Mutineers storm last PLO base

TRIPOLI, Lebanon (AP) — Guerrilla mutineers drove Yasser Arafat's fighters out of their headquarters early Wednesday, in fierce hand-to-hand combat at the Baddawi refugee camp.

At the same time, Israeli jets flattened a car bomb against the most extreme bases in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley.

Unconfirmed reports said 150 were killed and 400 wounded in the first Syrian attack on Baddawi, and 33 Israeli warplanes and 700 tanks bombarded hundreds of miles to the Syrian border.

At least 1,000 people were reported killed in the first week of the PLO's last in Tripoli, which broke out Nov. 3. On Nov. 6 the mutineers overpower the last camp of Nafr El-barid, and Arafat's men fled to Baddawi.

It was not known how many loyalists were in Baddawi when Arafat fled to Beirut after the mutiny.

"They entered the camp in the early afternoon," said one Palestinian Liberation Organisation official who was not named. "Eventually, we had to get out. We can't watch the mutiny." That official said that clashes continued after southern edge of Baddawi after nightfall.

Arafat appeared to be surrounded by his fighters. He has been in Tripoli the past 15 months after the United Nations asked him to come to Lebanon to meet with the Palestinian civilians. He has his headquarters in Beirut.

The official said the clashes continued after the mutiny and that the fighting raged after the mutiny.

The beleaguered Arafat has said he will leave Tripoli only when he has guarantees of safety for his fighters and Palestinian civilians. He has given his probable destination as Tunis where he set up headquarters 15 months ago after the Israelis forced him and his government out of Beirut.

Beirut radio said the mutineers were led by Ahmed Jibril, a head of a small, radical PLO faction backed by the United Arab Emirates which accuse Arafat of abandoning military struggle against Israel.

The attack began with a Syrian artillery assault, followed by a Syrian or rebel tank charge.

Just after noon, the camp appeared to be surrounded except for an area to the south and southwest where the fighting raged.

As reports watched from a ridge just south of the camp, shells from the rebel side exploded against a tiny camp, into orange groves near the sea on the camp's western edge, and into Tripoli itself.

The loyalists in Baddawi fired with multiple rocket launchers and anti-aircraft guns that had their muzzle lowered to meet the attack.

ABC to broadcast controversial show on nuclear warfare

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Allison waits in the delivery room at the University Hospital in Lawrence, Kan. Outside the hospital, charred bodies lie amid the rubble of the college town. The gruesome effects of radiation are already vividly depicted, blistered, bleeding faces of the thousands of people "lucky" enough to survive the nuclear blast that hit Kansas City earlier that day.

Allison wonders if it's fair to bring a child into a world such as this. She turns to one of the few doctors who survived the blast to give her advice. "We knew the score," she says. "We knew this could happen for 40 years. Nobody was interested." Well, nearly everyone is interested now.

From the people who brought you "Happy Days," "Three's Company" and "The Love Boat" comes "The Day After," the most controversial television programs ever produced.

ABC's two hour and fifteen minute drama, which depicts the effects of a nuclear strike on Kansas City and the surrounding area, will be aired this Sunday, beginning at 7 p.m.

Labeled as political propaganda by some, defined as a public service by others, the movie is already creating shock waves that stretch from Hollywood to Capitol Hill.

The movie, which is being broadcast in a prime-time armageddon in living color.

Through the magic of America's most pervasive media, millions of people are expected to witness and simulated nuclear holocaust - prime-time armageddon in living color.

Although ABC executives have said the movie is not political, the production is bound by the reality of its time and will serve to氨酸 nuclear groups and political groups across the country.

In Congress, the Day After Committee of Southern Illinois was more concerned with coordinating several events related to the movie.

Last Sunday, the committee showed a half-hour excerpt from the movie at the Wesley Foundation and held a roundtable discussion.
SIU-C micrographics director dies

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

William Potter, director of SIU-C’s micrographics department, died Wednesday of a heart attack at his office. Professor Potter, 57, will be remembered by friends and co-workers as an understanding friend and an industrious, energetic mover, according to Keith Lindsay, a former SIU-C micrographics intern.

“Bill showed more empathy for people than any human I know,” said Lindsay, now a micrographics manager in Missouri. “He developed the best micrographics department in the country at SIU,” he added.

Marie Kilker, director of the University Studies Program, said Professor Potter was unselfish and “really cared about his students.”

