CFUT goes to court

Class-action suit filed against SIU

By Gary Houy Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A class-action suit against SIU was filed in federal district court in Benton Tuesday by the Carbondale Federation of University Professors (CFUT). Harry H. Nickle, associate professor of physics; G. Dean Tarter, instructor in the School of Technical Careers; John Doe and the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, are listed as plaintiffs.

The suit states the SIU Board of Trustees 'has acted wrongfully in terminating the employment of plaintiffs in the following particulars: it failed to afford hearings to plaintiffs prior to terminating them; it failed to recognize tenure rights of plaintiffs as created and extant under its by-laws and statutes; and it employed arbitrary and capriciuos reasons including invidious reasons such as sex as a basis for terminating plaintiffs."

The plaintiffs were "irreparably and wrongfully" harmed by those terminations because they have been denied due process rights to a hearing and other procedural rights graranteed by the Constitution, the suit states.

A clerk at the Benton office of the Federal district clerk said the suit was received and filed Tuesday morning. She said it would be sent to the federal marshal in East St. Louis, who would then serve it on the SIU Board of Trustees Wednesday or Thursday. The clerk said she had not read the suit carefully but said it was filed in federal court because it charged a violation of amendments to the Constitution had been made.

Nickle and Tarter are two of the 104 faculty members terminated by SIU in December due to "financial exigency." Both are members of the CFUT.

Nickle is representing the tenure appointment class and Tarter represents the term appointment class. Since a representative of the continuing appointment class could not be found, John Doe was listed as the plaintiff. The CFUT is the local affiliate of the American Federation of Teachers. It has about 125 members in the Carbondale area.

Adoption policy leaves children parentless

By Dave Stearns
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"It's more difficult to live unloved-than to die."

That statement was made by the Council on Advocacy for Children in its May 1974 newsletter. The council was referring to the long lists of married couples waiting to adopt children and the large number of parentless Vietnamese-American orphans.

Transracial adoptions--II

For according to Rep. Patsy T. Mink (D-Hawaii), there are 25,000 Vietnamese-American orphans and only a small percentage of them are being adopted.

This is one reason for complaints against the current Illinois transracial adoption policy by the 214 prospective parents in Southern Illinois who are waiting to adopt children who apparently are not available. Increased utilization of birth control

Increased utilization of birth control and abortion, coupled with the nearly nonexistent stigma of having illegitimate children is partially responsible for the low number of children up for adoption. Currently, only 15 are available in this area, and 14 placements have been made in the past three months.

Another reason for the children shortage, according to Pat Phillips of the Adoption Advisory Committee, is that the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services has shown a recent trend to leave children with their biological parents at all costs. For as of April 30, 10,370 children were in foster homes with only an estimated five per cent up for adoption according to Don Schlosser, supervisor for public relations. These figures imply that many of the remaining 95 per cent will be returned to their biological parents at some future date. They have been temporarily taken away because of unfit social conditions of various sorts. Exact figures on the number of children free for adoption are not available, either from William Ireland (the director for research and development) or from Schlosser.

Seely cites need for improvement in fulfillment of student advisory role

By Bill Layne Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Student government, as Student Body Vice President Robert Seely sees it, has not been fulfilling its advisory capacity as outlined in the constitution.

"The student government constitution states that student government is an advisory panel to the administration; but they don't seem to be listening to the student government." Seely said in an interview Tuesday.

Seely, a psychology major from Rockford, said he is beginning to get organized in his new position.

'I'm just trying to find out the political atmosphere around here. The files are a mess, and I'm just getting used to things."

As vice president, Seely will chair Student Senate meetings. He hasn't decided whether he will deal with senators on a party level.

"Philosophically I don't believe in student body parties because they split things up at the Senate.

Seely said one of the problems he has noticed concerning the effectiveness of student government is the turnover of persons associated with it. He said he plans to organize a committee to continue actively in student government and to act in a non-partisan way in providing information for student government.

Stating he wants to be "sort of an advisor to the Student Senate and (Student Body) President Dennis Sullivan," Seely explained what he thought was another problem of student government.

"People lack an understanding on where the problems come from. The administrative cult of super-efficiency and bureaucratic bungling upon occasion seeped down into student goverment."

