'92 SIU budget $500,000 less than '91

By John Patterson
Staff Writer

SIU came out of Springfield with its head above water, but still leery of another dunking, said University officials.

Thomas Britton, vice chancellor for administration, said overall the $236 million appropriated to SIU is basically a steady budget that looks good, but looks can be deceptive.

For the last fiscal year SIU was appropriated $236.5 million. Although inflation rates and the rising costs of living make the 1992 budget look like a reduction, Britton pointed out that the University did not get all of the $236.5 million in fiscal year 1991.

Gov. Jim Edgar asked the University to not spend a portion of

SIUC employee paychecks sent out Monday

Legislators went 18 extra innings in Springfield, but when the game was over, students could finally look forward to getting their checks.

The approval of a budget by the General Assembly and Gov. Jim Edgar released the appropriations necessary to back state employee payrolls.

At SIUC students picked up partial paychecks on Friday and then were able to pick up the remaining half Monday.

Employees' paychecks that are mailed home or direct deposited were also sent out on Monday, said William Capie, acting vice president for financial affairs.

SIUC President John C. Guyon said he was very pleased the situation had been resolved and employees could be paid for the services rendered.

Paychecks already had been written and were being held in a vault, but they could not be posted until budget appropriations could be agreed upon.

the budget allocated to it. The result was a 1 percent recession that left SIU with an actual spending authority of $234.8 million.

On a second look the new budget is now $1.2 million more than last year's, but Britton called it a "tiny increase."

In real dollars, Britton said the University will face a slight reduction, but he was pleased SIU's budget made it through the legislative process in the condition it did.

"It's not as much as we asked for. It's not as much as we would have liked, but given the circumstances holding our own was a victory," he said.

Because of the General Assembly's overtime session, University officials are behind in breaking down the budget for each campus, mainly because they were never sure until the last minute what the University would get, he said.

The Board of Trustees will take official action on the budget for SIU campuses at its next meeting in September, but temporary plans are already in the works, said William Capie, acting vice

Burriss: SIUC black alumni must help current students

By Christiann Baxter

The gap between low- and high-income blacks is growing. Illinois Attorney General Roland Burriss said Saturday at the SIUC Black Alumni Reunion banquet in the student center.

Burriss, a 1959 SIUC graduate, said SIU has given African-Americans a great deal of training and background.

A crowd of about 250 black SIUC alumni attended the banquet, which was part of the Black Alumni Group reunion.

"The people here are achievers," he said. "We must now reach back and bring our brothers and sisters

Loan interest rates dropped for 1992

ISAC decreases charges on PLUS, SLS for students

By Christiann Baxter
Staff Writer

The financial burden will be lessened for students and parents who have loans that require interest payments while the student is still in school.

Interest rates on Supplemental Loans for Students and PLUS loans have been lowered. The new rate is 9.34 percent for July 1, 1991 to June 30, 1992. Robert J. Clement, director of public information at the Illinois Student Assistance Commission said, SLS and PLUS loans are administered by ISAC.

Previously, the interest rate was 11.49 percent. The new rate is a 2.15 percent drop.

The federal government sets the interest rate for student loans based on the national interest rates, Clement said.

"Since interest rates in general have been dropping, interest rates on student loans will drop," he said. Rates are adjusted every year on July 1.

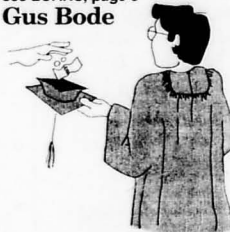

The adjustment lasts until June 30, when the interest rates are re-evaluated, he said.

PLUS loans are for parents of dependent undergraduate and graduate students.

SLS loans are for independent undergraduate and graduate students. Students must be enrolled half-time and make satisfactory progress in order to be eligible for the loan. Also, a student can't be in default on any student loan, Clement said.

Baker pushes Israelis to attend peace talks

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Secretary of State James Baker urged Israel Monday to seize "a moment of historic opportunity" by joining Middle East peace talks and said he was awaiting a response from Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

Baker met with the Israeli leader and two top Cabinet ministers for two hours Monday morning, briefing them on his talks with Arab leaders who have embraced the U.S. proposal for a peace conference leading to direct negotiations.

