Military action slows oil spill

RIYADH, SAUDI ARABIA (UPI) — U.S. and allied forces Sunday slowed the rapid release of crude oil escaping into the Persian Gulf by rupturing Kuwait's huge Sea Island Terminal with a precision missile, said Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, commander of Operation Desert Storm.

Schwarzkopf added that the military also successfully torched the major spill spreading throughout the gulf in an attempt to slow its southward path and destroy toxic pollutants.

The twin military maneuvers were orchestrated over two days, after Saudi officials advised allied forces on Friday to take the steps to ameliorate environmental disaster and safeguard critical desalinization plants threatened by the spill.

Schwarzkopf appeared at a news conference in Riyadh, where Saudi and American officials had been working to seal an oil spill that has released millions of gallons of crude oil into the gulf and has covered an area 30 miles long by eight miles wide.

The military action, announced earlier in Washington by Defense Secretary Richard Cheney, came after Iraq allegedly unleashed millions of gallons of oil into the gulf in an apparent attempt by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to wreak environmental disaster and cause military obstacles for allied forces.

Saddam has accused the allies of destroying tankers and causing the massive oil spill that has turned much of the blue water to charcoal. But Schwarzkopf denied Saddam's allegation, saying, "We see absolutely no indication at all that any U.S. military action caused this spill."

Military officials have insisted that the dumping, called "environmental terrorism" by the Pentagon, would not hamper military operations.

It remained unclear Sunday whether the action taken at the key Sea Island Terminal to essentially clog the pipeline valves, would severely slow the pace or area of the spill.

Schwarzkopf said he was informed by environmentalists and oil experts that the terminal, connected to land tanks by about 10 miles of pipes, would burn for at least 24 hours, perhaps longer.

But he expressed confidence that the military actions would diminish the flow of oil into the Persian Gulf.

"I think it will cause diminishment," Schwarzkopf said, but he added he was "not sure if it will correct the problem."

Schwarzkopf, calling himself a "conservationist," expressed disgust at Saddam's action and said he had reservations about destroying the terminal.

He said the military decided last Friday that efforts on two fronts would be necessary to mitigate the environmental damage.

At around the time the decision was made, a Navy A-6 fighter "encountered" an Iraqi mine-laying boat and destroyed it with a 500-pound bomb, inadvertently setting the area on fire and achieving "just by circumstance" one of the two military objectives.

Meanwhile, a senior officer in the U.S.-led alliance said that Iraqi troops recently crossed into Saudi Arabia in an apparent attempt to determine the location and strength of allied forces in advance of a ground war. U.S. scouts along the northern Saudi border have been told to avert clashes with the enemy for now.

"They're trying to figure out where we're at," the officer told reporters. "I've told my guys to avoid them, just observe them."

In preparation for a ground offensive, Marine corps combat engineers are studying Iraqi minefields and practicing breaching techniques.

Refugees say allies bombed road to Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — Refugees fleeing Iraq said allied forces bombed the main road leading from Baghdad to Jordan Sunday, and Iraq reportedly opened the Iraqi-Jordanian border after closing it four days ago.

Thousands of refugees are said to be massing on the Iraqi side of the border, which Iraq closed Wednesday for unspecified security reasons. Cairo radio said a few people with exit visas were allowed Sunday to cross into Jordan.

But it said Iraqi officials were telling most of the refugees they had to return to Baghdad to obtain the exit visas, even though most paid taxis thousands of dollars to take them from Baghdad to the border in the first place.

Amman radio said Jordan had sent carloads of food and water to the refugees stranded in Iraq Sunday.

The British Broadcasting Corp. Arabic service quoted eyewitnesses who managed to cross into Jordan as saying allied bombers damaged the road during a morning raid, injuring at least three people and destroying several cars.

Iraq offers reward for terrorist acts

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Iraq reiterated Sunday it had yet to unleash its full strength and threatened to launch a crushing strike against allied forces, while blaming both the United Nations and the Soviet Union for its current plight.

Iraq's ruling Revolution Command Council also said anyone killed fighting Coalition forces in the gulf or striking U.S. and other Western targets abroad would be declared a "martyr," and his family would receive monetary compensation.

In Iran, Tehran radio quoted the Iraqi newspaper Al Gomhuriya as saying Sunday Iraq would use its non-conventional weapons against Israel, in what may be a reference to Iraq's arsenal of chemical and biological weapons.

"It's a mistake to think Iraq's force is limited to the conventional weapons used," the radio quoted the newspaper as saying. Iraq has launched almost two dozen Scud missiles at the Jewish state.

Also in Tehran, the official Islamic Republic News Agency reported Sunday that Iraqi anti-aircraft guns remained silent when allied bombers carried out overnight raids on the southern Iraqi city of Basra and neighboring areas. The agency did not say if the Iraqi guns were knocked out by

Hindersman to leave SIUC after 31 years

By Natalie Boehme Staff Writer

The end of February will bring the end of Charles Hindersman's 31-year career at SIUC.

"When I leave I'll remember the people here, but I'm not going to worry about this office," said Hindersman, vice president for financial affairs since 1985. "Moving on means letting go."

Hindersman came to the University in 1960 as an associate professor of marketing and since has experienced a career filled with various faculty and administrative positions.

Hindersman has contributed much to the University, said Benjamin Shepherd, vice president for academic affairs and research.

"I've found Charles Hindersman to be a congenial coworker who has worked very hard for the University," Shepherd said. "He has been a joy to work with."

Besides teaching, Hindersman's list of positions includes assistant dean for graduate programs in the College of Business and Administration, assistant dean for COBA, COBA dean, acting vice president for University Relations, acting director of the Office of Research and Service, and acting vice president for financial affairs.

"Going into different positions have put more variety into what I do," he said. "My administrative career has jumped from one acting position to another."

Protesters dissatisfied with leaders, media

By Doug Toole and Amy Cooper Staff Writers

Speeches and music inspired and informed gatherings at the Student Center Auditorium Saturday protesting the Persian Gulf war.

Concerned citizens started to march at noon at the Federal Building, 250 W. Cherry, carrying signs and chanting as they made their way down South Illinois Avenue to the Student Center.

Despite the presence of six counter-protesters who marched on the other side of the street waving American flags and holding signs that read "Give war a chance," the anti-war protesters peacefully persevered.

At one point, both sets of protesters chanted "U-S-A" to show support for the troops in the Middle East.

The rally at the Student Center started at 1 p.m. with comments by Gary Wolf, journalism teaching assistant, and was followed by musical entertainment by a local band, Carter and Connelley.

Speakers at the rally covered specific topics, including governmental control over gulf information, minority and lower-class involvement veterans' experiences and the re-ignition behind Bush's foreign policies.

Journalism faculty member William Elliott said he questioned the media's role in the Persian Gulf.

"The press has already turned from covering the war to covering its own coverage of the war," he said.

Abbe Sudvang, representative of the Physicians for Social Responsibility, said reasons behind U.S. involvement in the war were clouded.

