Tax increase criticized, supported

By Susan Curtis
and Edward Rahe
Staff Writers

The presidents of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce and Southern Illinois educators disagreed on tax legislation at press conferences Thursday.

A tax increase is not necessary to raise additional funds for education in Illinois, the head of the state chamber of commerce said.

Lester Brann spoke to about 50 local business people at a legislative briefing at the Ramada Inn in Carbondale.

Brann said Gov. James R. Thompson and the Legislature should make education a top budget priority rather than treating all state programs equally.

"The governor is saying everything has equal priority. We feel you need to put priorities on spending," Brann said.

The governor's budget allotment for education this year was 4 percent below the education budget for 1987. Thompson, on numerous occasions, has said education will not get any more money unless there is a tax increase.

The chamber projects state revenue will increase by $500 million in the next fiscal year.

Brann said that the revenue should be used to fund education, with an emphasis on higher education.

The Chamber claims increases proposed by the education community and Thompson could raise individual tax rates from 2.5 percent to 3.5 percent.

Corporations paying 6.5 percent would possibly pay rates as high as 8.5 percent, according to the chamber.

The additional taxes could cost Illinois taxpayers $750 million to $1.5 billion every year without any guarantee that the quality of education will be improved, Brann said.

Brann said increased taxes would slow industrial growth in the state.

"High tax states have slow growth rates," he said.

According to a letter to Brann from Thompson, funds from revenue growth would not allow the state to stay even.

"It (revenue growth) would allow us to maintain most of the services now provided by state human service agencies and maintain certification of state institutions for the mentally ill and the developmentally disabled,"

SPC funding stalled

By Susan Curtis

The Undergraduate Student Organization will not vote for at least two weeks on a proposal that would give the Student Programming Council 40 percent of the Student Activity Fee.

The proposal would give SPC $7.60 per student per semester.

A resolution opposing the fee was tabled Wednesday night because of a misunderstanding about who was proposing the fee. The Office of Student Affairs proposed the fee at the request of the SPC.

The USO resolution states that since the Student Programming Council is a Registered Student Organization, the USO should have a hand in allocating the funds. It also states that since the proposal came from

Five universities slam collegiality

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

Officials from five state universities say "collegiality" has too broad a definition to be used as a criterion for granting tenure.

ISU Provost David Strand said the "word collegiality is too nebulous a term for it to be used as a single term."

Edward Anderson, associate provost at ISU, said he wasn't aware of any guideline that even closely resembled collegiality in ISU's tenure and promotion guidelines.

Collegiality "has not been an issue that has surfaced at ISU," Anderson said.

The University of Illinois, Illinois State University, Northern Illinois University, Western Illinois University and Eastern Illinois University use teaching ability, research quality and service as

Hambletonian's fate decided on Saturday

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

The fate of Illinois' attempt to lure the Hambletonian trotting classic back to the Du Quoin State Fair will be decided by the Hambletonian Society Saturday.

Hugh A. Grant Jr., president of the society, said Thursday that he will ask members at the society's winter meeting at Pompano Park race track in Pompano Beach, Fla., if they want to accept bids for the race. The meeting starts at noon.

"I expect a great deal of discussion before the vote,"

Grant said. "I have spoken to people from Illinois many times and Gov. Thompson is a great friend of harness racing."

Gladys Bell, a representative of the society, said that the society has refused to entertain bids only once.

She also said 21 members of the 25-member board of directors are expected to attend the meeting to vote. A majority vote is needed to accept bids, Bell said.

AIDS lecture focuses on doctors' job

By Curtis Winston
Staff Writer

Distrust and misinformation is the worst part of the AIDS crisis, a School of Medicine official said Thursday.

Dr. Sergio Rabinovich, chairperson of the department of internal medicine at the School of Medicine in Springfield, spoke to about 60 medical students at the school's fifth annual Community Health Fair, held in the Student Center ballrooms.

His lecture focused on the physician's role in educating patients and the public about Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome.

A new epidemic called "afraIDS" is effecting society's perception of the disease, Rabinovich said. Some doctors have a fear of working on patients who have AIDS. However common sense should dispel this fear, he said.

"I treat patients with AIDS every day, but I don't intend to get the disease," he said. "We need to use the facts as we know them to keep from getting AIDS," he said.

Doctors should treat all patients as if they were infect with the AIDS virus, whether they are or not, Rabinovich said. Latex gloves should be worn at all times, especially when examining patients' mouths.

Rabinovich said 1,500 AIDS cases have been reported in Illinois. About 90 percent of them are in the Chicago area. About 150 cases have been reported downstate, he said.

"I have personally seen two AIDS cases from Carbondale," Rabinovich said. He also mentioned that there were about 50 AIDS cases reported in Springfield.

An explanation of how AIDS can be prevented also was given.

"Most transmission is through blood and there are red blood cells in semen," Rabinovich said. He recommended using latex condoms rather than "natural" condoms made of animal gut. Studies have shown that red blood cells penetrate the natural material.

The use of spermicides also significantly reduces the spread of AIDS, Rabinovich

Nicaragua, Contra rebels agree to 60-day cease-fire

SAPOA, Nicaragua (UPI) — The Nicaraguan government and U.S.-backed Contra rebels agreed Wednesday to a 60-day cease-fire, the release of political prisoners, political freedom for all parties and an end to U.S. military aid to the Contras. The pact, the first overall truce agreement in the 6-year-old war, was reached after 16 hours of negotiations Wednesday in Sapoa, 85 miles south of Managua, where a three-day round of unprecedented face-to-face talks began Monday. The cease-fire is to begin April 1.

Israeli airplanes attack PLO guerrilla bases

SIDON, Lebanon (UPI) — Israeli warplanes fired rockets and bombed a Palestinian guerrilla stronghold Thursday, killing five fighters in a second air strike in less than 24 hours, security sources said. At least four Israeli warplanes flying at low altitude fired about 30 rockets and dropped bombs on an olive grove used as a training site for radical Palestinian leader Abu Nidal's followers near the hilltop village of Majdalyoun, northeast of the port of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut.

Iraq launches missiles at Tehran, killing 10

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Iraq, apparently seeking to relieve pressure on a military base under siege by Iranian forces and Kurdish guerrillas, fired six long-range surface-to-surface missiles into Tehran Thursday, killing 10 people and wounding 100. Iran attacked the military base in northern Iraq in support of Kurdish rebels who had it under siege, the Iranian news agency reported.

Leftist rebels fire bazooka at U.S. embassy

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — Leftist rebels fired a bazooka at the U.S. Embassy to protest the deployment of 3,200 American soldiers to Honduras, but the rocket caused no damage, an embassy official said Thursday. A tailfin of what investigators speculate was an American-made LAW rocket, which apparently exploded in front of the embassy before impact, was found, said the official, who requested anonymity. There was no damage or injuries. The leftist urban guerrilla group M-19 claimed responsibility for the attack.

Poindexter, North plead not guilty to charges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John Poindexter, Oliver North and two others pleaded not guilty Thursday to the sweeping indictment charging them with varying counts of conspiracy, theft and fraud in the Iran-Contra scandal. Led by Poindexter's plea of "not guilty," the four men charged last Wednesday in the massive 23-count indictment declared their innocence at an arraignment hearing before U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell. The defendants then were swept up by a crowd of supporters outside the courthouse.

Government's AIDS policy goes in to effect

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With little fanfare, a government AIDS policy went into effect Thursday that prohibits discrimination against infected federal workers and allows discipline of those who refuse to work alongside AIDS victims. Anthony Ingrassia, of the Office of Personnel Management, said each of the more than 100 federal agencies that employ 2.1 million people must decide how to tailor and implement the five-page policy.

