Deadline for stables will pass Thursday as work continues

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Nov. 15 date for deciding what to do about the Saluki Stables will probably pass quietly Thursday as students continue working to keep the stables open.

The Student Senate ad hoc committee for researching ways of funding the stables will send its report Thursday to Dan Orescanin, executive vice president and vice president for administration. Orescanin, due to return to campus last Thursday, will review his report before taking action on the stables.

Gene Peebles, business operations manager, said "no real discussion" about whether to close the stables has taken place among administrators. He said the administration wanted to avoid closing the stables if possible.

"I don't think the administration is in any great hurry" to decide the fate of the financially-troubled stables, Peebles said. He mentioned the administration was pleased with student efforts to save the stables as a University facility.

Peebles was "pretty confident" Orescanin will accommodate a request to delay the decision until Dec. 5.

The extension was requested because "there hasn't been time to contact everybody there is to contact," said Rick Pere, chairman of the ad hoc committee. Pere said there has not been adequate time to fully research possibilities of obtaining funds for the stables.

The search for funds dominates the committee report to Orescanin. While people express a desire for the stables to continue, Pere recognized, "Signatures alone won't keep the stables open."

The committee report on funding considered numerous ways of obtaining funds, only to reject them as impractical or unreliable later in the report. Among the items covered were:

—Temporary support from Auxiliary Enterprises, with an eye to offsetting the stables' operating deficit with revenues from campus vending machines.

—Donations, outside contributions, and added tuition or fees.

—The possibility of turning the stables over to an academic unit, or restructuring the stables operation and limiting it.

—Merging Saluki Stables with SIU's Little Grassy facility

Although all of the suggestions had good points, the report indicated, none provided a reliable, comprehensive answer to the problem of stopping the operational deficit of the stables and meeting required maintenance costs.

Abandoning half-measures, the report urges acceptance of the "most radical" plan to save the stables: the stables should "be expanded and formed into a new School of Education offering."

The report proposes "at least a two-year associate degree program and/or minor concentration in horsemanship." Offerings would include aspects of riding, showing, training, breeding, care and history of horses. Production, management and other related areas also would be offered, with the intent of eventually building a four-year degree program.

The report continues that there is no such equestrian school in Illinois and very few of a similar nature in the United States. Aside from drawing students to SIU, the report said, the program would fill the needs of a rapidly expanding professional horse business.

The committee recognized the problem of funding such a program, especially in light of recent education academic advisement in favor of additional funding for Morris Library.

"I already know that most of the students want both," Leasure said. "But it really doesn't help much with the problem. I'm only going to object to the advice that comes too late," he said.

Asked by senator Duke Koch if the money saved by eliminating academic advisement will be rechanneled into the library, Leasure said, "There has been no decision made. I am seeking advice on this matter so a good decision can be made. I'm gathering all the information and input I can."

Leasure stressed he is not trying to eliminate academic advisement but it

The Student Senate Wednesday night unanimously passed a resolution that the academic advisement system now in operation be retained and given the same priority as the funding of Morris Library.

"Reduction or elimination of the program would have a seriously detrimental effect on the humaneness, efficiency and student satisfaction the program presently provides," the resolution reads.

Copies of the recommendation will be sent immediately to SIU President David R. Derge, University vice presidents and members of the various advising units.

The resolution was submitted by the Academic Affairs Committee which conducted research into the advisement program and presented its recommendation to the senate for approval.

Faculty makes 6 recommendations for DE

By Terry Martin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Faculty members of the School of Journalism have recommended six items for restructuring the Daily Egyptian, Bill Harmon, former managing editor, told a Student Senate committee Wednesday.

Harmon testified for his second day to the Academic Affairs Committee in its hearings into the editorial policy of the DE.

Harmon, a journalism instructor, said the faculty unanimously adopted its recommendations on Oct. 15 and sent a copy to administrators. The recommendations are that:

—The director of the School of Journalism be designated fiscal officer (publisher) of the DE with authority to delegate duties and responsibilities of the position to one or more members of the faculty.

—The chain of command be from director to dean to appropriate vice presidents.

—A seven-member board of directors, composed of journalism faculty, undergraduates and graduate students, be established to make and oversee news, editorial, advertising, personnel and fiscal policies of the paper and to coordinate newspaper operations and academic programs relevant to those operations.

—The director of the School of Journalism be the ex-officio chairman of the board of directors.

—The chief editor of the paper be an appointed member of the journalism faculty and that he serve as a regular member of the board of directors.

—A University Press Council be established with members from each of the constituencies in the University's governance system, to represent the University community to the paper in a counseling and critical capacity. Harmon said the fiscal officer of the DE Howard R. Long, professor of journalism reports directly to the University president or the president's chief aides.

"The newspaper's freedom to publish without fear or favor appears to be more illusion than fact despite repeated professions to the contrary, no matter how sincere, by the fiscal officer or those to whom he reports," states the prologue to the recommendations accepted by journalism faculty.

Asked by committee member Glori Underwood if the faculty has any control of the paper, Harmon said, "Non whatsoever. There is no faculty input of that kind into the Daily Egyptian."

Harmon said the journalism faculty believes it, rather than the administration, should have control of the paper.

"There are strong suspicions that strings are being pulled somehow, somewhere," he said. "Because of this the paper's credibility is somewhat diminished, he said. "Our recommendations would provide a buffer at the very least so people wouldn't say the administration is in control," Harmon said.

"With the establishment of a University Press Council (one of the recommendations), it would have been the place where Whitehead could have gone to voice his complaint," Harmon said. "I think newspapers should be accountable to the people it serves. This would be a channel," he said.

Harmon also said faculty members were upset that they were not invited to confer with the five-man committee that was appointed recently by President David R. Derge to check into the relationship between the School of Journalism and the DE.

Harmon said he thinks the committee is scheduled to return to campus during the first week in December.

"We're assuming the faculty will have a chance to confer with the members then," he said. "It may have been the faculty was overanxious, which I can understand."

Williamson County coroner panel declares penitentiary death suicide

By Rafe Klinger
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

MARION — A six-man coroner's panel declared the Oct. 27 hanging death of Marion Penitentiary inmate Jackson "Curly" Fee was "by suicide by strangulation."

The panel's decision came at 8:38 p.m. Wednesday after some 20 minutes of deliberation in the Williamson County Courthouse.

Federal prison officials reported that they had discovered Fee hanging by a sheet in his closed-front cell in the segregation section at about 9 p.m. Oct. 27. Fee had been confined in the segregation section since July 26, 1972, for his participation in an inmate work strike. He had been moved from an open faced cell to the solid metal door closed front cell, called a "boxcar" by inmates, on Oct. 22.

The hot, muggy courtroom, with only 32 seats, but filled by some 50 people, was presided over by Williamson County Coroner James R. Wilson.

The American Civil Liberties Union, which wants an investigation into Fee's death and the treatment of other inmates confined in Marion's segregation section, sent two attorneys, Michael Duettsch of Chicago and Arnold Jochum of Carbondale, to the inquest.

The panel's decision was based on the testimony of two prison officials and a pathologist's report.

Everett Herring, the Marion guard who discovered Fee's hanging body, told the panel that he had brought Fee three books of matches at 5:15 p.m. the night of the inmate's death.

At 9 p.m., Herring said he peered through one of the three small windows in the metal door to Fee's cell and saw Fee's body dangling just behind the door.

Herring testified that he phoned the prison hospital "for help immediately." Moments later, others arrived and they forced the door, blocked by Fee's body, open, he said.

"I couldn't untie the sheet," Herring said, "I bent down and picked up the body to let the tension out," so he could be cut down.