"This war is not about Saddam Hussein being a Hitler...It's about big business," she said, referring to

Giants win closest Super Bowl ever

United Press International

A Super Bowl overshadowed by war produced one of the most tense finishes in the 25-year history of the game.

The Giants controlled play all game long, but had to sweat out the closing seconds as Scott Norwood bid to give Buffalo its first Super Bowl championship. Norwood had enough distance, but the kick sailed wide right and the Giants were left to share in a last-play victory for the second straight week.

To get to the Super Bowl, Matt Bahr of the Giants kicked a 42-yard field as time expired against the San Francisco 49ers in the NFC title game. Norwood enjoyed no such heroics, and was consoled by several teammates at midfield immediately after his wayward kick.

Bahr again delivered a critical kick, converting a 21-yard field goal with 7:20 remaining that provided the margin of victory. He was backed by the outstanding running of Otis Anderson, the Most Valuable Player, who rushed for one touchdown and 102 yards.

Anderson, the durable 33-year-old who proved his contention he gets stronger with use, helped the Giants hold the ball for 40 minutes, 33 seconds to set a Super Bowl record.

"My offensive line did a super job for me," Anderson said. "When they block the way they do, it's automatic.

"I think we know we can put points on the board and control the clock. They did a lot to hurt us, but we knew if we could keep running the football we could come through."

The game was played amid the tightest security ever staged for a sports event in the United States.

The Tampa Stadium crowd of 73,813 flag-waving fans was searched with metal detectors, while military and police helicopters constantly circled the stadium.

The game was watched by about 120 million viewers in the United States and some 750 million worldwide, including U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf. The NFL reserved the right to postpone the game until kickoff, but no security incidents warranted such action.

This marked the seventh straight year, and nine of 10, the NFC has won the NFL's showcase game, and was only the second time a Super Bowl has ended on a last-gasp field goal. Jim O'Brien won Super Bowl V for the Baltimore Colts with a 32-yard kick.

The Giants also scored on a 14-yard touchdown pass from Jeff Hostetler to Stephen Baker in the second quarter and another field goal by Bahr, a 28-yarder in the first period.

Thurman Thomas powered the Bills, rushing for 135 yards on 15 carries plus five catches for 55 yards. Thomas scored on a 31-yard run, with the other Buffalo points coming on a 23-yard field goal by Norwood in the first quarter, a 1-yard touchdown run by Don Smith in the second quarter and a safety later in the period.

The Bills drove 71 yards after taking over at their 10 with 2:16 left in the game. Thomas broke a third-down run to the Bills 40 and dashed 11 yards to the Giants 29, the line of scrimmage for Norwood's failed kick.

Salukis bite Bulldogs without Herrin at helm

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

Everything was going right for the Salukis Saturday night, including a 60-foot, 3-point shot by freshman forward Mirko Pavlovic.

SIUC hit only 3 of 16 from 3-point range, but Pavlovic's shot at the buzzer was the perfect ending to the Salukis' 82-63 slaughter of the Drake Bulldogs.

The Salukis pushed their record to 4-2 in the Missouri Valley Conference, 10-7 overall. Drake fell to 3-5 in conference play and 6-11 overall.

The Salukis' eighth home victory of the year was also the first game Coach Rich Herrin has missed in his six years at the SIUC helm.

Herrin was suspended for the game Saturday night by the MVC for publicly criticizing the referees after the Wichita State loss Jan. 19.

SIUC's team of assistant coaches (Ron Smith, Sam Weaver, Rodney Watson and Tim Wills) handled the gameplan against the Bulldogs.

"We just played the way we're capable of playing," Smith said.

Herrin was able to talk to his players in the locker room before and after the contest.

"Of course it was on your mind before the game," senior forward

Rick Shipley said, "but once the game started the same things were said, they were just coming out of different mouths. We all know the system pretty well. I think him being in the locker room was more of a confidence builder for us."

Herrin, who watched the game from the glass-enclosed boxes above the arena, was pleased with the way his team performed in his absence.

"Our coaching staff did a very good job," Herrin said. "We did a good job of executing for a full 200 minutes and that's important. That second half was probably our best half of the year."

Drake made a game of it in the first half, mainly because of the 12 points posted by 6-foot-7 senior center Calvin Tillis. SIUC went into the locker room with a slim 35-31 lead, but came out firing in the second half.

Junior forward Kelvan Lawrence was often on the finishing end of the transition game, pouring in 12 of his career-high 17 points in the second half.

The Salukis led by as much as 22 with their tenacious defense denying the Bulldogs a decent shot.

"We finally started playing the right kind of defense we need to

SIUC avoids slump with win at UNI

By Paul Pabst
Staff Writer

Sometimes when a winning ball club suffers an upset loss, things start to snowball. It can trigger a slump of many losses. The Saluki women's basketball team avoided that type of slump as the Salukis drilled University of Northern Iowa, 74-58 Saturday afternoon.

The Salukis suffered that type of loss Thursday, as Drake stunned SIUC 60-57. But from Saturday's performance in a blowout victory over University of Northern Iowa, the Salukis showed that the Drake loss, though only a few days old, is well behind them.

"I was very happy to see us come back," head coach Cindy

Herrin suspended for MVC violation

For the first time in six seasons Coach Rich Herrin did not orchestrate the SIUC men's basketball team in action.

Herrin was suspended for SIUC's 82-63 win against Drake Saturday night because of a violation of a Missouri Valley Conference policy prohibiting coaches from publicly criticizing game officials.

The policy states "comments made in any public forum by MVC coaching staff members, or any athletic department staff members, which are critical of game officials' performances or of their character or abilities shall result in automatic suspension of a minimum of one game by the conference."

The violation of the policy came when Herrin made comments about the officiating of the 68-65 loss at Wichita State Jan. 19 during his postgame radio show on WCL-FM.

MVC commissioner Doug Elgin did not hear the comments made by Herrin, but talked to several people who knew what was said.

"This was a particularly painful decision for me because of the high regard in which I hold Rich Herrin, both personally and professionally," Elgin said. "No one has done more for Southern Illinois basketball since Walt Frazier. He's as supportive and promotional-minded as any coach in the conference."

Herrin had no comment on the suspension, but did say his assistant coaches did a good job of coaching the team against Drake.

Herrin will be back on the bench tonight against MVC preseason favorite Creighton.

'Dynamic Duo' storms Salukis' home tonight

By Eric Bugger
Staff Writer

The Creighton Bluejays come to town tonight with its "Dynamic Duo" to battle a red-hot Saluki basketball team.

The league's most heralded inside tandem of 6-foot-10 Chad Gallagher and 6-foot-6 Bob Harstad will test the Salukis' big men like never before. Gallagher and Harstad combine for an average of 40 points and 18 rebounds a game.

The Salukis (10-7, 4-2) are coming off two convincing victories at home. They beat up Drake 82-63 Saturday night and toyed with Bradley Thursday night in a 79-69 win. Creighton (10-6, 5-3) finally showed why it was the preseason conference pick, with a crushing 83-68 blow to Indiana State Saturday.

