Arabs Move Troops Toward Israel

CAIRO (AP) - Troops poured out of Cairo Wednesday toward the Israeli frontier. Syria and the United Arab Republic placed their armed forces on full alert against what they profess to see as a military threat from Israel.

As troop movements in both Syria and the U.A.R. continued, dispatches from Israel said the people remained calm. Israel has threatened Syria with military reprisal for acts of sabotage in frontier regions. Syria is reported to have called up some reserves.

The troop movements were accompanied by a flurry of government and diplomatic activity in Cairo.

The U.N. Peace-keeping Force in the Gaza Strip separating the U.A.R. and Israel has been warned to withdraw immediately beyond the Egyptian-Israeli armistice line to escape danger, the authoritative newspaper Al Ahram said.

The request was forwarded to U.N. Secretary-General U Thant in New York. He immediately asked Cairo for clarification. A U.N. spokesman said Thant was concerned by the Middle East situation.

In Gaza itself, Ahmed Shukairy, head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, told a mass rally the organization "will keep sending commandos into occupied Palestine, contingent after contingent, to destroy and burn."

President, Vice President, 16 Senators Up for Polling

By Carl Courtner

Southern's political wars draw to a close with today's campus-wide student elections.

Student body president, vice president and 16 campus senators will be elected from a slate of 33 candidates.

Also in the offering is a referendum polling student opinion concerning the textbook rental system.

Aspirants for the campus presidency include Independent Hedayat Aminarsala and Action Party nominee Raymond Lenzi. Aminarsala is endorsed by the Dynamic Party.

Aminarsala, a senior from Kabul, Afghanistan, lists Mathematics as his major. He is currently a member of the Campus Senate.

Lenzi, a junior from Farmington, is a government major. He is a past member of the Campus Senate and presently serves as the body's educational affairs commissioner.

Paul Wheeler, a sophomore from Marion, undecided as to a major, is Aminarsala's running mate for the vice presidency. Wheeler is currently a member of the Campus Senate, also.

Richard Karr, a senior government major from Carbondale, joins Lenzi on the Action Party ticket. Karr is the present majority leader in the Campus Senate.

Faculty Surveyed

Poll Favors Campus Autonomy

Eight out of 10 faculty members recently polled on the governing structure of the University favored greater autonomy within the two campuses, results of a survey show.

To the question whether the two campuses should be headed by separate chancellors who would be responsible to a University president, 81 per cent said yes.

Interestingly, responses from Carbondale indicated 77 per cent agreement and Edwardsville 89 per cent.

Results of the survey, conducted by the Faculty Council last month, were reported at the council's last regular meeting of the term Tuesday.

The survey of faculty opinion employed a questionnaire made up of four main questions. David Kenney, associate professor of government, was chairman of the survey committee.

Questionnaires were sent to all of the 1,099 voting members of the faculty, including 73 on leave of absence. From both campuses 635 returns were received. Carbondale returned 425, Edwardsville 210.

To the first question, whether the basic pattern of the University governing structure should be changed, 88 per cent answered yes.

Carbondale faculty showed 87 per cent agreement. The Edwardsville figure was 93 per cent.

Of those who said yes to the first question, 70 per cent felt the change should take place within a year.

The second question was the important one dealing with separate chancellors under one University president.

Seventy per cent of the respondents indicated the separation should take place within a year.

The third question asked whether, in addition to the University president, there should be an officer for business affairs for both campuses. The affirmative response fell to 50.4 per cent. The fourth asked whether, in addition to the University-wide president and an officer for business affairs, there should be one officer handling

'Colour Bar'

Economist Slated for Lecture

W. H. HUTT

W.H. Hutt, South African economist, will conduct a public lecture on the "Economics of the Colour Bar" Monday.

The seminar will be held in the Conference Room 121 of the General Classroom Building at 11 a.m., and the public lecture will be held at 8 p.m. in the Morris Library Auditorium.

Hutt was for many years the dean of the faculty of commerce at the University of Cape Town in South Africa. He is now retired and is lecturing in this country.

Hutt's appearance at SIU is sponsored by the Department of Economics and the Special Events Committee.

Gus says the $4.70 hike in IC weekend rates will bother him—for $4.68 he can get a case of malt (and that's not milk shakes).

Education Building. The display is made possible by the museum school loan program whereby stuffed animals may be loaned out for temporary display.

Student Elections Held Today

Martino, Ava, Action Party. Student government will use the results of today's plebiscite as an indication of student opinion concerning the textbook rental system.

Larry Bockman, chairman of the Campus Senate ad hoc committee on textbook rentals, said the survey would influence either the retention of the present system, a change to a system of complete textbook sales or a continuance of the present system for freshmen and sophomores and a change to a sales system to upperclassmen.

Students must present their ID and activity cards when they vote.

