Proposal calls for united Germany

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Chancellor Helmut Kohl has approved a proposal for a "confederation" of East and West Germany as a step toward eventual reunification, the newspaper Bild said Monday.

The proposal, which is expected to be presented to the West German parliament Tuesday, was outlined to members of Kohl's Christian Democrat party in a private meeting late Monday, the newspaper said in an article released in advance of publication.

The report came as hundreds of thousands of East German pro-democracy protesters took to the streets of Leipzig and other cities, some of them carrying banners calling for reunification.

East Germany and its chief backer, the Soviet Union, have consistently rejected calls for a reunited Germany, which was divided and drawn into opposing military blocs following its defeat in World War II.

Bild, quoting Christian Democrat sources, said the plan Kohl will present to parliament calls for reunification in three steps.

The first phase entails East Germany's acceptance of democratic reforms sought by the Bonn government, chiefly, free elections and constitutional reform.

In the second step the two countries will unite in a loose "confederation," under which they would retain separate governments while cooperating closely on economic, transportation and environmental issues, Bild said.

The final phase calls for formal reunification of two countries under a democratic government, the newspaper said.

Bild said Kohl planned to discuss the proposal by telephone Wednesday with President Bush.

The newspaper's report could not be independently confirmed and there was no immediate reaction from East Berlin.

In Leipzig, East Germany, about 200,000 demonstrators took to the streets demanding more democratic reforms, the East German news agency ADN said, in what has become a Monday night ritual in East Germany's second-largest city.

But besides the usual banners urging political change, some in the crowd waved signs with slogans calling for reunification.

"Reunification — the process has begun," one banner said. Other slogans were "Europe, a common home," and "Unity, Justice and Freedom" — the first words of the West German national anthem.

Other protests were reported in Halle, Schwerin and other East German cities.

In a development viewed as a positive signal to democracy groups, East German border guards Monday began ripping down barbed-wire fences and other barriers blocking the approach to the West German border near the northern city of Luebeck.

West German television showed green-uniformed guards rolling up barbed wire in large spools, pounding down sheet-metal fences and collecting what appeared to be electronic detection equipment.

The barricades, part of an elaborate anti-escape system parallel to the actual border, were erected over the years to discourage East Germans from fleeing to the West. The fences and walls that mark the border remained intact.

Baltic states receive economic freedom

MOSCOW (UPI) — Parliament passed a landmark law Monday giving the three Baltic republics economic independence, making them test cases in Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's reform drive.

The new law, to take effect Jan. 1, is aimed at accelerating Gorbachev's bid to decentralize the crippled state-run economy and calming the nationalist fervor that has engulfed Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia in recent months.

The sweeping measure lets the republics regulate virtually all economic activity in their territories, decide questions of land ownership and use and control most of their natural resources.

The law also authorizes them to make separate business deals with foreign countries, among one another and with the Soviet Union's other 12 republics.

"The parliament took a decisive step toward giving the Soviet federation new content," the official Tass news agency said.

"The experience of the Baltic republics will help the movement toward economic independence for all the republics," Deputy Premier

Thompson opens site for tourism in Mexico

Gov. James R. Thompson is going across the Mexican border next week to preach the good news about Illinois.

The governor has planned to lead a delegation of business, labor and government leaders to Mexico City Dec. 6 to open the state's eighth foreign trade and tourism office.

"We consider Illinois to be the most American of all states," Lynn Morford, Department of Commerce and Community Affairs spokeswoman, said. "We want to promote this idea through tourism between Mexico and Illinois."

In 1986, more than 42,000 Mexicans visited Illinois. Morford said with a tourism office in Mexico City, this number should continue growing.

Plane crash near Bogota kills 107

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — A Colombian passenger jet exploded and crashed Monday outside Bogota, killing all 107 people aboard. An anonymous telephone caller claimed drug traffickers bombed the plane to kill five "snitches."

The Avianca Airlines Boeing 727 crashed at 7:18 a.m., about 5 minutes after taking off from Bogota's El Dorado International Airport en route to the western city of Cali. Civil Aeronautics operations chief Jorge Gonzalez said.

There were no survivors among the 101 passengers and six crew, Gonzalez said.

There were various reports the plane may have suffered two explosions, the first triggering a fire before a second blast blew the plane apart.

Hours after the crash, a man claiming to represent a cocaine cartel hit squad called the Extraditables telephoned Bogota's Radio Caracol to take responsibility for downing the plane.

The anonymous caller said the jet was bombed because five of the people aboard had informed against Colombian drug traffickers.

The International Red Cross recovered 98 bodies from the charred wreckage.

Student Development office drops RSO group

By Jeanne Bickler
Staff Writer

As of Monday morning, the Leadership Education and Development organization was separated from the Office of Student Development, but officers of LEAD are hoping for a reconciliation sometime today.

LEAD no longer will be a registered student organization under the direction of the Office of Student Development, Harriet Wilson Barlow, associate director of student development, said Monday.

Officers of LEAD and faculty members from the Office of Student Affairs, however, held a meeting Monday afternoon to discuss the possibility of bringing the two groups back together.

This decision comes after weeks of misunderstandings and conflicts about LEAD's goals and objectives between LEAD and the Office of Student Development.

LEAD was created by the Office of Student Development in 1987 to help it implement some of its programs and objectives and is administered by the Center of Student Involvement.

LEAD was given until Nov. 27 to decide if it was going to stay under the direction of the Office of Student Development, but the decision to separate the two was made on Nov. 21 by the Office of Student Development.

LEAD and the Office of Student

Development held a meeting Nov. 15 to discuss their differences in goals and objectives.

According to the goals outlined for LEAD, it is to be an organization that will provide leadership education and information to other registered student organizations on campus.

The officers of LEAD were discussing objectives not listed by the Office of Student Development,

East German ruling party considering new proposals

WEST BERLIN (UPI) — East Germany's Communist Party will consider proposals next month setting a mandatory retirement age for party leaders and limiting the number of terms elected officials can serve, the party newspaper Neues Deutschland said Monday. The proposals reflected the continuing backlash against former leader Erich Honecker and his top advisers, mostly older party members who stilled calls for reform until driven out of office last month by massive pro-democracy demonstrations.

Comoros president assassinated Monday

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — President Ahmed Abdallah Abderemane of the Indian Ocean island nation of the Comoros was assassinated early Monday in a failed coup by members of the military, Western diplomats and South African officials said. Abderemane, 70, was buried Monday afternoon in accordance with Islamic law and a temporary successor named. The government declared 40 days of mourning in the island chain.

Bush proposes deeper troop cuts in Europe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush plans to talk about deeper mutual troop cuts in Europe than previously proposed when he meets with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, a White House spokesman said Monday. Press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the president, driven by dramatic changes in Eastern Europe and the nagging budget deficit, believes "it is only logical that any reduction in Soviet forces would lead to changes" in NATO's military posture. But Fitzwater made it clear that U.S. allies would be consulted before any agreements are reached on reductions.

U.S. threatens to withdraw funding to U.N.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department warned Monday that U.S. funding for the United Nations — amounting to 25 percent of the world organization's total budget — would be cut off if the General Assembly votes to upgrade the observer status of the Palestine Liberation Organization. A spokeswoman also warned that U.S. funding for the Food & Agricultural Organization, a U.N. specialized agency that received $83 million in U.S. funds in the last fiscal year, would be stopped if the PLO were chosen as the FAO's agency for channeling food relief to Palestinians.

U.S. protests smuggled arms in El Salvador

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States delivered a sharp protest to the Soviet Union over the discovery in El Salvador of a shipment of arms from Nicaragua, the State Department said Monday. The arms — including 24 SA-7 shoulder-fired surface-to-air missiles and one U.S.-made Redeye surface-to-air missile — were discovered when a Cessna 310, traced by its parts numbers to Nicaragua, crashed in El Salvador Saturday.

Design students to showcase work

Projects on display at Morris Library

By Brian Gross
Staff Writer

Colorful visual designs and modern, innovative product ideas combine for professional-quality projects created by students of the University design department.

The projects are being showcased at Morris Library this fall to draw attention to the design department.

Design Initiative Now (DIN), the design department's student organization, put together the displays in five wall cases in the north entrance hall on the library's main floor.

The cases will display students' graphic layout boards of advertisements and detailed foam models of product designs. They will be on display until Christmas break.

Kevin Connelly, DIN student president, said the organization wants the displays to introduce people to the work done in the design department, which has been around for many years as part of the School of Art.

"From what we've found," Connelly said, "when we have put on our shows, a lot of people came through who were completely surprised at the work we did."

"A lot of people are busy with their own work and are not aware we exist. We did this just to introduce new people to the past things and things currently going on in design and the different work we do in the design department," he said.

