Minority enrollment increasing

Attempts to recruit minority students to SIUC have been working.
Since 1980, the number of minority students attending the University has grown from 2,500 to 2,900 in 1986, which was the last year from which figures were available.
SIUC has set up programs, support units and activities designed to help minority students complete bachelor's and graduate degree programs, Howard Webb, SIUC vice chancellor of academic affairs, said.
Webb compiled the report.
Some of the high schools SIUC works with to improve the recruitment of minority students are Carbondale Community, Century in Ullin, Egyptian in Tamms and Meridian in Mounds, according to the report Webb presented at the July 8 Board of Trustees meeting.
To improve minority student achievement, the College of Agriculture has begun efforts to recruit minority students at the Chicago High School for Agriculture Students, Webb said.
The College of Communications and Fine Arts has programs set up to improve minority students' achievement, including a student organization for black and underclass students and a monitoring system that watches students'

Student borrowers climb Mount Debt
By Deedra Lawhead

After struggling for years through college and law school, Bob thought he had made it.
What he had was a $48,000 student loan that would cost him $260,368 to repay over the next 36 years.
Bob is a hypothetical example, but the numbers are real, according to a report issued by the National Assocation of Student Financial Administrators.
The Income Contingent Loan program, the Reagan Administration's answer to student loans, has drawn fire from financial aid administrators who say the program increases students' financial burdens.
Joe Camille, director of Student Employment and Financial Assistance, said the program does not save students any money.
"It adds terribly to a student's financial burden," he said. "Students are coming out of school with too much indebtedness as it is, and this program does nothing to alleviate it."
Under the new program, undergraduate students can borrow $4,000 each of the first two years and $5,000 in each of the following years. Graduate students can borrow $10,000 a year.
SomeIncome Contingent loan repayment rates are based on the borrower's annual income. "The amount is adjusted by how much you earn," Camille said.
For the first two years of repayment, the borrower pays $30 per month for each $10,000 of loan indebtedness.

Making a Mountain of Debt
The government's new income contingent loan plan "costs interest on the interest." Students who borrow must repay $0.05 for every dollar they earn.

A smaller budget, a faculty shortage and an anticipated increase in enrollment translates into a lot of hard work and sacrifice, said Benjamin Shepherd, the new acting vice president for academic affairs.
Shepherd, a former associate vice president for academic affairs appointed to his new position Tuesday, said "painful" reductions will occur in the teaching and research branches. These reductions will result from the budget cuts imposed Monday by Gov. James R. Thompson's line-item veto of the appropriations ordinance.
Increases enrollment and fewer faculty members probably will mean the size of many classes will be increased and there will be a general "belt tightening" among all faculty members.
Shepherd said. Some students will return to school in the fall to find that classes they intended to take are no longer available, he said.
Shepherd said most students already are registered, but that course offerings may have to be "modified," leaving several hundred students without classes they expected to take. He said the University will suffer from a critical shortage of general education instructors.
"When all is said done, we will give priority to instructional needs. It is possible there will be classes we will not launch due to lack of resources to hire faculty in open positions," he said.
President John Guyon said there will be no layoffs of faculty, but some of the $1.7 million worth of faculty positions that are open won't be filled.
"There's likely to be a decline in the quality of teaching in some instances," he said. "However, it won't be to the point it will be a serious problem. We hope to offset that by asking for and getting increased performance in fact work, from the faculty. It will mean things like having to grade 30 term papers instead of 25."
Money also can be saved by reducing faculty travel, purchasing less equipment and reducing spending for telecommunications, Shepherd said. The first step will be to give each school and department a monetary figure to work with, he said. The deans and directors will then decide how much funding will be cut from specific areas.