William Nesmith, physician's assistant at Marion, was one of the men who arrived to help Herring at the cell. Nesmith said he checked Fee's body for "heartbeat, respiration and pulse," but found none. Nesmith said he gave Fee's body artificial respiration with a resuscitator for "10 minutes" before Fee was carried from his cell to the hospital where he was pronounced dead by the prison doctor at 9:15 p.m.

GSC approves student trustee election laws

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Graduate Student Council (GSC) Wednesday night approved the joint GSC-Student Government laws governing the election of a student trustee to the SIU's Board.

Approval followed addition of one item under "Candidate Qualifications," calling for the elected trustee to be willing, after election, to forfeit any office held in any campus organization. No other changes in the document were made, and the election laws will stand as amended for both governance bodies, said GSC President Lynn Kinsell-Rainey.

In another matter, the council's ad hoc committee for the study of graduate assistantships initiated discussion over whether teaching assistant workloads should be lessened to maintain the number of assistantships available to graduate students, or whether workloads should be constant at the expense of the number of openings possibly available.

The matter received sharp discussion, with a number of council persons protesting the either-or choice. The representatives were charged with sounding their constituencies for opinions on the matter.

The council's executive committee proposed a number of changes in the tentative governance document for the University Senate. The council voted to re-name the senate as a forum, and called for the senate-forum to restructure its operating plan in terms of a forum group rather than a governance body.

Sharon Yeargin, GSC executive secretary, said duplicate stances on issues between the U-Senate and GSC posed a threat to GSC's impact and influence as a legislative body. The scope, and form of the senate should be limited to that of an arena for discussion and debate, Ms. Yeargin said.

GSC opened nominations for the offices of vice president and secretary, with the elections planned for the next GSC meeting. Michael Sutton and Toni Stewart were nominated for the vice presidency, and no nominations were received for secretary.

Mayor Daley submits record Chicago budget

CHICAGO (AP)—A record billion dollar budget for 1974 was submitted to the Chicago City Council Wednesday by Mayor Richard J. Daley.

It totaled $1,053,141,424.

The budget includes pay raises of from 5.5 to 6.5 per cent for 40,000 city employees.

The weather:

Cloudy and cooler

Thursday: Cloudy, cooling and a 60 per cent probability for showers in the morning. The temperature throughout the day will be decreasing from the lower 60s or middle 50s in the morning to the low 40s by the late afternoon. The wind will be from the SW in the morning at 8-20 mph, slowly changing to NW by tonight. Relative humidity of 90 per cent.

Thursday night: Partly cloudy and cold with a 25 per cent probability for showers. The low temperature will be in the middle to upper 20s.

Friday: Fair and cool with the high around the low to middle 40s.

Wednesday's high on campus 70, 2 p.m., low 60, 3 a.m.

budget restrictions. However, the report said, such a school would be a "rare opportunity" to answer growing interests in equestrianism.

The proposal is a nice idea, said Pere, but the immediate funding troubles are still here. He added he "has a feeling" the administration minds are already made up negatively.

Pere said the stables have had financial woes for a long time. These problems were becoming very apparent around 1968-69, he said, when the operation was subsidized by Auxiliary Enterprises.

Recent moves to close the dollar gap include the raising of riding and boarding rates for private horses, Pere said. The move, effective in December, will knock about $6,700 from the estimated $12,000 operating deficit. In addition, the recent volunteer workdays at the stables pared $3,000 to $4,000 from the $20,000 immediate maintenance estimate.

However, Pere said, sizable amounts of money are still needed. He said he hoped the administration would extend the deadline for a decision on closing to allow for the completion of the search for funds.

Brown talk changed to Thursday in Lawson

H. Douglas Brown, assistant professor of linguistics and education at the University of Michigan, will tackle the topic, "On Having the Guts to Learn A Second Language," in a lecture at 4 p.m. Thursday in Lawson 101.

The lecture was originally scheduled for 2 p.m. Friday.

Nagle turned down

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Gov. Daniel Walker's appointment of James J. Nagle, 28, to the Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees was turned down Wednesday night by the Illinois Senate Executive Committee.

The party-line vote was 12-9, with the Republican majority prevailing.

It was the eighth recommendation for rejection of Walker appointees by the committee.

Student Senate election draws 26 candidates

Ten more students took out petitions Wednesday for the Student Senate election, bringing the total number of Senate candidates to 26, Student Body President Jim Kania announced.

The ten new contestants are: Thomas Mellman, Diane K. Johnson, Mark S. Krome, William Karmell, Mark Seifert, Volle Morris, Yogesh Desai, Jerry Kixiduski, Larry I. Roth, and Alan Jacobson.

Kania said only two more student trustee petitions were taken out Wednesday. Duncan Koch and Mark Kiefert are the two new candidates, bringing the total to 15.

Allegations announced

Contract reneging reported to F-Senate

By David C. Miller Jr.
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Allegations that the administration reneged on binding contractual agreements with a number of new fall faculty appointees were announced to the Faculty Senate Tuesday.

Jonathan Seldin, chairman of the Senate's Faculty and Welfare Status Committee, said the Committee received allegations that the administration tried to alter the salary of several new faculty members, after they had signed contracts with the University.

Seldin said he understood the appointees had refused the lower salaries and were preparing for a court fight, since their University contracts are legally binding. He said he did not know the names of the appointees, and no evidence of the charges had been received.

"Gee, I haven't heard a thing about it," said Keith Leasure Wednesday afternoon. "It hasn't come to us (administration) that we have cut any salaries." Leasure is academic vice president and provost.

Leasure explained the only "odd" situation arising this fall was the case of a faculty candidate from California. The potential candidate, Leasure said, mistakenly interpreted a telephone inquiry about a position at SIU as a bona-fide appointment.

"He threw his stuff into a U-Haul trailer, came to Carbondale, and wound up in my office asking, 'What's the story,'" Leasure said. Although a formal appointment had not been previously authorized for the candidate, Leasure said the person was put on the University payroll for one year.

Leasure said the allegations were perhaps referring to this type of incident, and he mentioned faculty members have been urged to clear offers of employment through his office.

"If anyone has been made an offer, and then been cut, that's something I'd like to see, too," Leasure said.

Seldin said his committee was interested in collecting any possible information about the allegations, in order to clear the matter up. He invited anyone knowing about the alleged salary cuts to send the details to his office in the Department of Mathematics.

'Sexually dangerous' called inadequate for description of criminal offenders

The term "sexually dangerous" used in Illinois to classify most individuals convicted of a sexual offense, is an inadequate classification by the standards offered in the lecture on "Treatment of the Sexual Offender," at a second-day session of the Fourth Annual Institute of Law, Psychiatry and the Mentally Disordered Offender being held at the Student Center.

Harris Rubin, associate professor at SIU's School of Medicine and Rehabilitation Institute, said that sexual offenders are labeled sexually dangerous by the nature of the court proceedings against them, "when in fact many are not dangerous at all."

"In the case of sexual offenders against children, a great majority are non-violent. Probably 85-90 per cent of these could be kept in minimum security institutions instead of maximum security," Rubin said.

Rubin discussed in detail some of the various types of sexual offenders and

Paul Simon declares candidacy for seat on U.S. Congress

By Diane Mizialko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Paul Simon, former Illinois lieutenant governor, announced his candidacy for the 24th District seat in the U.S. House of Representatives Wednesday at a Holiday Inn press conference.

Since Rep. Kenneth Gray's statement last week that he intends to retire from public office in November, Simon, a Democrat, has made no attempt to hide his interest in succeeding Gray.

Simon followed his declaration of candidacy by trying to counter anticipated charges of carpetbagging. Simon, 45, is a resident of Troy and teaches at Sangamon State University, Springfield.