Design student Amy Mirocha said, "The whole of the display design was to have students know what design is and what we're basically doing."

The design department is broken down into two sections: visual communications and product design. Visual communications is the design of advertising layouts, such as the ads for "Beach Babe" on display in the library. It involves using graphics, words and layout.

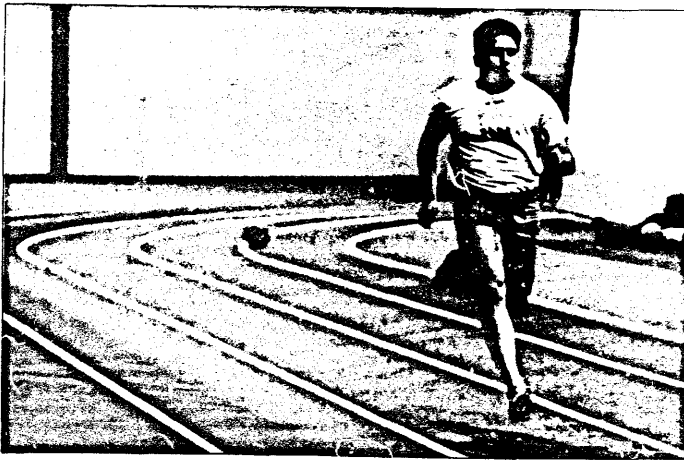

Product design is the planning and designing of mass-produced products, from door knobs to cars to refrigerators. Detailed, full-color models of the designs are then created out of foam and wood. Completed models of toys, office machines and vehicles are displayed at the library.

"With models," Connelly said, "we initially start by putting down ideas. The model concepts we deal can help man interact with things around him. In some cases we work up a 3-D model, so people can look at it and say, 'Oh yeah, I can see what that's like.'"

The students create their work in the blue barracks near the towers. Connelly said this inconspicuous location is the reason many people are not familiar with the department, and the library display hopefully will make people more aware of it.

The library display is just one of many activities DIN, which has about 45 members, puts together for design students during the year. A field trip and the annual spring show are planned for next semester.

"We try get various activities going and we try to get design students active with each other," Connelly said.

Chinese scholars to lecture on politics

By Dale Walker
Staff Writer

Three scholars from a Chinese university, the first group to arrive at SIU-C since the Tiananmen incident, have begun a series of lectures on Chinese politics at the University Museum Auditorium.

The series began at 4 p.m. Monday with a lecture delivered by Caisong Wang, faculty member in the Department of Political Science and Director of Constitutional Research at Northeast Normal University, Changchun, China.

"This is the first time that we at SIU have the opportunity to ask these scholars questions face to face about democracy and freedom in China," SIU-C Professor Ikua Chou, director of the United States Information Agency Cultural Exchange Program, said.

Lectures for the rest of the series include:

- 4:30 p.m. Wednesday; "The question of democracy in the reform of China's political system," by Jingfu Liu, faculty member and dean of the Political Science Department at NENU.
- 4 p.m., Thursday; "China's Party System" will be delivered by Liu.

- 7 p.m., Dec. 4; "The Chinese System of crime and punishment," by Wang.

- 4 p.m., Dec. 5; "The autonomy of China's minorities," by Wang.

- 4:30 p.m., Dec. 6; "The evolution of the relations between the China mainland and Taiwan in the past four decades," by Liu.

- 4 p.m., Dec. 8; "A comparison of the reforms of the state systems in the socialist countries," by Xiaochuan Dong, instructor at the Department of History at NENU, will deliver his lecture.

Assistance needed to fight elderly abuse

ELDERLY MEMBERS of our society face numerous problems most of us consider inevitable in the aging process. But lurking beneath the surface are other problems that most of us are unaware or wish not to acknowledge.

Bodies deteriorate as the years pass by and often times illness dominates everyday activities. Alzheimer's disease, stroke and heart problems are common among our elders.

THE AGED who need care often enter nursing homes or acquire the assistance of family members or others in the community.

But caring for someone who needs a great deal of daily attention can at times be frustrating. This frustration can lead to abuse and neglect.

We hear about child abuse and abuse of women but seldom is the problem of elderly abuse openly discussed.

The Illinois Department on Aging has initiated a program to fight elderly abuse in Illinois by asking citizens to voluntarily report cases of abuse against the elderly.

ELDERLY ABUSE includes physical and sexual abuse, deprivation, financial exploitation and psychological and verbal abuse.

Financial exploitation is the most common form of abuse in the Southern Illinois area.

We acknowledge the need for programs and agencies to aid in the fight against elderly abuse and urge anyone who knows about or suspects abuse of an elderly person to report it to the authorities.

According to a study conducted by the Department of Aging, 50 percent of all abuse cases are reported by concerned individuals. The other 50 percent are reported by the victim's children, other relatives and the victim.

OUR ELDERLY are often times taken for granted. They have spent their lives protecting and taking care of others and now require care and protection in return.

Local organizations like the Shawnee Alliance for Seniors also investigate abuse reports but need the help of the community.

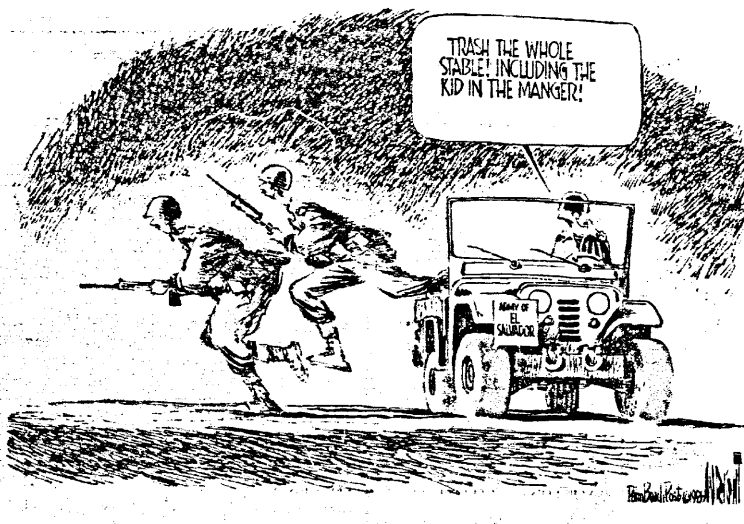

Seniors are often threatened by live-in caretakers and family members with the possibility of being put in homes and institutions if abuse is reported.

Another problem faced by the Shawnee Alliance is getting consent of the victim to offer assistance.

Margery Kemp, case manager supervisor for Shawnee Alliance, said it is important for individual victims to make decisions — even if the decisions are considered bad.

MAKING LAWS to protect the elderly have the potential to take away their rights. We do not want anyone's rights infringed upon or taken away but we would like the community to become involved with protecting our parents and grandparents.

If you have knowledge of an elderly citizen who is being abused, please call 1-800-642-7773 and report it.

'Perennial issue' to drop football needs to be restudied for new data

I hate to be the one to bring this up, but people who have been at SIU-C awhile tell me this a perennial issue and I don't want this year to slip by without it being brought up.

The cold, ugly facts are that the football program loses a ton of money, nobody cares enough to go to the games, and they play the game poorly. It's time to think about ... well, you know, dropping it.

I hesitate to be that brutally honest because I don't want to hurt the players or the coaches who read this. It must be long to hear somebody asking for your scholarships and jobs.

But, folks, I just don't see how you're fulfilling a real need here.

When you can't fill up a stadium that holds considerably fewer people than you have in the school it's a hint and a half that not enough people care about the program. I'm sure this is directly linked to how much money you lose. And when you spend all that money on scholarships, recruiting, equipment and still can't win, something has got to change.

The kicker is, I love football. I played college football in a football-crazy state (Nebraska) and can tell you what it's like to have great fan support and make money for the school in the process. That is just not the case at SIU-C and unless academics have to suck up your deficits, I just can't shut up.

I don't kid myself into thinking that anything will actually come from opinions like mine. The alumni support is too strong and the administration too spineless to take the kind of stand necessary to get rid of the excess baggage.

So how about this for an innocuous move: Get a committee together and study just how much the students care, the program loses, and how many wins we can count on the next few years. I'm sure this has been done before but we need a brand new collection of data to mull over before we can properly ignore it and promise a more serious look at dropping football — next year — Steve Taylor, graduate student, behavior analysis and therapy.

Stand against Illiniwek applauded

I would like to congratulate Sen. Paul Simon for standing up to the lobby of the University of Illinois and investigating the Chief Illiniwek mascot. This mascot is an insult to all American Indians. It's almost as bad as the one at Bradley, that was modified.

If Illiniwek was the mascot here at SHU, Gov. Thompson, Sen.

Dixon, the Chicago Media and the State would all jump on the band wagon to get rid of it.

It is about time, this state treats the Native American with some respect.