Administration greets cease-fire cautiously

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The administration and Congress, cautiously welcoming the cease-fire agreement in Nicaragua between the Contras and the Sandinistas, moved Thursday to formulate a new humanitarian aid package for the U.S.-backed rebels. Secretary of State George Shultz, speaking for the administration, said, the administration considers the cease-fire agreement to be an important step forward and added that there is much work to be done to take full advantage of this opportunity.

AIDS protesters: 'We're dying of red tape'

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 500 protesters demanding more federal funds for AIDS research stretched a scarlet ribbon across Broadway near Wall Street during rush hour Thursday, shouting "We're dying of red tape." Police arrested 111 demonstrators. The more than 500 protesters rallied against what they called price gouging of AIDS drugs by pharmaceutical companies, demanded faster government approval of AIDS treatments and more government money for research.

Experience key to USO candidate's platform

Helping students important to Hall

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

Bill Hall thinks his experience in student government can make a difference in students' lives if he is chosen Undergraduate Student Organization president.

If students want a better standard of living at SIU-C, "we can do it," he said.

Hall, 42, a four-year member of the Undergraduate Student Organization and senior in pre-law, is running on the Alliance party ticket with Larvester Gaither, a senator from the east side, as his vice president.

He began working with the Landlord-Tenant Union about four years ago because he had been working for attorneys for several years.

Hall then became active with USO to help them more effectively.

Since then, he has worked with several USO commissions and committees, was chair of the housing, tuition and fees commission in 1986, and is currently a senator and chair of the committee on internal affairs.

Hall's platform includes:
—Promoting a lower drinking age and working with campus security to avoid unnecessarily aggressive enforcement of underage drinking laws.

The drinking age needs to be moved back to 19, Hall said. "I was one of those ordered to Vietnam at a time when I was told I was too young to drink."

"We don't want students

kill, but want to be treated as responsible adults," Hall said.

—Open meetings and open government. Hall said he work to open more meetings, such as the USO financial aid committee meetings, to the public.

—Publishing student appointments to committees so that students will know where their representatives are when problems with parking, housing or anything else arises that is University related.

"Simply that knowledge alone will give students more authority on this campus," Hall said.

—Improving the grading policy so that hidden policies will be eliminated. Hall said that some instructors don't like to give As, and others flunk or weed out half the class, sometimes at the instruction of the department.

—Bill Hall

Hall also wants to publish a course-instructor evaluation, listing the grades students indicated on surveys that they expected to get and the grades received. This would allow students to check out the instructor before enrolling in the course, Hall said.

"I promise better grades and better financial aid for those students who vote for me and are willing to work with me," Hall said.

—Increasing financial aid for SIU-C students. Hall believes that creating a financial aid commission within the USO will help do this.

—Making students more aware of the crimes that take place on campus.

—Extending USO office hours into the evenings and weekends so senators can put in more hours and be more accessible to the students.

—Expanding USO office space on campus and opening off-campus offices.

—Eliminating GPA requirements for USO officers.

—Changing USO's name. Hall helped write a bill that would change the name to the Undergraduate Student Government Association. The bill will appear as a referendum on the student elections ballot in April.

"The name USO allows government leaders to hide behind an organizational title which does not communicate what we should be doing," Hall said. "If students can't reach us, it cuts our effectiveness."

—Supporting the Illinois Student Association referendum to establish a $1 refundable fee to support the ISA. Hall said the "ISA computerized system across the state will give us the strength of unity."

The computer system would allow colleges and universities to access information about student government from other schools and would be paid for by the fee. The ISA is made up of students. Those students would have control of the money, he said.

—Promoting the mass transit system to improve parking on campus.

Hall serves on several University committees. He is the undergraduate representative on the search committee for the vice president for academic affairs; a member of the Student Center Board; a student representative on the Affirmative Action Advisory Board; a member of the faculty senate undergraduate education policy committee; an undergraduate student representative on the Ombudsman Advisory Board; a student representative on the Student Legal Assistance Board; the director of the Landlord-Tenant Union.

Hall also is vice chair of the Illinois Board of Higher Education Student Advisory Committee, made up of students who, with the IBHE Faculty Advisory Board, act as constituents and make recommendations to the IBHE.

Hall also has applied as a candidate for the position of student member of the IBHE, which will be elected April 30.

But, he is most proud of his position on the Financial Aid Advisory Committee.

Hall said it used to be that the student representative on the committee was an employee of the financial aid office or didn't attend the meetings. Hall said that during his one-and-a-half years on the committee he has attended every meeting and has called some of them.

Hall said he has led the committee to provide more financial aid for students.

As a member of the Non-traditional Student Union and representative on the Non-traditional Office Advisory Board, Hall feels he has made a big impact on student financial aid.

Hall said that by voting against a proposal that he later revised which cut financial aid to nontraditional students, he was able to provide incoming non-traditional students with thousands of dollars.

Jackson campaign a welcome effort

THERE WAS A time in the not-too-distant past when the idea of a black man being considered a serious presidential candidate was highly improbable, if not preposterous.

Thanks to the Rev. Jesse Jackson, that idea is now highly probable.

While we do not endorse Jackson as the Democratic nominee (the Daily Egyptian has made no endorsements in campaign '88), we certainly approve of his decision and right to run.

Jackson has been a dynamic national figure since the mid-1960s, when he became affiliated with the Southern Christian Leadership Conference headed by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

HIS PUBLIC LIFE has been controversial from the beginning. High-ranking officials in the SCLC such as Ralph Abernathy even accused Jackson of trying to steal the limelight. But even if that assertion was true, there is little doubt that Jackson's high-visibility has resulted in more opportunities for minorities.

The basic Jackson message is one of self-determination. His popular slogan "I am somebody" is reflective of his faith in human potential, and his triumph over an underprivileged background proves his faith is not misplaced.

The United States, a land of opportunity for so many, is still a land of discrimination in countless social areas. Since the '60s, a lot has changed in white America's perception toward blacks and other minorities, but there is much more to be accomplished.

JACKSON'S CANDIDACY IS a bold step toward erasing some of these ridiculous prejudices. The American people's willingness to accept this (Jackson has received roughly 2.5 million popular votes, more than any other Democratic candidate) is indicative of the progress made toward equal opportunity since King's era.

Qualified blacks and other minorities have been elected to such prestigious positions as the U.S. Senate, the House of Representatives and to mayoral offices from coast to coast. Their job performances, such as that of the late Harold Washington of Chicago, offer clear evidence that political competence does not depend on ethnic background.

WHEN JACKSON SPOKE at the SIU-C Student Center the Monday of spring break, he emphasized that he would win with the support of "we the people." The accuracy of his prediction has yet to meet its final test, but this message contains an important truth that will not be smothered because of ignorance, prejudice and bigotry.

The truth is that "we" are the people, all of us, and, as the Declaration of Independence states irrefutably, we each are endowed with certain inalienable rights.

It's about time for people to understand those rights apply to minorities as much as to anyone else. Whether one approves of Jackson's politics, his effort to secure rights for those who have been denied them is a noble cause and worthy of commendation.

State loan cost workers their jobs

According to recent television and newspaper reports, the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs (DCCA) has helped create 40 to 50 jobs with a wood flooring plant that will be located in Marion.

I hope DCCA has a better agreement with this company than it had with Patten-Marion. An announcement was made a few months ago about how DCCA was creating and retaining 125 jobs by making a loan to Patten-Marion.