Seely said student government has set up a commission to investigate obtaining a lawyer for SIU students, one of his campaign promises.

"We're getting some support from senators who we hadn't expected to heln"

As a student strummed a guitar and others filtered in and out of the student government offices, Seely explained the situation as he sees it.

"Students have to realize this is student government. We're students, so we don't have to make ourselves look like the same bureaucratic system we're trying to cope with."

Newspaper classified ads misleading, placement director advises job-hunters

Newspaper classified advertising one of many artificial obstacles facing job-seeking college graduates, Kirby Stanat, director of the career placement center at the University of Wisconsin a Milwaulkee, said Tuesday.

Stanat was in the Morris Library Auditorium Lounge to make a taped interview with Harvey Idus, director of the SIU placement center and three SIU students.

Stanat said newspaper classified advertising is often misleading because employers often list many job requirements that are not actually needed for the position.

Students are often afraid to apply for a position when they see that their qualifications don't precisely match those listed in the adver-

The best thing a student can do is ignore the qualifications listed in the advertisement, Stanat said. "If you see an ad for a job that interests you, by all means apply."

Another suggestion Stanat had for students was that they should always respond in person to an ad.

"If at all possible see the man in person," he said, "There are three things that can happen.

"The man can order you out of the office which is unlikely, you might recieve a spin-off job that was not listed in the ad or may not be the position you were applying for and the man may compromise with you because there is never a perfect man for any position and if you have enough qualifications, even though they aren't the ones listed, he may hire you," he said.

"It is not very often that a com-pany will buy advertising space in a newspaper just to see who's lookings for a job, it's too expensive," he

"When you see an ad in the paper you can assume that that position is under heat from the inside."

stanat said, "I never read the ads as help wanted. I read them as HELP wanted. You never put an ad in the paper looking for the minimum, you have to go maximum." maximum

When reading the help wanted sections, Stanat says to respond to all ads that hold some interest, there may be some jobs in the desk

He offered several tips on what to say to a receptionist when trying to get an inerview with the boss such as telling her, "I'm not working today, I think I'll just wait," "I've traveled a long distance to see Mr. Reese," or simply, "Please help me."

Carbondale council receives 2 petitions on zoning map

By Charlotte Jones Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Two petitions concerning a proposed zoning ordinance were presented to the Carbondale City Council Tuesday night. The council, holding its fourth public hearing on the proposal, was presented a petition by Donald Berry of Laurel Lane. Berry's petition stated that the existing ordinance prohibiting more than two unrelated persons to share a dwelling in a single family zone is being violated.

The new ordinance already lacks credibility, he said.

Frank Etheridge, who also signed Berry's petition, said he knew of a home in his single family zone where at least six persons lived. The new ordinance won't be any more effective unless the city begins en-fecting it he said forcing it, he said council woman Helen Westberg said she thought the council would direct the code enforcement person-nel to give the new zoning ordinance top priority.

Etheridge said absentee landlords who won't keep up their rental property are causing the whole single family residential area in northwest Carbondale to depreciate.

A second petition was presented by Linda Young of 304 West Pecan. Young's petition requests the post-gonement of action on the zoning or-dinance for 30 days to allow further

This policy officially began in 1973, when the National Association of Black Social Workers sent a report to the DCFS stating, "The placement of black children with white families is grossly contradictory to the present living pat-terns of our society."

Other criticisms of transracial adoptions include the lack of a non-white child's racial and cultural identification in a white home. Many parents refute these criticisms saying they give their children black cultural exposure and could perhaps aid identification problems by the adoption of another non-white child which at present is non-write child which at present is nearly impossible. Jerome Miller, director of the DCFS, proclaimed an end to transracial adoptions on Nov. 3, 1973 saying "the best interest of the in-dividual child shall always be the parmount concern. Therefore, children shall not be placed transracially unless there is documented evidence that such a placement is in the best interest of the

This policy has been eased somewhat, making transracial adoptions possible if a black family cannot be found.

"But there is no statewide policy," Phillips said. "If a nonwhite child is not placed within X-number of months, then he will be considered for tran-sracial adoption. But the area offices

Barber states that X-months is about not an iron clad rule, she added. "Because of increased publicity and the subsidized adoption system (in which parents are given financial aid if needed), more black families are adopting children." families are adopting children.