Oil tankers arrive in Gulf unthreatened
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first convoy of U.S. Navy-escorted Kuwaiti oil tankers made it safely through the Strait of Hormuz and into the Persian Gulf, the range of Iranian Silkworm missiles, the Pentagon said Wednesday.
"We're relieved that they're out of the Silkworm's missile envelope," Pentagon spokesman Robert Sims said after the 11 p.m. passage of the five-ship convoy through the strait.
The envelope covers the 50-mile range of the Chinese-made mobile missiles, which are armed with 1,000-pound explosive warheads.
The only incident occurred when a helicopter chartered by the warlords of the 1,000-yard range of the guided missile destroyer USS Fife fired a flare to warn the ship to warn it away from firing a flare, Sims said. The helicopter then clattered off into the water
There were no displays of hostile behavior from the convoy or the warships when the three warships escorted the tankers Bridgeton and Gas Prince through the 30-milewide, horseshoe-shaped strait, Sims said.
"This is the first mission and we're happy that it's going so well as it is," Sims said.
Only two of the 11 Kuwaiti oil and gas tankers have been refueled and the next escort operation will take place after the Bridgeston and Gas Prince load up and head southward through the gulf. Sims said he did not have a scheduled departure of the ships from Kuwait.
The convoy is expected to arrive at the Kuwaiti oil terminal of Al Ahmadi Friday morning, he said.

Soviet, Syrian cosmonauts to linkup with space station

MOSCOW (UPI) - Three cosmonauts, including a Syrian air force officer, blasted off from the Baikonur launch site in Soviet Central Asia early Wednesday for a mid-space rendezvous with two other cosmonauts in their 167th day aboard the orbiting, 474-meter space station. Radio Moscow said. The joint Soviet-Syrian mission, scheduled to last until July 30, is the 12th Soviet flight involving an international crew.

Arab leader ends Israeli trip on positive note

TEL AVIV (UPI) - Egypt's foreign minister ended a long-awaited visit to Israel Wednesday saying he was cautiously optimistic about prospects for an international peace conference on the Arab-Israeli conflict. Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel-Meguid, who also is Egypt's deputy prime minister, arrived Monday, saying he was on a "mission for peace" and that the Israelis should stand united behind the concept of a peace conference.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Powerful Cuban radio transmissions knocked two clear channel stations in Iowa and Utah almost entirely off the air for six hours Tuesday night, prompting the FCC to alert the State Department Wednesday. The interference, apparently retaliation for the Voice of America's U.S. Radio Marti broadcasts to Cuba, was aimed at WHO in Des Moines, the station where President Reagan once worked as a sportscaster - and KSL in Salt Lake City, a Federal Communications Commission spokesman said.

Senator says scandal good lesson for future

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd said Wednesday that the Iran-Contra scandal should serve as a warning to future administrations of the "corrosive dynamic" inflicted on the United States by secrecy, evasion and deception. Byrd said in a Senate speech that an "epidemic of amnesia" and contradictory testimony has made it difficult to "sort out the real truth" in the scandal.

Catastrophic insurance bill passes House

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The House, ignoring a veto threat, overwhelmingly approved legislation Wednesday that would protect 31 million elderly Americans from the excessive medical costs that come with catastrophic illnesses. The catastrophic insurance bill passed 306-127, enough votes to override a veto, and was sent to the Senate. The 241 Democrats voting for the bill were joined by 61 Republicans; 14 Democrats joined 113 Republicans in opposing the measure.

Government gets tough with unpaid loans

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The government stepped up its drive Wednesday to collect unpaid federal loans, warning deadbeats it would try to impound their cars and homes if it failed to recoup the money from tax returns and federal payrolls. The government, which has collected $71.7 billion in the past 18 months by tapping the tax refunds of people with overdue loans, and it will try to take people's property if it fails to recover the money. Drug charges filed against 6 residents of Jackson County

By Bruce West
Staff Writer

Six Jackson County residents have been arrested and charged with felony drug trafficking. John R. Clemens, state's attorney for Jackson County, and Dennis Bowman, director of the Southern Illinois Enforcement Group, announced Tuesday.

Suppressed grand jury indictments were filed June 26, but information about them was withheld until the alleged offenders were arrested.

Arrested were, Gracie Garner, 29, Murphysboro; Bruce Leggans, 33, Carbondale; Terrence Reese, 23, Carbondale; Devey Bullard Jr., 33; De Soto; Terry Stewart, 27, Murphysboro; and Forby R. Myers, 31, Carbondale.

