Senators Delay Vote On Trustee

The Illinois Senate Executive Committee delayed action Thursday on the nomination of F. Guy Hitt, Benton banker, SIU's Board of Trustees.

Sen. John Gilbert, R-Carbondale, told the committee that Hitt, a Democrat, "is not the proper choice."

Gov. Otto Kerner said Thursday he has no intention of withdrawing his nomination of Hitt to the Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees.

Asked at a news conference why he wanted to replace John Page Wham of Centralia on the board, Kerner replied: "Because I wanted to name Hitt."

A Kerner spokesman said earlier that the governor made the appointment because he felt it was time for a change on the board. He added that Wham would not be reappointed, even though Hitt is not confirmed.

The Senate committee postponed a vote at the request of Sen. Paul Ziegler, D-Carmi. Ziegler asked that no action be taken pending possible reconsideration by Kerner.

Republicans, who control the Senate, predicted Hitt would not be confirmed.

Gilbert said Hitt actually resides in University City, Mo., although he maintains his legal residence in Benton.

Wham's term had expired officially in January but he continued to serve on the board as a holdover member. He has declined comment on the change or the furor it has caused.

Graduate Exams In English Set

Graduate English tests will be given at 1 p.m. Saturday. English speaking students will be tested in Furr Auditorium of University School. International students will be tested in the Studio Theatre of University School.

If a graduate student has an undergraduate grade point average of 3.75 or better, the graduate English test is not required.

Each student must bring his student I.D. card to the test session. It is no longer necessary to register for the test at the Graduate School Office.

A student who failed the test for the second time during spring quarter of 1965 must wait until fall quarter to take the test again.

Students who have failed the test three times may not take the test again. They must take English 391.

Final Exam Week Experiment To Continue in Summer Term

The experimental final week system will apply to the summer quarter also, Robert W. MacVicar, vice president for academic affairs said Thursday.

Under the plan there is no formal final examination schedule. In its place, each instructor is permitted to give his final at any time during the last week of the term.

However, if the final is given at the start of the week, classes must be held as regularly scheduled throughout the week.

The plan began in the fall

Advance Registration for Fall Starts Monday, Ends Aug. 20

Summer Term Deadline Set For Saturday

Appointments to see academic advisers for advance registration for the fall quarter can be made Monday through Aug. 20 at the Academic Advisement Center, building T-65.

These dates apply to General Studies students as well as others.

The Advisement Center is open daily from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Students who wish to self-advise may do so without an appointment after filling out authorization forms and meeting several requirements. Such students must be in good standing and have previously registered in the same academic unit.

Students must present ID cards. General Studies students who have passed 75 hours, selected a major, and transferred to a college or school prior to the time of their appointment should make the appointment with the school or college of their choice.

Students who are on academic probation may also make appointments during this period. Appointments can be made for another student if his name and record number are presented at the desk.

Saturday is the last day a student may register for the summer quarter without a dean's written approval. A late registration fee of $4 will be assessed to those registering today, and a $5 fee to those registering Saturday.

The deadline for payment of deferred fees is July 2. The last day to withdraw from school to be eligible for a refund of fees is July 3.

Last day to withdraw from a course without receiving a grade for regular quarter courses is July 16.

A Matter of Taste

Pizza, 'Mighty Moe's' Replacing Hamburgers, Hot Dogs as School Lunch Fare Favored

By Anita Povich

Hamburgers and french fries, that ever-popular American tradition, may soon be replaced by a foreign element in the school lunch room—Pizza Day.

According to lunchroom personnel enrolled in the five-day School Lunch Workshop at Southern, school children are eating pizza and lasagna with the gusto formerly reserved for "burgers and fries."

Pat Garver, director of the school lunch program in the Edwardsville public schools, notes that Sandwich Day is another favorite of the students. All kinds of sandwiches are popular, especially the fish sandwiches.

According to Alma Irvin, director of the school lunch program in Granite City, plain hamburgers are not as popular as one of her special variations called the "Mighty Moe."

"Mighty Moe" consists of a round bun, lettuce, cole-slaw, chopped onions, carrots, salad dressing, two hamburger patties, a slice of cheese, tomato slices, pickles and an olive on the top.

Some of the dislikes of the school children include casserole dishes, ham and beans, stewed tomatoes, and sweet potatoes. Other favorites include chilli, roast beef, fried chicken and spaghetti.