Voting booths will be set up in the University Park and Thompson Point canteens for residents of those areas. A booth will be set up at the Campus Drive entrance to Small Group Housing for residents of that area. Students living in any of these three areas must vote in the area's designated polling place.

All other students must vote at polling places located at Room H in the University Center, in the Wham Education Building Breezway, in front of Morris Library or at the Home Economics Building.

An additional booth will be set up at VTI for Institute students.

Polling places will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

After the polls close, ballots will be collected and tallied in the Student Activities office.

The tallies are expected to be completed by 9:30 p.m. at which time the names of winners will be announced and posted in the University Center.

area services for both campuses. The affirmative response fell still more, to 44 per cent.

The results showed that as more officers responsible for both campuses are added the disagreement increased.

"I interpret this to mean that on both campuses the faculty wish to have the greatest degree of autonomy," Kenney said.

Kenney thought that the survey findings would be a useful guide to the administration in planning for the administrative structure of the University.

The opinion study was made independently by the Faculty Council. President Delyte W. Morris, upon learning of it, actively participated in the planning of the survey, however.

Little Noise From Big Deal

Inept Student Government Fails in Major Function

Student government announced just one week ago that students would get the "opportunity" to vote today on the vital question of textbook rental or sales. It was only Wednesday that this referendum voting was widely publicized.

What we want to know is: Why should such an important referendum as textbook rental, which may mean a difference of $40 per quarter for each student, proposed only about one week before the election?

It is assumed, of course, that the student government is here to work "for" the students, not "against" them. Students should have been given more time to think about such an important question. They should have been given a chance to write home (or at least to whoever provides the funds for school) to get advice on whether or not to spend the extra money on textbooks.

The Campus Senate should have undertaken a project to investigate the possibilities and to inform students of the issues before springing a referendum voting on them on such short notice.

However, this type of election-planning seems to be typical of the student government.

Deadline date for petitions for today's voting was last Thursday at noon, only five working days before the election. This is only five days of actual campaigning and for newspaper coverage of the candidates.

The student government is continually waging a verbal campaign for the rights of students. But isn't it also the right of every student to know just what and whom he is voting on?

More time should be allowed for this purpose. It is the sole responsibility of student government to see that the students are afforded this right.

When inefficient student leaders are elected into the student government, it is not the responsibility of the students who voted them into office. It is the responsibility of the student government that did not give the students ample time to study the candidates' qualifications and the issues at hand.

Students Can Protest Proposed Fare Hike

What amounts to a raise in the mid-term Illinois Central railroad fares is scheduled to take place June 18, pending Interstate Commerce Commission approval.

The IC plans to discontinue the weekend excursion fare of $13.80 making all fares from Carbondale to Chicago $18.50.

ICC approval of the change will be requested between May 19 and 22 which allows 30 days before the new rate would go into effect.

The Interstate Commerce Commission's office in St. Louis referred all letters of protest to the proposal to Alan S. Boyd, Secretary of Transportation, Washington, D.C., zip 20591.

We believe that the students of SIU and other interested persons of the area should voice their disapproval of the discontinuation and should do so soon before it is officially authorized.

Lyle Gohn, SIU coordinator of student activities, said he believes that students will not mind the extra $4.70 to go home during the term because the trip is a matter of choice at that time. However, Gohn added, a suggestion was made to the IC that it give a student-discount during the quarter vacations since this trip is not so much a matter of "choice" as a necessity.

Sloppy, Yes

These ungrateful kids. These sloppy guys with beards and sweatshirts. These phony girls with long hair and sandals.

These nice kids from suburbia who wind up on picket lines or protesting in Mississippi. These pc.-smokers and acid heads who are a menace to society. What makes them like that? They live in the most affluent society that the world has ever seen. They have everything. Why do they go wrong?

These are simple questions. But there are no simple answers. To be sure we have more material goods and more freedom to do as we please than did our parents. But our parents had more than their parents and they had more than their parents. The world is no longer a simple place in which to live. The ones that protest and the ones that picket and the ones that burn draft cards may not be doing it just to cause trouble; just because they have it too good. Maybe they're really unhappy with the way things are in the world today. They didn't make it the way it is. It isn't their fault that there's a war going on. It isn't their fault that Negroes can't get jobs or South Americans go hungry.

But that isn't stopping them from trying to change it. That isn't stopping them from taking somebody else's mistakes and solving them on their own. This generation is the most ungrateful that the world has ever seen but it is also the most aware and the most concerned.

Maybe all the draft-card burners are spoiled brats and should be taken over the knee for a good whipping.

But maybe they're responsible citizens who are just trying to make the world a better place to live in. Maybe.

Richard Livert

Warm Weather Spawns Wrecks

Mid-May usually marks the beginning of the annual surge in travel in Illinois and other parts of the nation.

