Take me to your leader

It was probably a strenuous afternoon for Kenny Reed, age 1½. After borrowing a slightly oversized space commando helmet, above, Kenny might have blasted off in his mind to captain a starship, fight aliens and explore new worlds, all while being within 100 yards of the SIU baseball team's game Wednesday at Abe Martin field. After all that work, however, it must have felt good to go back to mom, Nancy Reed of Carbondale, right, and get a big hug.

SIU student appeals sexual assault charge

An industrial technology senior is appealing his two-count deviate sexual assault conviction.

Joel F. Warren, 31, 174-5 Evergreen Terrace, was convicted in Jackson County Court on Jan. 18 of the deviate assault of a female SIU-C student.

Circuit Judge Richard E. Richman sentenced Warren March 8 to a six-year term in Mernard prison. Warren was released on a $2,000 appeal bond the same day, pending his appeal.

Warren's attorney, David W. Watt Jr., of Murphysboro, said he had nine weeks from March 8 to file the record of the case at the Fifth District Appellate Court in Mount Vernon.

According to Jackson County court records, Watt was arrested by SIU-C police Feb. 15 and charged with forcing a female jogger into his car and with sexually assaulting her.

Aid cuts rally to give Simon message

By Doug Hettinger
Staff Writer

Skydivers will be jumping, a band will be playing and U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Carbondale, will be speaking at 4 p.m. Friday in the SIU-C Free Forum Area as part of an "Education for Everyone" rally organized by the Graduate Student Council and the Undergraduate Student Organization.

The purpose of the rally is to let Simon know that the SIU-C student body supports him in his fight against proposed federal cutbacks in student aid, Debbie Brown, CSC president, said.

"It is also to bring out bodies to show solidarity, unity and the positive aspects of what we can accomplish if we work together," Brown said.

Simon, chairman of the post-secondary education subcommittee and chief spokesman on the House budget committee, will talk about current access to higher education and what President Reagan's proposed slashes in education funding will do to access in the future, David Carle, a Simon aide, said.

"We can't build a better, finer America by cutting back on educational financial opportunities," Simon said. "I have recommended rejection of the cutbacks and partial reinstatement of the funds to the fiscal 1981 level," he said.

Simon said he will again urge students to contact government leaders by writing letters and making phone calls protesting the cutbacks.

"When the message really reaches them it may be too late," Simon said.

Other speakers at the rally—Brown, Todd Rogers, USO president, and Stan Irvin, SIU-C student representative on the Board of Trustees—will address the issues of increased tuition and decreased student financial aid.

A band will perform although one hasn't been booked yet, Brown said.

NCPAC aims $14,000 in effort to unseat Simon

By Jay Small
Staff Writer

The National Conservative Political Action Committee intends to spend over $14,000 to defeat U.S. Rep. Paul Simon (D-22nd District) in November's general election, according to Joseph Steffen, NCPAC press aide.

However, Steffen said, NCPAC will not directly support Republican congressional nominee Peter Prineas in the race. Direct financial support for Prineas' campaign would limit the ability of the conservative group to campaign directly against Simon, he said.

"Initially, we were going after Paul Simon," Steffen said. "We still are, but we will not directly support his opponent."

The committee has a total budget of around $6 million, which it is using to advertise independently against targeted liberal candidates for U.S. Senate and House seats nationwide, he said.

Of the total budget, about $20,000 was allocated for anti-Simon advertising. Just under $6,000 of that was spent prior to Dec. 31, 1981, according to Steffen.

He said Simon was not one of NCPAC's biggest targets. "I don't think he's anywhere near the top," Steffen said. The average expenditure for House races has been estimated at around $40,000 each, he said.

NCPAC spends considerably more on Senate races, he said. Over $500,000 has already been spent to try to defeat Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.), a key NCPAC target.

The conservative group uses most of the funds for advertising, Steffen said the funds targeted for Simon will be used for newspaper, radio and TV ads.

"The money will be spread out fairly evenly," he said. "I don't imagine we'll use too much TV in Simon's case."

NCPAC targets candidates on the basis of ratings from independent conservative groups such as the American Conservative Union, Steffen said. The committee tries not to orient their anti-liberal campaigns on single issues, he said.

The campaign against Simon is being handled directly from NCPAC headquarters in Arlington, Va., Steffen said. Regional NCPAC representatives operate in areas where several candidates are targeted.

Because of campaign funding laws, NCPAC operates independently of any candidates.

New military junta discards Guatemalan constitution

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The new military junta threw out Guatemala's constitution Wednesday and suspended all political party activities but promised to respect human rights, the state radio said.

The radio announcement said the three-man junta — which seized power from a rightist military regime that had governed under a succession of generals chosen in tainted elections — would rule by decree until further notice.

The junta planned to announce a "statute of government" under which it would operate until a new constitution is written and ratified, the radio said.

A six-man advisory council of military men, believed to represent the junior officers who spearheaded the overthrow of Gen. Fernando Romeo Lucas Garcia's regime in Tuesday's bloodless coup, was named Wednesday. They include officers from the army and air force, ranking from colonel to second lieutenant.

Hours after the coup, the junta dissolved Guatemala's 61-seat single-house Congress. Wednesday's announcement prohibits all activities by political parties.

Lucas Garcia's government often was accused of widespread human rights abuses in the fight against leftist guerrillas.

In Washington, the Reagan administration reacted cautiously.

Columbia's mission to continue despite increasing problems

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Columbia was breaking its own mileage record Wednesday, skimming the globe with two airtight astronauts and a stopped-up toilet. But tests went well and a flight chief said, "I'm confident we'll be able to fly the full duration."

During their third day in space, astronauts Jack R. Lousma and C. Gordon Fullerton were told, "The experimenters are all very excited about the excellent data they are getting."

Fullerton responded that the thanks are due to the scientists "for putting out a good machine."

Wednesday also was a big one for Todd Nelson, a Minnesota high school senior whose experiment was chosen from hundreds of student entries. The astronauts were to haul out a plastic box with honeybees, caterpillar moths and flies, to see how they behaved in weightless space.

Columbia had not gone past the 54½-hour mark before — by design on flight one; because of a fuel cell breakdown on flight two.

Flying a nose-to-sun thermal test, 150 miles high, Columbia would pass that milestone in its 37th orbit, late Wednesday afternoon.

The ship had traveled more than 3½ million miles, and it showed.

The toilet wouldn't flush and there was an indication of a nitrogen leak in the cabin pressure system. A vital camera on the wrist of the robot arm still would not work; the cabin got too chilly again overnight; there was condensation on the back window; the experiments' tape recorder conked out; and an environmental package would not work on the orbiter's power.

For all these troubles NASA was trying to find solutions.

The combination of the astronauts' delicate health and the long, tough work day Tuesday caused Mission Control to tinker with the schedule and substitute a less busy series of tasks.

The astronauts slept better despite hearing static while over China and Iran. But their motion sickness had not disappeared.

"They're still not feeling as well as we'd like," said flight director Tom Holloway. Lousma and Fullerton both were taking pills containing scopolamine and Dexamethasone.

Flight surgeon Dr. Samuel Poole said the astronauts were "about to turn the corner."

The commander of the White Sands Missile Range where Columbia is to land next Monday had good news for gawkers — he said the range would be opened to 15,000 people for the occasion.

Senate sustains Reagan oil veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican-ruled Senate voted Wednesday to sustain President Reagan's veto of a bill giving him emergency oil-control powers he said he didn't want.

The vote was 58 to 36 to override, far less than the two-thirds margin required to enact a law over a presidential veto.