Troy is the northernmost part of the 24th District, and as Simon pointed out, he could maintain his residency there and legally stand for election.

However, Simon said he has established legal residence in Carbondale, where he has rented a home on Walnut Street. Until his teaching contract at Sangamon State expires in spring, he said, he will commute.

Simon said he has worked hard for the people of Southern Illinois and maintained an interest in local issues.

"Mine has not been an election year interest of convenience," he said. "I am willing to compare my record of service to Southern Illinois with any candidate who has announced or will announce."

The candidate said he was the first state official in the nation to require key staff members to disclose their incomes. Throughout his political career, Simon said, he has provided detailed personal income disclosure statements. He pledged to continue to do so.

Contributions to the Simon campaign will be reported in more detail than the Federal Election Campaign Act requires, he added.

Simon described the 24th District's role in solving the energy crisis as a "critical problem." Southern Illinois coal, he said, is "part of the answer" to the national crisis. Ways of converting high-sulfur coal to acceptably clean fuel must be found, Simon said.

The trend toward urbanization also affects this district, Simon said. He noted that while the population of Illinois has grown, the population of the state's southernmost counties has dwindled.

"We must encourage the health of small communities," he said.

Simon said he has seen "substantial support" for his candidacy, including support from the grassroots. In addition to media representatives, the conference was attended by about 15 Simon supporters. A few orange and black "Simon" lapel badges were visible.

Simon pledged, if elected, to continue Rep. Gray's efforts to obtain federal funds for district projects and to carry through Gray's plans for a $5 million federal building in Carbondale.

Simon said he also would maintain the current Congressional offices in Mt. Vernon and West Frankfort and open a third office in Carbondale.

Specific planks in the Simon platform will be announced after Jan. 1, Simon said. He will begin his "street campaign" Friday in Tamaroa.

Tamaroa was selected as the kick-off point for his campaign because the late U.S. senator from Illinois, Democrat Paul Douglas, opened his first campaign there, Simon said.

Simon's 18-year political career has included eight years in the Illinois House of Representatives, six years in the State Senate and four years, from 1968 to 1972, as lieutenant governor under Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie.

Simon was the first Democratic lieutenant governor in Illinois history to serve with a Republican governor.

In 1972, Simon lost a bitter Democratic gubernatorial primary battle to Dan Walker by a narrow margin. Simon's original legislative district included part of what now is the 24th. His parents lived in Washington County which lies within the district.

Simon began his career as a newspaper publisher. At the age of 19 he purchased the Troy Tribune. When he left the newspaper business in 1966, he had expanded his interests to 14 papers.

their manners of motivation. He then explained a few of the methods employed to treat or rehabilitate such offenders.

"Many are not treated adequately because of a lack of understanding on the part of those conducting the treatment, which often causes the individuals to repeat the offenses," Rubin said.

Student Senate supports advisement

is being considered among other things.

"The ideal would be to get more money from the legislature, but that's highly unlikely," Leasure said. "On Dec. 4, budget decisions will be made."

One of the possible alternatives to the present academic advisement system would be for faculty members in each department to advise, Leasure said.

The Academic Affairs Committee report given prior to Leasure's question-answer period showed if responsibility for advisement is transferred to faculty, the students are at a disadvantage.

"This load would put too much more of a load on the faculty," Marc Kamm, committee member reported. "Statistics show they would not do the best job possible."

"Library books are equipment and academic advice is a service," Leasure said. "If we don't have to pay advisers, we can ask that the budget provide less service money and more equipment money, but we could do that with anything."

"There's nothing in the university that is sacred except faculty and students," Leasure said.

What are the priorities?

The drastic cutbacks in book buying announced Wednesday are the biggest threat yet to Academic Excellence.

SIU, chosen to be the "second jewel" among state universities, can't even keep its library operating effectively by internal budgeting. Yet it can give its administrators pay raises, beef up recruitment programs for new students, scrape up additional funds to revamp a football stadium and finance a $400,000 parking garage.

Somewhere along the line, Academic Excellence has come to mean personal financial gain, convenience, prestige and more students.

Four years ago, the Morris Library budget was almost $1 million. The budget request for this year was only $500,000 and after cutbacks by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) stands at $350,000. No effort was made to reallocate money internally to the library. Library Affairs Dean Ralph McCoy's letter to President David R. Derge asking if more money will be available next year went unanswered.

The proposed budget for fiscal year 1975 asks the state for $84 million. Of that, $15 million is to be spent for new buildings. Only $2 million of the total will be directed toward new or expanded programs.

Derge and campus treasurer Dan Orescanin have both said that a good, sound library is vital to a comprehensive university. But, they add, money just isn't available for reallocation due to IBHE cuts last year. That may be true. But they only asked the IBHE for $500,000 last year when Dean of Library Affairs Ralph McCoy estimated it would take $750,000 to keep operating at a decent level.

Part of the mission of a major university is to offer extensive graduate and research programs and to provide the facilities necessary to the operation of those programs.

Four new graduate degree programs costing $150,000 are planned for next year. Nearly $190,000 more will be spent to initiate four new bachelor's degree programs. It's unlikely that an undercut library can provide students and faculty members for the needs created by the expansion in those areas.

There are funds and resources available now. Those degree programs could be delayed until the library is built up to where it should be. And the $400,000 taken from parking fees for the new parking garage could be reallocated in fiscal 1975 to cover library expenses. The recruitment program could be cut down and those funds redirected. A university with a negligible library collection hasn't a whole lot to offer incoming students, anyway.

Finally, the Alumni Association has pledged to raise funds for the stadium renovation. Their efforts and those of the SIU Foundation should be aimed at Academic rather than Athletic Excellence.

Broad generalizations

To the Daily Egyptian:

As a black student, I think that Patricia A. Johnson's approach to the cause of racism, not only at SIU, but throughout the country, is very simple minded. What is really unfortunate to learn, is that you are majoring in Elementary Education. I would hate to see my son or daughter enrolled at a school where a teacher would say that it is a common trait for a WASP not to make any sense. What is wrong with this statement is that all WASPs are not senseless. True, some are; especially the closed minded bigots. But also true is the fact that some of our black population also does not make sense, particularly yourself.

I have concluded that the essence of your article is that whites are the cause of racism. But there can be no racism unless there also exists a different race than those who cause the racism. To blame a war on one party and to also excuse the other for continuous fighting will never bring an end to the war. It will only bring an end to the world.

The nation's gas pains

To the Daily Egyptian:

A young S.I.U. student sat in his room one night reading the daily paper. The paper was filled with reported incidents of robberies and rapes occurring all over campus.

"It's getting pretty rough around here," the student said to himself.

A sharp knock suddenly sounded at his door. The student walked over to the door and opened it.

"Put your hands up and give us your money," demanded two men.

The student saw that both men had guns pointed directly at his head. He quickly handed over his money and the men ran off. The student stood in shock for a moment and then ran into the hall.

"Help! Police, help!" cried the student.

Several minutes later a police officer arrived and asked what had happened.

"I was robbed!" cried the student. "Where were the police? You're supposed to protect me from incidents like this!"

"Sorry," replied the officer, "but we were busy tracking down some dangerous pot smokers."

"Pot smokers?" yelled the student. "What about armed robbers? What about rapists? What about bike thieves?"

"We can't be everywhere at one time," replied the officer. "Besides, pot smoking violates the law too."

"But I was robbed at gun point!" argued the student. "I could have been killed!"

"Don't worry," said the officer, "we'll fill out a report on it. But you'll have to excuse me right now. I smell some pretty sweet smoke coming down the hall."

Stunned, the student watched the police officer slowly creep down the hall sniffing the air. The student sadly shook his head, walked back into his room and locked the door.