The warm months also seem to have a tendency to bring out the "carelessness" of many of the American motorists.

The constantly increasing number of cars and drivers and the upsurge of travel in Illinois and the United States have stretched the nation's capability to control traffic and prevent accidents to the breaking point.

In an effort to help curtail the number of accidents, Gov. Otto Kerner has declared May 21 through 28 as "Illinois Traffic Safety Week," and it will take the effort of all motorists to make the forthcoming travel season a less hazardous one than Illinoisans and other motorists are accustomed to.

Last year more than 2,500 lives were lost, 149,000 personal injuries incurred, and economic loss in excess of $450 million was resulted on the nation's highways.

Unless something is done, the figures will go up this year.

Public safety workers are providing us with increasingly better transportation facilities. Auto manufacturers are equipping new cars with more safety equipment, and younger drivers are receiving better instructions on how to operate vehicles on modern highway networks.

But all the facilities, equipment, and education can't save lives unless the individual applies these assets to his everyday driving habits.

With the staggering auto-accidents figures, it seems Americans would be a little more careful on the highways.

It might not be a bad idea for the governor to make every week "Traffic Safety Week." If it would cut down the number of accidents, it would certainly be worth the effort.

Robert Forbes

the IC, but this last raise obviously did not cure the fiscal ill. We suggest the IC look elsewhere for the answer to its problems of upping traffic and revenue.

But foremost, we would suggest that passenger satisfaction be top consideration. Airlines, which have increasingly reduced their fares, provide personal services, luxury and a speedy ride (Ozark's flight to O'Hare, even with the stop-over in St. Louis, takes three hours). The airline flight schedule is also predictable, but not the IC's, nor their sister railways.

Railroads have methodically cut passenger trains, raised fares and upped food prices. But, most irritating is the policy of allowing passenger trains to stand idle, while top-priority cattle-cars lumber by without any connections to meet at the other end.

Perhaps an improved-service campaign would attract more passengers, but the IC seems to feel that no passengers at all would be more convenient.

Dianne Anderson

Coleman Report Merely Points Up the Obvious

Although the controversial Coleman Report obviously represents a great deal of work by members of the commission, we couldn't help feeling disappointed in the report as a whole.

To us, many of the "recommendations" appear to be simply recommendations that other committees be appointed to make more recommendations. Others just seem to put in written form complaints most people in the university have already known about, and that many have been striving to correct.

Some sections of the report contain recommendations we would certainly like to see implemented, but then fail to indicate a means of implementing them.

Perhaps the commission wasn't expected to go into the details we hoped it would, but we had expected the commission to recommend more than that student rights be studied, that Greek letter organizations be studied, that student sentiment be studied, that a free university be studied, that student government be studied and that administrative attitudes be reviewed.

Perhaps the best study recommended was a committee to study the university. For two years of work, we had expected the commission to delve into this area itself.

Starting conclusions already common knowledge were also part of the commission's report, such as that there is room for improvement in faculty-student relations, that adult students be allowed more freedom of decision and that greater rapport is needed among students, faculty members and administrators.

We wonder if one of the recommendations — that a committee be appointed to meet with the architects — wasn't merely intended as a joke.

The commission states that it should like to see a faculty-student committee appointed to meet monthly with the university architects and consultants to consider all aspects of campus planning.

A similar committee existed at one time several years ago but, according to reports from its members, their suggestions, recommendations and comments were ignored almost in entirety.

If such a committee should be appointed, we wonder if the commission has any recommendations on how the committee would be able to bend the ears of the architects and other "campus planners."

Any written report of the nature of the Coleman Report, we realize, is likely to bear more than its share of criticisms. But we feel, in view of the two years of work and the nature of the commission, that its report should have been more thorough, delving more deeply and recommending more explicitly. —SIU Alestle, Edwardsville.

Participants Comment on Free School

About the Story

The Daily Egyptian recently assigned a team of reporters to examine the Free School at SIU. They talked to administrators, organizers of the Free School, and students who attend the school's sessions. Some of the reporters also attended Free School classes and gave their impressions of the movement. Today's story is the second of three; the third will appear in Friday's Daily Egyptian.

Free school at SIU claims to be an institution of, by and for students.

It was founded in September, 1966, by a group of students interested in "escape from large lecture halls and the impersonality of instructors. During the winter, free school gained support from Student Government.

Courses offered included poetry, poverty, civil rights, folk singing.

Students may learn or teach the sessions. Reasons for attendance and opinions on the success of free school differ among the class members.

"I was first attracted to the free school by curiosity," said Terry D. Peters, freshman from Belleville.

"Then as I became more involved, I decided that it was a worthwhile experience," he said.

Paul N. Atwood began attending Free school during fall quarter because of his frustration with his regular classes.