The veto was the first of the three Reagan has cast since taking office to be challenged in either chamber.

Coming after what Senate sources said was a heavy, last-minute lobbying blitz by the White House, the Senate vote alone sustained the veto — eliminating the need for action on the veto in the Democratic-led House.

The bill would have given the president powers he insisted he didn't want: authority to allocate crude oil supplies and impose price controls during severe shortages.

Congress gave the president this authority in the mid-1970s, but it lapsed last September 30 — with the administration making no moves to seek its re-enactment.

Reagan, claiming that Americans have been hurt by past efforts to allocate fuel supplies, vetoed the bill last Saturday, even though Republican Senate leaders had warned him an override was likely.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, told the Senate not to vote to sustain the veto out of "blind loyalty" to Reagan. He said the legislation is needed for the federal government to cope with a major oil disruption, like another oil embargo.

Death toll climbs to 5 in West Bank

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli soldiers shot and killed three more Arabs and wounded 10 Wednesday in the worst day of violence in weeklong rioting in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan and the Gaza Strip.

It raised the casualty toll to five Arabs dead and 21 wounded in six days. Eight Israelis also were injured Wednesday by rock-throwing protesters, a military spokesman said.

An Israeli border patrol also captured a squad of three Arab guerrillas en route from Lebanon to Israel's northern border, the military command said.

Army chief takes over in Bangladesh

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Bangladesh's army chief seized power Wednesday in an apparently bloodless coup after pressuring the civilian government for months to oust corrupt officials. Radio Bangladesh reported.

Lt. Gen. Hussain Mohammad Ershad clamped martial law on the impoverished country of 90 million people and proclaimed himself head of the government, the official radio in the capital city of Dacca said in broadcasts monitored in this Indian port city.

"This government has completely failed," the 52-year-old career officer said.

Workers protest budget in Springfield

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Chanting "Budget Justice Now!" and "Solidarity Forever," about 1,500 people — mostly unionized workers — marched on the Capitol on Wednesday, condemning job cuts and shrinking social service program spending.

The demonstration drew 16 busloads of workers from Chicago and hundreds of Downstate public union employees. It was the largest rally by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees union since 1975, one AF-SCME leader said.

Registering student vote is USO goal

By Christopher Kade
Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Organization is convinced that students "can and will make a difference" in the November elections, and has begun a voter registration drive to back up that resolve.

USO President Todd Rogers said that "the only way to fight drastic student aid cuts and tuition increases is through the ballot box, and it is only if students realize their voting potential that the powers-that-be will listen."

What the USO has done is set up a "symbolic step five" in the four-step process of registration for classes taking place in the Registration Center at Woody Hall. Students who wish to register to vote will have the opportunity to do so through April 6 at a special table set up in the room.

"We want to make students feel guilty if they pass our table by," Rogers said. "It only takes a couple of minutes to register."

The USO has set a goal of registering 5,000 new voters, but would be "very happy" if it could get 3,000, according to Rogers.

He said that it is "real easy to register in Carbondale" and "real easy to re-register back home."

But, Rogers said that "since students live in Jackson County most of the year, they are more affected by decisions of the Carbondale City Council than their home councils."

He pointed to the recently passed so-called "amusement" taxes as an example of an issue that students should have been concerned about, repeating his opinion that it was an "inequitable" tax that "saddled students with paying an unfair proportion of the costs for a facility" — the proposed downtown parking garage — "from which they will receive little benefit."

Rogers said he feels that such laws would not be passed if city and county elected officials were more accountable to a large student electorate.

"If students vote in a united manner, they can decide who gets elected to city and county posts. It is about time that each student takes the individual responsibility toward collective action," he said.

Memories of mine disaster linger on like dust in coal shaft

By Terri Cotby
Associated Press Writer

CENTRALIA (AP) — Many townspeople recall the sounds of ambulance sirens screaming through the city that cold day nearly 35 years ago that began the longest week in Centralia's history.

Thursday marks the 35th anniversary of the infamous Centralia mine disaster — a coal dust explosion that claimed the lives of 111 men and sent an entire town into mourning.

The explosion was on a Tuesday just before the end of the day shift at the Centralia Coal Co. No. 5 mine just south of this Southern Illinois town. Children were coming home from school and miners' wives were fixing supper for their husbands.

Many of the husbands didn't come home. Just 31 men made it out alive.

It was Saturday before all the bodies were recovered. Each day crews boarded the lifts and headed into the depths of the mine. When they came back up, they lifted stretchers carrying dead bodies to the open doors of waiting ambulances. For days the local newspaper printed new death tolls.

Hundreds of people crowded around the mine entrance, waiting for the bodies to be removed as the city's church bells tolled.

Twelve of the last miners removed were found in a circle on the floor of one of the deep recesses of the mine, 540 feet below the surface. They knew they were about to die. When rescue workers found the bodies, they also found a message scrawled on the rock face of the mine room — "Look in everybody's pockets. We all have notes. Give them to our wives."

The notes, written in pitch darkness on sheets torn from a boss' time book, were barely legible. They were printed in a copyright story in the Centralia Evening Sentinel.

"It looks like the end for me," wrote one miner to his wife. "I love you, honey more than life itself. If I don't make it please do the best you can and always remember me and love me, honey."

Another said, "Goodbye. Name baby Joe, so you will have a Joe. Love all, Dad."

Fred Hellmeyer, 87, the mine's chief electrician at the time of the explosion, was one of the survivors.

"Those men that left the notes — they didn't live very long," Hellmeyer recalled. "They moved down to a certain place where they thought they would be safe, but the air wasn't any good there. They just laid down a few at a time and died."

After the search ended, Centralia began the grim task of burying its dead. Funerals were scheduled hourly from the local undertaking establishments. Flowers were scarce and caskets had to be shipped in. Rescued miners assisted in digging graves for their fellow workers.

Few families were left untouched by the tragedy. "Some were fathers. Some were brothers. There's hardly a family in Centralia that wasn't affected," recalled Hellmeyer's wife, Louise, 77. Mrs. Hellmeyer, like many others in town, remembers exactly what she was doing when she learned of the trouble at No. 5.

"I had gone into the grocery store and I heard the men talking. When I opened the door and went inside they quit talking. When I went to the butcher to ask for some meat I asked him if something was wrong. He said 'Haven't you heard, Mrs. Hellmeyer...' He said, 'Something has happened down at the mine but we don't know what.'"

She didn't buy any meat. She went home to wait for word from her husband.

As the men began rescue efforts that first night, many of the wives packed the buildings outside the mine shaft as they did on the following days.

"When we got out that first night around 10 or 10:30, there was women all over the washhouse," Hellmeyer recalled.

Mrs. Hellmeyer wasn't one of them. She said someone had told her her husband was alive and that he'd gone back down into the mine. "I didn't think I would lose him. I had a feeling that things were all right," she said.

The youngest victim was 17, the oldest 71. They left behind 99 wives and 78 children under 18.

The investigation into the blast resulted in the resignation of the director of the state Department of Mines and Minerals and a $1,000 fine for the coal company.

Opinion & Commentary

We need to know the truth about El Salvador

DO YOU KNOW where El Salvador is? For a surprisingly large number of people, the answer to that question would be "No." Despite the well-publicized controversy over what role the United States should play in that troubled country, a large portion of the American public is still unaware of even the rudimentary facts about the situation.

A recent poll of students at a university in North Dakota, for instance, showed that only 37 percent of those asked knew where El Salvador is located. Most thought it was in Africa or Asia. Many had no idea.