Some areas of agreement

To the Daily Egyptian:

In replying to Ms. Irons and Mr. Mason I would first say there are areas where we are probably in agreement. But I feel we have failed to communicate properly in that there exists the persistent notion I and others of the Christian faith would try to force you to do something you do not want to do. This is not true; you have free will to choose your own life style. A true Christian will not try to force you, but he will try to share with you his heart, and it is this I try to do.

And with this in mind please allow me to share with you my thoughts concerning the subjects we have held under discussion. Surely the Holy Bible speaks of the drinking of wine, but condemns drunkenness. There are those of us who would choose to abstain completely from alcohol as we feel it to be an obvious corrupting element. How do we define "moderation," where do we draw the line? Is this not also a personal choice and cannot I make my choice in accordance with my free will? Can I not do this without having the things I believe in deemed "obnoxious"? This I would share with you.

And you speak to me of logic but I would say that we cannot always rely upon logic as it is only a method of reasoning; it is of our own understanding and as such will sometimes fail us. Logic is weak in that logic may miss truth. An argument can be logical and still be false if only one of the premises of the argument is false. Logic does not imply truth. There is, I believe, a spiritual being beyond the mental or psychological being, beyond the soul if you will. A spiritual existence can make our lives more abundant and solve for us more problems than we can with mere mental gymnastics. It is within this spiritual existence that I try to communicate with God, to fellowship with God and to know God's peace. This I would share with you.

And concerning the Holy Bible I can only say that it does for me speak of truth and is the true Word of God. Not many will read it, but I do and it is for me most rewarding. This I would share with you.

Please do not misconstrue my words or read into them the militancy or vanity which I do not want to be there, but rather see my prayer that the Peace of God be with you and that we may communicate, that we may share.

Decisions now shape future role of cable television

By Michael H. Holland
Regional Director Of Cable Television
Information Center

The futuristic projections about the phenomenon of cable television are alternatively stupifying and horrifying. It has been said that cable will provide you with education, connect you to a computer, read the meters in your house, provide alarm systems from your home to police and fire stations, allow citizens instant access to their government, enable us all to travel wherever we please but live in small rural towns, deliver our newspapers, account for our checks, and maybe even read our mail.

None of us knows which uses for cable television actually will develop. But it seems highly likely to be important in the future and, therefore, it deserves serious attention today. However, present cable television in no way resembles cable communications in the future.

There are about 3000 cable systems today with almost 7,500,000 subscribers. In other words, the average system has a little over 2500 subscribers. This is a far cry from the systems, with hundreds of subscribers that are predicted for large urban areas in the future.

The average system has nine channels — not 60 or 90. It's in a small town surrounded by mountains, not a large city. It does little programing of its own, let alone deliver the mail. And it certainly provides few if any educational and municipal services.

The cable industry itself is tiny. Its total revenues are about as large as the revenues of America's 350th largest corporation by itself. But it is a rapidly growing industry and — a problem for the future — it is a rapidly concentrating industry. The top 20 cable companies account for almost 60 percent of all cable subscribers.

Because of this wide divergence between the present state of cable television and what dreamers have predicted, it is fashionable today in some circles to downgrade and downplay the importance of cable communications. But cable TV's current problems seem to be no greater than the standard transitional problems of any new technology. And if cable realizes even a small proportion of its possibilities, it will be a major development. Policy makers, therefore, have to be interested in cable television not for what it is today but what it might become.

In any case, they have to be concerned because the current pattern of cable regulation by the Federal Communications Commission places substantial responsibility upon cities and towns to determine the nature of the cable system in their community, the ownership of cable television systems, and the manner of regulation of cable television systems.

A few points ought to be kept in mind about the decisions local governments must make:

First, they are important decisions. They deal with a technology that can have a major effect on our world.

Second, the decisions have not been pre-empted by the Federal Communications Commission or state government. Many of the arguments by other levels of government about the degree to which they should regulate cable basically involve an assumption that local governments are incompetent. The corollary of that is that the care with which local governments make cable television policy will do much to determine their future role.

Third, there are large areas of uncertainty about cable television and local government must make a concentrated effort to cut through the fog that surrounds most discussions of the subject and ask the right questions.

Fourth, a community must first concern itself with franchising and regulating cable. But both now and in the future, how cable systems will be used must be an essential area of concern.

Finally, cable decisions are not solely technical ones. There are political decisions, economic decisions, and major public policy decisions which ought not to be made lightly or without public participation.

The single most important thing a community can do is to avoid the stance with which cities normally approach cable television. In most cases in the past, cities and towns have waited for cable operators to send them proposals. Local government ought to reverse that procedure by drafting a cable ordinance which reflects the kind of system and the regulatory pattern they want and by then inviting cable companies to apply, assuring that all parties are afforded due process the federal rules require.

A community ought to establish a complete procedure for cable franchising and regulation. The Cable Television Information Center, a non-profit, nonpolitical advisory group in Washington, D.C., created to help local officials develop cable television in the public interest has written a model procedure which distinguishes five phases:

An organizing phase — which ought to be a time when responsibilities, resources, budgets, and schedules are decided upon.

A study phase — when the significant questions a community will face about cable television are defined and answered.

A legislative phase — when a cable ordinance is written.

An applicant selection phase — when a cable franchise is awarded.

A post-franchise phase — when the existing cable system is regulated in a way the community decides.

Letters

O'Keefe letter

To the Daily Egyptian:

All people with an open mind, this letter is meant to acquaint you with the latest evidence of the truth. This evidence proves the existence of God and identifies His message to humanity. It is only through examination of God's message that you can truly come to know Him.

The last unchanged book of God is the Qur'an (Koran). The last prophet of Allah (God) was the Prophet Muhammad (Peace be upon him). Since the other prophets (Jesus, Moses, Abraham, etc.) (Peace be upon them) could perform miracles, then it should be logical that God's last miracle should be a continuous one. One that we can all see. The Qur'an specifically states that this Book is Prophet Muhammad's (Peace be upon him) miracle (29:50-51), and that God will protect His message from change until time's end (15:9).

In order to understand this latest evidence one must know a little something of the Koran. The Book contains 114 suras (chapters). At the beginning of certain suras there are letters which appear to have no significance. In order to understand the letters possible meaning, a computerized study of the Qur'an was undertaken. The research was published in the book, Miracle of the Qur'an by Rashad Khalifa, Ph. D. (Three copies were given to the library.) The mysterious letters it was found tell of a great mathematical plan in the structure of the Book. To write such a book you would to control 626,000,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 manipulations, in addition to making sense. In the Koran it is stated that no man could write such a book (15:9). God's religion is Islam.

Warning: Those who reject God and do bad deeds, their journey's end is hell. Heaven and hell start right here on earth.

For all Muslims who are interested, there are Friday prayers at the Student Center on the third floor in Activities Room 'A' at 12:30.

May God guide us all.

Respect for heritage

To the Daily Egyptian:

In your November 8, 1973 issue a YOUNG man questioned the validity of a Miss Ebony Pageant. It doesn't seem to make sense because he is looking thru the eyes of a racist. Because of the Blackman's History in America we must re-learn what Black Beauty is all about. To accomplish this we must learn to use the institution and means that we Blacks have learned from you whites.

In Chicago they have a Polish-American Day, Irish-American Day, and so on to exercise the heritage but when Blacks attempt to exercise their heritage it is called racist. May I ask what is the tool you use to measure racism. Maybe our red brother had something with his forked tongue saying.

Energy gap

Proposals by the President to compel electric utilities to use coal instead of oil or natural gas where possible, are probably unavoidable in the present emergency. Indeed, in view of the widening gap between domestic production and consumption of oil and the growing cost and unreliability of foreign supplies, it is probable that the country will have to make much greater use of its vast coal reserves in the years immediately ahead until other alternative energy sources can be developed.