“He loved life, and was always looking for new ideas and suggestions,” she said. “A few years ago he and some others developed some techniques and machinery to help students with dyslexia read better.”

Potter took pride in placing his student workers at major corporations after graduation.

Injunction halts farm foreclosures by agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Orders have been sent to state offices of the Farmers Home Administration to comply with a temporary injunction that effectively halts the agency’s farm foreclosures the remainder of this year, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday.

Charles W. Shuman, administrator of the FmHA, said the notices were sent to state directors on Tuesday. Agency officials were told to “immediately cease taking any of the actions prohibited” by a Nov. 14 federal court ruling in Bismarck, N.D.

U.S. District Judge Bruce Van Sickle said a temporary nationwide injunction was in place against FmHA until he could hear arguments on a permanent injunction.

Agency officials said they understood the next hearing would be Jan. 9 and that the temporary injunction effectively bars FmHA from proceeding againstaggard borrowers at least until then.

The court order was the result of a lawsuit by nine North Dakota farmers against FmHA.

Feminist leader cleared of charge

GRETNIA, La. (AP) — A jury Wednesday found California feminist leader Ginny Foat innocent of murdering an Argentine businessman 18 years ago, rejecting as lies the testimony of her ex-husband who implicated her.

The six-man, six-woman State District Court jury deliberated less than two hours before returning the verdict, which was greeted with cheers in the courtroom.

Man shot to death in hospital room

MANATWI, Wis. (AP) — A man being treated for a gunshot wound died early Wednesday after an assistant climbed onto the roof of a hospital and fired a shotgun blast into his room, authorities said.

Henry Coleman, 44, of Centreville, died at about 11 a.m. He had been shot in the back with a large-gauge shotgun about two hours earlier in his room at St. Mary’s Hospital in East St. Louis, according to a hospital spokesman.

Tropic withdrawal still expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan won’t ask for authority to keep U.S. troops in Grenada past the Christmas deadline set by Congress, because the administration expects all combat forces to be withdrawn before then, a White House spokesman said Wednesday.

House and Senate leaders are split on whether to allow American forces to remain on the island under the War Powers Act.

discussion afterward.
This Sunday, a group viewing of the film will be held at the Wesley Center, 612 S. Illinois Ave., starting at 7 p.m. A public viewing of the film will also be held following the Southern Illinois Friends Meeting, at 214 S. Glenview. The Friends group requests that no children under the age of 12 be brought to the viewing.

The movie’s impact on children has been a major concern of parents and educators. ABC will issue a warning before the film begins which states that “because the graphic depiction of the effects of a nuclear war may not be suitable for younger viewers, parental discretion is advised.”

In addition, the Cultural Information Service, an independent, nonprofit educational organization, produced a viewer’s guide for the movie, which urges families to watch the program with their children. The ABC distributed half a million of the guides to local stations, schools and libraries. The Day After Committee distributed about 125 of the guides in the Carbondale area.

People are also concerned about the movie’s effect on adults. Doctors and counselors are being urged to keep office hours open Monday morning to talk to people who may feel traumatized by the graphic representation of atomic destruction.

And activists worry that the “Day After” may create a sense of helplessness among viewers. Anti-nuclear groups across the country are planning public discussion sessions next week where they hope to motivate people to action.

On Monday, the Mid-America Peace Project is sponsoring an open house from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. in the Wesley Center for people who want to discuss the movie or have questions about the arms race.

And at 7 p.m. Monday a discussion session about the movie will be held at the public library in Carbondale. A discussion session will be held at the public library at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

The anti-nuclear groups will be making prime-time pitches during the week. Peace Newman and Meryl Streep will urge viewers to work for nuclear disarmament while a coalition of groups sponsors a bill free number where viewers can call for free “nuclear war protection kits.”

This type of activity has angered people who believe that the United States needs a stronger nuclear deterrent.

Jerry Falwell and Phyllis Schlafly have charged that the movie is purely political and have demanded equal television time from ABC.

But WSIL, the local ABC affiliate, has had only one complaint about the movie, according to Operations Manager Steve Wheeler. He said the station received a letter from the American Legal Foundation, urging the station not to run the movie.

The group, based in Washington, D.C., has apparently sent letters to many ABC affiliates, Wheeler said.

National disarmament groups such as Ground Zero, SANE and the Nuclear Weapons Freeze Campaign, have backed ABC’s defense that the movie is not one-sided, and local groups are doing the same.

