they cannot expect a further increase especially since passenger traffic has dropped by more than 30 percent.

"Every day we make 1,100 trips, so several dozen thousand workers are not going to be able to get to work," said Janusz Stankowski, director of the Poznan bus company.

The strikes in southern Poland pulled buses off the road for six hours.

"If the demands are not met, the crew will start a sit-in action," warned strike leader Adam Fryniak in the city of Przemysl.

The workers are also demanding the elimination of special low fares enjoyed by some 40 different categories of passengers.

The excess wage tax is a major bone of contention throughout Poland. Three days ago two Warsaw steelworkers went on a hunger strike over it.

Division of Marines dare to talk of overconfidence

NORTHERN SAUDI ARABIA (UPI) — After training for months and then listening to the Iraqis just over the border get bombed for weeks, the only danger remaining for the 2nd Marine Division's breach team may be overconfidence.

None would be caught using such a word, but as they lined up their tanks Monday between a warming sun and a rain-tightened desert, an aura of certainty followed their every move.

Some were subtle, sunning themselves on the dropped-down backs of their armored assault vehicles while joking about warm showers and berthing camels — in a place where only the latter can be found.

Others were more direct, predicting a virtual cakewalk into Kuwait.

Sgt. Patrick Brady, between grumblings about missing the Bob Hope tour and having "more cheese growing on me than Kraft," said, "I just want to jump a tractor (AAV), ride in (to Kuwait) and make it the 51st state."

"I think once we jump through the front lines, they'll all start quitting. "There'll be some front of the tanks, blowing out an initial path.

Then the tanks move into the void, sporting a row of giant metal teeth in front to tear up whatever might be left.

Everyone says they know what they need to do, and feel it's now a matter of doing it.

"What that boils down to is everybody's life is potentially at stake here," said Cpl. Jonathan Fisher, 27, of Deerfield, N.H., who expects to spend the first 18 hours of the allied ground offensive squeezed inside an M-60 tank with three other crewmembers.

"If I don't do my job properly and get through the minefield, then the following forces can't get through," he said.

"Everybody's got to pull together and do their job," he said. "Over the past month and a half, we've all worked together, got a good amount of camaraderie, got our personal differences worked out."

Standing over by the AAVs, there was agreement on the concept of togetherness, in their own way.

Not so 'smart'

Scientist says gulf war weapons might not be flawless

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The perception that all the United States' high-tech weapons have performed flawlessly in the Persian Gulf war may be premature, an expert said Monday.

Eric Arnett of the American Association for the Advancement of Science said it was too early to tell whether the Tomahawk missiles, for example, have performed well.

"What I want to do as a member of the scientific community is instill ... a sense of scientific skepticism about the performance of so-called 'smart weapons,'" said Arnett, speaking at the association's annual meeting.

"Before the war, serious doubts existed about the Tomahawk's guidance system, especially about its performance at night," he said. "There is no publicly available data about their performance in the war that would lead one to change the conclusion" that the missiles are unreliable.

"I'm not saying the Tomahawk doesn't work. I'm just saying that there's no evidence that it does," he added.

The Navy initially claimed that about 95 percent of Tomahawks hit their targets, he said.

"It has emerged since then that that number only refers to the proportion that left the launchers without becoming stuck," he said. "A later number referring to something on the order of 85 (percent) only refers to the number that flew out of sight over the horizon, which isn't that far when you're sitting on the surface of the ocean at night."

Bomb assessment photographs seen so far are "far from comprehensive," he said.

"Some commentators have pointed out that the Iraqi air defense system seems to have been paralyzed early in the war and that seemed to have been because of the early strikes with the Tomahawks. It's not at all clear that that's true because it now appears that commando strikes, other types of air strikes and especially the use of Vietnam-era anti-radar missiles were probably the most effective air defense suppression weapons," he said.

"I think our quick rise to air superiority in the war, just like our ability to defend against Scud missiles, is more attributable to electronic innovation in Kennedy administration-era weapons than it can be attributed to weapons built during the Carter-Reagan defense buildup," he said.

Meanwhile, Richard Cottam, a Middle East specialist at the University of Pittsburgh, said he was concerned by disturbing political developments in the Arab world since the war began.

"The evidence that we're seeing is that there's heavy polarization taking place ... in which Islam is pitted against the West. And that this is probably politically the most significant event to come out of the crisis so far," he said.