"We will now wait with great hope for the response from Prime Minister Shamir and his colleagues," Baker said, maintaining intense pressure on Israel to drop its reservations. "They indicated to me they would be in a position to respond shortly. I am very hopeful, of course, that the response will be positive."

Shamir's spokesman said the talks Sunday night and Monday had focused on Baker's consultations with the Arab states, especially Syria, which expressed willingness to hold face-to-face talks with the Jewish state, its long-time enemy. Baker also has the backing of Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Lebanon.

"I think that this is a moment of historic opportunity. For 43 years, Israel has sought direct negotiations with its neighbors and it has been right to do so," Baker said before flying to Malaysia. "Now there is a real opportunity to get to these face-to-face negotiations."

The Bush administration put further pressure on Israel by saying the president would like Shamir's response before the superpower summit in Moscow next week and linking $10 billion in U.S. loan guarantees to the call for an end to Israeli settlement in the occupied West Bank and Gaza.

Bush's national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, said while traveling with the president aboard Air Force One from Turkey to Washington that he understood that Shamir was "agonizing" over a "pretty serious" decision.

Asked how long Bush might wait for an Israeli response, Scowcroft said, "I don't think

Officials plan stadium renovations

By Jackie Spinner
Sports Editor

The Southern Illinois Normal University Maroons lost their first football game in 1938 at the dedication of the SINU Athletic Field and Stadium.

University officials now are planning what they hope will be a more victorious game plan this fall for renovations to the aging stadium.

SIUC President John C. Guyon said plans for improvements and additions to McAndrew Stadium and the adjacent area are in the very first stages of development.

Preliminary plans include the addition of two parking garages behind the east and west sides of the stadium with an overpass that would connect the garages to the Student Center.

"If we get it done, it could go a long way to assist in the question of visitor parking for special events at the Student Center," Guyon said.

The garages would add 1,100 parking spaces to the campus. SIUC only has one existing parking garage adjacent to the Student Center.

Guyon said because the renovations still are in the earliest stages of planning, it is too soon to tell how early the projects could be completed.

University Athletic Director Jim Hart said officials may be ready by October 1991 to release further plans for the projects.

"Nothing will be made public until mid-fall," he said. "Nothing's on the drawing board and there's really nothing to get excited about yet."

Hart said state money would not be used to fund the projects.

"The timing of the release of the plans is not optimum because of the state budget," he said. "But it's not devastating because it does not involve state funds."

The success of the projects depends on the private funding, Hart said.

"A lot of these projects would depend on fund raising," he said. "We have to have a pretty good base of funds."

In addition to two new parking garages, the plans include renovations to the press box in McAndrew, lights in the stadium, additions to the stadium and lights at Abe Martin Field.

"The potential is unlimited for a stadium with lights," Hart said.

With lights the stadium could attract more people, could be used on Friday nights for high school football games and could be used for intramurals for night activities, he said.

Further plans for improvements include the enclosure of the area under the east side of the stadium to create a football complex and the renovation of the west stands for a men's and women's track training facility and for visitor locker rooms.

The concourse level of the west side of the stadium also is being considered for office space.

In 1988 $1.81 million was spent to install a new polyurethane track and a new artificial football turf at the stadium.

Cubs pitcher may bid bye for retirement

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Cubs pitcher Rick Sutcliffe faced possible retirement Monday because of a slower-than-expected comeback from 1990 shoulder surgery.

Sutcliffe gave up 11 hits and six runs in four innings Saturday night during a minor league rehabilitation assignment with the Class A Peoria team. It was his second such shelling. He gave up six runs in his first start for Triple A Iowa.

"Maybe it's time to do something else," the 35-year-old Sutcliffe said after the outing, hinting at retirement. "I'm tired of stinking the place up."

Manager Jim Essian said he was to meet with Sutcliffe Monday, an off day for the team.