“Every time it’s exposed to nuclear war,” said Hugh Tick, one of the Day After Committee. “Our purpose is to promote a dialogue that sides can engage in.”

Just what is inhuman?

Jane Ellison, in her letter to the DE on Nov. 15, stated, "The death penalty is the ultimate cruel, inhuman and degrading punishment.

Inhuman, Ms. Ellison, is the senseless taking of an innocent human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human; the senseless taking of another human.

I believe that the death penalty is the only inhumane punishment. It is the only inhuman act of murder and I offer two examples to support my case.

Last month, two guards were stabbed to death at the federal prison in Marion. No federal death penalty exists, so the state of Illinois (which has a death penalty) is precluded from charging the guards with the inhuman act of murder. I offer two examples to support my case.

Norman Carlson, Director of the Department of Corrections, has said that the guards were inhuman. In jail now in Texas, he has been in jail for many years, including 20 with a gun, who is serving sentences for murder.

Mr. Ellison says "as long as we allow the death penalty anywhere in this great right to life, we will make little progress towards a more civilized world... The abolition of the death penalty offers not one alternative." A murderer has denied another person of his basic right to life and deserves no better. — Wayne Fickel, Junior, Zoology.

Love the break, hate the drive? Keep busy with the Small Study

IT'S LONG. It's dull. It's boring. And many of us will embark upon it this weekend. I'm talking about that lengthy trip up interstate 55 to Chicago. If you live in or near the Chicago area, you may as well admit to it yourself — you're looking forward to spending time with friends and family, but you'd rather be somewhere else.

This is where my friends and I, and 10 others, come here to help. I'm here a day early, in fact. My smiling countenance usually doesn't appear on this page until Friday of each week, but of the dozen or so people who read my column, at least half will be on the road by Friday and the other half will be too busy packing to pay attention.

And FOR THIS bit of free-for-nothing fun, I need the cooperation of the full dozen of you. So perk up and be ready to go.

I'm asking those of you who will make the trip up the interstate in the next day or two to indulge in a bit of leisurely research, if you will, into the character of this great state from top to bottom.

You see, social geography in Illinois has always been a puzzle to me. My mind boggles whenever I think of Chicago area refer with contempt to the people of the entire state south of Kankakee as "backward downstaters." And I reach with equal horror when someone from Colosota calls fellow folk "Chicagoland city slickers.

The POPULATION of Illinois' midsection is insulted either way. Folks in Tolen, the home of Dillard College and the Southern Illinoisans, are city slickers? Are some Southern Illinoisans correct in assuming that upstaters (folks north of Effingham) are city slickers?

What is largely responsible for the apathy in the enormous coverage in the editorial page. Writers condemn the invasion because it is an exercise of white superiority, or of the accidental killing of civilians, or because the United States broke international law, etc. On the other side of the coin, people write that the invasion was justified because the Grenadian civilians were in danger, or the United States needed to show its military muscle against the communists, or because the Cubans would have another military stronghold, etc.

I realize that these people were just trying to inform the public, but it's getting to the point where they are informing the public to death.

'Pump Boys' music saved a drab performance

By Terry Levecke
Entertainment Editor

The Pump Boys and Dinettes ordered up almost two hours of song that contained several musical genres into an evening of comical lyrics and light-hearted melodies Tuesday night in Shryock Auditorium.

The set for the gas station and diner located somewhere between Smyrna and Frog Level was elaborate for a travelling show, with detail down to old license plates and a picture of Dolly Parton on the wall that became useful later in the show.

The production relied on the music to pull through the entire performance. Fortunately, the music was diverse and entertaining enough to keep the audience satisfied.

The Pump Boys and Dinettes sang about workin' in the diner, fishin', drinkin', and love.

Jonathan L. Segal, who played L.M., the co-owner of L.M. & Jim's Gaso, conveyed the most humorous character— a sly, conservative type, whose only true love was Dolly Parton, although he was the spark of Prudie Cupp's eye. He hid behind his piano most of the show, but departed from the ivories for a couple numbers on the accordion.

Prudie Cupp (Larson) and Jim's Gasso, conveyed the most humorous character—a sly, conservative type, whose only true love was Dolly Parton, although he was the spark of Prudie Cupp's eye. He hid behind his piano most of the show, but departed from the ivories for a couple numbers on the accordion.

