IBHE urges increases in medical, law tuition

By Mike Anthony

The SIU System is under pressure from the Illinois Board of Higher Education to charge higher tuition rates for law and medical students. Tom Busch, assistant to president Albert Somit, said Tuesday:

"Currently, in state, full-time law students pay $351.60 per semester, the same rate that undergraduate students pay, while full-time medical students pay $487.50 a semester."

Busch said that charging higher tuition rates to law and medical students is "something the board of higher education has been talking about since 1976.

SIU officials have had discussions with the IBHE about raising tuition for law and medical students, Busch said, but "we're in the very early stages of talking about tuition increases.

When asked how much more law and medical students could expect to pay, Busch said, "I honestly don't know at this point in time, and we're exploring all the alternatives over the weekend."

Dan Hopson, dean of the SIU-C School of Law, agreed with Busch, saying he didn't understand from President Somit that serious considerations had been given to "about charging more for tuition for law and medical students, but no final decisions have been made.

However, a source, who asked not to be identified, said that Somit has stated that tuition be increased to levels charged at the University of Illinois at Champaign.

It's, full-time law students are running for student tuition at the University of Illinois School of Law and full-time medical students are running for student tuition at the University of Illinois School of Medicine.

"We're doing a comparison to what other schools in the state charge," their students, and any tuition increases are "right now in very early stages," Robert Jackson, associate dean of the SIU School of Medicine, said. "Tuition increases for medical students have been discussed in concept, weeks, maybe months ago, but he said that he knew of no specific details at this time.

Jackson said that one of the major reasons the IBHE is pushing for an increase in law and medical student tuition is "because the cost of an education is higher, and graduate students is considerably higher than for most undergraduate and graduate students.

Instructor charges fee ballot biases

Debbie Brown, a graduate student representing students in a two-part series on the wording of the recent athletics fee referendum. Today's story deals with the question of biases in the wording of the referendum.

By Alan Sessler

The administration says that revisions of the athletics fee referendum ballot were an attempt to get students to vote yes. But a "Theories in Persuasion" class has concluded the ballot was biased.

The class, taught by David B. Deatherage, chair of speech communication, analyzed the ballot and the exercise concluded that they could not be shown the biases were intentional, or whether the wording affected the referendum's outcome.

Swinburne said that "in no way" did he change the ballot. The original student-written ballot listed two choices: "I support the SIU student athletics fee" and "I support the SIU student athletics fee." Descriptions of what the consequences of each choice would be, such as increased sports, were cut out of the ballot, he said. "I support the SIU student athletics fee." The ballot was comprised of three paragraphs and the wording of several statements were changed during the meetings with Somit and Swinburne.

Beal said that the way the final ballot was set up, the $20 choice endorsed the $30 choice.

"There are no reasons, given to support the $20 fee. There is no positive outcome listed," Beal said. "There are no benefits from the current $30 fee except that it maintains the present program. There are no reasons for not going back to the $20 fee.

Swinburne said, however, the "one positive outcome to the $20 fee is that you will have to find more funds for the next point."

A second point Beal made was that "if you read the ballot carefully, you'll see that the $20 fee is saying support the elimination of football."

The ballot then became a choice between keeping the $30 fee or losing football. "It's a matter of supporting either the $20 or the $30 fee," Beal said.

"I'm not saying the consequences are not true, but there's a clear impression that there's no alternative but to cut football. The ballot only says "such as football", but the impression was that football would get cut if the $30 fee won," Beal said.

Tom Busch, assistant to the president, who attended the meetings, said at the ballot was revised, agreed that the issue really was whether to keep the $30 fee or cut out football.

"If $400,000--which the administration said would have to be cut if the $30 fee was adopted--was taken from the athletics budget, the same programs, and the revenue."

Money to finance the Carbondale Convention Convention Center project can now be sold at an interest rate acceptable to project developers, but market conditions have introduced new complications for the Carbondale City Council.

The council Monday agreed to pay developer Dan Hoyes $14,000 if the city does not clear the convention center site within a year. Hoyes said he would have to use the federal funds to do so.

