Instructor charges fee ballot biases

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a two-part series on the wording of the recent athletics fee referendum. Today's story deals with the question of biases in the wording of the referendum. By Alan Scully Staff Writer

The administration says that revisions of the athletics fee referendum ballot were an attempt to give students a clear idea of the consequences of the $20 and $30 fee choices, but a "Theories in Persuasion" class has concluded the ballot was biased.

The class, taught by David Beal, a visiting instructor in speech communication, analyzed the ballot as a class exercise and concluded that it could not be shown whether the biases were intentional or whether the wording affected the referendum's outcome.

A ballot was first composed by Debbie Brown, Graduate Student Council president, Laura Nelson, GSC vice president, Todd Rogers, Undergraduate Student Organization president and Gregg Larson, USO vice president. The ballot was then revised during meetings with Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, and President Albert Somit.

Swinburne said that "in no way" did he censor the ballot. In fact, he said that he had very few problems with the wording of the original ballot proposed by student government.

The original student-written ballot listed two choices: "I support the $20 student athletics fee," and "I support the $30 student athletics fee." Descriptions of what the consequences of each choice would be, which were omitted on the seventh and final version of the ballot, were contained only in the explanatory note.

Several other phrases were eliminated, moved to different paragraphs and the wording of several statements were changed during the meetings with Somit and Swinburne.

Beal said that the way the final ballot was set up, the $20 choice endorsed the $30 choice.

"There are no reasons given to support the $20 fee. There is no positive outcome listed," Beal said. "There are no benefits from the current $30 fee except that it maintains the present program. There are lots of reasons for not going back to the $20 fee."

Swinburne said, however, "The one positive outcome to the $20 fee would be that the cost would be less. If there are any other reasons, someone will have to find them for me."

A second point Beal made was that "if you read the ballot carefully, you'll see that the $20 fee is saying you support the elimination of football."

The ballot then became a choice between keeping the $30 fee or losing football, instead of supporting either the $20 or the $30 fee, Beal said.

"I'm not saying the consequences are not true, but there's a clear impression that there's no alternative but to cut football. The ballot only says 'such as football,' but the impression was that football would get cut if the $20 fee won," Beal said.

Tom Busch, assistant to the president, who attended the meetings at which the ballot was revised, agreed that the issue really was whether to keep the $30 fee or cut out football.

If $400,000—which the administration said would have to be cut if the $20 fee was adopted—was taken from the athletics budget, some programs and the revenue

IBHE urges increases in medical, law tuition

By Mike Anthony Staff Writer

The SIU System is under pressure from the Illinois Board of Higher Education to charge higher tuition rates for law and medical students, Tom Busch, assistant to SIU-C President Albert Somit, said Tuesday.

Currently, in-state, full-time law students pay $351.60 per semester for tuition, the same rate that undergraduate students pay, while full-time medical students pay $347.50 a semester for tuition.

Busch said that charging higher tuition rates to law and medical students is "something the board of higher education has been talking about since 1970."

SIU officials have had discussions with the IBHE about raising tuition for law and medical students, Busch said, but "we're in the very early stages of talking about tuition increases."

When asked how much more law and medical students could expect to pay if tuition was increased next year, Busch said, "I honestly don't know at this point in time, and we're exploring all the alternatives."

Dan Hopson, dean of the SIU-C School of Law, agreed with Busch, saying "It's my understanding from President Somit that serious considerations are underway" about charging more for tuition for law and medical students, "but no final decisions have been made."

However, a source, who asked not to be identified, said that Somit has suggested that tuition be increased to levels charged at the University of Illinois at Champaign.

In-state, full-time law students pay $448 semester for tuition at the University of Illinois School of Law and full-time medical students who attend the School of Medicine at Champaign pay $916 a semester.

But Busch said that Somit "was doing a comparison to what other schools in the state charge" their students, and any tuition increases are "right now in very preliminary stages."

Robert Jackson, associate dean of the SIU School of Medicine, said that tuition increases for medical students "have been discussed in concept, weeks, maybe months ago," but he said that he knew of no specific details at this time.

Hopson said that one of the major reasons the IBHE is pushing for an increase in law and medical students' tuition is "because the cost of an education for professional students is considerably higher" than for most undergraduate and graduate students.

Convention center project to be financed

City approves sale of bonds

By Bob Bendranat Staff Writer

Bonds to finance the Carbondale Convention Center project can now be sold at an interest rate acceptable to project developers, but changing market conditions have introduced new complications for the Carbondale City Council.

The council Monday agreed to pay developer Stan Hoyer $140,000 if the city does not clear the convention center site within a year after receiving the federal funds to do so.

The council also approved the issuance of $11 million in industrial revenue bonds to finance the proposed downtown convention center. The bonds will be bought by Kirchner, Moore and Co. and Woolsey and Co., bond underwriters, who will sell the bonds to prearranged customers next month.

Thomas Langdon, sales manager for Woolsey and Co., told the City Council the interest rate at which the bonds for the convention center can be sold has fallen to 12.25 percent.

The plan calls for $9.45 million in AAA-rated industrial revenue bonds, backed by the Farmer's Home Administration, to be sold for permanent financing of the project. In addition, $1.05 million worth of Series B bonds will be bought by local banks.

