Students vote down fee increase

Battle for athletics dollars forces officials to find funds

By Katie Morrison
Administration Reporter

SIUC students voted against supporting a $40 fee increase which would have saved Intercollegiate Athletics from a $1.2 million funding cut as recommended by the Illinois Board of Higher Education.

Approximately 2,700 students turned out for the vote with 1,557 voting no and 1,152 voting yes.

Undergraduate Student Government president Mike Spiwak said the next step is for the SIUC Board of Trustees to review the student reaction at the April meeting and make decisions about how to compensate for the proposed cut.

Spiwak said he was surprised by the large turnout, which rivaled last April's student government elections.

Spiwak said since the referendum was a money issue, more students voted.

Graduate and Professional Student Council executive assistant Bill Hali said that the council will find a means to replace the funds, if the board follows through with the recommendation.

"We don't want the student athletes to think they don't have a home at SIUC," Hali said. "We're going to make sure that every dime of the money will be found."

The proposed cut is part of the board's Priorities, Quality and Productivity statewide initiative to decrease wasteful spending at institutions of higher education. The board places more emphasis on academics than athletics.

The vote originally was scheduled for Feb. 4, but was postponed when Graduate and Professional Student Council president Susan Hall said she was concerned students would not be informed enough to make an educated choice. The extra two weeks were used by distributing fliers explaining the increase.

An athletic fee increase is not the only option for the University to consider, SIUC President John C. Guyon said. Other alternatives include allowing corporate sponsorship by alcohol companies, and more aggressively pursuing existing corporate sponsors as well as proving to the board that the athletic program is a benefit to SIUC academics.

Helping hands: Welch goes to SIUE for housing start-up

By Emily Priddy
Administration Reporter

Major changes in student life at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville are drawing an SIUC administrator away from Carbondale for the next six months.

Harvey Welch, SIUC vice president for student affairs, is working with Edwardsville officials to help establish a housing system.

SIUE historically has been a commuter school, but officials hope to open a new 500-bed dormitory by the fall 1994 semester, Jack Dyer, University relations director at SIUC, said.

Welch was selected to help set up housing guidelines, work out potential problems and assist with efforts to upgrade food and health services at Edwardsville, Jean Paratore, associate vice president for student affairs, said.

"SIUC administrators have asked vice president Welch to go up there and serve mainly as a consultant," she said. "He has a working knowledge of how these (housing-related) things work, and what needs to be done."

Welch's background in housing issues should significantly benefit the Edwardsville campus, SIUC President John C. Guyon said.

"Harvey brings some specific expertise in all of those areas (with which SIUE needs assistance)," Guyon said. "I hope that we can continue to plug along. There is a felt need up there (at SIUE) and we're just trying to help our colleagues."

Aerospace industry flying high again

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON—Saudi Arabia said Wednesday that it will "buy American" in a $6 billion rejuvenation of its national airline's fleet, opening the way for Boeing Co. and McDonnell Douglas Corp. to share the only major order for commercial aircraft on the horizon.

With the chairman of Boeing and McDonnell Douglas looking on at an unusual White House ceremony, President Clinton said Prince Bandar bin Sultan, Saudi Arabia's ambassador, had told him that King Fahd has decided to "purchase the entire replacement fleet" of about 50 planes from U.S. companies.

"Events in Bosnia and the Middle East are still further proof that American leadership is indispensable," Prince Bandar told the crowded Roosevelt Room gathering, in an event full of mixed commercial, diplomatic and political messages.

John F. McDonnell, head of McDonnell Douglas, noted that "This sale of McDonnell Douglas jetliners will convert directly into tens of thousands of jobs — jobs primarily in Southern California, but also jobs through/out the United States."

The aerospace industry has been shedding jobs by the thousands as airlines around the world, hard pressed by economic downturn, slashed orders for new planes. That resulted directly in the loss of high-paying jobs in politically sensitive states such as California.

Birds of a feather found together

Student discovers two species nesting in grassy vegetation

By Stephanie Moletti
Environmental Reporter

Four unreclaimed mine sites in Southern Illinois are housing threatened and endangered species, an SIUC zoology graduate student says.

Amy Horstman, a zoology graduate from LaCrosse, Wis., surveyed former mine sites as part of a research project and found two species of birds, the least bitterns and common moorhens, nesting and reproducing young successfully in the area.

The least bitterns are endangered in Illinois and the common moorhens are threatened in the state.

Two other species, grebes which are endangered in Illinois and soras which are rare in the state, also were found using the former mine sites.

Tall vegetation such as cattails and reedgrass provide the dense habitat preferred by these birds, Horstman said.

Pat Malone, mining program manager for the Illinois Department of Conservation, said Horstman's research proves that reed grass is an

FALKLANDS HERO PUT TO TEST IN BOSNIA — On the afternoon of May 31, 1982, a helicopter bearing then-Col. Michael Rose, commander of British special forces in the Falklands War, swept 40 miles beyond British lines on a commando raid against Argentine troops. More than a decade later those words echo in another war half-way around the world. As NATO and United Nations policymakers wrestle over how to implement their ultimatum aimed at securing peace in Sarajevo, their point man on the ground is the same Rose, now a knighted British lieutenant general and commander of U.N. forces in Bosnia.

FORMER CHILD PROSTITUTE SOUGHT EXCITEMENT — Vanessa, as she chooses to be called, was just shy of her 14th birthday when she started walking the Calgary streets as a prostitute. She had had one sexual partner before she went into the business, and thought the whole idea seemed glamorous. "It looked exciting. It looked attractive. It looked like good money," she says now. Unlike many of the young girls Calgaryans have started to reclaim, Vanessa didn't have to be lured. Even though she came from an intact, middle-class family, when she learned that a young man she knew was a pimp, she told him she wanted to go to work.