"I feel students will get more out of free school because of the informal atmosphere," Atwood said.

Peters said the future of free school was very slim. The leader and organizer of the school is leaving and the school may lack leadership, Peters said.

Knowledge of free school varies.

John Bundy, freshman from Marion who is majoring in pre-law, said free school "discusses controversial issues," but he was not sure of other activities.

Bill Keifer, a sophomore from Chicago, said that he "didn't know what free school is."

A freshman from Lebanon, Marty Benson, who is majoring in interior design, has "seen the posters and that's it."

The only thing James Burns, junior from Marion knows about free school is what he reads in the newspaper.

Joe Kretsch, a freshman from Northbrook, "There just isn't any worry in free school, and without worrying about grades and assignments I can learn more," he said.

Regular SIU classes rely more on grades and assignments rather than allowing the student to learn. The calm atmosphere of free school gives me a chance to think more," Kretsch added.

Students attending the free school say the small class sessions allow them to participate in class discussion more. Because of the size of most regular SIU classes, students are hesitant to ask questions. Attendance of a free school class might be no more than 15.

Kretsch said too much time is wasted in regular classes. He cited a speech course he had as an example.

"Too much time is spent watching 30 other students give speeches throughout the term," Kretsch said. "In my free school speech course we mainly discuss the techniques of speech and the only time speeches are given is when students volunteer."

Robert J. Leonard, a senior from New York, attended a speech class showing films of Adolf Hitler's power of persuasion. "I went to this class because I am a history major interested in films about Hitler," Leonard said.

"You can't argue with statistics," said Diana Voss, a junior from Kankakee majoring in special education, when asked if she felt poverty had a direct effect on her life. The feeling appeared mutual among several of the students attending the SIU free school class on poverty.

Diana Voss, junior from Kankakee who is majoring in special education was encouraged to attend the free school sessions on poverty because it offered her a chance to "exchange ideas with people who are concerned one way or another," with a concern of hers.

Pete Winton, graduate student from New York City, said he felt the free school was a good chance for people to express themselves, especially with something so "pertinent today locally, nationally, and internationally," as poverty.

John and Mary Ann Black, a married couple attending the Saturday afternoon workshop at the Student Christian Foundation, commented on the freedom of the course.

Black, a graduate student in psychology, said that the open discussions in small informal groups create more interest and awareness in the subject than do the university's television or formal lecture classes.

In the open discussions everyone participates without fear of destructive criticism, he said. The criticism is constructive. The course itself demonstrates things that are hard to find in books or hard to understand from books.

"Psychology courses require a great amount of my time," he said, "and since assignments on the guitar are on a personal basis and not compulsory, I can learn at my own pace without fear of losing credit."

His wife said she could not afford to further her education if it were not for free school. She attends the guitar workshop and the free school philosophy course.

The knowledge she is obtaining now will help her later when she can afford to get her degree in philosophy, she said.

Some similarities between the free school classroom session and SIU classes exist:

Subject interest in free school is comparable to 300 level SIU courses in a student's major.

Students take interest in what is being discussed. In SIU classes, the students are interested in courses in their major, the field of interest they voluntarily chose. In free school classes, interest is high because the students come to class voluntarily, and the subject matter is of their own choosing.

In both types of classes, attendance is usually small, approximately 12 to 14 students.

Student dress is nearly the same for both types of classes.

Similarities between SIU and free school classes are few.

The main difference is the way subject matter is taught.

At SIU classes, the instructor is knowledgeable in the subject he is teaching. He has a college education and is a professional instructor.

The lecturer for an SIU class is an "instructor," for a free school class, he is a "co-ordinator."

The co-ordinator for the May 2 free school class was a 19-year-old sophomore who had not picked a major. His knowledge in the subject under discussion was questionable. There was no planned, organized program which really tried to educate the students with facts and information not already known to them.

The free school session was very basic and left open to students expressing their own opinions. They decided the course the program was to take and the subject matter to be discussed. The class was more of a seminar and left the impression that any knowledge a student wanted to gain could be found in a formal SIU classroom session.

Free school is built upon individualism, according to the founders.

The class members are attempting to learn. At the same time they are challenging contemporary society through education. They have a quest to know.

National Convention

Delegate Selections Vague to Voters

By Senator Paul Simon

For several legislative sessions proposals have been quietly buried to give the voters some meaningful choice in the selection of the delegates to the national political conventions by indicating on the ballot the candidate preference for president.

This year for the first time there appears to be a real chance to pass such legislation.

Senate Bill 1158 simply calls for the candidate for delegate to state his preference on the petition which he files, "if elected delegate or alternate delegate I shall cast my ballot on the first roll call for -----." That would be printed on the ballot.

Right now voters go to the poles in a primary before a presidential election and are faced with a list of names of candidates for delegates which mean nothing to most of the public. They are voting for a delegate candidate but have not the vaguest idea whom that delegate might support. Sometimes even the candidate does not know.