Until construction of the convention center is completed, the proceeds from the sale of the bonds will be placed in escrow, developer James Bendranat told the council.

The developers had hoped to invest the money in U.S. Treasury notes during construction — notes which were earning a higher interest rate than the convention center bonds six weeks ago, Langdon said. The developers intended to use the extra funds to pay a $150,000 underwriter's fee, and $140,000 to complete funding of the convention center's debt service reserve fund.

However, as the bond market

Senators to be elected Wednesday

By Andrew Strang Staff Writer

Polling places for Wednesday's Student Senate elections will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. for students to vote for their favorite candidate, roommate, friend, foe, cartoon character, mother or bartender.

Twenty-five senate seats, with terms beginning spring semester, will be filled, according to Gary Daughenbaugh, Undergraduate Student Organization election commissioner.

The open seats include one from each of the University's ten colleges, six each from the west and east sides of the city, two from East Campus and one from Thompson Point.

Only 23 names will be on the ballots, with no candidates for the seats representing the College of Communications and the School of Technical Careers. Also, only four students are running for six west-side seats.

The only contest for positions will be the six east-side seats, which have seven candidates running for them, and the single College of Education seat, for which two candidates are running.

Candidates for the remainder of the seats will be unopposed on the ballot.

When voting, which requires an SIU-C identification card, students can pick one candidate for the seat representing their residential area and one for the seat representing their academic unit, Daughenbaugh said.

Students residing on the west side — all off-campus housing west of the Illinois Central Gulf railroad tracks — can vote in Morris Library, both ends of the Student Center, the Communications Building, the James Neckers Building, the Technology Building and the General Classroom and Office Building.

East side students — those living off-campus on the east side of the railroad tracks — can vote in Quigley Hall and the Recreation Center.

Thompson Point students must vote in Lentz Hall, and East Campus students must vote in either Grinnell or Trueblood halls.

Gus says electing student senators is a lot like fishing — except that you can't throw 'em back if they don't measure up.

Reagan ready to suggest cuts in nuclear weapons in Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee, working under a very strong veto threat from the White House, moved quickly Tuesday to draft a major, catch-all funding bill to keep the federal government in money after midnight Friday.

Even before the panel began work, sources said the White House relayed word President Reagan was likely to veto the measure unless it had a 5 percent across-the-board spending cut. There appeared little chance Congress would meet those terms, officials said.

The White House said the disagreement was over budget cuts, largely stalled since Reagan unveiled a new austerity plan in September.

Veto hangs over appropriations bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is ready to propose to the Soviet Union that both superpowers virtually eliminate nuclear missiles from the European theater, State Department officials said Tuesday.

The president, it was said, will use a foreign policy speech Wednesday at the National Press Club to embrace the so-called "zero-option" approach as the goal for Soviet-American negotiations on restraining nuclear forces in Europe. Those talks open Nov. 30 in Geneva.

The option consists of an expected U.S. offer not to undertake the planned deployment of new U.S.

But Republican and Democrats alike in Congress said Reagan also hoped to use the situation to regain the initiative in fighting for his embattled economic program.

"It makes him look like a macho man. I guess," said House Democratic Leader James Wright, D-Texas.

"They just want to veto a bill," said one Republican official, asking not to be quoted by name.

The measure is necessary because Congress has not yet completed action on any of the 12 regular appropriations bills that fund the executive branch departments or the judiciary. An existing interim measure expires Friday at midnight.

The House rejected a medium-range missiles in Europe if the Soviet Union agrees to disassemble its own missiles, stationed in western Russia, aimed at European targets.

However, there is deep skepticism in U.S. arms control circles that such an approach will prove acceptable to the Soviet Union, which is believed highly reluctant to destroy new weapons such as the SS-20, capable of carrying three nuclear warheads.

A more limited, fall-back position is said to include an attempt to win Soviet acceptance of the planned deployment of 572 American proposed 5 percent cut when it passed its own $440-billion version of the bill on Monday.

Officials said the 5 percent cut wasn't likely to succeed in the GOP-controlled Senate, either.

They also reported Reagan's chief of staff, James A. Baker III, has said a cut of 2 percent probably would not be sufficient to avoid a veto. Some Republicans were promoting a 2 percent cut, coupled with a provision allowing Reagan to hold down spending on benefit programs, as a way to avoid the threatened veto.

Republicans and Democrats alike conceded Reagan could sustain a veto.

nuclear warheads on Pershing II missiles in exchange for the removal of more than 900 Soviet warheads now in place on SS-20, SS-5 and SS-4 missiles. That would be a shift in force levels aimed at producing a relative nuclear balance in Europe.

On a related subject, State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said the United States remains interested in a possible summit meeting between Reagan and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev if the "necessary ground work is laid" and there are indications that a summit would prove "fruitful and productive and yield results."

Conciliation talks open in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Solidarity and the Communist government opened talks Tuesday on the Polish crisis and both sides expressed hope that conciliation will end the turmoil that has swept the nation for more than a year.