Contradicting Barber is Ken Watson of the Adoption Program Evaluation
Committee, who told a meeting of Carbondale parents in April, "As we began bondaie parents in April, As we began to place children across transracial lines, we actually had an increase in black applicants for black children. I think the policy of restricting transracial adoptions has had an inhibiting effect on blacks seeking adoptions."

Barber presently has two black children available, ages 11 and 9, with no one to adopt them.

Erlichman, three burglars go on trial today for plot to steal Ellsberg records

WASHINGTON (AP)—John D. Ehrlichman, President Nixon's long-time right hand in domestic affairs, goes on trial with three convicted burglars Wednesday for a plot to steal a psychiatrist's records about Daniel Elisberg.

Ehrlichman and the others are charged with a White House-bred conspiracy to violate the psychiatrist's rights by breaking into his office "without legal process, probably cause, search warrant or other lawful authority." The jury trial is expected to last about a month. It is the second of three major trials in the Watergate aftermath involving men who were once in the Nixon high command. The least-known man in the case is the victim, Dr. Lewis J. Fielding of Beverly Hills, Calif.

For Ehrlichman, a defendant also in next September's Watergate

For Enritchman, a detendant also in next September's Watergate cover-up conspiracy trial, conviction on all counts in this case could mean a maximum penalty of 30 years in prison and a $50,000 fine. University obtains computer for instructional programs

SIU faculty and students will soon have a new teaching and research assistant in the form of a computer when the installation of the when the installation of the teleprocessing equipment is com-pleted in a few weeks.

The equipment will be used for research and instructional programs and projects. At present only three terminals are in operation at the Academic Computing Services, located in the Neckers Building.

"Six to eight additional terminals will be installed in centrally located spots on campus in two or three weeks," Ed Fisher, assistant director of academic computing said Tuesday.

The terminals are similar to a key-punch machine and about the same size. Each terminal is connected by a telephone with the main computor located in the Wham Building

In order to use the computer, an individual dials a predetermined series of numbers on the phone and the computer becomes available for the desired program.

Thomas Tyler, director of academic computing said earlier, "The eight centrally located terminals will be used primarily for credit instruction programs related to computor processing curricula." Tyler added that the terminals use will eventually apply to say will eventually apply to any curriculum the programer desires.

Students may also use the terminals for simulation-type instructional programs that will support the instruction of the teacher, Tyler said. Students will be teacher, Tyler said. Students will be able to simulate experiments designed in connection with a certain curriculum.

Experiments such as computing genetic problems and figuring percentage discounts for salesmen are examples of simulation type instructional programs, Tyler said.

Instructional programs, Tyler said. The teleprocessing equipment and program is being funded by a $38,432 grant from former President David R. Derge's Academic Excellence Program of 1973. Tyler said the equipment and program will be self supporting after the grant money is exhausted.

Editorial Criticism helpful

The benefits of education are not only for those attending classes but also for those who teach them. In order for a university to work to its maximum, student-teacher relationships must be well-defined and congruent. One of the most effective ways this can be accomplished is through teacher-course evaluations. However, too many university instructors refuse to participate in the evaluation process for many reasons, whether they be trite, fearful reasons, or simply out of pure laziness.

At SIU there is a publication called "The Mirror" which has evaluated teachers and courses for over two years. Unfortunately only about 20 percent of the faculty chose to have themselves and their classes evaluated. But what better way to learn how effective a class is or the strong points and weaknesses of being an instructor than to be critically evaluated by the students enrolled? "The Mirror" questionnaires and the accompanying computer print-outs contain sufficient questions to give the instructor some idea of how and what he is doing. They also provide the student with the chance to express favorable or unfavorable opinions and suggest alternative methods and ideas for the instructor, or the course favorable opinions and suggest alternative methods and ideas for the instructor or the course. Yet still, as each quarter rolls around and the questionnaires are distributed, only some 200 come back to the Mirror office. Some instructors ask their students to write a short critique of the class for their own personal benefit but this is of no use to those students who may be interested in taking the class students who may be interested in taking the class when the results of the class critiques are not published for everyone to see. A booklet like "The Mirror" is published for the advantage of both the student and teacher and it is up to them to use it effectively fectively.