The council also approved the issuance of $11 million in industrial revenue bonds to finance the proposed multimillion dollar convention center. The bonds will be bought by Washington, Moore and Co. and Wosby and Co., bond underwriters, who will sell the bonds to prearranged customers next month.

Thomas Langdon, sales manager for Washington, Moore and Co., told the City Council the interest rate at which the bonds for the convention center can be sold has fallen to 12.25 percent.

The council calls for $9.45 million in AAA-rated industrial revenue bonds, backed by the Farmer's Home Administration, to be sold for permanent financing of the project. In addition, $1.05 million worth of Series B bonds will be bought by local banks.

"It's important that the convention center is completed, the proceeds from the sale of the bonds will be placed in escrow, developer James Bondurant told the council.

The developer intended to invest the money in U.S. Treasury notes during construction, which were earning a higher interest rate than the convention center bonds six weeks ago, Langdon said. The developers intended to use extra funds to pay a $150,000 underwriter's fee, and pay the Farmer's Home Administration, to be sold for permanent financing of the project. In addition, $1.05 million worth of Series B bonds will be bought by local banks.

Senators to be elected Wednesday

By Andrew Strang

Filing places for Wednesday's Senate Student elections will be open from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. for students to vote for their favorite candidates running for one of the seven positions in the Senate. There are 57 students running this year.

The Senate elections will be held in the Student Union's Ballroom A. Ballroom A is located in the Student Union, the University of Southern Illinois Student Organization election commission.

The seven seats include one from each of the University's five residence halls, a seat representing west and east sides of the city, two from East Campus and one seat representing the University of Southern Illinois at Carbondale.

Only 23 names will be on the ballot, with no candidates for the seats representing the College of Communications and the School of Technical Careers. Also, only four students will be running for the west-side seats.

Reagan ready to suggest cuts in nuclear weapons in Europe

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate Appropriations Committee, working under a very strong veto threat from the White House, moved quickly Tuesday to draft a major catch-all funding bill to keep the federal government in money after midnight Friday.

Even before the panel began work, sources said the White House relayed word President Reagan was likely to veto the measure. This failure in the Senate would give Congress an extra month to pass funding measures, unless it would create a government shutdown.

The White House said the disagreement was over budget cuts, largely stalling since Reagan unveiled a new austerity plan in September.

Veto hangs

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan is ready to propose to the Soviet Union that both superpowers eliminate nuclear missiles from the European theater. State Department officials said Tuesday, this president was a vetted, he will use a foreign policy speech Wednesday at the National Press Club to embrace the so-called "zero-option" approach as the goal for new nuclear negotiations on restraining nuclear forces in Europe. Those talks are to begin Wednesday.

The option consists of an expected U.S. offer to undertake the planned deployment of new U.S. medium-range missiles in Europe if the Soviet Union agrees to dismantle its own missile arsenal in western Russia, aimed at European targets.

Moreover, there is deep skepticism in U.S. arms control circles that such an approach would prove acceptable to the Soviet Union, which is believed to be planning to develop new weapons such as the SS-20, capable of delivering three nuclear warheads.

A more limited, fall-back position is said to include an attempt to win Soviet acceptance of the planned deployment of 572 American nuclear warheads on Pershing II missiles in exchange for the removal of more than 500 Russian warheads now in place on SS-20, SS-5 and SS-4 missiles. That would be a shift in force levels aimed at an overall 40%-to-60% nuclear balance in Europe.

On a related subject, Deputy Department of Defense spokesman Dean Stearns said the United States remains interested in a possible summit meeting between Reagan and Soviet Premier Leonid I. Brezhnev if the "necessary ground work is laid" and there are indications that a summit would prove "fruitful and productive and yield results."

But Republicans and Democrats alike in Congress said Reagan also hoped to use the situation to regain the initiative in fighting for his embattled economic program.

"It makes him look like a macho man, I guess," said House Appropriations Committee Chairman James Wright, D-Texas.