It is essential, however, that such changes be made in ways that will minimize potential adverse effects on efforts to clean up and preserve the environment. In his address night before last, the President indicated he was seeking authority to relax environmental regulations only "on a temporary case-by-case basis" and to set "reasonable standards" for the surface mining of coal.

On the contrary, the administration has, in fact, been pressing Congress for broad powers to suspend environmental safeguards and has opposed legislation to curb the excesses of strip miners. Mr. Nixon is also asking authority to speed up the licensing of nuclear power plants, a dubious step that could have serious long-range implications for public safety as well as for the quality of the environment.

Although some selective sacrifice of environmental standards may be unavoidable in the short run, the long-range objectives of clean air and water and a restored landscape must not be compromised or abandoned to executive discretion. Much more can and should be done to curb this country's extravagantly wasteful consumption of energy before energy "requirements" can be cited as justification for a license to pollute and to ravage.

Robbery attempt foiled by victim

By Rafe Klinger
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Two men were thwarted in an armed robbery attempt Tuesday night when their intended victim grappled with one of the robbers, causing both to flee.

Michael R. Springston, 18, 201 Allen III, told police the incident began with a knock on his door at 10:05 p.m. Tuesday.

Springston said he opened the door and a lone man in the hall asked him if he had any matches. He said he went back in his room to get some, then saw another man coming down the hall wearing a handkerchief over his face and carrying a gun.

Springston reported he tried to close his door but the two men forced their way into his room. He said he grabbed at the gun and began wrestling with the gunman as the second man searched his room. Two shots were fired during the scuffle over control of the weapon, Springston said.

The robber threatened several times to kill him, he said.

After the second shot, Allen Hall residents came out into the hall. The gun man yelled to his companion, "Robert, let's get out of here," and both men fled in separate directions down the hall. Springston said.

Springston described his assailants as black and wearing dark clothes. The man with the handkerchief over his face also wore a cowboy hat and was about 6 feet 2 inches tall with a slender build, Springston told police. The other man was about 5 feet 10 inches tall with a medium build, he reported.

Another Allen Hall resident told police he saw two men matching Springston's description pull away from the dorm in a 1965-66 white and maroon Pontiac Bonneville shortly after the incident.

An SIU detective said the two men's descriptions and method of operation match those of two men who robbed another Allen Hall resident of about $50 last Wednesday.

Deadline nears for proposals

The deadline for proposing projects to be funded by the SIU Academic Excellence Fund for 1974 is Nov. 30.

All proposals must be submitted to Keith Leasure, vice president for academic affairs, in a format he specified in a letter Nov. 7. The proposals will be reviewed by Dec. 17 and funding should begin in January, 1974.

The Academic Excellence fund is used to finance projects which exemplify academic excellence but for which no regular funding is available. Criteria for determining the appropriateness of a program for the academic excellence funding are:

Any idea which contains promises to contribute to the quality of academic functions of the University will be considered.

Proposals must be able to be implemented within space available at the University.

Proposals involving restoration of budget cuts, space rentals or which can normally be funded by established means will not be supported by the Academic Excellence fund.

Funding should not exceed $137,500 in each six-month period.

Members of the committee which will review the Academic Excellence Fund proposals are Carolyn Austin, senior, English; Doris Dale, instructional materials; Lillian Greathouse, School of Technical Careers; Dorothy Higginbotham, speech; Thomas Jefferson, School of Engineering and Technology; Gilbert Kroening, school of Agriculture; Stanley Smith, College of Human Resources; Charles Snyder, department of sociology; Ralph Stacy, department of physiology and Charles Woelfel, accounting.

Assistant Provost Dean Stuck will act as adviser to the committee.

Aviator constructs, flies replica of 1912 airplane

By David Kornblith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Mike Murphy, 18, a freshman in aviation, has set back aviation technology 61 years.

Murphy, a resident of Oak Lawn, has been busy the last three years completing a replica of the 1912 airplane, the Bellanca. "I built it because I had nothing better to do and I've always been interested in airplanes," he said.

Murphy built the plane all over Oak Lawn. "I built one wing in a friend's garage, the fuselage in another friend's living room and the engine in my bedroom," Murphy said.

Upon completion of the aircraft, Murphy decided to test it out by flying to Carbondale from Chicago. "It took me about eight to nine hours to get here because the plane only cruises at 45 m.p.h.," Murphy said. "I also had to stop seven times to refuel," he added. The gas tank on the plane is only capable of holding a few gallons, he said.

Murphy, who said the plane is registered with the Federal Aviation Association, (FAA) as an experimental model, took the plane out for a cruise Wednesday.

As the young pilot donned his leather jacket and hat, and put his goggles in place, he started the plane by turning the one propeller over.

Before taxiing down the runway, Murphy had to run up to the control tower and alert them of his intentions. His plane is not equipped with anything as sophisticated as a radio.

Strapping himself into the one-seater, open cockpit, Murphy taxied down the long concrete strip. The "ooohs" and "ahs" from the on-lookers, who were doubting the plane's and pilot's ability were audible.

After the vintage looking flying machine became air bound a cheer rose from the 35 or so spectators. The modern Southern Illinois Airport seemed to resemble the sight of one of the first successful air flights.

"My dad thinks I'm crazy for flying this thing," Murphy said. But, FAA states that I can fly the plane wherever I want, he added.

The plane, which cost $1,500, almost resembles the 1912 model exactly, Murphy said. The wings are constructed of cloth, the fuselage is wood and there is a lot of glue and wire holding the sections together, Murphy said. "But, even though the plane is a 1912 construction, it is sturdy," he said.

The weight of the structure is 550 pounds, the wingspan is 31 feet and the length is about 25 feet, Murphy said. It also has no brakes.

Murphy has put a few safety devices on his plan that the 1912 model did not come equipped with. I put on ailerons to help steer the plane, Murphy said. I also added a few gauges to help me fly the plane. The 1938 Continental engine he uses is more dependable than an engine from 1912, he said.

Murphy, spoken of as "enthusiastic and motivated" by Edmond Darosa, chairman of the aviation technology division, plans to build another plane, he said. "I want to build an enclosed two-seater plane that travels a little faster," he added.

SIU to host correctional education meeting

By Gary Houy
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Several new programs for teachers in corrections and law enforcement education will be introduced to junior college and corrections officials Thursday at a state-wide correctional education conference at SIU.

The conference, to be held in Student Center Ballroom A from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., will be aimed at teachers who will be involved in educational programs in correctional institutions and those who will conduct education programs for law enforcement and corrections officers.

Lawrence Weisman, assistant professor in occupational education and conference program chairman said he expects an "excellent turnout" at the conference.

"There will be around 60 people from outside the University and 20 people from within the University participating in the conference," Weisman said. "It is the combined effort of four groups: The Department of Occupational Education; the Rehabilitation Institute; the Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections; and the School of Technical Careers."

Cooperating with the University in the program are three governmental agencies: The Division of Vocational Technical Education, the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, and the Department of Corrections.

"This is the first conference of this kind in the state," Weisman said. "And it is unique nationally in that we're looking at the problems in hiring people to teach in a correctional program."

Weisman explained that the aims of the custodial and security workers can conflict with those of the teachers in a correctional institution.

"Our object is to prepare people who are qualified technically and can also work in the institutional environment," Weisman said.

The conference was organized by William Applegate, coordinator of the office of vice president and provost. Academic Vice President and Provost Keith Leasure will open the morning session.

The opening address, "Emerging Directions for Rehabilitation in the Nation's Correctional Institutions," will be delivered by Joseph S. Coughlin, president of the American Correctional Association.