This small change in the Illinois law for the first time would give voters a meaningful voice in the process of choosing a presidential candidate, and in my opinion this strengthens our system of government.

The main reason for the improved prospects for the measure is the sponsorship: Senator Arthur Bidwell (R., River Forest) former president pro-tem of the Senate and one of its most popular members. Senator Bidwell does not propose many measures, and usually those he proposes have a good chance of passage.

Senate approval appears probable--and by the time you read these lines Senate Bill 1158 may have passed there already or may possibly have been defeated. House passage is less certain, and readers who favor this proposal may want to write to their representatives and indicate support of Senate Bill 1158.

Some years ago the late Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee suggested that there should be a national presidential primary. For many reasons, I feel this is not a good idea. But we can and should make our state selection of delegates to the national convention more significant and more responsive to the public wishes.

"Let the people know where the candidates for delegate stand on the presidential candidates," Senator Bidwell suggests.

It would be a healthy step forward to do so.

Campus Shortcut

Student Trailblazers Cut Many Problems

By David Margulies

Ah, yes. The pioneering spirit still exists at SIU.

Just look on campus. Note how each pedestrian blazes his own trail across campus, usually missing the sidewalks in favor of the grass.

One need not be as good at tracking as Tonto to follow the trails. With the tramp, tramp, tramp of 18,000 students (that's 36,000 feet) they are easy to spot.

Campus architects, who are in charge of the sidewalk planning for the campus, have not found a solution to the problem. One reason is that traffic patterns change constantly.

Students just don't always walk in the same place each year. As new buildings open up, or as the registrar changes the location of classes, new traffic patterns emerge.

Aside from that, says Associate University Architect John F.H. Lonergan, "Every student is a different individual. You can't predict where he's going to walk."

One suggestion often made is to just let the students walk where they choose on a sea of grass, and then put pavement where the trails emerge.

This, says Lonergan, doesn't work. The idea was tried at Thompson Point. As the travel patterns of the residents changed the sidewalks were not used and the pedestrians went back to walking on the grass.

Another idea is to pave the shortcuts. No again, says Lonergan. People will just shortcut the shortcuts, and you would wind up with an all-concrete campus.

The biggest problem, according to Lonergan, isn't so much the shortcutting during the spring and summer, but student trail blazing during the winter after a snowfall.

The students walk on the snow and injure the grass underneath. In the spring, said Lonergan, SIU winds up with a trail in the grass where the students walked.

Lonergan's office has no solution to the problem. Workers are putting up fences at some strategic areas, adding sidewalks to others. The old trick of spreading manure, which Lonergan opposes, has long since been given up as dirty pool.

Anyway, Lonergan says that SIU's problem isn't really that bad. "We have far less cross-over walks and intermediate walks than other schools have to suffer with," he declares.

Apparently there is no solution in sight. SIU has yet to resort to "Keep off the grass" signs. Perhaps grounds keepers are afraid students might trip over them on their way to class.

Russia Requests Paper by Engineering Professor

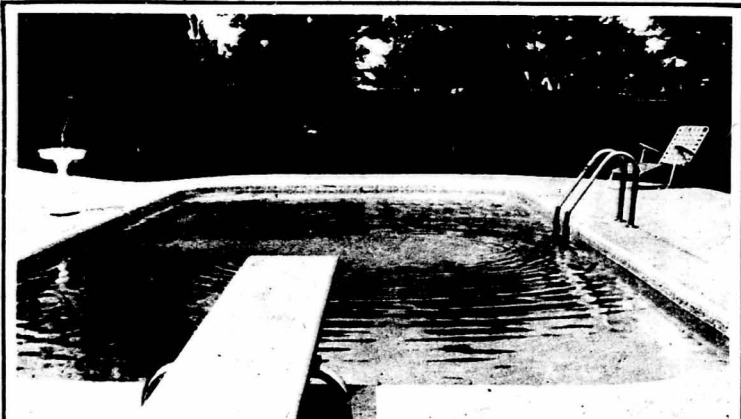

A technical paper written by William C. Orthwein, professor of engineering at SIU, has been sent to the Institute of Chemical Kinetics and Combustion in Novosibirsk, Russia.

The paper, "Rotational In- variance of Maxwell's Equa- tions," was sent at the request of the Russian Academy of Science.

Orthwein, in charge of mechanics of solids at the School of Technology, said the paper was published in 1964. He said it was origi- nally done in regards to measuring electro-magnetic fields in outer space by instru- ments contained in orbiting satellites.

According to Orthwein, his theory can also be applied to measuring the electro-mag- netic fields of rapidly rotating stellar bodies such as stars, moons, planets or atomic particles. Orthwein added that the Russians have also requested a later paper on the same topic.

