Reagan takes North Carolina primary

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Ronald Reagan won North Carolina's Republican presidential primary election Tuesday night, reviving his challenge for the White House with a startling upset over President Ford.

Georgia's Jimmy Carter won handily in the Democratic primary. Reagan's first primary victory after a season of defeats was magnified by the fact that it was unexpected, the comeback he needed to silence suggestions that he quit the campaign.

The former California governor was gaining 52 per cent of the GOP vote, running six percentage points ahead of Ford.

Carter led the Democratic field with 53 per cent, trouncing George C. Wallace to bury any claim that the Alabama governor had left to speak for the South in the presidential campaign.

Reagan was flying from LaCrosse, Wis., to Los Angeles at the hour of his first triumph. An aide in Raleigh said he got word to the candidate, who was delighted.

It was the first time an incumbent president had lost a presidential primary since 1968 when Lyndon B. Johnson was beaten in Wisconsin. Johnson had renounced his candidacy for another term two days before then-Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy defeated him.

With 93 per cent of North Carolina's 2,343 precincts counted, this was the Republican picture:

Reagan 94,824 or 52 per cent.
Ford 83,195 or 46 per cent.
Uncommitted GOP delegates 3,117 or 2 per cent.

That gave Reagan 28 GOP convention delegates, Ford 25, uncommitted one.

In the Democratic primary, the arithmetic was:

Carter 299,460 or 53 per cent.
Wallace 194,838 or 35 per cent.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington was running third, and he had 25,158 or 5 per cent of the vote.

No preference, which means uncommitted delegates, 21,223 or 4 per cent.

Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona 13,340 or 2 per cent.

Former Sen. Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma had 1 per cent; Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, who has dropped out of the campaign, got a scattering of votes.

That gave Carter 35 nominating votes, Wallace 24, Jackson 1, with 1 uncommitted.

Carter, in St. Louis, said he hadn't expected to run that well. Wallace had been a powerful vote-getter in North Carolina in past campaigns.

"I think the results show the people of North Carolina have joined the people of other states in deciding that they want to choose the presidential candidate directly and not let powerful political brokers do it for them," Carter said.

It was his fifth primary victory. Campaigning in New York, Jackson said North Carolina doesn't decide a presidential election and Carter will have to prove himself in the big Northern industrial states that do.

"He's got a long way to go," Jackson said.

Wallace, in Montgomery, Ala., said he will remain in the race and will launch an active campaign this weekend for Wisconsin's April 6 primary.

Brandt plans to limit enrollment at 21,700

By Kathleen Takemoto

President Warren Brandt said Tuesday that he is planning to close off admission to the University after a maximum enrollment figure of 21,700 is reached.

In an address to the approximately 250 persons attending the annual General Faculty Meeting at Davis Auditorium, Brandt said that when the enrollment maximum is reached "we will close the door and not take any more applications."

Herbert Donow, Faculty Senate President, also addressed the meeting. Brandt said that the number of enrollment applications received by SIU thus far is more than the number of applications received at the same time last year.

Earlier, Brandt said the enrollment would be limited by the amount of housing and finances available. He cited a decrease in off-campus and on-campus housing caused by the conversion to other use and the closings of some buildings. "We are pretty close to a crowded situation," he said.

"There is a maximum number of students we can house," he said. "What that maximum is, is difficult to project. If we had all the housing we need, there still would be the problem of finances."

Although SIU-C had an 11 per cent enrollment increase over last year, it did not receive a comparable increase in funds, he said.

Brandt said SIU's budget request for next fiscal year was "cut significantly" by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) in its proposal to the General Assembly. "The governor is in the process of submitting to the legislature one-half of what the board of higher education recommended," he said.

Brandt said the bulk of the budget proposed by the governor is "stringent" and would be "difficult to live with."

He said SIU will be submitting to the legislature a budget which will "parallel pretty much the board of higher education's budget proposal." Brandt told the faculty that the University will argue that it has taken a 46 per cent cutback in General Revenue Funds over the past six years, while primary and secondary education, with enrollment decreases, received a 44 per cent General Revenue Fund increase over the same period.

"It's time the state moved to recognize the effective job SIU has been doing," he said.

An increased commitment to research and service by faculty members will help achieve an improved quality of education at SIU, Brandt said. He said the future of the University relies upon intensified efforts to improve the quality of education at SIU.

Brandt said SIU-C should be an institution with a broad range of graduate programs and a "special commitment to research," although he said that many institutions defined as

Donow: Faculty faces identity crisis

By Kathleen Takemoto
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

In an address at the General Faculty Meeting, Herbert Donow, Faculty Senate president, said SIU faculty members face an "identity crisis."

Donow and President Warren Brandt spoke to approximately 250 faculty members at the meeting Tuesday afternoon in Davis Auditorium.

Donow said the role of faculty members as a resource to the University is in danger of being debased.

"Tenure is no longer as reassuring as it was," Donow said. "Scholars with unpopular views can conceivably be retrenched."

But Donow said the Faculty Senate this year has taken steps to prevent the faculty's role from being diminished. He cited the drawing up of a tenure document, which the senate finished reviewing Tuesday. Discussion regarding amendments to the document will begin next Tuesday, he said. The amended document will be available to all faculty members by early May, he said.

The Faculty Senate has also approved guidelines for increased faculty participation on search committees, Donow said. The guidelines would guard against "trivializing" work done by faculty members on committees, he said.

Donow said the instructor evaluation report adopted by the senate proposes that each department adopt its own procedures for evaluating instructors rather than using a campus-wide evaluation form.

The senate has also conducted a referendum on collective bargaining and has published the results, which show that 45 per cent of the voting faculty favored collective bargaining and 40 per cent opposed it.

He told the faculty that the senate has also established an Undergraduate Teaching and Curriculum Committee to assist the vice president for academic affairs and research.

The senate's Faculty Status and Welfare Committee is working on the expansion of a grievance procedure and development of a new faculty handbook, he said.

Procedures set to avert further food poisoning

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Office of University Housing is in the process of implementing procedures to reduce the possibility of another food poisoning outbreak like the occurrence at Trueblood Hall Feb. 9.

All food handlers will be checked regularly to see if they have the organism. Those who are chronic carriers will be transferred to a non-food area.

Laboratory tests linked the poisoning to the organism staphylococcus aureus type 83-A.

Rinella said all fans will be removed from the food preparation and service areas. "This will eliminate the circulation of a staphylococcal germ, should it exist," Rinella said.

Hand-prepared food of a high protein content will be refrigerated in shallow pans six inches or less in depth and will be placed in refrigerators immediately after preparation, Rinella said.

It was previously reported that food involved in the Feb. 9 outbreak was refrigerated in eight-inch deep pans which did not allow the food to cool rapidly enough, thus providing a warm, moist breeding ground for the organism.

Students living in the on-campus housing have been allowed to pack lunches if their schedules did not permit them to return to the dining halls during mealtime, Rinella said.

The students will no longer be able to prepare their lunches by selecting from a preparation bar, and they will not be able to handle the food, Rinella said.

Fry: Revenue sharing plan may be continued

Tom Chesser
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A five-year federal program that pumped $500,000 a year into street, sewer and sidewalk improvement programs in Carbondale has a good chance of being continued said City Manager Carroll J. Fry said.

The federal government has distributed over $30 billion to state and local governments in the present general revenue sharing plan for capital improvement and community development programs. This five-year program will end in December unless Congress votes to continue or amend the plan Fry said.

Fry made these statements at a news conference Monday following his trip to Washington where he attended a meeting of the National League of Cities which supports the continuation of the revenue sharing plan.

In a recommendation to the City Council Monday night, Fry said it would be unwise and against the city's policy to budget money it isn't sure will be available through a continuation of a revenue sharing plan.

Assistant City Manager Scott Ratter said that if Congress votes to continue or amend a plan giving Carbondale money, the city could amend its 1976-77 fiscal year budget and then channel the money into capital improvement projects.

Ratter warned against the policy of some municipalities to budget anticipated money for required services such as police and fire protection only to discover that the Food service personnel will pack the lunches and have them refrigerated until the students pick them up. A note will be attached to each lunch stating that it should be refrigerated until it is consumed, he said.

Mayonnaise will not be available at the preparation bar because it contains eggs which are highly nutritious, and nutrients are what allows bacteria to thrive, Rinella said.

"These are the precautions we have taken," he said. "We are not really doing anything we could be criticized for except the sack lunch program where we were not reminding the students that the lunches should be kept under refrigeration," he added.

Rinella said that the Campus Housing Activity Fund provides food service for groups that leave the residential areas for activities during the mealtime. In the past, potato salad could be served, but there will be a control on the salad, depending on how soon the salad will be consumed and how it is stored until consumption.

A new state regulation on food service sanitation will go into effect July 1, 1978 requiring all establishments serving food to have a certified manager—one who has completed a course of study on food sanitation and regulations through the department of health.

"The University already has four people qualified," Rinella said.

"All personnel are highly trained and have a master's degree or equivalent in home economics," he said.

"We will have fifteen people complete the course by September 1976," he said.

money is not coming in.

Congressional supporters of a new or amended revenue sharing plan cannot agree on the amount of money that should be appropriated for the plan or just how much control Congress should have over annual appropriations if another five-year plan were to be instituted.

In the present plan the $30 billion was appropriated by Congress to be distributed to state and local governments in annual installments over five years. The money was set aside in a trust fund that allowed the state and local governments to know how much money they would get and they would budget accordingly.

Revenue sharing money is now distributed using a city's or state's population and tax base as a criteria for the amount they are to receive, with the state receiving one third of the money and the municipalities receiving the rest.

A bill pending before the House of Representatives if passed would allow Congress to change the amount of money allotted for a revenue sharing program each year. Fry said members of the National League of Cities voiced strong opposition to the bill.

He said if Congress had to make budget cuts to meet a ceiling, revenue sharing funds would be the first to go.

Fry said President Ford was in favor of the continuation of a revenue sharing program. Fry refused to speculate on the amount of money Congress would appropriate in revenue sharing funds if such a bill is passed.

British won't tolerate intervention in Rhodesia

LONDON (AP)—British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan told visiting Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko on Tuesday that Britain would not stand for Soviet or Cuban intervention in Rhodesia, sources said. Callaghan said that Rhodesia is still legally British territory, and warned that Soviet or Cuban intervention, even indirect, would be considered as an attack against Britain itself, the sources said.

Britain has never recognized Rhodesia's 1965 unilateral declaration of independence. In Salisbury, Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith rejected Britain's latest proposal for a peaceful transfer of political power from Rhodesia's 274,000 whites to the country's 4.7 million blacks. In other African nations, black leaders met to discuss Rhodesia and said it might be time to call for Soviet and Cuban help to overthrow the white minority regime. Callaghan left Gromyko in no doubt that Britain supports U.S. resistance to any new Cuban ventures, the sources said.

Senate offers compromise in restructuring FEC

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate leaders joined in offering a bipartisan compromise Tuesday for restructuring the Federal Election Commission and making other changes in the 1974 campaign finance law. The compromise was fashioned in two days of negotiations after the Senate had reached an impasse on the legislation late last week.