Trade Union Minister Stanislaw Ciosek, the chief government representative, said in convening the discussions, "This is a time of unrest in Poland... But it is also a time of hope."

Arab satellite sale proposal revived

WASHINGTON (AP) — After one retreat, the Reagan administration is forging ahead with the proposed sale of communications satellite gear to an Arab consortium that includes Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Sources told The Associated Press that the proposal, which could stir another fight with Congress on the heels of the $8.5-billion arms sale to Saudi Arabia, is being revived even though some senators object to delivering the sophisticated equipment to a group whose membership involves hostile elements.

Informal discussions were set at a secret session with key Senate staff aides, to be attended also by representatives of the Ford Motor Co., whose Palo Alto, Calif., subsidiary would produce key components of the communications system.

Soviet production falls short of goals

MOSCOW (AP) — Production fell short of goals this year in agriculture, coal, iron and steel, the Soviet Union's chief economic planner reported. He indicated the Soviet Union would aim for the low end of its overall targets in the current five-year plan, which ends in 1985.

Nikolai Baibakov told delegates to the Soviet Parliament that "it was not possible to fulfill the (1981 plan)" in those areas, but did not specify how wide the gap was in any of the four areas.

President Leonid I. Brezhnev told the Supreme Soviet on Monday that the economic planners were to blame for a "poor crop year," and food remained the nation's central problem.

Council holds hearing on city solid waste recycling ordinance

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

One man's garbage is another man's treasure—or at least a marginal profit.

That's the hope of the Carbondale City Council as it works toward implementation of a solid waste recycling program.

The council discussed plans for a citywide recycling plan at a public hearing Monday night. The proposed ordinance would require Carbondale residents to separate newspaper from other garbage, leaving it in bundles on street curbs where it would be collected once a month by a private recycling firm. It would also allow residents to voluntarily separate other recyclable materials for collection by the firm.

The proposal allows exemptions for people unable to carry the bundles to the curbs, and does not require city trash collectors to report residents who do not separate their newspapers.

The council, which will vote on the ordinance at its Dec. 7 meeting, voiced support for the proposal.

The plan, drawn by a city staff committee, is based on recommendations made by John Meister, director of the Pollution Control Department at SIU-C. The plan would establish a three-year contract between the city and a local recycling company. The company which would provide its service in return for being allowed to profit from the sale of recyclable materials.

It was suggested that the chosen recycling firm pay the city 5 percent of its receipts. However, Dorcy Prosser, president of the Board for Resource Reclamation Inc., told the council that the profit margin in recycling newspaper is so slim that a 5 percent rebate to the city might discourage firms from participating in the program.

Mayor Hans Fischer said that a possible solution might be to allow interested firms to set their own rebate as part of the bids they must submit to the city in order to be granted the collection contract.

Prosser also said that requiring the collection of other recyclable materials might force a firm to make unwanted and unnecessary modifications to its collection vehicles. She said the idea that the collection of glass and aluminum would provide added income "may not be a realistic hope."

She said the price of glass has remained stagnant for the past few years, making it a "break-even" commodity, and that residents might not want to give collectors more valuable materials, such as aluminum.

Prosser said that she would like to see a more comprehensive recycling program established in which collection of materials would be considered a city service, and subsidized if necessary.

"If it's going to have to pay for itself, then it's going to be very difficult for a recycling firm to make a profit," she said. "We've been in the recycling business for six years and we're a non-profit organization that barely gets by—and we have a lot of volunteer help."

Foreign students to share in a tradition

Thanksgiving, with turkey, trimmings and that special holiday feeling, is an occasion which many SIU-C students look forward to. Clara Vilamizar, a student from Colombia, South America, will be able to experience this aspect of American culture in an American home.

Free dinner will be served Thanksgiving

By Andrew Strang
Staff Writer

Although close to half of Carbondale's population will spend Thanksgiving elsewhere with friends and relatives, the spirit of the holiday will remain behind.

An example of this spirit will be evident in a free Thanksgiving dinner at the Newman Catholic Center for SIU-C students and Carbondale residents who have no place to celebrate the holiday.

For the 13th consecutive year, turkey, stuffing and all the "trimmings" will be served by community volunteers and the Newman Catholic Center staff to as many as 350 hungry people.

In order to join the party at the center, all a person needs to do is pick up a ticket at 715 S. Washington St. before 12 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 24. A $1 deposit to aid in planning, is required for the ticket, Lix Baer, volunteer coordinator at the center, said. However, the money will be refunded before the meal, she said.

The enticing scent of roasting turkeys and baking pumpkin pies that will fill the center will become a huge feast at 12 p.m. Thanksgiving day.

The center's first dinner was served in 1968 to 20 people. Last year, over 300 hungry persons devoured 14 turkeys, 35 pies, 30 loaves of bread, two bushels of sweet potatoes and nine pounds of alfalfa sprouts.

This year's feast is being made possible by donations from the Undergraduate Student Organization, the Interchurch Council, the Newman Center and members of the community, Baer said.

of International Education. The Host Family Program provides about 140 international students with an opportunity to learn about American culture through a friendship with hosts in the Southern Illinois area, Burghilde Gruber, community relations coordinator for the Office of International Education, said.