Such statistics are frightening. Our involvement in the civil war in El Salvador stands to have far-reaching effects on our foreign policy and our place in Latin America. A well-informed American public is vital if we are to guide our leaders in making effective decisions.

An opportunity for the SIU-C community to learn about the El Salvadoran situation is available this week thanks to the Coalition for Change. This recently organized student group has planned a week of activities to demonstrate discontent with U.S. foreign policy in El Salvador.

THE WEEK will include films and panel discussions at the Newman Center and a protest march Friday. Even if you don't want to join the protest, take this opportunity to find out as much as possible about our position in El Salvador and the situation in that nation.

The alternative to learning the facts is to let our leaders make policy without input, while an ignorant American public sits by. Such a course is a formula for disaster. Our history shows that blindly following politicians seldom results in wise policy decisions.

El Salvador presents a confusing situation to America, one rife with questions. What touched off the crisis? Are communists involved with the guerrillas? Should the U.S. military get involved?

These questions need to be answered, and the answers will affect us all. They can be made by politicians, in secret and out of the sight of an ignorant nation. Or they can be made with the participation of an informed populace.

The choice is ours.

Letters

Everyone has a religion

Laud, laud to Bob Phillips — O most sincere servant of the light diety, Aletia, Phillips' letter to the editor March 2 made the issue of Christianity and humanistic beliefs very clear.

I wish all evolutionists would be as honest. They should admit that our society, as it manifests itself in the educational systems, worships nature itself through the theory of evolution.

We're taught in school that, over much time, nature designed the complicated, orderly world that we see today. The high priests of the religion — venerable professors and other educators — call this the miracle of evolution. Nature selects, so they insist, and has the power to create life from non-living matter by chance.

Our indoctrinators also insist that "Mother Nature" amazingly brings order out of chaos again by chance even though we never see it happen, and regardless that the pesky old Second Law of Thermodynamics renders it impossible.

Evolutionists have just as much faith as Christians since science, which is merely concerned with the observation and study of objective data, "endorses" neither belief.

Interestingly enough, atheistic or naturalistic philosophies taken to their inevitable conclusion deals a death blow to science. Why? Since there can be no ultimate, objective reality above nature in those systems of faith (like a creator, for example), the scientist cannot know that what he observes in the test tube or under the microscope is really there. It could as easily be a subjective mind trip.

Furthermore, that scientist cannot speak out against rape, murder or other injustices and be consistent with evolutionary philosophy because such concepts of right and wrong are meaningless in an impersonal, chance universe.

And forget about human rights. If we're not created with inalienable rights like the Declaration of Independence says, then we have nothing but privileges from the mighty state — no rights. The state giveeth and the state taketh away. Blessed be the name of the state. Oh, now we're worshipping another "nature" diety. See what happens when the creator is ignored?

So, if you want to worship nature dieties (self and state worship included) and forfeit the principles of freedom that come from a God who transcends nature and gives men and women worth because he created them in his image, worship your 60-watt bulb or your light goddess.

Nature will pass away like you and I. But Jesus Christ, who overcame nature's law of death, promises relief from extinction for those who seek him. The creator transcends time and space and, unlike nature, is infinite. I'm with him.

Let's just be honest like Bob Phillips. I'm religious, you're religious, Carl Sagan is religious — all God's children are religious. No more pretending that there is such a thing as neutrality — OK? — Doug Jennings, Carbondale

Myths hurt Central America

By John Patrick
Member, Coalition for Change

THE EL SALVADORAN elections are scheduled to be conducted Sunday and the Reagan administration, vehement supporters of Duarte's "Christian Democrat coalition," will undoubtedly use the elections as proof of their pro-reform stance. They argue that the Christian Democrats are a "people's party," that reforms are presently underway in that country, and that most of the Central American violence is Soviet-Cuban backed and part of the Kremlin's plan to take over the world.

Amnesty International and the Catholic Church of Central America recorded over 25,000 deaths in El Salvador in 1981. Three-fifths of those deaths were directly linked to the ruling government. Before his murder, Archbishop Romero said, "Christian Democracy claims to offer an alternative to the government by oligarchy when in reality it is opposed to the people's interests. It's participation in the junta is a facade for international opinion. Real power is in the hands of the unscrupulous military men who only know how to repress the people."

Former U.S. Senator J.W. Fulbright addresses the possibilities of reform under the oligarchy in his work "The Arrogance of Power." "Worse, if that (the automatic condemnation of any movement with communist support) is our view, then we have made ourselves the prisoners of the Latin American oligarchies who are engaged in a vain attempt to preserve the status quo — reactions who habitually use the term 'communist' very loosely, in part an emotional predilection and in part a precalculated effort to scare the United States into supporting their selfish and discredited aims."

BECAUSE THE junta supports those who make inordinate amounts of money from coffee exports and other exploitative enterprises, El Salvador's economic reforms are not working. The claim that the Salvadoran trouble is Soviet-inspired, Cuban backed, etc. is an ideological belief with little empirical support. The Washington Post and the Wall Street Journal found the administration's evidence exposing the Cuban-Soviet instigation in Central America had been fabricated.

A brief examination of the Revolutionary Democratic Front in El Salvador shows it is made up of labor unions, teachers unions and two moderate social democrat parties. The FDR is not communist controlled, but it is communist supported. Failure to recognize the difference between communist support and communist control results in the disastrous policy Fulbright decries.

As you can clearly see, we have inherited a lot of myths regarding Central America. These myths are infringements upon our intellectual freedom and are used by policy makers to take away the rights of Central Americans.

CENTRAL AMERICAN revolutionaries risk their lives to make even mild anti-government statements. We are more fortunate in that we can speak out without much risk. As students and professors, we owe it both to ourselves and to others to think through these issues and to speak the truth.

You can learn more about recent events in Central America by attending some of this week's Central American education events sponsored by the Coalition for Change. If nothing else, write your congressional representatives to let them know how you feel about the issue.

Listener doesn't like it after 30 days

As I consider myself a very open minded person, I have given Mr. Glassman a 30-day listening trial. I now find that not only do I disagree with WTOA's new format, I am also very disturbed with Glassman's theory of radio and the arts in general.

First of all, I would like to comment on the comparison of WTOA with Chicago's WXRT. This is totally absurd. WXRT is a totally progressive rock music station. They pride themselves on being a "no-hype" FM station with probably the largest variety of music ever to hit the air waves. You could listen to WTOA for days nonstop and never hear the likes of Muddy Waters, Jean LucPonty, Joni Mitchell, The Pretenders and I could go on forever. WTOA has become a follower of the big name radio stations like WLS — radio stations that people tune into to create a diversion for the noise that's going on inside their heads.

Glassman's theory of radio is who cares what the people think as long as we make money. College students do not prefer music that is just unfamiliar.

WTOA plays old favorites from established bands like the Beatles, Rolling Stones and so on. In the early 1960s these bands were very controversial and would have never made it with today's influence such as that held at WTOA. So, as the students of SIU-C regress into beings that remind us of "Invasion of the Body Snatchers," Glassman will be sitting at some resort sipping a pina colada. — Howard Berkel, Junior, Computer Science

All types of solar systems on itinerary

Solar home tours set for Saturday

By Randy Renfield
Staff Writer

A day of tours to solar and energy-efficient homes in Southern Illinois is being arranged by the Carbondale League of Women Voters.

On April 3, two bus tours are planned — one in the morning, one in the afternoon. Each tour will visit four homes that have been designed by local firms or individuals. Both passive and active solar systems, as well as retrofits and new construction, will be included.

Tours will begin at 8:45 a.m. and 1 p.m. at the Carbondale Unitarian Fellowship at the corner of North University and West Elm.