Key powers of the commission expired at midnight Monday, leaving it unable to disburse any more money to help presidential candidates finance their primary campaigns. The Supreme Court had no plans to extend the deadline. At a meeting with GOP leaders, President Ford again urged Congress to pass a bill that would simply restructure the FEC to comply with a Jan. 30 decision of the Supreme Court.

He has recommended all along that consideration of other changes in the 1974 law be deferred until after this year's elections. But the compromise proposal, like the bill on which the Senate had deklacked last week, includes numerous revisions in present law. It is to be taken up Wednesday.

Midnight fire destroys SIU-E dormitory

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill. (AP)—Investigators worked Tuesday to trace the source of a fire which destroyed a two-story, eight-apartment SIU-E dormitory. Flames broke out in Tower Lake II apartments at about midnight. It took firemen three hours to bring the blaze under control.

There were 11 students in the building but all escaped unharmed. Twenty-one other occupants were absent on vacation during a break between quarters. Officials estimated the damage at $175,000. The dormitory opened last September. There was no indication of the fire's cause.

Court Commission asked to discipline judge

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The Illinois Judicial Inquiry Board has asked the Illinois Courts Commission to discipline a Circuit Court judge in Kane County who reportedly sentenced a man to prison during midnight proceedings at the Aurora jail. The board charged Monday that Associate Judge William D. Vanderwater arrested Flor C. Lopez last October and sentenced him to eight months in prison on a theft charge without benefit of a trial.

In the board's official complaint, Vanderwater was accused of willful misconduct in office, conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice and conduct which brought the office into disrepute. The charges stem from an incident in which Lopez allegedly caused a disturbance in an Aurora apartment where he lived previously.

Temporary liquor license opposition voiced by council

By Terri Bradford
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Opposition to granting temporary liquor licenses was expressed by most Carbondale City Council members in an informal meeting Monday.

Richard Crowell, chairman of the Liquor Advisory Board, recommended temporary licenses not be permitted. He said the Liquor Advisory Board studied three guidelines before making its decision regarding issuance of temporary licenses; classification, fees and requirements.

"If temporary liquor licenses are granted, the city will have to utilize home rule powers," said Carbondale City Attorney John Womick.

"I would like to see research done relative to what other communities are doing with the problem," said Councilman Hans Fischer.

Concurring with the recommendation of the Liquor Advisory Board, Councilman Archie Jones said he was not interested in allowing issuance of temporary licenses. Carbondale Mayor Neal Eckert and Councilwoman Helen Westberg expressed similar sentiments.

Councilman Joe Dakin said he thought issuing temporary liquor licenses was a good idea, in cases such as a recent license request by the Special Olympics or an SIU fraternity which annually sells beer and donates proceeds to charities.

"With temporary liquor licenses, you always have to go with the particular zoning criteria," commented Carroll Fry, city manager. "At any rate, we are not able to establish standards in time to consider the temporary license application made by the Special Olympics," he added.

At the Liquor Advisory Board's March 12 meeting, the group agreed that if the Liquor Control Board (composed of City Council members) voted to issue temporary permits, licenses should be divided into classifications of beer only and hard liquor. The board agreed that the fee for a temporary license for beer would cost 50 cents multiplied by the occupancy limit and hard liquor, $1 multiplied by the occupancy limit, with a minimum charge of $50 for either license.

The board also suggested a cash bond totaling three times the license fee be deposited with city officials. If no cleanup charges or other miscellaneous costs resulting from the temporary license were incurred, the bond would be refunded.

Applicants would have to meet code, health and zoning requirements, depending on the location. Applicants would also be required to obtain dram shop insurance and a state liquor license, Womick said.

Council members will vote on issuance of temporary liquor licenses in a formal meeting at 7 p.m. Monday at Council Chambers.

No more driving for officer

Protests rise over policeman's grounding

By Scott G. Bandle
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A Carbondale police officer will not be allowed to drive a city vehicle again because he was involved in three car accidents while on duty and this ruling has touched off protests within the police force.

Tim Moss, 29, a three-year veteran of the Carbondale police force, was permanently grounded Friday by City Manager Carroll Fry. The action was made official in a letter to Police Chief George Kennedy.

Fry said in a news conference that Moss was grounded on the recommendation of the Accident Review Board. The board reported that Moss had three "chargeable" accidents against him in one year. According to Administrative Memorandum 13, three chargeable accidents with city vehicles is enough to permanently ground any city employee.

Kennedy said he has recommended that Moss be assigned to some duty that does not require him to drive, such as training, foot patrol or detective work. Although he called Moss a "good police officer," Kennedy admitted that if there is no available work, Moss could conceivably lose his job.

Moss said he is going to appeal the decision back to the review board. He declined further comment.

The decision to ground Moss has touched off a round of protest within the Carbondale police force, but it is not the punishment that the officers are reacting to. The furor surrounds the method the review board uses to decide if city employees are at fault in accidents.

Mark Berkowitz, detective and president of the Carbondale Police Officers Association (CPOA) said the main things they are protesting is that the board does not have a representative from the police force on it and that there is not an investigative officer involved with the vehicle cases.

"First of all, we agree that there should be an Accident Review Board. We think it is necessary. What we are protesting, however, is that there is nobody on the board with police experience," Berkowitz said.

Scott Ratter, assistant city manager, admitted that nobody on the board has police experience, but he said there is a good reason.

"We feel that if there is a police officer on the board, it will produce a conflict of interest. In essence, a city employe could possibly be judging himself. The board consists of middle-management city employes who do not drive city cars," he explained.

Cooper bids for student president post

By Mike Springston
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Doug Cooper, executive assistant to the student president, became the first student to publicly announce his candidacy for the position of student president in this spring's Student Government elections.

Cooper announced his candidacy Tuesday and said he will stress increased student involvement in affairs outside the University.

"I want students to think of themselves as citizens of the Carbondale community rather than just students," he said.

Running for the vice presidential post with Cooper on the Tea Party ticket is Dave Harden, a student senator and

The board consists of Ratter, Robert Townnie of the economic development department; Bill Moss, city purchasing agent; Elizabeth Leighty, city clerk; and Don Monty, assistant to director of community development.

Ratter said that in reviewing accidents, the board uses police reports. Board members will sometimes ask the person involved to come down and talk to them. He said that in Moss' case, the board deliberated since the end of December when his last accident took place.

"It wasn't a quick decision. We really took our time on it," he said.

Berkowitz insists that a police representative is necessary because a police officer's driving habits are different than an ordinary citizen's, and a representative could bring more insight to the board.

"The investigator does not have to be a member of the force. He could be a county deputy, an SIU cop or a state

County court cases

Intramural ref files battery charges

By Debbie Absher
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

An SIU student who refereed intramural basketball games last semester has filed charges of battery in Jackson County Circuit Court against three players of a losing team who he says assaulted him after he stopped a game.

Anthony Fitzpatrick, 18, Charles Pinkston, 18, and Aaron Harris, 18 all Boomer I residents, are charged with beating up John McCullough, 24, of Cartersville, in the SIU Arena Dec. 10.

Fitzpatrick said he reported the incident and was told the University would handle it. The University told the three they could no longer participate in intramural activities but took no further action, so Fitzpatrick decided to file charges, said Jackson County Assistant State's Atty. John Clemons.

Charges of battery were filed Tuesday in Circuit Court against a 23-year-old Carbondale man who allegedly attacked a University janitress in Parkinson Building Monday morning.

John P. Phillips, No. 109 Carbondale Mobile Home Park, has been charged with attacking Grace Edwards, 62.

Edwards said she was unlocking doors in Parkinson between 7 and 7:30 a.m. Monday when Phillips, an employee of Phillips Lathing Co., asked her to open an attic door in the building. She assumed that he needed something from the room because the Phillips company is doing work in Parkinson, Clemons said.

When they reached the third floor landing Phillips grabbed her around the chest from the back and told her that if she did what he told her to she wouldn't get hurt, Clemons said.

Edwards said she hit Phillips in the face with her keys and broke away. As she ran to the stairs he knocked her down the stairs, but she said she was able to get up and run from the trooper. Just so it is somebody who can look into these cases and decide the facts, not only for cops, but for all city employes," he commented.

"A policeman sometimes drives through parking lots with his lights out, down dark alleys while he is looking at door locks and at high speeds while he is chasing suspects. An officer cannot be expected to drive like a normal citizen at all times," he said.

Ratter, however, disagrees with that statement.

"There's no way I agree with that. The duty of the police is to protect the public, not run over them," he said.

Moss was found chargeable for backing into a basketball pole at the Lewis School, Route 2. He also was involved in a car accident near the Fox Eastgate Theatre and he left a car door open while he was out of the car on Glenview Avenue and the door was hit by another vehicle, Ratter said.

Berkowitz mentioned that there were no injuries in these accidents and the vehicles were able to be driven away. He also said two of these accidents were not Moss' fault.

Fry said that since these are administrative rules, as city manager he can modify them to fit the situation. He said he could possibly modify the rules for Moss, but the police officer would have to show an "attitude change." Fry said Moss has to demonstrate that he can drive.

Berkowitz said the CPOA will try to get Moss involved in a defensive driving course. He also said he and Kennedy were going to go before the board and discuss these problems with them.

The Accident Review Board was started in 1972 by Fry. Ratter said that 75 accidents by city employes have been investigated. Moss is the first city employe grounded on the recommendation of the board.

building, according to Clemons.

Phillips said he was in the building, but said he was in a bad mood and an argument ensued over his request to have the attic door unlocked, Clemons said.

He said he made a remark to the effect that Edwards was a "black bitch" and she then hit him with her keys. He said he held her until she calmed down and then apologized and gave her his name and address, asking that she not report the incident, Clemons said.

He said he followed her to the stairs and she fell down them, Clemons said.

Patrick Conners, 24, address unknown, was charged Tuesday with theft under $150 after two Olivia Newton John concert tickets stolen from a purse were traced to him March 8.

The tickets belonged to Glenda M. Johnson, a University secretary who had had her purse stolen from the Computer Science Department office in Famer Hall, Clemons said.

Conners said he purchased the tickets from someone he did not know, Clemons said.

Patrick Burke, 36, of R.R. 4 Murphysboro, was charged with one count each of battery and assault after allegedly using a flashlight to hit another Murphysboro man and a Jackson County deputy.

Burke called the sheriff's department Monday night and said Donald Badger, also of R.R. 4, shot Burke's dog, Clemons said. Deputy Greg Gillen went to Burke's house and then accompanied him to Badger's house, Clemons said.

Badger allegedly hit Burke in the head with a large flashlight, making a gash requiring seven stitches, Clemons said. Badger then allegedly swung the flashlight at Gillen, hitting him in the face, according to Clemons.

Brandt announces plan for enrollment ceiling

"universities" have very little commitment to research.

Brandt stressed the need to maintain "top quality" in the graduate program. "The fundamental role of graduate education is the creation and dissemination of knowledge," he said.

Brandt also cited a need for improvement in service by faculty members. He defined service as "community-oriented activities where the individual is an agent of the University." He called upon faculty members to "assist the community in approaching problems."

"Many aspects we think of as service are actually teaching activities," Brandt said. However, he said that service should be a supplement, not a substitute for teaching and research.