Students can urge their instructors to have their classes evaluated but the thrust of the matter must come for the faculty itself. Most of the instructors who participate in course evaluation are the same ones who have participated since the process began. They are also the instructors with the best evaluations and so have nothing to fear or be embarrassed about. It is obvious that more instructors barrassed about. It is obvious that more instructors need to cease from being so cowardly or "too busy to have the time" and realize the importance and gratification from allowing the student to comment upon his benefits from the class as well as the effec-upon his benefits from the class as well as the effec-tiveness of the instructor himself.

After all, both the instructor and the student are looking for fulfillment in the realm of education and each should try to help the other in reaching this fulfilment. Criticism is a valuable experience, even

Committee is not victory

The recent Board of Trustees action to establish a committee of 20 people to review the controversial report on board and executive officer relationships on the surface appears to be a major victory to those working for the separation of the two SIU campuses.

However, closer examination indicates that the action is merely an attempt by members of the board to pacify those constituents who favor autonomy for the two universities

Trustee Margaret Blackshere attempted to reverse the board's direction from centralizing power in the office of the Chief of Board Staff.
In very specific terms she called for the rejection of the board report and sought to move the board in the direction of granting autonomy to the two campuses. Her efforts, however, were thwarted largely by trustees Ivan Elliot and William Allen who labeled Ms. Blackshere's motion too vague.

After considerable argument Ms. Blackshere's motion was finally worded in manner acceptable to them but in a watered down version that lacked the force of her original motion.

It is discouraging that certain board members continually press for centralization of power especially after hearing a multitude of negative public response to the board's report.

Trustees Elliot and Allen after Thursday's public rustees Elliot and Allen after Thursday's public hearing said they favor autonomy for the two universities although Elliot informed the audience that autonomy can be defined in a variety of ways. This is a clear indication certain board members now intend to maintain the direction of centralization by playing Moscow, it should be heartening to all that the leaders of the two military superpowers now get together regularly to deal with the issues of world peace and stability.

Despite some ups and downs in detente, this third summit meeting signals that better relations have become a normal thing. Watergate or not, the Russians are eager to keep detente on track. And, Watergate or not, Democrats and Republicans alike have given the Nixon policy of detente their bipartisan support.

Understandably, there are voices of concern that the current journey is ill-timed. President Nixon, it is said, may give away something to the Kremlin in or-der to produce concrete agreements and score political points.

political points.

The opposite argument can be made, however. Mr. Nixon sorely needs the support of the conservatives in Congress, who at the moment are riding herd on some aspects of detente. Hence he will have to be tougher with the Soviet leaders, who, to pursue this line of reasoning, may themselves have to give something in order to keep the momentum of detente

In any event, there is no doubt that Congress will In any event, there is no doubt that Congress will scrutinize with a fine tooth comb any agreements reached in the Kremlin — as it should. And, whatever momentary glow Mr. Nixon may command while he is abroad, this will not relieve him of the burdens of the impeachment inquiry at home. No time perhaps is ever ideal for a summit meeting. The important thing, we feel, is that these normal, periodic consultations go on and the channels of communication be kept open at the top.

To those who argue that only the Russians have gained something from detente, we see decided advantages for the West. So far the Soviet Union has not been obstructionist in efforts to bring peace to the Middle East, even though it is piqued by the ascendancy of American diplomacy there. Pressures from the West have forced a more lenient Soviet lews. policy with respect to the emigration of Soviet Jews. Trade and economic activity have increased.

Most importantly, there is mutual agreement to reduce the danger of nuclear war. Strategic arms will in fact be the central topic in the Nixon-Brezhnev talks.

Negotiations are not far enough along to produce new full-fledged agreement on strategic arms control but voices from the Pentagon indicate there is hope of achieving an agreement in principle to limit the deployment of new Soviet missiles with multiple warheads. An underground testban treaty is also expected. Both developments would be encouraging.

In other areas, the two leaders will discuss ways of m orner areas, the two leaders will discuss ways of expanding cooperation. A long-term trade agreement may be signed. Hopefully Mr. Nixon will get some concrete assurances from the Kremlin leaders on a continuing liberalization of their emigration policy so that Congress will not refuse the Soviet Union trade benefits.