As many college students may have noticed, most of the school lunch directors said that when the high school students go on to college they usually report back to the high school cooks that the food in college is not quite as good as the food they enjoyed in the lunch rooms.

The School Lunch Workshop is held annually by Southern and the State School Lunch Division. Under the direction of Henrietta Becker, lecturer in home economics and former director of the dietetic department at Barnes Hospital, St. Louis, 56 women and three men have participated in lectures, demonstrations and laboratory experience in the five-day program which ends today.

The workshop will wind up this afternoon.

This is the 10th year Southern has sponsored the workshop. This year's attendance is one of the largest in its history.

Gus Bode

Gus says if he had taken HIS classes at Menard he might have a little better attendance record.

Two Join in Study of Local Influence

Two SIU representatives, a graduate student and a faculty member, have been selected to participate in a two-week political science institute on community power analysis beginning at the University of Michigan July 5.

Irving Howards, director of the SIU Public Affairs Research Bureau, and Jerome M. Mileur, doctoral student in government from Murphysboro, have been awarded grants to the institute through resources of the Inter-University Consortium for Political Research.

Howards said the Michigan study will consider distribution of power within local government units. He described the meeting as a "brainstorming" session of political scientists and others working in community power analysis, "considering both theory and its application."

AG ADVISERS - Newly-elected officers of the SIU Agricultural Student Advisory Council have a preliminary meeting to discuss plans for the 1965-66 school year. They are, from left: Paul Nondstrom, Wyanet, president; Pete Borah, Golden Gate, reporter; Frank Koch, Wheaton, secretary, and Donald Knepp, Washington, vice president. The Council, composed of the president and elected representatives of each of the student organizations in the SIU Office of Agriculture, assists with all-school events and seeks to coordinate the special activities of the six student interest groups and two honorary organizations.

New Salem Summer Stock

David Selby and Claire Malis Are Cast in Abe Lincoln Play

David Selby has been selected to play the role of young Abraham Lincoln in "Prologue to Glory," a play about Lincoln's life in New Salem, Illinois.

Claire Malis has been chosen to play Ann Rutledge, whom, legend says, Abe loved and lost as he grew to manhood at New Salem.

Selby is a graduate of West Virginia University, holding both bachelor's and master's degrees from there. Miss Malis is a graduate of Indiana University.

Roles of Lincoln's parents will be played by John Farrell and Yvonne Westbrook, both graduate students at SIU. "Prologue to Glory" will be staged daily at New Salem State Park during the month of July, except for July 1.

The E.P. Conkle play is being directed by Christian Moe, professor of theater.

Scene designer is Darwin Payne of the theater staff. Payne was formerly stage designer for the University of British Columbia theater and Le Petit Theatre Du Vieux Carre, New Orleans.

This is the third time that a summer stock company from Southern has played at the Kelso Hollow Theater at New Salem State Park.

Archibald McLeod, chairman of the Department of Theater, said he expects to develop a repertoire of Lincoln plays for production in succeeding summers. The plays are produced with the cooperation of the State Department of Conservation and the State Board of Economic Development.

Collegiate players from colleges and universities all over the country make up the summer stock company. They gain experience in all phases of theatrical production by doubling as technical crews as well as acting.

Other cast members are Robert W. Cole Jr., Maurice Doff, Karen Everett, Michael Flanagan, Linda Green, Richard Johnson, R. Chris Jones, Haller Laughlin, Nancy Locke.

Judy Mueller, Stanley Schwartz, Mina J. Tauburn, Ken Thompson, Mack Travis, Ron Travis, Raymond V. Wallace, Joseph Walsh, Richard Westlake, Douglas Wigton, Albert W. Young and James Palmer.

"Prologue to Glory" will be presented at 2:30 each afternoon except Monday and on Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. Admission will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for children under 14.

Along with our other fine lines, we wish to announce the addition of the beautiful "Orange Blossom" diamonds. See them at...

Senate Committee Oks Broad Medicare Bill

—WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Finance Committee approved Thursday a bill to provide broad medical benefits and increased pensions for the nation's elderly at an estimated cost of $6.8 billion a year.

The administration-backed measure was endorsed by a 12-5 vote and will be reported to the Senate next Wednesday for action soon after the July 4 recess.

The House passed a similar bill April 8 and Senate passage is regarded as a foregone conclusion as the heavy Democratic majority acts against less-than-solid Republican opposition to carry out a major party platform pledge.