An introductory slide show will be presented by Yolande Tullar of the Shawnee Solar Project. Tullar's presentation will deal specifically with principles involved in the designs of the houses, said Linda Helstern, a member of the Carbondale League of Women Voters' Solar Tour Committee.

THE MORNING TOUR will visit the following four homes:

— Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Rockman's active solar home, which features an 18,000-gallon indoor swimming pool. The pool stores solar-collected heat for the 5,000 square-foot home, which uses both active and passive solar components, as well as wood-burning fireplaces, a water-to-water heat pump, solar greenhouse, and cooling by waterfall.

— Ed Cook's "thermal envelope" house and greenhouse. The greenhouse provides most of the house's heat. An 80-year-old woodburning stove supplies additional heat. Cook refers to his home as a "house within a house." Sun-warmed air is circulated from the greenhouse to the rest of the house through a space between a double wall which forms the outer shell of the home.

— Bill Borgognone's passive solar home, which uses south-facing insulated glass to collect solar radiation. The radiation is absorbed into concrete slabs and is released after sundown as heat. Borgognone's home is supplemented with a wood-burning heater. An earth wall protects part of the north side of the house.

— Archibald McLeod's house, built in 1954, which has every room heated by a passive solar design. Trees shade the house in the summer and allow sunlight to penetrate the home in the winter through its south-facing windows. Only a few small windows and the front door allow heat to escape from the home's north side. The lower level of the north side is set into the ground to give protection from wind. The heating system is supplemented by gas heat.

'The principles of solar energy are not new, and they have been used in some cultures for thousands of years'

THE AFTERNOON TOUR will visit the following four homes:

— Congressman Paul Simon's home, which uses a direct-gain passive solar design as well as two heat pumps. A concrete floor and masonry chimney store solar energy and release it after dark. The house is surrounded by trees to cut down the amount of wind, and very few windows face the north.

— John and Muriel Hayward's 3,800 square-foot home, which has been retrofitted to employ a unique active solar heating system. The system is to be regulated by a computer that is in the process of being programmed. Heat is collected all summer by collectors. The heat can either be transferred to short-term storage — six insulated tanks in the basement which contain 720 gallons of water — or into long-term storage — three 17,000-gallon tanks buried near the collectors which have been landscaped into the yard about 100 feet from the Hayward's home.

— The House of the Congregation of the Passion, which incorporates a solar greenhouse to heat a 1,100 square-foot addition to the home. The addition gets supplementary heat from the floor — a gas heater blows into a heavy layer of rock below.

— Linda and Richard Helstern's home, which they designed for passive solar heat from air circulating underneath for cooling and humidity control.

THE TOURS will try to represent a "variety of different houses and different individuals in the area," Linda Helstern said. The league is providing the tour "as a public information service and has tried to include a variety of types of designs and firms," she added.

"The principles of solar energy are not new, and they have been used in some cultures for thousands of years," Helstern said. In the 19th century, principles of solar energy were applied in construction. In the late 1920s and

Dancers, bad humor mar performance

By Roger Taylor
Staff Writer

The performance by the Hartford Ballet Tuesday was highlighted by some enjoyable aspects, but the program was marred by two elements.

Although thoroughly capable technique-wise, the dancers did not appear to be totally at ease in their various roles, rarely moving beyond a merely satisfactory rendering. Also, the choice of pieces reflected a monotonous sameness in both mover, nt and theme.

The troupe appeared before an audience of 840 in a performance sponsored by the Shryock Auditorium Celebrity Series.

The opening "Allegro Brillante," with choreography by George Balanchine, restaged by Sara Leland, with music from Tchaikovsky's Third Piano Concerto, appeared frantic and hurried.

Dance Review

"Little Improvisations," a reconstruction of an Anthony Tudor "arrangement," featured Victoria Vaslett and Ted Hershey portraying two children in their nursery. Robert Schumann's solo piano pieces, "Children's Scenes," accompanied the two "children" as they progressed through a series of fantasy characters and emotional states.

Following the first in-termission, the entire group assembled to perform "Cachiraches" (Knick-knacks), with choreography by Michael Uthoff. The music consisted of alterations between baroque orchestral music and small jazz ensemble music. "Cachiraches" was a tedious series of quotidian events that the dancers experience in their basement studio.

Many non-dancer elements, such as cigarette smoking, were incorporated into the action, and the dancers wore rehearsal clothes. Dull-witted attempts at humor included mis-performed lifts and lecherous noises directed at the females by the men.

Elegantly performed, the Romeo and Juliet "Pas de deux" was the program's highlight. Uthoff's choreography, aided by music selected from the Prokofief score, conveyed both the erotic and the tragic.

"Leggiero" was the company's final offering. Beethoven's folk dances for piano and Biedermeyer era-type costumes suggested a dance parlor of the early 19th century.

Similar structurally to "Cachiraches," the dance was a tedious series of mundane movements. Once again, an insipid type of humor was injected into the work by means of mis-executions and sexual "naughtiness," such as two men waltzing together.

Elks Club to show two French films

Two films by French director Rene Clair will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Elks Club, 200 W. Jackson St.

"Entr'acte," a short subject, and "A Nous La Liberte," a feature-length film, will be screened in a program sponsored by L'Association Franco-chlohone, a newly-formed local group whose members share an interest in the language, civilization and culture of France.

A discussion will follow the presentation. Admission is $1 for members, $2 for non-members.

Paul Newman is nominated for best actor for his 'Absence of Malice.' The film is nominated for an Oscar Award as best original screenplay.

Different genres make a farce of choosing year's best films

By Arnie Bernstein
Student Writer

There are many ways to look at the Academy Awards show. Does it truly measure artistic achievement in motion pictures? Or is it only a television extravaganza designed to boost ABC's rating points and to give celebrities a chance to bang their own drums?

The whole idea of comparing different film genres and artistic styles and choosing which is "best" is a ludicrous thought. As far as I know, "Reds" failed as an action-adventure film and simply cannot compare to the entertainment machine, "Raiders of the Lost Ark" on that level.

And Dudley Moore may have appeared dismal in his portrayal of a drunken playboy in "Arthur" if one compares it to Henry Fonda's performance in "On Golden Pond." Still, one of the givens is that one must choose the "best" from such polar opposites.

One reason people continue to watch the Oscar show is for fun, so why not have some fun with predictions? Yes, it's all political infighting. Yes, they don't mean much artistically. But you know you're going to watch the show anyway.

First, let's take a brief look at films the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences forgot. Woefully missing from most nomination lists were such fine efforts as "Body Heat," "Prince of the City" and "Four Friends." Good critical arguments might also be advanced for "Absence of Malice," "S.O.B." and even "Superman II."

On the humorous side, the box office and critical bombshell "Heaven's Gate" did manage to get nominated for best art direction. Michael Cimino is probably laughing all the way to the poorhouse.

Here are predictions for some of the better-known categories.

Best Original Screenplay: "Atlantic City" by John Guare. This film had one of the most highly-praised scripts of the year and for that reason will probably stick in the minds of the mostly illiterate, coked-out Hollywood community. Other nominees: "Arthur" by Steve Gordon; "Absence of Malice" by Kurt Luedtke; "Reds" by Warren Beatty and Trevor Griffiths; and "Chariots of Fire" by Colin Welland.

Best Supporting Actor: John Gielgud in "Arthur." Gielgud was the funniest thing in "Arthur" and almost single-handedly stole the film. Other nominees: Jack Nicholson in "Reds"; Howard Rollins in "Ragtime"; Ian Holm in "Chariots of Fire"; and James Coco in "Only When I Laugh."