Vilamizar said that through her friendship with her host, Pat Rigg, professor of curriculum, instruction and media, she has "learned a lot about American people and how to understand them."

Rigg said Vilamizar has helped her to "learn about Clara's country and also learn more about my own country." Families and single adults from all over Southern Illinois along with University staff and faculty members participate in this cross-cultural exchange with students from many different countries, Gruber said.

"Many international students have never had a Thanksgiving experience," she said. "This is a very special day for Americans."

In addition to sharing holidays such as Thanksgiving and Christmas, students and hosts often go to movies, plays or just spend time together on an on-going basis.

According to Inga Sollberger, president of the SIU-C International Friends Club, students and hosts can exchange ideas about their different cultures, giving both sides a better understanding of people worldwide.

"Cross-culture exchange, through individual friendship," she said, "will result in understanding each other's culture and customs, and hopefully lead to a more peaceful world to live in."

The bond formed between the host and the student is also helpful to the student when trying to deal with the feelings of loneliness and alienation which international students often encounter when they come to America.

"I was lonely when I came here," Vilamizar said. "But through Pat I have met people, and I no longer have that feeling of fear."

Other programs — including a Hospitality Program which deals with new students on their arrival here — are also provided by the Office of International Education Friends Club to help students become familiar with America.

"We have an orientation program for a week before school starts," Sollberger said. "The Hospitality Program helps them to adjust a little during the first week."

Other programs provide practice with the English language through casual discussion, exchange of cooking customs, a fashion show, and play groups for American and international mothers and their children.

The French Lieutenant's Woman, starring Meryl Streep and Jeremy Irons, directed by Karel Reisz. Reviewer's Rating: 3 stars (4 stars tops). Varsity Theater.

"The French Lieutenant's Woman" has to be one of the most frustrating movies of 1981. It had everything going for it—excellent acting, beautiful photography, nice sets and costumes and an intriguing plot. But those fine aspects were tarnished by an ambiguous ending which failed to tie up major loose ends in the plot.

"The French Lieutenant's Woman" is actually two stories that intertwine near the end of the film. First, it is the story of a 19th-century woman, scorned by residents of a small English town after rumors circulate of an affair with a French lieutenant, and of a man who is engaged to be married who falls in love with the French lieutenant's woman.

Secondly, the 19th-century characters are also present-day actors filming "The French Lieutenant's Woman." Gradually it appears that many of them assume their 19th-century roles in real life. This aspect of the character development, however, is not depicted as clearly as it could have been.

As the French lieutenant's woman, Sarah, Meryl Streep's rapidly changing and confusing character, is fascinating. But as the actress, Anna, Streep is so handicapped by the plot that she remains a one-dimensional character.

Jeremy Irons is excellent as Charles, who while engaged to be married, crosses paths with Sarah and becomes obsessed with her. Irons realistically portrays a man caught in the double bind of having to break his wedding vows and then live in the public's contempt for having an affair with Sarah.

But, as with Streep, Irons never has enough film footage to let his portrayal as Mike, the actor, develop any depth.

The addition of present-day characters is an intriguing idea, but it plays only an incidental part in much of the movie and detracts from the main action involving Sarah and Charles. The 20th-century action also contributes to the ambiguity of the ending, as there is not enough exposition of that aspect of the film to explain the characters' actions at the end of the movie.

The film is also flawed by other unrealistic occurrences. For instance, when Charles first sees Sarah, it is raining and windy and Sarah is stazzation. A more detailed background of how the characters reached their decisions is called for.

Clearly, "The French Lieutenant's Woman" needed more time to explain its outcome. Letting viewers interpret an ending is fine, but forcing them to take a wild guess is a cop-out on development of a clear, logical climax.

A cast of interesting characters, highlighted by Streep and Irons, seemed to be heading for a tidy and satisfying ending.

But "The French Lieutenant's Woman" turned out to be like fine wine. The characters were developing and the plot was taking on a full body. But before it reached its potential, the cork was popped.

Much of what was left was the sour aftertaste of a movie that was ended before its time.

Police issue rash of tickets in crackdown on errant cyclists

By Douglas Hamm
Staff Writer

Carbondale and SIU-C police officials weren't kidding last week when they announced a crackdown on bicycle violators, as 49 tickets were issued to bicyclists Monday.

Carbondale police issued 21 tickets for bicycle violations, including 13 for stop sign violations seven for riding on sidewalks and one for riding the wrong way on a one-way street.

SIU-C Security police issued 28 tickets Monday, the majority for not having a light or for moving violations, according to SIU-C Security Director Virgil Trummer.

Lt. Terry Murphy said Carbondale police usually write "about one ticket a week," but the number varies with the number of bicyclists on the roads and the weather.

Murphy said the stepped-up ticketing is having an "effect" and "helping the problem," and that the department has received negative feedback from "only a few of the violators." Murphy said the crackdown will continue "as long as there are a large number of bike violations."

Trummer said SIU-C police usually issue three to four tickets a day. He said the crackdown will carry over to the spring semester. "We hope to continue ticketing until winter comes when there aren't many bicyclists on the roads," Trummer said. "When bike traffic steps up, enforcement will step up."

