S. African apartheid protesters draw police fire

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) - Police opened fire Monday night for the second time in a week, killing four blacks, and said 37 black leaders and activists were arrested on the second of emergency rule in South Africa.

The four deaths raised to 24 the number of blacks killed since the white minority government imposed a state of emergency in black areas of the country on Sunday in an attempt to curb racial unrest.

President Pieter Botha defended his emergency decree on Monday as a way to "ensure the safety" of South Africans, despite the criticism from the United States and the 10-nation European Common Market.

In Belgium, foreign ministers of the Common Market called for an end to the state of emergency and for the release of black citizens held under its provisions.

Two men and a black youth were said and killed by police who opened fire on a mob of about 4,000 blacksstoning the home of a black police officer in Transkei, near Johannesburchg, police said. Five people were wounded and arrested.

In Zanazizil, near Port Elizabeth, a black man was killed by police firing one shotgun round and two rubber bullets at 200 youths.

Deaths site evidence given in murder trial

The state presented evidence Monday gathered from the scene where Ann Avedzoro was found dead and attempted to prove that her husband wanted her killed.

Murphysboro dentist Allan B. Avedozo is on trial in Jackson County Circuit Court for allegedly contracting to kill his former wife on or about March 25, 1981.

Mrs. Avedozo was found on April 1, 1981, in a wooded area just outside the northeast Carbondale city limits. She had been shot repeatedly while sitting in her car, a 1978 station wagon.

Dr. Steven Naunberger, pathologist who performed the autopsy on Mrs. Avedozo at St. Joseph Memorial Hospital in Murphysboro, said that 10 entry wounds from 10 muzzle perceived to be discovered on her body.

"Five spent slugs were found in the bullet tracks of the deceased," he said. He said the rest of slugs passed through her body or fragmented.

Naunberger said his findings supported the shots were fired from the left and right and from more than one person.

Written testimony from a ballistic expert confirmed that the bullets and their casings show that more than one 22-caliber weapon was used to kill Mrs. Avedozo.

In addition, he said there were six "groove wounds," adding that there was no evidence of sexual assault of Mrs. Avedozo.

Mrs. Avedozo's purse and pictures of her and her car were introduced as evidence. Police said fingerprints could not be obtained because the purse and her car had been exposed to the weather before police arrived.

Judge Richard Buchanan sustained objections from defense attorney Burton Lockwood concerning testifying on the cultural behavior of Indians. By the way, Mrs. Avedozo was a native of India as her former husband Richardson said there was no basis in the case for cultural expert's testimony.

Instead the prosecution restricted its questioning of Singh to his relationship to the Avedozos. He said he met the couple about 1975 when he was a student at SIU.

Singh said he was aware that the couple was having marital problems during the late 1970s. I advised them both to see a competent counselor that they both felt comfortable with," he said.

He didn't want divorce under any circumstances because he wanted to be with the children and the family." Singh said.

Mrs. Avedozo did, however, file for divorce and a settlement was finalized in May 1980. Mrs. Avedozo was granted custody of the four children. Mrs. Avedozo was to pay $800 a month child support.

Several other government witnesses testified that Avedozo was quite eager with the prospect of losing custody of his children to his wife.

Betty June, one of Avedozo's sisters and a resident of Murphysboro, said that she had told her in late 1979 that "I think I'll kill her.

Under cross-examination, she said she did not take the threat seriously. Only after Mrs. Avedozo was murdered in 1981 did June tell police about the remark.

Arthur Lamley, another witness and a bartender at Hunter's Lounge, 1341 Walnut St., Murphysboro, said that Avedozo during the late 1970s mentioned about shooting his wife to keep from losing custody of his children.

Professionals group files bargaining petition

University Professionals of SIU filed a petition Tuesday with the State Education Labor Relations Board to represent SIU faculty and staff as a collective bargaining representative.

UPSIU joins the National Education Association as a prospective bargaining representative. The NEA filed an April 23 petition with 362 authorization cards to represent all SIU-C and SIU-E faculty and staff.

John Pohlmann, UP-SIU president, said his group's petition is supported by 348 authorization cards and will "accelerate the process of determining a bargaining representative."

"Our petition will also pave the way for formalization of provisions in Springfield which should begin in about a month," Pohlmann said.