They just want to veto a bill," said one Republican official, asking not to be quoted by name. The measure is necessary because Congress has not yet completed action on any of the 12 regular appropriations bills that fund the executive branch departments or the judiciary. An existing interim measure expires Friday at midnight.

Cancellation talks open in Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Solidarity and the Communist government opened talks Tuesday on the Polish crisis and both sides expressed hope that conciliation will end the turmoil that has sapped the nation for more than a year.

Trade Union Minister Stanislaw Czotek, the chief government representative, said in currency talks he wants. "This is a time of unrest in Poland... But it is also a time of hope."

Arab satellite sale proposal revived

WASHINGTON (AP) — After one retreat, the Reagan administration is forging ahead with the proposed sale of communications satellite gear to an Arab consortium that includes Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Sources told The Associated Press that the proposal, which could stir another fight with Congress, on the heels of the $5-billion arms sale to Saudi Arabia, is being revived even though some senators object to delivering the sophisticated equipment to a group whose membership includes hostile elements.

Informal discussions were set at a secret session with key Senate staff aides to be attended also by representatives of the Ford Motor Co., whose Pal Alto, Calif., subsidiary would produce key components of the telecommunications system.

Soviet production falls short of goals

MOSCOW (AP) — Production fell short of goals this year in agriculture, coal, iron and steel, the Soviet Union's chief economic planner reported. He indicated the Soviet Union would aim for the low end of its overall targets in the current five-year plan, which ends in 1985.

Nikolai Basilov told delegates to the Soviet Parliament that "it was not possible to fulfill the 1981 plan" in those areas, but did not specify how wide the gap was in any of the four.

President Leonid I. Brezhnev told the Soviet Supreme on Monday that if the economic planners were to blame for a "poor crop year," and food remained the nation's central problem...
Council holds hearing on city solid waste recycling ordinance

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

One man’s garbage is another man’s treasure—or at least a marginal profit.

That’s the scope of the Carbondale City Council as it works toward implementation of a solid waste recycling program.

The council discussed plans for a citywide recycling plan at a public hearing Monday night.

The proposed ordinance would require Carbondale residents to separate newspapers from other garbage. It would also allow residents to voluntarily separate other recyclable materials for collection by the firm.

The proposal allows exemptions for people unable to carry the bundles to the curbs, and does not require city trash collectors to report residents who do not separate their newspapers.

The council, which will vote on the ordinance at its Dec. 7 meeting, voiced support for the proposal.

The plan, drawn by a city staff committee, is based on recommendations made by John Kaiser, director of the Pollution Control Department at SIU-C. The plan would establish a three-year contract between the city and a local recycling company. The company would provide service, in return for being allowed to profit from the sale of recyclable materials.

It was suggested that the chosen recycling firm pay the city a percent of its receipts. However, Dorcy Prosser, president of the Board for Resource Reclamation Inc., told the council that the profit margin in recycling newspaper is so slim that a percent rebate to the city might discourage firms from participating in the program.

Mayor Hans Fischer said that a possible solution might be to allow interested firms to set their own rebate as part of the bids they must submit to the city in order to be granted the collection contract.

Prosser also said that requiring the collection of other recyclable materials might force a firm to make unwanted and unnecessary modifications to its collection vehicles. He said the idea that the collection of glass and aluminum would provide added income “may not be a realistic hope.”

He said the price of glass has remained stagnant for the past few years, making it a “break-even” commodity, and that residents might not want to give collectors more valuable materials, such as aluminum.

Prosser said that she would like to see a more comprehensive recycling program established, in which collection of materials would be considered a city service, and subsidized if necessary.

“If it’s going to have to pay for itself, then it’s going to be very difficult for a recycling firm to make a profit,” she said.

“We’ve been in the recycling business for six years; and we’re a non-profit organization that barely gets by—and we have a lot of volunteer help.”

Analysis of ballot wording doesn't address real issue

The wording of the athletics fee referendum was a subject of some controversy a month or so ago. Some felt the wording was part of a carefully calculated effort to increase the chance of winning the referendum in favor of the $30 fee.

But to assume that President Somit and Vice President President the two administration officials directly involved in the wording process — had carefully calculated the wording's effect would be to credit them with a facility in language analysis which they do not possess.

