Somit calls for fee referendum

By Randy Roguski
Staff Writer

The $30 athletics fee must be continued at least one year, but students should be allowed to vote next fall on whether the fee should be reduced, President Albert Somit said Wednesday night.

Somit said that even assuming that the fee is extended one year, "savage slashing" is in store for the Men's Athletics Department. And once athletics is back on its feet, he said, a student referendum will help him decide if the full $30 fee should be continued.

Somit's long-awaited remarks came before meetings of the Graduate Student Council and Undergraduate Student Organization. He will make similar recommendations to the Board of Trustees next month when the board will decide whether to extend the temporary $10 athletics fee.

The temporary fee was approved in December 1979, and will be revoked unless the board votes before June to extend it.

The fee is a necessary contribution to a "precariously" balanced $2.6 million athletics budget for next year, Somit said. He said the only options other than extending the fee are eliminating sports, firing coaches or dropping the football program—all options which Somit said are ruled out by moral and contractual obligations.

Somit said the student referendum in the fall would be organized cooperatively by student government and administrators. He said, though, that the referendum would "not be a binding referendum."

"No president can accept that vote in replacement of his own judgement," Somit said. "But it would be the most important factor other than my own judgment."

Long-range plans for intercollegiate athletics which were revealed by Somit include:

—Changes in the "administrative locus" of athletics, including a possible transfer in authority from the Office of University Relations to another vice-presidential area.

—Investigation of cutting travel costs by scheduling athletics contests with schools closer to SIU-C.

—Dropping the football program from Division I—A, the highest level of National Collegiate Athletics Association competition, to 1—AA or 2—A, the next levels down.

—Possible merging of the men's and women's athletics departments with certain "guarantees for the women to assure them that the consequences they fear will not occur."

Boycott ended by USO; GSC supports $30 fee

By Carol Knowles

The Undergraduate Student Organization called off a boycott of men's athletics events and the Graduate Student Council recommended that the temporary $10 athletics fee be extended through next year in separate actions Wednesday night.

Both actions were a direct result of separate speeches delivered to each group on the athletics fee by President Albert Somit.

In its recommendation to extend the temporary $10 fee, the GSC stipulated that continuation of the fee be contingent on a student-run referendum, to be held prior to Oct. 1, on future athletics fee increases. The group also demanded that student representation on the Intercollegiate Athletics Commission be proportional to the amount of money students contribute to athletics through fees.

Students currently are supporting 46 percent of intercollegiate athletics through fees.

The athletics boycott, called by USO President Paul Matalonis earlier this month to protest what he considered a lack of student input into SIU-C's athletics program, was called off by the Student Senate after Somit said he would ask the Board of Trustees to vote to maintain the present student athletics fee of $30 at the board's March meeting, and promised he would call for a student referendum in the fall on whether to continue the fee.

Although the senate voted to discontinue the boycott, it decided to maintain what Matalonis called "strong pressure for a larger student voice in the athletics program."

The resolution approved by the senate also recommended a student demonstration before Saturday's basketball game with Drake at the Arena. The demonstration is to show that "we want more input into the decision making process in the program, but also that we support the athletes," according to Glenn Stolar, an East Side senator.

Simon to head hearing at SIU-C on budget cuts

By Scott Canon
Staff Writer

A congressional hearing on the impact of President Reagan's proposed budget cuts for student financial aid programs will be held in the Student Center March 6.

U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Carbondale, chairman of the House subcommittee on post-secondary education, and the ranking Republican on the subcommittee—E. Thomas Coleman, Kansas City, Mo.—will listen to testimony from education officials and students from Illinois and Missouri.

Simon said the Reagan proposals would cut about $1 billion from student loan programs and eliminate the student loan marketing program that encourages banks to loan students money through interest payments.

Among those expected to testify are SIU-C President Albert Somit, Illinois Schools Superintendent Donald Gill, Illinois State Scholarship Commission Executive Director Larry Matelja, Rend Lake College President Harry Braun and First National Bank and Trust of Greenville President Michael Jackson.

Nick Penning, subcommittee staff member, said students from Southern Illinois will be asked to testify at the hearings. However, he said he doesn't know which students will be asked to speak.

"We have asked the U.S. Student Association to line up somebody to testify," Penning said. "I imagine they will probably get someone from student government."

Paul Matalonis, president of the Undergraduate Student Organization, said Wednesday his office has not been contacted about the hearing yet, but that he has discussed the hearing with Graduate Student Council President Debbie Brown.

"I hope they do contact me," Matalonis said. "I'd be more than happy to talk to them."

Penning said that either one student or a panel of students will testify.

The hearing in Carbondale is not the only one planned by the subcommittee on higher education funding. Hearings began Tuesday on Capitol Hill and will continue through Thursday.

Simon said almost all the witnesses that have testified so far have warned against cutting financial aid to students, charging that the funding reductions would put an unfair cost burden on middle- and lower-income families.

Clark Mitze, executive director of the Illinois Arts Council, may also testify before the congressman since the subcommittee, a division of the House Education and Labor Committee, deals with appropriations to the arts, Penning said.

Short respite expected

Annual inflation rate declines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation slowed to a 9.1 percent annual rate in January, the lowest level since last summer, as rare declines in food and house prices helped offset new bursts in energy costs, the government reported Wednesday.

The most unusual development was a 0.4 percent drop in house prices, the first decline in five years and the largest since 1967.

However, the Reagan administration, in its latest pitch forage of the president's economic program, said a respite from double-digit inflation would be short-lived and consumers can expect steeper price increases in the months ahead—even for food and housing. President Reagan's budget director, David A. Stockman, said the report "indicates that we're still in a dangerous double-digit inflation environment in this country" and underscores the need for the "deep budget cuts" the administration is proposing.

Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the White House Council of Economic Advisers, said January's figures, "although welcome, provides little basis for optimism with regard to the underlying rate of inflation."

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve move Tuesday to clamp down further on the growth of the nation's money supply, and its chairman warned that Congress would only worsen inflation if it whittles away at Reagan's proposed budget cuts.

Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker also declared that, unless inflation abates, the central bank's money policy will mean further pressure on the economy's ability to expand.

Part of Reagan's economic program calls for the steps announced Tuesday by Volcker, who endorsed the president's proposals.

The encouraging news for shoppers in January was that food prices at grocery stores fell 0.4 percent, the first decline in 11 months, while clothing

El Salvadoran leftists 'broken,' says ex-envoy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The former U.S. ambassador to El Salvador said Wednesday that the leftist guerrilla movement is "broken and declining" and that any attempt to bolster the government through large-scale U.S. military aid could backfire with a right-wing coup.

Robert White, a career diplomat currently here awaiting reassignment, said "I believe the right is constantly trying to overthrow the government, as is the left, and it's a beleaguered government in the middle."

White, ambassador during the last year of the administration of then-President Jimmy Carter, testified to a congressional subcommittee that "The real threat to the stability of the government comes not from the left, but from the extreme right. The left is broken and declining."

President Reagan fired White as ambassador to El Salvador soon after taking office and officials said one reason was White's public criticism of events there.

Reagan is considering boosting U.S. military assistance and sending at least some additional advisers to help the Salvadoran government fend off what the State Department says is "a textbook case of indirect armed aggression by Communist powers through Cuba."

By speaking out publicly against aid, White was breaking rank with an administration that had not yet disclosed its course of action.

But White, in his testimony before the House Appropriations foreign operations subcommittee, insisted that any increased support could be counter-productive.