IFLKB rules require authorization cards from 30 percent of the employees in a proposed bargaining unit. UP-SIU submitted cards representing 41 percent of about 1,400 SIU-employees.

The UP-SIU filed on behalf of professional staff and all faculty members, except those in the Colleges of Medicine or School of Law appointments. The latter group is excluded from the petition, Pohlmann said.

City Council member Neil Dillard says that he has serious moral reservations about the city buying a Kubota tractor. At present, the city must accept the lowest bid on any equipment contract.

The bids were placed before the City Council for approval on May 15. Councilmen Dillard and John Yow immediately voiced concern over the city buying the equipment.

Mayor Helen Westberg said that she also would like the city to "buy American," at least in this case.

City Manager Bill Dixon said that he would "look into the feasibility" affecting the situation and inform the council of his findings as soon as possible, probably within the next few weeks, at which time they would decide whether or not to purchase the tractor.

High school adopts substance abuse program

Art Maton
Staff Writer

High school students in Carbondale who abuse drugs or alcohol will now be presented with an alternative to expulsion from school.

At last Thursday's meeting of the Carbondale Community High School Board, the SODAA (Students Overcoming Drug And Alcohol) program was adopted for inclusion in the 1989-90 CCHS student handbook.

The SODAA program is offered through the Alcohol Treatment Services of the Jackson County Mental Health Center, 601 E. College St., Carbondale. The program seeks to provide students with thorough, knowledgeable understanding of illegal substances, to understand their own motivation in using them, and to help students develop alternatives to drug abuse.

A STUDENT who is involved with consuming, using, or giving away drugs or alcohol on school property, or at school-sponsored events, will still be suspended for five days.

However, students can have further disciplinary action deferred by accepting an appointment to join the SODAA program for the end of the suspension period. The SODAA program consists of an intake session, five group sessions, and an evaluation session. The student and student's parents are expected to attend the intake session, during which the extent of the student's substance-abuse problem is evaluated.

GROUP SESSIONS are held weekly. An Alcohol Treatment Services counselor leads the two-hour sessions, in which five to 10 students are involved in the chemical makeup of drugs and alcohol, their effects on the body, and the legal aspects of their use.

The students' decisions-making process is examined.

"We try to get them to think about what they're doing," said Monte Dillard, counselor coordinator for Alcohol Treatment Services.

The evaluation session is scheduled within five days of the completion of the group session phase. The student and student's parents meet with a counselor, who provides feedback and recommendations.

TO SUCCESSFULLY complete the program, a student must complete all sessions and pass a final exam, which consists of true-false and multiple-choice questions.

In addition, the student must pay a fee, which has not yet been set by the Jackson County Mental Health Center Board. A student who misses a group session must pay a $20 fee to make it up.

Upon successful completion of the program, any further disciplinary actions against student will not be imposed. However, failure to complete the program will make the student subject to further actions by the high school board.

ALL INFORMATION regarding program participation is strictly confidential. Students and parents are required to sign a release of information form, which allows counselors to secure information regarding the student's academic standing and performance, and to notify the principal upon completion of the program.

A student who completes the program, but who is involved in a subsequent incident involving substance abuse in the same school year, will not be eligible to participate in the program again.

The program is available to students who are involved in the sale of drugs or alcohol. "We don't want to keep this student from being expelled from school.

Students who have not been involved in a substance-abuse problem, but who recognize that they have a problem with alcohol or drugs, are encouraged to participate in the program. Such participation is highly recommended, and will result in no adverse action toward the student. For more information, call Alcohol Treatment Services at 529-333.
Stockman resigned but deficit lingers despite his efforts

The resignation of Budget Director David Stockman will relieve several groups of people. The Reagan administration is grateful that Stockman, who stood out from the usually faceless Reaganaut crowd, was a straight-forward opposer of the President. It is reported that Stockman has been a straight-forward opposer of the July 1981 resignation of the President. This has been a straight-forward opposer of the July 1981 resignation of the President. His resignation, it is reported, has been a straight-forward opposer of the July 1981 resignation of the President. For example, he was an opposer of the July 1981 resignation of the President. The resignation was a straight-forward opposer of the July 1981 resignation of the President.