"He sounded pretty disappointed," Essian said. "If there's no physical problem, Sutcliffe has to see if he's sharp enough to get National League hitters out."

Sutcliffe, who is making $2.264 million, underwent exploratory arthroscopic surgery in May 1990 on his right shoulder to repair torn cartilage and made just five starts last season.

He was 0-2 with a 5.91 ERA, giving up 25 hits and walking 12 in 21 1-3 innings.

This season, the right-hander was 2-4 in eight starts with a 6.75 ERA. He won his first start of the year against Pittsburgh on April 18, giving up four hits in six innings. Sutcliffe was put on the disabled list June 9 to give him time to try to strengthen his shoulder.

He had been encouraged after a few sessions with new Cubs pitching coach Billy Connors, who said Sutcliffe was wrapping the pitch behind his back too tightly during his delivery. The change was expected to help Sutcliffe's velocity.

Sutcliffe wasn't the only Cubs pitcher who was to be examined Monday. Reliever Dave Smith, a free agent who signed a $1.9 million contract, has been bothered by a strained right knee and was to be checked by Schaefer.

Smith has 16 saves, an 0-5 record and 5.04 ERA in 31 appearances.

The SIUC football team will struggle to be more competitive on the field this season after coming off a less than mediocre 1990 season in which it produced a 2-9 overall record and a 1-5 conference record.

Even though last season was the second consecutive 2-9 season for the Salukis, offensive coordinator Phil Meyer said there will be no major changes in coaching style or game strategy.

"It's beneficial if things are consistent," he said. "After three years of doing the same thing, the players can react and they don't have to think."

After losing with consistency for the past two years, Meyer said he thinks the ball team is ready to be competitive in the conference.

"We're past the building stage now and we want to be competitive," he said. "In two years, I would say that our goal was to be a championship team, but right now we're just trying to be more competitive."

As the Salukis struggle for a competitive edge, Meyer said he will count on seniors quarterback Brian Downey and offensive lineman Tom Roth and Mark Francis to play a key role in the team's offensive effort.

"They're seniors and skilled athletes," he said. "There will be a few others, but those three will be key ingredients."

Meyer said he also is looking to a few recruits transferring from junior colleges to make an impact on the team this season but declined to release their names or positions in order to prevent other teams from discovering the information.

SIUC will open its season at 2 p.m. August 31 when it will square off against Southeast Missouri, a school familiar to the Saluki coaching staff.

Bob Smith, SIUC's head coach, coached at SEMO for four years before leaving for the University of Illinois in 1988.

Meyer and defensive line coach Ralph Young also spent time at SEMO, and both served there under Smith during his four years at the school.

Meyer said he is looking forward to the game because the current SIUC coaching staff recruited a lot of the players playing for SEMO and the game should be an interesting one.

SIUC is also scheduled to play Southwest Missouri and Northern Iowa University, the two teams that tied for first place in the Gateway Conference last year.

"We have a pretty balanced league, but my picks for first place are Southwest Missouri and Northern Iowa," he said. "We're being patient and it will be our turn one of these years."

Dan Willis, spokesman for the Gateway conference, also said the league is a balanced one.

Bloody Serb-Croat fighting threatens all-out ethnic war

OHRID, Yugoslavia (UPI) — The bloodiest Serb-Croat fighting in Croatia since World War II left at least 22 people dead and 22 others wounded Monday in a major escalation of violence threatening to ignite an all-out war between Yugoslavia's two largest ethnic groups, news reports and officials said. Yugoslav leaders, in a resumption of negotiations on the future of the multi-ethnic federation of 23 million, agreed on steps required to end the strife in Croatia, including the use of European Community observers, federal Prime Minister Ante Markovic said during a break in the talks in Ohrid. But he said none of the leaders was willing to sign the plan and still had to decide how to implement it.