"I think it would be a grave error to put in important amounts of advisers or equipment because I feel the Salvadoran government is perfectly able to handle the situation itself," he said.

Noting that the military already has crushed the leftist "final offensive" without U.S. aid, he said, "There is no possibility of leftists taking over in El Salvador in a six-month period if we don't send one piece of equipment to El Salvador."

White said El Salvador's security forces, including so-called death squads, are responsible for most of the killing in the Central American nation and criticized the "weasel words" in a State Department document that suggested that responsibility for 10,000 deaths last year was evenly divided between leftist and rightist forces.

He said rightist death squads have committed most of the assassinations, as many as 5,000, including "thousands and thousands of young people for mere suspicion of being leftists or being sympathizers of leftists."

NAGASAKI, Japan (AP) — Pope John Paul II celebrated Mass for 50,000 people Thursday, the last day of his 12-day Asian tour, in this cradle of Japanese Christianity, which was covered with a thin blanket of snow.

John Paul arrived Wednesday evening to a warm welcome amid the heaviest snowfall in four years, about three-quarters of an inch, after calling in Hiroshima for "the banishing of all nuclear weapons."

Lawrence McNair, 41, of Forest Park, was being sought in connection with the shootings.

Gene Robinson, chief of police in this Cincinnati suburb, said McNair had been told he was being fired after attending a grievance hearing with four Diamond International Corp. officials and two representatives of United Paper Workers Local 1001.

Killed were plant manager John Pruitt, 49, and power plant foreman Ray Leach, 50, both of Cincinnati.

Percy submits debt collection bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., introduced a bill Wednesday that he said would help the federal government collect $25 billion in such unpaid debts as farm and student loans.

The bill would permit the government to report the debtors to commercial credit bureaus, take payment out of federal employees' salaries and allow access to Internal Revenue Service records solely for names and addresses of debtors.

He said the total debt owed to the U.S. government by Americans is $126 billion. All but $25 billion is being paid on schedule, he said.

Study determining feasibility of fuel plant expected soon

By Randy Roguski
Staff Writer

A study to determine the feasibility of installing a fuel alcohol demonstration plant is being conducted by the University and could be completed in about three weeks, Kenneth Tempelmeyer, dean of the College of Engineering and Technology, said Wednesday.

Tempelmeyer said the plant would result from an agreement with Southern Illinois Incorporated, a non-profit group which promotes economic development in Southern Illinois. SII obtained a $202,500 grant last year from the Economic Development Administration to build a fuel alcohol demonstration plant in Williamson County.

If the University decided to build the plant, Tempelmeyer said, the grant would be transferred from SII to SIU-C. He said the University would administer the plant, but would consult SII in designing and operating it.

"SII would have served its prime purpose in obtaining the grant," Tempelmeyer said. "They would have provided aid in development of the region."

University property in Carterville is being considered as a possible site for the plant, Tempelmeyer said. The grant, however, requires $67,500 in matching funds.

"We're looking at the possibility of applying the Carterville property, the buildings there and personnel services there toward the matching funds," Tempelmeyer said. "With the budget situation the University has, those things would have to contribute significantly."

Tempelmeyer said the plant would produce between 200 and 300 gallons of fuel alcohol each day. The fuel alcohol would be made from grain and could be sold to companies which produce gasoline, he said.

The fuel alcohol produced could also be used to power University vehicles, Tempelmeyer said. He said the engines of the vehicles, however, would require modification to use the fuel.

Several colleges in the University are interested in the fuel alcohol plant. Tempelmeyer said his school thinks the plant would be useful in researching the process of fuel alcohol production.

Tempelmeyer said the School of Technical Careers is also studying the plant for use as a facility to train students in the use of fuel alcohol equipment.

Petitions to be available for April USO election

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Petitions for candidacy in the April 15 Undergraduate Student Organization election will be available Monday in the USO office, said Brian Netols, USO elections commissioner Wednesday.

Petitions will be available for the offices of president, vice president and approximately 26 Student Senate seats, Netols said.

Netols said the senate seats up for election should include six from the East Side, six from the West Side, two from both East Campus and Thompson Point, and one from each of the University's ten academic colleges.

Prospective senate candidates must secure the signature of at least 50 students residing in the area they are running in or the college they are representing, Netols said.

The presidential and vice presidential candidates run as a team, and need to secure the signature of at least 50 students from each of the four geographic areas, he said.

Netols said that potential candidates who will be moving from their present residence next year do have a problem.

"If you're living in the dorms and are moving off-campus, but don't know where, you just have to take a guess — either East Side or West Side," he said. "And if you guess wrong, I suppose you'll just have to resign."

To serve in USO, a student must have an overall grade point average of at least 2.0, and be in good academic and disciplinary standing, Netols said.

Netols said all signed petitions must be returned to the USO office on the third floor of the Student Center by 5 p.m. Thursday, March 12.

Delegates not bound by vote

Court OKs open primaries

WASHINGTON (AP) — States can hold "open" presidential primaries but cannot force a party's convention delegates to abide by the results, the Supreme Court said Wednesday.

By a 6-3 vote, the justices struck down a Wisconsin law that bound Democratic delegates to the results of the state's open primary election, in which party non-members participate.

"A political party's choice among the varying ways of determining the makeup of a state's delegation to the party's national convention is protected by the Constitution," Justice Potter Stewart wrote for the court.

The court said Wisconsin's law interfered with the Democratic Party's right of political association by allowing party non-members to participate in the selection process.

"I could not be more pleased," Democratic Party chairman John C. White said of the ruling.

"The court's opinion accurately reflects the Democratic Party's view that selection of delegates to the national convention ought to be made by Democrats — not cross-over voters from other parties who tend to skew the results of the Democratic primary."

Wisconsin's election law allows all registered voters to participate in the Democratic primary without regard to

Police seek purse thief

Carbondale police are seeking a warrant for the arrest of a suspect in the theft of items from the purse of an election judge during Tuesday's election.

Ida M. Webb told police that she saw a man searching political affiliation. The party's convention delegates are chosen in separate caucuses but the law required them to cast their convention votes based on the primary results.

Stewart's opinion left clear that Wisconsin can, if it decides to continue the practice, hold an open or "cross-over" primary election. But it said the results of that election cannot be binding on party delegates.

Wednesday's decision was sparked by the Democratic Party's challenge last year of the Wisconsin law.

costs declined 0.2 percent. Gasoline prices, however, jumped 3.8 percent and fuel oil prices were up 7.5 percent last month.

Consumer prices rose 12.4 percent in 1980, and most economists expect little or no moderation of that inflation rate in 1981.

Reagan last week urged Congress to cut $41.4 billion from the 1982 budget and pass a three-year, 30 percent tax cut to bring inflation down.

The administration, which forecasts a 10.5 percent inflation rate for this year, predicts its program would lower inflation to 7.2 percent in 1982 and 4 percent by 1985.

The Labor Department said the decline in food prices at grocery stores stemmed from a 2.4 percent drop in the price of meats, poultry, fish and eggs.

We should all sacrifice

The reactions of various constituencies to Reagan's budget cuts are not unpredictable. Prima facie, it is indeed favorable to the rich than the poor and middle-class Americans.

However, everybody agrees that some drastic actions are needed to control the growth of the federal deficit. Nobody really wants the persistence of the present economic ills hence Reagan was overwhelmingly elected. Why are so many of us shedding crocodile tears and why are we not prepared to sacrifice today for a better tomorrow economically? Are we just realizing that our capitalistic system is the root cause of the large dichotomy between the haves and the have-nots?