Ann Moynihan, D.N.Y., that the president knew that the 1981 tax cut would not reduce the deficit and balance the budget by stimulating the economy, as Reagan publicly claimed. In fact, Stockman said, the budget deficit was deliberately created to scare the nation into thinking that federal spending cuts on domestic programs were essential.

Moynihan said the statement, public and private, that disrupted the group of yes-men who surround the president's programs. In an address to the New York Stock Exchange last month, he said: "As the fiscal crisis has worsened and the political conflict intensified, we have increasingly resorted to squeezing the circle with accounting gimmicks, evasions, half-truths and downright dishonesty in our budget numbers, debate and advocacy." There was also the Atlantic Monthly article where Stockman admitted a secret doubt in the effectiveness of supply-side economics and tried to persuade the administration and Congress to accept tax increases. Stockman has been a constant reminder to the president that the deficit is growing, and that there will be trouble ahead if financial markets begin to lose confidence in the U.S. economy.

There was also the Atlantic Monthly article where Stockman admitted a secret doubt in the effectiveness of supply-side economics and tried to persuade the administration and Congress to accept tax increases. Stockman has been a constant reminder to the president that the deficit is growing, and that there will be trouble ahead if financial markets begin to lose confidence in the U.S. economy. And, of course, Reagan has always maintained that he is opposed to budget deficits. However, despite constant warnings, the President has done nothing to ease the deficit and has done plenty to worsen it. He treats the national deficit problem as if it is another area of concern. The constant surfacing of remarks critical of the president's economic plans indicated Stockman's feeling of being discounted, lying just a little below the cover of an administration that doesn't allow dissent. For it wasn't until he angered the president, by saying that the deficit increased by the deficit cannot be lowered by $60 billion, that he was asked to resign.

While the president maintained his hypocritical stance of condemning the deficit then doubling the $800 billion debt inherited in 1981, Stockman has been a straight-forward opposer of Reagan's unrealistic economic plans. Stockman's skills as a slasher of domestic programs will not be missed with his departure. For example, the administration will actually benefit from unrealistic economic plans will be missed sorely.

Siu-C recruitment efforts faulty

As each day passes, I wonder what ridiculous new plot to attract more students will be brainstormed by Siu-C's top administration. The renovation of Woody Hall Cafeteria takes the cake in ignorant ideas. Following it, is the great plan of raising the salaries of Chancellors Shaw and President Somit and (Siu-C) President Lazerson. Ignorance seems to be on a roll these days.

I do not know what weight the renovation of Woody Hall Cafeteria will carry as a decision factor of whether to enroll at Siu-C or elsewhere. I know when the time comes for me to assist my child in choosing a college. I am not going to take decor into consideration. I will direct my child's effort the college that has the most to offer academically.

The results of the last several quantitative-qualitative surveys of Morris Library display its dismal lack of assets. The library's research facilities are far from adequate. Siu is one of two libraries ranked in the state. Our ranking has slipped about 20 points over the past few years. At least $300,000 is needed above and beyond the minute 10 percent increase it has been granted from the state and University Siu-C's administration needs to concentrate on improving our ranking instead of our decor. I view a top ranked library as a vital asset that a college needs to obtain for student recruitment.

Another related area of concern is the salaries of our administrators. I realize the rationalization of the "competitive edge" behind the increase of the top administration's salaries. But I do not understand how such scholarships benefit from their employment. It is known that President Somit is notorious for appropriating school funds towards his extravagant wine and cheese parties and his lavish crab meat quiche lunches. I have no idea what Chancellor Shaw does for the University. I know that I am not the only student who feels this vacuum. I am appalled that there will be no student input in Shaw's evaluation: after all, we are paying his salary. Salary increases need to be directed toward the professors' and instructors' paychecks, to attract and retain the most qualified scholars. This increase will indeed impress parents and increase student enrollment.

Judgment of an institution is the same as a person. You do not look at what is on the outside; you look within. The ideas presented in this letter are derived from common sense and a mind set to get lost in the red tape of bureaucracy.