Texas University Student Snipers Kill Officer

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—A rookie policeman died of a gunshot wound Wednesday in a battle between officers and student snipers at Texas Southern University, the state's largest Negro school. Three other persons suffered wounds.

Police said more than 3,000 rounds of ammunition were fired.

While police questioned 488 students arrested during the four-hour dormitory siege, city and school officials sought to discover what led to an outbreak.

Patrolman Lewis R. Kuba, 25, was shot during an assault by some 100 fellow policemen on the dormitory from which students were firing guns and hurling crude fire bombs.

Kuba's widow is expecting their first child and the couple had moved into a new home only Tuesday.

While police questioned the students jamming every available city and county cell, trying to pinpoint the gunmen, Welch met with the Police Chief Herman Short, the district attorney and the school administration.

Tuesday had been an unusually heavy day of protest actions in Houston. A total of 64 arrests were made in separate demonstrations at a city dump Negroes want closed and at a suburban junior high school where 14 white and Negro students were expelled for fighting.

Students 'Fast' for Food Drive

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—More than 1,700 students at the State University unit here turned thumbs down on a fried chicken dinner Tuesday night—and the chef didn't blink an eye.

The fast, organized by the Sigma Tau Beta fraternity, raised over $1,300 that will be sent to a United Nations committee taking contributions from a nationwide "Student Food for India" drive.

For every missed meal Tuesday night, the university food service donated 75 cents.

750-800 Students Eligible for Social Security Benefits

Between 750 and 800 students at SIU are eligible for Social Security benefits for schooling under the law providing for students with a parent who is deceased, disabled or retired.

The amount of the benefits depends on each individual situation. Students become ineligible only when they reach the age of 22 or when they marry, according to Marilyn E. Cutler, Social Security verification section of the Enrollment Center.

Students receiving Social Security benefits are asked to report their intentions concerning their attendance for the summer and fall quarters to the Registrar's Office. The Social Security Payment Centers must have this information in order to issue payments correctly, and failure to report such information may result in suspension of the payments, she said.

All students receiving Social Security benefits who have not received a return added.

University Plans Interim Use Of Former Baptist Foundation

The Baptist Foundation building and connecting dormitory which will be vacated by mid-August, are not part of the Carbondale master campus plan, Rino Bianchi, assistant to the vice president of business affairs, said.

Thereafter it will come down, he said.

Because of the tremendous demands on space, SIU will probably keep the present building and make temporary use of it for a few years, Bianchi continued.

The building does not lend itself to classrooms, because of the small area of each room, Bianchi said. The University would retain the building then for office or research space, he added.

As of now there are no assignments for the building, Bianchi said.

Until SIU gets possession and investigates the structural soundness of the building, the University will not be able to determine how it is to be used, he added.

No major renovations would be made because of the short-term use of the building, Bianchi said. Minor renovations, consisting of painting, and adding fluorescent lights and electrical outlets, would be made to allow SIU to use the building for a few years, he said.

"We'll wait to see what happens to University school to see what space can be used from there," Bianchi said, before a decision is made about the Foundation building.

Disabled Facilities Rate High at SIU

SIU is one of the top 12 in the U.S. in term of facilities for handicapped students, according to a new book on opportunities for the handicapped.

The dozen schools listed meet all six "convenience" features on a checklist compiled by the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. They are on-campus housing ramps, classroom ramps, library ramps, beveled curbs, reserved parking and modified toilet facilities.

Other schools on the list are San Diego State, UCLA, University of California at Riverside, Tampa, Illinois, Emporia State, Ferris(Mich.) State, Wayne State, Missouri, Oklahoma State Technical Institute and the University of Puget Sound.

The book is "Your Handicap--Don't Let It Handicap You," by Sarah Splaver, and published by Julian Messner, New York.

SIU Helps Develop Education Overseas, MacVicar Says

Robert W. MacVicar, vice-president for academic affairs, who recently returned from visits to a number of SIU's international projects in Asia has urged a closer contact between the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses with the overseas programs.

MacVicar said the SIU teams are welcomed by the personnel of the host countries and are contributing significantly to the development of education in Afghanistan, Nepal and South Vietnam.

The SIU vice-president has asked all faculty members to "clean their shelves" of unwanted and unused books which could be sent to South Vietnam and other countries.

According to MacVicar, there is a "great shortage" of printed material of all kinds in South Vietnam—especially in connection with demonstration elementary schools.

MacVicar has urged all faculty members to make available to the International Services Division Office materials which could be sent to either Nepal or Vietnam.

Tennis Means Work, Travel, Challenge to Al Pena

By Linda Whyte

For more than 18 years a certain young man, now an SIU senior, has been raising quite a "racket." He's Al Pena, from Bogota, Colombia, one of the top U.S. collegiate tennis players. Except when traveling around the nation to stomp other tennis players, he's right here at SIU studying marketing.