Getting rid of all the wasteful programs would reduce the deficits; hopefully this would reduce the high interest rates which would reduce the incomes of the big money lenders. Inflation would go down and more funds would be available for investment which would reduce the present rate of unemployment. More importantly, the psychology of dependence would be gradually reduced and the sacredness about the deficit's uncontrollability would be destroyed.

Reagan may be a millionaire but he is doing a good job economically from the best conservative point of view. We should all beware of those senators and representatives who do more harm economically for political gains. Reagan needs the maximum sacrifice and support of everybody to address the present economic mess. We should be objective in responding to those budget cuts.—Dada Olowa, Liberal Arts College

Don't pay for Abbie's toupee

My congratulations are extended to the SPC Expressive Arts Committee. The hype for the Abbie Hoffman lecture in Wednesday's Daily Egyptian was a work of art. There standing before us with that all challenging smirk was Abbie Hoffman, Yippie extraordinaire complete with American flag shirt.

The copy for the ad reads like the preview to an upcoming Mickey Spillane novel (He changed his name; he changed his face). The entire ad brings us right back to those good old Days of Rage, when the whole world was watching.

In reality Abbie Hoffman is now Barry Freed, a balding, middle-aged "fugitive" with a new shnoz. Barry is riding the new turn-yourself-in-and-make-megabucks-off-it fad for the sixties revolutionary "fugitives." They'll probably reunite the Chicago 7 for a greatest hits LP or have Days of Rage collectible slurpee cups at 7-11.

You've heard the term "Don't buy books from crooks?" Well I say don't pay for speeches by leeches.—Chris Eames, Un-classified Graduate.

Christian acts like a Fascist

This is an open letter to the person I saw ripping down flyers that had been put up near Faner Hall by the Krishna Consciousness Center. When I challenged you, you said that, as a Christian, it was your duty to rid the campus of pollution. When I said you were behaving like a Fascist, you cited Jesus' driving of the moneylenders from the temple.

I hate to point out the obvious, but you, sir, are not Jesus. And just because your messiah kicked a few butts 2,000 years ago, that doesn't give you the right to behave in a cheap, bigoted and un-American manner. America happens to be a democracy; a place in which differing points of view can, or should be able to, coexist in relative harmony. This country was not created to be a religiously governed state; a simple reading of the ideas of Thomas Jefferson would bear that out. If this country's liberty and plurality displeases you, I suggest you move to a theocratic state, like Iran.

You violated simple courtesy, if not a written law, by tearing down flyers you didn't believe in. You may have thought you were helping Christianity by being a law unto yourself, but you were acting in defiance of the of the Biblical injunction to show mercy toward all men (Luke 10:37) and to love even your enemies (Matthew 5:44) with a love that does not lead to self-importance or self-righteousness (I Corinthians 13:4). You profess to be a Christian, but Tuesday afternoon you weren't acting like one.—Patrick Drazen, Broadcasting Service

HELP! POLICE! HE TRIED TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF ME!!

Shape America's policies around global cooperation

WITH PRICES AT THE NEIGHBORHOOD gas station rising another ten cents a gallon, with strapped city councils forced to reduce public services and with citizens in the drought areas of the country nervous about wasting even a glass of drinking water, who can think globally? And who can think both globally and long range?

Against these twin pressures—we have enough trouble today, this minute, on our own blocks in our own homes—a group of officials from the Council on Environmental Quality and the State Department is arguing the other way.

To withdraw, they suggest in "The Global Future: Time To Act," is not only to flee our moral obligations to the world's hundreds of millions of desperately poor. It is also to gamble recklessly that economic and ecological stability happen of themselves. Overall, it is to ignore inter-relatedness: that the increasing discomforts felt at the local gas station, city council hearing rooms and kitchen tap are skirmishes in battles that rage at a distance but which advance closer everyday.

The authors of the report, who drew on 19 federal agencies for guidance, make no claim that they are the first ones to say that a relationship exists between America's political and economic security and how such staggering problems as world population, environmental abuse and resource misuse are solved. Their goal is more modest than that, one that seeks only to offer "a body of good ideas for the first round of an effective response to the immensely challenging problems before us."

NO ONE HAS A CORNER ON THE MARKET of "good ideas," but it is hard to imagine a response that is effective without it including at least a few of the report's recommendations: a major increase in America's foreign non-military aid, which would reverse the decline in our economic development assistance; more participation in international programs to assure safe drinking water (in a world where 500 million suffer waterborne diseases); better control in the exporting of hazardous substances; an increase in the research on ozone depletion.

At first glance, these and the many other similar recommendations may seem like the wish-list of well-meaning bureaucrats. In fact, the era of wishful thinking has passed. We haven't been able to muddle through. National security means more than an arsenal of nuclear weapons to prevent foreign attack. It means being secure from the effects of our own attacks on the earth's bounty.

Except for a few news stories following the release of "The Global Future," public discussion of its content has been limited. This is the routine fate of reports that dare suggest nations shape their policies according to global cooperation, not mutual suspicion. The findings of last year's Brundt Commission and the Presidential Commission on World Hunger raised similar unsettling questions.

THE CEQ-STATE DEPARTMENT REPORT has had even less attention. It was released in the final week of the Carter administration, which means Reagan officials can dismiss it as the dated thinking of the ousted. The President himself, when questioned last October on an earlier CEQ-State Department study, "The Global 2000 Report," revealed his disdain for suggestions that the future is bleak unless we broaden our thinking.

"How do you propose responding," he was asked, "to those long-term global implications (outlined in the Global 2000 Report) of over-population, resource depletion and degradation of the environment." Reagan, in a rambling answer, said he wasn't especially concerned. For one thing, he didn't see much accuracy in past reports on future problems. Besides the population menace is overblown.

He told of adding thousands of acres to California's beaches when he was governor. Yet he said "you find many of those state beaches today, on the hottest day of the summer, there's no one on them." Then, in a comment on the level of his celebrated trees cause pollution statement, Reagan spoke approvingly of studies saying "the earth can support a population of 28 billion people."

Perhaps so, if a planetary Calcutta can be imagined. What it can't support is a population that has no leaders daring enough think beyond tomorrow.—(c) 1981, The Washington Post

2 more Atlanta boys disappear

ATLANTA (AP) — The disappearances of two more black boys prompted police searches in Atlanta neighborhoods Wednesday, as prospects dimmed for a huge federal cash outlay to bolster the special inquiry into the cases of 20 dead and missing black children.

Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said the cases of the two black boys who disappeared Tuesday were being handled by the missing persons division and had not been turned over to the special unit set up in the other cases.

About 1,700 people are reported missing in Atlanta each year, Brown said, and 80 percent are found in 24 hours. Reports of missing children — even habitual runaways — have lately been receiving wide attention because of the continued unsolved killings of children.

Dempster D. Williams, 10, of southwest Atlanta, was last seen at his home at 8 p.m. and was reported missing within hours, police said. Ternal Heard, 14, of northwest Atlanta, was last seen at 3:30 p.m. at a downtown park trying to catch a bus to suburban College Park. He was reported missing Wednesday.

Child disappearances are not turned over to the special child deaths task force until it is determined they fit the profile of the 20 cases under investigation. All the dead and missing children investigated by the task force were aged 7 to 15, all were black, and many received little parental supervision. All but two were boys. They were killed or disappeared over the past 19 months.

Mayor Maynard Jackson has asked President Reagan for over $1.5 million in federal aid to help pay for the child slayings inquiry. He also asked that a federal offer of $264,000 in technical help from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration be restructured.