It is now known that the wording went through six revisions, seven sets of proof. The original version as drawn up by the Graduate Student Council and the Undergraduate Student Organization simply stated the choices: $30 vs. $30. In retrospect, this probably would have been the only version that could be judged completely bias-free.

Professor Beal, a visiting instructor in speech communication, has said that one of the problems with the wording was an implicit endorsement of the $30 fee — given that the wording used such active words as "cut" and specified the possible elimination of football as a consequence of voting for the $30 fee.

Professor Beal's analysis of the ballot was no doubt a useful exercise for the administration which did deal with the question that bothered all the administrators and the students. What is the value of the ballot to the administration?

That question, despite all the publicity that has been given the referendum, was: Would students understand what they were voting for? Would they feel that they had been given enough information about the ballot?

The Board of Directors of the Cumberland Women's Center wishes to respond to some statements recently published in the letter column of the Daily Egyptian.

On Oct. 1, a letter writer claimed that the "President of the Women's Center made the statement that the Women's Center received no United Way money." Of course, such a statement has never been made.

Another wrote, after the Center clarified the self-supporting status of its Pregnancy Testing and Counseling Service: "What would be even more interesting is to hear who pays the fees — the unfortunate women who come to it for abortion or the abortion clinics to which some of these women refer?" (DE, Oct. 26).

To the Board of Directors of the Cumberland Women's Center that type — without arguments pro and con — states a proposition that will become less and less accepted by the voting public.

Still another writer, in the Nov. 5 issue, stated that the Women's Center is well known in the Carbondale community for its defense of and encouragement of abortion on demand. "The Women's Center, as is well known in the Carbondale community, does not encourage abortions. We believe that a woman must make her own decision in this matter and that it is not for us to tell any individual what she should or should not do in her private life.

It is a pretty strange country indeed

In recent abortion letters people have asked the question as to why anyone else should be given the option to have an abortion. The reason usually given is that this problem is that I think that human life is precious and therefore it should be protected.

History tells us of too many holocausts (e.g., the Third Reich) that have occurred when people or governments do not have this view of human life.

As a result, I think that the abortion issue is basically a civil rights issue: Is the right to life of the unborn child greater than the right of the mother to kill the child because the child is unwanted or inconvenient or a burden?

How many women died from abortions prior to 1937? Ann Wheeler said in her letter that she did not know, but unfortunately, she later says that "thousands of women have died from illegal abortions. The statistics are totally false, and I suppose the abortion choice to have an abortion. The reason usually given is that this problem is that I think that human life is precious and therefore it should be protected.

Foreign students to share in a tradition

By Glady Lee

The Hospitality Program, which deals with new students as they arrive here, is also provided by the Office of International Education and Friends Club to help students become familiar with America.

"We have an orientation program for a week before school starts," Solberger said. "The Hospitality Program helps them to adjust a little during the first week."

Other programs provide practice in the English language through casual discussion, exchange of cooking customs, a fashion show, and play groups for American and international mothers and children.

Free dinner will be served Thanksgiving

By Andrew Strang

Although close to half of Carbondale's population will spend Thanksgiving elsewhere with friends and relatives, the spirit of the holiday will remain behind.

An example of this spirit will be evident in a free Thanksgiving dinner given by the Newman Catholic Center for SIU-C students and Carbondale residents who have no place to celebrate the holiday.

This year's active year, turkey, stuffing and all the "trimmings" will be served by community volunteers at the Newman Catholic Center to as many as 350 hungry people.

In order to join the party at the center, all a person needs to do is pick up a ticket at 715 S. Washington St. (246-1116) on Tuesday, Nov. 24, and deposit it to the center before 5 p.m. for the ticket, Liz Beer, volunteer coordinator at the center, said. However, the money will be refunded before the meal, she said.

The enticing scent of roasting turkeys and baking pumpkin pies that will fill the center will become a huge feast at 12:30 P.M. Thursday afternoon.