Ray Quick, administrator of education and vocational services for the Illinois Department of Corrections, will then speak on "Training Needs For Staff and Residents In Illinois' Correctional Institutions."

Superintendent of the Department of Corrections, School District J. Clark Esary will talk on "The Role of The Correctional System School District in Facilitating and Implementing Emerging Directions for Rehabilitation."

Edmund Muth, deputy director of the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission's Correctional Manpower Services Program, will wind up the morning session with "Developing a Comprehensive Manpower Delivery System."

Dean Stanley Smith of the College of Human Resources will open the afternoon session with a talk on "The Human Side of Correctional Education: Relating to Custodians and Inmates in an Adnormal Environment."

Following a discussion and coffee break, Jack Cody, assistant dean of the College of Education, and Dennis B. Anderson, assistant professor in the Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections, will talk on the preparations of corrections teachers.

Weisman said the conference is open to all interested students and faculty.

Truckload-of-beer sale brings legal miseries

By Diane Mizialko
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Tom Hoffman, part-woner of Eastgate Liquor Mart, is becoming a cynical man.

Authorities halt auto recovery

CHOUTEAU ISLAND, Ill. (AP)—Recovery operations at what police describe as a submerged junkyard for stolen cars have been halted because Madison County authorities said they could not afford to pay the divers.

"The county doesn't have $200 a day," a spokesman for the sheriff's department said.

The spokesman said further salvage operations may have to be conducted by the insurance companies which are represented by the National Auto Theft Bureau.

But Don Armstrong, head of the bureau's Chicago office, said "I can't decide that right now," regarding the financing of further recovery operations. "We don't know what companies are involved."

Ten vehicles have been pulled from the bottom of the Mississippi River off this island since the graveyard was discovered Saturday. Divers said they counted 106 vehicles in the 35 feet of muddy water.

Canoers to plan weekend trip at next meeting

The Southern Illinois Canoe and Kayak Club will meet Thursday at 8 p.m., in the Chockstone Mountaineering shop at Walnut and University.

Plans will be made for a trip this weekend, said Aldon Addington, faculty sponsor. Where the group will travel is dependent on water conditions, he said.

The last meeting's discussion of home-made canoes and kayaks stimulated a lot of interest among members, he said, and design and construction projects will likely increase among club members.

Never too old to try

NEW YORK (AP)—Senior citizens are learning karate at a center in Forest Hills for men and women over 60 years. The federally funded center, which provides free hot meals, cultural and social programs, started offering karate instruction when officials realized that many older persons were afraid to leave their homes at night to participate in the program.

"You try to do something about high prices—something nice—and draw the wrath of competitors and the state," Hoffman sighed Wednesday.

The "something nice" Eastgate tried to do placed Hoffman, and his partner and brother, Steve, afoul of the law. Eastgate has been cited by the State Liquor Commission on grounds that an October parking lot truckload-of-beer sale allegedly violated the State Liquor Control Act.

Eastgate's legal miseries could end with the suspension or revocation of its state license to sell alcoholic beverages.

The liquor act stipulates that alcohol may be sold only from licensed premises. The truck from which Eastgate offered cut-rate beer was not properly licensed.

Hoffman said Eastgate had held two truck sales in the parking lot on previous occasions with no hassles. "The third time must be a charm," he said grimly. Hoffman believes one of his competitors turned him in to the state.

He said he had been informed that only city approval was necessary to hold the sale.

Before earlier truck sales, Hoffman said, Eastgate secured written permission from the city to peddle beer from a truck.

Hoffman said the city attorney's secretary told him he had permission to hold the third sale.

Thomas Murphy of the Chicago office of the Liquor Commission said state approval must be obtained any time alcohol is sold off licensed premises. The procedure is routine, Murphy said, and city permission has nothing to do with it.

After technical evidence shows the sale actually occurred—a point Hoffman does not contest—the burden of proof is on Eastgate, Murphy said. Eastgate must show cause why its license should not be revoked or suspended.

Hoffman, on the other hand, said he believes the liquor commission must prove the sale was "detrimental to the public good."

The case will come before the Liquor Commission in Chicago Friday.

School board eyes building

The old Carbondale Post Office may become part of the Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) system if the school board decides to purchase the building at its Thursday night meeting.

Cecil Hollis, comptroller of the CCHS district, said he has "no idea" whether the board will purchase the $74,500 building or let it go up for public sale. The district must decide by the end of the week.

"The building would be used for some administrative offices, adult education facilities and our Operation Rebound program, which is now in an apartment building," Hollis said.

The board also will discuss the possibility of borrowing $12,000 on the district's building fund, review the annual audit report and the results of the custodial staff's collective bargaining election, and consider appointment of a staff for the Cooperative Vocational Program.

The board is in the process of collective bargaining procedures with the teachers. Bill Sundermeyer, spokesman for the teachers, said bargaining is "still going slow." The board plans an executive session Thursday night to discuss bargaining progress.

Park board will chart course on center plans

A special meeting to discuss last Saturday's $750,000 bond referendum and the future plans of the Carbondale Park District was set for Nov. 26 by the park district board of commissioners Tuesday night.

The commissioners met to officially count the votes on the bond issue which would have helped finance the park district's proposed $1 million swimming pool-ice skating rink complex.

The official count showed 751 against the bond and 598 for it. Twenty-seven of the 1376 ballots cast were declared spoiled.

A breakdown by precincts showed that 129 of those voting at the At-tucks Multi-Purpose Center were for the bond and 92 were against it. Four hundred, twenty-nine votes cast at Winkler School were for the bond and 659 were against it.

Robert Coatney, park district director, said Wednesday he thought the chances of a referendum being called on the same bond issue were good.

He stressed that any decision on future plans for the recreation center would be made by the board.

Tom Langdon, president of the board of commissioners, said Monday that he will suggest another referendum on the same bond proposal.

Langdon blamed light voter turnout and confusion over the tax increase for the bond defeat.

Pre-med meeting

The SIU Pre-med and Pre-dent Club will hold its second meeting at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Lawson Hall Room 171. Films on childbirth and heart surgery will be shown.

Handicapped students helping themselves

Since the beginning of Fall quarter a trio of handicapped students has been engaged in a Home Economics class designed to help increase their abilities to help themselves and other physically handicapped students as well.

Barbara Bell, Juanita Howard and Diane Karp enrolled in Family Economics and Management (FEM) 300, Section 8, after the Specialized Student Services department announced that the course would be offered.

The class meets twice a week in the Home Economics Building where Carolyn Crynes, an FEM instructor, teaches the three students some of the skills needed for maintaining an apartment or home.

The objectives of the course were drawn as a result of input from handicapped students at SIU stating what they felt would be useful courses and things to be learned while working toward their academic degrees.

Juanita Howard, a graduate student for Catawaba College in North Carolina who majored in psychology, came to SIU last year in the hope of developing some new skills for herself and for others with physical handicaps.

"On the advice of her adviser Dr. Eileen Holley, and with help and encouragement from interested students and staff members, Juanita was asked to write a proposal for course which would be helpful in allowing handicapped students become more independent," Silas Singh, coordinator of the Specialized Student Services, said.

After evaluating a questionnaire sent to all the University's handicapped students, a proposal was drafted and presented to FEM and other departments for consideration and additional ideas.

Singh said nearly nine months of planning went into the development of the course, which is the first academic course to be promoted from the "non-academic" department since the program was started 15 years ago.

The formation of the course was done with the help of Shirley Friend, chairman of Clothing and Textiles; Ms. Mary Edmondson and Karen Craig, chairman of FEM; and Paul Lougeay, chairman of the Interior Design department.