Garner was apprehended July 6 and charged with one count of unlawful delivery of a controlled substance. She is accused of delivering less than 10 grams of pentazocine on Nov. 26. Pentazocine is a drug used in the treatment of epileptic seizures.

Bond was set at $15,000.

Leggans is charged with one count of unlawful delivery of between 2.5 and 10 grams of marijuana. He is also charged with one count of unlawful distribution of a look-alike substance. Both charges stem from alleged activities on Oct. 9. Leggans was arrested July 14 and bond was set at $10,000.

Reese is charged with one count of unlawful delivery of a controlled substance June 17, 1986, involving less than 10 grams of cocaine. He also is charged with one count of unlawful delivery of marijuana on May 30, 1986. The quantity was between 2.5 and 10 grams. Reese was arrested July 13 and bond was set at $15,000.

Bullard faces two counts of unlawful delivery of less than 50 grams of a controlled substance, methamphetamine, on Jan. 10 and Jan. 13, 1986. He was arrested July 15 and posted $10,000 bond at the time of his arrest.

Stewart, arrested July 8, is charged with one count of unlawful delivery of less than 10 grams of a controlled substance, cocaine, on Aug. 14, 1986. Bond was set at $50,000.

Myers faces three counts of unlawful delivery of marijuana that allegedly occurred in November and December. He also is charged with one count of unlawful delivery of a controlled substance, cocaine, on Dec. 22. Myers was arrested July 16 and bond was set at $100,000.

The indictments and arrests were the result of an investigation by SIEG officials. Clemens said. More information on other indictments involving area drug activities will be released as soon as arrests are made.

Service set for David Ray, former Morris librarian

A memorial service will be held Sept. 12 at the Unitarian Fellowship in Carbondale. David T. Ray, an assistant professor emeritus at SIUC, died at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Maine Medical Center in Portland, Maine. He was 77.

Ray served as a serials and cataloging librarian at Morris Library from 1959 until his retirement in 1976.

Before coming to SIUC, he was a foreign service officer with the U.S. Department of State and was interred at the American Embassy in Tokyo for six months following the Pearl Harbor attack in 1941. He served as a librarian at Yale University, the Library of Congress, the U.S. National War College and the Smithsonian Institution.

Mr. Ray held bachelor's degrees from the University of California at Los Angeles and Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C., and two master's degrees from SIUC, the first in philosophy in 1967 and the second in linguistics in 1979.

The body will be cremated.

PBS honors campus TV station

WSIU-TV has accepted its second honor from the Public Broadcasting Service for receiving increased financial support from Southern Illinois businesses.

"The certificate awards our efforts in a relatively new, but rapidly growing area of support for public television stations," Vicky Freund, WSIU-TV assistant development director, said.

The award, called the PBS Certificate of Achievement for Local Corporate Support, was accepted at the PBS Development Conference in late June in Tucson, Ariz., by Freund and Robynn Wides, also a WSIU-TV assistant development director.

WSIU-TV earned the award for its increased growth as a station and for the total contributions raised by the station. The station has raised over $27,000 in local business contributions from 66 in 1985 to 114 in 1986. The increase in donations came from more coverage of local events, Freund said.

"That kind of programming gets us tremendous identification throughout Southern Illinois," she said.

"It is a positive thing for Southern Illinois to receive national recognition," she said. "It will help our underwriters realize that they are working with an award-winning station."

WSIU-TV received an award in 1983 for increased participation from the community and fund raising during the 1982 telethon.
Pettit's 'secret' trip needs to be public

FOR SOME UNEXPLAINED REASON, the University has blown a great opportunity for publicity. Last week, Chancellor Lawrence Pettit began a three-week trip abroad that will take him to four European countries. According to a brief itinerary prepared by the office of International Programs and Services, Pettit will visit universities and military bases in England, Brussels, Austria and Germany. Each of the stops offers SIU-C exchange programs or classes. Although the destinations may sound exotic, Assistant to the Chancellor Mary Walker said the trip is for University business, not for vacation purposes. The trip is on the up and up. Afterall, Pettit, not the University, paid for his wife Libby's trip costs, which he might not have done if the trip was under the Chancellor's control. So why is everyone involved so close-mouthed about it?