The center's first dinner was served in 1968 to 20 people. Last year, over 500 hungry persons devoured 14 turkeys, 25 pies, 30 loaves of bread, 8 gallons of apple and sweet potato pies and nine pounds of apple and sweet potato pies.

This year's feast is being made possible by donations from the Undergraduate Student Organization, the Interchurch Council, the Newman Center and members of the community, Beer said.

Police issue rash of tickets in crackdown on errant cyclists

By Douglas Haaf
Staff Writer

Carbondale and SIU-C police officials weren’t kidding last week when they announced a crackdown on bicycle violations, as 49 tickets were issued to bicyclists Monday.

Carbondale police issued 21 tickets for bicycle violations, including 13 for stop sign violations and one for riding on sidewalks and one for riding the wrong way on a one-way street. SIU-C Security police issued 28 tickets Monday, the majority for not having a light or for moving violations according to SIU-C Security Director Virgil Trummer.

Lt. Terry Murphy said Carbondale police usually write “about one ticket a week,” but the number varies with the number of bicyclists on the roads and the weather. Murphy said the stepped-up ticketing is having an “effect” and “helping the problem,” and that the department has received negative feedback from “only a few of the violators.” Murphy said the crackdown will continue “as long as there are a large number of bike violations.”

Trummer said SIU-C police usually issue three to four tickets a day. He said the crackdown will carry over to the spring semester.

“We hope to continue ticketing until winter comes when there aren’t many bicyclists on the roads,” Trummer said. “When bike traffic steps up, enforcement will step up.”

Trummer said bike citations on campus will result in a $3 fine, which increases to $7 if the ticket isn’t paid within five days. He said unpaid tickets will be charged to the student’s account at the Bursar’s Office.

City bicycle violations can result in fines ranging from $10 to $500, according to the City Attorney’s Office.

The Rev. Loyola Filas said, "The shroud is considered by some Christians to be the burial cloth of Jesus Christ. The Rev. Francis L. Filas, a Loyola University theology professor, said he recently found a second coin with the inscription from the Greek words for "Tiberius Caesar," which occurs on both the shroud pattern and the coin. The discovery of a second coin, Filas said, "closes the door" on objections to his conclusion.

The SIU-C debate and forensics team is ranked third in the nation, following a successful performance at the Cross-Examination Debate Tournament held at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., this past weekend.

The team, which returned home with three trophies, is five points away from a first-place ranking, according to a news release from the Department of Speech Communication.

Scott Maurer, senior in business administration and speech communication, was declared the best individual speaker, and Ramone Remick, senior in history and speech communication, was named the seventh best speaker at the tournament.

The team of Maurer and Carroll Sweeney, also a speech communications major, holds a record of seven wins and one loss and was top-seeded after preliminary rounds before joining Remick and Steve Emil, senior in English, in the quarterfinals.

Poll: Bible, science can go side by side

NEW YORK (AP) — Three of four Americans believe both the scientific theory of evolution and the biblical theory of creation should be taught in public schools, according to the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll.

In addition, Americans believe teachers and librarians should have more say than should school boards, according to the poll, 1,596 adults were telephoned in a nationwide scientific random sampling in October.

In response to the question, "Do you think public schools should teach only the scientific theory of evolution, only the biblical theory of creation, or should schools offer both theories?" 76 percent said only the biblical theory and six percent were unsure.

People with children 17 or younger were slightly more likely than other respondents to say both theories should be taught.

Louisiana and Arkansas have enacted legislation requiring that biblical creationism be taught parallel to scientific evolution, and other states are considering similar measures.

An American Civil Liberties Union court challenge to the Arkansas law is set for trial Dec. 7 in Little Rock. The ACLU claims the law violates the principle of separation of church and state.

In choosing books and curriculum material for public schools, 53 percent in the latest AP-NBC News poll said school officials should pay more attention to teachers and librarians than to parents. Thirty percent said officials should pay more attention to parents and 15 percent were either undecided or said both.

Respondents who identified themselves as liberals were more likely to say teachers and librarians, while conservatives were more likely to say parents.