Prudie Cupp (Larson) and Prudie Cupp (Watton) offered percussion accompaniment in several numbers via colliders, metal bowls and pots. There were only two dances in the show, which was a little disappointing. L.M. and the Cupp sisters put on their tap dance shoes for the best dance of the show in the last song of the first act, "Drinkin' Shoes."

Watton again outshone Larson in a Capp sister dance number, "Tips." Watton's strong soprano vocal quality also projected much better than Larson's, whose vocal performance was also rather lacking.

Watton repeatedly tried to play off Larson, but Larson was not on the same wavelength. Even though she wasn't very good, she continually upstaged Watton.

Larson said after the show she's more in to rock'n'roll, and that was demonstrated in the show with her best performance of the evening, "Vacation," in which she belted out some bluesy quality vocals.

Jonathan Edwards, who played Jim, put on a great show and is showcasing his frustrated talents that have been locked up in the college circuit for the past 12 years. He is releasing an album later this year, he said after the show.

Henry Gross, who played Jackson, was an original member of Sha Na Na and said he enjoys doing the show and that it's similar to the performances of Sha Na Na.

The company, which has been on tour for the past six weeks, will wind up the tour in Nashville in about four more weeks. Watton is a country singer hoping to land a recording contract, and she's excited about playing in Nashville.

There were a few technical sound problems, but, like Watton said, 'that's what makes theater exciting—there's always a surprise.'

Student-written plays to open

By Terry Levecke
Entertainment Editor

Five new plays will be performed at 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday in Ballroom C of the Student Center by the Playwright's Theater. The performances will range from readings to full, memorized productions. The five plays were written and directed by first and second-year graduate students.

On Thursday, "The Rehabilitation of Beulah Sims" by Pamela Billingsley will open the show. It is a comedy centering on a weight loss support group that is led by an anorexic, neurotic group member. The play takes place on Thanksgiving Eve.

"The Path of Stars," by Tim Brynt will be included in Thursday's performances. It depicts Marietta Cole, a 70-year-old Kentucky woman who longs for change in her life. The play takes place in 1911.

"My Day," by Jeffery Elwell will also be performed Thursday. This play involves a high jumper and his perspective on life as he prepares to make the jump that will give him the state championship. It deals with the pressures he receives from his parents and his coach and what he does about it.

Friday night's performances include "No Palmists Please" by Mary Kovara. It is a comedy involving two women and one man and their search for romance and relationships.

"The Guy Who Blew Up on Clark Street" by Dee Mans will also be performed Friday. As the title suggests, it's about a man who blows up from spontaneous combustion because he can't stop thinking. The performances are sponsored by SPC Fine Arts and the Graduate and Professional Student Council. Admission is free.

Apathy, low attendance blamed for fewer SPC issue speakers

By Joyce Vonderheide
Staff Writer

Low attendance and student apathy are factors keeping the Student Programming Council from bringing more public affairs speakers to SIU-C; said Joel Willis, SPC expressive arts chairman.

SPC surveys indicate that when students go out, they want to be entertained more than informed, Willis said.

Turnout at public affairs events is low compared to entertainment events. Chris Carlson, a former Moonie, spoke last spring about the effects of the Unification Church. Only 150 to 200 people attended his lecture, while about three times that many came to see Tom Delosa, a hypnotist.

Though the campus is apathetic about public affairs speakers, Willis said he wants to "concentrate on what people should be concerned with."

In February, he plans to have a speaker in conjunction with the U.N. simulation in February. Willis said possible speakers are Donald F. McHenry, a former master's student at SIU-C, or Maria Mancias, former public minister of Jamaica.

Another possible speaker is a member of the Senate Investigative Committee which investigated Martin Luther King Jr.'s assassination. Willis also wants to have a speaker in conjunction with Women's Awareness Month.

Willis said "cost is a definite factor" in planning the 800-plus events sponsored by SPC each year. Planning has to be done three to six months in advance. Having sponsors is also helpful.

"Earthwalk," a recent SPC event, was sponsored by the Eastman Kodak Co. The multimedia presentation was well attended because it offered something for everyone, Willis said. The program was also free, which, he said, may have been another factor for the good turnout.

The director of student activities at Eastern Illinois University, Anita Craig, noted that public affairs speakers do not seem popular there either.

"By and large (speakers here are) of an entertainment nature," Craig said.

Because Craig has only been in her position for a few weeks, she was not familiar with attendance at past events. The most recent events there were "Earthwalks" and a speaker on UFOs.

Craig was director of student activities for five years at Bradley University before coming to Eastern. The program at Bradley focused on a balance of educational and entertainment events, she said.