STOLEN MUNCH PAINTING ICON FOR DECADES — To thieves who stole Edward Munch's famous painting "The Scream" Saturday from Oslo's National Gallery, it's an object of small use. It's a trophy that cannot be shown, loot that can't be sold. Perhaps they're holding it for ransom—Norway's offered a reward of 200,000 crowns, or $26,700, for its safe return. The thieves may have stashed away a three-foot sheet of cardboard worked with tempera and casein in 1893, but they cannot catch "The Scream."

CEREMONIAL OLD GUARD OPENS RANKS — Joining an effort to expand the role of women in the military, top Army officials approved a plan last week that will make women eligible to join ceremonies that until now were restricted to male soldiers: guarding the Tomb of the Unknowns, guiding the horse-drawn hearse at funerals and taking part in precision lines of soldiers—known as cordons—that greet foreign leaders. "This sends a signal that is loud and clear to the public that the Army has expanded its roles for women," said Col. Stephen Nash, the Old Guard's commander.

DOG SURVIVES 25 DAYS WITHOUT FOOD, WATER — Honey, a 14-year-old golden retriever, endured 25 days without food and water during some of the coldest weather in years after she wandered away and apparently fell into a secluded goose hunting pit. "She's an older dog, and I find it amazing that she survived," said Gerard A. Boston, a veterinarian who helped care for Honey after she was discovered Feb. 7 less than a half-mile from the brick farmhouse where she lives near here. The dog left an animal hospital and returned home with her owners on Monday.

OFFICIAL CRITICIZED OVER USE OF WILL — About 50 political contributors to Fairfax (Va.) Circuit Court Clerk John Frey were given a private viewing of George and Martha Washington's wills Tuesday evening, prompting county Democrats to accuse the Republican of using the historic document for personal gain. As clerk, Frey oversees the storage of the wills. Fairfax Commonwealth's Attorney Robert F. Horan Jr. said Frey's fund-raiser did not appear to break any laws concerning the use of public documents and facilities, "but it is close."

Japanese trade war unlikely, SIUC students, faculty say

By Jeff McIntire
International Reporter

Washington officials talked tough Wednesday about possible trade sanctions against Japan, but some SIUC students and faculty think the threats are only negotiation tactics.

SIUC economics professor Paul Trescott said Clinton's threats only are political posturing.

"This is being done for a domestic audience, because it is not a good way to conduct foreign diplomacy," he said. "He thinks that he can make political capital on bashing Japan."

White House officials are talking about starting a possible trade war since trade negotiations with Japan broke down Friday.

In response to Japan's alleged failure to open the cellular phone market for Schaumburg-based Motorola, Inc., President Clinton threatened to impose trade restrictions on about $300 million of Japanese imports.

Motorola officials said Japan failed to hold to its 1989 agreement allowing the company unrestricted access to the 60 million-consumer cellular phone market in the Tokyo-Nagoya region.

The threatened trade restrictions against Japan only would affect a small amount of Japanese trade; about the amount it exports to the United States in one day.

Trescott said Japan will not be hurt because it can get higher prices for the lower quantities of

The little girl frowned and said she did not like her African-American heritage, saying, "I'm not from no jungle."

But the girl soon learned through an SIUC program to appreciate and admire her heritage. Najjar M. Musawwir, art program coordinator at Attucks Community Service Board, said.

Musawwir said the global awareness program allows underprivileged children to learn about self-expression. Their work is on display now until March 5 in the art gallery at the Student Center.

"After the global awareness program, after she (the little girl) learned about the rich cultures and traditions and history of Africa after learning how to carve, she wrote, 'I am African' in sandstone," he said.

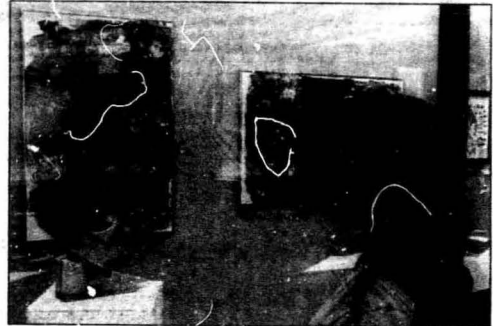

DeAnna Smithnosk, SPC fine arts chair, said this is the first time art work by children has been displayed in the student center.

Musawwir said the children learn to create art, not just for art's sake but also to learn what it means to exhibit work.

"The board inspired kids to think in terms of being professionals, which also allows them to develop self esteem," Musawwir said.

Artistic self-expression also allows individuals to remain individualistic, he said.

"Everything we do as humans we approach with creativity," he said. "Society tries to mold us, and (destroy) our creativity... through art, they (children) learn they do not have to be a product of the environment, without thinking."

Musawwir said the display contains some work from both the children and their instructors. One of the largest pieces is a collage on an image of the African continent.

It is the collaborative effort of about 45 kids, he said.

The instructor's work is often a starting point for the children's work. One instructor's piece depicts the proud face of an African queen. A child has tried to imitate this work in her own way, using similar color and texture.

About 20 children were given two to three minutes each to work on the piece, which gives it a rich layer of colors and textures, he said.

"It is called 'Children's Freedom,' because they all had the freedom to work," he said.

Musawwir also works with the School of Art and Design's visiting artist program. It brought Chicago artist Mr. Imagination, who helped the children learn to carve in sandstone.

There are a few of the intricate sandstone carvings in the exhibit.

Delores Albritton, executive director of Attucks, said the art program allows the children to develop self-expression.

"It allows them to fill themselves with art," she said. "Sometimes they aren't heard, and (this allows) them to express themselves silently."

Albritton said the program builds a sense of community in the children, she said.

The children are not the only ones who benefit from the program, Musawwir said.