People who said they have children 17 or younger and who have no minor children were equally likely to prefer teachers and librarians to parents.

In response to a related question, 60 percent said librarians and teachers, rather than school boards, should have the final say in banning controversial books from public school libraries and classes.

Again, parents of school-age children were equally likely to say teachers and librarians should have the final say in book banning.

Company offers reward for murder information

By Douglas Humm, Staff Writer

A California company is offering a $10,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of the person or persons responsible for the Nov. 11 murder of Joan Wetherall of Carbondale. The reward is being offered by California Plant Protection Security Services Inc. of Van Nuys. The firm’s president and owner, Thomas Wathen, said his company’s interest in the Wetherall case “stems from the fact that Miss Wetherall was the fiancée of one of our area managers.”

Wathen said that Miss Wetherall and Larry Yanta, of Detroit, had known each other “since they were freshmen in high school” and were very close. He said that there had been no formal announcement of a wedding between Yanta and Miss Wetherall. Miss Wetherall’s nude body was found last Wednesday morning in a mine pit off of the Elkville-Vergennes Blacktop Road. A preliminary autopsy showed Miss Wetherall had been strangled. Jackson County Coroner Don Ragadale said Tuesday that the investigation of the case was continuing.

Wathen, who is familiar with the Southern Illinois regional office, said nothing would please him more “than to pay that $10,000 reward tomorrow.”

“We’re particularly angered and upset that such a thing could happen, particularly in Carbondale,” Wathen said. It’s hard to imagine that kind of thing happening in Little Egypt.”

Schmidt gets 2nd straight MVP award

Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies was elected Tuesday as the National League’s most valuable player for the second straight year by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Schmidt, an overwhelming choice in the balloting, became only the third National League player to win consecutive MVP awards.

A unanimous winner of the award last year, when he also was named the World Series MVP, Schmidt received 21 of a possible 24 first-place votes and 331 points from the BBWAA panel, consisting of two writers from each NL city.

Like Schmidt, runner-up Andre Dawson of Montreal was named on all 24 ballots, receiving two first-place votes and 215 points. The only other player to get a first-place vote was rookie pitcher Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers, who was named the NL’s Cy Young Award winner by the BBWAA last week.

The only other consecutive winners of the NL MVP Award were Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs in 1958-59 and Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds in 1975-76.

Roger Maris (1960-61), Mickey Mantle (1956-57), Yogi Berra (1954-55), Hal Newhouser (1944-45) and Jimmy Foxx (1932-33) won consecutive MVP awards in the American League.

Although seven weeks of play were lost in the strike-shortened 1981 season, Schmidt accumulated impressive statistics. Playing in 105 games, he slammed 31 home runs and drove in 91 runs, leading the major leagues in both categories, while batting .316, the highest average of his career.

It marked the fifth time in eight years that Schmidt has led the majors in home runs.

The 32-year-old third baseman had 19 doubles and two triples among his 112 hits and scored 78 runs.

Umbro teams win two IM crowns

By Rod Farlow
Staff Writer

A team called Umbro Ma won the first-ever A Division Championship of the Intramural Sports Volleyball League Monday night at the Recreation Center.

According to the team's captain, the A Division championship will be difficult to compete. "We have a team playing in the first weekend," said co-captain Kenneth Lee. "We had around 40 people out here playing about a month before the tournament began. Our goal is to win every division."

Two of the Umbro teams made it to the finals in the men's division, where Umbro-WB beat Umbro-WE 14-9, 14-12. The Umbros failed to take the Men's A title, which was held by Edwards. Jabat and the Golden Spikers played that final. Jabat won 9-13, 13-4, 16-14.

Even though his team won the Men's A Division, Lee seemed disappointed. "We didn't play better games than this," he said. "We didn't play well at all."

organizations that came to Evansville last year after the crash. Evansville was to host a Christmas tournament which was cancelled because of the weather. The late Paul Lambert, who was SIU's head coach at the time, offered to have SIU-C fill in as the host school and Evansville accepted.

Evansville rebuilt its program utilizing the help of the SIU-C team and the veterinary school and the university. The Aces compiled a 13-6 record the next season.