Even if the Salukis find a way to slow the Bluejay's inside game, they will have to play just as hard against their outside game. Junior guard Duan Cole is averaging 13 points a game and is shooting an incredible 50 percent (33 of 66) from 3-point range.

SIUC will combat the Creighton machine with a duo of its own in senior forward Rick Shipley and sophomore center Ashraf Amaya. The two combined to tear apart Drake Saturday with 35 points and 22 rebounds. Junior forward Kelvan Lawrence also could see a piece of the action in the paint. He dumped in a career-high 17 points against Drake.

"I don't think we'll try anything against them (Harstad and Gallagher)," Shipley said after the game against Drake. "Come Monday night, if we keep punching it in there (inside), and play the way we know how, I think we can beat them."

The Salukis came home from two road losses a week ago

Rebels take over in Somalia; president escapes in tank

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Somali President Mohamed Siad Barre fled his African nation's capital Mogadishu, and rebels announced Sunday they had overthrown him after a month's fierce fighting for control of the city. After 21 years in power and more than 10 years of civil war, Barre finally made his exit Saturday by driving away from his presidential palace in a tank, according to western doctors in Mogadishu. Shortly afterwards, rebels of the United Somali Congress took over the palace, and broadcast their coup Sunday on Radio Mogadishu.

Rioting in India kills 5, injures more than 50

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Hindus and Muslims clashed with guns, iron rods and rocks Sunday on a second day of violence that erupted during a pro-Iraqi rally near the Indian capital, leaving at least five people dead and more than 50 wounded, police and news reports said. Authorities imposed an indefinite curfew and ordered police to shoot rioters on sight in violence-torn Ghaziabad, a town adjoining the Indian capital, said a police official. Hindus and Muslims began fighting Saturday following arguments between Muslims at a pro-Iraqi rally.

Bombs explode in 'secure' airport in Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — Bomb explosions damaged the offices of French, Japanese and Saudi Arabian airlines in Ankara Sunday, despite tight security in Turkey's largest cities since the start of the Persian Gulf war. The incidents occurred a day after explosions shook the U.S. consulate and a Turkish-U.S. Cultural Center in Adana, close to the Incirlik air base some 250 miles south of Ankara. No casualties were immediately reported. No individual or group claimed responsibility. The blasts occurred across the street from the U.S. embassy.

Egypt wants to preserve Iraq after war ends

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egypt would be able to live with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein should he survive the gulf war with his power intact, a senior Egyptian official said Sunday. "I am confident Egypt would be able to coexist with Iraq under the leadership of President Saddam Hussein," Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Butros Ghali said when asked at a news conference about potential post-war Middle East politics. "Egypt is keen on preserving Iraq's strength and it affirms that the Iraqi borders must not be infringed upon."

Blood staying here until ground war starts

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — Although Texans are giving blood in the name of Operator Desert Storm, donor recruiters say little of the patriotically given fluid will actually go to the Middle East — at least not yet. Blood centers in Texas report large increases in donations since the war began. Everyone agrees that blood donations will be vital should a ground war begin, but both say much of the extra blood is staying home right now. "As a matter of fact, we're trying to put people off right now," said Terrie Grivich, donor recruitment director at the Carter Blood Center.

Edgar to choose ag director from central part of Illinois

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — When Gov. Jim Edgar picks his new agriculture director, it is likely the new chief executive will tab someone from his home soil of central Illinois. Edgar may name a new agriculture director as early as Monday or Tuesday and three of the people most mentioned for the job live within a close driving distance of the farm agency's headquarters at the Illinois State Fairgrounds on the north side of Springfield. Spokesman Dan Egler said Edgar wants to find the best person to replace current director Jack Rundquist.

Faculty member: War a 'nightmare' come true

By Tiffany Youther
Staff Writer

An SIUC faculty member who taught a computer workshop in Iraq in 1988 said the Persian Gulf war is literally his worst nightmare come true.

Vincent A. Lacey, director of the Computer-assisted Instruction and Research lab at SIUC, spent a week in Baghdad and Mosul lecturing Iraqi students on the latest in hardware and software. He taught faculty and staff members how to write instruction programs.

His stay began 10 days before the ceasefire of the Iran-Iraq war and ended 10 days after.

Lacey described Iraq as a place where "George Orwell's '1984' is a reality."

He said the group's hotel rooms were bugged. Members of the group would often use bugs to their advantage to complain about things they did not like about their accommodations and the food they were served.

The next day Iraqi officials would apologize for whatever it was the group complained about, he said.

Iraq is a military dictatorship, Lacey said, where there is a soldier on every corner and even the dean of a college most likely will be wearing an officer's uniform.

"I had an AK-47 (gun) pointed at me for taking a picture in an area I wasn't supposed to," he said.

Lacey described Iraq as a complex place full of diverse cultures and ethnic groups.

He said his students were very bright and eager to learn and the Iraqi people themselves were very hospitable.

"They want a good education for their children and a chance to better themselves in life, just like anyone else," he said.

Lacey said he feels for the Iraqis because they are ordinary people in a bad situation. He said he spent many hours socializing with his Iraqi colleagues and is glad the U.S. military has made a policy to attack only military targets.

Speaking about current war protests, Lacey said the greatest thing about the United States is the freedom people have to demonstrate against government actions with which they disagree.

He said there is a small undercurrent in Iraq of individuals who are against Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's regime, but these people live in constant fear and are sought and executed by Saddam's people whenever possible.

Lacey said he believes Saddam had to be stopped at some point, and now is better than months from now when he has greater military capabilities. He said the U.S. government has made a mistake in not educating its citizens about how dangerous Saddam is.

"Think of the craziest person you know," he said. "Would you like that person to have a nuclear bomb?"

He referred to Saddam as another Adolf Hitler who commits genocide against his own people and strives for world domination.

"The day before I left there was a news broadcast in which he (Saddam) said he wanted to create an Arab axis, a set of Arab states from Algeria to Iran, to be the next superpower," Lacey said.

Lacey said even though Saddam must be stopped, the Persian Gulf war frightens him. He said he hopes the U.S. military is correct in estimating a six-to-eight-week operation, but he is not confident Saddam's military will surrender.

Saddam has no concern for the amount of Iraqi lives the Persian Gulf war takes, he said.

Lacey described a nightmare he had the night before leaving Baghdad.

"I had a horrible nightmare, a premonition if you will, that this place would be bombed and the United States would be bombing it," he said. "I dreamed that we would be at war with the Iraqis in my lifetime. It was my worst nightmare come true."

Dr. Jagan Ailnani, director of the Carbondale Clinic Radiation Department, examines an x-ray from the new mammography machine at the clinic.

New mammogram machine maintains technological pace

By Rennie Walker
Staff Writer

To keep pace with the latest technology in the fight against breast cancer, a state-of-the-art film/screen mammography machine was installed at the Carbondale Clinic last month.

Dr. William Hamilton, medical director of the clinic, said the new machine takes the best possible images at lower radiation doses than the former xeromammography machine. The film/screen machine also costs less to operate, he said.