By the age of 12 Pena was the National Boys Champ of Colombia and Canada. At 17 he was the Junior Champ in Colombia. After a knee injury, which kept him off the courts for four years, Pena came back to be ranked among the top five tennis players in Colombia and reached the national semifinals there in 1962 and 1964.

Spring is the biggest season for college tennis, although tournaments and meets are scheduled throughout the year. Pena has won many of these and usually travels to one or two meets a week, sometimes more. His record at SIU is 17-0 in 1964, 19-2 in 1966 and 14-0 this year.

Pena commented that tennis is one of the most time-consuming sports when one is working to obtain a certain level of achievement. "You have to practice several hours a day all year round if you don't want to lose your skill," he said.

At the recent Oklahoma City Invitational in which five schools competed Pena said the average time on the court was six hours a day.

Pena stressed that one of the biggest problems in tennis at Southern is that there are no indoor facilities.

Many good players are reluctant to enroll at SIU because of this, since it is important to practice throughout the year. Pena and other players here try to overcome this by training in the Arena during the winter.

"Tennis is a challenging sport in many ways," Pena said. "It's a great opportunity to travel, to meet all kinds of people and to become personally acquainted with them," he added.

As to how he got started with tennis he said, "My father is a tennis nut. He started teaching me when I was about seven."

Pena will graduate in September and, after playing in two tournaments this summer, will enter about four tournaments in Europe. He has been offered a pro teaching position for $20,000 a year but has turned this down to go to Europe and return in October when he will probably go to work in St. Louis.

NIT Films Slated For Campus View

The Activities Programming Board in coordination with the Spirit Council and the student governments of Thompson Point and University Park will sponsor a special showing of game films from the National Invitation Tournament, which the basketball Salukis won March 18.

Films of the SIU—Duke and SIU—Rutgers games will be shown. Coach Jack Hartman will discuss the games and play-by-play will be handled by a member of the WSIU broadcasting crew.

Admission will be 25 cents and profits will be used to sponsor bus trips to away basketball games next year.

The shows will be at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Lentz Hall at Thompson Point and Thursday in Trueblood Hall at University Park.

Junior College Pitcher

Signs Cubs Contract

CHICAGO (AP)—Jim Dunegan, owning four no-hitters as an undefeated pitcher and a .402 batting average as an all-around player for Bacone Junior College of Muskogee, Okla., was signed by the Chicago Cubs Tuesday.

Although Dunegan, a right-hander, fashioned an 11-0 record and had a 0.84 ERA, the Cubs will try him as an outfielder with their Quincy, Ill., club in the Class A Midwest League to which he reports next week.

When he wasn't pitching, Dunegan started every game at first base or in the outfield and was Bacone's leading hitter.

Athletics Rally as Predicted, Take Third Place

KANSAS CITY (AP)—When the Kansas City Athletics were fighting to stay out of the cellar a week ago, Manager Alvin Dark predicted "our young pitchers will jell soon and we'll be playing .500 ball by June 1."

The A's reached the .500 level two weeks ahead of Dark's schedule and took over undisputed third place at 14-14.

Kansas City hasn't been either at the .500 level or this high in the American League standings since 1963.

Four years ago under Ed

Lopat the A's were 18-14, in second place on the morning of May 16.

That year the club skidded under .500 in mid-June and finished eighth.

"I knew our young pitchers would be fine as soon as the weather got better," Dark said, "They just needed more work to get sharper. It's not just our pitching, though. We've been hitting, playing together better and making some real good defensive plays."

Nine days ago, the A's were in last place with an 8-12 record. Chuck Dobson, struggling with a 7.31 earned run average then, has given up only two earned runs in his last 13 2-3 innings. Lew Krausse, pitching in hard luck with an 0-4 record, has won two in a row. Blue Moon Odum is getting back in the groove.

Rick Monday, the club's $104,000 bonus outfielder, has hit .351 in the last 10 games and is tied with Danny Cater for the club lead in runs batted in. He smashed three home runs in that span.

Decision Expected on Southern's Athletic Future

By Tom Wood

President Delyte W. Morris will turn his attentions to the report soon to be submitted to him by the Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics.

The commission, appointed last fall, has finished its study on the subject and will submit the report to Morris as soon as all signatures are obtained and other incidentals taken care of.

It appears that two of the primary concerns of the commission were to make recommendations on the future emphasis to be given Southern's athletic program and the sports picture at the Edwardsville campus.

This past year only two teams at Southern competed on a small college level, football and basketball.

Basketball will graduate to the so-called big time next season. Southern's basketball success this season, a National Invitation Tournament championship included, has enabled the Salukis to obtain games with enough major schools.