Gorbachev presents peace plan to Aziz; ground war grows nearer

United Press International

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev gave Iraq's foreign minister an undisclosed peace plan Monday but the latest diplomatic move did little to stop the allied forces from proceeding as scheduled toward an expected ground war.

Military sources continued to insist no date had been set for the beginning of major ground fighting but U.S. officials indicated only the total and unexpected capitulation of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein could keep it from coming.

Two U.S. warships in the northern gulf struck mines that caused little damage but left seven seamen injured, one of them seriously. A U.S. Air Force F-16 fighter-bomber crashed 40 miles inside enemy territory but its pilot was rescued by allied troops.

In Moscow, Gorbachev

presented his peace plan to Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz, who left immediately to take the proposal to Baghdad. Details of the initiative were not given in advance to the United States or its allies, but were outlined by Moscow in a diplomatic cable to Washington, U.S. officials said.

Soviet spokesman Vitaly Ignatenko said the plan was "fully in line" with U.N. resolutions calling for an unconditional Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and "envisages a wide spectrum of issues which could be settled in the gulf region."

Aziz "accepted the plan with understanding" and immediately left for Iran en route to Baghdad to present the plan to Saddam, Ignatenko said. Moscow expected an answer "without delay," he said.

Asked if the proposal would be acceptable to Washington,

Ignatenko said, "We'll wait and see for the initial reaction of the United States and the allies. The plan envisages political means and it is highly unlikely it will not suit any party."

President Bush traveled back to Washington from a long weekend in Kennebunkport, Maine, and immediately went into a meeting with his top advisers for what White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater called "an update, a status report from everybody on where we are."

But barring what one U.S. source called "a very dramatic turnaround" by Iraq, the ground war grew nearer.

"Our emphasis at this point is on continuing to prosecute the war," Fitzwater said. "We're moving ahead in the air and we are assuming that we're going to have to continue to enforce the U.N. sanctions."

If it doesn't work quite that smoothly, the breach team has its plan ready. The AAVs, riding in tight formation just behind the tanks, will take the first stab at Iraq's vaulted minefields. They'll fire a string of explosives out in front of the tanks, blowing out an initial path.

Then the tanks move into the void, sporting a row of giant metal teeth in front to tear up whatever might be left.

State police squad cars to get their 'cherries' back on top

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Those familiar red-and-blue flashing lights everyone hates to see in their rear-view mirror could return to their former position of honor atop Illinois State Police cars.

Removed in the early 80s to save gasoline, roof-mounted emergency lights are being installed on four state police squads in an experiment to determine if they should once again become standard equipment for the entire 1,500-car fleet.

"You, the motorist, will have better visibility coming in on an accident," said Department of State Police spokesman Chuck Schwartz.

Not to mention mention a better, faster way to identify the low-slung prowler car lurking in the shadows waiting to catch unwary speeders.

Many motorists assumed camouflage was the reason the state removed the bar lights in 1983 in favor of less obtrusive flashers mounted on the dashboards and front grilles of squad cars.

For decades, the familiar "cherries" atop cruisers were a clear warning sign for leadfooted but wary drivers.

Schwartz, however, said the idea was to improve gas mileage and cut fuel costs by decreasing wind resistance.

Many speeders have become expert at spotting squad cars even without the overhead lights and new, streamlined cars now make fuel economy less important, he said.

Schwartz said four different designs of light bars will be tested on cars in Chicago, Champaign and Springfield.

Manufacturers have loaned the units to the state.

Budget constraints and the $500 to $1,500 cost for each unit forced officials to downsize their original plan to test the units on 50 patrol cars.

Gene therapy successful—so far

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first official attempt at gene therapy appears to be accomplishing its mission — boosting the immune system of a 4-year-old girl stricken with a rare, inherited immune disorder, scientists reported Monday.

The National Institutes of Health researchers said they continue to be heartened by the progress of the girl who underwent the historic procedure five months ago for a condition known as ADA deficiency.

Preliminary results show the gene therapy appears to have produced "an enhancement of the immune system" in the child, said Dr. Michael Blaese of the National Cancer Institute, who led the research with Dr. W. French Anderson.

Tests found the Ohio girl, whose name has not been released, had a "striking increase" in her ability to make antibodies after her fourth treatment, Blaese said.

Antibodies are proteins the immune system produces to fend off disease-causing microbes and other foreign substances.

Baltic unrest may cost Soviets agricultural aid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Soviet Union, the No. 1 customer for U.S. grain, will have to make "a very hard sell" if it seeks additional U. S. credit guarantees for food purchases, in the view of Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter.