"Handicapped students are often criticized for not dressing well or for being unable to manage their own household," Singh said.

"This course and others to follow are designed to teach blind and other physically handicapped students how to make clothes, cook, keep house and do other things that have not been taught them before," Singh said.

"Most handicapped students are products of institutions since the day they are born, and generally have their handicapped re-enforced by being kept under strict care in schools for the handicapped and other institutions," he said.

"When they come to college they find themselves exposed to open doors for greater independence and unable to enter many of them because they lack the necessary skills with which to be more independent," Singh said.

All three of the students enrolled in FEM 300 live in the SIU Baptist Student Center, where most of the University's Handicapped students are housed.

However, many of the physically handicapped living there would like to live in other places where they could prepare their own meals and have more room and privacy.

Last quarter an experimental cooking class was conducted for blind students.

"They prepared their own food and ate what they fixed," Singh said.

Singh added that the most important part of such courses is in their ability to help build confidence in the handicapped student, by proving to him "he can do it" and be more personally independent.

"The federal government has set aside $1.5 million for housing complexes for the handicapped. Our design department is working on various models of this type of housing which we hope to present for funding in the near future," Singh said.

Barbara Bell would be the first to agree that loading a washing machine from a sitting position is not as easy as it may look.

Operating a kitchen blender can require a lot of concentration for a physically handicapped person.

Diane Karp employs both balance and strength to the task of unloading clothes.

Cox firing ruled illegal by district judge

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge ruled Wednesday that the firing of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox was illegal.

The decision led to immediate calls that Cox return to his office, but he indicated he will not. "For me to make any legal claims under Judge Gesell's decision would only divert attention from getting the job done," Cox said.

A congressman who sought the ruling from U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard A. Gesell said the decision makes the possibility of impeaching President Nixon substantially more likely.

Cox was fired at Nixon's order by Acting Atty. Gen. Robert H. Bork in an action that led to the departures of two top Justice Department officials and a preliminary move in the House of Representatives to impeach Nixon.

Texas lawyer Leon Jaworski later was appointed as the new special prosecutor.

"The important thing is that the investigation and any resulting prosecutions be vigorously pressed by Mr. Leon Jaworski, or any special prosecutor named under new legislation, and the present very capable staff," Cox said in a telephone interview.

The White House referred all comment on Gesell's decision to the Justice Department. Bork said he will have nothing to say until he reads it, then will "try to do what is called for under the circumstances."

"Mr. Cox served subject to congressional rather than presidential control," Gesell ruled.

Gesell, responding to a suit by three Democratic congressmen, had earlier rejected requests for injunctions which would have permitted Cox's return.

Gesell based his ruling on the regulations which established Cox's office, noting they were nearly identical to the regulations protecting his successor.

For Jaworski's sake, "it is therefore particularly desirable to enunciate the rule of law applicable if attempts are made to discharge him," said Gesell.

But while Gesell upheld the members of Congress on their suit, he criticized any attempt to guarantee the independence of the prosecutor by creating a new one subject to appointment and supervision of the courts.

"The courts must remain neutral. Their duties are not prosecutorial," said Gesell.

Ralph Nader, who initiated the suit leading to Gesell's decision, had urged Cox's return "if he is willing."

"Judge Gesell's decision substantiates further the obstruction of justice by President Nixon in the Watergate criminality," Nader said.

Rep. Bella Abzug, (D-N.Y.), one of the three congressmen who brought the suit, said the ruling moved along efforts to impeach Nixon.

Talents program expects support

The Carbondale Elementary School Board is expected to recommend approval of an expansion of its "Teaching Talents Unlimited" program for individualized talent development at its Thursday night meeting in the District 95 office at 306 W. Main.

The expansion proposal will then be forwarded to the Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction in Springfield.

In other matters, the board is scheduled to ratify the employment of a crossing guard at the intersection of West Walnut and South Oakland, and recommend applicants for part-time band instructor and physical education teacher positions.

Executive to be honored

Raymond Giesecke, chairman of the board of McGraw-Edison Co., will be the guest of the College of Business and Administration Thursday and Friday as Executive of the Day.

Charles Hinderman, dean of the business school, said Giesecke will be greeted at 6:30 p.m. Thursday in the Student Center Wabash Room by faculty and students of the school. Giesecke is at the McGraw-Edison home office in Elgin.

Giesecke will speak on "Profit Sharing" at 2 p.m. Friday in Morris Library auditorium. "McGraw-Edison is one of the leaders nationally in profit sharing," Hinderman said.

The College of Business and Administration has "three or four members of recognized Illinois-based companies visit SIU each year," Hinderman said. There have been a few occasions in which out of state businessmen have been invited, he said.

The program, co-sponsored by the business school faculty and student council, has existed "about five years," Hinderman said.

Future Executives of the Day include Stanley Goodman, chairman and chief executive of May department stores, scheduled for January 1974; Edward Donnell, president of Montgomery Ward, scheduled for late February; and Seymour Coleman, executive vice-president of Beech Aircraft, to be at SIU in April.

How you express yourself depends upon your camera.

Today almost everybody is getting into photography. And it's not the snapshot variety. People are doing sports stories, nature stories, portraits—you may even have a friend who's doing photographs through a microscope. Or a telescope.

You also know that everybody has his own idea about which camera is best. That's why it's important for you to know about the Canon F-1. Because it's the system camera that's fast becoming the favorite of professionals. And the new status symbol among photography enthusiasts.

The whole F-1 system includes over 40 lenses and 200 accessories. It's capable of doing virtually everything in photography. So whatever idea you have for a picture, the F-1 has the equipment to make sure you get it.

Because it was conceived from the beginning as a system, it works as a system. All the elements are quickly and easily interchangeable. No matter which lens or accessory you use with the F-1 body you won't have the feeling that something has been "tacked on."

What's more the F-1 is comfortable to handle. Years of research went into the design of the F-1 body and placement of controls so your fingers fall naturally into place. You'll appreciate this comfort when you're on assignment. It's also an important thing to keep in mind if you're investing in a camera you plan to keep a long time.

Canon has been in the optics industry over 37 years. We make microscope equipment, amateur and professional movie cameras and TV lenses. It's this experience that helps make our still cameras the best selling cameras in Japan. In America, it's just a matter of time.

See your dealer for more information. He'll also show you Canon's other SLR cameras, like the FTb and TLb. Both of which offer accurate metering, easy film loading, a wide range of lenses and the same standard of engineering that goes into the F-1.

CLASSIFIED INFORMATION

Deadline—Deadline for placing classified ads is 2 p.m. two days in advance of publication, except that deadline for Tuesday ads is Friday 2 p.m.
 Payment—Classified advertising must be paid in advance except for accounts already established.
 The order form which appears in each issue may be mailed or brought to the office, located in the north wing, Communications building, no refunds on cancelled ads.
 Rates—Minimum charge for two lines, multiple insertion rates are for ads which run on consecutive days without copy change.

Use this handy chart to figure cost:

| No. of lines | 1 day | 3 days | 5 days | 10 days |
|--------------|-------|--------|--------|---------|
| 1            | 80    | 150    | 200    | 400     |
| 2            | 120   | 225    | 300    | 600     |
| 3            | 160   | 300    | 400    | 800     |
| 4            | 200   | 375    | 500    | 1000    |
| 5            | 240   | 450    | 600    | 1200    |
| 6            | 280   | 525    | 700    | 1400    |
| 7            | 320   | 600    | 800    | 1600    |

One line equals approximately five words. For ad copy, use the order form which appears every day.

British feel energy cutback

LONDON (AP)—Britain dimmed its street-lighting and cut heating in public buildings Wednesday in emergency moves to meet a threatened shortage of energy.