Gorbachev to face plenum requests to resign

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Mikhail Gorbachev will battle his conservative opponents at a plenum of the Communist Party's leadership opening Thursday, a newspaper reported Monday. Nezaivismayma Party chief said Gorbachev will again face demands for his resignation as party chief at the Central Committee plenum, which could last three days. The plenum, it said, will determine "whether Gorbachev will leave the Communist Party of the Soviet Union this Thursday or whether he will stay until the autumn." Gorbachev faced a similar challenge from his own party this April that he resign, even grabbing the microphone at a plenum and saying he would quit if the majority desired this.

Bush concludes Europe trip with positive results

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush arrived home Monday from an eight-day swing through Europe, calling it a "good, substantive trip," and started preparations for traveling again next week to a superpower summit in Moscow. Bush told reporters at the start of an 11-hour flight from Istanbul, Turkey, that he had "good" and "substantive" talks with world leaders at the Economic Summit in London, including Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev. The two took advantage of a brief meeting in London last Wednesday to nail down a historic strategic arms reduction agreement and set plans for a long-awaited Moscow summit. Bush wound up his journey with state visits to Greece and Turkey.

S. Africa funding scandal discussed in secret

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South Africa's cabinet met Monday at an undisclosed location for crisis talks on a secret-funding scandal that threatens to unseat the reform process, could force ministerial resignations and could set talks on abolishing apartheid back 18 months. Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok and Foreign Minister R.F. "Pik" Botha admitted last week the government covertly paid large sums of money, perhaps as much as $1 million, to one of South Africa's two leading black movements, the Inkatha Freedom Party. The ministers claimed the funds were spent in 1989 and early 1990 to combat international sanctions.

Union demands Edgar hold summit on prison crowding JOLIET (UPI) — The union representing state prison workers Monday called on Gov. Jim Edgar to immediately convene a summit on prison overcrowding in Illinois. Steve Cullen, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees union, said recent negotiations with state officials have resulted in some security improvements at the state's bulging prisons. The steps, however, are merely stopgap measures that fail to resolve the overall problem. The recently passed state budget only makes the situation worse since more than 1,700 beds, including a 950-bed prison, will remain vacant because no money was appropriated to open them, Cullen said.

Site for betting parlor still unknown, to be chosen in a week

By Leslie Colp
Staff Writer

Southern Illinoisans must be content to play a waiting game before they can play the ponies.

City Manager Steve Hoffner said he was notified by Fairmount Park, which operates a racetrack in Collinsville, that Carbondale is still in the running for an off-track betting parlor. The location should be chosen in about a week.

"We hope to have some kind of decision soon," Hoffner said. "But (Fairmount Park officials) have given us time tables before that they haven't met."

In February, Brian Zander, vice president and general manager of Fairmount Park, said he hoped a site would be chosen so it could open this month.

A proposal from Fairmount Park was accepted by the City Council March 19, and plans were made to continue negotiations.

According to the original proposal, Fairmount Park would guarantee Carbondale and Jackson County a minimum of $75,000 a year from the 1-percent tax on the amount wagered. The city must agree, however, not to charge an entry fee for the first five years of operation and rebate any revenue in excess of $75,000 to Fairmount Park or the developers of the project.

If the amount exceeds $11 million, the city and the county would receive 1 percent of the revenue.

City Attorney Michael Weptic said he and Fairmount Park officials continue to have "discussions relating to those terms and conditions," but no formal agreements have been made.

In April, however, the legality of rebating money entitled to the city came into question. But Weptic said the proposal was not illegal because there is no provision for a rebate in the Illinois Revised Statute of 1989.

The statute, which includes the Horse Racing Act of 1975, states that cities and counties are not allowed to waive money entitled to them.

Also in April, Citizens for a Better Community, a group opposed to gambling, said it would boycott other businesses if Fairmount Park opens its parlor.

Joe Stanski, a member of CBC, said the group is still trying to keep an off-track betting parlor from opening in Southern Illinois. Gambling changes the culture of an area, he said, adding that lotteries and other forms of gambling also are addressed at their meetings.

To help gain support for its cause, CBC wants gambling opponents to attend its meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday at John A. Logan Community College.

Darrell Dunham, a coordinator of CBC, said the meeting is for residents of both Jackson and Williamson counties to combine their efforts.