Best Supporting Actress: Maureen Stapleton in "Reds." Stapleton was well-cast in the important role of Emma Goldman and was an excellent counterpart to Warren Beatty's John Reed. Other nominees: Jane Fonda in "On Golden Pond"; Elizabeth McGovern in "Ragtime"; Melinda Dillon in "Absence of Malice"; and Joan Hackett in "Only When I Laugh."

Competition is usually strong for the four big awards, yet most winners can easily be predicted. Anyone with a good sense of box office receipts and a year's supply of People magazine can usually pick the winners nine times out of 10. Still, there are occasional surprises, and in good years, some really tough choices.

Best Actor: Henry Fonda in "On Golden Pond." Tradition almost dictates an Oscar for Fonda. He has received an honorary Oscar for his overall contribution to films but has never won an Academy Award. He has given us some great performances in the past, and "On Golden Pond" was his finest.

Dudley Moore was a lot of fun in "Arthur," but the Academy rarely gives its awards to comedies. Most likely "Arthur" won't get the last laugh Monday night.

Also nominated were Paul Newman in "Absence of Malice"; Warren Beatty in "Reds"; dirt Lancaster in "Atlantic City." Here are three fine performances. Each characterization was nearly flawless. But let's face it — none of them stand a chance against the sentimental favorite.

Best Actress: Katharine Hepburn for "On Golden Pond." Diane Keaton probably offers the closest competition to Hepburn. As Louise Bryant in "Reds," Keaton showed a range that surprised many. With "Reds" and "Shoot the Moon" under her belt, Keaton has finally broken out of her role as Woody Allen's girlfriend. But Katharine Hepburn is Katharine Hepburn (and also one of America's greatest acting talents). She was at her finest in "On Golden Pond," which means a hands-down Oscar for Kate.

Every year the Academy nominates Marsha Mason (this year for "Only When I Laugh"), probably for having the guts to appear in another of her husband Neil Simon's witless comedies.

Meryl Streep was a real tour de force in her dual role of wronged Victorian woman and modern day actress in "The French Lieutenant's Woman." But since the movie was pretty much ignored by the Academy, chances are Meryl will be too.

Also nominated is Susan Sarandon in "Atlantic City." Wouldn't it be great if Sarandon won? She was absolutely dynamic in "Atlantic City," proving once and for all that she is more than Janet Weiss. I'd really like to see her win; sadly, she won't because of the heavyweight competition.

Best Director: Warren Beatty for "Reds." Beatty has already won this year's Directors Guild of America award. In the past 30 out of 32 elections, the DGA early '40s, solar water heaters were marketed, she said.

"Energy was very cheap then. Advances were made, especially with air conditioning in the late 1960s. So, solar heating and cooling were neglected until the cost of energy rose in 1973. Interest also stemmed from serious interest in the ecology then," Helstern said.

"After several years of study by the local leagues across the United States, the national League of Women Voters adopted a broad-based energy policy emphasizing energy conservation and passive solar construction as significant short-term solutions," Helstern said.

THE SHAWNEE Solar Project, located at 806 S. Forest St., "is also making its resources available, as they are a public information service," Helstern said.

The cost of one tour is $4.75 per person, or $9.50 for the whole day. Seating is limited, and advance registrations are needed, Helstern said. Reservations can be made by calling 540-5780 between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Psychologists at SIU-C have conducted major research programs on migraine and muscle-contraction headaches, insomnia, hypertension, and other health problems.

has successfully predicted Oscar's best director. So Warren will get the award, and why not? Anyone who can do in 3½ hours what Beatty did in "Reds" certainly deserves high recognition. Also nominated are Hugh Hudson for "Chariots of Fire," Steven Spielberg for "Raiders of the Lost Ark," Louis Malle for "Atlantic City" and Mark Rydell for "On Golden Pond."

Best Picture: "Reds." The question on everyone's mind is: Can "Reds," the story of John Reed and the birth of communism in America, win best picture in these politically conservative times? Despite the fact that HUAC's golden boy of the 1950s is currently president of the United States, I think "Reds" will win. It is a grand, sweeping epic that never loses sight of the human factor

Also nominated: "Chariots of Fire" — a good though overpraised film that doesn't really stand a chance. Both its director and style are distinctly British, and the Academy won't give the big one to foreigners.

"Atlantic City," also nominated, is one of 1981's outstanding films. It had a great cast, a marvelous screenplay and a good director. Unfortunately, it was recognized more by the critics, who have no weight with the Academy.

"On Golden Pond," another nominee, was a warm, humanistic film. However, the Academy has given best picture to family dramas for the past two years, so it looks like "On Golden Pond" will lose out.

The other nominee for best picture is "Raiders of the Lost Ark." "Raiders of the Lost Ark"? Best picture? Come on!

Moot court teams advance to national finals for first time

By Tom Travin
News Editor

Two moot court competition teams from SIU-C's School of Law finished second in their respective regional competitions, and one will be travelling to San Francisco in August to take part in the national finals.

The American Bar Association National Appellate Advocacy Moot Court Team finished second in the Midwest regional competition, held March 19 and 20 in Chicago. Two teams represented SIU-C in the contest: one consisted of Brian Shore, a second-year law student, and Tom Pajda, a third-year law student, while the other consisted of Tate Schnorf and Linda Hawkins, both third-year law students.

"Naturally, we're very pleased with the showing of the ABA team in the regional competition," said Don Garner, associate dean of the Law School. "It is an impressive accomplishment in a very prestigious competition."

This is the first time an SIU-C moot court team has advanced to the national competition, Garner said.

Pat Kelley, Law School faculty member and advisor to the ABA team, said the competition consisted of oral arguments of appellate court cases, argued by the teams before a panel of judges. The panel was made up of various appellate lawyers and judges, who send out the record of a lower court decision before the competition takes place, giving the teams time to prepare their arguments.

"The teams then took turns arguing for either the petitioner or the respondent," Kelley said. "The teams argued twice on the first day, and the SIU-C team was undefeated until the final round."

Kelley said 12 teams took part in the competition, representing seven schools: DePaul, Marquette, Indiana University at Indianapolis, IIT-Kent and John Marshall, both of Chicago, Valparaiso and SIU-C. Both SIU-C and Indiana will advance to the national finals in San Francisco, he said.

The international moot court team also finished second in the Jessup International Law Moot Court Regional Competition, held March 5 and 6 in Iowa City, Iowa. Two teams, one consisting of Elizabeth Rodgers and Thomas O'Shaughnessy, both third-year law students, and the other of Marty Schnorf and Ann Diamond, both second-year law students, led SIU-C to a second place finish behind the University of Wisconsin at Madison in the overall scoring.

The SIU-C team also beat Wisconsin on brief writing scores and won the runner-up Best Memorial (or Brief).

However, due to judging differences between the ABA and international competitions, the University of Iowa advanced to the national competition, to be held April 20 in Washington, D.C. Iowa advanced because they had the highest win-loss ratio in the competition, despite the fact they finished fourth in the overall scoring, according to Isaac Dore, Law School faculty member.

"The scoring is done differently in the international competition," he said. "Instead of two teams advancing from the regional to the national meets, only one team advances, and it is based on its win-loss record."

Ten schools competed in the international regional, said Dore: Creighton, Hamline University, University of Wisconsin at Madison, University of Kentucky, University of Missouri-Columbia, University of Indiana at Indianapolis and at Bloomington, University of Iowa, Washington University of St. Louis and SIU-C.