They are not wild men running around a football field to the tune of "Pow Wow the Indian Boy!" Would you like a team in Japan called the fighting White men with George Washington as the mascot? Are Native Americans the same as Salukis, Wildcats, Redbirds or Blue Demons?

I think a better mascot for the U of I, that would represent them better, would be the weasel. — David Dost, Waucauda.

View of flag burning issue 'naive'

I am responding to Miss Barry's letter of Nov. 1 which was in response to an Oct. 18 letter of mine.

Miss Barry, I am a little upset with the issue of flag burning, and you are correct that the first amendment protects flag burning (of course that depends on how it is argued). As you refer to Mr. Johnson's case, (Texas vs. Johnson) it is pretty obvious that this man is as big an idiot as they come. On the Larry King talk show, Mr. Johnson said, "I hate the United States," when asked if he'd like to live in the Soviet Union? He replied, "I hate Russia, I hate the world, I'd like to start my own country on my own world." This low life, Johnson is about as deep as a puddle.

When you say the Supreme Court Justices are beyond the reach of political pressure, I feel you need to enroll in a Chief Executive class or something similar.

Miss Barry, I did not focus on a symbol as compared to the reality of death on a battlefield. Soldiers don't fight for the flag per say, they fight for the freedom that our flag stands for. I thought that was obvious! How naive of you to think that we students don't know the difference between freedom and the flag.

As a former Presidential Escort in the Army I have been a part of over 600 military funerals. Not once did I ever participate in a funeral in which the family thought that the flag was "a shallow honor" or that it was just "a piece of cloth." When you get married someday, Miss Barry, are you going to cast your wedding ring aside? After all, it's just a piece of metal. — Bill Davis, sophomore, political science.

View of cadets expected by civilian

In response to Ms. Wydeck's letter I would like to clear up some points.

Your justification for having sleepy cadets on Monday morning is reasonable for a civilian. However, when I served in the armed forces, sleeping on duty was punishable by Article 15 or a Court Martial, regardless of the reasons.

The cadet I referred to was sleeping on a TUESDAY morning class, giving him time to recover from his strenuous weekend.

I commend ROTC for their fine showing at the Ranger Challenge.

In the service of our country officers are directly responsible for peoples lives. This responsibility occurs on less sleep and more pressure than you describe. I hope that no one is sleeping at that post. — Robert F. Borst, senior, marketing

Opinions from elsewhere

Competition needed to rival Post Office's delivery service

In a ballyhooed attempt to modernize, the United States Postal Service has lately spent more than half a billion dollars on high-tech mail processors and other equipment. Here are some results:

- costs are rising at a rate 50 percent faster than inflation;
- worker productivity is down;
- complaints about late mail delivery are up 35 percent;
- the number of mail-processing workers has increased by 5,131;
- plans proceed for a price hike (probably to 30 cents for a first-class stamp) in 1991.

And so on. These facts tell us nothing about new technology. They speak volumes about the efficiency and profitability of government-run businesses.

vice has brought to mind that old joke about the weather. Everybody complains, but nobody does anything about it. But we can do something about it. We should open postal delivery of first-class mail to private competition.

And what would happen then? At one time, the Postal Service delivered almost all packages in the United States. With the introduction of competition — from United Parcel Service, Federal Express and others — the post office's share is down to 3 percent. But that's not all. Efficiency and consumer choice have vastly increased.

That may trouble the Postal Service, but it delights people who send packages.

Millions of Czechoslovaks strike against one-party rule

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Millions of Czechoslovaks joined a two-hour general strike Monday to oppose one-party rule amid the communist leadership's second upheaval in three days with the ouster of three Politburo members.

Precisely at noon, a siren sounded on Czechoslovak National Radio for one minute, car horns blasted and ambulance sirens wailed in the capital to mark the beginning of the walkout.

In the eastern republic of Slovakia, a minute of silence was observed instead of the noise to mark the beginning of a work stoppage by thousands of enterprises, big and small.

CTK, the state-run, Communist Party-controlled news agency, suspended its news service for 15 minutes in a symbolic strike.

"We support the demands of the students," the agency said in a statement on its news wire advising editors of the strike. "We demand guarantees of the opening of dialogue which would result in holding free elections. We demand free press and information as well as the creation of a new press law."

It was the most dramatic manifestation yet of the peaceful revolution that had been interrupted 21 years ago when Warsaw Pact tanks rumbled into Czechoslovakia to snuff out the reform-minded Prague Spring.

Hundreds of thousands of citizens, many carrying the white, red and blue Czechoslovak tricolor, converged on Wenceslas Square following rallies in other parts of the capital, including a huge one in its biggest workers' district.

The emotional high point of the evening rally, which attracted more than 200,000 people, was a speech by prominent economist Valtr Komarek, who is being touted as the next prime minister.

"We cannot step back even a meter from the new reality in Czechoslovakia," he said. "The last government created only a democratic facade. Now we must create a real democracy."

He called for putting back to work the nation's best lawyers, doctors, scientists and workers — the very people who lost their jobs or were expelled from the Communist Party for advocating reforms in 1968.

"There is a lot to do. There is no way back. There is no reason to calm it down. We must continue the onslaught," he said, to chants of "Komarek, Komarek."

Most shops were closed for at least part of the two-hour period.

Air traffic controllers struck at the Prague airport and locomotive engineers stopped their trains for one minute in sympathy.

Also hinting of further reforms to come, the Communist Party newspaper Neues Deutschland reported party members would consider proposals next month setting a mandatory retirement age for party leaders and limiting the number of terms for elected officials.

The proposals reflected the continuing backlash against longtime leader Erich Honecker and his top advisers, mostly older party members who stifled calls for reform until driven out of office last month by massive pro-democracy demonstrations.

Neues Deutschland, quoting Politburo member Wolfgang Herger, said the calls for a mandatory retirement age and limited terms are among 1,500 proposals put forward for discussion at an extraordinary party congress scheduled for Dec. 15-17.

Leonid Abalkin told lawmakers. "It will help create rational relations between the republics and the union."

Abalkin, in charge of Gorbachev's economic reforms, said: "This law means that the republics have full responsibility for their social and economic development."

The measure leaves all military forces based in the Baltic region and the main oil and gas pipelines under central control.

In a separate vote, lawmakers also tentatively approved a draft measure encoding Gorbachev's glasnost campaign of increased openness in provisions guaranteeing freedom of the press and providing legal safeguards for journalists.

The new office also will identify potential agents and distributors for Illinois products in Mexico.

"Mexico has a very good market potential for expanding the export of Illinois products," Morford said.

Thompson said in a report from Springfield that Mexico is the sixth largest buyer of Illinois-made products and services in the world, annually purchasing about $250 million in goods and services from Illinois businesses.

"The time is right for Illinois to seize on this opportunity to assist its companies and its communities in capturing a share of this growing market," he said. "This new office will represent our commitment to furthering trade between Illinois and Mexico."

Morford said Mexico has shown an interest in buying Illinois products such as construction and mining equipment, electronic equipment tools and manufactured wares.

The creation of the Illinois office comes after the Mexican government earlier this year announced

Police Blotter

A burglary occurred at 710 Searing St. between 2 p.m. and 11:30 p.m. Saturday, Carbondale Police said.

Janet Lilly, 44, 710 Searing St., told police that $4,000 worth of jewelry and stereo equipment were stolen from her residence by unknown persons after entry was gained by breaking a door window, police said.

The press-freedom measure will be published in national newspapers.

In addition to yoking the stalled national economy to the relatively prosperous Baltic republics, Gorbachev and other Soviet officials hope that giving them more freedom will appease growing nationalist sentiment in the region.

such as voter registration for students.

Kenneth Boyte, LEAD president, said these types of "political" ideas were not being accepted by the Office of Student Development.

Wilson Barlow, also the director of the Center of Student Involvement, said this is a necessary move for both the center and for LEAD.

In a letter to Boyte, Wilson Barlow said, "This new direction for LEAD, while innovative, creative and far gressive, is not consistent with the direction of the Leadership Development Program designed by Student Development and administered by the Center of Student Involvement."

If LEAD is separated from the Office of Student Development, it will mean some changes for LEAD.

According to Wilson Barlow's letter, LEAD's faculty adviser Deborah Walton will leave the position next semester. LEAD must have a faculty adviser to remain a registered student organization.

Walton also is the fiscal officer of the fiscal year 1990 funds for LEAD. LEAD will need to find a new fiscal officer immediately. All of the funds allocated to LEAD will be available to it whether they stay in the Office of Student Development or not, Wilson Barlow said.

The LEAD organization under the Office of Student Development published a monthly newsletter called the Southern Portrait. LEAD will have to change the name if they wish to continue publishing a newsletter.