Brandt said other objectives he sees for the University include winning back the confidence and respect of the public, developing a method of measuring learning, and evaluation of teaching, courses and programs.

"In summary, I think we have a great future," he said. "It is a great challenge to intensify efforts to improve the quality of what we've been doing," he said.

from the southwest section of the city.

Cooper, who became an executive assistant this semester, also said students would benefit if there was more cooperation between University organizations. He said many organizations are concerned only with internal problems when cooperation between groups could help solve difficulties facing all members of society.

Cooper also proposed setting up an internship so that volunteer workers in student government could receive academic credit for the work they do. Cooper said that an internship program would help create more student involvement in student government.

"It seems that for the amount of time people (volunteer workers) put in, there has to be more motivation," Cooper said.

Raise oil prices to inhibit consumption rate

By Pete Gonigam
Student Writer

About 20 years ago a fellow named Carl Banks wrote a story which clearly displayed a fallacy inherent in the "law" of supply and demand. That story today can help us understand how, in a sense, the OPEC nations are helping the Western world by quadrupling oil prices. That story can also help us see how the United States persists in digging its own grave—with a diesel-powered grave digging machine, naturally.

Banks was the script writer for Uncle Scrooge comic books. Scrooge McDuck was Donald Duck's uncle. Scrooge was the world's richest duck, owner of one cubic acre of money in which he delighted in bathing daily and to which he was constantly scheming additions. In this particular episode Donald tricked Scrooge into accepting a quarter for something or other which turned out to be worth several dollars. In a fit of pique, Scrooge, noticing that the quarter had been minted in 1927, bought for one dollar apiece every other quarter minted in 1927 and dumped them all into the middle of the ocean leaving him the owner of the only 1927 quarter left in existence, an item therefore unique and worth far more than the cost of buying and destroying all the rest of the 1927 quarters in the first place. Through an unlikely circumstance Scrooge's quarter was run over by a steamroller leaving Scrooge and the rest of the world with an overwhelming demand for an item of which there was no longer a supply.

Carl Banks, in writing a bit of whimsy for a batch of sticky-fingered kids, stumbled upon a major flaw in the so-called law of supply and demand. That flaw seems to have escaped the most learned economists.

The way the "law" of supply and demand is supposed to work, couched in simple English, is thus: given a fixed quantity of something, the more people want it, the more they'll pay for it; and given a steady level of desire for something, the more there is of it, the less people will pay for it; and the reverse of those two statements.

But there is a hitch in the "law" of supply and demand in which the world, particularly the United States, is strangling when it comes to the matter of non-renewable resources, particularly oil. The law of supply and demand to be universally applicable would require that supply be infinitely expandable. Non-renewable resources are, by definition, finite. All the oil there's ever going to be (for all practical purposes unless we'd care to wait around for a few million years) is in the ground right now. We know where most of it is and we already have plans to pump it out. When it's all used up the demand will still be there, but the oil won't be. No matter how much we're willing to pay for it, all gone means all gone.

Until recently there wasn't any problem. Until recently the demand for products made from non-renewable resources was small enough and the supply of those resources great enough that for all practical purposes the supply COULD be considered infinitely expandable. The primary price determinant for those resources was not so much their scarcity as the cost of finding and digging or pumping them out of the ground. That's not true any more.

Since the end of WW II, demand for non-renewable resources has climbed at Malthusian rates, that is, geometrically. Today, the demand for and consumption of oil is such that the supply will be all used up in about 20 years. When it's gone we are going to be in a hell of a bind. Much of our electric power is oil-derived. Our transportation system depends on oil. Practically every mechanical device more complex than a wrench has plastic components made from oil. The clothes on your back are probably at least partially made from oil.

A couple of years ago the OPEC sheiks caught a glimpse of the ultimate failure of the law of supply and demand and stumbled upon a solution as well. The Arabs figured out that after we'd pumped their countries dry all they'd have left was a bunch of empty wells and some poor goat-grazed land. Reasoning that the supply of oil was, in the long term, scarce they raised the price sharply and have continued to do so since. They'll still run out of oil, but maybe more slowly and with a lot more to show for it when it's gone.

What the Arabs did was to set their prices more or less by the demand for the foreseeable future against the limited oil supply. They assessed demand over the full term until the supply runs out rather than assess the transitory demand based on unlimited supply. It was a novel idea and most countries may not have known what was actually happening, but the funny thing was most countries accepted it. They continued to buy nearly as much oil at the new prices as they had at the old. If you question an economist he'll drag out some obscure jargon about inelasticity of demand but what he really means is the law of supply and demand doesn't always work the way we have been led to believe it does.

"there is a hitch in the 'law' of supply and demand"

While the rest of the world has accepted the price rises, the United States is still striving mightily to regain a fool's paradise of cheap and abundant oil. Following the Arab oil price rise the only substantive legislation passed held "old" domestic oil at the previous give-away prices and held "new" domestic oil to prices somewhat higher, but still lower than world market levels. In the only intelligent action taken, the President clamped a two-dollar-a-barrel surcharge on imported oil to further discourage its use. Not much, but better than what we have today.

This is an election year. The entire country has been whining about the cost of oil. The highly populous Eastern seaboard has been particularly strident since it is more reliant on the expensive imported stuff than the country in general. Putting the two together the President and the Congress in what most observers see as simple attempts to mollify the voters and ensure reelection moved to lower oil prices still further.

Congress, instead of raising prices on "old" domestic oil to discourage consumption, continued price controls. Instead of slapping surcharges on "new" oil or at least leaving the prices alone, the Congress voted to roll them back further below world levels. The President failed to veto this legislation. Then in a further negative measure the President lifted the surcharge on imported oil making it cheaper, too. Whether any of this will advance the short-term goal of reelecting the bunch of them is problematical. But these actions will undoubtedly hinder the long term goal of lessening oil consumption or, more realistically, lessening the rate of increase of oil consumption.

Cheap oil, made so by such ill-advised policy as that in the latest legislation, explains how the EPA can blithely mandate that all the cars in the United States emit less oxides of nitrogen than are produced by cows breaking wind. Cheap oil explains how the American public can afford to continue to purchase and operate automobiles offering miserable gas mileage.

Granted, expensive oil would complicate the recovery of an already weak economy. But countries paying world prices from oil are recovering, one or two at even faster rates than America. Granted, higher oil prices would tend to hit the poor and lower middle income classes the hardest. But there are ways to ameliorate that effect, for example through year-end tax rebates. Granted, higher oil prices would be a highly unpopular move politically. But part of being an elected official requires that official to lead his constituents in appropriate directions, not just follow along behind them.

The day the oil runs out is coming. We can't stop it. We can delay it while we try to figure out what to do when it does come. Each of us can take personal action to reduce oil consumption. Buy a good mileage car. Wear natural fiber clothing. Tell Ronald McDonald to put his plastic burger boxes where the moon doesn't shine. But we must persuade the country to conserve oil collectively, too. We can hunt around for some tough leaders and try to throw the rascals out of office come November. We can deluge with letters the rascals who are re-elected. We can convert our friends and set them to writing letters. We can fear and pray.

Twenty years ago the failure of the law of supply and demand made a very funny comic book. But the same situation developing in real life has added a grimness to that humor today. In 20 more years it won't be very funny at all.

Brown's cynical platform captures voters

By Arthur Hoppe

The landslide election of Gov. Jerry Brown as President in 1976 came as no surprise to his fellow Californians who had long adulated him for his integrity, asceticism, frugality and, above all, his uncanny ability to predict the future.

His fame and popularity spread. At the Democratic Convention that year, he was awarded the nomination by acclamation. "Well," he said in his four-second reluctant acceptance speech, "I guess SOMEBODY has to be President."

WHY WILL YOU LOOK AT THESE GUYS JUST LOVE CHILLIN'. DO ANYTHING FOR A QUOTE-UNQUOTE PRESIDENT CARTER A BIG KEEPOO AND TELL HIM MY NAME, BIG BOY!

BROWN, JERRY, BROWN.

The campaign was no contest. The experts attributed Mr. Brown's astounding appeal to the fact that he was more anti-politics, anti-government, anti-spending and anti-interventionist than the electorate itself. Moreover, his simple slogan not only summed up what he had been telling his California constituents for two years, but it captured the mood of the nation. "Things," it said, "Will Get Worse!"

And, amazingly enough, he was, as always, absolutely right!
Nor was his reputation for honesty tarnished by his historic five-second Inaugural Address. "We certainly have a lot of tremendous problems," he said, "but don't expect the Government to do anything about them."

And—would you believe it?—it didn't!
One reason was that the new President promptly fired every Washington bureaucrat he could and, to represent the diversity of America, replaced them with thousands of bright young attorneys all of whom wore Zapata moustaches and wire-rimmed glasses. These dedicated public servants devoted 18 hours a day to unearthing huge problems and discovering why the Government could do nothing about them.

This, coupled with his life style, endeared the new President to every American. Following his Inauguration, for example, he was driven directly to his 1958 two-door DeSoto where he set up house-keeping in the back seat.

Who will ever forget his B.Y.O.B. pot-luck State dinners, his annual Zen Easter Egg Roll & Natural Food Prayer Breakfasts, his one-second State of the Union address ("Yecccchhh!") or his economic message to Congress which caused the Wall Street Panic of 1977?

Some historians feel his State of the World speech to the U.N. in 1978 was a mistake. He simply stood at the podium holding a sign reading: "The End Is at Hand!"

Unfortunately, this seeming threat caused the nervous Russians to unleash a preemptive nuclear strike. But think of the pride in the hearts of surviving Americans to realize, on emerging from the rubble, that their President had been right again!

"And we sure can't blame him for our troubles," as one put it so well. "He didn't do anything."

Death almost ignored

To the Daily Egyptian:

This in regard to the death of former SIU student Rob McGinley. We would like to say that the article presented in the March 11 Daily Egyptian was incorrect and insufficient in its information about his death. First of all, Rob did not die on Monday, March 8, but on Friday afternoon, March 5. His death occurred behind the beach house where he lived in Boca Raton, Florida.

We don't feel that it's really important to go into great detail about how Rob died, but we think more than six lines should be devoted to his contributions and talents that he gave to the Saluki Swim Team during the 1971-74 seasons. "...At one time one of SIU's most all-around swimmers..." deserves more detail.

This is a fine example of the sort of respect people have for each other in a town like Carbondale where the relationships among people are so vague that even a death becomes a vague happening.

Rhodesian judgment

To the Daily Egyptian:

After the Angolan war, the question of Rhodesia is now becoming the hot issue in the mass media.

It was in 1965, that Ian Smith unilaterally declared independence from Britain. At that time African leaders expressed great concern as they still do. Some severed diplomatic relations with Britain in protest, while others even urged Harold Wilson to use arms to crush the rebellion. I still recall the Prime Minister's warning that "From international scene it is very easy to start a war but very difficult to stop one." In this case, it would seem to me Harold Wilson expected common sense to prevail in Salisbury.

However, in spite of the diplomatic pressure and economic sanctions on Rhodesia, it is obvious that good judgement has not prevailed.

In the light of all these, it beats my imagination, that in a nation long known to be one of the bastions of democracy, conservative opposition in Parliament thinks that Britain, contrary to Mr. Wilson's view should stand by its "Kith and Kin" in support of a white minority regime.