When I and other Patten employees heard the news, we were pretty happy about it. We thought more job opportunities were going to open up for us.

Then Patten-Marion called a meeting of its employees to let us know there was a chance that Birmingham Bolt would buy us out. Patten told us our jobs would be secure and that Birmingham would offer better benefits and better wages. That made us even happier.

Then, three or four days before the final agreement was signed, Patten laid off every worker in the plant. Patten told us we all would have to fill out applications to become new employees.

Even though we went in and filled out applications, Birmingham hired people off the street and even transferred people from its other plant. Now many of the employees who were supposed to be helped by this loan from DCCA are without a job.

I don't think there is anything wrong with the state helping a company that is in trouble by loaning the company money. But it certainly is not fair for any governmental agency to use people's tax dollars to allow the owners of Patten-Marion a better profit on the sale of their business and then let Birmingham replace us with people off the street and put us out of a job!

I've been without a job since this happened last September, as have a lot of my fellow workers. Not only that, but remember that we were told there would be better benefits and wages? The truth of the matter is that Birmingham went non-union and has cut wages and benefits of the people it hired.

Were we ever misled? What DCCA did was help Patten-Marion make a big profit and at the same time cost us our jobs — all in the name of economic development. I wonder how many more untold stories like ours out there. — Scott A. Berry, former Patten-Marion employee

Saluki Patrol discriminates against bikers

After reading the article "Patrol says walk bikes or pay price" in the March 4 Daily Egyptian, I felt compelled to write this letter about the Saluki Patrol and its treatment of bicyclists.

I do not agree with all of the rules and regulations regarding bikes, but I do my best to abide by them and accept any citations that relate to my violation of these rules. However, the mistreatment I wish to discuss is the unnecessary delay of bicyclists at the whim of the patrol.

I have been both a witness and a victim. These "bike cops" hold out their hands and ask a biker to "stop, please." If no infractions have occurred, they check to see if there is a valid registration decal. This is the injustice.

I do not see them stopping automobiles and checking for parking decals. I do not see them stopping University vehicles traveling through the breezeways (especially Cushman trucks) at excessive speeds. I do not see them stopping pedestrians and asking to see if they have a current student identification card. I do not see them ticketing jaywalkers or people walking on bicycle paths. I call these inconsistencies "bicycle prejudices."

I have heard and read about people complaining of dangerous bike riders. These complainers are no doubt the same people who walk on the bike paths or jaywalk. They probably are the same people who, for no apparent reason, alter their course of direction without checking for bikes. Didn't their mommas tell them to look before they cross the street? Since bicyclists' streets sometimes are the sidewalks that are used by pedestrians, the same rule applies.

If you are a good distance in front of a bike, you do not need to stop. Keep walking. Riders will alter their own routes to avoid collisions. But when pedestrians are indecisive, the rider cannot plot a new course around the walker. This is the cause of the accidents or near mishaps that frustrate both people on foot and people on two-wheelers.

I do not want the Saluki Patrol to begin ticketing jaywalkers or checking students for valid IDs. This would be ridiculous. I only want bike riders to be given the same respect as everyone else. Let the bike decals be checked at the bike racks. — Kimbal Koerner, senior, computer science

Orchard season in Illinois runs from April to November

S. Illinois' Bountiful Fruit Harvest

Family Orchards thrive

By Steven Starke
Staff Writer

It made its debut in the Garden of Eden and it's the main ingredient in America's national dessert. The apple is the number one fruit of the Southern Illinois orchard industry.

The more than 30 orchards of varying sizes in the region produce not only apples but also a large volume of peaches, strawberries, blueberries, blackberries, and raspberries.

Many of the local orchardists said Southern Illinois' rolling hills, which offer suitable drainage and irrigation, and the natural soil fertility make the area conducive to fruit growing. But for the majority of growers, it's all in the family.

Long investments in terms of time and labor have made the Southern Illinois orchard industry prosper. For the most part, the farms are family-owned businesses passed from one generation to generation.

"Southern Illinois has historically been a small fruit and vegetable area," said Charles Stadelbacher, proprietor of Blue Berry Hill Farm in Cobden. "Years ago it was considered the garden of Chicago."

But as better modes of shipping and transportation became available, other regions were able to compete for mid-western business. Particularly, he added, fruit growers from Washington and California who can produce a larger volume of fruit because of a longer growing season.

J. Boyd, of the Illinois Fruit Exchange, said competition in the fruit industry doesn't necessarily exist between individual growers in a region, but rather between regions in different parts of the country.

"But Southern Illinois has held on over the years through the quality of flavor in its fruit," Stadelbacher said.

Although the harvest season in Illinois only runs from April to November, orcharding is a year-round operation with a considerable amount of work being done in the dormant season.

During the off-season, orchardists must cut and shape apple and peach trees to control their size and shape. This practice makes it easier to harvest because large trees make hand picking the fruit extremely difficult.

Some problems, however, are not as easily controlled by the growers. This winter's fluctuating weather patterns may have caused some damage to flowering buds on peach trees.

"Some growers in the area have reported losing up to 80 percent of the peach flower buds," Bradley Taylor, College of Agriculture fruit specialist, said.

But only five to ten percent of the surviving buds are actually needed to set a full crop for the coming summer, he said, adding that the loss actually could save growers the labor costs of thinning the trees by hand. Thinning helps to control the nutritional status and size of the fruit by eliminating an overabundance of growth on a tree.

The apple crop has remained largely unaffected by the winter weather, Taylor said.

DE reporter ordered to testify

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

Daily Egyptian reporter John Mohler was ordered Thursday to testify in the murder-for-hire trial of Dale Reiman, the assistant director of the Physical Plant.

Mohler, who has written several stories about the Reiman case, was handed the subpoena at about 11 a.m. in the DE news room. Richard E. White, Reiman's attorney, could not be reached for comment on the subpoena.

Mohler, who covers police and the courts for the DE, speculated that White is seeking information about a story Mohler wrote based on a telephone interview with David Scott Polk. Polk, an inmate at the Shawnee Correctional Center, said Reiman paid him $750 to kill a student worker in December 1986.

Reiman also is accused of kidnapping and sexually assaulting the student over a four-day period in December 1986. Reiman has pleaded not guilty to all charges in the two cases.

Illinois law prohibits courts from compelling reporters to reveal confidential sources or information unless the information serves a "compelling public interest" or all other means of getting the information have been exhausted.

DE Managing Editor Gordon Billingsley said he spoke to University attorneys about the subpoena. The attorneys said that it appeared that Mohler possessed no information that wasn't readily obtainable by White or already in his possession.

"We do know we don't have any information that wasn't reported," Billingsley said.

"We do know that John's going to show up at the appropriate time and the appropriate place and answer the questions and that will be it."

"All our sources have been openly named, so there are no sources to protect," he added.

Mohler said he was shocked by the subpoena.

"I think it would be bad for the whole news process if you are forced to reveal sources," he said. "It jeopardizes relations with future sources. But I'm pretty confident in our case because I didn't withhold any sources. I named them all."

"If I was to withhold information from a story, there would be a reason," he said. "You print what should be printed for a fair and objective story."

Mohler is scheduled to appear in court on Wednesday.

Bill pushes to make DC 51st state

By Dana DeBeaumont
Staff Writer

A campus meeting to discuss making part of the District of Columbia the 51st state will be held at 2 p.m. today in the Illinois Room of the Student Center.

John Grigas, an Undergraduate Student Organization senator, said the USO is sponsoring the forum but will not take a stance on the issue.