Animal research not as horrid as abortion

We have reason to be angered by such treatment of animals. But if such treatment of animals bothers us, how much more should we be outraged by the killing of 1.5 million unborn children every year through legalized abortion. You be the judge. Come and see just a sonogram of an actual abortion in the movie "Silent Voice" and you will realize how low you are judging. This research is continuously on Friday, July 26, in the main corridor of the Student Center.

ID issue merits study

We have a conflict between two legitimate bodies — the students of Siu-C and the City of Carbondale — about the use of Siu-C IDs. This conflict has caused several problems for the students of Siu-C, the city and the liquor establishment. I feel both the editorial staff of the Daily Egyptian and the University Student Commission have failed to investigate this issue properly.

Who is it affecting? The students as patrons of the liquor establishments, the city because of reduced sales for revenue, and the liquor establishments because of their fear of being in violation of the city's liquor code and losing revenue.

This conflict also prompted the resignation of a student representative on the liquor board.

When will the editorial staff and the city stop throwing mud in each other's eyes? Wake up and see the light. The solution is there, but they're too busy with mud to stop their fight.

Henry Andrews was full of bull when he stated that birth control had no purpose whatsoever in relation to their campus uses. What about Siu-C policies for housing and food, which are also being researched and freshenmen who are under 21?

What I would like to know is when the editorial staff is going to get off their high horse and do some real investigative reporting? — Drayton Boone, junior, Radio-Television.

Drunk driving charge dismissed against former Carbondale mayor

By Bob Tita
Staff Writer

A drunk driving charge against former Carbondale Mayor Paul G. Thompson was dismissed by Jackson County Circuit Court Judge David War Jr. Monday for lack of sufficient evidence.

Miller's attorney, Thomas Gough, argued that there was never any proof that Miller was actually operating the car.

"There was no testimony whatsoever as to Mr. Miller driving the car, or the engine running," he said. He said that evidence presented showed only that Miller was seen leaving the car.

Watt concurred with the argument. He said the evidence presented in court did not prove that probable cause existed for arresting Miller for driving his car while intoxicated.

Gov. Thompson makes progress toward signing state budget

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) - Gov. James R. Thompson has signed most of the state's $19.5 billion budget for this fiscal year, but he is waiting to complete the task this week, Democrat's spokesman said Tuesday.

Included in the measures are a $3.4 billion Public Aid Department budget and $1.6 billion for the state's colleges and universities. Campbell said a public aid budget does not include a cost-of-living increase for welfare recipients.

DEBATE: City argues foreign purchases

The governor used his item reduction veto powers to pare down many of the measures. Several major items, including a $1.1 billion college elementary and secondary school aid, have already been signed by Thompson.

The governor has yet to sign several other budget bills, including those for the Corrections and Department of Transportation budgets, but it is expected to act on them shortly, budget officials said.

Richard Kolhauser, deputy director of the governor's bureau of the Budget, said the final budget for the fiscal year that began July 1 is expected to total about $19.5 billion. That figure includes the "build Illinois" public works program, which Thompson is expected to sign next week.

Lawmakers had sent Thompson a $10.6 billion increase in state aid, Kolhauser said.

The budget would be used to pay for the state's share of the "build Illinois" public works program, which Thompson is expected to sign next week.

Such a policy could keep Illinois plants going during the current economic crunch, he said.

"A policy such as this will keep workers in this state employed," said Dillard. "And when those workers are employed, they can support the state through taxes institutions such as ISU.

With all the plants that have been shut down or discarded, the economic base of this state will be eroded," he said.

"It's a shame that our society won't allow a person a decent living," Dillard said in reference to unemployed factory workers in Illinois around the country.

"Buying imports may be cheaper in the short run, but we should look at the long-term effect of these kinds of purchases on our economy," he said.

Good cast and set brings ‘Brigadoon’ to life

By Terri Queen
Staff Writer

“Brigadoon,” a mystical Scottish village that appears once every 100 years, is real enough on the McLeod Theater stage.

An enthusiastic cast and a well-designed, functional set are combined to bring the famous Lerner and Loewe musical to life in the last play of the Summer Playhouse ‘85 series.

“Brigadoon” tells the story of a village that disappears to keep the townspeople free from the corrupting influences of the outside world. Two Americans, Tommy Albright (Baron Bragg) and Jeff Douglas (Henry Michael Ogden), stumble upon the town and learn its secrets.