The judging panel is made up of local judges and scholars of international law, said Dore. Contestants are sent a court record and a "compromis," which states the disagreement between the parties, in order to prepare their arguments before a simulated setting of the International Court of Justice.

Dore said international law differs from national law in that the petitioner and respondent are states or countries instead of individuals. When one state files a complaint in the International Court of Justice, the other state involved must agree to the jurisdiction of the court before the Court can resolve the dispute.

Moral Majority leader to speak at SII meeting

The Rev. Jerry Falwell, president of Moral Majority, Inc., will speak at an annual meeting of Southern Illinois, Inc., April 26 in the Student Center.

Falwell, 47, is pastor of the Thomas Road Baptist Church in Lynchburg, Va. He built it from a congregation of 35 in an old bottling company building in 1966 into the second-largest church in the nation with 17,000 members.

Falwell was named 1975 Clergyman of the Year by Religious Heritage of America. His radio and television show, the Old Time Gospel Hour, is heard by more than 25 million people and is aired over more North American outlets than any show, religious or secular.

An outspoken opponent of liberal attitudes, Falwell recently has set his sights on immorality and violence in television programming.

His address before SII will be preceded by a musical program performed by the LBC Singers.

County artworks to open new show

A new show by two members of the Jackson County Artworks will open from 2 to 4:30 p.m. Sunday in the gallery at 715 S University.

The show, running until April 16, will feature the works of Beth Smout and Bert Elliott.

Smout's works include pieces in bronze, water color, Cray-Pas, ink wash and fibers. Elliott's work is in mild steel. JCA is a group of area artists and people interested in participation and promotion of art in southern Illinois.

Self-treatment is enough in most poison ivy cases

By Chris Berkowks, R.N.
Family Nurse Practitioner

There are many myths about poison ivy. Here are some basic facts to help you understand and cope with the rash.

Poison ivy, native to this area, is a trailing, climbing vine with slightly green leaves in groups of three, greenish white flowers and berries. Poison oak and sumac contain a similar resin and causes a similar skin reaction. The resulting rash is caused by contact with the oil (resin) of the plant either directly by touching the plant or indirectly, such as from pets, contaminated clothing or smoke from burning leaves. The rash may be acquired during any season.

If the resin is allowed to remain on the skin, the resulting rash will appear in 12 to 48 hours and may last up to three weeks. The rash begins with itching, redness and a feeling of warmth and burning. Soon after, fluid-filled blisters appear.

You cannot spread the rash from one part of your body to another by touching yourself, nor can you pass it to someone else.

The rash blisters appear at different times, based on the amount of exposure to the resin. Where there is less contact the slower the body's reaction. The area of skin which had the most contact with the resin is the one that will first develop the blisters.

The purposes of treatment are to modify the reaction and alleviate the itching. Treatment may consist of cool water compresses and leaving the rash open to air. Over the counter (OTC) products which may be used are calamine lotion, 5 percent hydrocortisone cream or antihistamines taken by mouth to control itching. Avoid ointments with mycelog or any which have zirconium as an ingredient, such as Ziradryl, Rhuilist or Rhuigel.

Poison ivy in most cases is amenable to self treatment. You need to see a physician if the rash is on your face or genitals or if you ingest the plant. See a physician if healing is delayed, because this may be a sign of secondary bacterial infection.

Prevention consists of wearing protective clothing — long pants, and high socks in the woods — and laundering them before wearing again. If you think you may have run into the plant, wash immediately with soap and water to remove the oils. This may lessen the severity of the rash. If your pet was in the woods, give him a bath also.

The practices of injecting poison ivy extract and the use of oral extracts for desensitization are of questionable value.

Solar Project now at new home; starts retrofitting workshops

By Randy Readfield
Staff Writer

As the Shawnee Solar Project is "retrofitting" its new home at 808 S. Forest, it is also giving workshops on how to retrofit (or making a home energy-efficient).

On Saturday, Jeff Graeff, a local solar designer, will demonstrate how to construct and install a vertical wall solar collector. This low-cost collector will be installed vertically on the south wall of the solar project's house.

This workshop will begin at 10 a.m. with a slide presentation and explanation of the system. At 12:30 p.m., the assembly and installation will begin.

According to a release from the project, those wishing to participate in both the morning and afternoon workshops are invited to bring a sack lunch.

Shawnee obtained the house on Forest Street from SIU-C earlier this year, and staff members, volunteers and local professionals since have been working to retrofit it.

It was not until March 1 though, that the solar project was completely moved out of its old location at 211 1/2 W. Main. Now, it has its offices and free-lending library of nearly 1,000 books on solar, wind and geothermal energy — as well as volumes on organic gardening, do-it-yourself repairs and remodeling — in the new house.

According to the resource center's coordinator, Yolande Tullar, the library will remain open during the renovation. "We have the best books available that explain what we're doing and we want them to be accessible," she said.

In addition to the books, Tullar said the collection contains files, slide shows, plans and periodicals and is "perhaps the finest such collection in the Midwest."

Dan Swan, coordinator for the retrofit installation, said the workshop on Saturday will not necessarily be a "hands-on" experience as many of the project's workshops are. But

Glass collection goes on display

An exhibit of glassware, "American Glass, 1850-1930" is being shown now through April 19 at the University Museum in Fanner Hall.

The exhibit is part of the University Museum Collection which has been collected over many years, with some of the pieces coming from private donations in the last 20 to 30 years.

Pieces of the exhibit are representative of different processes of making glass, and different ways of creating pieces such as blown, pressed and cut glass.

They are also representative of the patterns and designs popular during the period of 1850 through 1930, and the glass houses who made them. There are pieces from McKee Brothers, Steubenville, Bryce Brothers, and Phoenix Glassworks, among others.

The University Museum is located in the north end of Fanner Hall and is open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Sunday.

Mike Frankel, left, senior in business, and Lyle Shapiro, right, senior in design, did painting work on a house that became the headquarters for Shawnee Solar Project March 1 after volunteers for the energy organization helped renovate the building.

people who attend will learn practically everything they need to know about vertical collectors. Swan said a vertical collector frame has already been built.

"Window walls," Swan said, "are usually most suitable for wooden houses" whereas "vertical collectors are most suitable for masonry types of houses," but one can also use them on wooden houses too allow for more privacy.

Also, "a big window wall requires curtains at night to prevent heat gained during the day from being lost at night," he said.

The solar project's new house was made available through the cooperation of SIU-C, and funds for the energy renovation come from a U.S. Department of Energy grant from the Appropriate Technology Program.

Administrative Coordinator Hugh Muldoon said "the house is designed to show people what they can do to hold back home energy costs. Classes, demonstrations, tours and workshops will be held during and after the renovation. Visitors are welcome at any time."

Swan said the solar project's new location is more convenient for students and that volunteers are continually working on the house during the week.

The solar project is a community-based, non-profit corporation which was founded in 1978 to offer education and consulting services related to energy efficiency and renewable energy resources.

WSIU proceeds reach $70,714 in annual telethon

WSIU-TV netted $70,714 in public and business donations in its annual fund-raising telethon, which ended Sunday, according to Ken Garry, development director for the station.

After the two-week campaign, entitled "Festival '82," pledges from the public totaled $56,264 and business contributions, including movie underwriting and in-kind donations, totaled $14,450, Garry said.

Proceeds from the event, Channel 8's major annual fund-raising effort, topped the 1981 total of $60,000 by 16 percent, Garry said. The Public Broadcasting System, of which WSIU and its sister station, WUSI in Olney, are members, registered an 8.7 percent increase over last year's receipts.