Breast cancer is the leading cancer found in women. One in 10 American women are at risk of developing breast cancer at some time in their lives, said Dr. Jagan Ailnani, head of the Radiation Department at the clinic.

Although 80 percent of all cases of breast cancer occur in women over 40, Ailnani said the risk is greater after 30. Breast cancer rarely occurs earlier than age 30, he said.

"If you detect breast cancer at a very early stage, there is about a 90- to 98-percent chance of curing it," Ailnani said. "Mammography is the most effective way for detecting breast cancer very early."

Mammography should be used in combination with breast self-examinations and regular physician checkups, Ailnani said.

"We shouldn't rely solely on the mammogram. It is the best technique available, but it is not 100-percent effective," Ailnani said. "The three things together make it closer to 100 percent."

Ailnani said if a woman has a mother or sister diagnosed with breast cancer, her chance of getting breast cancer is five to six times greater than average.

First used in Sweden, studies of the $80,000 film/screen machine over the past four years show a 30-percent decrease in the mortality rate in women with breast cancer when compared with other detection

Library could trade owning for loaning

ALTHOUGH BUDGET BARRIERS HAVE dammed the flow of material washing into Morris Library, the library may need to dip temporarily from another source.

The library faces various financial problems, including a lack of legislative funding, a disproportionate increase in subscription rates for journals and the recent devaluation of the dollar.

So the library was forced to cut 1,200 serials in fall 1990 because of no increased funding for this fiscal year.

TACKLING THE BUDGET SQUEEZE simply by waiting (or hoping) for more funds in the following years will not solve the problem.

Beginning another campaign such as the "Two for Two" program in 1988, which in part supported library purchases, can help in the long run but may take too long to set up and see any results.

The library could promote and increase its interlibrary loan service instead.

EVEN THOUGH IT HOLDS 2 million books, 2.5 million microforms and 13,000 journals, Morris Library still borrowed 7,500 items from other libraries in 1988.

Computerized catalog systems such as the Illinois Library and Information Network (ILLINET) and the Online Computer Library Center (OCLC) can find which libraries have the publication Morris Library needs; by charging out the book and placing it in a delivery system, the book could arrive within a week.

THE DISADVANTAGE, OF COURSE, lies in the inability of Morris Library to actually own the publications. The system would not allow for last-minute research or double-checking facts of returned materials that were previously borrowed.

However, prepared students simply needing a publication for a short time should face minimum delay.

While Morris Library hopes for increases in state funding, its interests need to shift from owning to borrowing in the meantime.

Quotable Quotes

"When America has a cold, black people get pneumonia."—said executive director of Operation PUSH in reference to having to lay-off 14 of its own organization because of the recession.

"I was only 29 years old...I looked around and asked myself, 'Who are all these old fossils and when are they going to leave?'"—Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, one of the most powerful members of Congress, said in reference to when he first arrived in Washington D.C. 40 years ago.

"I've become a real bad backseat driver."—said singer Gloria Estefan who is still recovering from a near fatal car accident.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters space will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potential libelous material or because extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

Every letter must be signed by its author. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

Leaders failed to find peaceful solution to Persian Gulf crisis

For the past week the world has been watching a high-tech war on television.

Via satellite, the ancient struggle for survival and control of the Middle East has been presented to us by the news media, affecting us all to a great extent.

Aside from the question of why we are in this war, aside from the question of how long this war will be and aside from the question of whether you, as an individual support our troops who are over there fighting, one thing cannot be put aside: War kills!

People who have nothing to do with oil or power struggles are being killed every day because of war.

The people who made the final decision to start war are not the people who are being killed.

There is no way to fight a war without killing non-war people, and if you believe that no non-war people are dying in Iraq, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, or anywhere else for that matter, than you are sorely wrong.

The leaders of the West had in front of them a perfect opportunity to resolve a potentially bloody situation in a peaceful manner through compromise.

Fear that compromise would be viewed as a sign of weakness, our historical war mentality prevailed, and the decision was made: "People must be killed to resolve this problem—there is no alternative."

For those of you who are strongly patriotic and feel that war is the only way to deal with Iraq, I suggest you pick up a weapon and go fight; otherwise your words are empty and cowardly.

As I stated earlier, war kills, and while we watch the killing happen as we eat our dinner tonight, let us all remember that the decision for war was made for us by our leaders, who no matter what happens, will not be killed by war.—Patrick S. Murphy, graduate, geography.

Historical abortion case ignored

Congratulations on completely ignoring the issue of abortion in your newspaper on the anniversary of the Roe v. Wade decision.

Congratulations on turning a blind eye towards the more than 50,000 people who gathered to protest that dark day in 1973 when the Supreme Court ruled that it is perfectly acceptable to kill babies in the United States.

Congratulations on altogether failing to tell about our president, who, despite the situation in the Middle East, took his own time out the support these protesters in Washington,

About 4,000 babies are killed each day voluntarily, and yet people still shout about "rights."

Narrow-minded, bloodthirsty murderers march on city hall to protest the violation of women's rights, gay rights and/or criminal's rights, yet they would be just as pleased to participate in a pro-death march for babies.

Elsewhere in the nation, more than 2 million couples who would like to adopt a baby, any baby, watch more than 1.5 million babies killed each year before they have a chance to tell you how much it hurts.

"But abortion will happen anyway, whether or not it is legal." So will child molestation, rape, armed robbery, drunken driving and many other terrible crimes.

Does this make it OK? Would legalizing these terrible crimes make the problem go away?

Get a clue, people. Look at the medical facts. Look at the moral facts.

Abortion is murder.

It has nothing to do with the rights of the mother: It has to do with the rights of a defenseless person.—Jeff Miller, alumnus, DeSoto.

War protesters far from 'un-American'

After reading Sgt. Rock's letter in the Jan. 22 edition of the DE, we feel that some clarification is deserved.

It seemed to us that many people, like Sgt. Rock, may hold the same opinion that anti-war supporters are flag-burners, picketers, and tie-dyers.

Mr. Rock had a good point when he said that the "Vietnam... (era) has passed." The sixties are over, but to generalize, and infer that anti-war protesters are living in the past is unwarranted. Many protesters do not burn flags. Instead, they write letters.

America has always been a country where the expression of feelings is encouraged. To voice your opinion is one of our 10 basic constitutional rights.

Sgt. Rock says, "no one wants to see your sit-ins and pray marches today."

We, however, pray that the day never comes when Americans stop protesting.

You can say protesters are wrong, but to say we are wrong to speak out may be... un-American.

Not supporting the war does not mean we do not support America and the troops. What we do not support is the government's decision to put human lives in jeopardy.

When the war is over and the dead and maimed are counted, perhaps we will wish we had the patience to allow peaceful means, such as sanctions, to work.

To say we don't have a realistic perspective on the Persian Gulf war is wrong.

As we both look at pictures of troops we call friends, the threat to their lives makes it very real.

This is why we protest. And this is why we cannot call ourselves war supporters, because to do so would be to call ourselves death supporters.