"The kids have taught me a lot more than I've taught them," he said.

There will be a reception in the Student Center art gallery at 7 p.m. Friday. The public is invited.

Residents auction services for AIDS fund raiser, charity

By Aleksandra Macys
Health Reporter

As SIUC student Michael Charlesworth stood on the stage in Lentz Hall before a crowd of students, he did not know how much people would pay for him, but knew the money would go to a good cause.

Twenty-three Thompson Point staff and students took part in Health-Loving Week by auctioning off services in the first Rent-a-Resident auction.

The money collected during the auction will go to the Southern Illinois Regional Effort for AIDS.

Students auctioned off different services such as a half-hour of vacuuming, providing dinner, and taking them to movies and picnics.

C. Anthony Earls, coordinator of residence life, said he would allow the highest bidder to manage Thompson Point for an hour, and would take up to two people to the Pasta House for lunch.

Budget plan makes students pay for aid

THE CLINTON BUDGET PLAN INCLUDES A MIX of good news and bad news for college students seeking financial aid. The best news: If the plan is approved, more federal financial aid will be available to students. According to the U.S. Department of Education, the plan would result in a net gain of $1.2 billion in student aid for fiscal year 1995. This increase would result from a $936 million increase in federal loans, a $476 million increase for Pell Grants and a $100 million increase for college work-study.

However, the plan also proposes cuts such as $158 million in federal support for the Perkins Loan program.

THE PLAN WOULD RAISE THE MAXIMUM PELL Grant award from $2,300 a year to $2,400. The good news: This would make more money available to the most economically disadvantaged students. This would result in some students receiving about 4 percent more Pell Grant money in 1995. The bad news: The overall increase slated for the program is about 1 percent. This means some students would receive less aid.

SIUC Financial Aid Director Pamela Britton said the University has a large population of students receiving maximum Pell Grant award compared to other Illinois universities, so the proposed increase would benefit many SIUC students. It also would help offset recent decreases in the Illinois Student Assistance Commission's Monetary Awards Program, which helps the state's most economically disadvantaged students.

A $936 MILLION INCREASE IN FEDERAL LOANS would make more financial assistance available to students. It also would promote a growing trend of college students becoming increasingly reliant on loans. According to a report in the Feb. 16 "Chronicle of Higher Education," dramatic increases in student borrowing have been reported at many colleges. Higher education costs are rising, so students are relying more on loans. Some leave college with astronomical debts.

Britton said there has been a steady increase in SIUC students' reliance on loans because state and federal grant programs have not kept pace with increasing higher education costs.

THE PROPOSAL TO INCREASE COLLEGE WORK Study funding by $100 million was made as an effort to offset the financial impact of a new federal requirement that colleges devote 5 percent of work study money to support students working in community service projects.

Britton said the proposal is good news because the University will be required to spend 5 percent for community service work in 1994-1995, but there has not been an increase in funding to pay for the program.

The additional money also should make more college work study positions available for students.

HOWEVER, THE PROPOSAL TO ELIMINATE federal contributions to the Perkins Loan Program would cost SIUC about $700,000 a year, the amount the federal government contributes to the program. SIUC, like other universities, has contributed $3 for each federal dollar. Therefore, the SIUC's Perkins Loan fund would shrink from about $2.8 million to $2.1 million.

Some students relying on low-interest Perkins Loans would receive less assistance and be forced to switch to higher-interest loans.

STUDENTS WILL RECEIVE MORE FINANCIAL aid, but they will also pay for it with work study and higher-interest loans. In an era of cost-cutting, deficit reduction and downsizing students could do worse.

Letters to the Editor

Society provides animal rights

I would like to respond to Michael Caldwell's letter as published in the 9 Feb. 94 edition of the DE. Let me state for the record that animals do have rights.

Let's ponder for a while on the notion of rights. I discard out of hand the assertion that rights are God given. There either is no God, or else too damn many of them. I think the former is correct. Where, then, do rights come from? Rights are granted by those who have the power to grant them, and to enforce these grants. In our democratic society these rights are granted by the elected legislature in the form of laws. What is a right? In this country a right is what a majority of the voters say it is. In other countries, during other times, rights are what the king or dictator said they were. Today, in Bosnia, rights do "come from the barrel of a gun."

Michael says that the ability to assert claim to a right is inherent in the concept of possessing rights. In the face of it this argument is silly. Would you grant no rights to a newborn child, or to a person who lays unconscious from some mishap? So we all lose our rights when we sleep? This is nonsense. He says further that you must know that you have a right in order to really have it. While it is true that to personally exercise your rights you must know that you have them, it is also true that a guardian may exercise your rights on your behalf. (As an aside, let me say that it is not necessary to claim a right in order to continue to hold it. A right that must be exercised is not a right, it is an obligation. A right to life implies a right to die.)

And, so, back to the beginning. Do animals have rights? Sure they do. They have the rights that we give them, the rights that we, as a society insist be respected. We enforce this grant by threat of punishment.

As "The Spirit of the Times" changes so, too, for the rights that we recognize change, both in number and in scope. The animal rights advocate is working to change this spirit. Let's hope that the majority can blunt the extremists on both sides of this issue.

Love hurts, so did story

In response to "Love is Hell", from the February 11th Southern Exposure: it is often healthy to laugh at life's experiences, but the blatant disregard that assignment has shown to the feelings of others is repulsive. The whole idea of putting people up to potentially damaging pretense is unethical. It is cruel to go to the bars to lure and lead someone on for an evening just to see how far it goes, even worse to write about it afterward. This gives the Daily Egyptian a reputation along the lines of the Enquirer, Star, and other sensationalist publications.