The hour of judgment has come and Mr. Smith will better be advised to start negotiating toward handing power over to the black majority, for he no longer can have his cake and eat it, too.

Tokarski's attack on Carter erroneous

To the Daily Egyptian:

Cathy Tokarski's recent editorial attack on Jimmy Carter was irresponsible and utterly erroneous.

She says Carter has no stands on issues. If I took time to refute this by explaining some of Carter's stands, this letter would exceed space-limits and Tokarski could merely refuse to print it. Two facts: (1) Carter's workers have distributed—in our Student Center—a thirty-five page precis of Carter's stands; (2) "Time" magazine, whose reporters are perhaps as perceptive as Tokarski, says: "Carter does have positions, contrary to widespread belief, and is capable of detailing them at Morphean length if asked." (March 8)

Tokarski claims Carter is a "conservative... white supremacist." As to the first, hear the director of the liberal American Association of University Professors: "The anti-Carter sentiment is the cultural provincialism of a group that finds it hard to relate to someone who is neither a knee-jerk liberal nor an ideologue." As to the latter, Ms. Tokarski evidently does not know that white supremacists did not support integration in the rural South as early as 1954 as Carter did. Were Carter a white supremacist, Andrew Young, a former aide to Martin Luther King, Jr., would never have written a letter to "The Village Voice" endorsing and defending Carter, and Martin Luther King, Sr., would not be supporting Carter now.

Tokarski says Carter vacillates on busing, abortion, and marijuana. I have never heard him address the last, but he has held a very consistent policy on the first two. The trouble is, as "Time" says, his positions are clear but complicated. To the simple-minded, complexity appears as vacillation.

Since Tokarski is editorial page editor, she can write more than she will permit a letter-writer to do. Thus, I cannot go on refuting her. But I have already done enough to keep anyone but self-righteous cynics and pusillanimous partisans from taking her as credible.

Rumors circulate following Kappa incident

To the Daily Egyptian:

After the smoke has cleared from the Kappa's shooting incident, I've noticed a lot of things around SIU.

First, people who knew nothing at all about the facts were talking like they were eyewitnesses. Also, allegations against the men of Kappa Alpha Psi were flying around like bees after honey (Mr. Jones). Finally, there could not have been justice because of the Daily Egyptian's exploitation of the incident. Let me make it perfectly clear, I am not defending the Kappas or Sigmas. I'm just saying that the Kappas have done a few things wrong in the past but that is over. These men have pride and we should respect that pride.

Respect yourselves, check yourselves out, brothers and sisters of SIU.

Zoologist's research aims to lower number of birds hitting windows

By Chris Moenich
Student Writer

An estimated 3.5 million birds are killed each year in collisions with windows. Birds stunned by the impact and fall victim to cats, hawks, and other predators.

Dan Klem, a zoology graduate student, has been studying the bird-and-window impact problem a year, collecting stunned and dead birds. He hopes to eventually devise a system which will prevent the bird's deaths.

Klem said reasons for the increased collisions are rural migration of Americans who build houses with large picture windows, and the increased number of windows in modern architecture.

Birds having excellent eyesight and well-developed brain vision centers may be confused by the transparency and reflectivity of glass, resulting in a collision.

"Birds," Klem said, "are responding to a cue produced by the windows. It is conceivable the animal is fooled by the environmental reflection in the glass."

These factors may add to more bird species extinction, (which has grown to 200 species in the last 300 years), unless the most vulnerable species are identified and precautions taken to mask the windows.

In Carbondale the sharp-skinned hawk and the yellow-billed cuckoo are among the birds prone to collisions with windows.

There are no known reasons why particular birds are subject to collisions but Klem hopes to find out with the aid of Carbondale residents monitoring their homes. Monitoring a home includes delivering both stunned and dead birds to Klem, who identifies the species, conducts autopsies, and nurses unconscious birds back to health.

"Blood clots in the head and neck of major artery ruptures results from rupturing of fewer arteries, and the bird revives through their body's defensive mechanisms."

Klem encourages anyone to deliver birds and observations concerning predators and stunned prey to his Life Science II office, room 345.

Klem hopes to identify the particular species affected by bird-and-window impact, also comparing various species discriminatory abilities. Klem also wants to collect live birds and test their response to laboratory models.

Klem will construct window models and test possible solutions which have already been offered. Among the suggested solutions are windows having hawk silhouettes or eyespots.

Klem hopes to reduce the bird losses saying, "Bird-and-window impact has never been thoroughly researched, so it is an opportunity to take a problem and make a contribution."

Bicentennial musical creates comical Revolutionary War

An original bicentennial musical comedy written by Thomas Hattou associate professor of English, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday in the Cartersville High School's theater.

The presentation, sponsored by the Cartersville Band Boosters Association, is based on the life of George Washington, said Hattou, who also is president of the boosters association.

The musical opens with Washington giving his farewell address, then stepping down to explain how he became the "Father of His Country." The play flashes back to the eve of the Revolutionary War with Martha badgering him to attend a meeting of the PTA (The Patriotic Tea Pitching Association).

The play continues through a meeting of the revolution leaders who discuss such matters as buying a horse for Paul Revere and the design of the new American flag. The first act ends with Washington, who was hoping to get out of being president of the PTA, being forced to assume the generalship of the new Continental Army.

The second act is about Washington's experiences at Valley Forge. His trials include a struggle with the Prussian Baron Von Steubin who wants to teach the soldiers the goose step and a commission from Congress asking that he surrender. The act ends with Washington going out to pray but saying to Alexander Hamilton, "With my luck, God will turn out to be a Tory."

Act Three opens with the end of the war and his return to his Mount Vernon home where he is persuaded to become the nation's first President. The play ends with Washington giving his Farewell Address, the starting point of the play.

The three-hour play has original music written by Hattou's father, the late T.D. Hattou, with special musical arrangements by Carl Behmer, instrumental music teacher at Gorham, Ill. Behmer will conduct the nine-piece pit orchestra during the production.

Proceeds from the musical.

comedy will go to the Unit 5 bands. Hattou said the boosters association has used previous proceeds to buy a tape recording system for the band and to air condition the high school band room. He said no specific project has been decided upon but part of the funds will be used for awards for the band members and entry fees for state musical contests.

The boosters association of the Unit 5 schools includes Cartersville, Cambria and Granville.

The cast of 20 will include Hattou as George Washington; David Gobert, associate professor of foreign languages and literature, as Benjamin Franklin, and Hans Rudnick, associate professor of English, as Baron Von Steubin. Members of the Williamson County Muzzeleders will also be a part of the cast, he said.

The total production is under the direction of Bruce Groll, Cartersville Unit 5 Band Director.

Tickets for the production are $1.50 and are available at the door or from cast members, Hattou said.

Play, discussion scheduled Friday

A full-length play about Cuban-American cigar workers will be presented at 4 p.m. Friday in the Communications Building Theater Basement. An open discussion with the cast and directors will follow the production.

The play, called "A Little Holy Water," is written by Ramon Delgado, graduate student in theater, for his Ph.D. requirements. It is the third play in a series based

Theater students to discuss future plans at meeting

There will be a meeting for all students who are either in the Theater Department or are considering becoming theater majors at 4 p.m. Thursday in the Laboratory Theater, Communications Building.

Joseph Talarowski, department chairman, will discuss the Summer Playhouse auditions, curriculum for fall semester and the implementation of rules and regulations governing the contract between actors and directors.

Everyone with an interest in theater at SIU is urged to attend.

Student station to field queries on Arena policy

Joel Preston, SIU Arena promotion manager, will be the guest of Mark Woolsey on radio station WIDB's "Contact" program. The program will be aired 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Listeners will be able to phone their questions and comments to Preston at 536-2361.

"We are glad to accept this opportunity to explain and help the public to understand what we're really all about," Preston said when asked about the program.

WIDB is heard at 600 AM on campus and 104 FM through the Carbondale cable system.

The production is being sponsored by Playwright's Workshop 511, theater class under the supervision of Christian Moe, professor in the theater department, and is the second in a series of laboratory works-in-progress presentations, Delgado said.

Estabrook, sophomore in cinema and photography; and Frank Ward, freshman in theater.

The first in the series on American history for Delgado's dissertation was "Listen, My Children," based on the life of Paul Revere. The play was produced by Stetson University, Deland, Florida, in November as the university's entry in the American College Theater Festival.

Delgado has also won awards for his plays in eight national play contests. Seven have been published including "Waiting for the Bus" in "Ten Great One Act Plays" and "Once Below A Lighthouse" in the "Best Short Plays of 1972."

The play "A Little Holy Water" will also be presented April 27. The play is free and open to the public.

Library attendant provides personality for check systems

By Devon Nelson
Student Writer

An unidentified student has his books checked by Edith Crowley as he leaves Morris Library. Working at the library for the past 4½ years, Mrs. Crowley plans to continue working after her retirement.

Morris Library has two security systems, one an automatic labor system and the other a little old lady from Vandalya, Mo.

Edith Crowley is the librarian attendant. She sits at a desk at the rear of the circulation desk. Her red and white skirt outfit radiates warmth around the circulation desk.

Edith looks through her white framed glasses to make sure student workers have issued books out correctly. Her smile to exiting visitors is one that a grandmother might give her grandchildren for approval. She also checks to make sure that the card in the book corresponds to that of the book, while the automatic security system nest to her scans for hidden or stolen books.

Edith has been a resident of Carbondale for about 45 years. She has held her present job for approximately 4½ years. Her previous jobs consisted mostly of cooking in the dorms and in various places around campus.

When asked what she plans to do in retirement she quickly laughed and said "rest." Answering with sincerity she said, "I'll rest a while and probably just do small things later on."

Living in Carbondale for so many years, Edith recalls the segregation practices that once existed in Carbondale, but feels that she never met with too much prejudice. According to Edith, Carbondale's prejudices were no different from those of any other small town.

False spring sets blooming records

An outburst of flowerage that followed the hounds of this year's false spring in Southern Illinois has been "almost unbelievable," according to a man whose belief stretches a long way.

"I've never seen anything like it," said Robert Mohlenbrock, 44-year-old chairman of the SIU Botany Department. He's the editor and chief author of the encyclopedia "Illustrated Flora of Illinois," a multi-volume work on every plant that exists in the state.

"The first-flowering dates this year have broken records we've been keeping for more than a quarter of a century. We spotted a cleft phlox in bloom on February 14, and that's unheard of. The earliest we've ever recorded a harbinger-of-spring blossom (Erigenia bulbosa) was February 14. This year we found one on February 9."

Other February record-breakers cited by Mohlenbrock—all within 40 miles of the SIU campus—were liverleaf (Feb. 10) and spring beauty (Feb. 21).

While a frosty March 5 to 7 weekend rusted some blossoms, such as those of cultivated species like magnolias, Mohlenbrock was still notching records on March 8 when red bud trees began to bloom—about a month ahead of time.

Mohlenbrock already has taken students on campus field tours for a class he teaches in plant cultivation.

SIU student chapter wins national broadcasting award

SIU's student chapter of a national society for radio and television broadcasters has won the society's annual award for service.