"We're going to work on a strategy to see if we can keep city officials from offering incentives," he said.

Stanski said the group will not decide what its next step will be until after the meeting.

"We're looking for new cards to pull out of the deck and play," he said. "There is no limit to the amount of support we can get."

Opposition to the parlor also came from the Marion City Council.

In February, the council voted unanimously not to pursue the off-track betting parlor. But Greg Sullivan, owner of the Holiday Inn in Marion, negotiated with Fairmount officials to bring the parlor to the hotel.

Sullivan then asked that the admission fee be waived, but the council voted 3-2 against the request.

Fairmount Park already owns off-track betting parlors in Springfield and Grayville. The proposed location for Carbondale parlor is in University Place, across from the University Mall.

Zander has said if a parlor is built in Carbondale, it would probably resemble the parlor in Springfield.

The 17,000-square-foot parlor in Springfield cost $1 million to construct and furnish. It brought more than $164,000 in wagering taxes to the city in 1989.

Closing Illinois landfills require reduced trash

By Jennifer Kuller
Staff Writer

Officials at the Illinois Department of Energy and Natural Resources say they think Illinoisans should "do the right thing" and help reduce the amount of waste that ends up in landfills.

DENR began a statewide public education campaign last week to show consumers that their efforts to reduce, reuse and recycle waste can help ease the state's landfill dilemma, said Joan Bradford, manager of education for DENR's Office of Recycling and Waste Reduction.

"We want people to know that they can make a difference. Our job is to show people how to do it," Bradford said.

Bradford said the ultimate goal of the campaign is to reduce the amount of waste going into landfills.

Currently in Illinois 26 counties do not have operating landfills.

At current disposal rates, 39 of the state's 102 counties are projected to be without operating landfills by 1993.

When a county is operating without a landfill, its trash has to be transported to another county.

The counties in Southern Illinois which have no operating landfills are Alexander, Franklin, Gallatin, Hardin, Hamilton, Pope, Johnson and Wabash.

"We have a problem that could easily turn into a crisis if it is not managed properly," said Mary Gade, director of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency.

The campaign focuses on five points that will be addressed in a one-page handout distributed by DENR and participating businesses.

DENR recommends the following five actions people can take to reduce waste:

- Choosing recycled and recyclable packaging and products.

- Selecting products with minimal packaging and buying in bulk.

- Choosing reusable products over disposable ones and buying the most durable items available.

- Finding new uses for throw-away items.

- Recycling at home and at work, leaving grass clippings on lawn and composting other yard waste.

DENR will work with other public and private businesses and organizations to deliver the waste reduction message to consumers.

Bad timing, reason for Senate pay raise

LAST WEEK U.S. senators did what all workers wish they had the power to do—give themselves a raise. However, they did not seem too proud of their willingness to use this power, slipping the vote in well after the sun had set, newspaper deadlines had been passed and evening news shows had aired.

The bill, which lacks President George Bush's signature, would raise senator's annual wages $23,200, giving them a take-home pay of $125,100. In exchange for this increase senators cannot accept honoraria.

Senators who supported the raise claimed it was needed to create equality between the two sectors of Congress and to end the question of receiving honoraria for speaking engagements.

The House created the pay imbalance in 1989 when it voted itself a $23,200 raise.

Although this imbalance does exist, it is not a valid reason for senators to approve a 21-percent raise for themselves at a time when the country is experiencing a massive deficit, states lack funding to balance their budgets, unemployment is at a record high, education is underfunded, etcetera, etcetera.

THE SITUATION becomes even more absurd when the realization hits that senators already make more than six times what the average worker brings home.

The excuse that the raise was also needed to rid the Senate of the honorarium practice, although more logical, even has flaws.

The honorarium, which is accepted by nearly two-thirds of the senators, has gained a negative image in that it uses time that could be reserved for congressional work. In this instance, as in any job, no moonlighting can be accepted when it interferes with one's main job.