I am writing this reaction on Valentine's Day, and reflecting upon those people who may have unsuspectingly been hurt by that article and assignment. The article was exaggerated, but the embarrassment and rejection felt by those who were the subject of a cruel joke may not be. Think of the people who are so desperately trying to fulfill the emptiness in their hearts that they turn to the personal ads. There are people in bars blindly consuming carnal pleasure to ease the aching pain, and instead are destroying their bodies even further. Some become victims. Others mentally and physically rape and prey upon the vulnerable. Neither is satisfied, both only hurt more.

What about the true concept of love that is trusting, enduring, protecting, and understanding? Real love is not based purely upon physical attraction, although eros love is definitely a part of it. People need unconditional agape love, healing, and encouragement to have personal integrity, not reinforcement to lust. My prayer for those that can identify with the pain is that you can truly find this agape love. If you are also the aggressor, please open your eyes and treat another as you wish to be treated.

DE shows bias in athletics fee news coverage

I am appalled by the obvious bias this paper has shown in trying to get the referendum on the sports fee increase defeated.

As a former photo-editor for the Western Wyoming Community College newspaper, I understand that some bias is inevitable. But the utter abandon with which you have gone after the athletic system here makes no sense. If you must go after the athletic department, give them equal opportunity to respond. If you write ten articles against them and only give them one time to respond you can hardly call that unbiased.

This one to two-week-old least bittern, was photographed in August 1993 during field research in Ava at Arch of Illinois' Denmark mine.

acceptable part of vegetation in wetlands.

Horstman's research was based on initial research done by Joe Pratt of the conservation department.

"Joe's (Pratt) initial research was to find what species utilized these wetlands," Malone said. "Amy's follow-up was provided more specific data and has given us a lot of good information."

Horstman began her research in early April in emergent, tall dense, wetland areas. She used vocalization, playing back recordings of bird calls, to locate the birds and mapped the areas of response.

The four mine sites include Consolidation Coal Company's Burning Star No. 5 near DeSoto, Peabody Coal Company's Will Scarlet mine in Carrier Mills, Peabody's River King No. 1 in Freeburg and Arch of Illinois' Denmark mine near Ava. The Denmark mine was the site where most the nesting was taking place, Horstman said.

"When I first went out I sat and listened for the birds to spontaneously call. The grebes and moorhens called spontaneously. The bitterns were less spontaneous but all four species responded well to the recorded calls," Horstman said.

Horstman said because the bitterns are very secretive birds, it is difficult to research them heavily. Therefore, pieces are missing from their life history.

"I spent three weeks mapping and playing the recordings without seeing a bittern," Horstman said.

A high proportion of nests were found in the cattails. However, Horstman said she believes more nest were found in cattails because of the difficulty of locating the nests in the dense reedgrass.

Horstman said the reason these species were found at the sites is because all sites surveyed supported water throughout the species' nesting season. The vegetation structure, dense tall emergent vegetation, also contributes to the birds' presence.

Malone said the conservation department is working with the mine operators to reach an agreement for protecting the endangered species.

"We are working with the mine companies to develop new wetlands to provide the habitat for these species," Malone said. "The coal operators in Southern Illinois have responded positively."

The slurry ponds, researched by Horstman, may be disturbed by carbon recovery operations. This is the process of recovering the carbon left behind at mine sites to blend with high sulfur coal, Malone said.

However, mine operators must allow the conservation department to do a site investigation and walk and swim through the wetlands to determine if the birds are present or nesting, Malone said.

Dyer said Welch's absence will have little impact on SIUC as a whole.

"He's going up there (to Edwardsville) all alone," Dyer said. "He's on a loan. He's going up there on a temporary basis."

Paratore is operating Welch's office while he is absent, but Welch will continue to make major decisions concerning student affairs.

"He's still vice president for student affairs here," she said. "He'll be very much involved — his plan is to be back here at least one day a week."

The student affairs department will continue to function in the meantime, Paratore said.

"This office is open," she said. "We're not closed, and there is someone sitting here to handle things while (Welch) is gone."

Guyon said Welch probably will receive compensation from SIUC for his efforts.

Welch could not be reached for comment.

Common birth control myths dispelled

By Liz Nieman
Student Health Programs

To Your Health

If we have the technology to create the birth control pill, the Depo-Provera injection, and the female condom, why do more than one million young women become pregnant each year? Clearly, education must accompany the method of birth control chosen.

The United States contributes to higher pregnancy rates by not having contraceptives readily available and free of charge, by restricting or forbidding sexuality education, by limiting access to health care, and by flooding the media with mixed messages about sex.

Therefore, if you choose to be sexually active, it is up to you to be educated about the types of contraceptives and their use.

Some common myths about pregnancy protection.

- You cannot get pregnant while having your period. Fact: Some individuals have become pregnant while menstruating (having their period).
- Withdrawal and douching are acceptable ways to prevent pregnancy. Fact: These non-methods have high failure rates.
- Alcohol and drug use does not contribute to poor judgment in using contraceptives and making sexual decisions. Fact: Substance abuse impairs our ability to make rational decisions, we may forget to use birth control, or we may use it incorrectly.

athletes' graduation rates and grade point averages at the Feb. 10 trustees meeting, explaining the priority of athletics at the University by highlighting student athletes' above average academic performance.

Hart and West reported that one-third of all athletes have a 3.0 GPA or better, and a 2.77 cumulative average, in the effort to show that student athletes impact the University's academics positively.

Guyon said he was impressed with the presentation and was considering taking the data to the board as an alternative to compensating for the cut.

Guyon said student opinion is vital to his decision to try to compensate for the graduation loss.

"Student input is a critical variable," Guyon said.

of goods it exports, such as electronics and cars.

"(The threatened sanctions) are just a blustering process," he said. "But if he puts import restrictions on Japan, he's mainly punishing the American people."