In early January, U.S. and Soviet officials agreed on terms of a $1 billion package of export credit guarantees.

THE GUARANTEES assure lenders they will get their money back if the Kremlin is unable to pay back the loan.

"Those certainly are high-risk credit guarantees. We knew that at the time they were made," Yeutter said, but the administration felt the offer "constituted a wise policy move" to help the Soviet Union weather economic dislocations.

YEUTTER SAID it was "much too early to tell" if the guarantees would be repaid.

In two related matters, the Agriculture Department announced the sale of 500,000 metric tons of wheat to the Kremlin at subsidized prices and the allocation of $67 million from the credit package to cover purchases of soybeans and almonds.

UNDER THE JANUARY agreement, $900 million in credits were made immediately available with $100 million being held for later allocation.

THE COMMENTS, MADE during an interview with wire service reporters, were the strongest sign yet of Bush administration thinking on the issue of assisting the Kremlin.

Congress has suggested cutting off all economic benefit programs as a way to express displeasure over the violent Soviet crackdown in the Baltic states.

"I WOULD SIMPLY say from the vantage point of a short-timer, and from my own knowledge of this or any other administration, additional credits in the immediate future would be a very hard sell," said Yeutter, who has resigned effective March 1.

"IT WOULD BE DIFFICULT to visualize a further extension of credit guarantees in agriculture for the remainder of this fiscal year."

Flyers defeat Blackhawks

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Pelle Eklund showed his value to the Philadelphia Flyers when the team was forced to play without him for five games.

The Flyers went 1-4 without Eklund, the team's best playmaker, and scored only 11 goals, with six of them coming in their sole victory.

In his second game back in the lineup, Eklund sparked the Flyers' offense with a goal and two assists Monday afternoon to help Philadelphia defeat the Chicago Blackhawks 5-3, its second win in seven games (2-5).

"I'd say he was back," Philadelphia Coach Paul Holmgren said.

Eklund, who leads the Flyers with 43 assists and is second with 55 points, was out because of a strained hip flexor muscle.

In his first game back, he had an assist Saturday as Philadelphia lost to New Jersey. But he felt much better Monday.

"I did," he said. "After being off for two weeks, it's almost like starting all over again. You're tired and you're not in the right position. Today I felt much better so I hope I'm back again."

Ron Sutter, who scored the Flyers' fifth goal, said the difference in Eklund was noticeable.

"He had more hop in his skates," Sutter said. "He was stronger on the puck and he made some great plays."

Eklund helped the Flyers take a 2-0 lead with a pair of power-play goals. First he assisted on Mike Ricci's 18th goal of the season and then he scored his 12th goal.

Chicago got goals from Steve Thomas, Jeremy Roenick and Dirk Graham to go ahead 3-2 midway through the second period.

But Eklund assisted on another power-play goal, this one by Rick Tocchet, to tie the score at 3-3 late in the period.

Scott Mellanby gave the Flyers a 4-3 lead 7:07 into the third period and Sutter added an insurance goal at 13:33.

"That power-play goal late in the second period was a big lift for us," Holmgren said. "I don't think we've come back this year after being down a goal entering the third period. But when we go into the third period tied, we seem to have more confidence."

In fact, the Flyers are 0-19-1 when they trail entering the final period and 8-6-1 when the score is tied, but they are also 26-0-2 when they score four or more goals.

And Eklund has a lot to do with that.

"He's a big part of our offense," said Tocchet, whose goal was his 38th of the season and the 200th of his career. "He made some great passes and he scored the first goal of the game."

Eklund's best pass of the game did not even result in a goal. He had a two-on-one with Keith Acton late in the third period when he passed the puck to himself off his own skate, then sent it to Acton, who seemed unprepared for it and fanned on the shot.

"I've been working on it in practice and it was a 5-3 game," Eklund said. "I just thought I would try it."

Earnhardt waits until next year

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Dale Earnhardt, a four-time Winston Cup circuit winner, came up short for the 13th time in the Daytona 500, and had plenty to say about the outcome.

Earnhardt and Davey Allison were running side by side, four car lengths behind Ernie Ivan with two laps to go Sunday. Earnhardt was inside but his rear tires broke free from the asphalt and he slid up into Allison taking both cars out of the race, along with Kyle Petty, who was coming up quickly behind.

Moments later, Ivan radioed his pit crew: "Guess what guys, I think we just won the Daytona 500."

Allison was upset about the accident which sent him skidding and sliding into a wall and eventually off the track.