A computer that was purchased for LEAD will be provided after a safe place on campus has been arranged for it. The computer is currently in the Office of Student Development.

LEAD will not have use of the office space at 900 S. Forest (the old Obelisk building). LEAD shared that building with the Mobilization of Volunteer Effort, which is also under the direction of the Office of Student Development. The building is called the Leadership Center.

LEAD no longer will be provided with graduate assistant Paul Adaliku or secretarial service, Tim Hildebrand, Undergraduate Student Government president, said.

Psychological conditioning releases positive memories

By Bradley J. Provines
Wellness Center

We all have infinite resources within ourselves that, when accessed, help us to achieve our desired goals.

The following exercise is a simple and powerful way for you to be in touch with your own confident resources.

Based upon the psychological process known as classical conditioning, this anchoring technique works by training the mind to release positive memories of past accomplishments and confident experiences. It does so by using the cue signal of pressing together your thumb and forefinger.

Since we are often so accustomed to focusing upon negative thoughts (which can lead to negative feelings), retaining ourselves to use positive thought processes can be a challenging and rewarding experience which enhances self-esteem and feelings of well-being.

Remember a specific time in your life when you felt confident and proud of something you accomplished. Picture clearly in your mind the setting of that confident experience. Remember the people who were there and what you looked like. When you have a vivid picture that represents this event, place your thumb and forefinger together (of your dominant hand) and squeeze firmly for ten seconds while concentrating on this positive memory.

As you continue to hold this picture in your mind, remember the words you were saying aloud and thinking to yourself in this confident state. Pay attention to the positive comments other people were saying to you. Be aware of any additional sounds that were present in this experience. When you have fully remembered these sounds, squeeze your thumb and forefinger together for ten more seconds.

Slowly become aware now of the positive emotions you experienced during this confident time in your life. Take time to fully identify the feelings you had and then squeeze your thumb and forefinger together for an additional ten seconds.

When is the next time you will want to feel confident? perhaps it is an upcoming job interview or a class presentation. Imagine this future time in your mind while squeezing your thumb and forefinger together, assessing your previous confident resources. This entire exercise may be repeated when you become aware of additional positive experiences.

Report criticizes public screening for cholesterol

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Public cholesterol screening has become a booming billion-dollar-a-year business, but much of the testing is unsafe, inaccurate and unregulated, a Health and Human Services Department report said Monday.

"Compounding serious quality control problems are a growing number of fast-buck artists who have a keen sense of how to exploit the enormous public interest in cholesterol control for easy, huge profits," said Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., who requested the report by the department's inspector general.

"This is a very, very lucrative small business" that requires little more in start-up costs than the few thousand dollars it takes to buy a digital testing machine," Wyden said. "The purchaser need not demonstrate any medical training or health expertise."

The study, released at a hearing of Wyden's subcommittee on regulation, business opportunities and energy, said most states do not regulate public cholesterol screening and called for federal regulation of the tests.

Carbondale Chamber sides with city against Marion TIF

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

With Carbondale and Marion on the brink of a mall war, organizations are choosing sides, and the Chamber of Commerce has sided with Carbondale.

The chamber passed a unanimous resolution in November supporting Carbondale's lawsuit against the city of Marion to stop it from using tax increment financing subsidies to build the Illinois Center Mall.

The resolution stated the state legislature "intended for the TIF law to be a tool to help communities encourage development and redevelopment in blighted areas."

The Route 13 corridor, where the mall is to be built, between Marion and Carbondale has experienced considerable growth without incentives, the resolution stated, and does not meet the blighted requirement.

In blighted areas, the economy is deteriorating and cannot be brought back without state incentives. The resolution stated it is the opinion of the chamber that mall property is not blighted.

"The author of the TIF legislation, who has studied the Marion proposal, has concluded that the use of TIF in this area is improper," the resolution stated.

Kai Nebel, a Chicago attorney who drafted the TIF legislation in 1977, called the Marion TIF district an "illegitimate progeny of statute."

"The purpose of economic development is not to shift development from one place to another," Nebel said.

Nebel also agreed with the chamber's opinion that the area is not blighted.

"The chamber also believes that the use of any governmental incentives to lure one community's businesses to another is improper and should be strongly discouraged," the resolution stated. "The growth of one community at the expense of a neighboring community will not result in the overall benefit of the region."

Sears department store officials already have announced their intentions to move the store from the University Mall in Carbondale to the new mall upon its completion.

City Manager Steve Hoffner said it was possible that other businesses may leave Carbondale in favor of the new mall.

The chamber's resolution also commended Carbondale's numerous economic development initiatives that have begun over the past several months.

Developments include funding for the Carbondale Industrial Corporation, the enterprise zone application, the downtown development study and the creation of the Civic Center Authority.

Wabash County State's Attorney charges student in assault case

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

Wabash County State's Attorney Steve Sawyer has charged a University graduate student in education with 10 counts of aggravated criminal sexual assault against a Wabash County boy.

Gary L. Auerswald, 45, of 151 Evergreen Terrace, was arrested by University Police in Jackson County Nov. 17 as the result of an investigation conducted by the University Police, Illinois Department of Children and Family Services, Illinois Department of Criminal Investigation, Wabash County State's Attorney's Office and the Wabash County Sheriff's Office, Sawyer said.

The charges contend that during August, September and October 1986, Auerswald sexually assaulted the boy, who was 10 years old at the time.

Sawyer said the assaults occurred in rural Wabash County.

Auerswald posted $10,000 bond after he appeared in Wabash County Court Nov. 21.

Evidence supporting the charges was first uncovered by law enforcement authorities within the last few months during a separate investigation, Sgt. Larry Eaton of the University Police said.

Eaton said a search warrant was issued from the Wabash County Sheriff's Office prior to Auerswald's arrest, but he declined to comment on the nature of the separate investigation or the search warrant.

Auerswald's preliminary hearing is scheduled for Dec. 4 in Wabash County, a courthouse spokesperson said.

Mob boss flees courtroom after listening to wife testify

CHICAGO (UPI) — Reputed south-suburban mob boss Albert "Ceasar" Tocco stormed from his seat in U.S. District Court Monday during a hearing to determine whether his wife will be allowed to testify against him.

The 60-year-old Tocco, on trial before U.S. District Judge James F. Holderman on charges of extortion and racketeering, interrupted his wife's testimony once, then, moments later, fled the courtroom shouting.

"She's a liar. She's always going to be a liar," Tocco said as he fled to a holding room with two federal marshals behind him.

Tocco's first courtroom outburst came when Betty Tocco was asked by one of her husband's lawyers why she had waived her privilege against testifying against her husband.

"For my money, right Betty?" Tocco shouted. "That's what she wants judge, right? My money."

Holderman halted the proceeding and told Tocco to refrain from making any additional outbursts.

Tocco and his attorney, Patrick Tuite, conferred briefly, then Tocco seemed to regain his composure.

Gandhi likely to lose majority in violent elections

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi appeared certain Monday to lose his majority in violence-marred elections but still win the largest bloc of seats in India's parliament. His Congress (I) Party and its rivals began vying for coalition partners.

With the governing party facing its greatest political disaster since it lost the general election in 1977, speculation grew of a challenge to Gandhi's leadership of the party that has kept his family in power for all but about four of India's 42 years of freedom.

Gandhi, 45, met with his Cabinet and recommended to President Ramaswamy Venkataraman that he dissolve the lower house of Parliament, or Lok Sabha, a move required before new members can take their seats.

The recommendation was accepted, the Press Trust of India said.

But officials denied that Gandhi had submitted his resignation, a step that generally follows the dissolution of the house.

"He has not resigned as of today," G. Parthasarthy, Gandhi's chief spokesman, told United Press International.

Some of the former airline pilot's staunchest loyalists were defeated in the elections, including Home Minister Buta Singh, 10 other Cabinet ministers and lower house speaker Balram Jakhar.

Several senior Congress (I) Party members declined to discuss Gandhi's role in its future leadership, the shape of which they said would be decided in meetings once returns are complete from elections held Wednesday, Friday and Sunday in 24 of 25 states and seven territories. Elections in Assam were delayed until January.

Party spokesman Anand Sharma said Gandhi will not be ousted as party chief and denied a revolt was possible.

"Let there be no confusion on this score," he declared. "The leader of the Congress party is Rajiv Gandhi, now and in the future."

He said Gandhi met throughout the day with individual ministers and other senior party officials to assess the election results.

Sharma said the party is "not in a tearing hurry" to seek coalition partners, saying, "The Congress would not like to go in for unprincipled alliances."

About 300 million registered voters — the world's largest electorate — cast ballots for 524 out of 545 seats and the government would be formed by the party with a majority of the contested seats.

The elections were marred by fraud in more than 1,100 booths and violence that claimed almost 150 lives in the bloodiest national elections since independence from Britain in 1947.