Trummer said bike citations on campus will result in a $5 fine, which increases to $7 if the ticket isn't paid within five days. He said unpaid tickets will be charged to the student's account at the Bursar's Office.

City bicycle violations can result in fines ranging from $10 to $500, according to the City Attorney's Office.

Suzuki piano lessons to be offered

Classes in the Suzuki approach to piano will be offered for the first time at SIU-C during spring semester for 5-year-old children.

A limited number of classes are being set up by the School of Music. Classes will be under the direction of Mary Jane Grizzle, an assistant professor on the piano faculty.

The Suzuki classes utilize the philosophy of Dr. Shinichi Suzuki, which is based on a single idea called "mother tongue." He believed that ability is learned and not inherited. Parent involvement is an essential part of the approach.

Persons interested in the Effectiveness in direct marketing is workshop topic

Clubs and public interest organizations can learn how to get their messages across at a workshop Wednesday in Morris Library Auditorium.

The all-day program will begin at 8:30 a.m. and will be conducted by the Chicago Association of Direct Marketing. Professional marketing directors will demonstrate creative marketing techniques, publicity steps and how to develop media plans.

Other sessions will cover publicity testing methods and examine award-winning publicity efforts. Public relations specialists and media representatives will also participate.

SIU-C students may attend free of charge. The fee for SIU-C personnel and the public is $5. Registration for the workshop, sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education, will begin at 8 a.m.

New find supports shroud authenticity

CHICAGO (AP) — The discovery of a second ancient coin with a rare spelling error further confirms the Shroud of Turin originated at the time of Christ, a Jesuit priest says.

The shroud is considered by some Christians to be the burial cloth of Jesus Christ.

The Rev. Francis L. Filas, a Loyola University theology professor, said he recently found a second coin with the misspelling from the Greek words for "Tiberius Caesar" that occurs on both the shroud pattern and the coin. The discovery of a second coin, Filas said, "closes the door" on objections to his conclusions.

program may call either 453-2263 or 549-1237 and leave their name and phone number.

Suzuki violin classes will be offered again in the spring. Interested persons may call 549-7609.

Kindermusick classes will again be offered, but the age limits have been expanded from 4- to 6-year-olds to 3- to 7-year-olds. Kindermusick is a program which teaches children basic music skills through rhythm games, percussion instruments and exposure to different musical styles. Information is available by calling the School of Music office.

SIU-C forensics team ranked 3rd in nation

The SIU-C debate and forensics team is ranked third in the nation following a successful performance at a Cross-Examination Debate tournament held at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., this past weekend.

The team, which returned home with three trophies, is five points away from a first-place ranking, according to a news release from the Department of Speech Communication.

Scott Maurer, senior in business administration and speech communication, was declared the best individual speaker, and Ramona Remick, senior in history and speech communication, was named the seventh best speaker at the tournament.

The team of Maurer and Carroll Sweeney, also a speech communications major, held a record of seven wins and one loss and was top-seeded after preliminary rounds before joining Remick and Steve Emil, senior in English, in the quarterfinals.

Poll: Bible, science can go side by side

NEW YORK (AP) — Three of four Americans believe both the scientific theory of evolution and the biblical theory of creation should be taught in public schools, according to the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll.

In addition, Americans believe teachers and librarians should have more say than either parents or school boards in deciding what books and materials should be used in public schools.

In the poll, 1,598 adults were telephoned in a nationwide scientific random sampling in October.

In response to the question, "Do you think public schools should teach only the scientific theory of evolution, only the biblical theory of creation, or should schools offer both theories?" 76 percent said public schools should teach both theories.

Eight percent said only the scientific theory, 10 percent said only the biblical theory and six percent were unsure.

People with children 17 or younger were slightly more likely than other respondents to say both theories should be taught.

People who said they have children 17 or younger and people who have no minor children were equally likely to prefer teachers and librarians to parents.

In response to a related question, 62 percent said librarians and teachers, rather than school boards, should have the final say in banning controversial books from public school libraries and classes.

Again, parents of school-age children were equally likely to say teachers and librarians should have the final say in book banning.

Louisiana and Arkansas have enacted legislation requiring that biblical creationism be taught parallel to scientific evolution, and other states are considering similar measures.

An American Civil Liberties Union court challenge to the Arkansas law is set for trial Dec. 7 in Little Rock. The ACLU claims the law violates the principle of separation of church and state.

In choosing books and curriculum material for public schools, 53 percent in the latest AP-NBC News poll said school officials should pay more attention to teachers and librarians than to parents. Thirty-two percent said officials should pay more attention to parents and 15 percent were either undecided or said both.

Respondents who identified themselves as liberals were more likely to say teachers and librarians, while conservatives were more likely to say parents.

generated by these programs would be lost, Busch said. In this case, he said, the two sports which could logically be eliminated were men's basketball and football.

"Since basketball can be self-supporting in a good year and it is easier to support than football because of the costs of the uniforms and the number of scholarships, the logical sport to cut was football," Busch said.

Swinburne agreed that this issue "probably" came down to $30 or no football. He said, however, that he didn't want specific sports mentioned on the ballot because if a team knows it may be eliminated, it can damage morale.