The Senate committee adopted 75 amendments to the House legislation but none seems likely to create a House-Senate deadlock that could prevent final passage this summer.

The major provisions of both bills are:

—A basic plan covering hospitalization, post-hospital nursing home care, outpatient diagnostic services and post-hospital home health visits.

This applies to all the nation's 19-plus million persons over 65 and would be financed principally by an increase in Social Security taxes.

—A voluntary, supplemental plan covering most doctors' fees for home, office and hospital services, as well as some additional hospital charges not covered under the basic plan.

This would be financed by a $3-a-month premium paid by the over 65s who join the program plus matching $3-a-month premiums paid by the government out of general revenues.

Most medical benefits would be effective July 1, 1966.

—An average increase of 7 per cent in retirement, disability and survivor benefits paid under the present Social Security program. This would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1965.

This also would be financed by the increase in Social Security taxes paid by employees and employers.

Action came as the American Medical Association, which has fought the program persistently, was meeting in New York.

The AMA's 234-member House of Delegates, which makes policy for the association, approved a resolution saying it will await final congressional action then "this house will review the effect of the law

Newspapers, Fiction Help Delinquents, Educator Believes

WHITMORE LAKE, Mich. (AP)—Newspapers and science fiction paperbacks can help juvenile delinquents and youthful "nonachievers" to communicate with the world around them, a University of Michigan educator says.

Dr. Daniel Fader, 35, assistant professor of English, uses such publications at the boys' training school near here.

"A traditional textbook is a symbol of a boy's failure," Fader said.

"Newspapers, magazines and paperbacks are something they can understand. Through these, a natural interest can be aroused."

Philadelphia Slapped by Strike, Faces Food, Drug, Gas Bind

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—This fourth largest city in the nation faced food, gasoline, drug and other product shortages Thursday as a wildcat strike of Teamsters moved through a fourth day with no settlement in sight.

James R. Hoffa, national president of the Teamsters Union, said he expects the truck strike to continue at least until the early part of next week.

At his office in Washington, Hoffa charged the strike of 12,000 members of Local 107 was engineered by insurgents affiliated with a group within the local which has been fighting his policies for several years.

Hoffa termed the strike illegal, and said even if the grievance was just it wouldn't justify a strike. Hoffa gave no indication he would come here to try and effect a settlement.

Mayor James Tate said of the Teamsters president:

"He has other engagements which he considers more important. He is not ready to come here."

The city's four largest grocery chains said Thursday that most of their stores will be without supplies by Friday if the strike isn't settled.

The walkout started Monday in support of four Teamsters members fired by Roadway Express Inc., for refusing to perform work they considered hazardous. Roadway drivers have been on strike since June 11.

Mayor Tate said his solution to the strike that has forced cancellation of all police leaves and placed policemen on 12-hour shifts, was for Roadway to "take the men back and the men go back to work and then negotiate their grievances."

Roadway, however, Wednesday night sent telegrams to its 130 drivers and platform men notifying them they were fired.

An attorney for the company said it was Roadway's view the problem is a lack of authority in Local 107 leadership.

The Chamber of Commerce said approximately 750 employees have been laid off as of Wednesday as a result of firms not being able to get supplies or make deliveries. It indicated the number would rise to about 11,000 by Friday.

West Germans Worried Briefly By Soviet Exercise Near Berlin

BERLIN (AP)—A brief Soviet occupation of the vital bridge across the Elbe River on the Berlin superhighway Thursday caused a flurry of excitement among West Germans.

The troops had been deployed in foxholes on both approaches to the bridge for more than 15 hours, said Allied sources. But they at no time interfered with traffic to and from the Communist-surrounded city.

Military sources said that there was no major activity on the 110-mile lifeline, and most guards, who had been stationed at various points along the road were withdrawn.

Diplomats said they had reached no conclusion as to the nature of the military exercise that began Wednesday night when about 100 Soviet and East German troops moved into the bridge area.

House Oks Increase in School Aid

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The Illinois House approved unanimously Thursday the administration's program for increasing state aid to schools.

It calls for boosting the two-year appropriation by $125 million to a new total of $550 million.

When Gov. Otto Kerner asked it to passage of a two-cent hike in the gasoline tax for general revenue, Republican senators decided in caucus Wednesday to oppose the tax.

Under Kerner's bill payments to grade and high schools would be raised from the current level of $252 a pupil to $327.