Tommy falls in love with Fiona, one of the residents, but can’t convince himself to stay. Once back in the states, however, Tommy can’t forget her and returns to Brigadoon.

Production of the show is marked with excellent singing from the entire cast. Marjorie Crawford as Fiona MacLaren lends a dreamy quality to “I’ll Go Home With Bonnie Jean” and “On the Hill.” “Waitin’ For My Dearie” and other songs.

Gale Oxley, as Charlie Dalrymple, has an outstanding tenor voice that fills the theater with his songs. “I’ll Go Home With Bonnie Jean” and “Come to Me, Bend to Me.”

His strong, wide-ranging voice makes Charlie unforgettable. Oxley was in the St. Louis Opera Company this past spring and it shows.

Ogdon is funny and gives personaliy to his character of Jeff with a lot of sarcasm, is just right for his character and gives comic relief to the show.

Bruce, as Tommy, did a good acting job, but needed to loosen up a bit. Next to Ogdon’s smooth manner, Bruce seems stiff. His voice is adequate, but is not the best in the show.

Archibald McLeod, for whom McLeod Theater is named, is charming in his role as Mr. Lundy — complete with appearance in nightshirt and smoking cap.

“Brigadoon” set is done well with light, airy fabrics and lots of color. Milan Pales has another good set design for the last show in the Summer Playhouse series. The cast can move the piece easily and the use of the available fly space to drop down pieces of the landscape.

Front and back lighting is also used to get good effects with the use of a spotlight to illustrate the dreamlike quality of Brigadoon.

The show runs again at 8 p.m. Thursday through Sunday. Tickets are $6 for Thursday and Sunday and $7 for Friday and Saturday.

White House phone lines jammed by ticket-hungry Springsteen fans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A flood of calls to buy tickets for Bruce Springsteen’s concert in the nation’s capital tangled telecommunications service in three cities Monday, including the White House and other key government installations.

The problems of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. were so bad, phone lines were out of the Washington area, Baltimore and Richmond, Va. receiving hundreds of signals or recorded messages that all circuits were jammed. AT&T Communications spokesman Marty Szostek said.

There is a problem with the network being tied up because of the high volume of calls connected with the Bruce Springsteen concert scheduled for Aug. 5 at RFK Stadium, Szostek said.

Concert tickets went on sale at 10 a.m. and all 52,600 were sold out in less than two hours, stadium officials said. Some fans had camped out at the stadium since last week.

About 2,000 of the tickets were purchased with credit cards over the telephone. 2,500 were sold at the stadium and the rest were bought at ticket centers locations in the region, the officials said.

The RFK Stadium spokesman said the concert set a new sell-out record for outdoor rock concerts.

Szostek and AT&T network managers were busy rerouting calls, giving priority to outgoing service, and advising callers to “just wait a minute and dial back.”

The overloaded telephone system frustrated residential callers, as well as businesses and key government agencies.

Braun's hit lifts Cards

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Pinch hitter Steve Braun stroked his second consecutive game-winning hit Monday to lift the St. Louis Cardinals to a 4-3 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Braun, batting for winning pitcher Joaquin Andujar, who earned his major-league leading 16th victory, singled home Tito Landrum in the eighth inning to give the Cardinals a 4-3 lead.

Andujar, 6-4, allowed seven hits and three runs in seven innings. Jeff Labi earned his 10th save, pitching the final two innings. Dave Lopate, 4-9, yielded seven hits and four runs in 1-3 innings.

With the Giants leading 2-1 in the eighth, LaPoint walked Willie McGill and gave up a single to Landrum. Garrelus relieved and struck out pinch-hitter Andy Van Slyke, before yielding an RBI single to pinch-hitter Terry Pendleton to tie the score. Braun then singled to center for a 4-3 lead.

Braun had a two-run homer Sunday in the Cardinals' 4-2 victory in 10 innings over Los Angeles.

PLAN: Restructuring un resolved

S evert will absolutely not ac cept a proposal where two individuals would be reporting to him.

“In my favorite plan, the president feels he would be acting as an adjudicator or intermediary between the departments, which is a reasonable response,” West said.

WEST SAID that she felt Plan B moved too much responsibility into the executive director position and took too much away from the directors of the departments.