"I ain't happy," Allison said. "I had a shot to win. I saw a clean pass on the outside then a hard hit in the left quarterpanel put me in the outside wall."

Earnhardt was no more happy than Allison.

"We were going for it," he said. But he said he still has not given up on winning his first Daytona 500, the Super Bowl of stock car racing.

"I'm living for the 1992 Daytona 500," he said.

Ivan still had another lap to go when he began running out of gas. He took the Lumina down to the bottom of the track and sputtered to the finish line.

"I said, 'This can't be true. This can't be happening to me,'" Ivan recalled.

But his car did finish the race, ahead of Surling Marlin, who was second.

"Ernie's car was sputtering so bad when we got to turns three and four I thought it was going to stop," Marlin said. "I was saying, 'Quit! Quit!' But it didn't."

Ivan's victory was his first in the 500, and it didn't diminish his admiration for Earnhardt. The two drivers, both aggressive on the track, talk frequently and Ivan has asked Earnhardt to tell him if he thinks he has stepped out of line.

At the Twin 125 qualifying races Thursday, they tested each other's mettle as Ivan tried to get around Earnhardt, who was trying to block him.

"I hit him pretty hard (from behind)," Ivan said.

Boris Becker out with thigh injury

STUTTGART, Germany (UPI) — Boris Becker withdrew Monday from the $1 million Stuttgart Classic because of a thigh injury and will be sidelined at least four weeks.

The injury likely will cost the German star in his effort to regain the No. 1 ranking from Stefan Edberg. The Swede moved back into the No. 1 slot when Becker was forced to retire with a thigh injury during the semifinals of last weekend's tournament in Belgium.

Becker's manager Ion Tiriac said the world's No. 2 player would be unable to defend his Stuttgart title. Tiriac said Becker will be out a month, possibly rejoining the tour March 15 at Key Biscayne, Fla.

"Becker's whole regeneration system is not functioning," Tiriac said at a news conference. "It would have been too dangerous to take part in Stuttgart."

Tiriac said Becker should not have played in Germany's Davis Cup matches against Italy earlier this month and in last week's Grand Prix event in Brussels. He thought Becker should have rested a few weeks after reaching No. 1 with his Australian Open triumph.

Earlier Monday, organizers switched Becker's opening match against Swedish qualifier Jan Gunnarsson from Tuesday to Wednesday to give the German star an additional rest day.

Marketing director Hans-Peter Jacob fears ticket sales will now dramatically decline without the local favorite, but tournament director Markus Guentliard remained optimistic.

"Even without him we have a first-class event," he said. "It is very interesting for the real tennis fan."

Edberg entered the Stuttgart tournament with a 17-point lead over Becker in the ATP rankings. The Swede can now bolster his standing with a good performance in Stuttgart. He faces German qualifier Markus Zoecke in the first round.

Before a crowd of 2,000 at Schleyer arena, Sweden's Magnus Gustavsson dined Switzerland's Marc Rosset 6-4, 6-1; Sweden's Jonas Svensson beat Australia's Richard Fromberg 6-7 (3-7), 6-1, 6-0, and, in an all German match, Eric Jelen defeated Carl-Uwe Steeb 6-3, 6-4.

"It was difficult for both of us," Jelen said. "We are close friends and both members of the German Davis-Cup team."

One break per set was enough for Jelen to win in 69 minutes. Steeb was too passive from the baseline and had no answer to Jelen's attacking net game.

Graf resists temptation to move

BONN, Germany (UPI) — Tennis star Steffi Graf says she will remain in Germany despite the intense scrutiny that hurt her play last season.

"Nineteen-ninety was a terrible year for me," the world's No. 1 women's tennis player said Monday in the German newspaper Bild. "My performance was affected by all the other things. The press didn't help me at all. The things they accused my father of were in worse than in bad taste. It affected me all year long."

Graf won the Grand Slam in 1988, and three majors in 1989.

She played most of the 1990 season amid reports of an affair between her father, Peter Graf, and model Nicole Meissner.

Graf retained her No. 1 ranking during 1990, but her Australian Open victory was her lone Grand Slam success.

She lost in the finals of the French Open to Monica Seles and in the U.S. Open to Gabriela Sabatini. She went out in the semifinals at Wimbledon to Zina Garrison.

Graf said she had considered moving to another country—reportedly the United States—to escape the media pressure, but eventually decided against it.

"I often thought about it," she said. "But I love Germany too much, so therefore I am staying."

She says her father will remain her manager.