But what about those that do support the war?

It's your right to support the war, but where are you? We haven't seen a line at the recruiting station.—John Nugent, junior, radio-television.

allied bombs. Iraq said allied warplanes carried out 112 overnight raids on Iraq and Iraqi anti-aircraft gunners shot down three allied aerial targets, but made no mention of the Iranian claim that its guns defending Basra had been silenced.

Iraq also said its missile batteries launched salvos of ground-to-ground Scud missiles at both Saudi Arabia and Israel.

A war communique said Iraq unleashed two salvos of missiles at Tel Aviv and one at the Israeli port of Haifa. Allied commanders said U.S.-fired Patriot anti-missile missiles destroyed the Iraqi Scuds before they could impact in populated regions.

A U.S. commander also said allied warplanes attacked and destroyed a set of pipeline controls leading to an oil terminal off Kuwait in a bid to stop Iraq from leaking crude oil in the gulf, where a massive oil slick is moving south to the coast of Saudi Arabia.

Amman radio meanwhile said the U.S.-led force had attacked residential areas and economic centers in Iraq, basing its report on a witness account of a Jordanian reporter in Iraq. Egypt's leading daily Al Ahran, meanwhile, quoted returning Egyptian laborers fleeing Iraq as saying Iraqi forces had been ordered to execute people fleeing the country.

Iraq is believed to have a standing policy of executing deserters from the armed forces, but there was no confirmation of the Egyptian report that Iraqi troops had been ordered to execute fleeing civilians.

"Iraq has not yet begun to launch its crushing strikes," Iraqi radio said, quoting an Iraqi war communique that reiterated earlier claims by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

"To those who thought that their aggression would be a picnic, they have come to realize that their claims are false and they will learn our true power when God blesses the decision for us to unleash all our might against the enemy," the communique added.

Iraqi radio, monitored in Cairo, earlier quoted Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz as holding the secretary-general of the United Nations and Baghdad's former ally the Soviet Union responsible for the war.

Aziz said in a message sent to U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar that the U.N. chief was to blame for the deaths of Iraqi civilians caused by allied air raids.

"You bear responsibility before history for the crimes committed against the people of Iraq," Aziz said in the message according to Iraqi radio -- now renamed the Voice of the Mother of All Battles, or Saddam's term for the war.

"The aggression against Iraq is being implemented under the umbrella of the United Nations, and you (Perez de Cuellar) bear responsibility for disguising this aggression," warned Aziz.

Aziz also accused the United Nations of bowing to U.S. pressure in adopting the resolution sanctioning force against Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

"You know very well that the United States used terrorist tactics and bribes to pass the resolution number 678 sanctioning the use of aggression against Iraq," Aziz said.

defense contractors who profit from arms sales.

Amit Srivastava, Mid-America Peace Project leader and Undergraduate Student Government senator for the College of Liberal Arts, said being against the war is the most patriotic thing to do.

"This is a war being fought for the rich people by the poor people," Srivastava said.

He said being against the war does not mean being against U.S. troops in the Persian Gulf.

"We are asking our leaders to bring our troops back alive," Srivastava said.

William White, a member of the college chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, urged people to "just say no to war."

White said he was very concerned about the low minority involvement in the peace movement and the lack of concern about the war in the black community. Of about 125 people who attended the rally, three were African-Americans.

"We feel over-represented over there (as soldiers serving in the gulf), but we don't attend the rally," he said.

White said he blamed this attitude on immaturity, apathy and complacency. People, including military personnel, don't have to go and fight in the gulf.

Craig Wilson, a sophomore in English from Carbondale, said he hoped the rally would send a statement that the war was unnecessary.

He said he was opposed to the war because America supported Iraq during its war with Iran but attacked Iraq after its invasion of Kuwait.

Linda Wagner, a senior in history from Carbondale, said it is difficult for people to put into words why they are opposed to the war because they aren't given all the facts.

She argued that the military's involvement in the conflict owes more to oil than compassion.

"This isn't a game; this isn't about winning, it's about money and people who are going to die," she said.

Wagner said she blames the U.S. foreign policy that placed economic sanctions against Iraq, but not against China, South Africa and the Soviet Union. She said she would support sanctions against these countries as well.

Carter and Connelley also expressed a concern for the environment in their music in addition to an opposition to U.S. troops in the gulf.

The Southern Illinois Latin America Solidarity Committee, SIUC Friends for Native Americans and the Mid-America Peace Project sponsored the rally.

The Peace Coalition of Southern Illinois, which has been in existence for about 8 years, and the Coalition for Mid-East Peace, which formed in August especially for the Persian Gulf situation, both supported the rally, said Margie Parker, a member of both organizations.

asked if he would like to be vice president for financial affairs before he was offered the position.

He answered, "no."
"Being vice president for financial affairs has been a good experience in many ways," he said. "I've had the opportunity to apply my business knowledge."

Hindersman said when he took the vice presidency he did not think it would become permanent because it was initially an acting position.

"Luckily, from all my acting positions I've learned you can't let a job slide just because it isn't permanent," Hindersman said. "You've got to act."

Hindersman said being asked to leave his position as COBA dean in 1976 to go back to teaching was a low point in his career.

"I'm probably the only person on campus who'll admit I was fired," he said. "Most would say they went back to their first love—teaching."

The position shift from administration to faculty was difficult, Hindersman said.

He said since 1960 he has taught a class every semester, except the last two years.

"I haven't taught lately because my chairman said he thought I was busy enough without teaching a class," Hindersman said.

He said his preference for eight o'clock classes is another reason he has not taught for a while.

"I don't think students like eight o'clock class because I always had poor attendance," Hindersman said. "I had a problem with that."

"I have a feeling of accomplishment from all of my positions," he said. "In teaching, though, you never know when this feeling will pop up—old students will show up when you least expect them."

"I have to say what every loyal teacher would say their favorite job was—my faculty position," he said. "I like contact with students."

Hindersman received a bachelors degree in economics from Wharton School of Finance and Commerce at University of Pennsylvania, the first business school in the country, in 1947.

He got a master's degree in business administration from Miami University in 1954 and a doctorate in business administration from Indiana University in 1959.

methods, Ailnani said.

He said the cost of film/screen is lower than xeromammography because regular X-ray film, rather than a specially coated plate, is used to take the picture.

When compared to the earlier machine, film/screen gives half the radiation exposure because the breast must be more compressed, or flattened. Because the thickness of the breast is decreased, less radiation is required to penetrate the breast tissue, Ailnani said.

The film/screen technique is more painful because the breast is more compressed. This was one aspect the clinic had to consider before changing machines, Hamilton said.

The technology behind film/screen mammography is not in itself capable of decreasing the mortality rate of breast cancer.

"One of the big problems in this society is that people still are not getting mammograms," Ailnani said.

He said reasons include denial, fear of radiation and cost.

Because a mammogram is only an annual checkup rather than once a month, there is no more danger of radiation than driving a car, flying an airplane, using a microwave or watching television, he said.