A concentration camp survivor drew a standing-room-only crowd in his appearance at Bradley. Craig said that sometimes entertainment events drew larger crowds at Bradley.

At the University of Illinois, three public affairs speakers are scheduled each semester, according to Denise Diaz, staff advisor for the Illini Union Board Lecture Committee.

Not all public affairs speakers are political figures, she noted. The lectures are free, but political speakers do not usually draw large crowds. Dan Moldea, author of books on organized crime, and John Stockwell, former CIA official, were recent speakers at the U of I.

You've just become a better photographer.

No need to change your equipment or your technique just try the new family of Kodakolor VR films.

Advances in color print film technology can help you get the best color pictures ever from Kodak films.

Try all four new films in your 35 mm camera ... and be a better photographer.

Ideal for big blowups with top quality.

Great for close-ups, anything where detail is important.

Kodak redefines versatility.

Kodakolor VR 200 film has all the sharpness, fine grain, and color saturation you got with Kodakolor II film - with twice the speed. Great all around performer.

Kodakolor VR 400 film has wide exposure latitude, plus color that's even more saturated on underexposures, and grain that's even finer than Kodakolor 400 film.

Ideal for stopping action, even with long telephoto lenses.

Kodak redefines low light.

Kodakolor VR 1000 film is the latest color print film in the world, for good pictures in low light, and when you need very high shutter speeds to stop action. An advanced, new emulsion technology enables the film to capture more light without the grain and loss in sharpness you'd normally expect with such a fast film! Try all four new films ... and see all the ways you can be a better photographer!

Sierra Club to discuss road plan

The Shawnee Group of the Sierra Club will discuss a proposal to build a road connecting the Great River Road (Route 3) to the Pine Hills area at a meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday at First Federal Savings and Loan, 500 W. Main St., Carbondale.

Stanley Harris, geology professor emeritus, will present slides of the Pine Hills area (about five miles south of Grand Tower), which was designated a national Natural Heritage Landmark in 1975 because of its unique flora and fauna.

Harris expects increased driving through the area if a wider, paved road is put through to a campground and overlooks at Pine Hills. He also contends increased driving through the area will degrade and cheapen the area as a national monument.

The U.S. Forest Service is completing an environmental assessment of the possible road, which would be paid for by the Illinois Department of Transportation and federal highway funds. The Forest Service has asked for public opinion on the project.

The Shawnee Group has recommended Great Pond in the Pine Hills area for Illinois permanent protection designation, as well as Grasak Hill Prairies and Atwood Ridge in Union County. They also recommend protection for the Kaskaskia Experimental Forest and Whoopie Cat Mountain in Hardin County, and Cave Hill in Saline County.

The Shawnee Group is sponsoring an outing to Burke Branch, located on the far southeast corner of the Shawnee National Forest Saturday, and Panther Den, south of Devil's Kitchen Lake, Dec. 3. The group invites anyone interested to meet at 9:30 a.m. in the First National Bank parking lot, 509 S. University Ave. on those dates.
Community leaders express mixed reactions to abortion bill

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

Reactions are mixed among community leaders on a new law requiring doctors to notify parents before performing an abortion.

And the measure may still face a legal challenge before it is ever imposed.

Leaders speaking to the Wellness Center criticized the law, while Jackson County Right to Life praised its passage.

It was passed by the Illinois General Assembly last week in an override of Gov. Thompson’s veto. The Illinois Senate had passed the bill Oct. 21 amidst questions about its constitutionality.

The law, which goes into effect July 1, 1984, states parents must be notified at least 24 hrs before a minor under 18 could have an abortion, unless a judge deemed the woman mature enough to make the decision on her own.

Janie Kulp, director of Sexuality Services at the Wellness Center, said she opposes the law.

"The young at any age can make their own decisions," Kulp said.

She said the law will make abortion more difficult for these women and will cause time delays and administrative problems.

Rose Marie Nowacki, president of Jackson County Right to Life, said she favored the measure from its introduction and encouraged members of her group to write letters to legislators urging its passage. "Parental authority is usurped," she said, "by the law that provides for notification, she said.

Nowacki said "parents have the right to know," of an underage daughter’s abortion plans, and without the law, "secrecy would put a wedge between parent and daughter.

Right to Life is a year-old Murphyshon-based organization of about 40 members which opposes abortion.

Representatives of the Women’s Center pregnancy testing and counseling service declined to comment on the bill’s passage.