"When you live in the District of Columbia, you shed your right to democracy at the borders of the shadows of the Washington Monument."

— Johnny Barnes

"We don't know how it [making part of the District of Columbia a state] would affect Illinois or us in particular," Grigas said. "Someone from the USO will be at the meeting, but I doubt that we'll ever take a position on the issue."

Rep. Walter E. Fauntroy, an elected non-voting member in the House of Representatives from the District of Columbia, is sponsoring the bill to grant statehood to all of the District of Columbia except the federal enclave, which is small parcel of land in the center of the District. Sen. Paul Simon is a sponsor of the bill.

District of Columbia residents can vote for the president and vice president, but not for other federal elected officials or on federal laws.

The District of Columbia doesn't have representation in the Senate and its one member in the House cannot vote, he said. It won't cost Illinoisans anything to grant the District statehood, Johnny Barnes, chief of staff for Fauntroy, said.

"When you live in the District of Columbia, you shed your right to democracy at the borders of the shadows of the Washington Monument."
Barnes said.

Another problem facing orchardists is the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, which grants immunity to illegal aliens who have lived in the U.S. since 1982. The law requires employers to verify that employees hired after Nov. 7, 1986 be U.S. citizens or aliens certified to work in the U.S.

The majority of laborers hired to harvest consist of migrant workers, many of whom fail to meet the amnesty requirements. A portion of the law set aside an 18-month period, scheduled to end Nov. 30, for illegal aliens to receive citizenship. Dolores Smith, of the Illinois Migrant Council, said,

It is easy to predict that the law will effect harvesting, Smith said, but the scope will not be known until the harvesting season begins this year.

Many of the large regional fruit producers sell their fruit wholesale. Smaller orchards have found local markets a profitable means of selling their crops.

Many of the large regional fruit producers, including Flamm's Orchard in Cobden, and Grammer's and Eckert Orchards in Carbondale, sell their fruit wholesale. Smaller orchards have found local markets a profitable means of selling their crops.

Roadside markets and "pick-your-own" operations have become increasingly popular and can be found nearby at Blue Berry Hill Farm in Cobden and Melburn Trover & Sons Fruit Farm in Ozark. In addition, the Alto Pass Village Board recently approved a retail liquor sales license, which gave the green light to Alto Vineyards to open a winery and sales operation.

Guy Renzaglia, part owner of the vineyard, said the winery is currently in the planning stages and would likely produce its first wines by December or January. Twenty-eight tons of grapes were produced by the vineyard last season.

said. "The virus is actually very frail" and is killed by the spermicides.

"Condoms without spermicide aren't 100-percent effective," he added.

The use of intravenous drugs, such as heroin, currently is the leading cause for the spread of AIDS, Rabinovich said. "If you are using IV drugs, you should simply just stop," he said.

"Shaking hands, kissing on the cheek, that's not the way to acquire AIDS," he said.

Rabinovich gave a brief history of AIDS, explaining it came to the U.S. in 1981 by way of homosexual men who vacationed in Haiti. The disease came to Haiti from Central Africa, he said.

Although AIDS in the U.S. started with homosexuals, the largest number of AIDS cases has been reported in IV drug users, who get the disease from sharing needles, he said. The number of AIDS cases in homosexuals has receded.

The topic of AIDS testing also was mentioned. The test is a two-step process, with two blood samples taken two weeks apart. One blood test is often misleading and inaccurate, Rabinovich said.

People who don't have AIDS may actually test positive for the AIDS antibody in the first test, he said, adding that people who test negative also may have the disease but "come away thinking they don't have the disease."

However, distrust often prevails when AIDS is involved. Rabinovich gave the following scenario to illustrate his point:

A couple wanting to get married will take the blood test. One of them will test positive in the first test and they are told to come back in two weeks for a second test. "I have a suspicion that the couple won't get married," Rabinovich said.

Rabinovich also talked about AIDS research and finding a cure for the disease. Funding for AIDS research was slow at first, he said. "The feds did a terrible job at first, but it has improved," he said.

While a vaccine is a long way off, therapy with immune system enhancers has helped, he said. "We have learned much about immunology because of AIDS," he said.

the letter stated.

A news conference was called by local educators to rebut Brann's views on tax legislation.

John Jackson, dean of SIUC's College of Liberal Arts, said without a tax increase, Illinois education will continue to slide behind other states.

In the past decade, state funding for higher education increased 71 percent, Jackson said. This leaves Illinois in a tie with West Virginia for last place, he said.

Illinois took a decrease of 4.5 percent this year, he said. Illinois' state personal income tax rate, 2.5 percent, is among the lowest in the nation. If it were raised to 3 percent, it would still be among the lowest, Jackson said.

Basically people support a tax increase earmarked for education, by a margin of 65 percent to 32 percent, Jackson said.

of Agriculture, said Thompson submitted a "classy" 16-page summary of historical information about the Hambletonian while it was at Du Quoin and a synopsis of the changes that have occurred at the fairgrounds since the state purchased the fair in 1986.

People involved in Illinois harness racing are in Florida talking to people from the society, Randal said.

Last year, 30,000 spectators watched the race, compared to an average of about 15,000 spectators each year at the Du Quoin State Fairgrounds.

The largest purse in Du Quoin was $300,000 in 1979 while the race's purse was $1.2 million last year.

Larry Werries, director of the Agriculture Department, said at a Feb. 9 press conference at the fairgrounds that he hopes Illinois creates a package for the society to consider that would include the Hambletonian, with a $1 million purse; the American National, with a $250,000 purse; the Review Fruturity, with a $120,000 purse; and the World Trotting Derby, with a $550,000 purse.

If one 3-year-old horse won all four races, an additional $1 million would be awarded, Werries said.

guidelines for granting tenure. The same guidelines are used by SIU-C's School of Music—the school from which the controversy over collegiality arose. Only one school at SIU-C, the School of Engineering, uses a criterion similar to collegiality when deciding whether an instructor deserves to be tenured. The criterion used by the engineering school is "unit compatibility."

Collegiality has been defined by President John C. Guyon as the ability of a person to work well with her or his colleagues.

Robert Resnick, vice president for academic affairs at the U of I, said defining collegiality and whether a faculty member has it or not is "a difficult thing to do."

However, if a faculty member "doesn't relate well with others he probably isn't effective in the three areas," Resnick said.

Gordon Kirk, assistant provost at WIU, said, "if you can't get along with your colleagues, you probably don't get along with your students."

However, "that isn't always the case," Francis Knowik, assistant provost for personnel at NIU, said. "How do you define whether you get along with somebody or not?" he asked.

"Who's to say you didn't cooperate with other faculty," Knowik said. "If you don't get along with the students, then what is being judged is your teaching abilities. It shouldn't be a matter of whether you like or dislike somebody."

Collegiality shouldn't assume a special place in the tenure process, Knowik said.

Charles Switzer, assistant vice president for academic affairs at EIU, said "Our deans have occasionally raised the issue" (of collegiality) when it seemed the faculty member in question would be "harmful to a department."

However, collegiality cannot be used for a written reason for denial of an instructor's tenure or reversion, Switzer said. That policy is part of the Board of Governors' collective bargaining agreement, he said.

WIU also is a part of the Board of Governors system, so its policies on tenure and promotion are the same as EIU's.

SIU-C music professor William Hammond is said to have ranked high in the teaching, research and service areas. However, three members of the School of Music's five-member tenure and promotion committee denied Hammond tenure because he allegedly lacked collegiality. The term is not included in the school's tenure and promotion guidelines.