THE CHANCELLOR'S OFFICE never announced the trip. It should have. It would have been good for public relations. Why? Because SIU Chancellor is going abroad to visit our foreign cousins. The trip itinerary shows that Pettit gave a commitment to visit countries, not just those in Southern Illinois. That shows that the University is interested in all members of the community, not just those inSouthern Illinois. And that would be a good point to publicize. In government and business, bigwigs make it a practice to publicize their overseas travels. Why didn't Pettit?

Just as the Reaganauts have turned economics upside down, so have they distorted the language, squeezing strange new meanings from old familiar words. For example, they refer to Democrats, or anyone who doesn't support the administration, as "elitists." A conservative columnist blistered thusly on the opposition to President Reagan's nomination of Robert "fork to the Supreme Court: "What is about to be unveiled in the Bork confrontational is the true position of the administration itself, elitist, hungry Demo-ratic coalition that replaces the New Deal alliance."

Quite an accusation from a group that believes in government of, by, and for white rich men. Committed to and controlled by the privileged few at the top of the economic ladder, the Reaganauts still do business in the same business on those below, constituting the bulk of the Reagan opposition blacks, Hispanics, organized labor, uppity women and anybody else who don't belong to the country club. Only in America would the richest and most powerful white like the snobbery of wage-earners.

Chalk one up for modern medicine. Or to be more precise, dried-up medicine.

It hasn't produced the chorus of public hosannas that other, more spectacular, cues have, but quietly, Mean Old Mr. Tooth Decay has been dummed in the U.S.A.

The decline in tooth decay over the past quarter-century has been dramatic, according to the July issue of High Technology magazine, and has resulted in the shift in focus of the dental industry away from traditional treatment to prevention, diagnosis and teaching.

The incidence of dental cavities in U.S. mouths declined 56 percent from 1960 to 1980. Why? That isn't well understood. Many experts attribute the decline to widespread fluoridation, although some other countries with fluorides are not as widely used also have experienced declines in tooth decay.

Another possibility is suggested by some experts is the use of antibiotics. Whatever the reason, the news is nothing but good for drill-fearing Americans.

Pro-life film requires clarifications

I am writing in response to the movie "Eclipse of Reason." No, I'm not opposed to it, but neither am I completely for it.

Near the beginning, it says that there are about 1.5 million abortions per year in the U.S. and only 300,000 per year in the United Kingdom. This sounds like a big difference, and the only reason I can see for the comparison is to show U.S. women and doctors as uncaring or blood thirsty.

I checked the figure using 1983 population figures, and it turns out that in each country, about 1 percent of women have abortions each year. The figures I used were 234 million people in the United States and 58.8 million people in the United Kingdom; I divided the figures in half, assuming a 50-50 ratio of men to women in each country.

Also, the movie should say something about alternatives to abortion, i.e., adoption, birth control and sex education in schools.

I was not able to talk to the movie sponsor because he did not return for at least 20 minutes after the movie was over, at which time I had to leave.

Most Greeks aren't irresponsible, shouldn't be collectively blamed

For the past few weeks, I've been reading the articles on the Thompson Woods "Chainsaw Massacre." It is obvious to me that some people know what they're talking about, and some don't.

In reference to a July 15 article, "Greek organizations are not responsible," Marvin Pennock is obviously one of those who doesn't know what he is talking about.

Mr. Pennock accuses Greeks of painting their letters on what sounds like the entire pigging trail around the lake. This, however, is not the case. The only area painted was that part of the sidewalk as you approach the drive around Greek Row. Yes, the University told us to stop, yes, the University cleaned it up. What you failed to explain to Mr. Pennock was that there were fines for the removal of painted letters and that house caught writing their letters on the pavement afterwards.