Stephenson stayed at Evansville because he felt he was "needed to be there," he made the switch to SIU-C that year because he felt it was the right thing to do at this point in his career.

SIU-C's rebuilding wont entail a sweeping renovation, but with the players and coaching staff that have no small task ahead of them.

Stephenson sees himself as part of a new generation with Head Coach Allen Van Winkle and Assistant Coach Herman Williams, with Van Winkle as the guiding force. Stephenson agrees with Van Winkle's emphasis on hard work.

"If we keep open minds and work hard, good things will happen," he said. "In college basketball, there are not a lot of secrets. The key is getting good players and making sure that they are learning and developing their ability as a coach to get as much out of them."

"There are a lot of cliches about dedication and it might be kind of trite to say it's 100 percent very true," Stephenson said.

"I'm going to try to do my best to get the kids to work hard and not think about it."

Women cagers prepared to use patterned or running offense

By Keith Maselli
Staff Writer

The women's basketball team is completing up its final week of preseason practice, but Coach Cindy Scott hasn't picked the starting lineup yet.

This may seem a little surprising because the season opener is Saturday at Murray State. But Scott isn't worried. She has two starting lineups, one squad to run a slow, deliberate offense and another to execute the running attack.

"I think we will be ready," Scott said. "We still don't know who will start the first game. But we can go with two different lineups. A patterned offense or a running offense."

The patterned offense will feature sophomores Char Warrington and Connie Price and junior Sue Faber playing in the frontcourt. All three are six feet or taller and will give the Salukis power to work the ball down low.

To gain a speed advantage, Scott said she will stick with Pace and Warrington in the frontcourt, but will add Roslyn Bartley or Mary Boyes, who can get the ball quickly to point guard D.D. Pish.

It doesn't take a detective to figure out that Pish will run SIU-C's fast break. She ran last season as a freshman under pressure.

"D.D.'s a tremendously talented player," Scott said. "I think she put too much pressure on her last year. We counted on her not only to move the ball but to score also."}

Sherlock Holmes isn't needed to discover that SIU-C's rebounding game needs improvement. A quick glance at the statistics illustrates the Salukis' subpar rebounding.

Last season the Salukis were outsoured on the boards and grabbed only 35.7 percent of the available rebounds. Also Scott lost two top rebounders, Lesa Greer and Alondary Rodgers, to graduation.

"Last year we were a poor rebounding team," Scott said. "We've stressed boards this season and have really been working hard on it."

This season's rebounding burden will fall on the shoulders of Price, Warrington and freshmen CherleBean. Price may be the most important piece in for rebounding department, according to Scott.

"Price's play is like night and day," Scott said. "If you compare this year with last year he is a totally different player. He is playing with much more confidence. He's getting stronger. Also he has the potential to be one awesome player. There aren't too many players who are 6-4, 197 pounds of solid muscle .. . ."

Scott will count on Faber's experience this season. Faber, a 6-3, 190-pound center, averaged 17.4 points and 10.8 rebounds last season as a senior and freshman sophomore years before she suffered a knee injury that cut her junior season short.

Scott said she will use a tough schedule this season. According to Scott, December will be the toughest because the Salukis face Southeast Missouri, Northern Illinois, Ball State, Northwestern, St. Louis University, "P.L.A. and Wichita State."

P.L.A. is ranked 10th in the nation and will come to the Arena on Dec. 19.

Grapplers to rely on returnees

Patience is the only request Coach Lin Long has of SIU-C wrestling fans this season.

"It will take at least a year before we are solid again," Long said. "We can't use our situation as an excuse. We have to do our jobs. It wasn't our fault we were given an ineffective season."

Hopefuliy, our program will be reviewed objectively and we will get some scholarships back," Long said, referring to the six scholarships that had to be reduced because of the low participation. "More consideration should be given to individual records, rather than team records."

According to Long, if this year's recruits were teamed with last year's squad, the Salukis would enjoy a successful season. Last year's team, led by Eric Jones, who qualified for the NCAA meet, finished 5-7, a record with which Long said "isn't bad for a 10-man team.