The Congress (I) Party had 143 of the 337 seats declared, state-run television said. But even with the 14 seats won by two allies, the party is far short of a mandate to govern the world's largest democracy for another five years.

The main opposition force, the five-party National Front coalition, won 75 seats, 73 of them going to the centrist Janata Dal, television said. The Hindu fundamentalist Bharatiya Janata Party extended from 2 to 65 its seats in Parliament.

India's two communist parties garnered a total of 20 seats and independents and minor parties captured the rest.

Opposition claims victory in Hungary

BUDAPEST, Hungary (UPI) — A coalition of opposition parties claimed victory Monday in Hungary's first free elections in 42 years despite incomplete results showing a narrow win for a Communist-backed plan for presidential elections.

"We are not feeling very fresh after a long night but we are proud of the political victory," said Jino Preizinger of the Smallholders Party. "The nation has proven that it is not tired of the political struggle of the past month and it wants to steer its own fate."

Results based on 91.3 percent of votes cast, showed 50.2 percent of voters in favor of the Communist-backed plan to elect a president before parliamentary elections next spring, election officials said.

The other 49.8 percent voted "yes" on the referendum question, indicating they favored holding the presidential election after parliamentary elections.

The remaining three referendum questions, all of which are embarrassing to the Socialist Party, as Hungary's communist party is formally known, received overwhelming support from the electorate.

Central Election Committee Secretary Pal Kara cautioned that votes were still being counted

Monday and that the race was extremely close on the presidential election question and could end up reversed.

Final results of the voting on all four referendum questions would not be announced until Tuesday morning.

The opposition coalition, made up of the Smallholders Party, the Free Democrats, FIDESZ, and the Social Democratic Party, said Hungarians had voted "yes" by an overwhelming 95 percent majority on the three other referendum questions:

—Should the Socialist Party be prohibited from operating at the workplace, —Should the party be obliged to give the public a full accounting of its assets and wealth;

—Should the workers' militia, a voluntary force loyal to the former regime, be dismantled.

Kara said 58.2 percent of Hungary's 7.5 million eligible voters had cast ballots Sunday.

FIDESZ spokesman Tamas Kirsch said the high voter turnout marked a defeat for the 2-year-old Democratic Forum, the nation's largest opposition organization.

Forum leaders had called for a boycott of the referendum because parliament had already decided the key issues against the communists.

Candidate declares himself winner

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — Opposition candidate Rafael Leonardo Callejas declared himself the winner Monday of Honduras's presidential elections and unofficial results indicated he would maintain his lead over the ruling party contender.

The winner of Sunday's elections will succeed liberal President Jose Azcona Hoyo on Jan. 27 for a four-year term. Azcona was the first civilian president in 26 years to take over from another civilian president.

By midday, unofficial results showed Callejas, of the conservative National Party, leading Liberal Party candidate Carlos Flores Facusse by more than 73,000 votes. He was expected to maintain his lead.

Callejas and Flores, both educated in the southern United States, offer similar prescriptions for the country's mounting economic problems and say they would maintain friendly relations with the United States, which has about 1,200 troops in Honduras.

The National Electoral Tribunal delayed releasing even partial official results because of equipment malfunctions.

Tribunal member Mario Arnoldo Barrientos said the court's facsimile and telex machines failed at 2 a.m. Monday for about seven hours and, therefore, the Tribunal would not be able to report substantial official results until Monday evening.

Exxon Valdez skipper seeks dismissal of oil spill charges

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Prosecutors and defense lawyers argued Monday over when and how the Exxon Valdez spill would have been discovered if the skipper had not personally reported that he was hard aground leaking oil.

What might appear to be nitpicking over discovery of the largest spill in U.S. history, nearly 11 million gallons, is actually a complex legal fight over whether Capt. Joseph Hazelwood is immune from prosecution for reporting the spill as required under state and federal regulations.

Hazelwood, 43, of Huntington, N.Y., accompanied by four lawyers, went to court seeking to have six criminal charges dismissed in a lengthy pretrial hearing that opened Monday in state Superior Court.

Judge Karl Johnstone said he was leaning toward letting the charges stand because he did not feel that immunity applied, but he invited lawyers to convince him otherwise.

Much of the legal wrangling over the Hazelwood case that has taken place in state and federal court and in a growing stack of briefs hinges on an issue that could be critical in other oil spill cases:

If the skipper reports the spill as required by law, thus giving up his constitutional right against self-incrimination, can the government file criminal charges arising out of the incident?

State and federal oil spill reporting requirements grant immunity for reporting spills in order to compel spillers to report them, argued defense lawyer Richard Friedman, who said the prosecution must prove its evidence was gathered independently of Hazelwood's 12:28 a.m. report March 24 that the Exxon Valdez was hard aground and leaking oil.

One week after the spill Hazelwood was charged with reckless endangerment, negligent discharge of oil and driving the tanker while intoxicated, all misdemeanors. Later a grand jury indicted him on three felony counts of criminal mischief. He is free on $50,000 bail.

"The prosecution has candidly admitted that what they're trying to avoid is Mr. Hazelwood's congressionally granted immunity," Friedman said. He said the skipper's call to the Coast Guard triggered the probe and began a chain of events that led to gathering evidence for criminal charges.

"There were no independent sources. There was nothing else that triggered the investigation," Hazelwood's lawyer said.

Two truckers testify in trial

Testimony revealed drunk driver slammed into a church bus

CARROLLTON, Ky. (UPI) — The prosecution summoned five out-of-state witnesses Monday to testify against a man accused of slamming his pickup into a church bus, killing 27 people in the worst drunken driving accident in U.S. history.

Special prosecutor Paul Richwalsky, an assistant state attorney general, has had motorists not affected by the impact but who witnessed the accident on May 14, 1988, testify since he began presenting evidence against Larry Mahoney Nov. 8.

Richwalsky also said he will let survivors testify for the first time on Wednesday about the collision on Interstate 71 near Carrollton.

Mahoney, a 36-year-old chemical worker from Worthville, is charged with 27 counts of murder, one for each of those killed on the bus, many of them children.

He also is charged with 42 counts of wanton endangerment, 12 counts of assault and one count of driving under the influence. His blood-alcohol level after the accident was more than twice the state's legal limit, police said.

The trial is expected to last at least one month before Carroll Circuit Judge Charles Satterwhite, who called a Thanksgiving holiday recess last Wednesday for the convenience of the visiting witnesses.

"I hope I'm not with you on the eve of the next holiday," defense attorney William Summers said.

Mahoney, showing emotion for the first time during the trial, covered his eyes and cried last Tuesday when a Pleasureville couple graphically described the scene just moments after the crash.

"It was certainly bound to happen and it happened," Summers said of his client's reaction.

Richwalsky has said that he plans to show the murder charges are valid because Mahoney caused the deaths by driving while intoxicated.

"Plain and simple, this is a murder case," Richwalsky had said in his opening statements.

Mahoney's three attorneys said they were going to base their defense on the fact that the deaths were not caused by the collision, but by the fire on the 1977 bus.

Three acquitted in government coup attempt

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (UPI) — A jury in federal court Monday acquitted a woman and two men of trying to overthrow the federal government through a spree of bank robberies and bombings over eight years.

After 19 days of deliberations in what is believed to be the longest trial in Massachusetts' history, jurors found Raymond "Luc" Levasseur, 43, his wife, Patricia Helen Gros Levasseur, 40, and Richard Williams, 42, innocent of seditious conspiracy.

The charge dates back to the Civil War era, when it was used to try Confederates accused of spying on Union activities.

The jury said it was deadlocked on other charges facing the defendants. U.S. District Judge William Young ordered them to continue deliberations.

Young's refusal to accept a partial verdict averted a mistrial in the proceedings, which began in January and have already cost taxpayers more than $10 million.

The jury acquitted Patricia Levasseur of racketeering but said it had been unable to reach agreement on racketeering charges facing Raymond Levasseur and Williams. It also had not agreed on charges of racketeering conspiracy facing all three.

Federal prosecutors contend the group staged bank holdups in Massachusetts, Maine, Vermont, New York, Connecticut and Virginia, obtaining nearly $300,000 dating back to 1976.

Secret shuttle mission considered success after safe landing Monday

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — The shuttle Discovery glided to a day-late sunset touchdown in the Mojave Desert Monday, closing out a secret but apparently successful flight to launch a Pentagon satellite. The shuttle landed at 2:30 p.m., one day late because of high winds, to close out a five-day military flight.

With forecasters finally calling for acceptable weather, commander Frederick Gregory, 48, and copilot John Blaha, 47, fired Discovery's twin braking rockets over the Indian Ocean to begin an hourlong descent to touchdown at Edwards in the final chapter of a 70-orbit five-day mission spanning some 2 million miles.