Here was a perfect chance for the Senate to improve the negative image most citizens have of politics as something slick and underhanded that requires the protective covering of nightfall. This was an opportunity for senators' to show citizens they take their job as public representatives seriously and to set a good example for the House to follow. Instead they reinforced this negative image of politicians as money mongers only interested in their own personal gain.

United States lifted sanctions against South Africa too soon

The Daily Illini
 University of Illinois

The United States prides itself on fighting for truth, justice and democracy—well, when it wants to.

By dropping sanctions against the South African government last week, the United States has once again exercised selective morality by allowing the repressive South African government to get away with murder — literally. Since President Bush and former President Reagan never supported sanctions, it is no surprise that Bush would look for any excuse to drop them.

Bush has conveniently overlooked the fact that all of the conditions for sanctions to be dropped have not been met. There are still political prisoners, and blacks still cannot vote. Even though many apartheid laws have been abolished, blacks are still unable to take advantage of their newly acquired status as "real" human beings because of the poor economy.

Sanctions have obviously had a profound effect on the government. Their quest to be reinstated and recognized as a country in good standing has most likely led to the abolishment of the apartheid laws. But the fact that the United States was so willing to comply and drop sanctions without so much as a scolding is completely immoral.

Likewise, the International Olympic Committee gets a "thumbs down" for lifting its ban on South Africa and allowing the country to participate in international sports competition once again. It is almost certain that the United States Olympic Committee will do the same. The South African team that will be taken to the 1992 Olympic games should prove interesting. The IOC should have followed suit with Zimbabwe and kept South Africa banned.

Although many countries have taken the bait and, in good faith, dropped sanctions, a dangerous precedent has been set — particularly by the United States.

Sanctions were the one decent action our government decided to take against a repressive government without bombing them. Now that the government has found its escape hatch, it has slipped back into the valley of immorality, giving other countries the green light to do the same.

Fortunately, many American corporations have decided not to reinvest thus far. Reflecting on the massive campaign to get the University's trustees to divest its holdings in South Africa, here's hoping they will not choose to reinvest either.

After all, somebody has to set a good example. Our government sure didn't.

Editorial Policies

Every letter must be signed and submitted in person by its author or authors. Students must identify themselves by class and major, faculty by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department, others by address and occupation or position appropriate to the nature of their letters. Letters for which authorship cannot be verified will not be published.

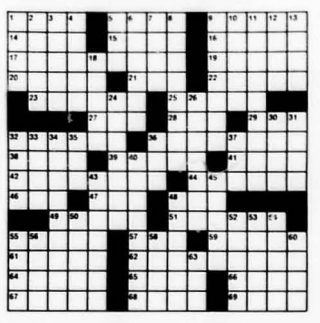

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors. The letters section will be a forum for discussion of issues of public interest. Open, civil dialogue is the aim. Letters may be edited for length and content. Letters of fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Letters will be limited to 300 words. Letters that the editors deem objectionable because of potential libelous material or because of extraordinary bad taste will not be published. Access to the letters space will be afforded to as many writers as possible to encourage diversity of points of view. Editors may impose, at their discretion, a limit on the frequency of publication of letters by an author. When a multitude of letters on the same subject are received, editors may select a few letters that are representative of those letters for publication.

number of students who receive SLS loans is small. ISAC figures for Illinois show 5,445 parents received PLUS loans, and 11,805 students received SLS loans in fiscal year '90.

The requirement of paying interest rates on SLS and PLUS loans while the student is still in school makes the loans less desirable than Stafford and Perkins loans which don't require interest payments until the student is out of school, she said.

Students usually use SLS loans if their Stafford loans, which are based on financial need, aren't enough to cover expenses, Britton said.

"Certainly, the lower rate is an advantage for students who have to borrow from the SLS program," she said.

we're prepared for indefinite delay. I think (Bush) would like (the Israeli response) to be resolved by the time he gets to Moscow."

And referring to Israel's request for the loan guarantees for construction of housing for Soviet immigrants to Israel, he said, "What the president is talking about is no conditionality, but they're obviously associated. There would not be a formal conditioning but of course they are related issues."