Needless to say, there weren't any more problems with the sidewalks. Why, though, Mr. Pennock, did you even mention this incident that happened over six years ago? I'm sure most people don't even remember it.

You cannot convict a whole organization of something not everyone took part in. For example, Mr. Pennock, my house, Tau Kappa Epsilon not only put our letters on the pavement because we felt it was wrong. I would imagine that quite a few of the other houses felt the same way, and I know we weren't the only house that didn't indulge in the "art-work." Mr. Pennock then goes on to somehow summarize that Greek Row is a ghetto or trying to become one and that we are surrounded in graffiti. No, this is not the case. We don't carry around loaded cans. If you have a clear-cutting that has been going on around Greek Row, we did not need to do that to make our presence known.

I suggest Mr. Pennock that you stick to art and stay away from law; collect the facts before making such strong accusations. You cannot call a group of people such as Greeks irresponsible without looking at each person individually.

If anyone should be accused of irresponsibility, it should be you, Mr. Pennock, for your lack of detail, explanation and thoroughness in your article.

— Lee Arbo, sophomore, aviation flight.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State George Shultz, the highest-ranking U.S. diplomat before the Iran-Contra scandal, is expected today to offer testimony that dramatically differs from other accounts of the worst scandal of the Reagan presidency.

Shultz, who already has testified privately to the select House-Senate committees investigating the foreign policy affair, is scheduled to sit at the witness table today and Friday for a public description of his role in the U.S. arms sales to Iran and the diversion of profits to Nicaraguan rebels.

Earlier reports on the scandal — the Iran-Contra Commission's Feb. 26 study and the Jan. 26 report by the Senate Intelligence Committee — have said Shultz offered initial opposition to the initiatives.

Borrowers are paying very low payments for the first two years of Perkins Loan repayment, but in reality, they’re not even paying off the interest, so the principal is increasing,” he said.

The AMOUNT doubles in the following year. By the fourth or fifth year, borrowers could be making payments between $200 and $500 depending on their income and the loan amount.

For income contingent loans, interest compounds annually. Borrowers pay the same amount every month, so they are paying off both the interest and the principle from the very beginning,” Camille said.

A NEW BORROWER can take out a GIL, at 8 percent interest and a Perkins Loan at 5 percent interest, Dan Mann, associate director of Student Work and Financial Assistance, pointed out. The interest rate remains the same throughout the life of the loan.

Most SIU borrowers have borrowed under the 8 percent rate, Mann said.

The federal government suspends and pays the interest on guaranteed loans and Perkins loans while students attend school and during a six-month, after-school grace period.

OPPONENTS OF THE new program also are concerned that borrowers won’t be able to afford to pay back the loan, Camille said.

Borrowers would use 12 to 15 percent of their incomes to pay back a contingent loan, and that would be difficult for graduates with low starting salaries, Camille said.

The Higher Education Amendments of 1986 authorized the Income Contingent Loan pilot program for the next five years at 10 universities including DePaul University in Chicago, the administration’s 1988 fiscal year budget proposes expansion of the program.

THE REAGAN administration also has proposed elimination of the College Work Study program, the Supplemental Education Opportunity Grant programs and the Perkins Loan program.

Mann said he feels the administration would be wrong in eliminating the options open to students and in promoting loans.

"Traditionally SIU-C has had a large student work program and a large number of needy students,” Mann said, eliminating the student work program and grants in favor of income contingent loans would harm more students at SIU-C than it would help.

Speech professor Higginson named for Shepard vacancy

By Jackie Hampton

President John Guyon has not said how long Ben Shepard’s tenure as acting vice president will be and Shepard hasn’t decided if he’d like to stay permanently.

"Give me six months,” he said. "If I grade myself as an 'A,’ I’d expect to be very enthusiastic about it and then permanently. Right now, I’ll focus on the challenge of the teaching position.”

Shepherd, 46, a professor of technology, is associate dean since 1979. He came to SIU-C in 1969 as an instructor and was promoted to associate professor in 1974 and full professor during the 1975-76 academic year.