State aid guarantees the difference between the pupil support level and the amount produced by a local qualifying property tax.

The House defeated a bill to set up a commission on reapportionment of political subdivisions such as school districts, county boards and others.

Rep. Albert Hachmeister, R-Chicago, said he offered the bill in the event courts should rule that one-man, one-vote reapportionment applied to local governments. The commission would have been empowered to study the problem and report to the legislature.

House approval sent to the Senate a bill increasing lawmakers' mileage expenses from 10 to 15 cents for one round trip a week between their home and Springfield while the legislature is meeting.

Two other bills advanced to the Senate appropriate $437,000 to the Illinois Crime Commission and create a separate agency to run the state fair in Springfield. The fair division now is under the Agriculture Department.

Travelers Reported Sighting Several Convoys of Soviet Troops Along the Superhighway Just Outside West Berlin, and Farther down the Road Near the West German Border.

But these convoys in no way matched the heavy military movements on the superhighway Wednesday night. At that time columns of infantry, heavy weapons and tanks were spotted, especially near the major road junctions at Brandenburg, Wollin and Magdeburg.

"We just cannot tell what the Communists are up to at this point. Perhaps they are only playing a war of nerves," a diplomat said. "But we know from experience in this city that the situation can change within 15 minutes."

Ladies Golf Match Has 5-Time Victor

CARMi, Ill. (AP) — Mrs. Dorothy Webb of Murphysboro overcame the defending titlist by seven strokes Wednesday to win the Southern Illinois Ladies Golf Association tournament for the fifth time in its 14 years.

Mrs. Webb carded 81 on the 70-par course the first day and 79 the second day of play.

Second was Miss Lynn Hastie, a Carterville teen-ager. Ruth Ann Mann of Herrin was third with 173.

New State of War

Ky's Government Severs Viet-French Relations

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Brig. Gen. Nguyen Chao Ky's new government proclaimed a state of war Thursday that escalated the existing martial law.

It broke diplomatic relations with Paris, charging that France is aiding South Viet Nam's enemies.

Decreases aimed to tighten the home front came out at a Saigon news conference while troops and airmen pressed the campaign against the Viet Cong and their north Vietnamese backers.

A battalion of 600 U.S. paratroopers probed for guerrillas in the bomb-churned "D" zone jungle 25 miles north of Saigon, the target of the war's first strike by B52 jets of the Strategic Air Command. Contact was tight.

Like the three 60-man Vietnamese patrols sent into the zone immediately after the bombing last Friday, the Americans drew some sniper fire. U.S. officials said one paratrooper was reported missing in action and another paratrooper and a helicopter crewman were wounded.

More than 130 U.S. planes carried on aerial strikes against North Viet Nam. A spokesman said a 46-plane force staging the fourth raid in a week on the Son La army barracks, 110 miles west-northwest of Hanoi, sighted two MIG17s, but the Communist jets peeled away.

"No hits or kills were made," he said.

The break with France, which advocates neutralization of Viet Nam, and the domestic crackdown were announced by Ky and his ministers.

All Saigon's 36 newspapers, of varied interests and political leanings, were ordered closed for a month, effective July 1. This decree, promptly protested by Saigon newsmen, was reported aimed to encourage mergers and consolidations that would reduce the number of publications.

Ky and his economy minister, Truong Thi Tonh, lashed out at profiteering and luxury living and imposed a 10 p.m. to 2 a.m. curfew, effective Friday, to cut down Saigon's night life.

The premier said government officials no longer will be allowed free housing and other benefits and top government leaders will take a 50 per cent salary cut.

Ky declared he would brook no opposition to any of the new decrees, adding: "We are ready to sacrifice 10,000 traitors to save 14 million free Vietnamese."

In announcing the break with France, which once ruled Viet Nam as a part of Indochina, Foreign Minister Tran Van Do said president Charles de Gaulle's government "pretends to be a friend, but isn't."

Stocks Dip To One of Year's Lows

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market Thursday took one of its sharpest dives of 1965 as the pace of trading stepped up more than two million shares over Wednesday's.

After a lazy start, with prices only mildly lower, stocks were hit by a selling squall which worsened as the industrial average broke sharply below the so-called support level of June 14.

A recovery drive began almost immediately and by noon about 40 per cent of the decline was recovered. The level could not be held, however, and, as the afternoon wore on, stocks sagged until, at the end, they fell to their worst levels of the day in a second wave of selling.