Alpha Epsilon Rho's "Chapter of the Year" award was presented Saturday night to the 30-member SIU group at the organization's annual convention in the Sheraton Blackstone Hotel in Chicago. The SIU chapter was host for the

He usually doesn't do that until April.

"For the most part, cold weather and frost from now on will only affect flowering for the rest of the year," Mohlenbrock said. "For example, the saucer magnolias probably have bloomed for the last time. It shouldn't hurt the plants and flowers themselves, most wildflowers are pretty hardy."

convention.

Charles Lynch, chairman of the Radio and Television Department at SIU, said the honor goes each year to a chapter that "has done the best job of promoting the society's principles."

He said the SIU chapter members last year sponsored several programs geared to professional broadcasters' interests.

Tenants advised to study contracts

By Ron Morgan
Student Writer

Students who want to be happy with their fall or summer housing should look early and read the housing contract carefully, according to Rick Pere, a student volunteer at the Student Tenant Union.

"So far, the summer housing situation looks pretty good, but if last fall is any indication of what to expect in August and September, students should arrange for fall housing as soon as possible", Pere said.

The Student Tenant Union is a student volunteer organization which offers students advice on housing problems.

Before a housing contract for fall or summer is signed, it should be read carefully, Pere warned.

"Many landlord-tenant disputes arise because the student failed to read the contract and understand it," Pere said.

Contract provisions for pets, overnight guests and return of damage deposits should be checked, Pere said.

Some contract clauses can waive a student's rights under Illinois law, including the right to court proceedings, Pere said.

Two clauses, waiver of tort liability and right of entry, should never be agreed to, Pere said.

The waiver of tort liability states that the landlord is not liable for damages or injuries due to the landlord's neglect, Pere said. The right of entry clause can give the landlord the right to enter the student's premises at any time.

Zoning laws can also be a problem for groups of students who want to rent houses, Pere said.

Students should check with the Carbondale City Code Enforcement Division before renting a house, Pere said, because some parts of Carbondale are zoned so that only one person unrelated to the tenant can live in the same house.

"The most common problem student renters have is with damage deposits not being returned," Pere said.

One way to guard against this problem, Pere said, is to check the apartment over with the landlord and make a list of all damages to the apartment before moving in.

The contract should be checked to make sure no deductions from the damage deposit will be made for normal wear and tear, acts of God and fires not caused by tenant negligence, Pere said.

Students with questions about housing contracts or complaints should call the Student Tenant Union, 536-3393 or 453-5152. Two volunteer workers are needed to work in Student Tenant Union, Pere said, and anyone interested should call as soon as possible.

School press association to meet

Instruction in high school publications, a demonstration of editorial cartooning and awards presentations will highlight the 26th annual Southern Illinois School Press Association (SISPA) spring conference April 3 at SIU.

Sponsored by SISPA and the SIU School of Journalism, the conference will include sessions for yearbook and newspaper staffs.

The yearbook session will feature yearbook planning and quality in yearbook pictures and layout. Newspaper staffs will discuss such topics as news writing, features, editorials, page make-up, sports coverage, columns and financing the paper.

Faculty from the School of Journalism and the Department of Cinema and Photography will lead discussions.

Special guest will be Tom Engelhardt, editorial cartoonist for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Engelhardt will present a slide show about cartoons and demonstrate how he draws political caricatures. The SISPA Adviser of the Year awards will be presented to Sharon Hall of Mount Vernon High School's yearbook, "Vernois," and Sister Regina Siegfried of Waterloo Gibault High School's newspaper, "Revolution."

Hall has sponsored the yearbook for the past six years. She and her student staff have received first or second class ratings from the National School Press Association and Columbia School Press Association since 1970. She is a 1966 graduate of SIU, where she received a bachelor's degree in English.

Sister Regina Siegfried has sponsored the Gibault newspaper for seven years. The newspaper has received SISPA's Blue Banner "Excellence" Award for the past five years. She is an alumna of St. Louis University, where she earned a bachelor's degree in 1966, and the University of Wisconsin, where she obtained a master's degree in 1972.

Other awards to be presented are Golden Dozen yearbooks (the best 12 annuals from SISPA membership); Best Yearbook Photography and Copy (selected from prior yearbook submissions); Blue Banner Newspaper (outstanding newspaper from SISPA membership); and Best Story Contest (selected from prior newspaper submissions).

The conference will run from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the Communications Building.

SIU's membership is composed of high schools in Southern Illinois and nearby areas of Missouri, Kentucky and Indiana.

Gas stove ignites house fire; damage estimated at $4,000

A fire, apparently started by a gas stove, damaged a house at 608 E. Park St. Monday evening, Carbondale fire officials said.

A gas stove that was left on for heat started a fire in the house while the tenant was gone. The blaze was reported at 11 p.m. and six firemen were at the scene until 12:22 a.m. There were no injuries reported.

The house is owned by the Cherry Realty Co. and the damage is estimated to be $4,000. Officials said that the loss of some contents

Officials advise boat owners to register early

U.S. Department of Conservation officials are urging Illinois boat owners to renew their registrations now, before the rush begins.

"Approximately 50,000 boaters didn't respond to the 'notice of renewal' issued several months ago," said Tony Dean, director of the department.

"As the deadline draws closer, we will begin receiving phone calls and letters from some of these persons, urging us to send their registration decal so they may use their boats in July. However, processing the forms takes several weeks, and the registrant runs the risk of delay past the expiration date."

Those applying for boat registration after the June 30 deadline also must remove their numbers, as new numbers are assigned after this date.

Cost of boat registration is $4 for two years.

belonging to the tenant, Gerald Harris, is estimated to be $800.

Fire officials said arson is not suspected.

Thirteen burglaries reported after break

Thirteen burglaries have been reported to the Carbondale Police Department since Sunday, Sgt. Larry Hill, public relations officer, said Tuesday.

Hill said eight of the burglaries occurred during the spring break. The exact times of the thefts are unknown. The burglaries reported were:

William Fuller, of Lewis Park Apartments, 800 E. Grand Ave., reported his apartment was entered and a color television, calculator and cash were taken. The exact amount of cash stolen is unknown.

Mark Weber, 708 W. Mill St., reported stereo equipment valued at $570 was stolen from his apartment.

Andrew Roman, 1101 S. Wall St., reported that $1,600 worth of records and stereo equipment were taken from his residence.

Scott Gelman, James Ekonomore and Jules Weinstein, all of Lewis Park Apartments, reported their apartments were entered, and many items were taken. The total loss is unknown.

James Carlson and Carl Floren, 1101 S. Wall St. number 216, reported that their residence was entered and $2,765 worth of stereo equipment and other articles were taken.

Bradley Warren of Carbondale reported that his car was broken into and a tape player and tapes worth $400 were taken.

Daniel Osborne and Timothy Owens, 1101 S. Wall St. number 460, reported $300 worth of stereo equipment was taken from their residence.

Rodney White, 500 E. College St., reported that a television and stereo worth $250 was taken from their residence.

Sgt. Hill said these burglaries are currently under investigation. There are no suspects reported.

Harry Schulz, 700 Skyline Dr., reported that his truck was broken into Sunday evening and a microphone and deck mount were taken. The amount of the loss is unknown.

James West of West Bus Service, Rt. 7, reported six buses were burglarized and several fire extinguishers taken. The amount of the loss is unknown.

Kermit Longley of Calhoun Valley Apartments reported that his car was broken into and a $70 tape player taken.

William Hunter, of Glenview reported his car was broken into Sunday night and $220 citizens band radio was taken while at the Holiday Inn, 800 E. Main St.

Workshop explores death concepts

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A weekly workshop on death will begin March 25, said Sharon coordinator of human life styling. Yeargin explained the workshop was developed because death, as a part of life, requires thorough exploration and awareness.

The workshop is sponsored by the Prevention and Health Maintenance Department at the Student Health Program and is being lead by Yeargin and Dave Dix, graduate student in community development. "Death is as much a part of our individual histories and personalities as the influences of our parents, our cultural settings and our economic status," Dix said.

"The art of living depends on the balancing of the life and death forces that exist within us, thus dissolving the fear of death in order to experience the realities of life and death," he said.

The workshop consists of eight two-hour discussions which will provide the atmosphere to support the intellectual and emotional exploration of death and death-related activities in our culture, Dix said.

The first organizational meeting will be held in the prevention program conference room at 112 Small Group Housing.

Members of the groups will aid in deciding which topics will be discussed. Other topics planned for discussion are fantasy explorations, how, when and where will you die?; values centered on the meaning of dying, "good" and "bad" deaths; suicide and euthanasia; murder, the fear of violent death and the desire to kill; accidental death, the capriciousness of existence; survivors, how will my death affect others?; afterdeath; the grand myths and rituals of death; and a wrap-up discussion.

"In most cultures, the accumulation of time means death," Dix said. For humans, the death process begins in the mid twenties and continues for about fifty years, he added.

"Two-thirds of our life activities are carried out during the process of deterioration, yet dying and death are hidden from people, glossed over with complex myths and means of protection," he said.

For example, in a recent poll of physicians, 84 per cent said they prefer not to tell a terminally ill patient that he is dying, Dix explained.

In our culture, fear of death should be transformed into an awareness of death, Yeargin said. "A person must be aware of his own concept of death to be aware of the reality of death in one's own life, which in turn, has incredible impact on how one lives his life."

Dix said, "Our culture focuses on the defeat of death in the form of heroism and on life after death, rather than focusing on the reality of death as an aspect of living."

"There really isn't all the time in the world," she added, "to realize why you are living."

Persons interested in attending the workshop should call Yeargin or Dix at 536-7702 to sign up for the first meeting.

Job hunting workshop to be held in April

The third "Slavery, Fishing and Parachutes" workshop will be held from 8:45 a.m. to 4:15 p.m. April 3 in the family living lounge of the Home Economics Building.

The workshop, conducted by the Career Planning and Placement Center (CPPC), is aimed at introducing students to an active and creative approach to job hunting.

Gordon Plumb, career counselor at CPPC, said the workshop is designed to help students learn what they want to do and where. Through various exercises students will also learn how to go about accomplishing these career goals, Plumb said.

The workshop also offers an assertiveness training session to help students prepare for interviewing. Career counselors will be at the workshop to help students with problems concerning writing resumes and cover letters.

Plumb said students who have participated in the previous workshops have said the workshops have been helpful to them. One participant said, "My image of career placement was changed from an organization of paper shufflers, typists and impersonal people to a dynamic, helpful, creative and personable organization."

Plumb said students planning to attend the workshop should register either by signing up at the CPPC office, Woody Hall 202-B or by phoning 536-2096. Students should sign up early because limited space is available, Plumb said.

The workshop is open to seniors, graduate students and those anticipating job hunting in the summer or fall.

High school students offered summer theater workshop

High school juniors and seniors in erested in the theater—specifically music and comedy—have an opportunity to find out all about it at a pre-college workshop in American musical comedy this summer at SIU.

SIU's six-week workshop, co-sponsored by the School of Music and the Department of Theater, is scheduled for June 19 through July 11.

Individual attention will be given to students in all phases of musical comedy, and classes in acting, solo and choral voice lessons, and dance will be taught by 10 SIU faculty members and graduate assistants. At the end of the workshop, students will combine scenes from a variety of musical comedies for a public performance.