SJUC Japanese instructor Janet Fair said a solution to the trade differences eventually will be reached.

U.S. leaders should explore options in other countries, improve their products and distribution channels for the products, Fair said.

"I don't think Clinton wants to start a trade war," she said. "I think he's just trying to make conditions better for American businesses."

Clinton could impose some of the restrictions, but most of the sanctions only are a symbolic gesture, Trescott said.

Yusuke Takatsu, a senior in speech communications from Niigari, Japan, said he expects both governments to return to the negotiating table.

Kendre Galanti, auction coordinator, said Earls' offer brought in $30 and was one of the highest bids.

The total amount raised for SIREA was $268, and Galanti said she was satisfied with the amount.

"We chose to give the money to SIREA because the program is in conjunction with Healthy Loving Week," Galanti said. "They promote AIDS education and they don't get a lot of money like the American Heart Association."

Healthy Loving Week, established to promote awareness of sexuality and associated problems, is sponsored by the Wellness Center, Peer Health Advocates, SIUC AIDS Task Force, Thompson Point Residence Life staff, SIREA and WIDB radio.

Charlesworth, Smith Hall council president, said his services brought in $4 for the Southern Illinois Regional Effort for AIDS.

"I noticed signs posted throughout the hallway about the auction. I talked to my RA (Resident Assistant) about it and decided to take part in it because it was for a good cause," Charlesworth said.

Students offered a variety of services.

Abbott Hall resident and a WIDB D.J. Jamal Powell offered a guest spot on his radio show, while Northwest Annex Head Resident Keith Scharnau offered two fourth-row, center-court tickets to a Saluki basketball game.

Amy Marsh, Baldwin Hall council treasurer, offered Pagnini's pizza and pasta for dinner, and collected $45 - one of the highest bids.

Sawyer offered $25 million deal

NEW YORK—Diane Sawyer agreed to a new long-term agreement with ABC News Wednesday that will make her among the most visible personalities on network television.

ABC News said Sawyer will continue to anchor "PrimeTime Live" and will have a "contributing" role on "Day One."

There were reports that Sawyer had signed a five-year deal worth $25 million, which would make her ABC News' third-highest-paid employee, after Walters and Peter Jennings.

Counting Crows members: David Bryson, Adam Duritz, Matt Malley, Charlie Gillingham and Steve Bowman open for Cracker Feb. 26 when they perform at SIUC.

Fad alive, kicking

Concert announcement creates CD interest

Alternative bands often are regarded by critics as a fad, but the work of Cracker and Counting Crows is convincing non-believers that alternative sound is a respectable music genre.

Cracker and Counting Crows will play at 8 p.m. Feb. 26 at Shryock Auditorium. The bands are relatively new to the college music scene, but the tickets sold out fast.

"We sold all our tickets to the concert in three days," Brady Campbell, assistant manager of Disc Jockey records, said.

"Ever since the concert was announced, CD sales have increased about 1000 percent," Campbell said. "Cracker is by far our number one selling album."

Counting Crows only have released one album and Cracker two, but they are not exactly rookies.

Cracker band leader David Lowery released six albums with the critically acclaimed college band Camper Van Beethoven.

The difference between Camper Van Beethoven and Cracker is vast, although Lowery is the chief songwriter for both bands. The Arabic reggae stylings that characterized Camper Van Beethoven are gone, replaced by cranked up, guitar driven rock that Lowery refers to as "Cracker soul."

"Cracker is a pure power pop band with great hooks while Counting Crows is a Credence Clearwater Revival in a pop sense," Matt Tepper of WIDB radio said.

Both bands are very popular among SIUC students and frequently are played on Carbondale rock radio.

Tepper said, "We play both albums in heavy rotation."

"Counting Crows is huge for us, but Cracker seems to be limited to a younger audience even though both albums are in the top 50," Lester St. James of WTAO said.

Even though WTAO is hosting the show, St. James said the station will remain loyal to the bands, and continue to give them heavy airplay even after the show is over.

The popularity of both bands may be huge on college campuses, but they have yet to achieve mainstream success like other alternative bands such as Pearl Jam and Nirvana. There may be several reasons for this, among them the wide-spread belief that in order to achieve mainstream success a band must sell out.

"People say bands sell-out to be popular, but I think it is hard for a band to sell out. Everyone would like to write a popular song if they could," Steve Ciabattani, associate editor of the College Music Journal said.

"Bands do not necessarily need to sell-out in order to be popular," Todd Freeman, co-owner of Noteworthy Studios in Carbondale said. "I think nowadays with the technology a lot of groups could make it on their

Band struggles to reach top

In one year's time, the alternative-style band Cracker has gone from playing free promotional concerts to having one of the most requested videos on MTV.

Cracker's

rise to the top of the alternative music scene with the success of the album, "Kerosene Hat," did not come as suddenly as some people might believe because of the short time the band has been together.

Cracker only has been together three years, but band leader David Lowery is a veteran of eight albums; two with Cracker, six with Camper Van Beethoven.

"Kerosene Hat" is the band's second album, and has been on the Billboard 200 chart since its release. Their album has continued to climb the Billboard 200 chart, from 106 three weeks ago to 79 last week and 70 on Feb. 12, while their video, "Low" is played in heavy rotation on MTV.

The band's beginning resembles most college bands trying to be heard and eventually signed by a label. Members of Camper Van Beethoven started the band while attending the University of California at Santa Cruz.

Cracker manager Jackson Haring said the band's start in the music business was similar to that of most other musicians.

"Camper Van Beethoven started like most bands, releasing their first two albums, 'Telephone Free Landslide Victory' and 'Camper Van Beethoven II' with an independent label, ITR or Independent Projects Recordings," he said.