Volume rose to 5.85 million shares from 3.59 million Wednesday and was the largest since June 16, when 6.32 million shares changed hands.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 12.46 to 857.76, its biggest loss since June 14 when it fell 12.99.

Carterville Taxi Driver, Cab Sought by Police

CARTERVILLE, Ill. (AP)—City and state police were asked today to search for a taxi and its driver who vanished overnight after apparently picking up two fares at a Carbondale train depot.

Robert Lee Dean, 35, who had been living in a Carterville hotel, was reported missing seven hours after leaving for Carbondale to pick up the two passengers, police said. The round trip should have taken about 40 minutes.

Sunglasses—shades to the “in” group—didn’t really start with jazz musicians, American movie stars and crime syndicate bosses appearing before Congressional investigating committees. In fact, there is historical evidence to indicate that even primitive man knew that the sun he worshipped could harm the surface of his eyes and tried to do something about it. Among the early examples is an ingenious device created by Eskimos. It was a gogglelike shield made of bone, with thin slits to shut out the glare. This summer a modified version of this very same thing is being marketed in brightly colored plastics by a new firm. They are called “boy watchers” or “girl watchers” depending upon what the brave wearer prefers to watch.

In 1752 an English optician, James Ayscough, expressed his concern over the matter of eye protection. “The common white glass gives an offensive glaring light, very prejudicial to the eyes, and on that count, green and blue glasses are advised.”

But it took the American jazz musician in the 1940s, the movie star and the literati both here and in Europe to give the whole bit the shove it needed to becoming a fad. Now sunglasses are almost an integral part of fashion. They are everywhere ranging from the sunny beaches to those dimly-lighted, smoke-filled basements where the cool set holds forth to listen to jazz.

A national magazine recently surveyed the college campuses across the country and came to the conclusion that sunglasses are an established part of most collegiate wardrobes. It’s a safe bet, the magazine said, that a lot of young people reach for their sunglasses in the morning almost as soon as they reach for that first cigarette and they don’t come off until lights out.

Sight, except when it’s sunny, apparently has nothing to do with it. Sunlight, in fact, is a negligible factor in wearing shades.

The real reasons? One: sunglasses are a surefire way to looking inscrutable, mysterious, and unquestionably “hip.” Two: they are a glorious form of eye makeup (for girls, that is). They not only draw attention, but if you are in a hurry you don’t have to worry about eyebrow pencil, shadow, liner and all that jazz. The shades do it... just as long as you keep them on.

Most of the wearers at SIU who were queried offer a simple clinical explanation for their part, though. They don sunglasses to cut out the glare of the sun. (At least the sun is on their side.)

For example, a junior from Rockford explained he wears prescription lenses which double, as sunglasses because his eyes are sensitive to light. John Svejcar, a sophomore from Berwyn, has eye vision problems too, so he wears similar spectacles.

Some people were seen wearing sunglasses indoors. But, wearing them indoors constantly “is silly,” according to Susan Chaloupka, a freshman from Chicago. Ann Smith, a freshman from Springfield, thinks it’s “kind of stupid.” “They’re real sharp, but there’s places for them,” commented Sherry McRoy, a freshman from DuQuoin.

Others expressed a permissive or indifferent attitude to this practice. “It’s up to the individual,” stated one coed. “Depends on who they are, for some people it’s all right,” another said.

As far as the question of whether or not more students wear sunglasses for vanity’s sake, it’s anybody’s guess.

One student showed “puffed-up” eyes which she got from sunbathing as the reason for her dark lenses. But then there’s the fair miss in pigtails and shift seen walking on campus behind a pair of oversize, dark-green spectacles and under an overcast sky.

Review and Comment by Mordecai Gorelik, Professor of Theatre

Drama of '30s Was Forum for Political, Social Issues

Drama and Commitment, by Gerald Rabkin. Bloomington: Indiana University Press, 1964. 322 pp. $6.

At a time when American drama is preoccupied with family neuroses, sexual inversion and the cardboard world of the absurdists, we may well take time to consider the dramatic expression of the militant 30s.

Two books on the theater of that period have now appeared, and more are on the way. Morgan Y. Himelstein's "Drama Was a Weapon," which came out last year, was a cops-and-robbers melodrama about an alleged conspiracy by the drama critics of the Daily Worker and the New Masses to take over the American theater for communism. (Fortunately the plot was foiled and the theater was left safely in the hands of the Shuberts.)