LEAA acting director George Bohlinger said Wednesday that his agency would have little money to give the city even if it wanted to. "We don't have an operating budget. The Carter administration zeroed it out last year." Brown had said Monday that Bohlinger had assured him he could expect a restructured program valued at $264,000. But Bohlinger said $38,000 was all LEAA officials in Washington "were able to scrape together," conceding, "it doesn't buy much."

State Crime Commission Director Bill Kelley said he has about $40,000 the city might expect to get as a minimum from federal grants turned over to his agency. He estimated $170,000 as the maximum grant possible.

Estimates of the cost of the police department's special investigation have ranged from $150,000 to $200,000 a month.

Committee rejects state tax breaks

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — An Illinois House committee Wednesday rejected legislation that would have given state income tax breaks to homeowners and renters.

The bill, sponsored by Rep. John Cullerton, D-Chicago, was rejected when 13 Republicans on the House Revenue Committee voted against the measure.

Renters would have saved up to about $19 in state income taxes, while homeowners could have pocketed up to $25 a year. That's because the bill would have permitted homeowners to deduct the amount of property taxes they paid up to $1,000. Renters could have deducted one-fourth of their annual rent up to $750.

The committee voted 13-10 against the measure. The voting was along party lines, with Democrats supporting the legislation.

He said a similar measure, calling specifically for renter tax relief, was approved by last session's Democratic-controlled Revenue Committee.

Cullerton said he had expected the Republican-controlled committee to approve the new measure.

Last session's legislation was passed by both the Senate and House. It later was vetoed by Gov. James R. Thompson.

Cullerton said the legislation rejected Wednesday would have saved Illinois homeowners and renters about $70 million.

The Thompson administration opposed the legislation, saying it would have deprived the state of needed revenue.

Cullerton says he plans to introduce a new bill to permit renter tax breaks which would save renters $22 million a year.

Cullerton argued that 12 states, including Indiana and Wisconsin, have laws giving tax breaks to renters and that Illinois should enact a similar bill. He also noted that homeowners are entitled to various deductions on their federal income tax returns.

Lab equipment missing

The value of items reported stolen from a room in Life Science I during a break-in Saturday has reached $1,500, SIU-C police said Wednesday.

A triple-beam balance valued at $85 was reported missing Wednesday by a worker, police said.

When the break-in was first reported to police, no items were reported missing. Entrance to the room was gained by breaking a window on the door of the room, police said.

A balance loader valued at $395 and a microscope valued at $1,078 were also discovered missing after an inventory taken Monday.

Police have no suspects in the case.

Try Rush's 'Pictures' for brainy heavy metal

By Randy Lynch
WIDB Music Director

Heavy metal rock started to make a comeback in 1980. Black Sabbath's "Paranoid" made the British Top 10 eight years after its initial release, prompting them to make a new album. Other metal mongers like youngsters AC-DC, Angel City and Def Leppard were suddenly in great demand. There were rumors that the members of Deep Purple were getting back together.

This year it is evident that the heavy metal resurgence was just a spark in the electric skillet. Only AC-DC was able to make any lasting impression on the record buying market. Now that the generic dust has settled, Rush's new release, "Moving Pictures," furthers its reputation as the one and only thinking man's heavy metal band.

Despite its aspirations, Rush is a band besieged by image problems. No style of music embraces the "sex and drugs and rock 'n' roll" ethic more than heavy metal. In light of such predilections, the term "thinking man's heavy metal" joins the ranks of other such phrases as "jumbo shrimp," "plastic glass" and "military intelligence." However, "Moving Pictures" offers proof that such a term is not necessarily paradoxical.

When it started out, Rush was just another thrashing power trio. The key to the band's elevation has been drummer Neil Peart. Since Peart took over as lyricist, Rush has thematically risen above the status of the average "party band."

Review

Moving Pictures, Rush, Mercury Records, Reviewer's Rating: 3 stars (4 stars tops).

Peart is truly a man of vision as he proved on the "2112" LP. He gives another glimpse of a possible future in a new song, "Red Barchetta," which is also about the simple pleasure of a drive in the country. The song not only makes one think about where our society is headed; it helps one to appreciate the conveniences which we take for granted.

However, this is not a science fiction oriented album. In "Lime-light," Peart discusses his ambivalence about being a stage performer. He finds that being the center of attention is addictive and confusing at the same time.

On side two, Peart becomes totally objective, as a tune called "Camera Eye" suggests. In this two-part comparison of London and New York City, Peart finds that physically, there are no major differences between the two. Therefore, he sees the vitality of its residents as the quality which gives a city its spirit.

Peart again examines society in "Witch Hunt." He observes that "ignorance and prejudice and fear go hand in hand." This song has frightening implications in light of the recent acceptance of Jerry Falwell and the Moral Majority.

Finally, Peart offers some standard advice in "Vital Signs." He reminds us that change is the only thing we can count on, and yet there will always be people who resist change. The only acceptable way to deviate from the norm is to rise above it.

And so it is with the album. The lyrics rise above the norm, but the music merely maintains it. Guitarist Alex Lifeson and bassist-singer Geddy Lee are still responsible for the music and they haven't made as much progress as Peart.

In fact, "Moving Pictures" seems to be a step backward for Rush in terms of intensity. Synthesizers are used more extensively than on past Rush albums, and the "riffs to melodies" ratio is nearly even. Lee has also toned down the shrillness of his vocals, making his singing downright tolerable.

Rush may never overcome the limitations of heavy metal to attain mass appeal. Still, the group has pushed the boundaries of its genre farther than any other band of the past decade. This is even more impressive in light of the fact that this trio makes better music than most five- or six-piece metal bands.

Sale of impounded grain requested

ST. LOUIS (AP) - A bankruptcy trustee Wednesday asked the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for permission to sell the grain stored in five bankrupt Missouri elevators, including the 31,000 bushels of soybeans seized last week by Puxico farmer Wayne Cryts.

Robert P. Lindsey of Little Rock, Ark., trustee in the James Brothers bankruptcy case, said the grain was in poor condition and would spoil unless immediately sold.

"In particular, grain stored in the debtors' facility at Caruthersville is in great, immediate, and irreparable danger of becoming totally worthless," said Lindsey.

The trustee also asked permission to sell 31,000 bushels of soybeans stored in the MFA elevator in Bernie. Cryts stored the beans, his 1979 crop, at that warehouse after he and more than 500 farmers walked past federal marshals at the Ristine elevator near New Madrid a week ago, punched holes in the side of the elevator, and removed the grain which federal courts had been attempting to determine ownership of.

For that reason, the trustee also asked the court to require the appellants in the case to post $5 million bond with the court.

"Appellee-trustee fears that further unlawful seizure of grain situated in the debtors' warehouses in the State of Missouri may be attempted by other alleged creditors unless the grain is allowed to be sold," said Lindsey.

'Back on the Streets' shows promise, but not consistent

By Bill Crowe
Staff Writer

Much like the one-hit artist characterized in Paul Simon's film "One Trick Pony," Donnie Iris could be called a "journeyman rocker." However, his first solo release, "Back on the Streets," is an album by a journeyman who shows some promise, but needs to be more consistent.

Iris' career recording with various bands has been static to say the least. In the late '60s, he formed the Jaggerz and scored a gold record with the single, "The Rapper." Several years later he recorded and performed with Wild Cherry ("Play That Funky Music White Boy") for a short time.