Businesses combat failure with planning

By Sherri L. Wilcox
Staff Writer

The Department of Continuing Education is trying to deter business failure in Southern Illinois.

The DCE and the Southern Illinois Small Business Incubator created "Nuts and Bolts of Starting a Small Business," a course designed to address problems that often lead to business failure. The Incubator also has scheduled a series of breakfast sessions for already established business owners.

"Half of all small businesses will fail within the first year. One of the major reasons for these grim statistics is a lack of planning," said Jane Evers, DCE coordinator for the College of Business and Administration.

The Small Business Incubator, 150 E. Pleasant Hill road, is headquarters to many programs aiding new and prospective entrepreneurs in the area. In addition to the two new programs offered by the DCE, courses are available in business computers, self-employment training and organizational skills.

The "nuts and bolts" course covers topics including insurance, advertising, taxes, office computers, writing business plans, keeping books and acquiring financing, Evers said.

Course instructors are members of the Carbondale Chapter of

"Half of all small businesses will fail within the first year."

— Jane Evers

Service Corps of Retired Executives, SIUC Small Business Development Center staff, and other local business experts.

The course is offered through DCE and will meet Mondays from 7 to 9:30 p.m., Feb. 4 through March 25. The cost is $45.

"Business Breakfast" sessions will be on the first Tuesday of each month at the incubator.

"By attending the sessions, small business owners can keep up on the latest developments in management while conferring casually with other business owners and economic professionals over a cup of coffee," Evers said.

The breakfast session schedule of topics includes legal issues facing small businesses, health insurance for employees, market research and customer service.

Sessions will begin Feb. 5 and will be held from 7:15 a.m. to 9 a.m. The cost for each session is $7 and includes a continental breakfast.

For more information, contact Jane Evers at 536-7751. For information on other programs offered at the Small Business Incubator, call David Hampson, incubator manager, at 453-5047.

No break on bills over break; cold pushes power prices up

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Students returning from break were met with more than friendly faces and long lines in the book store. Many found electricity bills as high or higher than before they left.

Higher bills are a direct result of colder weather, said Alan Potts, customer service representative for Central Illinois Public Service Company.

Students may turn their thermostats down when they are gone, but if the weather is colder, their heating systems have to work harder than when they were in town, he said.

CIPS, which provides electricity to most of Carbondale, has not raised its rates since 1982, Potts said.

The summer rate is about 8 cents a kilowatt-hour and the winter rate is about 6 cents a kwh, he said.

Bryce Cramer, district office manager for the Egyptian Electric Cooperative Association in Murphysboro, said the two largest uses of electricity are heating and cooling a home and heating water.

Heating the home and water continue even when students are gone, he said.

People do not realize how much electricity they are wasting, Cramer said.

A one-eighth-inch crack around a door is equal to a four-by-six-inch hole in the door.

"If you had a hole that big, you would do something about it," he said.

There are several ways to conserve electricity, according to both CIPS and Egyptian Electric.

"If you don't need something on, turn it off," Potts said. "Every time we plug something in or turn something on, we are making a purchasing decision."

To reduce seasonal high electricity costs, CIPS customers can sign up for the Equalizer.

The Equalizer is a payment plan based on a customer's average daily energy costs plus anticipated fuel and tax costs.

CIPS also offers a deferred payment agreement, Potts said. Once a year a customer may defer his or her payment.

The customer will make an initial payment, but have the remainder spread over a few months.

Both Cramer and Potts suggest the following tips to conserve electricity:

- Have proper insulation;
- Replace worn out weather stripping;
- Make sure doors and windows are sealed well;
- Clean or change heating filters;
- Shut off heat to unused rooms.

Grants help growth of mining research

SIUC departments split $18,500 grant from AMAX Coal

By Brandi Tipps
Staff Writer

Mining research projects at SIUC will continue after AMAX Coal's Foundation granted $18,500 for extensive coal and water research.

The Geology Department, Mining Engineering Department and the Coal Extraction and Utilization Research Center each received parts of the award, which was granted in December.

The Geology Department's hydrogeology program was awarded $2,500.

The program is designed to look at the hydrogeologic impacts of coal mining, said Steve Esling, associate professor of geology.

"By digging mine, you can alter the way (underground) water flows," he said.

The department will devise a manual to be used by mining companies to predict the effects on the water flow by mining, Esling said.

He said the department would use some of the grant money to buy a new personal computer and attachments.

Sidney Jones, an adjunct assistant professor of geology, Esling and AMAX representatives will work on the program jointly, Esling said.

Research is scheduled to begin this summer, he said.

Esling said the research is important because it helps pay for graduate student assistantships.

"Anytime new research is being done it affects the education process," he said.

The Mining Engineering Department received two grants totaling $6,000.

Of that amount, $4,000 is to be used for scholarships, said Paul Chugh, chairman of the department.

The remaining $2,000 will be used for research on the disposal of waste from burnt coal and studies on rock mechanics for operating mines.

Another part of the $2,000 goes to the prediction and control of land subsidence, which is caused by removal of minerals from underground mines, Chugh said.

The money also will be used for research on mine designing, he said. The design of mine working is a program that designs safe and stable underground openings for mines, said Rodney Caudle, associate professor of mining engineering.

Although there are no restrictions on the use of the money for the research, AMAX does specify the areas in which it wishes the research conducted, he said.

Chugh said five other researchers, Witold Pytel, Zhanjing Yu, Qingwang Hao, Virendra Singh and Mark Phillips, are working with him on the projects.

"They are doing research for me which involves laboratory as well as field research," Chugh said, adding they have worked with him for almost three years.

This research offers two important advantages to the University, Chugh said.

"If my people can do something for the coal industry which it can use to make money, then that's a feather in the cap of the University"

—Paul Chugh

First, "it helps in the regional economic development. If my people can do something for the coal industry which it can use to make money, then that's a feather in the cap of the University," he said.

Chugh said it also helps the Mining Engineering Department become more visible, and if the department is more visible it helps him to attract more students and more research money.

The Affiliates Program, for Coal Research grant of $2,500 and the Dragline Simulation Program grant of $7,500 also were awarded, said Crystal Coovert, public relations supervisor for AMAX's Indianapolis headquarters.

The Affiliates Program is an outreach program where the University and the coal industry work together to get more industries interested in coal research, said Dianne Throgmorton, public information specialist at the Coal Research Center.

"Through this program we get to know what their research interests are," she said.

The simulation program is a training program for people who operate draglines, Coovert said.

A dragline is a large piece of stripping equipment used at the surface of mines, said Richard Erickson, dragline training coordinator.

The program is offered to the mining industry to improve dragline productivity and reduce operating costs, he said.

Chugh said he could recall AMAX granting money to the University for the last 14 years.

"We have given at some level or another for the past six years. This year we almost doubled our support," Coovert said.

Coovert said the programs at SIUC are valuable, because AMAX has employees who participate in the University's training programs.

Funds from the AMAX Foundation are based on recommendations by AMAX Coal's main office in New York.