The band then switched to Pitch Tent Records in 1986 for the recording of "Camper Van Beethoven III" and "Camper Van Beethoven," Haring said.

UC Santa Cruz newspaper, "City on a Hill," wrote this about the band, "Sarcastic humor, stream of consciousness lyrics and casual iconoclasm are part of the stylistic mix. Songs like 'Take the Skinheads Bowling' (their biggest radio airplay success) have that parasensical quality of a transcribed dream."

After Camper Van Beethoven started to receive rave reviews from critics, members signed with a major label, Virgin Records, in 1987.

"They only released two records for Virgin, 'Our Beloved Revolutionary Sweetheart' and 'Key Lime Pie' before their break up in April '90," Haring said.

According to press releases, Lowery did not rest for long. In September 1990 he got together with one of his Redlands, Calif. friends: Johnny Hickman, and formed Cracker.

Because of Lowery's credentials, Virgin Records immediately signed the newly formed group.

"The band has continued see BAND, page 9 to receive rave reviews from critics and earn multitudes of fans, selling hundreds of thousands of records in the process," Haring said.

Jayson Shmueli, a senior in psychology at the University of Calif. Santa Cruz said he was impressed by the group's performance.

"I saw them about at Golden Gate Park about a year ago. Live 105 sponsored them in a free show. They were really great and they put on a show I'll never forget," he said.

With the soaring success of Cracker, it is unlikely that there will be any free shows in the future.

own. But of course some bands do sell-out for fame and fortune." Ciabattini said he does not believe the group will sell out just to make it big in the music business. "I think David Lowery is smart enough not to sell out," he said. "Even though he has that Bryan Adams look."

Ciabattini said sometimes when bands become popular they fail to stay competitive, but he does not see this happening to these bands.

"I think both bands will be around for a long time," Ciabattini said. "I don't think they'll be a flash in the pan."

Cracker may have had difficulty finding initial success, but for Counting Crows, positive responses for the band's performance have come easier, St. James said.

"I was at a Cracker concert when Counting Crows were opening and I was like, wow! These guys were receiving a bigger response than Cracker," Ciabattini said.

According to SPC Concerts Chairperson Carolyn Hansen, a survey was taken on campus in the fall to calculate popular bands and Cracker was on the top of the list.

"Usually we get hands right before they peak and after that we cannot afford to book them again. We got really lucky with these bands," Hansen said.

NOTICE FROM THE FINANCIAL AID OFFICE ALL UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS MUST COMPLY WITH THE FOLLOWING SATISFACTORY PROGRESS POLICY IN ORDER TO RECEIVE FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.

SATISFACTORY PROGRESS POLICY FOR UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS AT SOUTHERN ILLINOIS UNIVERSITY AT CARBONDALE

The Federal Government, the States, and Southern Illinois University at Carbondale have invested large sums of money in order to provide financially needy students the opportunity to obtain a post-secondary education. Financial aid recipients are responsible for using the funds provided in an acceptable manner. Therefore, a student who wishes to benefit from the receipt of financial aid funds must maintain "satisfactory progress" as defined in this policy.

AUTHORITY

The Higher Education Act of 1965 as amended and the final regulations set forth by the Department of Education in 34 CFR 668 require that institutions of higher education establish reasonable standards of "satisfactory progress". A student who does not meet these standards is not eligible to receive federally funded financial aid. Southern Illinois University at Carbondale shall make these standards applicable to all state and institutional aid programs for the purpose of maintaining a consistent and reasonable financial aid policy.

SATISFACTORY PROGRESS STANDARDS

Southern Illinois University at Carbondale requires that a student be making "satisfactory progress" toward a degree if he or she wishes to receive financial aid funds. A student is making "satisfactory progress" toward a degree if successfully meeting two basic academic standards. First, a student must complete a reasonable number of credit hours toward a degree each academic year. Second, a student must maintain a scholastic standing, derived from grades, that allows for continued enrollment at the University under current academic guidelines. The following parameters will be used to define these two basic academic standards:

1) Maximum time to graduate: A full-time, eligible student is expected to complete a degree in six academic years (12 semesters). A half-time, eligible student is expected to complete a degree in twelve academic years (24 semesters). In order to be sure that a student is progressing toward that goal, each student's progress will be measured annually after Spring Semester to determine the progress made for the last academic year of attendance. Each term of at least half-time attendance shall be included in the annual review whether or not the student received financial aid for the term. The following chart will serve as a model to determine if each student is meeting this requirement of "satisfactory progress".

MODEL FOR FULL-TIME ATTENDANCE

SIUC Academic Terms Completed	SIUC Cumulative Hours Passed
1	8
3	24
4	32
5	42
6	52
7	62
8	72
9	84
10	96
11	108
12	120

2) Grades: A student must remain in compliance with the University's policy concerning scholastic standing, grades, and grade point average as defined under the topic "Grading, Scholastic Regulations and Credit" in the current Undergraduate Catalog Bulletin. A student who is on Scholastic Suspension is not maintaining "satisfactory progress". A student who is scholastically suspended may be readmitted under Scholastic Probation status by the appropriate academic dean and remain eligible for financial aid. Each student's scholastic standing will be monitored after each semester or term of attendance.

A student who does not meet both of the standards set forth above and who cannot show "mitigating circumstances" is not maintaining "satisfactory progress" toward a degree and is no longer eligible to receive financial aid funds. (See Appeals)

Nothing in this policy shall be construed as a reduction of external requirements by other federal, state, public, or private agencies when they award or control financial aid. Examples of such agencies are: Veterans Administration, Vocational Rehabilitation, and the NCAA.

DEFINITIONS

Credit hours completed shall be defined as the total number of academic credit hours for which a student receives any grade other than a failing grade. Incompletes, withdrawals, audits, and remedial courses which do not count toward a degree shall not be considered as credit hours completed. Credit hours received for repeated courses shall be counted only once.