He noted that 82 percent of those who pledged contributions in last year's telethon actually came through with donations, as compared to PBS's national rate of 62 percent.

Old Man

Tooth fairy huffed and puffed

CHICAGO (AP) - A bad molar was pulled from Babe the elephant at Brookfield Zoo Wednesday and there wasn't a tooth fairy around who could whisk it away. It weighed 8 1/2 pounds and measured 7 1/2 inches long. The tooth may wind up in a veterinarian dentist school or the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago. Zoo officials weren't sure what will become of it. Babe, a 36-year-old Asian pachyderm, was flown to the zoo right from jungle capture in 1947, becoming the first elephant to be shipped by air. said zoo spokesperson Joyce Gardella. When she began losing weight, the zoo started worrying. She would just nibble at food instead of devouring 100 pounds a day. "Pulling an elephant's tooth is a big deal. Not many have been done," she said.

Cash grants will be given to art groups

The Community and Educational Arts Association (CEAA) has been awarded $3,782 by the Illinois Arts Council to distribute small grants to arts organizations in Southern Illinois.

The grants are open to community organizations involved in programming any phase of the arts. The purpose of the awards is to stimulate more community arts programming in the 34 southernmost counties of Illinois. The maximum grant given is $500.

Groups have until May 31 to apply for the awards by writing CEAA, P.O. Box 3282, Carbondale, or by calling 457-8264.

This is the fourth year the "Grassroots Re-granting Program" has offered funds to community groups. Thirteen organizations received grants in 1981, including the Southern Illinois Youth Orchestra, Southern Illinois Art Workshop, Jackson Community Workshop, Mitchell Museum and the Illinois Ozark Craft Guild.

CEAA is a not-for-profit organization chartered in 1975 with members from Southern Illinois. Community Arts organizations and institutions of higher education.

It was incorrectly stated in a story on Page 1 of Tuesday's Daily Egyptian that a heat lamp whose wiring caused the Sunday night fire in a calf barn at University Farms belonged to Andrea Berry. The heat lamp is the property of SIU-C, not Berry, who is a student worker responsible for calves housed in the barn.

who was ready to chuck the sport last summer.

"I was ready to give up boxing then," he says. "It can be pretty detrimental to your health. I realized I couldn't be doing this all the time. I'll probably give it up after I graduate."

However, the Springfield Federation awarded Kraak a $500 scholarship this semester. Kraak obliged and found himself back in the ring.

Kraak describes himself as the "total boxer." His style is not always overpowering, but is more of a constant, cunning attack, supplemented with as many punches as possible.

"My strategy is not to get hit," Kraak says with a smirk. "I throw a lot of punches and I'm a clean fighter. I don't pull any dirty tricks."

While preparing to spar with friend and fellow club member Dave Nolan, Kraak explains what it feels like to bear the brunt of an opponent's punch.

"Sometimes it makes you see stars. When you get hit a lot it really slows you down.

Sometimes I even see different colors when I get hit hard," he says. "I try to avoid that, though."

Before he climbs into the ring, Kraak transforms any butterflies fluttering in his stomach to "nervous energy."

"I used to get butterflies before a fight, but now I concentrate on getting warmed up.

The practice match begins, and Kraak quickly backs sparring partner Nolan into a corner, pummeling his covered-up counterpart with speedy combinations.

Nolan, an animal of a fighter," Kraak says, escapes and puts Kraak's back to the wall, returning the punishment. After three minutes the fighters break and Kraak, winded, tells how he got involved in the oft-brutal sport.

"My dad encouraged me when I was younger, but my older brother Bob probably had more to do with keeping me interested in boxing," Kraak says. Bob Kraak, former president of the SIU-C Boxing Club, graduated a year-and-a-half ago, works in Dallas and still fights, but only on a part-time basis.

But most of the younger Kraak's ringside help has come from Arnie Winters, his coach of six years at the Portage Park Club. Kraak says he misses the advice of his coach but utilizes the knowledge gained from Winters to teach the other boxers on the SIU-C club.

"I like to run around and help the other guys. It's one of the best feelings in the world to see one of your guys win a fight," Kraak says proudly.

When Kraak loses a fight, which has happened only 13 of 46 times he's stepped into the ring, it's hard to take, he admits. But the dejection is only momentary.

"It's tough after you lose, especially in the Golden Gloves," he says. "After a loss I'll sit and sulk for a while, but it wears off."

The sparring match resumes. As each blow lands, an echo bounces off the room's walls. With a little luck, the only star Kraak will see in Kansas City will be himself.

After a tie against Purdue in a triangular meet, the Salukis went on a rampage. They won the Illinois State Invitational, Illinois Intercollegiate, and Missouri Valley Conference, and placed second to Michigan, 100-98, at the tough Central Collegiate. If they did that well indoors, the thought of the outdoor team's potential is scary.

WHICH EVENT IS THE SALUKIS' STRONGEST?

The pole vault. The trio of John Sayre, Andy Geiger and Jim Sullivan has made the pole vault SIU-C's top-scoring event. Sayre placed seventh in the nation two weeks ago with a school record leap of 17-2. Geiger has vaulted 16-9 and Sullivan 16-0.

CAN THE MILE RELAY TEAM WIN THE NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIP?

Indeed it can. The Saluki All-American relay tandem of Parry Duncan, Randy Geary, Mike Franks and Tony Adams has run a 3:08 this year, and is capable of a much faster time. How? Duncan has pulled out of former Saluki standout David Lee's shadow; Geary ran an unbelievable 45.5 split last week; Adams has already run a 47.31 without the sweat; and Franks has completely forgotten that he's a freshman.

WHO IS THE MOST UNDERRATED SALUKI?

John Smith. It's true that shot putters don't have much fun, being virtually ignored until they sling a world record. Smith has collected 68 points this year, and grabbed a pair of first-places in the shotput and a first and second in the discus last week. He's second on the Salukis in scoring.

WHICH SALUKI HAS THE BRIGHTEST FUTURE?

That distinction goes to Franks, a 17-year-old freshman from University City, Mo. Not since Lee has someone dominated a meet like Franks. He leads the team in scoring with 84 points and was the Missouri Valley champion in both the 60- and 300-yard dashes.

WILL COACH LEW HARTZOG RETIRE SOON?

Are you mad? Hartzog is having the time of his life. After finishing dead last in the now-defunct Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference in 1961, Hartzog's teams have won seven of the 14 indoor Illinois Intercollegiate meets and nine of the 13 outdoors. He has coached 48 All-Americans, seven Olympians and seven NCAA champions. And in the last seven years he has been selected as the NCAA District 5 coach of the year six times for cross country and indoor and outdoor track.

WHAT ELEMENT MAKES THE TEAM SO POWERFUL?

Depth. The Salukis are so deep their second relay team is better than most schools' top team. The 400-meter relay is a classic example. The second team of Javell Heggs, Randy Geary, Cecil Ratcliff and Mark Hill ran a 41.2 last week and beat Northeastern Louisiana.

HOW DO YOU PRONOUNCE 'STEPHEN WRAY'?

It's simple. Just say "Steven Ray."

AND WHAT ABOUT THE DISTANCE RUNNERS?

Tops in Illinois. Mike Keane is one of the best in the business at 5,000 meters, and Karsten Schulz and Tom Ross are two of the gutsiest runners to ever wear the maroon and white. There's no telling how fast Schulz will run the 1,500 meters this year, while Ross can be seen in any event from the 1,600-meter relay to the 800- or 1,500-meter runs or steeple chase. He can do it all. And Bill Moran? Watch him in the 1,500.