Panel: Resurrection of draft possibility

By Jefferson Robbins
Staff Writer

Panel members shared anecdotes and facts about conscientious objection with an audience of about 30 people at the Interfaith Center Thursday.

Although the military draft has been inactive since 1973, its reactivation to raise more troops for Operation Desert Storm is possible, panelists said.

For those in the audience with personal scruples about fighting a war, the news was not good.

Ray Parrish, executive director of the Midwest Committee for Military Counseling Inc., said the military's standards for conscientious objector (CO) status are less clear-cut than in the past.

"Conscientious objection (as a service option) is going to be more difficult than it was 50 years ago when it was legalized," said Parrish, the panel's featured speaker.

"We don't know what draft boards are going to base their decisions on," Parrish said.

The first age group targeted by the military, should Congress start a new draft, would be men just turning 20, Parrish said.

About half of the 20-year-olds will be ineligible due to disability, psychological problems or homosexuality, Parrish said. The military expects about 100,000 eligible men to resist service.

Parrish, the son of an Air Force officer, said refusal to fight a war for moral reasons is not the act of a coward.

"The essence of conscientious objection is not a desire to save your own life, but a desire not to take someone else's," Parrish said. "When you realize that, accusations of cowardice become irrelevant."

Other members of the panel included Bruce Chrisman, an academic adviser with the SIUC College of Engineering and Technology, Dave Christensen, emeritus professor of geography; and Jeff Kellogg, a Carbondale child psychologist.

Chrisman and Kellogg registered as conscientious objectors during the Vietnam War. Christensen served as an enlisted noncombatant in World War II.

Kellogg said his belief in non-violence extends beyond his views on the immortality of war.

"A man has to pursue, with his own intelligence, means of resolving conflict other than taking up arms," Kellogg said. "If a man took up arms against me and came into my home, I still would not take arms against him."

Kellogg's brother discovered his hate for war when he was enlisted, and tried to withdraw from service. The key to getting a discharge during Vietnam was to act crazy, Kellogg said.

"One of his friends told him, 'Just show up at any base about 100 miles away from your base and they'll think you're pretty wacky,'" Kellogg said. "He did, and he was out in two weeks."

Christensen's home life influenced his decision not to carry arms into war, he said.

"I grew up in a pacifist home," Christensen said. "(I told my commanding officer) I had moral scruples about killing people. In the years since I was a young man, I've come to know a lot more and see that war solves nothing. We are still in the barbaric age."

The United States seems to have railroaded itself into a war with Iraq, he said.

"(The conflict) wasn't a result of a sudden crisis, an attack on the United States," he said. "It was almost as if someone had us programmed for war."

Chrisman said that refusal to fight because of religious beliefs is usually acceptable to draft officials. "I had no organizational affiliation, which made it difficult," Chrisman said. "If you were a Mennonite or a Quaker, you were pretty much stamped a CO."

But during Vietnam, he said, the rules of service worked differently for different groups of people.

"If you were a white, middle-class citizen and wanted to be a CO, you could be," Chrisman said. "If you were black or poor, no way."

One cannot simply register as a CO, Parrish said. In the military's eyes, conscientious objectorship must be proved with pictures, documents, videotapes or other evidence.

Parrish suggested service-age men and women who expect a draft assemble portfolios documenting their anti-war feelings.

Recordings or transcripts of conversations about pacifism, news photos of participation in peace rallies, and testimonial letters from counselors or clergymen are good pieces for such a portfolio, Parrish said.

Parrish also provided a toll-free telephone number for anyone with questions about military service: 1-(800)-86-NO WAR.

The route of conscientious objection is not an easy one to take, he said.

"All conscientious objectors will be looked at as cowards by someone," Parrish said. "The important thing is to find out what your conscience is telling you, and obey it."

Police Blotter

Richard A Powers, 23, told police an auto burglary occurred at 535 S. Logan St. between 6 and 11:40 p.m. Thursday, Carbondale Police said. Powers said his unlocked car was entered and an AM/FM cassette stereo worth about $220 was stolen.

Jeffrey C. Rako, 18, of Marissa was arrested Thursday, SIUC Police said. Rako was charged with taking batteries from the University Bookstore without paying for them. He posted $100 bond and a court date is set for Feb. 6.

SIUC student Laron D. Jones, 19, of 1229 Schneider Hall was arrested at 9:03 p.m. last Monday, SIUC Police said. Arrested on a warrant, Jones was charged with fraud.

play to win the conference championship again," senior guard Sterling Mahan said.

That right kind of defense held Tillis to a mere 2 points in the second half, while creating 22 Bulldog turnovers.

Sophomore center Ashraf Amaya dominated inside on both ends of the court for 38 minutes of play. His 22 rebounds led both teams and his 10 rebounds were more than twice as many as any other player on the floor. Amaya's five blocked shots and two slam dunks brought the crowd to its feet each time.

"Amaya's a great player," said Shipley, who contributed 13 points. "He should be a first-team all-conference player, if not the MVP of the conference. He's really carrying us inside and dominating anyone who's guarding him."

The Salukis had 46 of their points from inside the paint, with Mahan driving for 8 points off layups. He had his usual consistent night with 18 points.

The Salukis' bench saw a lot of time in the lopsided ballgame. Freshman guard Chris Lovery was a key to the SIUC transition game, pushing the ball up the court during his 22 minutes of play. Pavlovic, who had been suffering from a groin pull, played eight minutes and added 7 points to the Saluki attack.

Consistent free throw shooting helped SIUC keep its commanding lead over the Bulldogs. Shipley hit all seven of his freebies from the line, while Lawrence was five for six from the line.

The Salukis are back in action tonight at 7:30 against Creighton in the Arena.

UNI couldn't find a way to get past the Salukis' smothering defense. The result was a 27 percent shooting afternoon. It was the lowest shooting percentage by any of the Salukis' opponents this season.

SIUC scored another Gateway Conference win to up its record to 8-1 in the conference and 13-4 overall.

Besides the lopsided score, the UNI win had a couple of other bright spots. Sophomore forward Kelly Firth resumed her normally tough inside scoring game as she chipped in 10 points. Firth was held scoreless from the field against Drake.

But the surprise of the day was the emergence of the Salukis' Tiffany Bolden. The 5-foot-11 sophomore forward came off the bench to score a career-high 14 points on six of seven shooting from the field. Bolden tied senior Amy Rakers for scoring honors. Rakers matched her point total of 14, with 14 rebounds.

"I think Tiffany will be a great player for our program," Scott said. "She's at the point where she could be a real help to us."

wondering if they had what it takes to repeat as Missouri Valley Conference champions.

"We've had a few team meetings this year," Shipley said. "I think we knew we weren't playing well and each individual looked upon himself and said 'are we going to let this season end right now, or our we going to turn it around?'"

The Salukis have definitely turned it around the last two ballgames and Coach Rich Herrin has a lot of confidence in his ballclub.

"I think this basketball team is a very good team," Herrin said. "Even our defeats have been good games for us. We just haven't been able to win the close ones like we did last year."