Eligible students shall be defined as those students who are admitted to the University in a degree-seeking classification. All other students are not eligible for financial aid.

Full-time attendance for undergraduates shall be defined as enrollment in twelve (12) hours or more per semester.

Half-time attendance for undergraduates shall be defined as enrollment in six (6) or more hours, but less than twelve (12) hours per semester.

Undergraduate shall be defined as a student who is a freshman, sophomore, junior, senior or a senior with a bachelor's degree seeking a second bachelor's.

NOTIFICATION OF TERMINATION

It shall be the responsibility of the Financial Aid Office to publish this policy and to notify by letter any student who is no longer eligible to receive financial aid funds. Said notice shall be addressed to the student's most current permanent address on file with the University. IT SHALL BE THE RESPONSIBILITY OF THE STUDENT TO INFORM THE UNIVERSITY OF A CORRECT PERMANENT ADDRESS AT ALL TIMES.

REINSTATEMENT

Students will have their eligibility to receive financial aid reinstated when they have reached the level of satisfactory progress required of them by this policy. They may achieve this status by the completion of incomplete grades, correction of incorrect grades, and by earning sufficiently more than the required number of completed hours for a term or terms of attendance without the benefit of financial aid.

APPEALS

Any student who cannot meet the grades requirement, or the cumulative credit hours completion requirement shall have an opportunity to appeal in writing to explain "mitigating circumstances". The appeal should be sent to the Financial Aid Office within 15 days of the notice of termination. The Financial Aid Office will review the "mitigating circumstances" documented in the appeal and provide a written decision within 20 days after receipt of the appeal.

not been alone because hordes of reporters and photographers have been recording Kerrigan's every move.

Lee went to her coach, Kathy Casey of Colorado Springs, Colo., and cried the third day they were here.

"I was OK in the beginning," she said. "But then 5,000 media showed up, and there were only two of us skating. I said, 'Oh God, this is kind of intimidating.' But Kathy and I sat down and refocused. Now, Tonya's here."

Harding is in the six-woman group with Kerrigan, Lee, two Czechs and a Bulgarian that is scheduled to practice twice Thursday at the small training rink inside the Olympic Amphitheatre.

Although the first is not supposed to begin until 1 p.m., media representatives have been advised to arrive at least two hours earlier if they want to be guaranteed a place to stand and watch from the press section.

No one who knows Harding and Kerrigan expects a confrontation, but it is inevitable that their paths will cross during practices.

"They are going to get in each other's way, that is going to happen," former U.S. Olympic figure skater Caryn Kadavy said by telephone from Sarasota Fla., where she was touring with an ice show.

"That's going to happen to anybody. I just hope the media don't make a big deal out of it when it happens to Nancy and Tonya."

Kadavy, whose practice sessions with former world champion Jill Trenary while both trained in Colorado Springs were famous within the sport because of the tension they produced, said Harding is one of the most difficult skaters to share ice with because of her athleticism.

"She'll come barreling down the ice and go into one of those big jumps," Kadavy said. "You have to know where she is all the time."

Former skater Yvonne Gomez, who is here as a researcher for CBS, said, "Tonya's as fast as the guys, so fast that you don't hear her coming. She's scary, although she doesn't mean to be. It's just that she's aggressive."

Before the Kerrigan-Harding contact in the village Wednesday night, Lee said she hoped they would do something to break the tension.

at the No. 1 singles spot is senior Irena Peofanova (Moscow, Russia), who has established the best win-loss record and has averaged 24 wins in the last two seasons. Peofanova played at the top spot for the first time last season and notched a 4-9 record.

Filling up the rest of the single seeds will be freshman Liz Gardner at the No. 2 spot, sophomores Catherine Pietsch and Lucy Szele filling No. 3 and 4, freshman Melissa Saitta helping out at the number five seed, and sophomore Jenny Rubin rounding out the lineup seeded sixth.

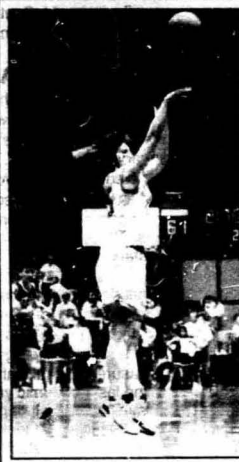

Pietsch (arthroscopic knee surgery) and grad student Leesa Joseph (reconstructive thumb surgery) are back to help lead the Saluki attack this season after suffering injuries last fall. Walk-on Nadine Shone is the lone newcomer to the squad this spring.

"It's the same old story year after year with our injury problems," Auld said. "It's going to have to take solid teamwork to get us through this season. I'm excited about the team and the potential that is there but we're going to have to go slow and take it one day at a time."

Joseph and Gardner will resume their No. 1 doubles position they had in the fall when they posted a 4-4 worksheet. At No. 2 doubles will be Peofanova and Saitta, while the No. 3 spot is still undecided.

Saluki Paul Lusk goes up for the basket in the first half of Wednesday night's game in the SIUC Arena. The Dawgs won the contest 79-56 against South West Missouri State.

Salukis stomp Bears, 79-56

da Silva top scorer in SIUC win

Marcelo da Silva showed a flash from the past Wednesday night, as he returned to the starting lineup to lead SIUC to a 79-56 win over conference rival Southwest Missouri State.

da Silva, who started for the Salukis in early 1992, was filling in for the injured Mirko Pavlovic. All da Silva did was score a career-high 20 points and grab 12 rebounds to help the Dawgs payback a tough loss to the Bears two weeks ago.

Southwest Missouri head coach Mark Bernsen said it was not the first time da Silva has had a good game.