Students who enter the University later will get academic work experience credit for the workshop. SIU's College of Communications and Fine Arts will award two scholarships to the top workshop students.

Room and board costs for the workshop will be $360. Students from nearby high schools may commute for $60 each.

More information is available from Alfreds Straumannis, theater workshop coordinator in the Department of Theater.

A theater workshop has been held at the University since 1957.

SIU ranked second in total crime reported to the state by university security forces in 1974, said Gerald Dan Lane, administrative assistant of security police. The University of Illinois at Champaign-Urbana reported the highest number of criminal incidents during the same year.

Statistics included all reported criminal activity and certain driving violations such as reckless driving and driving while intoxicated.

Lane said the figures do not necessarily mean that SIU has a higher crime rate than other universities in the state. They could reflect more accurate record keeping.

The security office recently released an annual report that indexes a criminal non-criminal-of-fenses reported to the security police during 1974 and 1975. The report indicates no major increase occurred in crime during the two-year period.

The most frequently reported crime was theft of items valued at under $150.

"An awful lot of books, wallets, auto stereos and CB radios were stolen," Lane said. He added, that bicycle thefts account for the greatest per cent of financial loss in this category. The total value of bicycles reported stolen in 1975 was $26,011.

Crimes against persons, a broad category which includes murder, battery, assault, rape and other sex offenses, remained relatively constant. About 100 incidents occurred each year.

Ken Kulman, an instructor of sociology, explained that people are less likely to report crimes of personal violence than property related crimes. Insurance companies often insist that police be informed of thefts before the company will pay claims. No such pressure is applied to the victims of crimes of personal violence. The social stigma attached to some crimes such as rape also deter victims from reporting the crimes.

Eight forcible rapes were reported to the security police in 1974. In 1975 there were only two forcible rapes reported. Kulman said this could indicate that more rape victims are seeking assistance from private agencies like Rape Action rather than going to the police.

Crime data can be very misleading, Kulman indicated. "Almost everything we have as data is incorrect." He added that the technique of listing reported incidents used in compiling the security office report is one of the best indicators of crime.

Kulman said that an increase in crime is not necessarily a bad sign. "It may not be an indication that crime is going up, but that more people are reporting it."

Program encourages population research

Campus activities relating to population, sex education, availability of family planning information, teenage sexuality, the status of women and related issues are being supported by the Campus Action Program (CAP) of the Population Institute in Washington, D.C.

The program suggests activities for students, provides planning assistance, resource materials, and in some cases, funds to cover project expenses. CAP includes projects aimed at population awareness and policy change in the campus and community level.

CAP deals with a broad range of issues including the interrelationships between population, food and the environment, development, pronatalism, sex education and counseling services, consumption of resources, life styles, and the status of women and fertility. The program also encourages students to develop new project topics and strategies.

Special consideration will be given to funding requests from students involved in action projects for college credit through independent study courses, since such students will have more time to devote to their projects. However, all funding requests will be considered.

Students planning to do action projects for college credit should develop project outlines and arrange for credit.

Interested faculty may participate in CAP as faculty liaisons, helping publicize the program, giving strategy assistance, and guiding students toward obtaining credit for action projects.

A brochure describing CAP is available from the Youth and Student Division, Population Institute, 110 Maryland Avenue, NE Washington, D.C. 20002.

Peer group leaders needed to orientate new students

Persons interested in helping new students become familiar with the University and its functions should become peer group leaders, said Jenny Cernosa, graduate assistant for new student orientation.

Applications are available in the Student Activities Office, Student Center. The application deadline is April 9.

Cernosa recommends attendance at one of three organizational meetings for persons who think they are interested in being a peer group leader, but attendance is not mandatory. The meetings are designed to introduce volunteers to the philosophy and responsibilities involved in serving as a peer group leader.

The meetings are scheduled for April 6 at 6:30 p.m. in the Westmore Room of Trueblood Hall at University Park, April 7 at 6:30 p.m. in dining room five of Lentz Hall at Thompson Point and April 8 at 4 p.m. in Student Center Activity Room B.

Members of the New Student Orientation Committee and the staff of the Student Activities Office will screen applicants.

Peer group leaders work with 20 to 60 new and transfer students each semester, Cernosa said.

Not only are the students welcomed who would like to be leaders, but the meetings are also for students who want to comment on the program and its effectiveness, Cernosa added.

Hospital art begins Sunday

In an effort to brighten the environment at Doctors Memorial Hospital, George Maroney, hospital administrator, announced that art shows in the hospital's main lobby will begin Sunday.

Maroney said the displays will consist of local artist's works and each exhibit will run approximately four weeks. The first exhibit will be by two SIU students majoring in art.

Jan Martins will display her pencil drawings involving people, and palces in Carbondale. Ken Segan plans to present his drawings and printmaking.

The art work will be displayed during normal hospital visiting hours. Any local artist interested in displaying their works may contact the administrators office at Doctors Memorial Hospital, Maroney said.

Dorm residents read toilets for inclement weather signs

By Jennifer Strohl
Student Writer

Students who live in SIU's high rise dorms begin to get nervous when the water starts sloshing around in the toilet bowl. The toilet waves begin when high winds outside start to rock the 17-story buildings, the students believe.

Now that Southern Illinois' tornado season has begun, the toilets may be sloshing more frequently. Ray Schlager, Housing Safety Officer, says, "The buildings are engineered to sway, but changes in atmospheric pressure could cause the water to slosh."

Schlager, who has been safety officer at SIU for 15 years, said, "The buildings are structurally safe from tornadoes. The inherent danger is the large amount of glass, which can at the same time be a blessing. During a tornado an extreme amount of pressure is created and the windows will pop out to equalize that pressure."

A federal law requires that residence halls have windowless, non-lead beating walls to serve as safety shelters. The large quantities of glass and the wind tunnel effect created during wind storms has ruled out the hallways as being safety shelters.

Last spring, during civil defense alerts, residents were instructed to evacuate to the basement.

"In the concrete reinforced buildings we have, the bathrooms are as safe as the basement and much more convenient," Schlager said.

"The functions of the basement limit the space available—800 residents can't fit. At Thompson Point the windows in the basements create safety problems," Schlager added.

Schlager said, "If you are near the basement during a civil defense alert go there. However, if you are on your floor, take shelter in the bathroom or the stairwells."

"One of the most important things is to stay away from glass,"

Schlager warned.

The bathrooms are advantageous as safety shelters because of their convenience and also students do not have to leave their rooms. This may aid in cutting down the theft and vandalism which is always a problem in emergency situations.

"If you have time, flip on your radio and turn it up before entering the bathroom, or take a portable radio with you to keep informed as to the status of the alert," Schlager said.

Local Jaycees join statewide jelly sale to aid handicapped

The Carbondale and Murphysboro chapters of the Illinois Jaycees will be selling "purple energy" this weekend to aid in the creation of a state children's camp for the handicapped.

A statewide Jaycees grape jelly sale is planned for Friday, Saturday & Sunday. Ten ounce jars of grape jelly will be sold door-to-door and at various business locations in Carbondale and Murphysboro for a $1 donation.

The Rev. William D. Minor of the Carbondale Jaycees said 55 cents of every dollar will go toward the creation of a state children's camp for the handicapped. Minor said additional profits will be used for other Jaycees-supported programs such as the Girl and Boy Scouts and an annual junior sports program sponsored statewide by the Jaycees.

Minor said this is the third year the sale has been held. He said the first two sales were so successful in Carbondale and Murphysboro that the local chapters have set their sales goals even higher this year. The Carbondale chapter hopes to sell 2,000 jars of jelly this year with the statewide goal set at 100,000 jars.

East Campus residents interested in joining a peer-led, sex role consciousness-raising group should meet at the Westmore Room in Trueblood Hall between 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. Thursday. Groups are being formed for men and women.

Mike Antoline, supervisor of van transportation, is seeking ideas from handicapped students regarding recreational needs which would require transportation. Antoline can be contacted at 453-2004.

Amtrak Rail Pass available

The Amtrak USA Rail Pass is now available to citizens of the United States, Mexico and Canada through May 15. It is good for travel anywhere in the Amtrak rail passenger system. The passes are good for unlimited coach travel on all Amtrak trains except Metroliners. They come in three types: $150 for 14 days; $200 for 21 days; and $250 for 30 days. Children aged 2 through 11 pay half the adult fare. Travel must begin within 15 days of purchase. Pass holders may upgrade any segments of their trips by paying the difference between regular coach fare and the desired Metroliner of first-class service. The passes may be purchased at any Amtrak station or ticket office or, vouchers, which may be exchanged for a pass, can be purchased through authorized Amtrak travel agents. Before each trip, pass holders must obtain a ticket at an Amtrak ticket office. Reservations are required for all reserved trains, and may not be made prior to purchase of the pass. YANKEE STADIUM OPENS The New York Yankees return to refurbished Yankee Stadium this year and will play 52 home games at night.

USSR lectureships offered for faculty members next year

Full-time faculty members may apply for lectureships in the Soviet Union under the 1976-77 Fulbright-Hays exchange program.

The Council for International Exchange of Scholars has announced at least 12 lectureships will be offered. The Soviet Ministry of Higher and Specialized Secondary Education has openings based on requests from universities and institutes under the ministry's jurisdiction. Inquiries will be welcomed from scholars whose fields are not listed.

Application forms and additional information may be obtained by writing the Council for International Exchange of Scholars.

Interested persons may contact Melinda Ison, International Student and Faculty Affairs, Woody Hall C-110.

Eligibility requirements include U.S. citizenship and college or university teaching experience with preference usually given to senior scholars. Soviet institutions do not require fluency in Russian; when necessary, translators are provided.

However, grantees are encouraged to acquire as much language competence as possible.

The duration of the lectureships is one or both of the semesters at Soviet universities (September-January, February-June), except where otherwise indicated. The Department of State will issue an award based on the grantee's salary at the time of application, but not in excess of $1,000 per month. The Soviet government provides an allowance of 240 rubles per month plus housing. Economy class air travel is provided for the grantee but not for the dependents.

Following is a list of institutions and the fields from which 12 appointments will be made. Azerbaijan State Pedagogical Inst., Baku, theory of semi-conductors; Byelorussian Polytechnic Institute, Minsk, corrosion of metals, methods of measuring technological processes, mechanical properties of metals; Georgian Polytechnic Institute, Tbilisi, theory of mechanisms and machines; State University of Tbilisi, nuclear reactions and structure, plant physiology, theoretical mathematics; Vilnius Engineering & Construction Institute, mathematical methods applied to mechanical problems; Electro-Technical Institute, Leningrad, solid state physics, theory of automation; Leningrad shipbuilding Institute, fluid mechanics; Leningrad State University, movement control mechanism and measurement of electrical activity of the brain cells, colloids and surface chemistry, atmospheric physics; Moscow Institute of Civil Engineering, The Institute requests a civil engineer specialized in multifloored buildings; Moscow State University, physical and/or inorganic chemistry, especially colloid and radio chemistry, physical metallurgy, especially behavior of solids, American history, American literature, theoretical linguistics, mathematical statistics, harmonic analyses and theory of trigonometric numbers, special questions of solid states, computers and programming, theory of resolution of hard, deviant bodies; Joint Faculty Lab of Statistical Methods, problems of theoretical statistics; Museum of Anthropology, methods of making plastic casts; State University of Novosibirsk (one month lectureships, senior scholars only), hydrodynamic stability of atmospheric processes and problems of numerical weather prognosis, mathematical modeling of ocean dynamics, numerical weather prognosis, mathematical modeling of ocean dynamics, numerical modeling of atmosphere, theory of algorithmic recursive functions, plasma physics; State University of Kiev, physics and chemistry of solid state surfaces, theoretical linguistics, especially Indo-European, industrial psychology, cybernetics; polytechnic Institute of Kiev, Electrical engineering, especially circuit theory, solid state physics; Sevastopol Shipbuilding Institute, electrical engineering, especially automated network design and system theory.