"I will continue to make all the important decisions together with him," she said. "My father will always be an important factor in my life."

She described as "unbelievable" the suggestion by Wimbledon champion Martina Navratilova that she should engage someone else to manage her career.

White Sox sign Pasqua, leave Snyder to arbitration

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago White Sox avoided arbitration with outfielder-designated hitter Dan Pasqua, signing him to a one-year contract Monday, but new comer Cory Snyder took his case to an arbitrator.

Acquired from Cleveland in December, Snyder is asking for $1.2 million, while the White Sox have offered $800,000. The outfielder made $700,000 last season.

The two sides reportedly were close, but no deal was struck before Monday's arbitration hearing held in Chicago.

An arbitration hearing with Pasqua, 29, had been set for Tuesday.

Terms of his new contract were not revealed. The fourth-rounder, entering his fourth season with the White Sox, had been seeking $920,000, while the club originally offered $720,000. Pasqua made $370,000 in 1990.

Pasqua batted .275 with 13 home runs and 58 RBI last season in part-time duty.

Chicago acquired him in November 1987 as part of a three-player swap with the New York Yankees that sent pitchers Richard Dotson and Scott Nielsen to New York.

Netters struggle at Invitational

The SIUC women's tennis team struggled at the Eastern Kentucky University Invitational this weekend but managed to bring home some wins.

In Flight 1 singles, senior Missy Jeffrey lost in the consolation match to University of Toledo's Eva Almquist 5-7, 4-6. Jeffrey went 1-2 for the weekend.

Sophomore Wenc Varnum had a 2-0 weekend, winning the Flight 2 singles final match 6-3, 6-3 against Ohio State's Abigail Villena.

In Flight 3 singles, junior Lori Edwards went 2-1 at the invitational, losing in the finals to Nicole Fiber of West Virginia 1-6, 1-6.

Sophomore Lori Gallagher had a

3-0 weekend, beating Stephanie Daniel of Ohio State in the Flight 4 finals match 2-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Flight 5 singles player freshman Leesa Joseph withdrew from the match because of an arm injury.

Joseph was able to compete in the Flight 3 doubles match with senior Michele Toye for a 2-1 weekend. The duo lost in the finals to Michelle Tondreault and Jo Marie Cinco of West Virginia 7-6, 2-6, 2-6.

Sophomore Karen Wasser also competed in the Flight 5 singles. Wasser won the consolation match against Emily Humphrey from the University of Toledo, 6-2, 6-4.

Toye and freshman Anna

Tsui competed in the Flight 6 singles. Toye lost in the finals 0-3, 2-6, 1-6 to Tondreault and Tsui also lost to Tondreault 0-6, 0-6.

In doubles play, Jeffrey and Edwards lost to Ohio State's Kelly Story and Abigail Villena 2-6, 4-6.

Varnum and Gallagher went 1-1 for the weekend, losing to Daniel and Allison Kinsey of Ohio State 4-6, 4-6.

Wasser and Tsui won the consolations in Flight 3 singles for a 2-1 weekend. The doubles team defeated Sabana Zilberstein and Maria Olmedo 7-6, 6-4.

The Saikius are preparing for their spring break trip to Hilton Head Island, South Carolina.

a good supply of well-placed elbows and hip checks to dish out to go with his three-point shooting and unselfish passing.

"It's sad to see it end," Shipley said. "But when I look back, it's been great. You want to be remembered as someone who busted their butt for the team each night. That's what it's all about."

No statement better fits Shipley and Mahan's record in their four years. The duo missed just two games during their career. They continue to share the record for most games played as a Saluki, at 119 and counting.

Deservedly, the seniors got a bit of recognition prior to the contest as Carbondale Mayor Neil Dillard and Herrin presented them with certificates to a standing ovation from the crowd. Then they got down to business of racking up one last win on their home floor.

The trio checked into the game for the final time at the 3:49 mark and proceeded to put on the last of many shows they performed for Saluki fans during their era.

Griffin snaked a steal and sprinted down the floor, dishing to Mahan. Mahan drove to the hoop and delivered a no-look dish to a cutting Shipley who layed it in, to end the fast-break and their Arena careers.

At the 1:28 mark, Shipley and Mahan took their final Arena bow, to another standing ovation, while Griffin finished the game.

What a beautiful way to go.

Coaches still crying over NCAA changes

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Coaches, in general, comprise a body resistant to change so when the NCAA voted to slice into their very livelihood, the expected cry arose and continued through Monday's College Football Forum.