Another of the ballot's claims, which Beal said was not adequately supported, was that the $30 fee would maintain the quality of present sports.

"The ballot speaks of the scope and quality of the sports, but there is no evidence of quality. The only evidence is there are 22 sports, but you could have 22 bad sports," Beal said.

Nelson said, however, "Scope is a factor in quality, although it is not the only factor. There was no adjective attached to the word quality. The judgement of whether the quality is good or bad rests with the voter," she said.

So while Beal and his class concluded that the arguments in the ballot did not amount to a neutral presentation of the facts, Busch had a different point of view.

"You can read whatever you want into the ballot, but the students did an excellent job responding to the president's charge on drawing up the referendum," Busch said.

interest rates declined, the rate on Treasury notes decreased faster. Investment rates are now 12.5 percent.

Bondurant asked the city to absorb the $140,000 if the city is not able to deliver the property, cleared and ready for construction, to the developers in time for the project to be completed by Dec. 31, 1984.

Bondurant said that if the project is not completed on time, the FmHA-backed bonds will lose their guarantee, and thus their tax-exempt status and their AAA rating, and the developers will have to return the proceeds from the bond sale.

He said that construction is estimated to take about two years, pushing back the date for construction to begin to January, 1983.

John Womick, the city's special counsel, said the land could be ready for the developers within a year after the Department of Housing and Urban Development releases a $2 million Urban Development Action Grant to buy and clear the land.

Company offers reward for murder information

By Douglas Hamm
Staff Writer

A California company is offering a $10,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of the person or persons responsible for the Nov. 11 murder of Joan Wetherall of Carbondale.

The reward is being offered by California Plant Protection Security Services Inc. of Van Nuys. The firm's president and owner, Thomas Wathen, said his company's interest in the Wetherall case "stems from the fact that Miss Wetherall was the fiancée of one of our area managers."

Wathen said that Miss Wetherall and Larry Yanta, of Detroit, had known each other "since they were freshmen in high school" and "were very close." He said that there had been no formal announcement of a wedding between Yanta and Miss Wetherall.

Miss Wetherall's nude body was found last Wednesday morning in a mine pit off of the Elkhorn-Vergennes Blacktop Road. A preliminary autopsy showed Miss Wetherall had been strangled. Jackson County Coroner Don Ragsdale said Tuesday that "from all indications, Miss Wetherall was not sexually assaulted."

Wathen, who is familiar with the Southern Illinois region, said nothing would please him more "than to pay that $10,000 reward tomorrow."

"We're particularly angered and upset that such a thing could happen, particularly in Carbondale," Wathen said. "It's hard to imagine that kind of thing happening in Little Egypt."

Schmidt gets 2nd straight MVP award

NEW YORK (AP) — Slugger Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies was elected Tuesday as the National League's most valuable player for the second straight year by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Schmidt, an overwhelming choice in the balloting, became only the third National League player to win consecutive MVP awards.

A unanimous winner of the award last year, when he also was named the World Series MVP, Schmidt received 21 of a possible 24 first-place votes and 321 points from the BBWAA panel, consisting of two writers from each NL city.

Like Schmidt, runner-up Andre Dawson of Montreal was named on all 24 ballots, receiving two first-place votes and 215 points. The only other player to get a first-place vote was rookie pitcher Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who was named the NL's Cy Young Award winner by the BBWAA last week.

The only other consecutive winners of the NL MVP Award were Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs in 1958-59 and Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds in 1975-76.

Roger Maris (1960-1961), Mickey Mantle (1956-1957), Yogi Berra (1954-1955), Hal Newhouser (1944-1945) and Jimmy Foxx (1932-1933) won consecutive MVP awards in the American League.

Although seven weeks of play were lost in the strike-shortened 1981 season, Schmidt accumulated impressive statistics in 102 games, he slammed 31 home runs and drove in 91 runs, leading the major leagues in both categories, while batting .316, the highest average of his career.

It marked the fifth time in eight years that Schmidt has led the majors in homers.

The 32-year-old third baseman had 19 doubles and two triples among his 112 hits and scored 78 runs.

Once Upon A Time... my old friend Carla Payton, formerly of Coal Kitchen, called to tell me about her new band Payton, Pace and Tripp. Joel Pace was formerly the keyboardist with George Faber and Chuck Tripp was the guitarist with George Faber and with my old band Stryder. Carla said I wouldn't know the bassist or drummer but she thought they were hot. Carla describes P.P.T's music as Funky, Bluesy and Very danceable. Carla is very positive about P.P. & T and that's good enough for me, how about you?

Umbro teams win two IM crowns

By Rod Furlow
Staff Writer

A team called Umbro-Ma won the Men's A Division Championship of the Intramural Sports volleyball league Monday night at the Recreation Center.

According to the team's captain, the A Division championship isn't enough.

"We have a team playing in every division," captain Kenneth Lee said. "We had around 40 people out here practicing about a month before the tournament began. Our goal is to win every division."

The 40 people are divided among teams in all five intramural divisions.

Two of the Umbro teams made it to the finals in the women's division, where Umbro-WB beat Umbro-Wa 14-9, 14-12.