He holds a doctorate from Kansas State University, a master’s degree from Atlanta University and a bachelor’s degree from Tougaloo College in Mississippi.

Mary Lou Higginson, an associate dean in the College of Communications and Fine Arts, has filled Shepard’s vacant position.

An amendment, added in 1986 to the Illinois Board of Higher Education, required public colleges and universities to implement methods to "increase participation of minorities, women and handicapped persons who are traditionally underrepresented in education programs and activities.”

The number of female students decreased from 8,816 in 1980 to 8,704 in 1986.

Total enrollment increased from less than 1 percent in 1980 to 1.6 percent in 1986.

The report did not have data on the enrollment of disabled students, but SIU-C students who voluntarily indicate a disability on admissions applications, Webb said.
‘Monasteries’ illuminates conflict of religious values

By Mary Caudle

Entertainment Editor

Conflicting spiritual and traditional social values concerning AIDS and homosexuality are examined in “Monasteries,” the last Playwrights Workshop production of the season.

Written by Tommy Westerfield, a former novice who spent in the abbey, “Monasteries” deals with its subject matter with its honest portrayal of its student in playwriting, Jerry Morey, who, though racked with constant pain from a terminal disease entering its final stages, wants to bring about a reconciliation between Luke and the church.

The story of Luke Williams, a former novice who returns to the abbey which had discharged him years before for “blatant homosexuality,” “Monasteries” follows the lives of abbey members who are affected by his presence, a presence that exists as a glaring beacon of everything they have tried to ignore.

As portrayed by Frank Hilt, Morey does a fine job as Luke’s friend, the gentle brother Raphael, who, though the production in the public realm with “Monasteries,” without trying to modify or beautify the issue for mainstream society. This is definitely an adult-oriented play, containing coarse language and sensitive subject material — but it gets the point across: the subjects of homophobia, hypocrisy and AIDS are not pretty. The result is explosive and thought-provoking performance of “Monasteries” will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, July 26 in the Laboratory Theater in the Communications Building.

Tickets may be purchased for $2 at the McLeod Theater Box Office or by calling 453-3001.

IEA-NEA CALLS ON PRESIDENT GUYON TO ABOLISH THE 2% PLAN NOW.

July 16, 1987

Dr. John Guyon, President
Southern Illinois University
Carbondale, Illinois 62901

Dear President Guyon:

For the past two years, IEA-NEA has consistently worked for the elimination of the 2% Plan. Our position has been clear from the beginning. We have repeatedly pointed out the harmful effects of the Plan on academic programs at SIUC.

We have repeatedly called for its elimination.

In view of personnel reductions that may result from the austerity budget recently enacted by the state legislature, and the further budget reductions mandated by the Governor, the IEA-NEA Faculty Organizing Committees call upon you to immediately abolish the 2% Plan.

Personnel reductions that could result from the 2% Plan compounded by the budget cuts would produce disastrous consequences for the academic programs of the University. As newly appointed President of SIUC, you are now in a position to take immediate action to put an end to the 2% Plan. We trust you will act swiftly to do so.

Sincerely,

Gary Kolb for

Attorneys try barring witness

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Defense attorneys in the McMartin pre-school molestation trial tried unsuccessfully Wednesday to bar the first witness, a physician who prosecutors say is a key to the medical evidence in the case.

In a hearing that jurors did not attend, defense attorneys argued that Dr. William E. Gordon was being called out of order by the prosecution.

Hulking Georgetown coach prepares for 1988 Olympics

DURHAM, N.C. (UPI) —

John Thompson has worked hard to be the man he is today.
The Georgetown basketball coach doesn't need his hulking
6-foot-3 presence to reinforce a reputation for intimidation.
He could drop half of his 300 pounds and still be accused of being a bully.

Thompson appears to relish his image as college basketball's smart aleck. His Hoyas teams, always successful on the court, reflect the Thompson personality: aggressive, relentless and analytical.

As coach of the U.S. men's team at the 1988 Olympics, Thompson will try to teach Georgetown basketball to 12 players thrown together for the first time.