The government's ban on street- and flood-lighting was effective at midnight but many firms simply turned off their advertising signs at closing time. Movies and theaters, however, kept their marquee-lighting on until the deadline.

Piccadilly Circus, the crossroads in the heart of the capital, was dim in the early evening but far from the blackout level of World War II.

The government ordered the ban on lighting and a 10 per cent cut in heating in all public buildings and state-owned industries after declaring a state of national emergency Tuesday.

The action was taken to give the administration necessary powers to deal with a refusal by coal miners and workers in the electricity-generating industry to work overtime.

Med program seeks recruits

Extensive efforts were begun this week to recruit 16 students for openings into the MEDPREP program held winter quarter. Terry Irby, recruitment counselor for MEDPREP, announced Tuesday.

MEDPREP (Medical Education Preparatory Program) was designed to assist students from groups currently underrepresented in medical schools with their careers. Ms. Irby said. Twenty-six students, including blacks, women, veterans and students from low income backgrounds, have been accepted into the program, she said.

Priority for acceptance into MEDPREP is given to residents of Central and Southern Illinois. Ms. Irby said.

To apply for MEDPREP, a student must have at least two years of college education and must participate in a special admissions program involving tests and interviews. Persons who have already graduated from a college or university also may apply, she said.

Deadline for applications for the winter quarter program is Dec. 3. Interested students should call Ms. Irby at 536-3381, extension 41 or come to the Allyn Building Room 7.

Women hockey players selected for sectionals

By Kenneth Pilarski
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Three SIU women field hockey players were selected last weekend at the Midwest Regional Field Hockey Tournament to represent the South Region at the Midwest Sectional Selection Tournament this weekend in St. Louis. The three women are Debbie Elders, Debbie Zalk and Judy Benedict.

Thirty-three players were selected out of the 110 who participated in the regionals at Macomb. These 33 players will form the three teams to play against the three selected teams from the North Region.

This weekend's tournament is being played to select three teams to represent the Midwest Region at the National Tournament in Boston, to be held over Thanksgiving vacation. Sixty-six players will be competing for 33 positions plus two alternate spots.

Ms. Elders, Zalk and Benedict started on their hoped for destination of the Nationals back on November 34 when SIU was host for the Midwest College South Field Hockey Tournament.

Nine schools participated in the tournament to select players for two all star teams to represent the Midwest College South Field Hockey Association at the regionals in Macomb.

Ms. Elders and Zalk were selected for the first team while Ms. Benedict made the second team.

Annette Griffin was also chosen for the second team, but failed to be selected during the competition at Macomb.

The players for each team are chosen strictly on their performance during the tournament. Past performances are not to be considered by the selection committee, made up of one member from each participating school.

SIU has their best scorer in the tournament in the person of Ms. Zalk who led the team in scoring

Entries being taken

The Carbondale Park District will be taking entries into the Adult Basketball League until 5 p.m., Nov. 20. A team entry fee of $100 is required.

The League will operate from Nov. 26-March 1. For more information contact the Carbondale Park District at 457-8370.

Hiller named most competitive

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — John Hiller, Detroit Tiger pitcher who overcame a coronary to break the major league baseball record for saves, was a landslide winner of the 1973 Hutch Award, it was announced Tuesday.

The voting is for a player who best exemplifies the competitiveness of Fred Hutchinson, a former major league pitcher who was the Cincinnati Reds manager when he died of cancer in 1964.

with 10 out of the team's total of 20 goals for last season. Ms. Zalk, known by her teammates as Bobby Hull has led the team in scoring for the past four years.

Ms. Elders, one of the team's premier defensewomen, described her position at right fullback "as the last line of defense before the ball gets to the goalie."

Ms. Benedict is the quiet member of the team and their number one goalie. She played in every game of the season allowing only six goals.

Grad grabs gobbler third time in turkey trot

By John Morrissey

Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

From high on the hill east of the Arena, spectators at Wednesday's annual SIU Intramural Turkey Trot watched in puzzlement as two lead runners came into distant view.

One runner they could recognize as Ben Huntley, the favorite; who literally ran away with the 3-mile event the last two years running. But no one could figure what manner of man could be staying with Huntley after 2.5 miles.

"Who is that guy?" someone asked as he looked down at the approaching harriers, bringing to mind visions of Paul Newman and Robert Redford.

The revelation of the mystery challenger was anticlimatic, because Ben had run into a Saluki trackman, out for an afternoon practice session. And Huntley, a 27-year-old doctoral candidate in higher education, saved the overhead cost of his Thanksgiving dinner for the third year in a row. With the tremendous price increase expected for this year's big bird, Huntley's dinner probably will taste better, at least psychologically, than in previous Thanksgivings.

Huntley was asked how long he was going to corner the market. "This is the last one," he said, to the relief of next year's hopefuls.

His time of 16:04 was eight seconds faster than his winning tour last year, and 1:50 better than second-place finisher Tom Deming, sophomore in computer science.

"After the first mile I just relaxed," Huntley said, reconstructing the road race to Evergreen Terrace and back that no one could see from the finish. "There wasn't any competition."

"This is like a hundred yard dash for me, short and fast," he explained, "because I train for marathons." Huntley said he usually runs two or three 26-mile races each year, though he would like to run more. The constraints of school and his family life of eight years limit the time available for competition. Even so, he said he manages to cover around ten miles per day.

"It's like a hobby with me," he related. "Some people play chess or chase women, I enjoy running."

The Office of Recreation and Intramurals presented three turkeys: a 19-pound specimen to Huntley; a slightly smaller one to women's division winner Marilyn Good, wife of Larry, an associate professor in physical education; and a third bird raffled off among contestants who finished the race. The winners also received trophies.

Mrs. Good had only one other contestant to beat, but her time of 11:13.5 over 1.5 miles was good enough to outlast a more populated field. She said she has run better, and had hoped to finish at about 10:30.

Turkey triumph

The Saluki swimmers open the swimming season with an intrasquad meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday, at Pulliam Pool.

Bob Steele, SIU swimming coach has divided the swimming team into equal halves and is expecting a close meet when the White team battles the Maroon team.

This is Steele's first chance to see his swimmers perform under meet conditions and has high hopes for his freshmen swimmers, seven of which are high school All-Americans.

"We have an outstanding group of freshmen," Steele said. "They will form the nucleus of the team," he added.

While the freshmen will form the heart of the swimming team, Steele has four seniors returning for another season of competition.

The returning seniors are free stylists Pat Sullivan and Rob McGinley, breast stroker Randy Giefer and diver Don Cashmore.

The combination of the talented frosh and the veteran seniors give the Salukis more depth than they've had in recent years.

"We must get outstanding performances during the season for a satisfying dual record," Steele said. "And our freshmen must come through with big swims," he added.

The Salukis face a tough dual schedule which includes Big Ten Conference powers Illinois, Michigan and Northwestern, plus Big Eight member Ohio State.

"Our schedule is certainly tough with three fine championship meets and a dual meet schedule that includes eight teams that scored in the 1973 NCAA's," Steele said.

"However, our entire training program has focused on the NCAA championships to be held next March at Long Beach, California, where we hope to improve on last year's 20th position," Steele added.

The regular season opens with an away meet against North Carolina State on Dec. 1. The Saluki home opener is scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 8 against Eastern Kentucky.

Steele, in his first year as the SIU swimming coach introduced water polo as a fall conditioner for the swimming squad.

Steele called the teams first season a success as they played nine games, winning five and losing four.

Pat Sullivan led the Salukis' offense with a season total of 50 goals, highlighted by a spree of 18 scored in the 43-6 romp over Arkansas at Little Rock.