The Umbros failed to take the Men's B Division though. Jabat and the Golden Spikers played that final. Jabat won 9-13, 15-4, 15-6.

Even though his team won the Men's A Division, Lee seemed disappointed.

"We've played better games than this," he said. "We didn't play well at all."

COACH

organizations that came to Evansville's aid after the crash. Evansville was to host a Christmas tournament which university officials considered cancelling. The late Paul Lambert, who was SIU-C's head coach at the time, offered to have SIU-C fill in as the host school and Evansville accepted.

Evansville rebuilt its program utilizing the help of the NCAA, the community and the university. The Aces compiled a 13-6 record the next season.

Stephenson stayed at Evansville because he felt he "needed to be there," but he made the switch to SIU-C this year because he felt it was the right thing to do at this point in his career.

SIU-C's rebuilding won't entail a sweeping renovation, but the players and coaching staff have no small task ahead of them.

Stephenson sees himself as part of a triumvirate with Head Coach Allen Van Winkle and Assistant Coach Herman Williams, with Van Winkle as the guiding force. Stephenson agrees with Van Winkle's emphasis on hard work.

"If we keep open minds and work real hard, good things will happen," he said. "In college basketball, there are not a lot of secrets. The key is getting good players and then to use your ability as coach to get as much of that ability out of them."

"There are a lot of cliches about hard work and dedication and it might be kind of trite to say it, but it's all very true," Stephenson said.

Teammate Mike Shami agreed.

"We just didn't play our regular game," Shami said. "We were kind of slow at the beginning of the match."

They still won, capping a season filled not only with games, but with practice sessions.

"The good teams practice as much as we do, like the one we just played," Lee said. "We were determined this tournament to have some new faces winning."

Lee said that the Sabian Audio team has dominated the intramural volleyball tournament in recent years.

"We were determined to beat them this season," Lee said. "They screwed up somehow and missed making the playoffs. We played them once during the regular season and they beat us in three games."

Pitt remains atop AP poll

By The Associated Press

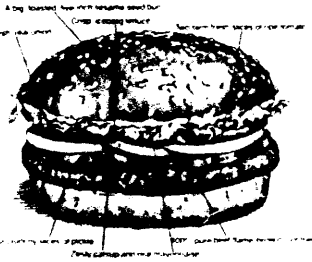

Pitt and Clemson remained 1-2 in The Associated Press college football poll Tuesday for the third week, while Georgia, which was picked to host the Sugar Bowl on New Year's night, moved into the third spot. Alabama occupied fourth place and Nebraska climbed from seventh to fifth.

Southern Methodist moved from eighth to sixth, Michigan went from 11th to seventh, Texas climbed from 10th to eighth and Southern Mississippi moved from 14th to 10th.

Southern California is the only team in this week's Top Ten to fall. The Trojans' 13-3 loss to Washington dropped them from third to 10th.

Stafford Stephenson patiently gives instructions at men's basketball practice at the Arena

SIU-C is not foreign to new cage assistant

By Michelle Schwent
Sports Editor

Stafford Stephenson is no stranger to Saluki basketball. Stephenson, one of SIU-C's two assistant basketball coaches, spent four years as an assistant at Evansville before coming to SIU-C this season. The Purple Aces have been one of the Salukis' frequent opponents through the years, so it might be kind of strange to sit on the another bench this season. But, Stephenson has made the transition to his new team.

"The Arena feels like home already," Stephenson said. "I probably won't feel any difference here in the Arena, but we do play at Evansville this season and that will feel a little different."

SIU-C is in the process of rejuvenating its basketball program, which last year mounted a disastrous 7-20 overall record. Reviving a program is another aspect of basketball that Stephenson is familiar with.

The Virginia native was a member of the Evansville coaching staff when the Purple Aces' twin-engine DC-3 crashed five minutes after takeoff from Evansville on Dec. 13, 1977, killing 29 people, including Coach Bobby Watson and 13 other members of the Evansville basketball program.

Another assistant coach was out scouting, while Stephenson was on a recruiting mission in Tampa, Fla., making them practically the only survivors of the staff. Stephenson learned of the tragedy the next morning when he read about it in a newspaper.

Stephenson said the atmosphere was strange after the crash because it was both a trying time and a busy time.

"From the time immediately after the plane crash to the time the new coach was named, it was an extremely emotional period," he said. "There were a lot of heartwarming experiences and a lot of heart-breaking experiences."

"Once Coach Dick Walters was named in March, we were so darn busy," he said. "The actual rebuilding process was enormous because we obviously had no players in the program at the time."

SIU-C was one of the Gridders get awards

The Saluki coaches have decided the outstanding Salukis of SIU-C's last game.

Jeff Ware was named the outstanding offensive back in the Salukis' 23-15 win at New Mexico State Saturday. Ware gained 125 yards on 39 carries and caught three passes for 26 yards.

Chris Lockwood was the outstanding offensive lineman, with a 78 percent efficiency rating.

End John Harper was one of the outstanding defensive linemen. Harper knocked down four passes and received a 90 percent efficiency rating from the coaches.