This schedule is subject to approval by the Board of Trustees, a formality all sports are subject to. At the moment Southern has commitments with Arizona State, Arizona, St. Louis, Texas Western, Wichita State, Centenary, Iowa and Michigan State, all University Division schools.

The task of scheduling half year games against major colleges opposition, an NCAA University Division basketball requirements, looks almost a cinch for Southern.

In addition, the football team will be playing the toughest schedule in SIU history next fall. Four Missouri Valley teams, a Southern Conference opponent and a major independent (Dayton), in addition to several strong small college opponents are scheduled.

In effect, the decision on status of these two sports has already been made for the commission. The NCAA meeting early in the year resolved the controversial status rule.

A ruling came out of the Houston session stating that any college or university which competes in University Division tournaments must declare its University Division in all sports.

This rule will be effective in September 1968. All eight of the SIU University Division teams will or have competed in major NCAA post season tournaments or meets during the past year.

But status is one thing and being able to compete successfully in exclusive company is another. For this reason another major decision must be made regarding scholarships.

Will the University provide more NCAA scholarships, which will offer additional benefits to the athletes signed, or will the administration decide to make do with what it has?

Also dependent upon the forthcoming decision are proposed or hoped-for new facilities, such as a larger football stadium, new track, a much needed swimming pool, indoor facilities and a recreation building.

With the decision will come talks on possible conference affiliation and, if so, which conference. The phrase "big time" is ambiguous and misleading.

The question is: does the administration feel that SIU's athletic program is keeping pace with the growth and development of the University?

And if not, does the administration plan to make adjustment to bring them into proper proportion?

SIU is no longer small. Nor is it plagued by anonymity. For these reasons its athletic department cannot claim, as John Bangs' Little Elfman did, that "I'm just as big for me. As you are big for you!"

Salukis' Opponent Unnamed For Game Sunday Afternoon

There is still some speculation on just who the Salukis will play Sunday at the SIU field in conjunction with Old Timers Baseball Day.

St. Louis University is scheduled to play SIU on Sunday but the Billikens may not be able to show up. It won't

NIT, Gymnastics Film

Shown Tonight on TV

A look back at the athletic events and successes of the past school year at Southern will be featured on WSIU-TV's Sports Panorama show at 6:30 tonight.

Film highlights of SIU's basketball team will include games with St. Louis University, Louisville and the NIT championship game.

Other film features included in the program are football, track, cross-country and the NCAA gymnastics Championships held in the Arena.

Host Ron Hines will narrate the show which will be the final Sports Panorama program of the 1966-67 academic year.

Golfer Grabs Club

For Swing at U.S.

SANDWICH, England (AP) - Joe Carr, 45-year-old captain of the British Walker Cup golf team, decided Wednesday to drop his nonplaying role and have a whack at the Americans.

The Irish leader, who supervised Britain to a tie against the United States amateurs in Baltimore two years ago, elected to rake an active hand in the renewal on the Royal St. George's Course Friday and Saturday.

In early trials, Carr outplayed all other members of the British squad. He has won the British Amateur title three times. The depth and strength of the U.S. team seems to have influenced Carr's decision. The 10-man squad, led by Jesse Sweetser of Washington, D.C., has cruised the 6,748-yard, par 70 links on Pegwell Bay with ease.

be known until possibly late Saturday evening whether St. Louis will be able to make the game.

The Billikens are involved in the Missouri Valley Conference baseball championship with Cincinnati University. The two teams are scheduled to play a double-header on Friday and a single game on Saturday in St. Louis to decide the championship.

Rules governing the playoff are that the team that wins two games is the winner of the MVC championship. This means that if the Billikens take the doubleheader on Friday from the Bearcats they will be able to play the Salukis on Sunday.

In case of a split on Friday the two teams would go at it in the big game on Saturday and St. Louis would still have plenty of time to make it from St. Louis to Carbondale for Sunday's game. Speculation revolves around a thing that has already caused the Salukis to cancel (six) games in May - rain. If either of the scheduled games between St. Louis and Cincinnati is rained out they would have to be made up on Sunday which would mean that the Billikens wouldn't be able to play Southern.

The entire plan for Sunday rests with fair weather. If St. Louis can't make it for the games on Sunday then Joe Lutz and his Salukis will have to find some other means of entertaining the Old-Timers who will come from all over the area.

More than likely this entertainment would feature the Saluki baseball team in either an inter-squad contest or a game between the freshman and the varsity.

The Salukis will be more rested for the big weekend which will include a double-header on Saturday with Tennessee Martin Branch. Southern hasn't played a game in 17 days and the season is in its twilight.

SIU owns a won-lost record of 26-6-1 and with a possible four game series over the weekend a 30 win season could be realized. This would make it almost impossible for the NCAA to deny Southern a berth in the regionals.