On this solo effort, Iris shows a desire to escape the pop-funk trappings of Wild Cherry and play straight-ahead rock, but the result is only partially successful. For every song that shows some lyrical distinctiveness or instrumental ingenuity, there are two that register as just fundamental, plodding rockers with the usual lyrics—girls, teenage frustration, more girls, etc.

Most of Iris' problems stem from a distinct lack of inventiveness in arrangements, relying too heavily on Marty Lee's power chording guitar work while not giving him enough room to breathe with an occasional solo. Keyboardist-producer Mark Avsec sets a good electric tone to the music at times, but his work is mostly perfunctory also.

Avsec's use of Iris' multi-

Review

Back on the Streets, Donnie Iris, MCA Records, Reviewer's Rating: 2 stars (four stars tops).

layered vocals, such as the call and response on "Shock Treatment" and the high-pitched chorus on "Joking," provide some distinction, but are wasted without the instrumental guts to back them up.

Iris fares best when performing pop without the burden of overexerted chordal pounding. "Joking" is a catchy tune which makes good use of Avsec's synthesizer and a fast-talking vocal. Otherwise, "Agnes," is the one thudding rocker that works. It utilizes an infectiously melodramatic approach that draws the listener in to the story of a guy trying to steal a girl away from the local tough guy. But these tunes are the exception to the rule on this record.

"Too Young to Love" takes a good opening piano line and ruins it with a growling, overblown vocal. The rest of the album, including "Ah! Leah!" which is receiving some airplay, is populated by ponderous rockers and vocals delivered in a dull monotone, for the most part.

"Back on the Streets," at its best, is a mediocre album. Maybe mediocrity is all that journeyman artists can be expected to come up with, but Iris shows just enough spark to show some promise for the future.

B.B. King's latest LP is more top-notch blues

By Rod Smith
Entertainment Editor

When you think of the blues, the first name that comes to mind is B.B. (Blues Boy) King. His distinctive, string-bending electric guitar style has influenced and been imitated by hordes of rock artists since the end of World War II.

Because of his influence on rock music, King helped to attract white audiences to the blues, a music form once played and listened to primarily by blacks. He has also consolidated various music forms in the growth of the blues—gospel, jazz, Texas guitar—into a personalized style that never seems to stagnate with age and repetition.

King's new album, "There Must Be A Better World Somewhere," (what an appropriate blues title) is much like his dozens of previous albums—plenty of clean, razor-sharp guitar solos, reaching the extremes of being up ("Life Ain't Nothing But A Party") and feeling down (the title cut) and utilizing the considerable talents of some top session musicians.

King has a powerful, booming vocal style that he has used in creating definitive blues tunes from other songwriters' works. None of the most-noted blues standards credited to him ("The Thrill Is Gone," "Sweet Sixteen" and "Every Day I Have the Blues") have been written by him but are nevertheless known as classic King.

Composing credits on this album go to Doc Pomus and Dr. John (remember "Right Place,

The suit was filed by the inmates on behalf of 1,200 inmates in D-Yard of the maximum-security facility when police officials retook the prison almost 10 years ago.

Defendants named in the lawsuit include state and Attica Prison officials and the late Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

No date was set for further court action.

The police assault at Attica on Sept. 13, 1971, resulted in the death of 39 people and the wounding of another 80.

Wrong Time"), who also adds some brilliant Louisiana barroom piano playing. The album's lyrical content, however, is nothing to get excited about. The words get lost as they take a back seat to the instrumentation.

This album doesn't capture the sizzling excitement of King's live recordings (he has at least six), but instead concentrates on drowsy, cry-in-your-beer tunes with some effectively emotive horn play.

Sure, the characteristic extended lead guitar solos that King is noted for are here and are as biting as ever, using basic call-and-response with his singing and playing (King admits he can't sing and pick at the same time). But King's guitar is overshadowed on this album by the saxophone play of old rhythm and blues players Hank Crawford and David "Fathead" Newman.

Crawford and Newman recorded with King many years ago but haven't been on any of his most recent LPs. Their contributions from a six-piece brass section make this album a fine work with extremely tight instrumentation rather than another run-of-the-mill blues album.

Crawford, who is credited with the horn arrangement, dominates the first side of the album with alto sax solos on all three tunes while Newman displays jazzy tenor play on two songs, including the album's best cut, "The Victim," which opens side two.

There's really nothing new from B.B. King here other than a reunion with the two versatile sax players; and that's good. When you're the best at what you do, there's no reason to change.

B.B. King is the definitive blues guitarist and proves it album after album.

Rings combine heavy metal with hooks, distinctive style

By Alan Sculley
Staff Writer

Review

The Rings, MCA Records.
Reviewer's Rating: 3 stars (4 stars tops).

One song that is laden with hooks is "Got My Wish." It is also the album's stand-out cut, featuring a sweetly melodic acoustic guitar matched with a very infectious rocking beat. "Too Much of Nothin'" and "I Need a Stranger" use the electric guitar solo as the catch which makes these songs work. "This One's For the Girls" and "Watch You Break" feature smart choruses that make the listener want to sing along. It is when the Rings forget their lead acoustic guitar style and go back to the generic style of electric rhythm guitar that they fall flat on their faces. "Third Generation" is one song where they make this mistake. The result is a song that sounds like most every nondescript heavy metal band in existence.

Other songs keep that distinctive acoustic style, but fail because they just weren't good songs to begin with. "Opposites Attract" and "Let Me Go" are examples of this, and are nothing more than filler.

Another strong point for the band is a capable performance from its members. None of them get flashy enough to overshadow each other, and they play well enough so none of the songs get handicapped by incompetent performances.

The singing is also basic but acceptable, even though trite and less than intelligent lyrics damage this facet of the Rings' music. The vocals are mainly used as another instrument to provide songs with a hook.

Still, when you add the good elements together, the result is a nice, clean and energetic pop-rock style that demands little more from the listener than enjoyment. Since many of the power pop bands don't offer that much, consider "The Rings" a winner over the status quo of power pop.

Along with the ska revival and the heavy metal resurgence, 1980 will be remembered as a year that spawned a slew of rock bands known as power pop. Now we can add the Rings to that list.

This band's self-titled debut album, however, offers more than the vast majority of power poppers—a distinctive style. Most of the power pop bands have a generic sound which combines the power guitar riffs of heavy metal with a melody and tempo along the lines of new wave.

The Rings, though, have found that by putting a soft edge on their songs with instruments like an acoustic guitar, they could offer music that at least didn't sound like the dozen or so other bands in their genre.

This acoustic guitar is played like an electric rhythm guitar and is punctuated on many of the album's cuts with a pounding, steady dance beat, or accented on others with catchy electric guitar solos.

The other factor the Rings make heavy use of in their songs is hooks. Most of the cuts have some element that stands out and draws the listener into the song.

Man convicted of DeSoto robbery

By Scott Canon
Staff Writer

A Murphysboro man was convicted of armed robbery Tuesday for his part in the hold-up of a Handi-Mart convenience store in De Soto on Nov. 17.

The gun used in the robbery, a .22 caliber Sentinel revolver, had been stolen from a Carbondale resident, police said. Bruce Griffin was one of three men arrested a few minutes after the robbery, police said. Materials stolen from the store were found when the arrests were made, police said.

Griffin, who was released from the State Prison in Menard just a week prior to the robbery, was convicted for driving a getaway car while his brothers, Dan and Bobby, allegedly robbed the store of $250 cash, a cashier's wallet and a carton of cigarette papers.