The application deadline is April 15. Application forms may be obtained from Georgene B. Lovecky, executive associate, Council for International Exchange of Scholars, Eleven Dupont Circle, Suite 300, Washington, D.C. 20036 (Telephone: 202 833-4987).

Agriculture fraternity to initiate new members

Nineteen out of a thousand students in the School of Agriculture have been chosen to join the Alpha Zeta national agriculture honorary fraternity.

A formal initiation will be held at 5 p.m. Wednesday in the Agriculture Building Seminar Room.

A 3.25 grade point average and at least second semester sophomore standing are required for membership. "This is the largest pledge class in a long time," said Randy Wall, pledge guide.

"Probably less than ten per cent of the agriculture school are eligible for initiation," Wall said.

The students who will be initiated are:

Rejuvenated Buckner leads Hoosiers

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Quinn Buckner, Indiana's team captain and globe-trotting All-Big Ten guard, slipped into near-obscure this season, possible because of a costly dalliance with junk food.

Buckner, a 6-foot-3 strongman who gave up a starting job on the Indiana football team, has been the Hoosiers' undisputed floor leader in basketball for four years.

Buckner, who hails from Phoenix, Ill., south of Chicago, earned first-team All-Conference and honorable mention All-American honors last year, but midway in this season he went into a terrible slump and was benched for the first time in his career.

His stamina was poor, his shooting was even worse, he made silly errors and committed unnecessary fouls.

He was completely ignored in All-Big Ten voting this year, even though the top-ranked Hoosiers won their fourth straight conference title, and made honorable mention All-America again mostly on reputation of past glories.

At first, Coach Bobby Knight and Buckner himself were baffled. But there had to be a reason. "I wasn't eating the right foods," the 22-year-old senior finally concluded.

Buckner, as many seniors do, moved into his own apartment this year. "I was eating hamburgers and french fries and not getting the vegetables and vitamins you need," Buckner said.

Because of that experience, Knight, College Basketball's Coach of the Year, decreed that all players living in apartments must eat in a dormitory cafeteria.

"We couldn't put a finger on it, but I think that had as much to do with it as anything else," Buckner said. "We get a pretty balanced meal. I feel real good now."

Buckner, captain of the U.S. team in the World University Games in 1973 and a member of two All-Star teams that toured China and Russia, found that when his diet improved, so did his game.

Buckner, never a prolific scorer but relying on All-American teammates Scott May and Kent Benson for the Hoosier firepower, found that with a return to proper eating habits he was able to do what he has done best all along—pass, steal, assist, defend and make life miserable for Indiana's opponents.

How about UCLA, Indiana's foe in the NCAA semifinals Saturday and an 84-64 loser to the Hoosiers in their season-opener?

"I really don't know about that 20 points," Buckner said. "I'm sure it'll be a lot closer than that. I'd like to think we can win, but I'm sure they think the same way. We'll just have to find out."

Players continue negotiations over baseball reserve clause

By Hal Bock
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Negotiations resume Wednesday in baseball's continuing labor impasse with time no longer a major factor in talks between the Player Relations Committee and the Major League Players Association.

"In a sense, yes, the pressure of time is off," Marvin Miller, executive director of the union, said Tuesday.

When Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered spring training camps opened last week, ending a 17-day shutdown, he insured the orderly start of the regular season and eased the calendar pressure on the two sides.

The next real deadline is October when some 160 unsigned major league players will become free agents under terms of the decision by an arbitrator which was upheld by two federal courts.

In that decision, players who perform for one season without signing a contract were declared free agents at the conclusion of that season. Pitchers Andy Messersmith and Dave McNally were the test cases.

Golfers rained out in 'Bama

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The SIU golf team was rained out at the Alabama Invitational Golf Tournament in Birmingham when almost nine inches of rain was dumped on the course.

Instead, the golfers went to Magnolia Country Club in Hattiesburg, Miss., where the Salukis took on Southern Mississippi in a four-round exhibition match. SIU won that match, which was played on Mississippi's home course, 458-459.

The golf played there will help to qualify the five lowest scoring Salukis eligible for the Missouri Valley Conference Tournament in May.

SIU's Jerry Tucker shot 303 for the lowest total, with another Saluki, Jim Brown, one stroke behind. Tucker and Brown had the lowest first round score with identical scores of 73 on the 7,000-yard PGA course. The rest of SIU's top five were Bob Tierney, Walt Siemsgluz, and Mark Durham. Tierney and Siemsgluz both shot 79, while Durham totaled 313.

"I'm well satisfied with the trip," SIU Coach Lynn Holder said, "but I do regret not playing the tournament."

"The Alabama tournament is one of the most prestigious golf tournaments in the country."

Another tournament has been cancelled also. This was to be the Mid-South Classic, scheduled for April 3 and 4 in Clarksville, Tenn., so the Saluki golfers will be idle until the University of Illinois Invitational Tournament, April 8 and 9 in Champaign.

"We have one of the best schedules in the U.S.," Holder said, "and the team has the potential to be as good as they want to be."

Loss evens rugby team's season record

The SIU Rugby Club was blown out in the second half Saturday as they lost to Ft. Campbell Army Base 16-6. The Rugby Club's season record is now 1-1.

Ft. Campbell controlled the pace of the game and constantly kept the ball away from SIU. Fullback Jim Elderton got all six SIU's points on two first half field goals, which tied the score at 6-6 at halftime.

But in the second half, Ft. Campbell bombarded the SIU defense with 10 points to end the game.

"We played bad for this time of the season," said SIU coach Tommy Skora. "But Ft. Campbell was a more experienced club. Spring break also hurt us in getting a lot of players for the game."

The SIU ruggers travel to Evansville for a Saturday game.

Iranians to help Soccer Club

With foreign aid from Iranian Babak Bazargan and Mansour Alipoor, the SIU Soccer Club hopes to improve on last fall's 3-4-1 record, as they open the spring season against Southeast Missouri State.

The game is at 2 p.m. Saturday March 27 in Cape Girardeau, Mo.

These players are new acquisitions of the team which otherwise is lacking in big stars this

Ace in the hole

Clifford Burger, 55, chairman of accountability at SIU, carded the first hole-in-one of his career Sunday afternoon at the Jackson County Country Club course.

With Willis Malone, SIU trustee and Andy Vaughan, a professor in health education looking on, Burger aceed the par 3, 175-yard fourth hole with a six wood.

Burger, who has been playing golf for 45 years, finished the round with a 78.

Management Opportunities

If you don't succeed with us, it won't be for lack of opportunity!

That's right! But success of any kind has certain common denominators: commitment to a standard; a strong desire to be first in whatever is attempted; and an understanding that reward and recognition come only through hard work and a will to win.

At Long John Silver's, we know that these are the principal ingredients of our success. With over 500 restaurants coast-to-coast, and new units opening at a rate of nearly one a day, we can support this belief.

What about you? Can you look forward to opportunities that match your abilities and ambitions? If not, you should consider a career in food-service management with a company where the tradition is advancement through achievement. If you're a spring or summer graduate and want to know more, visit your placement office or call toll-free:

Pirates team to beat in NL East

This is the first in a series of previews of National League teams. Next, a look at the Philadelphia Phillies.

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—The defending champion Pittsburgh Pirates must be listed as the team to beat in the National League Eastern Division, with an awesome batting attack, and a deep, consistent pitching staff overcoming a defense that leaves something to be desired.

Manager Danny Murtaugh's Pirates have won the East five of the last six years, but in 1976 will have to contend with a strong challenge from the young and improving Philadelphia Phillies.

The Pirates made only one major move in the off season, trading cantankerous Doc Ellis, and Ken Brett, a pair of good pitchers, and rookie second baseman Willie Randolph to the New York Yankees for pitcher George "Doc" Medich.

The Pirates will tell you that Ellis' continuing controversial mood hurt the club morale, that Brett is susceptible to a chronic sore arm, and Randolph was expendable bench strength.

Yet, Brett won nine and Ellis eight for 17 victories, while Medich was a 16-16 pitcher for the Yankees. Both Ellis and Brett have the capability to win combined more games than Medich. And Randolph was a good defensive replacement at several infield positions.

Murtaugh doesn't seem to be concerned. He views Medich as a physically sound right-hander who, with the Pirates' artillery to back him up, can produce 20 victories or more. The Pirates do have depth, with seven pitchers available as starters.

Jerry Reuss, 18-11, with a 2.54 ERA is the ace of the staff, and appears to be just reaching his peak. He, along with young John Candalaria (7-1) and Jim Rooker (13-11) give the Pirates three left-handed starters. Larry Demery (7-5) Bruce Kison (12-11) Medich, and Bob Moos, who appears to have fully recovered from his arm problems, are the right-handers available.

In the bullpen, Murtaugh still has old reliable Dave Giusti, who since joining the team in 1970 has 127 saves, and has been directly involved with either a win or save in 31 per cent of the Pirates' victories. While Giusti handles the right-hand relief chores, Murtagh has Ramon Hernandez ready for left-hand help.

Willie Stargell and Dave Parker are the big guns in the Pirates' power game. Stargell turned 35 in March, but could be physically stronger than at any time in recent seasons. The husky first baseman hit 22 home runs and batted in 90 runs last season despite mission 18 games because of fractured ribs.

Parker, only 24, could be the game's new slugging star. He played as a regular for the first time last season and led the league in slugging percentage .541, tied for second in triples, 10, and fifth in both home runs, 25, and RBIs, 101. He hit .308. He's improved defensively and has developed a strong throwing arm.

Then, the Pirates have such hitters as Zisk, .280, Al Oliver, .280, Rennie Stennett, .266, and Sanguillen .328. The only weak sticks in the starting lineup are the shortstops, either Frank Taveras .212 or Mario Mendoza .180. Third baseman Rich Hebner hit only .246 last year in an off season, but has a .281 lifetime average.

The Pirates' big problems is on defense. Their infield at times is erratic with the exception of the talented Stennett at second base. In winning five division titles in the last six years, Pittsburgh pitching and power has been able to overcome the loose fielding. The Pirates have to be the favorites in the East, but in this bicentennial year, Philadelphia is coming.

Robinson, Cuellar aging

Baltimore depending on oldtimers

This is the first in a series of previews of American League teams. Next, a look at the defending champion Boston Red Sox.

MIAMI (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles are starting to show signs of age, but some of the oldtimers will have to produce during the 1976 baseball season if the club is to remain a threat in the American League East.