Rabkin's book, an essay with less warmth but with a depth and insight that make up for it, is head and shoulders above the Himelstein work.

The playwriting of the 1930s cannot be evaluated except in terms of the Wall Street crash of 1929 and the human misery and political disillusionment that followed it. Today the absurdist dramatist — or "anti-dramatists" — tell us that the human condition is one of mere grotesque suffering without fundamental meaning of hope of cure.

Marxism, during its short incursion into the American theater, taught otherwise. Nor was the Marxist "revolutionary optimism" without any alternative; The American liberal tradition was also functioning, questioning and alert.

In the midst of real disaster the man of the 30s, as Rabkin observes, "felt anything but impotent." The significant drama of the period was a forum for political and social issues; and its playwrights believed in remedial action—or, at the very least, in the need for struggle against misfortune.

Rabkin examines the plays of John Howard Lawson, whose career has been more dramatic than any of his dramas; he notes the ebbing away of Clifford Odets' revolutionary zeal, which "mellowed" into the Saroyanesque theme of redemption through love; and comments on the romantic pessimism of Maxwell Anderson, who felt the need for protest even though he considered it unavailing.

These and other dramatists of the New Deal years were committed, if not to a socialist program, at least to a struggle against war and Fascism. To them the "human condition" seemed less the result of inscrutable fate and more the work of the Establishment or the Power Structure. And they could sense that if drama is interpersonal, it is still true that the individual person is the result of the social, political, cultural and technological forces of his day.

That fact has since become lost in the welter of sex, sentiment, symbolism and general somnolence in which our current drama is steeped.

There is no known guarantee that any playwright, Marxist or otherwise, will turn out works of genius if he dissents politically. But the need for political independence remains, whether for geniuses or hacks.

Odd as it may sound in this age of the wheeler-dealer and the hipster, drama still has the obligation to clarify life for its audiences, the more so in the era of confusion, sloganeering and possible atomic disintegration.

Over all the centuries of its existence drama has defended honesty and human values, under no matter what political regime; whether he is aware of it or not, a dramatist is already committed to that defense before he puts pen to paper or inserts a sheet into his typewriter. An open mind is as necessary to him as breathing and to expect him to be politically reliable is to put an iron collar around his neck. The national crisis of the 30s gave its dramatists an urgent sense of their responsibility and of the need for independent thought to go with it.

But they were supported morally, if not financially, by a population that had taken a decided swing to the left politically. The leftist drama of commitment, and the general insurgency that gave it strength, were both erased by the stabilization of the American economy under the New Deal, by the Second World War, which gave the nation a new goal, and by the Cold War and the rightist counter-attack.

It remains to be seen whether the dramatic experience of the 30s has left a viable tradition behind it.

Crime Study Program at SIU Is Featured in U.N. Publication

Southern's international penology and corrections training program is featured in a new publication of the United Nations entitled "International Review of Criminal Policy."

Myrtle E. Alexander, director of the U.S. Bureau of Prisons and a former SIU faculty member, discusses the program established in 1962 by the SIU Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Correction.

Alexander was director of the SIU crime center for three years prior to assuming the high federal prison post in 1964.

The SIU program was organized at the request of the U.S. Agency for International Development to give training in correctional administration for participants sent by cooperating governments.

"Fortunately," Alexander writes, "the University itself was already deeply committed to international education, since it provided on its campus for more than 300 students from 65 countries, so that an atmosphere for the ready acceptance of new international programs existed."

The crime center course, usually 22 weeks in length, includes study in such areas as probation and parole systems, correctional institution design, methods of staff training and development, and the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency.

Areas of study and time spent on the SIU campus can be adapted to specific needs of individuals and groups, Alexander notes. A variety of outside consultants are called upon, and field trips are arranged. To meet special needs, some trainees are assigned to other agencies for "on site" study.

"We knew that many of the problems that participants would pose had no final solutions and we could promise none," the prison director explains. "We felt, however, that American correctional systems at mid-century had much to offer in tested programs, diversified experience and promising experimental work."

FRANK SOVICH

Coach Sovich To Take Job In Missouri

Frank S. Sovich, freshman football and baseball coach at Southern for the past two seasons, has accepted a position as an assistant football coach at Southwest Missouri State at Springfield, Mo.