WHO ARE PAUL BERGKOEETTER AND SAM NWOBU?

Bergkoetter has come around in the high jump and should be a factor this outdoor season. Nwosu won the 400-meter hurdles last week in 51.60.

So there you are. Of course, that's not all. But it is a start. And if you're still in the dark, stroll by McAndrew Stadium on Saturday afternoon, I'm sure all of your questions will be answered.

Fernando returns to Dodgers' camp

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Fernando Valenzuela, having ended his holdout, pitched 10 minutes of batting practice at the Los Angeles Dodgers' camp Wednesday. But Manager Tom Lasorda would not estimate when the left-hander would make his first exhibition appearance of the year.

Valenzuela, 21, the National League Cy Young Award winner and Rookie of the Year in 1981, maintained he would not sign the $350,000 contract the Dodgers have written for him. From all appearances, there was no animosity from his teammates over the holdout, which lasted more than three weeks. His representatives first asked the Dodgers for $1 million. Later, they reduced the demand to $850,000.

With 20 days remaining before the start of the regular season, Lasorda indicated there was plenty of time for Valenzuela to get into playing shape, particularly since he had pitched winter ball in his native Mexico and worked out in Los Angeles.

Late home run saves Salukis

By Steve Metach
Sports Editor

Baseball Coach Itchy Jones said that since the Salukis returned from their spring trip, he's been spending extra time with Mike Robertson after batting practice with the goal of "flattening" the third baseman's swing.

Jones evidently invested his time well, as Robertson flattened a hanging curve over the right field fence with two out in the bottom of the ninth to beat St. Louis, 3-2, at Abe Martin Field Wednesday.

"Robby was a good hitter in high school, but he tends to swing up a bit. I thought it would help to flatten out his swing," said Jones.

Robertson said it "felt good to break out of a big slump." The sophomore entered the contest Wednesday hitting a slim .189 after going seven for 37 in 12 games.

More surprising than Robertson's late-inning blast, though, was the fact that the Salukis even had a chance to pull out a victory. The Billikens had several opportunities to win the game in the late going.

SIU-C scored twice in the first inning off St. Louis starter Mike Ismail to take the lead. The Salukis relied on their speed to take the early advantage.

Centerfielder Corey Zawadzki singled with one out and promptly stole second. Rightfielder P.J. Schranz was next up, and he lined a base hit over third to score Zawadzki.

Schranz stole second and went to third when Billiken catcher John Duncan's throw evaded second baseman Mark Webb. First baseman Kurt Reid added to his team-leading RBI total by rapping a single to right field to drive in Schranz. Reid has 15 RBI in 13 games.

After their early success the Salukis thought the St. Louis hurler was easy prey and tried to "hit it out," said Jones. SIU-C stranded six runners prior to Robertson's homer.

Freshman pitcher Jay Bellissimo had a no-hitter going against the Billikens until the fifth inning, when third baseman Dan Meagher cracked a double to the right-centerfield fence. The righthander walked the next batter, but induced the next two Billikens to pop out to end the threat.

The Billikens solved Bellissimo in the seventh inning when Meagher hit another double to put men on second and third with just one out. Centerfielder Carl Carlson next grounded out to drive in a run. The Billikens tied the game when shortstop Mike Mesh slipped on the outfield grass fielding a grounder and threw wildly to first.

Jones didn't want to "risk further injury" and pulled Bellissimo after his right hand was bruised by a line drive off the bat of Lem Gilmore.

Bellissimo did "an excellent job" in his first starting role, according to Jones.

Jeff Irvin relieved and got SIU-C out of trouble. Jones called on Tom Johnson to replace Irvin after two Billikens reached base in the eighth. Johnson doused the St. Louis rally and went on to allow just one hit and one walk to notch his first victory.

"I was pretty pleased,"

Johnson, 1-0, said of his performance. "I threw some good sliders and had some key plays behind me. I hope to earn a starting role."

The 6-7 Salukis next play two twinbills against Miami of Ohio Friday and Saturday at Abe Martin Field.

Golden Gloves lightweight title within reach of SIU-C boxer

By Bob Moran
Staff Writer

He stands in front of the wall-sized mirror in the Martial Arts Room of the Recreation Center and reels off a flurry of combination punches, as if some evil apparition stood between the mirror and himself.

Clad in sweatsuit and tennis shoes, he exhales with every jab, hook and uppercut, as if each punch was knocking his imaginary opponent senseless.

And after a few minutes of the one-sided bout, he shrugs his shoulders, removes the heavy 16-ounce gloves and stretches.

That routine is only a minute portion of Michael Kraak's workout. But it is nevertheless a big part of his training for one of the most important fights of his life.

Kraak, a 20-year-old computer science major and president of the Boxing Club, will travel to Kansas City Monday in a quest to win the Golden Gloves Championship in the lightweight (132 pound) open division.

The 5-6 blonde, who at first glance looks nothing like a boxer, earned the right to fight for the national title in Springfield last week when he disposed of opponent Clarence Pruitt with a knockout in the second round of his third fight. Kraak will represent the Springfield Boxing Federation in his championship bid next week.

Kraak, a Chicago native, has been boxing for eight years, fighting out of the Portage Park Club on the city's northwest side. Golden Gloves competition is nothing new to him. Twice he has entered the Golden Gloves fights, in 1978 and 1979 in Chicago. But both times he left the ring one victory short of winning in the Windy City.

Last year he began fighting out of Springfield, but again couldn't advance, losing his second fight. This year he won his first two decisions prior to his knockout against Pruitt, Springfield's lightweight champ last year. Kraak will have to face up to six fighters in his division if he is to win the title.

It's quite an accomplishment for someone

Track talent wins meets, but not respect for team

It's a shame, but it's true. The men's track and field team gets no respect.

I found that out yesterday after going out on a limb and asking some people the question "What do you know about the SIU-C track team?"

"I don't know anything about the track team" was Roberta Duncan's answer. "I know we have one, though."

Shirley Hogsett was a little more knowledgeable.

"Sure, I know about the track team. They won the Missouri Valley Conference. I know a guy on the team named Kenney. No, I think his name is Terry."

And the topper. "What about the track team?" asked one student, who preferred to remain anonymous. "Are they in trouble or something?"

So, especially for you, Roberta, Shirley and the unidentified student, I have compiled a list of everything you ever wanted to know about the SIU-C track team, but never managed to get over to McAndrew Stadium to find out.

HOW GOOD IS THE SIU-C TRACK TEAM?

Very good. Traditionally, the Salukis are a weak indoor team because of the lack of an indoor facility at SIU-C coupled with the bizarre Southern Illinois weather. But the 1982 indoor season was a tremendous success.

Valley's Bradley wins NIT

NEW YORK (AP) — Juniors Barney Mines and Willie Scott scored 17 points apiece to give Bradley the championship of the 45th Annual National Invitation Tournament with a 67-58 victory over Purdue Wednesday night.

The title was the fourth in the NIT for Bradley, tying the Braves with St. John's, N.Y., for the most championships in the tournament's history.

Bradley was regular season champion of the Missouri Valley Conference, but had been passed up for an at-large berth in the 48-team NCAA tournament. Mines and Scott, who averaged less than eight points a game as a playmaker, led a balanced scoring attack. Anderson, the third leading scorer in MVC history behind Oscar Robertson and Larry Bird, scored 16 and David Thirkill hit for 15 for the Braves, who finished with a 26-10 record.

Russell Cross, the 6-foot-10 sophomore center for Purdue, 18-14, led the Boilermakers with 16. His opposing centers, Donald Reese and Kerry Cook, fouled out of the game.