Hammond was denied hearings to appeal the committee's decision by both the Judicial Review Board and the Board of Trustees. Hammond has filed a suit in federal court against the University charging that he was denied due process of law.

USO, from Page 1

University administrators, it would reduce student control of a large percentage of student fees.

Thea Rubin, College of Liberal Arts senator, said the students would lose control of 40 percent of the funds.

John Attard, USO president, said the Student Affairs Office approached the student leaders of USO and SPC to discuss a draft of the proposal.

Dave Palmisano, SPC president, said the USO and SPC student leaders had a large role in drafting the proposal and the administration is not in charge of drafting it. He also said that control of the funds would not be taken from the students because SPC is run by students.

Palmisano said although SPC is an RSO, it is in a gray area because its needs far exceed those of other RSOs. The SPC should be put in another organizational category, he said.

The resolution opposing the fee was tabled to the USO committee on internal affairs.

In other business, the USO:

— Voted to support the downtown revitalization workshop on April 9. The Carbondale Downtown Revitalization Committee hopes the workshop will generate ideas that will reflect the concerns of students and the community.

— Voted to amend the USO bylaws to allow establishment of a special academic activity fund to help pay for off-campus studies of individual undergraduates.

Southern Illinois considered as site for new federal prison

By John Mehler
Staff Writer

The U.S. Bureau of Prisons will send a site selection team to Southern Illinois to consider the area as a possible location for a new medium-security prison, a bureau official said Thursday.

The team is being sent in response to a telephone call from Rep. Ken Gray, D-22nd Dist., to bureau director J. Michael Quinlan Wednesday urging the bureau's consideration of the area, Pat Sledge, executive assistant to the director, said.

The bureau has indicated that it may build a medium-security prison to house 700 inmates, according to a press release issued by Gray.

Gray named the area south of Rend Lake and north of Marion as a proposed site for the prison, the release said.

The prison would provide 250 permanent jobs and several hundred temporary construction jobs, the release said. Gray spokesman Richard Darby estimated the project would require "several million" dollars in funding.

However, Sledge said that the dispatch of a selection team to the area does not mean Southern Illinois will receive a new prison. The bureau receives many offers from representatives who offer areas for prison construction, Sledge said.

"We're asked to sites frequently," Sledge said. "We'll get contacted by representatives who say they've got a site or a building to offer."

"We'll come and look because we respect his (Gray's) opinion as a member of Congress," Sledge said. "That doesn't mean you'll (the area) get it."

Sledge did not know the nature of Wednesday's telephone conversation between Gray and Quinlan, but said she was not aware of a federal prison contract currently up for bid.

"We have a definite problem with overcrowding and we're always looking for new prisons," Sledge said. "When there's some potential and property available, you take the best offer."

Although the bureau is looking for a metropolitan area for the facility, Gray feels Southern Illinois has many features to qualify for the prison, the release said.

SIU-C may be an attractive local asset to bureau officials, Darby said.

"(The University) has all the facilities for education and research that may be found in a metropolitan area," Darby said.

The release also listed free land, adequate water and sewer services, interstate highways, scheduled air service and the U.S. Marshal Service in Benton as "prerequisites" for a prison area.

Sledge said site selection is "a long process."

She said selection teams conduct environmental impact and community opinion surveys to determine appropriate sites. Then the bureau must solicit Congress for funding, Sledge said.

Gray successfully pushed for the establishment of the maximum-security prison in Marion in 1964. He said the prison has provided more than $200 million in payroll plus goods and services to the regional economy since 1964.

The federal corrections system houses 2.5 times its capacity of inmates, Gray said.

Guitarist featured at Jazz Fest

Milwaukee guitarist Jack Grassel will be the guest artist and clinician at the SIU-C Jazz Festival Saturday afternoon.

Grassel will perform with SIU-C Jazz Band and the faculty jazz group, the New Arts Jazz Quintet, in a concert at 8 p.m. Saturday in Shryock Auditorium. Admission is $1 for students and $2 for the general public.

The concert also will feature the Vocal Jazz Ensemble and the student jazz group, the Miles Ahead Combo.

Grassel teaches jazz theory, composition and guitar at the Milwaukee Area Technical College. He formerly taught at the Wisconsin Conservatory of Music, where he was an associate of Harold Miller, who teaches jazz bass at SIU-C.

He also frequently plays in studio session work in Milwaukee. Miller said Grassel performs and composes all styles of music, including rock and classical. He frequently performs with the Milwaukee Symphony when a guitarist is called for.

Miller said Grassel "performs with just about any big name who comes through Milwaukee."

The guitarist received much critical acclaim for his 1986 solo album "Magic Cereal." He also has had three method books published, "Monster Chops," "Guitar Seeds" and "Big Ax."

A free jazz improvisation clinic will be held at 1 p.m. Saturday in Altgeld Hall, room 114. The clinic is open to all musicians.

Art program exhibits sculptors' blueprints

An exhibit of drawings sculptors used as they created their work will open Sunday at the University Museum in Faner Hall.

The drawings, called casting sheets, are developed by artists at the beginning of the sculpting process and are used as a blueprint for creating the final cast.

The show comprises 51 casting sheets done by 34 artists from across the nation who have taken part in a visiting artists program sponsored by the sculpture program and the School of Art.

Casting sheets provide an unusual look at the basic nucleus of the artist's sculptural ideas and are widely different. Most casting sheets are done on paper, in ink wash, water colors or another medium, but occasionally they are done in the form of a photo or a metal relief drawing.

Works in the show include those by Ernest Trova of St. Louis; the late Reuben Nakian, of Stamford, Conn.; Red Grooms and Robert Murray, of New York City and Phyllis Bramson and Ed Paschke, of Chicago.

Three local artists' casting sheets are in the show, including Robert Paulson, who works in painting and drawing; Ed Shay, painting, printmaking and sculpting and Thomas Walsh, sculpting and drawing. All three teach in the SIU-C School of Art.

Other Illinois artists include Don Baum, Roland Ginzle, Linda Kramer, Sarah Krepps, Gladys Nilsson and Martin Puryear.

Casting sheets provide an unusual look at the basic nucleus of the artist's sculptural ideas and are widely different.

The casting sheets represent a record of the artists' visits to Carbondale and Tom Walsh, head of sculpture area in the School of Art, hopes to eventually sell the designs and use the proceeds to establish student fellowships in sculpture at the University.

The visiting artists program, begun by Walsh in 1976, brings artists to campus, where they spend from four to six days creating sculptures with student assistance in all phases of the sculpturing process.

Many times the visiting artists' specialties are in other media and because they are new to sculpture, they approach it with some unusual ideas, Walsh said.

Walsh said the program's success has been a valuable asset for the sculpture program. Artists in the program frequently return to have their work cast at SIU-C's Foundry, regarded as one of the top academic sculpture foundries in the nation.

The University Museum is open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday and 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. on Sunday.

Belief in make believe wins show

By Dena Schulte
Staff Writer

Make believe and fascination were main ingredients of the work that won this year's Rickert-Ziebold awards.

An exhibit of the award-winning works opened after a reception and award presentation Wednesday and will be displayed through April 17 in the University Museum. Each of the five winners will receive $4,000.

"This is the first time someone has incorporated both a compact disk player and tape deck in a unit strictly for home use," Richard Stone, of Vernon Hills, said of his project design.

The stereo doesn't work, he added. It's "just make believe."

Catherine Tallon said her award-winning sculptures of the female figure were inspired by black and white photographs, she said.