In June 1983, the United States Supreme Court ruled similar laws in Virginia, Missouri and Ohio were unconstitutional invasion of privacy. One of the laws ruled on only included notification of parents with daughters under 18.

Kulp said she anticipates constitutional problems with the Illinois law, and an injunction will probably hold off application of the law until a court decides on its constitutionality.

Tim Prescott, press aide to Gov. Thompson, said Thompson vetoed the bill because he thought it was an unconstitutional invasion of privacy. He said the bill presents the same situation as a similar law in Indiana that also has constitutional problems.

Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-116, said he believes parents shouldn’t be notified and that he voted against the bill. He said he was more concerned with the issue than with the constitutionality of the law, which is "for the courts to decide."

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — "I’M MARRY ME," "LOVE YOU," "LOVE B.JG" — the young at any age can have a ball when the plates also will increase — from six to seven.

"The extra space opens up new personalized "vanity" license plates. The censor now work with a list of 1,900 banned words and letter combinations, and the list must be updated significantly to reflect the new seven-letter range that goes into effect July 1.

The price of customized plates will increase — from $60 to $75 — but officials don’t believe that will affect sales. About 48,000 people have bought the "vanity plates" since the program started three years ago.

Only a few obscene words have slipped past the censors, said Mike Walters, a spokesman for the office of Illinois Secretary of State Jim Edgar.

One such word was spelled backwards so that motorists could read it in their rear-view mirrors, said Walters.

brought back memories of last year for the Salukis. In 1982, SIU-C lost to Arkansas State on a last-second pass after being 2-8. This year, Johnson brought the Salukis back behind three times while completing 18 of 28 passes for 223 yards and three touchdowns, leading SIU-C to a 35-28 win. He scored the game-winning touchdown on a 1-yard run with just less than five minutes left to play.

Indiana State: At ISU, the

with a 35-28 win. He scored the game-winning touchdown on a 1-yard run late in the third quarter, while the defense gave up just 26
eys in the second half.

Illinois State: In its regular-season home finale against ISU, SIU-C produced one of its most exciting games of the season with a 28-6 win. The No. 1 ranked Salukis came back from behind twice. Donnell Daniel returned an interception 22 yards for a touchdown to give the Salukis their first lead of the game at 21-14.

Boiling IL State gave the

The second season has begun for the Salukis, 10-1, and so has the waiting game. It has been known whom the No. 2 I-AA Salukis will play in the quarterfinal game they will host on Dec. 3 for more than a month. The second half of the Salukis' season begins on Nov. 29 and will advance to play the Salukis depending on how they do at the 400-yard goal in the season opener.

Injuries have plagued the Salukis from game one, while big games ahead of the season have been dealt with and winnable, for Saluki Coach Ray Dempsey.

Western Illinois: In the season opener, the team on offense was won 38-7, but quarterback Rick Johnson in the third and fourth quarters and the Salukis scored 19 points in the game. After falling behind 14-7, Mike Bracica recovered a blocked punt in the end zone to tie the game at 16. After falling behind 17-14, Eastern Illinois drove down to the Saluki end zone with 1:57 left to play. The Panthers elected to go for the game-winning field goal on 4th and 5, but the Salukis intercepted the pass and blocked the kick and preserved the Salukis win.

Southeast Missouri State: Saluki quarterback Darren Dixon started the first game of his career at the Saluki career in the following week. A game that was going to set the tempo for the Saluki season, Dixon completed only 12 of 27 passes, but the Salukis only led 7-14 at the half. The Salukis scored 21 points in the first half against the Missouri State basketball team.

Northern Iowa: Another rout was in store for the Salukis as it ran away with a 52-0 win. Saluki quarterback 9. Johnson received a little game action for the first time since he was injured.

Strong guard John Hiebner was lost for the season when he suffered a separated shoulder on his first play of the game. After his fall, the Salukis' offensive line was just beginning to shuffle around and adjust to injuries elsewhere.

Backup split end Tony Adams suffered a concussion in a car accident the night before the Northern Iowa game, which marked the first of two games that the Salukis had to play without a key player. SIU-C moved up to the No. 5 ranking in the Big 10.

Arkansas State: Arkansas State University kicks a 40-yard field goal in the game. The game trying to kick a soccer ball off the field.

Soccer player is tough and you don't have to do that. The only answer to this question is that each student will advance to play the Maroon-White Salad, 7-0.