The primary goal of the seventh post-Challenger flight is believed to have been accomplished

Thanksgiving Day with the deployment of a satellite reportedly capable of eavesdropping on Soviet military and diplomatic communications from an orbit 22,300 miles above the equator.

Discovery originally was scheduled to land Sunday at 5:02 p.m. — well after dark — but blustery crosswinds in the wake of a fast-moving front were higher than allowed under NASA's tough post-Challenger weather guidelines and Discovery's crew was treated to a bonus day in space.

Joining Air Force Cols. Gregory and Blaha for the year's fifth shuttle flight were Navy Capt. Manley "Sonny" Carter, 42, physician Story Musgrave, 54, and physicist Kathryn Thornton, 37, the first female named to a military space mission.

Musgrave has two previous shuttle flights to his credit while Blaha and Gregory, the first black shuttle commander, have one apiece. Carter and Thornton are shuttle rookies. All five astronauts planned to fly back to their homes in Houston about four hours after touchdown.

At the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, meanwhile, technicians made final preparations to haul the shuttle Columbia from NASA's cavernous Vehicle Assembly Building to launch pad 39A for blastoff around Dec. 18 on a 10-day mission to launch a Navy communications satellite and to retrieve a science satellite dropped off in orbit in 1984.

It will be the sixth shuttle mission of 1989, a record surpassed only once in the eight-year history of the program.

Officer faces hostile defense

MIAMI (UPI) — A Hispanic policeman charged in the January deaths of two black motorcyclists was in no danger of being hit by them, a hostile defense witness said Monday in testimony that struck at a key portion of the policeman's defense.

Officer William Lozano, 31, is charged with two counts of manslaughter in the Jan. 16 deaths of motorcyclist Clement Lloyd, 23, and passenger Alan Blanchard, 24. The deaths prompted three days of unrest in Miami's Overtown neighborhood.

The two were being chased by another officer for wreckless driving after a parade celebrating Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday. Lozano, who was involved in another call when he saw the chase, claims the motorcycle was coming at him and he shot in self defense.

Lloyd slammed into Fred Johnson's oncoming Buick after Lozano shot him. In an earlier statement to police, Johnson said, "He was going to run (Lozano) down because the traffic was kind of heavy."

The incident triggered three days of racial violence in the city's predominantly black neighborhoods.

Cinema student shows film creations on diverse topics

By Carrie Pomeroy
Entertainment Editor

Nedra Coleman's master of fine arts exhibit is one of the few thesis presentations to which it's appropriate to bring popcorn.

The cinematography student will present three short documentary films at 3 p.m. Dec. 3 in the Student Center Auditorium. The films, "Slow Craze," "Sophisticated Baby" and "Welcome to the Kingdom of Other," showcase such diverse topics as racism, sexism and childhood. The presentation is free and open to the public.

Coleman said she was initially motivated to make films because of her dissatisfaction with images of African-Americans on the screen. She said the majority of cinematic images of blacks are "derogatory, not realistic, just caricatures."

"These archetypes have existed for so long, they're entrenched in film-making," she said.

She said she attempts to counteract negative, stereotypical images with positive images often taken from her own experience as a black woman. Coleman's film "Slow Craze" deals with racism in the job market, a topic she said had a great deal of personal significance for her.

"Welcome to the Kingdom of Other" depicts the problems and triumphs of the Black Ensemble Theater in Chicago.

Coleman's film-making interests also include "voyeuristic events" such as beauty pageants, she said. "This interest is reflected in the film 'Sophisticated Baby,' an account of a children's pageant in Marion. Coleman, who filmed a five-year-old contestant dressed in fish-net stockings and pumps performing a bump-and-grind dance routine, said the film was a forum for exploring the early stages of sexual objectification.

"When women are objectified, they become passive. They become objects to be manipulated by men like props in a scene," she said.

Coleman said the film also deals with the pressures and joys the children in the contest experienced.

Coleman said making documentary films is difficult for a variety of reasons. She said one of the biggest difficulties is the spontaneous nature of documentaries.

"If something exciting happens, you can't just say cut the camera on," she said. She said she usually shoots from 6,000 to 8,000 feet of film and uses about one-sixteenth of the frames for a finished product of 10 to 20 minutes.

Another problem is dealing with the documentary filmmaker's dilemma of personal bias versus cinematic objectivity, she said.

"When you get in the editing room, if you get close to the people involved, you may think 'well, maybe I shouldn't put this in because it might make them look bad,'" she said.

Graduate student to direct tale of shepherd boy and wisemen

By Carrie Pomeroy
Entertainment Editor

"Amahl and the Night Visitors," a musical re-telling of the classic story of the three wise men, will be performed at 8 p.m. Friday at Shryock Auditorium.

Tickets are $10 and $12, with a $4 discount for children under 12. Student rush tickets for $5 will be available at 7:30 p.m. the night of the performance.

The opera, composed by Gian Carlo Menotti in 1951, is directed and produced by David Aiken and performed by singers from David Aiken Productions. Aiken, a graduate of SIU-C who played the leading role of King Melchior in the opera's first performance, has an array of credits ranging from music professor at Indiana University to leading singer with the New York City Opera.

"Amahl and the Night Visitors," which is sung in English, tells the story of a crippled shepherd boy, Amahl, and his widowed mother, who meet the three wise men on their way to Bethlehem. Both the kings and the boy and his mother learn about love and the spirit of giving through their encounter.

The opera lasts about an hour and will be followed by "Christmas Around the World," a program of solo, choral and instrumental holiday songs performed by the 24-person company. Two or three sing-along songs will be included to get the audience in the holiday spirit.

Saluki Pep Band to start season on high note at basketball game

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

The Saluki Pep Band, sporting a unique brand of energy and music, will kickoff its 1989 season at the men's basketball home opener against Tennessee State on Thursday night.

Dan Phillips, assistant director of bands and director of the pep band, said he expects the band to pick up with the same quality and energy it had at the end of last year.

"I hope (the band) can become an expected and integral part of the atmosphere surrounding the game," Phillips said.

As co-director of the pep band at Iowa State University for eight years and at Notre Dame for two years, Phillips said his philosophy is that pep bands' primary goals are supporting the basketball team, making noise and keeping the crowd's enthusiasm high. He said entertaining the audience before and after the game are secondary to the performance during the game.

For the games this year, a three or four-piece rhythm section will be playing at the Arena from around 6:45 until the team comes out, Phillips said. In the past the rhythm section has played pop tunes, including the themes from "Hawaii Five-0" and "Night Court," and have done some improvisation.

When the team comes out to warm up, the 43 piece pep band will perform school tunes, musical cheers and other short selections until tip-off.

Last year, NCAA rules prohibited bands from playing during the game while the ball is in play. The band can no longer make noise with horns or drums as it has in the past, Phillips said, so the people in the band will work to maintain enthusiasm by clapping and cheering.

This year, the pep band has uniforms which have been partially provided by the president's office. The band will travel with the basketball team to the Missouri Valley Conference Tournament in early March.

Ditka mulls 'hitting the road' after loss to Skins

CHICAGO (UPI) — Coach Mike Ditka said Monday it may be time for the Chicago Bears organization to evaluate him and perhaps make a change, but said he is proud of his accomplishments.

Ditka commented on WGN radio in the wake of the Bears' 38-14 loss to the Washington Redskins on Sunday.

"It may be time the organization evaluates Mike Ditka and maybe it's time to hit the road," Ditka said. "If that happens, that's fine, really, if they say they need someone else in there, that we need a different philosophy, go ahead. My whole job was to try to build the club and I did a helluva job and built the football team exactly the way I want it."

Ditka said the team has not been playing Bears' football in certain

"If the whole thing is getting rid of Ditka, there's no problem with that — they can get rid of me tomorrow."

—Mike Ditka

areas and said that bothers him.

"I took too much for granted, I guess, so if the whole thing is getting rid of Ditka, there's no problem with that — they can get rid of me tomorrow," he said.

The coach also took aim at the fans and the news media.

"I know right now that even though the situation is not completely dismal, we have a lot of people in town, including some phony fans, including the media but the papers basically and maybe one TV station, that have seen down all year and they get what they deserve," Ditka said. "The (San) Times and (Chicago) Tribune are getting exactly what they deserve because that's what they advocate and preach, so they should be disappointed."

He said he did not know how management would respond to his comments, but said that is their worry.

"They can respond any way they want to, but maybe it; way doesn't work any more," Ditka said. "I don't think I'm burned out but I can't condone what I see, and if I can't I must blame myself at least a little bit for it. If we're not doing it well, we've got to back and revise some things."

The Bears opened the season 4-0 but have lost six of their last eight games, including two in a row.

Immediately following the loss, Ditka told reporters the Bears are a sad football team.