What emerges remains to be seen. It may not be splashy. But if the summit helps promote the climate of detente, that will be all to the good.

Run Run runs Kung Fu movie kingdom

HONG KONG (AP)—The silver Rolls-Royce glides down the hill from elegant Repulse Bay and skims across the quiet Sunday morning highway to deliver the Orient's richest movie magnate to work

Run Run Shaw, once an unknown nun nun snaw, once an unknown theater operator in Singapore, now acknowledged king of the Kung Fu epic, will put in a full day as he does every day at the rambling coun-tryside studio which seems a remembrance of Hollywood past.

Here at Shaw Bros. Ltd. are the stables of 110 contract players that would please Louis B. Mayer. Here are 43 acres of make-believe Chinese street scenes with cardboard pagodas and temples that Universal Studios would covet.

And here is Run Run Shaw, the And here is true run run shaw, the shender austere 69-year-old movie car who works his people 70 hours a week, treasures his image as father figure to his stars and is as dominating a legend in his time as Mayer, Goldwyn and Zanuck were years ago.

"When one likes to work he does not feel tired," Shaw said as he settled in behind his desk. "I work every day...Work is the best way to prolong life."

It has also been Shaw's best plan for riding the Kung Fu trend while it is hot.

In the past year Shaw turned out a staggering total of 40 pictures, the majority of them Kung Fu or "action" films aimed at the expert market. He is now working out deals to coproduce films with studios in the United States and other countries. He recently coproduced two films with Hammer studios of Britain, "The Legend of The Seven Golden Vampires" and "Shatter."

"The Chinese movie never was so opular as since I started in Hong (ong," said Shaw, telling in hinese-accented English the story of his success.

Born in Shanghai, Run Run and his brother Runme Shaw showed early interest in films and left for Singapore in 1927 to get into movie distribution. The brothers bought one theater and began expanding. By 1950 they owned 120 theaters throughout the Orient and were moving into other parts of the world. Today they own 141 theaters, including ones in Honolulu, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Anxious to produce his own films, Run Run moved to Hong Kong in 1959, leaving Runme to take care of the business in Singapore.

"In those days the Chinese movie was not much quality wise," Shaw remembers, "and I felt if we could make movies like the movies made make movies like the movies made in countries all over the world we could do just as well...I proved the point that if the quality of the movies is good, people will want to see them."

"I started everything from scratch. I brought technicians from Europe and Japan, and I started a school to train actors...The con-ditions were the same as the old days in Hollywood."

But there is at least one difference: there are no unions. Shaw can work his people as long as they were willing to stay on the set.

He built "dormitories" at the studio where actors could live during shooting. The dormitories have since been expanded to include four apartment houses where some performers and technicians live hermanently. Shaw according to the community of the studies of the permanently. dubbed the He dubbed the studio
"Movietown" and began a hectic production schedule. The first Shaw film was a musical, "Eternal Love."
It is still Run Run's favorite.

The studio turned out several musicals, then switched to films involving swordplay and finally latched onto Kung Fu.

the lake pump station. Fry suggested inviting Gov. Dan exam will be certuied.

John A. Logan College plans to offer a beginning fire-fighting course in the fall for Southern Illinois firemen. The course offers 200 hours of instruction and training.

R. W. Alexander, city Civil Defense director, said Carbondale's 4 firemen will be encouraged to enroll in the courses. The council may pass a resolution requiring all new firemen to take the training, he

"The cinema audiences like the action pictures," said Shaw. "They have seen so many Westerns and other type of action pictures. Kung Fu was a new kind of action picture. The people always like something new."

Chinese audiences loved it. As one Chinese audiences loved it. As one observer of the Hong Kong film industry notes, "In this part of the world it's the visual that really matters, not so much the story line." The popularity in other countries was a surprise.

"I changed the look of the movie business in Hong Kong," said Shaw. But he acknowledges that some dislike the change. He has been criticized for presenting excessive violence and gore. He prefers to call it "action" and says that he uses it only when it's integral to the script.