"He's had some decent games against us in the past, I guess," Bernsen said. "But he looked like an All-American out there tonight."

da Silva got things going for the Dawgs early, as he scored seven points in the first five minutes of the game.

SWMS was sparked by Shawn Latimer in the first half, as Latimer scored eight points on four of seven shooting from the field. Missing from the Bear attack was top scorer Johnny Murdock, as Murdock was held to two points in the first stanza.

Bernsen said Murdock was hampered by tonsillitis for the past few days.

"Not to take anything away from Southern's defense, but he was not up to par, physically, I don't think," he said. "He has not practiced for the past three days and I think fatigue was a factor."

The second half began with stilling SIUC defense and a barrage of three-pointers for the Dawgs. Over a five minute stretch, SIUC hit on five consecutive three-point attempts to run the 13-point halftime SIUC lead to 24 with 11 minutes to go.

The SIUC bench produced big all night long, as Scott Burzynski chipped in 13 to go along with da Silva's 20. All in all, the Saluki bench accounted for 41 of the team's 79 points.

Herrin said the key was the defensive intensity early in the second half.

"You take away those two early three's they got on us and we held them to seven points over the first 10 minutes," Herrin said. "Our intensity and effort was better tonight, and if you look they had two starters who didn't score."

The Bear starters did not rebound either, as SIUC owned the glass by a 52-38 margin. Bernsen said it was a big turnaround from two weeks ago.

"It was pretty obvious that rebounding did not help our cause, offensively or defensively," he said. "That had a lot to do with it."

Leading the glass effort for the Dawgs was Marcus Timmons, who scraped down 14 rebounds to tie a season high.

Saluki women prepare for stretch

The Saluki women's basketball team has their back to the wall, and it's time to come out fighting.

Six games remain in the regular season and SIUC is clinging to fourth place in the Missouri Valley Conference with a 5-5 record.

Indiana State (4-7) will visit the Arena tonight for a meeting with the Salukis in the first game of the final stretch.

"Mentally, we're a pretty fatigued team right now and this is a crucial game for us," Saluki head coach Cindy Scott said.

When the two teams met back on Jan. 23 in Terre Haute, SIUC escaped with a 72-67 victory.

The Salukis were out-rebounded 41-32, but held the Lady Sycamores to just 34 percent shooting from the field.

Scott said she knows her team has trouble rebounding, but it's an area that can be corrected.

"Our rebounding has not been real good all year," she said. "But it's something that we can improve on and it's something we need to do."

Indiana State's Hazel Olden is a player that SIUC will have to stop, as she leads the Sycamores in scoring with a 13-point per game average. Olden is dangerous from three point land, having hit 25 from beyond the arc this season.

Cora Conn and Amy Walker are a consistent one-two punch for ISU, both averaging 11 points and over five rebounds a game. Conn is the teams second leading free throw shooter at 76 percent, while Walker plays a team-high 35 minutes per contest.

Sycamore center Livia Hester is ISU's top rebounder, grabbing nearly seven boards a game to go along with her nine-point average.

Indiana State is just 1-4 on the road in the MVC this year and Scott said she sees a lot of similarities between her team and ISU.

"Indiana State and us are both desperate for a win right now," she said. "They're going to come in here and fight their guts out for a win."

Saluki standout forward Rockey Ransom remains sidelined with a strained knee and is scheduled to meet with a surgeon tomorrow to determine her status for the rest of the season.

SIUC will continue to count on forward Angenette Sumrall to pick up the slack inside, along with front court teammate Christel Jefferson.

Point guard Nikki Gilmore is the Salukis' leading scorer, but has struggled in the turnover department in the last two games. Karen Powell remains SIUC's biggest threat from the perimeter and reserve guard Tracy Holscher will have to step in for an injured Kasia McClendon.

Tipoff is slated for 7:05 at the Arena.

Women's tennis excited about '94 season

By James J. Fares

Making the best of it is a motto the SIUC women's tennis team will have to live by this season.

The Salukis will be fielding an eight person squad that features only three upperclassmen and two players who are trying to return from injuries.

Despite the sh of injuries, the Saluki women did post its seventh straight winning season.

SIUC coach Judy Auld, who is 15 matches away from career win number 300, said she is looking forward to the opening of the season.

"We're excited about opening our spring season," she said. "We've been having good practices and we are healthy."

Auld said the '94 schedule offers new challenges for her team.

"Our schedule is better and tougher than last year's," Auld said. "We're in four very good tournaments and we'll play against some top notch programs like Kentucky and Mississippi State."

The Salukis start off the season on the road this weekend when they travel to Kentucky to participate in the annual Eastern Kentucky-Adams Invitational.

The eight-team invitational indoor tournament will feature Tennessee Tech, Louisville, Toledo, Austin Peay, West Virginia, Murray State, and host Eastern Kentucky. The tournament is a single elimination format with a consolation round. Each school will have the opportunity to play six singles and three doubles.

"This tournament offers us a great way to get back into competition with out any pressure," Auld added. "The athletes will be able to go out there and learn what areas they are strong in and what areas need work."

One skater glad to see Harding in

Los Angeles Times

HAMAR, Norway—While Juan Antonio Samaranch, the International Olympic Committee President, continued his goodwill mission to war-torn Sarajevo, peace broke out here Wednesday in figure skating.

Hours after she arrived in the athletes' village here, the site of the Winter Olympic figure skating competition, Tenya Harding "broke the ice" in a chance meeting with Nancy Kerrigan, U.S. Olympic Committee spokesman Mike Moran said.

No one could have been more pleased by the news than Lee Lilly Lyoonjung, 24, a skater from Alexandria, Va., who represents South Korea.

Ever since Kerrigan arrived here last Thursday, she and Lee have been the only two skaters assigned to their daily practice group to attend the sessions. They, however, have