“Plan B is not from the collaboration of Stuck, Lew Harting, and myself,” West said. “I should be disturbed to know that I’ve worked 88 years for a donation. With the authority delegated to the executive director in Plan B, I fail to understand what the responsibilities of department directors would be. If we were in a Plan B structure right now, I wouldn’t know what my responsibilities would be, they all seem to have been delegated to the executive director.”

OF ALL the plans proposed so far, West said that she favors Plan C the most, although it is not her first choice. She added that she would not oppose a structure in which an advisory executive director, one trained in sports management, would be responsible for reporting to the president. Such a structure would be similar to the position formerly held by Bruce Swinburne, who was replaced by Stuck.

Softball Salukis participate in IASA state tournament

By Steve Merritt

Staff Writer

Saluki softball coach Kay Brechtelsbauer spent the weekend watching some of her key players participate in the Illinois Amateur Softball Association state tournament in Pekin.

Brechtelsbauer saw four players from last year’s squad play as well as some players who will play for next year’s team as walk-ons. The tournament determines which teams will advance to regional play, which is to be held Aug. 1-4 in Macomb. Winners of regional play will advance to the national championships in Lansing, Mich.

Jenny Shupryt, Lisa Peterson and Jan Vroman, all of whom played key positions on last year’s 24-18 team, were among the players that Brechtelsbauer saw in action. Brechtelsbauer also got to see Jane Elder, who was redshirted last season.

Among the walk-ons that Brechtelsbauer saw was Amy Bushel, an outfielder that Brechtelsbauer has high hopes for.

“Tournaments like this give me a chance to see my players and keep up with how they’re progressing,” Brechtelsbauer said. “In the case of the walk-ons, it gives me a chance to see a player who will be on my team that I haven’t really seen that much of before.”

Looking ahead to next season, Brechtelsbauer said, “On paper, we seem to be stronger than last season. We’ll have much more depth, a little more speed to work with and will hopefully be stronger all around.”

“We’ll have the heart of our team coming back, and we’ll be strong up the middle. We’ve strengthened key positions such as third base and catcher, and we’ll have some competition for other positions. I’m really optimistic about our pitching. We’ll have a young pitching staff that should be among the best in the league,” she said.

“With the additions of Lori Day at pitcher, our pitching looks good. Lori will really compliment the existing staff of Kelly Powell and Lisa Peterson. And the addition of Erin Evans, who was limited to batting last year because of a shoulder injury, will be a big help.”

Evans will reassume her former position at third base, which was vacated by the loss of Kim Bruno, who was determined academically ineligible. Brechtelsbauer said that the rehabilitation of Evans through the summer will be “of great importance to Evans and the team.”

“Although there are a lot of question marks, I anticipate some of the walk-ons will play a vital role,” Brechtelsbauer said. “In general, we should have a lot more flexibility due to our increased depth.

“All things considered, I think it’s going to be a season to look forward to.”

Restructuring plan remains unresolved

By Steve Merritt
Staff Writer

With an air of uncertainty still surrounding the SJUC athletics departments, the Intercollegiate Athletics Committee will meet Thursday. An effort to determine the future direction of the present athletic structures.

Dean Stuck, special assistant to the president on intercollegiate athletics, said Monday that he has been “very sensitive” to the concerns of those involved with the reconstruction of the present structure.

“I don’t think I made it clear to the committee that the structure to be adopted is not yet concrete,” Stuck said.

“Right now, we are trying to shape some general, broad guidelines to work within. Nothing is final yet.”

STUCK said that if he were in the position of executive athletics director, he would have to think of the system that is to be implemented couldn’t be “fine-tuned” after an initial operation.

Stuck insisted that at least three things must be placed under the direction of an athletics director: staffing, facilities and funding as well as public relations.

In coordination between the two departments is essential. Under my Plan B, departments will be doing the same basic job but with definite coordination between departments,” Stuck said.

COMMENTING on the position of an executive director, Stuck said that he was determined to hire “the best possible applicant” for the job.

“araising atmosphere under control” Stuck said.

“I hope that we are close to some kind of decision by the end of August,” Stuck said. He had not had some people apply for the position and had reviewed any applications because he felt it would not be appropriate to make a decision.