Sovich will be working under Head Coach Jim Mentis, who was just appointed to the head position this year. Sovich will be employed as a line coach.

Sovich's freshman yearlings posted a 7-1 record over a two-year period. His teams won six straight games before losing to Memphis State University 35-15, in the third game of the season last fall.

His baseball teams were just as successful, posting records of 9-1 and 4-1.

The former collegiate star at State College of Iowa will continue teaching here summer term before leaving the latter part of August for his new assignment.

No successor to replace Sovich has been named.

Special Workshop Set for Teachers

Participants will make administrative decisions as they play the role of school principals in a special workshop in educational administration at SIU, Aug. 2 to 20.

Jacob O. Bach, chairman of the Department of Educational Administration and Supervision, said, "These decisions will then be subjected to group discussion and analyzed in a three-dimensional view of the school as a formal organization, as a social system and as an implementing mechanism of a social institution."

Assisting Bach in the workshop will be Samuel H. Popper of the University of Minnesota.

The workshop will be open to persons in school organization who have responsibility for decision making, such as elementary and secondary principals, directors and superintendents. Enrollment will be limited to 25.

Home Economists

Attend Convention

Four SIU home economists are attending the national convention of the American Home Economics Association in Atlantic City this week.

They are Mrs. Eileen E. Quigley, dean of the School of Home Economics; Betty Jane Johnston, chairman of the Department of Home and Family; Willie B. Oakley from the Department of Home Economics Education; and Mrs. Arlene Heisler, instructor in home economics in University School.

Cornell to Keep 'on Track' at Slower Pace

His Career as a College Athlete Now Over, SIU's Star Miler Will Assist Coach Hartzog

Life will go along at a slightly slower pace for Bill Cornell, now that his track career at Southern is over.

Cornell, who came here in 1961 from Chelmsford, England, was the star distance runner for the past three years for Coach Lew Hartzog.

Besides being the top runner on the team, Cornell also demonstrated leadership, as is evidenced by his being elected team captain for three straight years.

Cornell's two best races were at the NCAA championships in 1962 and 1963.

In 1962 he finished second in the mile run with a time of 4:00.5. This was the closest he came to running the four-minute mile, a goal he was striving for.

The following year he ran in the half-mile and again finished second.

One of Cornell's most memorable moments was at the Drake Relays in 1963 when he anchored the team to a winning time of 3:18.7, the fastest in the United States that year.

Cornell started running at age 10 near his home in Chelmsford, but soon became fascinated with two other popular English sports, soccer and cricket.

At Rainsford High School, track played third fiddle to soccer and cricket. Cornell was captain of both the school's soccer and cricket teams and limited his participation in track to just the quarter mile.

Cornell had visions of becoming a professional soccer player, but his father took care of those plans by throwing away his soccer boots and replacing them with a pair of new spikes.

Cornell got plenty of use out of his new spikes when he started running for the Chelmsford athletic club.

Cornell's track career paused momentarily after he graduated from high school at the age of 15.

He worked as a sales clerk for a manufacturing firm in Chelmsford for five years and then worked nine months as a policeman in a nearby town. Discontented with both jobs, Cornell started thinking about college. A friend of his in England knew about Southern and recommended him to Hartzog.

Hartzog, who was in the middle of a track rebuilding program was all too glad to get him despite the fact that Cornell hadn't run for the past three years.

The chance paid off for Hartzog and Southern. Cornell teamed up with a fellow Britisher, Brian Turner, to give the team a powerful one-two weapon in the distance running events.

When Cornell came to Southern he brought his wife, the former Rose Whiffin of Chelmsford, with him. They were married the day before they left for the United States. She now works in the public relations department of the SIU information Service.

Cornell had met her at the manufacturing company where he worked. Although she doesn't see her husband run very much (there aren't many home track meets), Mrs. Cornell is quite a track fan.

"I just love those mile relays," she said.

Cornell, who plans to take out citizenship papers, has his parents, a younger married sister, Wendy, and a younger brother, Brian, still living in England.

Unlike his older brother, Brian prefers riding to running and, according to Bill, is quite a bicyclist.

"Bicycle racing is a big sport in England, but colleges in the United States don't give many bicyclist scholarships," said Cornell jokingly.

I haven't been to England since 1962, but Rose and I hope to visit our families again in the not too distant future," he continued.

Although his collegiate track career is over, Cornell plans to remain close to the sport. He will run enough to keep in shape, even though he won't be in competitive events.