Army Radio reported that Shamir later told his Cabinet that the United States believed the Syrian shift represented a revolutionary change and that U.S. officials would like to convene the peace conference in October.

In a no-confidence motion debate in the Knesset, Israel's parliament, Police Minister Roni Milo said the Syrian move could lead to a "breakthrough," indicating some senior government officials might be willing to accept the U.S. proposal.

Still unresolved was who would represent the Palestinians at a peace conference, an issue of crucial importance to Palestinians and Israelis because it raises questions about the future status of Jerusalem.

At a news conference after Baker's departure, prominent Palestinians said they had heard negative and positive things from the secretary of state while several questions still needed to be answered.

They emphasized that they wanted the process to encompass their nationalist aspirations.

"We need the recognition of the Palestinians as a people with a right to self-determination," said Hana Ashrawi of Bir Zeit University.

Besides the growing pressure to participate in the peace process, Israel faces a proposal from Egypt to end the Arab boycott of the Jewish state in return for an end to the settlements in the occupied territories.

Baker said acceptance of the Egyptian idea was not linked to the peace process.

Expectations that Shamir might accept the U.S. plan immediately raised the possibility of a split in his right-wing coalition government.

Michael Eitan, a member of Shamir's Likud party, demanded that party members in Parliament protest the Baker visit.

"Baker is behaving in Jerusalem like a bull in a china shop, and he is likely to shatter the government of Israel into pieces," Eitan said.

But the Knesset, Israel's parliament, goes into summer recess Friday, making it difficult for a no-confidence vote to be organized.

The current round of high-stakes diplomacy began last week when Syria told Bush it was willing to consider the U.S. proposal. Baker, at the London Economic Summit, immediately announced he would travel to the Middle East on his fifth trip to the region since March to check on prospects for peace.

At the economic summit, the Group of Seven industrial powers endorsed his trip and proposed the mutual confidence-building measure of exchanging a halt in settlements for an end to the Arab boycott.

feet away with a recurve bow.

Jeff Heesch, employee of the Pine Tree Archery club, said the archers earned points on where they hit the target.

"If they miss they get no score," Heesch said. "A body shot scores six, a lung shot scores 10 and a heart shot scores 11."

Heesch said archers can register for several classes in which to shoot. These classes determine the distance of the target.

"Stakes are placed 20 to 60 feet from the targets," Heesch said. "The farthest stake is for the open tournament, and we have a stake for the women, children, and the traditional archers."

"When they step up to the stake and touch it with their foot they have two minutes to shoot one arrow," he said.

Heesch said archers use three types of bows: compound, recurve and long bow. Recurve and long bow archers compete in the traditional class.

Bodeau, of Barlow, Ky., competed in the traditional class.

"Traditional bows are starting to make a comeback," Bodeau said. "My bow cost about $400 and some of the compound bows cost way over $1,000."

"The compound bows work on a pulley system that allow the archer an easier pull," he said.

Some of the compound bows have electronic sighting, automatic string releases and counter weights to balance the bow when aiming.

Dale Walker, founder and president of the Boot Hill Traditional Bow Hunters Association in Sikeston, Mo., said hunting with a traditional bow is more of a mental challenge.

"When we are shooting the traditional bows it's a reflex more than mechanical," Walker said.

"The traditional bows are a real challenge and requires a lot more practice than the compounds," he said.

Walker finished second in the traditional class at Pine Tree.

He qualified for the World USA Archery Tournament in Booneville, Ind.

president for financial affairs.

"We will have to have a spending plan in place before that," Capie said. "We need to get one up and operational very soon."

The University has a very quick turn-around and already has tentative budgets, he said.

However, as the University found out last spring, what you see is not always what you get.

A 1 percent rescission in February cost the University nearly $1.4 million worth of state funds that had to be returned.

Although no one can be certain whether another rescission would be called, Capie said everyone is sure of the effects it would have on SIU. "It would be very painful," he said. Past budget cuts led to the reduction of some summer semester class sections.

The immediate impact of the budget without a rescission will be slight reductions, he said.

"It's another year of having to do more with less," he said.