The Salukis have not lost a game by more than 6 points and lost three games by a single shot or less.

Depth is key to men's win, women's loss in pool

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

It happened as expected Saturday against the University of Arkansas. The men's swimming and diving team won the dual meet while the women fell, to the 13th-ranked Razorbacks.

The final score of the men's division was 139-101. This meet improved its dual meet record to 4-1. The women's final score was 139-97 in favor of Arkansas bringing SIUC to a 2-4 dual meet mark.

"Overall I was happy with the meet," SIUC swimming and diving team coach Doug Ingram said. "We knew coming in that we would struggle for depth to stay win their women, but our ladies still produced many season-best times and the men responded with a strong win."

Freshman Rob Siracusano led the way with a first-place NCAA zone qualifying performance in the one-meter diving with a score of 298.65. He also placed first in three-meter diving (281.3").

SIUC's men also had a few double wins with sophomore Brian Gargan placing first in the 100 and 200 freestyle (4:46.64 and 1:41.62) and senior Chris Gally taking firsts in the 200 individual medley (1:56.22) and 100 butterfly (50.63).

SIUC freshmen Greg Reever, Ryan Wolfinger, and V-Meng Tan placed second, third and fourth behind Gally in the 200 individual medley.

Senior Eric Bradac also took two firsts in the 1,000 free (9:97.96) and 500 free (4:39.54). Juniors Todd Edison and Stu Patterson along with Bever took second, third and fourth in the 500 free behind Bradac.

Also finishing first and second in the 50 free were junior Dery Leubner (21.47) and senior Jeff Goetz (21.66).

SIUC won first in the 200 free relay with a team of Leubner, Goetz, Gargan, and senior David Morovitz (1:25.14).

Ingram said this meet win gave the men's team the chance to move up in ranking, and with this win, it would still be ranked the top 20.

"The meet Feb. 9 against Iowa who is ranked 9th will be our key challenge," Ingram said. "That is when we see if we can move up and better our ranking."

The women also had their share of first-place wins.

Junior Tonia Mahaira took first in the 200 free with a time of 1:52.06 and junior Nancy Schmidtkofer won first in the 50 free (24.21).

Junior Julie Hosier placed first in the 100 butterfly with a 1:58.54 and second in the 200 individual medley (2:11.56) and SIUC's 200 free relay (Mahaira, juniors Cindy Owens and Melissa Steinbach and sophomore Julie Adams) took first with a 1:39.99.

The women swimmers and divers are struggling, trying to make up for the loss of their three divers who cannot compete because of injuries.

"I think a lot of our girls did outstanding," Ingram said. "It is significant when you have several people placing first and second against a school ranked like Arkansas."

"With all of our injuries we were in a desperate situation considering Arkansas has three quality divers and we only had one, but the ladies didn't let that affect them. They did as good as they could despite all the injured divers."

"It is nice to have some action in a dual meet again," Ingram said. "I feel this was the kind of competition we needed to get us back into the right frame of mind as the busy portion of the season nears."

This weekend the SIUC men and women played host at the annual Saluki Invitational at the Recreation Center.

SIUC hurdler Ed Williams qualifies for NCAAs at U.S. Air Invitational

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

Junior Ed Williams made it official Saturday. He now has an automatic qualifying time for the NCAA in the 55-meter hurdles.

After provisionally qualifying in the meet last weekend, he pulled ahead in East Tennessee State's U.S. Air Invitational to take first place and set the new school record with a time of 7.20, .04 faster than needed to qualify for nationals.

"It was a great performance," men's track and field coach Bill Cornell said. "Ed was very excited because that performance was one of the leading collegiate times in the country."

Cornell is very pleased to have two NCAA qualifiers on his team.

"With Williams and Darrin Plab, we've got two potential NCAA champions on our hands," Cornell said. "They are exceptional athletes."

Cornell was also pleased with junior Nick Schwartz's performance in the mile run. Schwartz won first place with a personal best time of 4:11.60.

"Schwartz ran an outstanding performance," Cornell said. "He just has to get in the right race to run a good mile. He also has done exceptionally well in the 3,000-meter run."

Cornell said that SIUC has the first and second leading marks in the conference with Schwartz's and Mark Stuart's times in the 3,000-meter.

Stuart placed fourth in the 3,000-meter with a 8:18.46 and Plab tied for third in the high jump with a 6-11 3/4.

Eleven team members competed in the U.S. Air Invitational while the rest of the team competed at Eastern Illinois.

The Salukis who traveled to EIU also took some winning places.

Senior Landell Smith finished second in the 55-meter dash with a personal best of 7.71 and freshman Brian Miller took second in the shot put with a toss of 51-2 1/4. Sophomore Dirk Mathias placed fourth in the 35-pound weight throw with a 52-2 1/2.

"This weekend we had 16 season bests," Cornell said. "I think we are starting to round into shape, progressing into conference championships which are less than a month away."

"I think we had a very good weekend. All that we have to do now is look ahead and try to start getting work done."

This weekend the Salukis are traveling to Bloomington, Ind., for the Indiana Invitational.

SIUC women's track and field team dominates meet at Arkansas State

By Cyndi Oberle
Staff Writer

Women's track and field coach Don DeNoon said the meet Saturday was like being in a planetarium with Saluki stars shining all over the place.

"The whole team came together," DeNoon said, "and in a relay meet that is what has to happen. We pulled together for a strong performance."

DeNoon said the meet was a duplicate of the first-place performance last weekend.

The relay meet at Arkansas State was non-scored with no overall winner, but had it been scored, DeNoon said his team would have had double the points that the second place winner scored.

One school record and one meet record were set by Saluki athletes. Sophomore Nacolia Moore took first place and set the meet record in the triple jump with a 37-53/4, breaking the old record of 37-41/2. Moore also placed third in the long jump (17-10 1/4).

The old school record for the 3200-meter relay (10:37.10) was broken by sophomores Laura Batsie and Lecann Conway and freshmen Jennifer Kostelny and Stephanie Shelly with a time of 9:43.66.

Other first-place finishes were taken by sophomore Cheryl Evers for her shot put toss of 44-81/4 and junior Amie Padgett for her 3,000-meter run of 10:37.40. SIUC's Karen Gardner, Kelly Elliott and Karri Gardner also placed second, third and fifth respectively.

"It was just one good effort after another," DeNoon said. "We also had some excellent freshmen performances and some individuals who ran outstanding in their relays."

Other Saluki finishes were a first place in the distance medley relay with a 12:22.80 (Shaunae Winfield, Brand: Mock, Dawn Barefoot and Lecann Conway) and a second-place win in the 5,000-meter run by Leslie Tynes (21:22.94). Michele Williams took third in the triple jump (36-81/4) and fourth in the long jump (17-73/4).

"We were missing a couple of athletes and a few had injuries," DeNoon said, "but we will be in full strength next week unless we fall under unfortunate circumstances. We must continue to train and see where we go from here."

Saturday the team faces Southwest Missouri and Western Illinois at the Recreation Center.