"I like the way we play at Georgetown," Thompson said Wednesday at the U.S. Olympic Festival before att-tending the gold medal game.

"I like to coach in the style I enjoy watching the game. If you are not very quick, you need speed, you need perimeter defense. You need a special point shot. It's very important to have people that can move laterally.

Thompson rarely moves laterally. His answers are always straight ahead, in your face. As a former Boston Celtic teammate of Bill Russell could testify, Thompson was always in questions asked by the dean of Harvard Law School.

Thompson can also be charming and humorous, poking fun at interviewers and at himself. Asked whether NBA players included players he might like to have on America's Olympic team in Seoul, South Korea, Thompson peered over the glasses on the bridge of his nose: "Let me ask you something," he said to the questioner. "If you were coaching a basketball team, would you want Larry Bird?"

Thompson is traditionally protective about his emotions, preferring to cloak his feelings behind bluster. But Thompson makes it known the opportunity to coach an Olympic basketball team is important to the man who threw a protective media net around All-American center Patrick Ewing for four years.

"I bring all kinds of emotions and passions to this assignment," he said. "This means a lot to me. In 1976, it all kind of hit home in Montreal when I was an assistant to Dean Smith. When Dean and I came into that stadium and they started playing our song, well, I'm not a real sentimental person to nature, but I was very touched by that moment.

Like his Georgetown team, Thompson likes to dictate the game. Sometimes, you can see him matching himself being gracious. Something clicks beat in whichever event he chooses at the World Track and Field Championships, which begin Aug. 29 in this same Olympic stadium.

The Moroccan stayed a steady one as he was paced to the first 3,000 meters by countryman Brahim Boutaib and Ferhi Baccouche of Tunisia.

Aouita moved into the lead after 3,000 meters, while running a 7:46.57-minute pace, and had the final 2,000 meters to himself.

When the Italian-based Moroccan clocked 10.26 through 4,000 meters, the sparsely crowded crowd knew they were watching a serious record attempt.

Cheered across the finish line, he took a victory lap waving a large Moroccan flag as he ran alongside his pacemakers.

In the 400 meters hurdles, Amadou Dia Ba of Senegal beat Americans Kevin Young and Danny Harris. Dia Ba finished in 48.12, Young in 48.72 and Harris 48.74.

Harris, whose owns the fastest time in the world this year, was running the first 400 meters in 50.09. He won the 1500 meters at the 1987 World Championships in Rome, which began in September.

Currently, Price ranks about 17th in the world in discus.

Price plans to participate in the Pan Am Games in Indianapolis next month, then move on to the Olympic Championships in Rome, which begin in September.

Moroccan runs to 5,000 record at 'Golden Gala'

ROMEO UPJ: Moroccon Said Aouita set his second world record in six days Wednesday when he blazed to victory in the 5,000 meters in 12 minutes and 58.39 seconds at the "Golden Gala" Mobil-IAAF track meet.

Aouita, who ran the world's fastest 2,000 meters Thursday in Paris, strode home 50 meters ahead of the pack to break his own record of 13:00.40 set in 1985.

Aouita holds records in the 1,500, 3,000 and 5,000 and stands as the man to beat the toughest field in the World.

Chicago, L.A. squads await confrontation

By Darran Richardson

The 12-team Heartland Shootout tournament is down to the Final Four, and a wide variety of geographic areas is represented by multi-talented high-school hoopers gaining exposure to recruiters.

It's the first time in the 14-year history of the Basketball Congress International basketball program that Illinois teams have participated, and although two of the three Prairie State teams, Southern and Central, have fallen by the wayside, the Chicago squad is eyeing the title.

"If we can pull together as a team, we've got the talent to win," said Harry Shaw, head coach of the Chicago team.

"But none of the games are going to be easy," said Shaw. 'We've got the talent, but it's going to take work, and we've got to have the discipline." Antione Davison, a 6-foot-9 senior at Collins High School and hot property among major university recruiters, remained more cautious.

"We're not going to win easy," said Davison. "We've got to be realistic. We're going to play some good teams, but we're not going to win every game.