"I've always had a fascination with people and always liked the high contrast black and white photos of figures in which parts (of the figures) were faded out," she said.

Tallon put this idea into a three-dimensional form that focused primarily on the interior parts of the body, she said.

"The exterior body is something that everyone sees, no one sees what really is on the inside," Tallon said.

Other winners were Patricia Hamilton, painting; Jerry Overton, product design; and Ana Escamel, drawing and painting.

Group urges promotion of tourism

By Phyllis Cohn
Staff Writer

A new tourism committee wants tourism to be Illinois' top industry by the year 2000.

"It is quite serious for this area to look to tourism," Rick Linton, executive director of the Southern Illinois Regional Tourism Council Development Committee, said Thursday.

"Springfield uses Lincoln and we have John A. Logan history and Indian history all through the area."

—Rick Linton

The committee expects an 8- to 10-percent increase in tourism in Southern Illinois this year. There was an estimated statewide increase of 7 percent in 1987. Linton said 32 million travelers in Illinois spent $9.4 billion.

Tourism is the state's fourth largest industry. The state is spending $18.5 million to promote tourism and an additional $3 million in grants to local tourism agencies, he said.

"In general our biggest attraction is the Shawnee forest and all the attractions there," he said. "To help support tourism business the most important development in the area is bed-and-breakfast lodgings."

In 1986 Southern Illinois had a 10 percent increase in motel occupancy.

In the 35 county Southern Illinois area there are 10 bed-and-breakfast lodgings, Linton said. "They support a wide variety of clientele from antique hunters to fishermen."

The committee is hoping historical sites in Southern Illinois will attract tourists, Linton said.

The committee was formed to meet and interview people who want to develop tourist attractions or events.

Peace Corps looks to grow

Looks to America to arrive at goal

By Amy Gaubatz
Staff Writer

The Peace Corps has launched a nationwide campaign to increase its number of volunteers to 10,000 before 1992.

Two years ago, Congress directed the Peace Corps to expand. It now has 3,200 volunteers nationwide. "We hope to have more than 6,000 within the next year," James Flanigan, Peace Corps press officer, said.

Congress decided to have the Peace Corps expand, Flanigan said, because "they feel that it's been a very productive and worthwhile program, to improve relations with other countries and for other countries to be more aware of America."

"At one point in the mid 1960s, with 15,000 volunteers the Peace Corps was much larger than it is today," Flanigan said. "The Peace Corps can contribute more to world development, by helping developing countries develop."

The Peace Corps is stepping up recruitment by inviting groups and individuals to come up with innovative recruitment ideas, Flanigan said.

"We are appealing to cross sections of the country to expand," he said. "We are reaching out to America to help us attain this goal."

Volunteer assignments are usually for two years, although there are variable lengths of service, ranging from less than six months to one year.

Any U.S. citizen, at least 18 years old can become a volunteer. "We look for people from all walks of life," he said.

A benefit of the Peace Corps is that it gives volunteers the experience of learning about a new culture and language, which they bring back home with them, Flanigan said. "They (volunteers) enter careers where their experiences can be applied," he added.

Volunteers serve in 64 countries, including Africa and Asia. "We are expanding into other countries," Flanigan said. "We are exploring the possibility of going to China."

He said volunteers receive intensive training at training sites in each country. The training usually lasts three months. Volunteers take classes in the language and culture of the country, as well as in the programs they will be involved in.

During the day, volunteers learn in a campus-like setting. "They (volunteers) live with host families near the training sites so they can be integrated into the natural setting of that country," Flanigan said.

"After they complete their training, they work on a grass-root level, person to person," he said. Volunteers might be assigned to help with small enterprise development, dig wells, inoculate cattle, help build schools and community centers, teach English as a second language or help improve health and nutrition of people in rural areas, Flanigan said.

Volunteers are paid an $200 monthly allowance, which is held in escrow during their service. "It helps them adjust to mainstream life when they are through," Flanigan said. In addition, volunteers are given a monthly living allowance.

Anyone interested in becoming a volunteer can contact area recruitment offices, or call 1-(800)-424-8580.

Aspiring dirt-track-car racer Scott Wallace, enter a car, which he bought in January, in a junior in speech communication, plans to race this summer in Indiana.

Student racing ahead with dream

By Brent Honcharenko
Student Writer

After Richard Petty won his 200th race at the Daytona 500 in 1984, Scott Wallace decided that's what he had to do for a living.

Wallace, 21, a junior in speech communication, always has been a fan of racing and Petty. Wallace describes him as "the king" of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing.

"I even got to meet him (Petty) once," Wallace said. "It was at the Atlanta Journal 500 in '85."

"I'm in the Richard Petty fan club and even got to meet his son, Kyle Petty, who also races NASCAR, in Louisville, Kentucky at a Ford dealership."

After all the years of enthusiasm with racing and the Petty family, Wallace decided to start racing. In January he bought his first car, a Plymouth Barracuda, to race this summer in Haubstadt, Ind.

Haubstadt has a quarter-mile dirt track. Wallace plans to race in the street stock division.

There are three classifications of stock car racing, street stock, late model and sprint.

"Street stock cars are pretty basic," Wallace said. "They're not modified very much and you can only run a stock engine. Late model cars are more modified; the engines are built up, they go faster and the exterior of the car is different. Sprint cars are the little cars that go really fast, they have the big wings on top."

Getting started in racing takes a lot of time and money. So far, Wallace has been working on the car himself, but he has friends back home in Ellery, Ill. who plan to give him a helping hand.

"It's going to cost me about $1,500 to get my car ready," he said. "And that's just the small-time dirt track racing."

"Plus it'll cost $15 every race for the entry fee, and the cost of gas for the car and gas for the vehicle to haul the car to and from the races."

Other costs include replacing broken parts, a blown engine or insurance.

"You don't have to have insurance," Wallace said. "But it's safe. It's also a big hassle to get and costs a lot of money to have."

"Racing season starts April 24 and runs through August, but what I really want to be ready for is the race at the Olney fair. They've got a half-mile track and I can really cut loose."

Wallace says someday he'd like to join NASCAR, but it's tough to get into.

"In order to drive NASCAR, you have to have a resume that shows where you've driven and how long. If you don't have inside connections or aren't around it a lot, your chances are pretty slim until you make a name for yourself on the small tracks," he said.

Men's golf ninth during spring trip

By Steven Welsh
Staff Writer

The men's golf team finished up its spring trip on Wednesday by placing ninth out of twelve teams at the University of Central Florida Classic in Orlando.

The team finished with a score of 950 at the three-day, 54 hole tournament.

Last week the team finished 12th out of 24 teams at the Embury Riddle Invitational in Daytona Beach.

"I think we really had a great trip," Coach Lew Hartzog said. "We held our own against the northern teams, although it's tough to compete against the Florida teams at this time of year."

"We got in 10 good days of golf at some of the greatest golf courses I've ever seen in my life," Hartzog said. "After playing down there, the courses we have to play on up here are going to look like putting greens."

The team played on the Orange Tree, Tuscaawilla and Disney golf courses in Orlando, and the Matnazas Woods, Palm Harbor and Pine Lakes courses in Daytona.

Senior Jeff Mullican was the team's low scorer at both tournaments. He had a three-day total of 232 at the Central Florida Classic, including a 74 on the first round.

Mike Cowen had the next lowest score with 236. Brett Pavelonis shot 242, Tom Neuman shot 245 and Bobby Pavelonis, fighting a case of the flu, shot 250.

"Bobby got real sick on the last day at Pine Lakes," Hartzog said. "Then he had some sort of reaction to the flu and had to play all three rounds at Orlando with his eyes swollen almost shut."