"We have the personnel to be in the race all the way, if a couple of our guys bounce back," Manager Earl Weaver said as the stand-pat Orioles opened training camp.

"But Boston could be tough," he conceded, "if their players duplicate what they did last year, or come close to it."

Boston won the division title Senior thinedad given award

The Leland P. Lingle Memorial Honor Award for 1976 has been given to Ed Wardzala, a senior on SIU's track team.

The award, in memory of Doc Lingle, a former SIU track coach for 36 years, is given annually on the basis of scholarship and leadership by the Department of Physical Education for Men.

This is Wardzala's fourth season as a Saluki trackster. He was a letterman the first three and is expected to be one this year also.

Wardzala's other activities include being chairman of the Physical Education for Men Undergraduate Advisement Council and vice president of the Physical Majors Club.

1975, stopping Baltimore's bid for a sixth championship in seven years. But, Weaver contended, it was accomplished with "everybody at the top of their game" for the Red Sox.

For the Orioles, the batting average of third baseman Brooks Robinson tumbled to .201, center fielder Paul Blair struggled to hit .218, and catchers Ellie Hendricks and Dave Duncan finished at .215 and .205 respectively.

Out on the mound, 38-year-old Mike Cuellar's 14-12 record was his worst in seven seasons, and Ross Grimsley yielded 29 home runs as his 18-13 mark of 1974 tumbled to 10-13.

Despite all that, Baltimore made a late run at the Red Sox and wound up just 4½ games off the pace. The Orioles had the best record in the major leagues following the All-Star game, a .662 pace, but it wasn't enough to overcome a 1-11 stretch back in May.

Outstanding performances were turned in last year by pitchers Jim Palmer and Mike Torrez, first baseman Lee May, and outfielders Ken Singleton and Don Baylor.

Should they repeat, Weaver would have good cause for his usual optimism. But help is needed from other sources, too.

Cuellar's age continues to be a worry, and Grimsley will have to be even more careful about grooving pitches this season because the fences in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium have been shortened by 10 feet in center field and in the power alleys.

Robinson will be 39 years old May 18, just 10 days behind Cuellar, and he'll be watched closely at the plate. Last year, despite his batting troubles, Robinson remained the premier fielding third baseman in the league.

"If we're winning and Brooks is playing good defense," Weaver said, "we'll stay with him a long time even if he's not hitting."

Otherwise, the Orioles aren't expected to wait too long before giving 25-year-old Doug DeCinces more opportunity to display his ability at third. He hit .251 last year and batted in 23 runs—30 less than Robinson on 315 fewer times at bat.

Shortstop Mark Belanger, who hit .226 last season, and Blair both reach 32 this year. Like Robinson, they run the threat of being replaced if the team is losing and more hitting is needed. All three won Gold Glove fielding awards last season, as did second baseman Bobby Brich.

Palmer, who was voted a second Cy Young pitching award after posting a 1-11 record and Torrez, 20-9, head the mound staff. Cuellar is the best bet to join the rotation, but Grimsley could be headed for long relief duty unless he rebounds early.

Singleton, obtained along with Torrez in a trade with Montreal last year, was named Baltimore's most valuable player after hitting .300. May, another newcomer, recovered after an extremely slow start to hit .262, rap 20 homers and drive in 99 runs.

Baylor, despite an extremely weak throwing arm and other problems in left field, is on the verge of being a star. Last year, he batted .282 with 25 homers and 76 RBI, and stole 32 bases.

Paul Mitchell, 3-0 last year, and Doyle Alexander, 8-8, probably will battle Grimsley for a spot as a starting pitcher, with lefty Grant Jackson and righthander Dyar Miller heading the bullpen.

In their only off-season deal, the Orioles acquired veteran Tommy Harper after releasing designated hitter Tommy Davis.

The DH duties probably will be shared by Harper, Al Bumbry and Tony Muser. All three also may see duty in the outfield, and Muser will spell May at first base.

Freshmen boost women's track team

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Like the other women's sports on campus, the track team is experiencing a tremendous growth due to freshman talent.

Coach Claudia Blackman said almost half of her 28-woman squad will be composed of freshmen this season, so she's not really sure how good the team will be this year.

"I'm real excited about the whole team this year," Blackman said. "We should be a lot stronger and faster than the teams I've had in the past."

Blackman doesn't want to talk about her crop of freshmen until after the first meet or two. SIU's first competition will be at the Memphis State Invitational Saturday.

The rest of the schools in the area are experiencing the same growth spurt in women's sports, so Blackman isn't sure what kind of teams SIU will be facing this year.

So far in practice Blackman hasn't used watches. This week she said the team has been working on the finer points of track competition such as working starts with a gun and toning handoffs for relay teams.

Last year SIU's strongest element was its 880 medley relay team which went to nationals. However, AIAW officials have terminated that event. The race was usually run before the mile relay and Blackman said many teams didn't have that many quarter milers.

There are three veterans back from that team, all sophomores.

Two of the relay members will be running sprint races instead. These sprinters are Ann Stribling and Pam Goff. Stribling has run the 220 in 26.9 seconds, while Goff has been clocked in the century at 12.1.

Blackman said Stribling was coming off an ankle injury but looks very strong in practice.

Another returning sophomore from the national relay team is Grace Lloyd. Blackman said Lloyd will be running the 40-yard dash this year. Lloyd's best mark in the 220 is 26.4.

A Saluki runner who has been running on her own quite a bit is Peggy Evans. She will be running in the 880. In an indoor meet earlier this year Evans ran the 880 in 2:19 for a third place finish.

Blackman said that her time is only one one-hundredth of a second under the outdoor qualifying time for the AIAW nationals this year.

Sophomore Jean Ohly is perhaps the best long distance runner on the team. Blackman said. The three-mile run has been added to the track events this year and Ohly will be participating in that event, as well as the other distance races.

Last season Ohly captured the mile and the two-mile events at the Illinois meet.

Another runner Blackman is counting on for points in distance events is junior Denise Mortenson. She was on the cross country team which went to nationals last year.

Mortenson is also coming off an injury. She suffered a stress fracture of lower leg, but Blackman said it doesn't seem to bother Mortenson.

Another new face added this year is the two-mile relay, but Blackman isn't sure who will be on the team.

One relay squad that is set is the mile relay. Running on that team is Evans, Lloyd, freshman Mary Shirk and sophomore Ann McRae.

Nancy Barkman, a sophomore, is the returning veteran in the hurdles. In the 100-meter hurdles last year she turned in a 15.7.

As for the field events, Blackman said freshmen would be utilized, with the exception of some runners using these events as a second speciality.

Sprinters Pam Goff (left) and Ann Stribling practice handoffs in preparation for the first meet Saturday at Memphis State. The only SIU home meet is the Saluki Invitational April 3. (Staff photo by Linda Henson)

Georgia Gems selected to all-conference cage team

SIU's Georgia gems, Mike Glenn and Corky Abrams, have been selected to the all-Missouri Valley Conference basketball team by the league coaches.

Glenn received the most votes on the first team while Abrams was selected to the second team.

Joining Glenn on the first team were sophomore Maurice Cheeks of West Texas State, junior Robert Elmore of Wichita State, junior Ken Harris of Drake and senior Mike Davis of Bradley.

Davis and Glenn finished 1-2 in the scoring race. Davis, a 6-foot-7 center, averaged 20.2 points in conference games and 20 points for all games while Glenn averaged 19.4 points in the conference and overall.

Glenn was the top free throw shooter in the Valley with a .958 percentage. He made 23 of 24 shots.

Abrams had the leading field goal percentage in the Valley. He made 59 of 77 shots in conference games for a .767 mark. Abrams also had the top field goal percentage of the season. He made 145 of 224 shots for 65 per cent.

Joining Abrams on the second team are Wichita State's Cal Bruton, Bradley's Jimmy Caruthers, West Texas State's Dallas Smith and Wichita State's Robert Gray.

Davis is the only senior on the first team. Abrams is the only junior on the second team. The rest are seniors.

Georgia Tech's gain is Southern's loss

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Class.

That's Doug Weaver in one word.

Doug Weaver came to SIU with a lot of class and he's leaving SIU with a lot of class. Many people are glad to hear SIU's former head football coach has found himself a new job.

I'm not.

Weaver never came close to winning football in his two years at helm. But as an athletic director and more importantly as a man, he is beyond reproach.

Georgia Tech is getting a good man. The SIU administration will have a difficult job finding another man of Weaver's stature. Ironically, it was the administration that asked Weaver to step down as football coach this past fall.

Believe it or not, Weaver has a soft spot in his heart for the SIU student body, despite some of the things that happened during the football season. One sign held up at a home game displaying Weaver's poor record for everyone in McAndrew Stadium to see, cut into him like a poison-tipped rapier. He never said much, but you could see the man was wounded.

Fans are always quick to jump at the throat of a coach with a losing record, but Weaver gritted his teeth. He won't strike out at the student body or administration as a parting shot before he leaves this summer. He doesn't want to dwell on any negative aspects there might be about his time at SIU. It's only natural that Weaver wants to remember the good times and the fond relationships that were created.

"I've spent three long years here. This is a superb school," Weaver said as he sat relaxfully on the sofa in his office. "People move and take other jobs all the time. That's part of life. Georgia Tech is a move I feel I should take."

Wit 'n

Weaver is not an unknown figure around Georgia Tech. His good friend Pepper Rodgers is the head football coach there. Weaver has stayed in close contact with Rodgers and has made several trips to Georgia to discuss football with his old buddy. It was in early February of this year that Weaver began talking seriously with Georgia Tech officials concerning the athletic director position.

"From the very start, when I got here I said I hoped that our people had a chance to move on and go to other places to better themselves," Weaver said. "Just because you take another job it does not mean that the university you are leaving is not a great place. We've got people on this campus who leave for other jobs all the time. There's nothing wrong with that."

Weaver will receive a hike in pay from Georgia Tech when he assumes the AD duties at the beginning of the summer. He is making more than $30,000 a year at SIU. He said, however, that the financial benefits are least importance.

"I've been paid well at SIU and I've been treated fairly," he said. "I've worked under some good administrations. As vice president Richard Mager was extremely supportive. And George Mace has been supportive of the program over here."

"I'm a professional," Weaver continued. "I've tried to conduct myself as such. I don't care if people want to speculate about my leaving, but I'm not going to get into that. I've tried hard to represent this University. It's an outstanding institution—it's tops. My daughter goes to school here and she's getting a great education. Her husband is a senior here. I don't know what more I can say."

"I'm making the move because of what Georgia Tech is; not because of any negative aspects there might be here. I feel that I have made a contribution here," Weaver said.

Weaver will be going to an excellent school. Besides a fine academic program, Georgia Tech has a solid football reputation and a coach who has made a name for himself. Joining the Metro Six conference this year has given Georgia Tech's basketball program a boost also.

And Weaver will enjoy a fine relationship with the head football coach. "I can't think of anything more important than a good relationship between the head football coach and athletic director," Weaver remarked. "But I've had good relationships here. I've had a close relationship with Paul Lambert, and I feel close to Rey Dempsey."

Doug Weaver has befriended more people than Lambert and Dempsey in his three years here. Now, at the still young age of 45, he is moving on to bigger and better things.

At least one friend would like to wish him the best of luck.