"I think right now there's nothing we can do this year about it," he said. "This is absolutely the worst exhibition of football I've ever seen. I refuse to stand back and give the credit to the other people (the Redskins) because we just stink. We are absolutely an atrocious football team and there's no question in my mind that we will be fortunate to win one more game."

The Pack is back; Infante not surprised

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) —

The Green Bay Packers are tied for first place in the NFC Central Division after defeating the Minnesota Vikings and Coach Lindy Infante said Monday he was not surprised the Packers are a playoff contender.

"It doesn't shock me that we're here, it really doesn't," Infante said.

He said he has known all along that if the Packers play the way they are capable of playing, anything is possible.

The Packers beat Minnesota 20-19 at Milwaukee Sunday to move into a first-play tie with the Vikings with a 7-5 mark. Chicago, which had a chance to make it a three-way tie, fell to 6-6 with a 38-14 loss to the Washington Redskins.

Infante, however, was reluctant to look ahead to the playoffs, saying the Packers must remain focused on who they are and how they have gotten there or "we certainly run the risk of failure and we can't let ourselves do that."

If the Packers had lost to the Vikings, they would have dropped two games behind with only four to play, he said.

"This is where you fight to be, this is where you want to be, this is what you play the game for," Infante said.

He said now the Packers have a chance but there is no guarantee. For that reason, Green Bay can not afford to look beyond the next game at Tampa Bay, especially since the Buccaneers have beaten Green Bay in the last three outings, he said.

Infante admitted he was worried starting quarterback Don Majkowski against the Vikings after Majkowski missed practice all week because of a nagging rib injury.

"I think it says a lot for how far he's come in a short period of time and that he could go out there and execute the offense as well as he did and not having thrown any of those passes all week," Infante said.

1989 FALL FINAL EXAM SCHEDULE

The examination schedule attempts to avoid examination conflicts by providing separate examination periods for Tuesday-Thursday lecture classes. Other information about final examinations is listed below:

1. The class final exam period is scheduled based on the meeting time and days configuration listed on the first line of the class entry in the up-to-date Schedule of Classes book (which should be the same as the first printed line for the section on the registered student's schedule print-out). For example, a class section is listed in the Schedule book on two lines in the manner:

08:00 T TH
09:00 10:50 W

The listed starting time for the first line of the entry is "8:00." The meeting days of that first line are "T TH", and therefore are in the category "Only T or TH or T TH". The Exam Date and Period is by the attached Fall '89 Final Examination Schedule to be Thursday, Dec. 14 at 10:10 a.m. - 12:10 p.m.

2. Classes should plan to hold their final examination in their regularly scheduled class rooms. The space scheduling section of the Office of Admissions and Records will forward to departments information relative to the location for examinations for those classes that cannot hold their examinations in their regularly scheduled rooms because of a space conflict. This will be done sufficiently in advance of the final examination days to provide adequate notice for all.

Classes that meet less than the entire semester should hold their exams during the last regular class session prior to final examinations.

3. Students who find they have more than three examinations on one day may petition, and students who have two examinations scheduled at one time should petition their academic dean for approval to take an examination during the make-up examination period on the last day. Provision for such a make-up examination period does not mean that students may decide to miss the scheduled examination time and expect to make it up during this make-up period. This period is to be used only for students whose petitions have been approved by their dean.

4. Students who must miss a final examination may not take an examination before the time scheduled for the class examination. Information relative to the proper grade to be given students who miss a final examination and are not involved in a situation covered in the preceding paragraph will be found in the mimeographed memorandum forwarded to members of the instructional staff at the time they receive the final grade listing for the recording of grades.

2. One credit hour courses ordinarily will have their examination during the last regularly scheduled class period prior to the formal final examination week.

3. Other classes (not those for 1 credit)

Sophomore Terri Shultchenrich (6) and senior Nina Brackins sky high to block a hit from Illinois State's senior Tracy Young as junior Suzanne Brungardt (14) looks on.

Football writers select 46th All-American team

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Orange Bowl-bound Colorado and Notre Dame each placed three players on the 46th All-America team announced Monday by the Football Writers Association of America.

The only other teams placing more than one player on the 25-man squad were Southern California and Duke, with two each.

Only 12 seniors are on the squad, which includes 11 juniors and two sophomores.

The team:

Offense
Wide receivers — Christian Brown, Auburn; Running backs — New Mexico

Mike Dumas

Quarterbacks — Andy Ward, Houston

Running backs — Anthony Thompson, Indiana; Johnny Bailey, Texas A&I; Emmitt Smith, Florida

Center — Michael Tanks, Florida State

Linemen — Mohammed Elowonibi, Brigham Young; Joe Garten, Colorado; Chris Fort, Duke; Eric Seal, Tennessee

Kicker — Jason Hanson, Washington State

Defense

Linemen — Moe Gardner, Illinois; Tim Ryan, Southern California; Chris Zorich, Notre Dame

End-outside linebacker — Alfred Williams, Colorado

Inside linebackers — Percy Snow, Michigan State; Keith McCants, Alabama; Andre Collins, Penn State

Backs — Mark Carrier, Southern California; Chris Oldham, Oregon; Todd Lyght, Notre Dame; Tripp Wellborne, Michigan

Quarterback — Tom Rouse, Colorado

The Salukis' 18-11 overall record improved vastly on last season's record of 12-14. For SIU-C, this represents the first winning season in the past three years.

Three Salukis were honored with individual awards.

Freshman middle blocker Dana Olden was named Gateway Newcomer of the Year. She ranks second, only behind senior Nina Brackins, with 282 kills this season. Olden placed third in team blocking with 17 solo blocks and 47 block assists. She attained a career-high 19 kills against both Illinois State and Missouri.

Hagemeyer saw Olden has the potential to make a strong team leader in the future.

"I'm going to make sure (Olden) takes a more active leadership role next season," Hagemeyer said. "She has an outgoing personality that could make her a good leader."

Sophomore setter Terri Shultchenrich nabbed Gateway Honorable Mention honors by finishing second in assists (1,172) and fourth in service aces (49).

Shultchenrich improved her ranking in the school record book by placing second in single season assists and fourth in career assists with 1,232.

Hagemeyer said Shultchenrich is a hard worker on and off the court.

"Terri has a lot of spunk and she works really hard," Hagemeyer said. "She just tried to get the ball to the right person, and by doing so, the team has had a pretty successful season (because of it)."

Senior middle blocker Nina Brackins has done it all in her four-year volleyball career for the Salukis. Not only has Brackins immortalized herself in 14 categories, she holds the No. 1 spot in single season kills (475) and single season spike attempts (1,098). She is No. 3 in career spike attempts (2,677) and No. 4 in career kills (1,096). Brackins becomes only the fourth Saluki to be named to the all-conference first team at the Gateway championships. The last Saluki volleyball player to be named with the honor was Pat Nicholson in 1986.

Hagemeyer said Brackins is a physically strong and gifted player. "One of the goals I kept to myself was to have Nina win first team all-conference," Hagemeyer said. "Nina is a great player. I believe she could have won that honor for the past two years."

Other season leaders include junior Amy Johnson, sophomore

Debbie Briscoe and sophomore Stephanie Newman. Johnson led the team in digs (282) and pounded out 212 kills at the net.

Briscoe was the Salukis' second leading blocker with 16 solo blocks and 59 block assists. She ranked third in hitting with 255 kills.

Newman contributed 223 digs, six solo blocks and 25 block assists.

Penn State's Thomas' knee still hot topic

Blair Thomas' candidacy for the Heisman Trophy has revolved around one question for 20 months:

"How's the knee?"

The Penn State running back missed the entire 1988 season rehabilitating from knee surgery. Since then, his knee has been on the mind of seemingly every Penn State fan.

"I've been answering that question for the last two years now," Thomas said.

Thomas tore the anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee Dec. 9, 1987, during a workout before the 1988 Citrus Bowl. He underwent arthroscopic surgery a month later.

The injury was similar to those of NBA players Bernard King, Walter Davis and Danny Manning and requires more than a year of rehabilitation.

Still, Thomas' exploits as a sophomore and junior placed him in the unenviable position before this season of being a Heisman Trophy favorite without having faced competition in 20 months.

"Before the season even started, people didn't know," Thomas said.

The layoff took its toll quickly, as Thomas performed poorly in a season-opening 1-6 loss to Virginia, nearly killing his campaign before it began.

Saluki to score in double figures. Kilbelkis scored a career-high 22 points.

The Dawgs out-rebounded Oregon State 38-25. Cheryl Weis, a 6-1 junior center, led SIU-C with 13 rebounds. Amy Horsman, a 6-1 sophomore forward, scored eight points, five rebounds and a blocked shot and provided the Salukis with a spark off the bench. Heimstead, despite playing with a bruised jaw, scored two points and led the team with four assists.