Mark Bellas had the team's high score with a 255 at the Classic after shooting a 244 at the Invitational.

The team's next tournament is the SIU-E Spring Golf Invitational in Edwardsville March 31-April 1.

Rugby club meets Indiana at 1 p.m. today

The rugby squad will take on the University of Indiana's rugby football club in two matches at 1 p.m. at the SIU-C rugby pitch, located behind Abe Martin Field.

Coach Steve Montez, a graduate student in recreation, said at workout Thursday that players are working on form after coming back from spring break.

"We have to get out of the spring break mentality," Montez said.

Indiana is 4-0 this season while SIU-C is 2-1.

SIU-C was second at the Old Miss Invitational in Oxford, Miss. The wins came over Mississippi State and the University of Mississippi and the loss was handed out by Southeast Louisiana.

Senior kicker Derrick Spalt will not play because of strep throat. Backup kicker sophomore Tim Ary, who missed the Oxford tournament because of ligament injuries, will serve as kicker.

Club president senior Tom Eunsion, who plays second row in the pack, is recovering from foot surgery and also will not play.

The men's gymnastics team will compete against powerhouses Houston Baptist and Penn State in its last meet of the season Saturday.

The Salukis also will face Northern Illinois, Kent State, University of Illinois-Chicago at the National Independent Championships in Dekalb. The preliminaries will start at 10 a.m. followed by the finals at 7:30 p.m.

"Two are going to the NCAA championships and possibly NIU because they've been scoring up there," Coach Bill Meade said.

Houston Baptist is favored to win the meet and Meade looks for NIU to upset Penn State.

The Salukis are looking at a strengthened lineup with the return of Marcus Mulholland, who has been injured for five weeks.

"He's looked good in practice this week," Meade said. "I look to be 10 points stronger than we were last weekend."

Senior Tom Glielmi and junior Brent Reed are the team's hopefuls to qualify for the NCAA Nationals.

"Tom Glielmi and Brent Reed specifically have a good opportunity to qualify," Meade said.

Meade said Glielmi has an 80 percent chance of qualifying in the floor exercise and vault.

Reed's chances to qualifying are about 40-60 percent in the high bar, Meade said.

1987 NCAA Division II national championship.

The team also won its second conference championship in a row. Twenty out of 24 student athletes scheduled to graduate did so, while two others are continuing their education.

Of his 18 years in coaching football, nine have been at the high school level and nine have been at the collegiate level.

Rhoades, a 1970 Central Missouri State University graduate, has led other teams to notable records.

Of his 18 years in coaching football, nine have been at the high school level and nine have been at the collegiate level.

His squad at the University of North Alabama posted a 15-5 record in 1981 and 1982. During his prep career, Rhoades led the Birmingham, Alabama-based Mountain Brook High School team to a 14-0 record and the state championship in 1976.

Noted for a wishbone offense, Rhoades does not want to speculate on what he will use here.

Whether the team goes with triple options, control passing or whatever, Rhoades said his choice will be what works best for the team.

Rhoades said he doesn't think the change from Division II to Division I AA will be a problem, as winning football games is the same thing at any level. He did say he likes the bigger athletic budget, along with the bigger players he has observed here.

Rhoades, who will be back in Carbondale to stay either Tuesday or Wednesday, said he plans to begin training as soon after Easter as possible.

The coach met with the team Thursday after the press conference and will meet today with the football coaching staff.

Details of Rhoades' contract will not be made public until April. The contract is subject to ratification by the Board of Trustees.

Rhoades and his wife, Elizabeth, have two sons, Robert, 13, and John, 7.

and hope he would consider (continuing to be) part of the program," she said.

The other five assistant coaches are equally in job limbo. They are talking, though.

Saluki defensive line coach Rod Sherrill has been at SIUC for seven years, the longest of any of the current coaches.

"I don't know anything about what's going on," he said. "It's up to him (Rhoades), but either way I'm not going to be upset. I'd really love to stay, though, I'm an alumni."

"I think that Rhoades will do a good job, though. Some of the players called me after their meeting with him and they were really impressed. He sounds like winner," Sherrill said.

Jim Bentivoglio, quarterback and punter coach, said: "I would like to stay at SIU. I've made a four-year commitment to the University and the football program. I've gotten to know the people of Carbondale, too."

Bentivoglio said he didn't know what his chances of staying on at SIUC are, and that he would have to wait until his meeting with Rhoades to know more.

Offensive coordinator Mike Michaels has spent five years with the Salukis.

"To be frank, my future is up in the air right now," he said. "I'm not sure what's going on right now or in what direction things are going." Michaels gave the new head coach high marks, however. "SIU is lucky to get him. From what I've read, he's a real, real good coach," he said.

Brad Hewitt, the Saluki's running back coach for the past four years, figures his chances are just as good as those of the other coaches.

"I would assume I have a one in five chance of staying. It's been my experience that one or no members of a staff is usually retained. I think a lot of it has to do with being in the right place at the right time," he said.

"Obviously I was hoping Larry (McDaniel) would get the job, but I think Rhoades was the top selection of the others," Hewitt said.

Linebacker coach Doug Miller believes that his chances of remaining depend on the decisions of Rhoades' assistants at Troy State.

Ohio State coach not happy with interviewing process

Others disagree

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

The applicants not chosen for the head football job at SIU-C had mixed emotions about the interview process. Tom Lichtenberg, assistant coach from Ohio State, was unhappy with the interview process claiming the University wasted his time. However, Dave Roberts, head coach at Western Kentucky University, said, "It's one of the best interview situations I've been through. I thought it was sensational." Lichtenberg said he was told

—Dave Roberts

"that I didn't get the job was because I was overqualified." "They should have known that by looking at my resume. "I guess being a successful coach at Ohio State eliminated me," he said.

But Roberts said anyone who didn't like the interview process "may have some bitter feelings." DeI Miller, of the University of Iowa, said the interviews were "carried out with a great deal of integrity. I wish Southern Illinois University and Coach Rhoades nothing but the best." Richard Rhoades, from Alabama's Troy State, was named head football coach here Thursday. Bruce Craddock, head coach at Western Illinois, could not be reached for comment.

said. "I threw it like a football. It had no break and it just hung right at the waist. He really didn't hit it that great either but it went up the middle. I might of even had a chance of getting it but those things happen." Kisten did pitch a no-hitter in Pony League but he isn't particularly proud of it. "It was no big deal," he said. "It was (against) the worst team in the league." It was the third-straight complete-game win for Kisten. St. Mary's pitcher Nick Balde held the Salukis scoreless until the third inning. First baseman Chuck Locke capped a four-run inning with a towering three-run homer over the left field fence. In his next at-bat, Locke clubbed a solo home run to lead off the fifth. It was the first two homers of the season for Locke who hit six last season. He considered it just another day at the ballpark. "I'm hitting cleanup," Locke said. "I'm supposed to be the one to hit in the runs. That's my job." Chuck Verschoore and Joe Hall each had three hits in the first contest. In the second game, Saluki pitcher Rick Shipley won in his first start of his career. Shipley (1-0) allowed five hits and five walks in five innings. Saluki coach Itchy Jones was glad Shipley got some experience. "He had good form," Jones said. "He was just up and down." Shortstop Dave Wrona went three for three with three runs batted in. Chuck Verschoore extended his hitting streak to 13 games with a double off the left-field fence in the second inning. The streak extends two games back into last season. "Chuck's just taking good swings," Jones said. "Chuck's not chasing many bad pitches. He's hitting some balls hard. The ball he hit off the left field fence got there about as fast as you'll ever see." At the start of the season, left fielder Rick Damico was leading off with Verschoore hitting second. When Damico was forced to miss four games because of an injured wrist, Jones inserted Verschoore there. Demico returned to the lineup and Jones batted him second. "I feel really good at the plate," Verschoore said. The Salukis were seven for seven in stolen base attempts which puts them at 31 for 36 on the season. The Salukis improved to 8-4 and St. Mary's dropped to 2-2. The two teams play another doubleheader at 1 p.m. today. St. Francis (7-11) takes on the Salukis in doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday at Abe Martin Field.