Long said this year's recruits need experience to improve and will gain this through competition. In other words, the "young" wrestling team will continue this season.

Senior Dave Shea, junior Kevin Bessette, Kevin Powers, Mike Tunball, John Ward, and Derek Woldier are the rookies. They will return as full-time returnees to carry the team."We're going to be inexperience," Long said.

Senior Dale Shea, juniors Kevin Bessette, Kevin Powers, and seniors Mark Hedstrom and Gerald Richards are expected to lead the team this year, according to Long.

"Both Shea and Hedstrom, and Richards will do well this season," Long said.

"Hopefully, Abney will be able to contribute to the team also. He was a solid performer last year. He is in his junior year, and although he isn't highly experienced, he has started to improve a bit."

SIU-C will open its season at the Western Illinois Community College-Western Illinois Wrestling Classic on Saturday. Twenty-four college and wrestling clubs are entered in the tournament.

The Salukis will compete only in four of the 10 weight classes this season because of the men's limited numbers. But as in previous seasons, the team will consist of both men's and women's teams. The current team is made up of a couple in each weight class and three weights will be blank.

"Our competing in four classes is perfectly okay with the NCAA," Long said. "They have required a minimum of 14 dual meets this season," Long said.

Two of the returning grapplers, Mark Hedstrom and Tim Dillick—will not be competing. Dillick is having both knee surgery. Mark Hedstrom is in the hospital.

"Mark has been in the hospital for over a week with a severe knee injury," Long said. "To get back in shape, it will take several weeks of practice to make up for every day he is in the hospital."

Both players are in violation of the hospital policy. "If you don't get hurt and you don't get hurt, you hurt the team," according to Long.

SIU-C is not foreign to new cage assistant

Stafford Stephenson is no stranger to Saluki basketball. The 42-year-old Stephenson, one of SIU-C's assistant basketball coaches, spent four years as an assistant at Evansville before coming to SIU-C this season.

The Purple Aces have been one of the Salukis' frequent opponents through the years, so it might be kind of strange to sit on another bench this season. But Stephenson has made the transition to his new team.

"The Arena feels like home already," Stafford said. "I probably won't feel any different here in the Arena, but we do play at Evansville this season and that will feel a little different."

SIU-C is in the process of rejuvenating its basketball program, which last year mounted a disastrous 7-20 overall record. Reversing a program is another aspect of basketball that Stephenson is familiar with.

The Virginian native was a member of the Evansville coaching staff when the Purple Aces' twin-engine DC-3 crashed five minutes after takeoff from Evansville on Dec. 13, 1977, killing 28 people, including Coach Bobby Watson and 13 other members of the Evansville basketball program.

Another assistant coach was out scouting, while Stephenson was on a recruiting mission in Tampa, Fla., making them the only two survivors of the staff. Stephenson learned of the tragedy the next morning when he read about it in a newspaper.

Stephenson said the atmosphere was strange after the crash because it was both a trying time and a busy time.

"From the time immediately after the plane crashed to the time the new coach was named, it was an extremely emotional period," he said. "There were a lot of heart-warming experiences and a lot of heart-breaking experiences."

"One Chris Dick Walters was named in March, we were so happy," he said. "The actual rebuilding process was enormous because we obviously had no players in the program at the time."

SIU-C was one of the five Aces that opened its season Saturday in the final standings of the Missouri Valley Conference.

Both teams were headed by game ball holder Drake and Tulsa.

Gridders get awards

Jeff Ware was named the outstanding offensive back in the Salukis' 23-13 win at New Mexico State Saturday. Ware gained 125 yards on 39 carries and caught three passes for 39 yards.

Chris Lockwood was the outstanding offensive lineman, with a 78 percent efficiency rating from the coaches.

Noseguard Dave Featherston was the other outstanding defensive lineman. He caused two fumbles and recovered one.

Troy Howd's three interceptions won him the outstanding defensive back sws. His efficiency rating was 81 percent.

The win placed the Salukis in third place in the final standings of the Missouri Valley Conference.