Shaw concedes that the Kung Fu craze may be waning and he's planning a variety of films—love stories, musicals, comedies and dramas in addition to Kung Fu

Last week it was reported in Hollywood that Shaw has reached agreement with MGM on a joint venture in which Shaw will produce the movie "Taipan" based on the James Clavell novel bought by MGM five years ago. The picture plans initially were scrapped when cost estimates ran to $17.5 million. Shaw assuredly will produce it on a lower budget.

While the film studio has grown while the film studio has grown, the Shaw empire has burgeoned to include real estate holdings, amusement parks and publications including two movie magazines. City Council to pay $5,400 of cost of SIU ambulance

The Carbondale City Council has agreed to submit a budget adjustment July 1 to provide $5,400 toward the purchase of an ambulance for SIU.

plans to lease the ambulance to SIU or $1 per year.

In action Monday night on the Cedar Lake project, the council instructed city Finance Director Paul T. Sorgen to let bids on the Cedar Lake audit required by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. HUD has paid $1,125,000 of its $1,925.00 grant for the lake project. Sorgen says he expects to receive the balance within a month.

Town feels the heat of 'firewomen' issue

GRAFTON (AP)—Some residents of this Mississippi River town are a little hot over the efforts of two women to become firemen. ... uh, firewomen. .. or should it be firepersons?

"If they want to fight, we'll fight," Irs. Lawrence Pohlman, mother of five, says.

She and her neighbor, Mrs. Carol Sue Compton, a mother of six, signed up with the Grafton Volun-teer Fire Department on June 3, after the department called for heip.

Mrs. Compton, 35, and Mrs. Pohlman, 29, were worried about the lack of emergency medical training on the force and thought they might take up some of the slack: "These guys up here in this fire department," Mrs. Pohlman says, "some of them have Red Cross first aid cards and this is it. There's really no medical help in this town."

training as well. "We have to learn how to hold the hose and all this stuff," Mrs. Pohlman says.

Down at the firehouse, Chief Wilford Campbell has some reservations: "Some of the wives have already said that they won't let their husbands come down here if women are allowed into the webstates." volunteer group.

Mrs. Pohlman says if the wives don't like it "let them come in and join us."

ome of the firemen aren't too Some of the firemen aren't too happy either, grumbling about women's lib. "We're bucking the men and we're bucking some prejudiced women," Mrs. Pohlman says. But she points out that a fire victim doesn't much care whether a woman or a man puts out the blaze or treats his burns—just as long as someone does it.

Veterans' funds OK'd by committee

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Appropriations Committee ap-proved without change today a bil to provide emergency funds for 15 to 18 per cent cost-of-living increases for some 2.2 million disabled veterans.

The measure, approved unanimously by the House Monday, would also appropriate funds for a new program to put Veterans Administration representatives on all college campuses where there are 500 or more veterans enrolled under the GI Bill.

500 or more veterans enrolled under the GI Bill.

The cost-of-living increases for 375,000 children and parents as well as the 2.2 billion veterans would be retroactive to May 1. The average increase would be $36.

Meanwhile, in Granite City, a squad of West Coast veterans bound for a July 4 Washington rally were camped Tuesday in Granite City trying to muster support in a fight with the government.

SIU grad to fill new position in city public works

Colleen Ozment, an SIU graduate student in chemistry, has been hired to supervise the Carbondale water and waste water laboratories.

The new position was created by the Department of Public Works to allow James Mayhugh, utility superintendent, more time for managerial duties.

Ozment also will be working on design plans for a central water and waste water lab to be located on South Wall Street.

Mayhugh said he hoped the central lab would be considered for funding in the 1975-76 budget.

U.S. takes charge at Wimbledon

By Will Grimsley AP Special Correspondent

WIMBLEDON, England—Billie Jean King took her first step toward a sixth women's title, and Wimbledon rocked with cheers for an old favorite from Australia Tuesday in the All-England Tennis Championships.
It was another big day for Americans as U.S. women scored heavily, while Jimmy Connors and Arthur Ashe joined teammate Stan Smith as dangerous factors in the men's division.

Among the men, however, there was no salute to match that for 39-year-old Ken Rosewall, who made his debut here as a 17-year-old in 1952, three times in the past two decades battled his way to the final without ever winning and sat

CHICAGO (AP)—Ed Kranepool's first home run of the seas/n, a three-run shot, backed Jerry Koosman's four-hit pitching and helped the New York Mets to a 5-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Tuesday.