Cornell will get some coaching experience next year as assistant coach under Hartzog. He will also be working on his master's degree in physical education.

Cornell hopes some day to become a track coach, preferably at the college level.

Yankee Castoff Beats Mates

NEW YORK (AP)—Roland Sheldon, a New York Yankee discard who was traded to Kansas City in May, beat his old mates Thursday 6-2 with a six-hitter.

Ken Harrelson slammed a three-run homer off loser Mel Stottlemyre in the first inning after Wayne Causey doubled and Jim Landis was hit by a pitch. The Yanks never could catch up.

Joe Peptone's homer in the second inning and a combination of a walk to Horace Clarke, a wild pitch and a single by Tom Tresh that produced a run in the third narrowed the gap to 3-2.

The A's struck again in the eighth against Pete Ramos.

First Summer Baseball

SIU and St. Louis Begin Series Tonight

Baseball returns to SIU at 6 tonight, when the Salukis make their debut in the Midwest Collegiate Baseball League against St. Louis University Billikens.

At the helm this summer will be rookie coach Rich (Irchy) Jones, a former SIU baseball player, now headbasketball coach at Jacksonville High School.

Jones will field a rather inexperienced team, of the 25-30 players who have reported to practice the last few days, none has had previous collegiate baseball experience.

Jones may wait until game

Shawneetown Tour

To Leave Center

At 1:30 p.m. Sunday

Sunday's Saluki Safari will take SIU students to Old Shawneetown on the Ohio River, once a booming town, but now little more than a ghost town.

The city, county seat of Gallatin County, was submerged by the flood of 1937. In 1939 the city was relocated on higher ground three miles west of the original site.

Old Shawneetown with its historic buildings became a state memorial. One of the town's most famous visitors was the Marquis de LaFayette, who visited there on his last trip to the United States in 1824.

While there, students will visit historical sites such as the $80,000 bank building constructed in 1840, when Shawneetown was referred to as the financial capital of the state.

The Saluki Safari, sponsored by the Summer Programming Board, will leave the University Center at 1:30 p.m. Sunday and will return about 6 p.m. There is no charge for the trip.

Amos Will Leave SIU for Eastern

Dewey H. Amos, assistant professor of geology, since 1955, has resigned.

His resignation, effective at the end of summer term, will make it possible for him to accept a position at Eastern Illinois University, Charleston, where he will organize a new program in geology.

Amos is a graduate of Marietta College in Ohio. He received his master's and doctoral degrees from the University of Illinois.

Before coming to SIU he was an economic geologist concerned with evaluating strategic mineral deposits for the Mineral Deposits Branch of the United States Geological Survey at Knoxville, Tenn.

As well as teaching courses in mineralogy and economic geology, he has been directing SIU's summer geology field courses.

Alumnae Lawn Party Scheduled for Today

The American Association of University Women will hold a Coke hour at 9:30 a.m. on July 13 on the campus lawn east of Old Main.

All women with college degrees, both members and non-members are invited to attend.

time before he decides on his starting lineup, since he is still in the process of getting to know the players.

"I like the spirit and enthusiasm of the group and every position is still wide open," he said.

He still invites anyone who thinks he can help the cause to report to the baseball field Monday for a tryout.

St. Louis University, a semifinalist in the recent NCAA college world series at Omaha, Neb., will have five starters from a spring team which won 25 of 34 contests.

Southern defeated the St. Louis team in a double-header at the end of the spring season, closing out the year with a 20-3 record.

The four-game series against the Billikens will continue with a doubleheader Saturday, starting at 1:30 p.m. and a single game Sunday at 2 p.m.

SUMMER LEAGUE BASEBALL COACH RICH JONES (RIGHT) WITH ASSISTANT COACH RICH HINCKLE

SIU Will Send Two To Alumni Council

Robert Odaniell, director of the SIU Alumni Association, will appear on the program of the national conference of the American Alumni Council in Atlantic City Sunday to Thursday.

Odaniell, member of the council's national board of directors and chairman of its six-state Great Lakes District, will be accompanied by Jay W. King, SIU alumni field representative.

Odaniell will be chairman of a session, "How to Conduct a Direct Mail Campaign" and of a round-table discussion, "Stimulating Undergraduates for Alumni Activity."

The council is a professional organization for alumni personnel in colleges, universities, junior colleges, and secondary schools and has members in the United States and eight other countries.