Noseguard Dave Featherston was the other outstanding defensive linemen. He caused two fumbles and recovered one. He received a rating of 75 percent.

Tony Haywood's three interceptions won him the outstanding defensive back award. His efficiency rating was 89 percent.

The win placed the Salukis in third place in the final standings of the Missouri Valley Conference, a half-game behind Drake and Tulsa.

Women cagers prepared to use patterned or running offense

By Keith Mascitti
Staff Writer

The women's basketball team is completing its final week of preseason practice, but Coach Cindy Scott hasn't picked the starting lineup yet.

This may seem a little surprising because the season opener is Saturday at Murray State. But Scott isn't worried. She has two starting lineups: one squad to run a slow, deliberate offense and another to execute the running attack.

"I think we will be ready," Scott said. "We still don't know who will start the first game but we can go with two different lineups. A patterned offense or a running offense."

The patterned offense will feature sophomores Char Warring and Connie Price and junior Sue Faber playing in the frontcourt. All three are six feet or taller and will give the Salukis power to work the ball down low.

To gain a speed advantage, Scott said she will stick with Price and Warring in the frontcourt, but will add Roslyn Bartley or Mary Boyes, who can get the ball quickly to point guard D.D. Plab.

It doesn't take a detective to figure out that Plab will run SIU-C's fast break. She ran it last season as a freshman under pressure.

"D.D.'s a tremendously talented player," Scott said. "I think we put too much pressure on her last year. We counted on her not only to move the ball, but to score also."

Sherlock Holmes isn't needed to discover that SIU-C's rebounding game needs improvement. A quick glance at the statistics illustrates the Salukis' subpar rebounding.

Last season the Salukis were outrebounded in 22 of 32 games and grabbed only 35.7 percent of the rebounds per game. Also, Scott lost her two top rebounders, Leola Greer and Alondra Rodgers, to graduation.

"Last year we were a poor rebounding team," Scott said. "We've stressed boards this season and have really been working hard on it."

This season's rebounding burden will fall on the shoulders of Price, Warring and freshman Cheri Bacon. Price may be the most important player in the rebounding department, according to Scott.

"Price's play is like night and day, if you compare this year with last year," she said. "She's playing with much more confidence and aggressiveness. She also has the potential to be one awesome player. There aren't many women players who are 6-3, 197 pounds of solid muscle."

Scott will count on Faber's experience this season. Faber, a 6-foot forward-center averaged 17.6 points and 10.8 rebounds per game over her freshman and sophomore years before she suffered a knee injury. She played in only two games her junior year.

SIU-C will play a tough schedule this season. According to Scott, December will be the toughest because the Salukis face Southeast Missouri, Northwestern, Chicago Circle, Louisville, UCLA and Wichita State.

UCLA is ranked 10th in the nation and will come to the Arena on Dec. 19.

Grapplers to rely on returnees

By Steve Metsch
Staff Writer

Patience is the only request Coach Linn Long has of SIU-C wrestling fans this season.

"It will take at least a year before we are solid again," Long said. "We can't use our situation as an excuse. We have to do our best right now. It won't do us any good to spend this season sitting still."

"Hopefully, our program will be reviewed someday and we will get some scholarships back," Long said, referring to the six scholarships he had to offer this season compared to 11 last year. "More consideration should be given to individual records rather than team records."

According to Long, if this year's recruits were teamed with last year's squad, the Salukis would enjoy a fine season. Last year's team, led by Eric Jones, who qualified for the NCAA meet, finished 9-7, a record which Long said "isn't bad for a 10-man team."

Long said this year's recruits need experience to improve and can gain experience only through competition. In other words, the "young" wrestling team is in store for a "long" season.

Ted Bessette, Kevin Powers, Mike Turnbull, John Ward, and Derek Wolzard are the rookies. "I'm counting on our returnees to carry the team since freshmen can be inconsistent," Long said.

Senior Dale Shea, juniors Keith Abney and Tim Dillick, and sophomores Mark Hedstrom and Gerald Richards are expected to lead the team this year, according to Long.

"I think Shea, Dillick, Hedstrom, and Richards will do well this season," Long said. "Hopefully, Abney will be able to contribute to the team also. He has been on the squad for two years, and although he isn't a letterman, he has started to improve a bit."

SIU-C will open its season at the St. Louis Open at St. Louis Community College-Forest Park Friday and Saturday. Twenty-four colleges and wrestling clubs are entered in the tournament.

The Salukis will compete only in four of the 10 weight classes this season because the Salukis are void in a couple classes and weights. Freshman inconsistency also adds to that problem.

"Our competing in four classes is perfectly okay with the NCAA as long as we play the required minimum of 14 dual meets this season," Long said.

Two of the returning grapplers—Tim Dillick and Mark Hedstrom—will not be competing. Dillick is having tooth surgery Wednesday and Hedstrom is in the hospital.

"Mark has been in the hospital for over a week with a stomach disorder," Long said. "To get back in shape, it will take him two or three days of practice to make up for every day he is in the hospital."

Both players are in violation of Long's two cardinal rules—you don't get hurt and you don't get sick. If you do, you hurt the team, according to Long.