In January the NCAA, at the insistence of the Presidents Commission, shoved through a series of measures that, among other things, restricted the number of coaches who could recruit off-campus to seven and lopped off one fulltime coaching position.

"These are poly-skilled operations and there'd soon be a coach for every position," said Bernard Slioger, president of Florida State and one of the administrators at the NCAA forum. "There was a feeling that this had to be checked. The one (cut) that most of us questioned was the one in football, but the feeling was that unless we cut football we were going to have trouble cutting the others."

While the NCAA was passing the legislation, the football coaches were having their own convention at New Orleans where, Brigham Young Coach Lavell Edwards said, they participated in a favorite pastime where they "sit down there and gripe and w...at ever."

The coaches were angry because some of them would be forced to let some of their friends go.

"Nobody appreciates the concerns of the coaches more than I do," said Southeastern Conference Commissioner Roy Kramer. "I coached for a long time. But all of us have to realize that intercollegiate athletics do not exist for the sake of creating job opportunities for coaches or for athletic directors or for administrators."

While none of the coaches were ready to argue that point, they were still on the defensive about the changes. They apparently don't like to have to make the tough choices, either. Apart from the staff reduction, the item that stung the head coaches the most was the limit going off campus to recruit, meaning they would have to tell two of three coaches that they are out of the recruiting loop.

Tennessee Coach Johnny Majors said, "It's going to affect their futures. They'll say, 'I'm not a recruiter on the road, how is that going to affect me if somebody wants to interview to be a head coaching job.' And do you pay the ones on the road more, then those not? This are things that have to be considered."

Several coaches suggested that a rotation of all the coaches on the staff with a limit of seven out on any one week would be a viable compromise and would help morale.

They agreed that either way it was a rich-get-richer scenario, since fewer coaches would be out selling the schools, the high-profile teams would benefit from the lack of competition.

"It's going to be more of an advantage for those people already in good recruiting spots and the schools with the good reputations," said Majors. "It will affect the

No. 7 Duke and No. 8 Arizona both fell two positions after suffering losses over the weekend, while Kansas improved two places into ninth and Utah jumped three to 10th.

Utah owns the second-highest win total in the nation at 24-2 and has won 21 of its last 22 games. The last time the Utes made the Top 10 was at the end of the 1980-81 season, when they finished 25-5.

With their 81-74 victory Saturday night over Brigham Young, the Utes clinched sole possession of the Western Athletic Conference regular-season title for the first time since 1977.

"This team is the little engine that could," Utah Coach Rick Majerus said. "These guys have played so well together for so long. I'm just as happy as I can be for them."

By winning its final two regular-season games, the Utes can tie the school's single-season victory mark of 26 set in 1960.

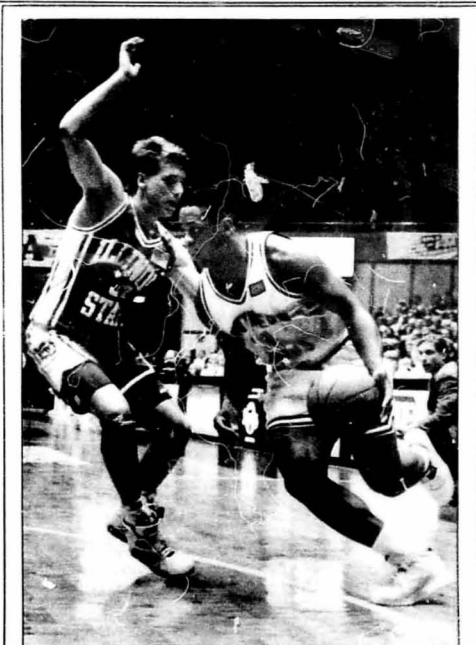

No. 11 Southern Mississippi slipped one place and No. 12 East Tennessee State fell three. Nebraska moved up three spots to 13th.

No. 14 New Mexico State improved one despite its loss to UNLV.

No. 15 Oklahoma State vaulted four positions, No. 16 St. John's fell four spots and No. 17 UCLA dropped three. No. 18 Louisiana State jumped six places after beating Alabama 88-81 on Sunday.

Virginia slipped one place to 19th and No. 20 Princeton entered the ratings for the second time this season. No. 21 Mississippi State rejoined the list after a one-week hiatus and No. 22 Georgetown slumped five places following losses to Connecticut and Seton Hall.

Texas and Alabama were tied for 23rd and there was another tie for 25th between newcomers Seton Hall and North Carolina State.