Stuck said that he feels the IAC, along with President Semmel and Stuck himself, will decide on a structure before trying to fill the executive director position. If a decision is made to have the structure to be followed then the process of reviewing applications will begin.

“The ONLY way that we’ll feel the benefit of having one is if the right decision will be to look back in three or four years and evaluate the progress and performance of both departments,” Stuck said.

Director of Women’s Athletics Charlotte West said that her main intention was to keep “the identity and autonomy” of both departments intact.

“I do realize that I do not favor any of the plans that have been proposed for the IAC,” West said.

“arousal was made by the program to have the women’s athletics director reporting directly to the president.” She also acknowledged the fact that this plan was not likely since Stuck has indicated that

The Region 8 open division volleyball team captured a silver medal in the Prairie State Games, which ended Sunday in Campbell.

Region 8 consisted of most of Southern Illinois south of St. Louis. Several current and former SJUC athletes competed for Region 8 in sports such as volleyball, track and field and wrestling.

The volleyball team had nine current or former SJUC on its roster. Former All-American middle hitter Sonya Locke, who is now an SJUC assistant coach, led the team to a 4-1 record.

Other members of the team were Chris Boyd, Chris Park, Darlene Hooge, Sue Sinclair and Linda Walker, all of whom will play at SJUC this year; and former SJUC Jills Broker, Linda Sanders and Mary Maxwell. Susan Haley, Logan College’s coach, was the only member of the team who has not played at SJUC. Region 8 won its opening match over Region 6 16-15, 15-10 Thursday.

On Friday, the team won three matches, including a tough 15-8, 15-7, 15-6 decision over Willow’s Region 31. Willow’s featured University of the Pacific standout Teresa Boyle and All-III-Ten performer Mary Stack of Norwalk.

Region 8 lost 14-16, 12-15, 15-8 in the championship match to North Shore. The match took nearly three hours to complete.

Region 8 won the open division volleyball gold medal last year.

Region 8 finished fourth in open division women’s basketball.

multi-million tree- agent contract with the Atlanta Braves. Sutter had just tied the Major League save record the previous year, but Allen believed he could step into Sutter’s big shoes.

“NEIL ALLAN made his name in the bullpen, and I’m happy to be stuck there,” he said when he visited Carbondale during the Cardinals’ goodwill tour last January. “I’m looking forward to getting back to what I do best and having a total season.”

Allen’s confident, yet firmly mannered, was impressive. He seemed to be a genuinely nice fellow who was easy to root for. He was hoping for a big season and he deserved one.

Things turned nasty for the nice guy once the season got underway, however. Allen gave up the first run of the game to the Mets’ Gary Carter in the season opener and walked home the winning run the next day.

BY MID-MAY, St. Louis manager Whitey Herzog had lost all faith in Allen. He was 3-3 with only two saves and a 5.65 earned run average.

“When it comes to crunch time, when the game’s on the line, I’ll use (Jeff) Lahti, (Wicky) Horton, (Bill) Campbell and (Ken) Day,” Herzog said on May 17. In an effort to mention developed into the Cardinals’ bullpen by committee to help the team climb to the top of the National League Eastern Division. Meanwhile, Allen became a forgotten man.

Herzog added that Allen would be used three weeks until he used Allen again and that this time it was in a starting role.

ALLEN PITCHED against the Pittsburgh Pirates on June 11, but lasted only 2 and one third innings. He gave up seven runs and eight hits to a Pirate team that has the worst offense in the league. The Cards eventually lost 13-2.

This performance sealed Allen’s fate with the Cardinals. The nice guy had succumbed to the pressure and asked to be traded.

The Cardinals have now granted Allen’s wish and he has returned to where he came from. Milt players try to avoid the Yankees’ organization at any cost because of its reputation as the “Bronx Zoo” and the tyrannical exploits of owner George Steinbrenner.

HOWEVER, NEW York may be just the place for Allen. The Cardinals’ organization is noted for its contenders, yet Allen could never find peace there. The ghosts he tried to replace in St. Louis got the best of him, and Allen left a bitter man.

In New York, no such ghosts confront him. He went to the Yankees for future considerations and he’ll never be forced to hear the cries of “bring back Hernandez’ or ‘bring back Sutter’ again.”