A jury of six men and six women deliberated for 2 1/2 hours before returning the guilty verdict, ending a two-day trial. Judge Richard Richman, who presided over the trial, will sentence Griffin on March 31. Griffin faces a prison term of at least six years and a maximum of 30 years in prison.

Dan Griffin has already pleaded guilty to armed robbery and will be sentenced March 10. Bobby Griffin's case has not been brought to trial yet.

The prosecutor in the case, assistant Jackson County State's Attorney Michael C.

Carr, said the testimony of DeSoto Policeman Kurtis Ehlers was crucial to the conviction.

Ehlers was staked-out across from the store and testified that he saw Bruce Griffin drive the car while Dan and Bobby entered the store. Ehlers said Bruce never entered the store.

Dan Griffin testified on his brother's behalf saying the incident never took place. However, the prosecution submitted a statement, signed by Dan Griffin and taken before the trial, admitting that the robbery took place.

Both Bruce and Dan face armed robbery charges in Williamson County.

Court upholds president's hiring freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey ruled Wednesday that President Reagan's federal hiring freeze is "neither unconstitutional nor contrary to law," meaning that even those promised employment before the ban was invoked on Inauguration Day are out of luck.

Richey said that the "20,000-odd" persons who received acceptance letters from federal agencies between the election and Jan. 20 were not legally hired, since Reagan's executive order was retroactive to Nov. 5. The letters were "mere offers of jobs which did not rise to the level of appointments," Richey said in a ruling from the bench after oral arguments.

Attorneys for the National Treasury Employees Union, representing workers in several government agencies, told the judge the letters constituted appointments. The union estimates that as many as 50,000 persons may be affected.

One lawyer for the challengers, Robert M. Tobias, declared he would appeal the ruling and seek back pay for those who are mae to depart their government offices.

He and others argued that people quit jobs, sold homes and moved families after receiving congratulatory letters from the government on their new positions.

The White House had no immediate comment upon Richey's ruling. Reagan had ordered the freeze in line with his pledge to reduce the size and cost of the bureaucracy.

Richey told the packed courtroom: "The president's actions are not only constitutional and legally permissible, they are essential for the well-being and general welfare of the American people at this time."

Reagan, the judge said, has the duty to "secure greater economy and efficiency in the conduct" of the civil service.

But in a direct message to those affected, Richey said his ruling should not "indicate any lack of concern or compassion for the 20,000-odd people allegedly involved in the case."

These people should understand, Richey added, that the decision was "a legal one" and the court is bound to uphold the law.

Despite Richey's comments, C. James Spillane, a spokesman for the union, said, "The biggest losers are going to be the people in limbo for God knows how much longer."

'Collective work' is theme for black history observance

By Vicki Olgeaty
Student Writer

February marked the observance of Black History Month and the Black Affairs Council has promoted numerous activities in honor of the occasion.

Black History Month was initiated by the father of black history, Carter G. Woodson, 55 years ago, according to the Negro History Bulletin.

The theme of the SIU-C celebration is Ujima. Ujima, the third of the seven principles of blackness, means a "collective work and responsibility."

"One of the purposes of BAC is to form a collective unit of participation among black students and the Carbondale community," said Gena Gunn, graduate assistant for black affairs. "This fits right in with our theme."

The BAC planning committee started planning the month-long celebration in late September. BAC is an umbrella organization that coordinates all black students and groups on campus.

Gunn said the tribute to the black church on Feb. 8 was the largest effort among any SIU-C organization to pull the campus and community closer.

"We chose to honor the community churches because the church has been the backbone of black culture since the days of slavery," said Gunn.

Choirs from six area churches and several campus talents performed, she said.

"The tribute united campus and community by bringing together top-level administrators," said Gunn. Both SIU-C President Albert Somit and Mayor Hans Fischer were present.

The BAC planned for Somit to sign a declaration making Black History Month and Martin Luther King's birthday, Jan. 15, an annual campus observance. This didn't happen because of an administration misunderstanding, according to Gunn.

"We went through the proper channels and things just got confused from level to level," said Gunn. The BAC and administrator are still working on the proposal, she added.

The Alex Haley lecture, sponsored by BAC and the Student Programming Council, was attended by a large crowd in spite of sub-zero weather. Haley, perhaps the man most responsible for the abundant interest in Afro-American heritage, spoke for several hours about the parts of his life that lead to the writing of "Roots."

Cranston Knight, a member of the Poetry Factory, read an original poem, "The Middle Passage" before the lecture. "The poem is a memorial to the 15 to 20 million people who died in the passage to slavery," said Knight.

The BAC honored other famous Afro-Americans in slide presentations and dance programs that have been shown throughout February. "Black performing artists, educational and political leaders, and athletes were the subjects of these dance programs," said Gunn.

A semi-formal Red, Black and Green Ball that featured slide presentations and disco music was held Feb. 13.

The three colors are the colors of the BAC. "Red represents the blood, black represents the people and green represents the land," said Gunn.

The last event of Black History Month will be a dance for the Fred Lawrence McDowell Scholarship on Feb. 28. "The dance committee's goal this year is to raise $500," said Gunn.

McDowell was an SIU-C student who died of a rare blood disease. The scholarship money will be given to a student who plans to attend graduate school, said Gunn.

Movies, dinners and rap sessions have also been planned by the BAC.

The male and female relations rap sessions, which will be directed by BAC staff member Charles Law, are expected to have a large attendance.

The BAC took the theme Ujima from the seven principles of blackness which are celebrated each year during the Kwanzaa celebration, said Gunn.

The other principles of blackness are Umoja (unity), Kujichagulia (self-determination), Ujamaa (cooperation), Nia (purpose), Kuumba (creativity) and Imani (faith).

Last year's Black History Month theme was Kujichagulia, said Gunn.

Shah's former aide claims Jordan tried double cross

By Charles J. Hanley
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The former chief aide to the exiled shah of Iran says Hamilton Jordan, chief of staff in the Carter White House, double-crossed the deposed ruler by "making a deal to have the shah arrested in Panama" in an attempt to win freedom for the American hostages.

In an interview looking back over the events of the hostage crisis, Robert Armao used harsh language to describe U.S. actions during the late Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's three-month stay in Panama.

The former Pahlavi aide was particularly bitter toward Jordan, who arranged the haven in Panama. Armao said he knew all along that the former presidential assistant "could not be trusted."

He characterized the shah in the last months of his life as a man worried that his family would be scarred and branded by the hostage crisis, vulnerable to Panamanian extortionists and driven into a dangerous legal corner by U.S. officials playing on his imperial pride.

Armao, 52, a New York public relations consultant associated with the Rockefeller family, began working for the shah in late 1978. When the shah fled Iran in January 1979, Armao joined former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and banker David Rockefeller in finding refuge for Pahlavi in the Bahamas. He later managed day-to-day affairs for the exiled royal family at their temporary homes in Mexico, the United States, Panama and Egypt, where Pahlavi died last July.

The ex-shah's stay in New York for gallbladder surgery led to the seizure of the U.S. Embassy and hostages in Tehran on Nov. 4, 1979. Six weeks later, Pahlavi left the United States for a resort island off the coast of Panama.

Armao said Jordan and White House counsel Lloyd Cutler assured the cancer-stricken Pahlavi that "Panama had no diplomatic relations (with Iran), no extradition. He would be safe, comfortable, and they would provide for his medical care," meaning he would have access to American hospitals.

But, Armao said, it eventually became clear to him that Jordan later "made a deal to have the shah arrested in Panama."