Kranepool's homer came with two out in the third inning following a single by Jerry Grote and a walk to Rusty Staub. Victim of the blast was Cubs starter Rick Reuschel, who also was touched for a run in the second inning on successive singles by Ken Boswell, Don Hahn and Ted Martinez.

The Mets also scored in the ninth when Staub doubled off reliever Burthototon, scoring Cleon Jones who had singled.

New football recruits increase newcomer list to 26; many from area

Jim Dickson, who quarterbacked Manasquan, N.J., High School to two consecutive undefeated seasons, is one of six football signings announced by SIU Head Football Coach Doug Weaver.

The six join 20 other incoming fresh men and junior college transfers who previously signed national letters of intent with the Salukis, including 19 student-athletes from central Illinois, southern Illinois and the greater St. Louis area

"We would have to classify this as a "We would have to classify this as a good recruiting year," said Weaver who opens his first season as the Salukis' head coach, Sept. 14 at New Mexico State. "Of course, we won't know how good the year was until we see our oppositior this fall. But, if we have a couple more recruiting years like this one, we will be in business," this one, w Weaver said.

Joining Dickson in signing with the Salukis are Calvin Brigham, a 230-pound offensive guard from Chipola pound offensive guard from Chipola, Fla.; James Carson, a defensive back from Biloxi, Miss.; Vic Major, a 190-pound fullback from Biloxi, Miss.; Dave Corbin, a 190-pound back from Biloxie (Mo.) Junior College and defensive back Wilbur Haney of Zionbenton who was a track star at LincolnLand Community College of Springfield the past two years. Dickson, 6-1, 180, is a running quarterback who averaged 8.3 yards per play last fall as Manasquan ran its two-year mark to 19-0. He was named to all-

In addition, Dickson scored seven touchdowns, kicked 27 extra points and hit 71 of 147 passes for over 1,200 yards and seven touchdowns. An honor student, Dickson was a standout pit-cher, first baseman and second baseman in baseball.

Carson and Major join a line of Biloxi—Gulfport, Miss., area athletes to play for the Salukis. Included in the string are former all-America Lineman Lionel Antoine now with the Chicago Bears and Melvin Moncrief, the Salukis' second-leading ground gainer last fall.

Brigham is the younger brother of former Saluki lineman Ike Brigham. He enrolled at Southern Illinois for the start of winter quarter and participated in spring practice. He is a freshman in

Meriweather practicing with World Games team

SIU center Joe C. Meriweather is currently working out with 14 other U.S. collegiate basketball players in Champaign for the U.S. World Games

The team is preparing for international competition next month in San Juan. Puerto Rico.

One of three centers on the team, Meriweather told SIU Coach Paul Lambert Monday that Coach Gene Bartow is running a double post offense that starts Meriweather and seven-foot Stanford center Rich Kelly. The third center on the team is Washington's Steve Puidakas.

Meriweather said that Bartow and Assistant Coach Arad McCutchan of Evansville, have been starting Indiana's Quinn Buckner and John Lucas of Maryland at the guards.

The team will hold practices all this week and has scheduled a scrimage for Thursday. The team must be cut to 12 players before they depart for an exhibition match in New York against the Yugoslavian national team, the exact dates of which have not been announced. However, the cuts are expected to be made from the forwards and guards.

On the team with Meriweather are forwards Larry Fogel of Canisius, Tom Boswell of South Carolina, Rick Schmidt of Illinois, Eugene Short of Jackson State, Myron Wilkins of Northeast Oklahoma Junior College, Gus Girard of Virginia and prep star Audie Mathews who is headed to the University of Illinois from Bloom High

Guards on the squad include, Buckner, Lucas, Steve Grote of Michigan, Frank Olenyki of Seattle and Luther Burden of Notable U.S. college cage stars who were not present at the workouts were North Carolina State jumping jack forward David Thompson and prepphenom Moses Molone.

Thompson is enrolled in summer school courses at North Carolina State and Malone, the 6-11 center who recently signed a national letter of intent to attend Maryland, reportedly turned down an invitation to join the team.