Moines is close to his hometown of Iowa Falls. "It's only about 2 1/2 hours from home. My wife is excited about the move," Howard said. "I want to make it clear that I was not unhappy here," Howard said. "Rich Herrin, (assistant) Bobby McCullum and Ron Smith are doing a great job," Howard said. "The commitment that they made at Drake excited me," the 27-year-old Howard said. "Professionally and personally, it was a great opportunity." Howard came to SIU-C last July after serving as a recruiting coach at the University of Iowa for four years. Howard said his position at Drake, which begins today, commands a higher salary. He said Abatemarco contacted him a couple of weeks ago about the Drake position. Howard first met Abatemarco when applying for the assistant's job at LaMar last year. Former Drake coach Gary Garner was fired March 7 at the conclusion of this season.

West gets in race for AD position

By Sharon Waldo
Staff Writer

Charlotte West to SIU-C: "Yes, I intend to apply."

West, interim athletics director, said late Thursday night that she would apply for the position on a permanent basis. Even though everything is buzzing at the athletics office now with the arrival and departure of coaches, her application will be in before the April 22 deadline, she said.

There'll be no more waiting for an official job description.

The job announcement, which was sent by Federal Express to publications Thursday, is the official job description, Roger Robinson, chairman of the search committee, said.

An advertisement will be placed in three issues of the NCAA News and one issue of the Chronicle of Higher Education.

Robinson said he and President John C. Guyon talked on the phone a few times Thursday working out details.

"The bottom line is the job announcement-job description — in total — is what we're giving out," Robinson said.

From this announcement, the 11-member committee will draft a criteria checklist to rank the candidates.

Robinson said the names of the top five or six applicants will be given to Guyon the week of April 25.

Robinson said the committee hopes to have the selection process complete by the middle of May.

"My goal is a little sooner, if possible before break while everyone is here. This is a personal goal."

Spring semester ends May 13. "We're not going to do anything in haste to get it done, however," he said.

West has been serving as interim director since Sept. 1, filling the position left open by Jim Livengood. He resigned in late August to accept a similar job at Washington State University.

Football coach looks to turn potential into performance

By Greg Huber
Staff Writer

The speculation ended for SIU-C football players and fans as Troy State's Richard E. (Rick) Rhoades was confirmed as head football coach Thursday.

President John C. Guyon made the announcement at a press conference in the Student Center.

The hiring came less than four weeks after Ray Dorr's resignation. He resigned Feb. 25 to take an assistant coaching job at the University of Southern California.

Interim Athletics Director Charlotte West credited excellent work by the 10-member search committee as the reason for the quick selection.

"I can't say enough good about this committee," West said. "They worked many, many hours. We had over 70 official applicants for the position."

During the conference, Rhoades, 41, said his initial curiosity toward the open coaching position had turned into a burning desire to be a part of this university.

Now that he is the coach, Rhoades said his job is to help the team achieve it's potential.

"There's a lot of difference between potential and performance. It's my job and the job of the other coaches who

McDaniel: 'No comment'

By Jeff Grieser
Staff Writer

Saluki defensive coordinator Larry McDaniel, who was named interim head coach after Ray Dorr's resignation, was in a solemn mood Thursday afternoon.

His job, if he still has one, is on the line.

"If you want to talk to somebody, talk to Rhoades," McDaniel said from his home late Thursday. That's all he had to say.

Richard Rhoades from Alabama's Troy State is SIU-C's new head football coach. He will meet with the assistant coaching staff, one by one, today. It is not likely McDaniel will show.

McDaniel's wife said Thursday he was clearing out his desk. This could be the desk of former coach Dorr or it could be McDaniel's desk.

McDaniel moved in Dorr's office while he was interim head coach.

Interim Athletics Director Charlotte West said late Thursday night that as far as she knew, McDaniel had not resigned. As for cleaning out his desk, whichever one, she said, "He may have. I don't know."

West expressed hope that McDaniel would stick around. "I think a lot of him

Salukis win opener with strong hitting

By Dave Miller

The baseball team celebrated opening day by taking an extended batting practice.

The Salukis won both games of the doubleheader from Division III college St. Mary's, 10-0 and 12-2, by pounding out 25 hits Thursday at Abe Martin Field.

Pitcher Dale Kisten (3-1) threw a one-hit shutout against St. Mary's in the first game. Center fielder John Tschida, the second batter of the game, singled up the middle for St. Mary's lone hit.

Kisten said Tschida hit a hanging slider.

"It was a brutal pitch," he

Basketball assistant leaves

By Dave Miller
and Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Assistant basketball coach Scott Howard resigned Thursday to accept an assistant position at Drake University in Des Moines, Iowa.

Drake on Thursday also named as its head basketball coach Tom Abatemarco, former head coach at LaMar University in Beaumont, Texas.

SIU-C head coach Rich Herrin said he is "happy for Scotty — he's going back home."

"Financially it's a good move for him," he said.

Herrin said he is "not sure of which direction" he'll take to fill the position, but said he will do so as quickly as he can.

Sports Information Director Fred Huff and interim Athletics Director Charlotte West would not comment Thursday night on Howard's resignation and Drake would not confirm his appointment.

Howard said he accepted the position partly because Des

Meet moves to SEMO because of unfinished track

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

The men's and women's track teams first home meets of the outdoor season will be held in Cape Girardeau, Mo., on Saturday.

The meet, which will start at 10:30 for the women and 11:00 for the men, was moved because the track renovation at McAndrew Stadium is still not finished.

"It's a mess," men's coach Bill Cornell said. "But I guess we'll get it done. We have to do it all ourselves."

SIU-C has to bring all its own equipment and also must supply officials.

"I seriously doubt we'd have all those (officials) go over to Cape Girardeau," women's coach Don DeNoon said.

The men will compete against Ball State, Illinois State and Southeast Missouri State. The women will host Purdue, Illinois, Indiana State, Western Illinois and SEMO, which gets to compete on its own track.

"The Ball State coach wasn't very happy but he understands the situation," Cornell said. "Obviously (SEMO) is on their home track but that's not going to bother my men," Cornell said.

Charlotte West, interim athletics director said, "I think most of the schools have coaches that will understand not being able to finish because of weather."

The track, which was to be completed in August, requires another coat of moisture-cured urethane sealant for protection. The lanes and other marks also need to be painted on the track. The completion process should take two days if the weather cooperates.

"In (Intracor's) defense, they've been here ready to go," West said. "But I'm not appreciative of their tardiness on getting here."

"At this point, we'd rather wait three more weeks and have it done right," she said.

Intracor, of Portland, Oregon, is the company contracted to finish the track.

Saturday's meet was designed to show off SIU-C's new outdoor facilities.

"We were trying to use this meet to get the track showcased," DeNoon said. "Now we can start worrying about whether or not the track will be done for the April 30 meet."

The men and women Salukis play host to the Saluki Invitational April 30.