Jordan refused comment Wednesday on Armao's latest assertions, but he has answered previous claims of a U.S. "deal" to have the ex-shah arrested by saying the matter was out of U.S. hands because Panamanian law requires the detention of anyone accused of crimes in extradition proceedings.

While the shah was in the United States, Iran demanded his return in exchange for the American hostages, hoping to try him for alleged mass murder and corruption. With Pahlavi in Panama, the revolutionary regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini began court proceedings to have him extradited.

Armao said the ex-shah agreed to live in Panama "because his pride would not let him linger here and because he did not want responsibility for the hostages to weigh on his family's conscience."

The former aide contended the Carter administration played on the ex-shah's pride to get him to go to Panama, since the only alternative was humiliating — staying in the United States, where officials made it obvious he was not wanted.

A Panamanian doctor treating the shah, and a French lawyer and Argentinian businessman mediating the crisis, have since confirmed the Panamanians planned to put Pahlavi under house arrest once all the extradition documents were filed. Whether Panama eventually would have handed him over to Iran remains an unanswerable question.

ISU track coach sees Redbird-SIU fight

By Greg Walsh
Staff Writer

Illinois State will be competing in its first Missouri Valley Conference Men's Indoor Track Championship when it hosts the eight-school meet at Horton Field House Saturday and Sunday.

It did not take the Redbirds to become contenders for the conference crown. Men's track Coach John Coughlan said his second-ranked Redbirds will do their best to upset the Salukis, who are favored to win the meet for the fifth time.

"We are going to get on the track and in the field events and make a run at them. We are sure gonna try hard," the four-year ISU coach said.

He called the Saluki-Redbird matchup "a pretty appropriate appraisal of the meet."

"There are probably three groupings in the meet. The second grouping would be Indiana State, Drake and Wichita State. The first is SIU-C and us."

But the Redbirds may be at a disadvantage. Since entering the conference in 1976, SIU-C has never lost an MVC indoor or outdoor championship meet, a record SIU-C men's track Coach Lew Hartzog said his 1981 squad does not want to surrender.

This year the Redbirds have not done well against the Salukis either. The Salukis beat the Redbirds in a Jan. 23 dual meet, 86-63. SIU-C also outscored ISU in the Illinois Intercollegiate, 135-130, and last week's Central Collegiate, 94-52.

But Coughlan would not say his Redbirds are ready to give up.

"We are going to make a pretty good run at them," he said. "I don't think we have any clear-cut individual in any event that will win for sure, but we have many that might win."

The Redbirds could do well in the 300- and 440-yard dashes with people like All-American Terry Menefee and freshmen Ernie Davenport, and "could win" the 600-yard run with sophomore Scott MacDougal. But the 880 is "up for grabs," Coughlan said.

In the 1,000-meter run, ISU's Mike Kirk has already qualified for the NCAA indoor championships with a time of 2:01.1, so he was expected to do well. However, Coughlan said, Kirk may not be full strength because he was hit by a car while running Tuesday night. Coughlan said, "He was taken to the hospital and released. He said his knee hurt a little, but he will compete."

As for the half-mile, mile and two-mile runs, Coughlan said Illinois State has the potential "to win a lot of them." Coughlan said he was very confident in his mile relay team, which has qualified for NCAA meet by running a 3:13.04, over three seconds better than its Saluki counterpart.

If there is a weakness on the Redbird team, it is field events.

ISU's best chance for a first could come in the high jump. Senior Vince Davis could win the event, even though Saluki freshman Stephen Wray has jumped 1-4 higher to 7-2. Coughlan said Wray and Davis may not be the only contenders because there are many other good high jumpers in the Valley.

"A guy could go 6-10% and not place. Who knows who will win?" he said.

Coughlan said the Redbirds will suffer the most in the other field events.

"We are nowhere near as strong as SIU-C in the field," Coughlan said. "In the pole vault, long jump and triple jump, we are definitely going to be outscored." ISU also got a break since the 35-pound weight throw was dropped from the field events this year.

"There will be less points to score," Coughlan said, "and SIU-C did well in that last year."

Coughlan pointed out the flu hurt his team during late January, and most of his trackmen have just returned to full strength.

"We're about as healthy as I want to be going into the meet," Coughlan said.

Women swimmers cruise past SEMO

The SIU-C women's swim team defeated Southeast Missouri State, 42-23, in its last home meet of the season Wednesday at the Recreation Center.

For all practical purposes, the meet was swum to allow more team members to try to qualify for the upcoming AIAW national meet, to be held March 18-20 at Columbia, S.C.

"I was really pleased," SIU-C Coach Tim Hill said. "The girls really turned in some good times."

Hill said he was particularly pleased with the performances of his four freshman swimmers—Shari Schedin, Pam Smith, Patti Peressini and Debbie Riker. All turned in their best times of the season.

The highlight of the meet occurred in the first event when SIU-C's Pam Ratcliffe set a school record in the 100-yard intermediate with a time of 59.93. The time also qualified her for the nationals.

In the 200-yard free relay, SIU-C defeated SEMO with a time of 1:40.76. The 200-yard freestyle was won by SEMO standout Barb Wood with a time of 56.01, allowing her to edge the Salukis' Peressini (57.41), and Smith (58.06).

SIU-C was also victorious in the 200-yard backstroke. Riker swam past SEMO's Wendy Hansen with a time of 2:10.92. The 200-yard butterfly also went SIU-C's way as Ratcliffe beat Kay Douglas with a time of 2:11.42.

Hill said he was very happy with the season performance of his team

Iowa sits in Big 10 driver's seat; Indiana, Illini one game behind

By United Press International

Iowa, first in Big Ten basketball and ranked eighth in the nation, appears to be in the driver's seat as the conference season enters its last two weeks.

The Hawkeyes begin a two-game home stand Thursday against Michigan. Iowa, 11-3 in the league, owns a one-game lead over Illinois and Indiana.

After Michigan, Iowa hosts Wisconsin before winding up the campaign at Michigan State and then at Ohio State.

The road is tougher for both the Illini and Hoosiers. Illinois must travel to Minnesota Thursday and Purdue Saturday. Each is a contender for an NCAA berth. The Hoosiers are at home, but face the Buckeyes Thursday and Michigan Saturday.

In other games Thursday night, Wisconsin is at Purdue and Michigan State is at Northwestern.

Iowa has managed to get to the top with fine play on the road, but Coach Lute Olson said his team is too experienced to have a letdown coming back to play Michigan.

"Our players know what has to be done," Olson said. "The greater the pressure, the greater they seem to respond to it."

Michigan, 7-7 in the league but 16-7 overall, is coming back from a loss at home to Northwestern, and Coach Bill Frieder hopes his team can regroup for the final two weeks.

"We've just got to try to get things going so we can win a basketball game," Frieder said. "We're at the toughest part of our schedule again, playing two of the leaders on the road."

Illinois has surged into contention with excellent play from its guards, and Coach Lou Henson is confident his team can continue its momentum at Minnesota.

"It's a tough week, but our players have been confronted with tough weeks before," said Henson, whose club is 18-5 overall.

Illinois defeated Minnesota at home earlier this year, but has only beaten Minnesota twice on the road in the last 11 years and hasn't won at Purdue since 1963.

Indiana stayed in the race by whipping the Gophers, 74-63, last Saturday. But Coach Bobby Knight said he is still looking for consistency from his club in order to make a run at defending the Big Ten title.

Indiana defeated Ohio State on the road last month and will be seeking to shatter OSU's post-season playoff dreams.

Coach Eldon Miller, whose team was considered a strong contender for title honors, has been under fire all week from Buckeye followers but has insisted he won't resign.

Meade as his coach because he has allowed him to develop his own style.

"I like to work individually and I don't like criticism constantly," Bettis said. "I was doing bad at the beginning of the year and he would yell at me a lot because he knew I could do better. He would come over and talk things over with me and I knew he just wanted me to improve so I would make nationals again.

"Coach Meade is great because he lets me do what I want and doesn't make me do what he says," Bettis said. "He's great because he's both a friend and a coach. Once you graduate though, you know you have a friend for life."

The Saluki's troubled look during a recent home game reflects the outlook many SIU-C fans have about the troubled basketball program.

Only memories remain from cage past

DO YOU REMEMBER when the basketball Salukis were champs instead of chumps?

I do. That's why I'm writing this column. Saturday night's contest between SIU-C and Drake will be my last Saluki home game, and that fact stirs up a lot of memories of my first year in Carbondale.

I've attended close to 50 Saluki home games, both as a reporter and as a fan, in my four years as an SIU-C student. But the games from the 1977-78 season are the ones I remember most fondly.

Believe me, freshmen, the crowds of 2,500 you've read about this year would have been unheard of three years ago. I can remember the Salukis drawing sellout crowds of 10,014 for important Missouri Valley Conference games with Indiana State, New Mexico State and Creighton. Contests against Bradley and Wichita State drew about 9,000. And about 7,000 fans braved a snowstorm and sub-zero temperatures to watch SIU-C play a last-place West Texas State team.

THE 1977-78 SALUKIS even drew a crowd of almost 6,000 to watch the annual victory over ROOSEVELT, for Pete's sake.

The year before I arrived, the Salukis had been led by Mike Glenn, a fabulous guard, to the NCAA tournament. Glenn, whose grade-point average was almost as perfect as his jump shot, was gone in my first year, but the team still had some fine players.

Like Gary Wilson, a 6-6 forward known for his leaping ability and shattering slam-dunks, and Milt Huggins, a good outside shooter. Barry Smith and Wayne Abrams, just sophomores at the time, also played prominent roles. But perhaps the fans' favorite Saluki was Dan Kieszkowski, the team's designated "enforcer," whose elbows were feared around the MVC.

Nobody expected anything from that team—at least not during my freshman year. Like this year's team, the Salukis of 1977-78 had no seniors. That just made what happened that year more fun.

little man who preached disciplined offense and tough defense, and buoyed by screaming Arena crowds, the Salukis finished 17-10. They would have repeated as Valley champions with a win over Creighton in the last regular-season home game, but Wilson sprained his ankle and SIU-C lost the regionally-televised contest, 62-56.

Without Wilson, the Salukis lost their first-round MVC tournament game to Drake, 75-59. A crowd of just 3,000, the smallest of the year, showed up. At the time, nobody thought much of it, but it was an omen.

Lambert resigned, attracted by the big bucks Auburn University offered. He never coached a game there, dying in a motel fire in Columbus, Ga., in June of 1978.

Joe Gottfried, a successful Division III coach at Ashland College, was hired to replace Lambert. The team that got no respect in 1977-78 received nothing but adulation—the role of Valley favorite and a spot in several Top 20 polls—during the 1978-79 pre-season.

BUT A BIRD from French Lick, Ind., first name Larry, wrecked the Salukis' chances of going to the NCAA tourney. He led Indiana State from obscurity into the NCAA championship game, and the Salukis, saddled with a 15-13 record, sat at home and watched enviously. The slide has continued since then, to 9-17 in 1979-80 and a record 16-game losing streak this year. Gottfried is in grave danger of becoming the first SIU-C basketball coach to be fired.

But the memories remain. I still remember vividly the Salukis' 79-76 win over Indiana State in January of 1978. The Sycamores were undefeated and ranked fourth in the nation at the time, but Bird and Co. were shot down by Wilson, Abrams, Smith, Huggins and a crowd that refused to let SIU-C lose.

I'D LIKE TO make a film and set it to an appropriate piece of music—Barbra Streisand's "The Way We Were." The first half of the film would consist of clips of the 1977-78 Salukis, of Wilson dunking, Abrams befuddling opponents with his ballhandling, Lambert kneeling along the sidelines yelling instructions, and fans cheering.

The second part of the film would be the present—bad passes, traveling violations, leaky defense, Gottfried sitting in his chair with head bowed, and a massive sign reading "Saluki Basketball Crisis."

Gymnast a hit despite mom's jinx

By Michelle Schwent
Staff Writer

Randy Bettis' mother has never seen her son perform in a gymnastics meet because she thinks she is a jinx.

"My mother is paranoid as heck," Bettis said. "One time she went to see my brother play in a football game and as she pulled into the parking lot, an ambulance was leaving. When she got inside the stadium, they called her to the medic's room because my brother had broken his collarbone in the warmup."

Another time, she walked in the gym for a gymnastics meet and two minutes later Randy missed a vault, bruising six ribs and tearing cartilage in his chest. Last year at the Kurt Thomas exhibition, Mrs. Bettis came to watch her son's warm-up but went shopping during the meet because she was afraid to jinx her son. She didn't leave fast enough, however, as the electricity in the Arena went off soon after her departure.

Mrs. Bettis might finally get a chance to see Randy in a real meet because the Penn State meet was filmed last weekend by ESPN and will be aired Friday at 3:30 p.m. "Might" is the key word, according to Randy.

Now watch the TV set go on the blink," Bettis said.

Bettis can circumvent his mother's bad luck because he has a goal to make the NCAA national meet April 2-4 in Lincoln, Neb. Should he make the national meet, his parents and brother will come to watch it.

Bettis, a walk-on his freshman year, made the nationals last year in floor exercise but failed to make the finals. Going to the nationals again is one of his goals, but he would like to see the rest of his Saluki teammates go to nationals also. "I'd like to see the whole team get a chance to go because it is really exciting," Bettis said. "I can't even describe it, but it is so neat because everyone is pulling for everyone else to do well."

The senior from Jacksonville, Ill., is a floor exercise and vaulting specialist. Bettis said he started out the season well, then went into a slump following Christmas break. He has come out of the slump recently and has had a string of good performances. He finished first in floor exercise at Penn State last weekend and tied for third in vaulting. Earlier this month, he scored a 9.7 in vaulting, his personal best.

Bettis is easy to recognize in the floor exercise event because he exudes a certain flair and charisma. He has a style which sets him apart from the other gymnasts. He loves to dance and has incorporated dance moves into his routine.

"I love choreography and dance and I use a lot of it in my routines," Bettis said. "When I first came to SIU, that is what set me apart from the rest of the team. The first time I realized that people noticed the difference was last year at nationals when some guys from the Nebraska team came and told me that they loved my floor."

"I've sort of modeled my routines around Les Moore, who used to be with Oklahoma U., because he was very poetic," Bettis continued. "Now judges come up to me and tell me they remember me because I looked different."

Coach Bill Meade agrees that Bettis' style is different from other gymnasts.

"Randy is a very unique floor man because he doesn't do a stock routine," Meade said. "There is more of an expression of Randy Bettis in his work. A part of Randy comes out in his work and that is what makes him very enjoyable to watch."

Bettis is grateful to have

Senior Randy Bettis performs one of the tricks in his floor exercise routine during practice. Bettis got into gymnastics as the result of a dare from a friend in grade school. He will perform in his last home meet as a senior against Illinois State and Indiana State at the Arena Friday at 7:30 p.m.