SIU-C did receive some bad news during their victory over Oregon State. Rakers suffered a severely sprained ankle and missed the final 9:38 of the game.

The Saluki star forward was not expected to play in Sunday's fifth-place game against Washington State, but Rakers came off the bench in the second half and scored 16 points in the Salukis 52-47 loss.

The injuries kept mounting up on the Salukis. Cyd Mitchell, a 6-1 junior forward from Harrisburg, still is suffering from a sprained ankle and didn't play in Honolulu.

Horsman, who gave the Salukis a boost off the bench against Oregon State, left the game Sunday with torn knee cartilage after scoring SIU-C's first basket of the game.

Injuries to key players hurt SIU-C in the first half. The Salukis trailed by eight points twice.

Rakers' return provided an inspiration for the Salukis in the second half. The lead changed hands eight times and the score was tied three times.

The score was tied 47-47 with 1:23 left to play but Crystal Stahl of Washington State hit two free throws and the Cougars never trailed again.

The Salukis open their home season at 5:30 Saturday against non-conference opponent Evansville.

3 Illinois prep teams to battle in Shootout

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Four Illinois teams, including three-time Class 2A champion Lincoln High of East St. Louis, are featured in what is widely regarded as the top high school basketball event of its kind in the nation.

Next week's Coca-Cola/KMOX Shootout — in addition to the Lincoln's Tigers — will feature Southwestern High of Piasa, Wesclin High of Trenton-New Baden, and Pekin High.

The Dec. 7 event at Kiel Auditorium consists of six games and will feature top teams from California, New York, Tennessee, Utah, Illinois and Missouri. Eight of the players in the event have already signed letters of intent to play at major colleges.

The Shootout is divided into two sessions. The highlight of the evening session, which will draw a sellout crowd of about 10,000, could be the 9:30 p.m. game pitting Mater Dei High of Santa Ana, Calif. against East St. Louis Lincoln.

Year in, year out, Mater Dei might be the best team in California, said Keith Pickett, tournament director. Mater Dei is 193-18 over the last seven seasons, 25-3 last season and is returning five of its top six players.

Lincoln is Illinois' top team of the '80s, having won four state titles in the decade and an unprecedented three straight — 1987, 1988, 1989. Lincoln, 29-4, returns one of Illinois' top players in 6-foot-6 Cuozzo Martin, who has yet to sign.

Pekin High will also have its hands full. The Dragons, only 12-14 last season, will face one of the nation's top 10 teams this season in the presence of St. Nicholas High of Tolentine of New York City.

Pekin, under first-year Coach Tom Shields — previously at Providence-St. Mel in Chicago — is led by 6-9 Jerry Vanderheydt. Vanderheydt has signed with Creighton University. Two other top players are 6-foot-6 Tim Schade and 6-foot Bucky Schermerhorn. Schade, an outstanding basketball player, is regarded by many as the top high school quarterback in the state.

Timberwolves' guard vaults from obscurity into limelight

By Jerry Zgoda
Minneapolis-St. Paul Star Tribune

Now you know why the Minnesota Timberwolves are paying guard Tony Campbell all that money.

It's not to play defense or rebound or to have great court vision, although those all are part of the job description. He was promised $2.9 million over the next four years because the Wolves hoped he could score big on an expansion team. And that he has done, perhaps beyond expectations.

A 6.4 points-per-game scorer in five previous NBA seasons, Campbell has taken the money and the expectations and has vaulted into the NBA's top 10 in scoring, averaging 24.5 points in the first 13 games.

"Maybe some people are surprised, but I'm not," said Campbell. "I always knew that with playing time it'd be no problem for me to score. As far as being among the (league) leaders, I've never really thought like that. I just thought I'd be able to contribute offensively to this team, never knowing I'd be where I'm at right now."

Campbell, 27, became the last major piece added to this season's puzzle when he was signed in mid-

September to a contract that will pay him about $700,000 this season. That is about a $430,000 raise from last season, when he averaged 12 minutes and 6.2 points a game for the Los Angeles Lakers.

How things have changed. He has played nearly 39 minutes a game with the Wolves, and instead of being the fourth or fifth man off the bench, Campbell has his name right there on the NBA statistics with Charles Barkley, Dale Ellis and Karl Malone.

All of which must allow Wolves president Bob Stein and player personnel director Billy McKinney to sleep a little better at night. They took a calculated gamble when they opened up the checkbook for Campbell. But at that point, the Wolves had all the hard-working, defensive-minded role players they could use and desperately needed a scorer.

The signing has become more important now that center Steve Johnson, who was the team's only proven big-time scorer, continues to wait at home for the Wolves to trade him. Campbell has led the team in scoring in seven games.

"I never really felt any pressure about coming here," Campbell said. "The only pressure I felt was if I was going to be able to earn my money. I always knew I'd work hard. I've worked hard every place I've been, even though I never got the chance to play that I've gotten here. If you work hard, then you should be rewarded. If you don't, you shouldn't be rewarded."

Campbell admits he is still not the all-around player he wants to be. He had been criticized at previous stops for his defense, and his on-court decision-making has been questioned at times.

"I know I've got a ways to go, but I'm getting better," Campbell said. "I think I've been playing pretty good defense, and part of that is because the team is playing such good defense. It's contagious. The bottom line is that this team needs scoring, but I don't want to concentrate solely on scoring."

Campbell has seen where his 24.5 points a game have gotten the Wolves. His scoring has kept them close, but the points have not prevented a dismal 2-11 record.

"Scoring 25 points a game doesn't mean that much because I want us to win," he said. "I've been getting a lot of points, but we haven't been able to convert the scoring into wins."

But then again, the Wolves didn't pay him all that money for victories. One man, or two, can't do it alone. He says he just wants to be sure he has earned his money. So has he done that so far?

"I have to leave that up to you," he said. "I want to stay humble."

Few educational experiences are this rewarding.

Chances are your kids are already using an Apple® computer in school. And this holiday season Apple will give you a few extra good reasons to bring that rewarding experience home. Reasons starting with cash allowances—$150 when you buy an Apple IIe® qualifying system, or $200 when you buy a Macintosh® Plus—to use toward the purchase of select Apple peripherals. Which means you can save on add-ons like printers or a modem.

The Apple IIe is just right for younger students—it's just like the computers used in most schools, and is compatible with the largest educational software library in the world. The easy to use Macintosh Plus has a wide range of powerful software, and is perfect to help your older student through high school—and beyond.

When you put it all together, now is the perfect time to let your family experience an Apple IIe or Macintosh Plus computer system. But Apple's Cash Back offer is only valid until December 31st,* so hurry in today for a rewarding experience.

Salukis win opener on defensive strength

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

Men's basketball head coach Rich Herrin said he will be looking for a better offensive output from his team in Thursday's regular season home opener against Tennessee State.

The Salukis, 1-0, used a 15-0 second half scoring run to break a 47-47 tie and went on to defeat the Chicago State Cougars 73-60 in the Salukis regular-season opening game Sunday.

Junior point guard Sterling Mahan led the Salukis with 21 points while contributing seven rebounds and four assists. Senior forward Jerry Jones contributed 16 points and 11 boards while junior forward Rick Shipley added 12 points and 11 rebounds.

Although the point totals for the three players was impressive, their shooting percentage was not. They combined to shoot only 14 of 45 from the field, or 31 percent.

Freddie McSwain and Kelvan Lawrence missed practice Friday and were not allowed to make the trip to Chicago because of team policy. Herrin said it was simply a case of, "If you don't practice you don't play."

Herrin said the team's play was centered around solid defense and physical play.

"I definitely believe we can play better offensively," Herrin said. "Our rebounding and defensive play kept us in the game and was responsible for the win. That is something we must have in order to offset poor shooting performances like we had."

After the Cougars tied the game at 47, Herrin changed to a trapping defense and a zone defense. The change in defense stifled the Cougars as they failed to score a point during the next six minutes as the score grew to 62-47 in the Salukis favor.

"It completely changed their tempo and they couldn't adjust," Herrin said. "When they tied the score at 47, we showed we were winners by taking control at that point and putting together a 15-point run."

For the game, the Saluki defense held the Cougars to 33 percent from the field and out-rebounded them 60-42. The Salukis sank 25 of 37 free-throw attempts while Chicago State connected on 7 of 14.

Saluki senior Jerry Jones powers to the basket against Athletes in Action's seven-foot center Gib Hinz Nov. 21 at the Arena as teammates Rick Shipley and Freddie McSwain (23) block out.

Chicago State, 1-1, was led by Gerald Collins, who had a game high 25 points.

The Salukis wrapped up their exhibition season against Athletes in Action during Thanksgiving break with a 102-65 victory Nov. 21.

Freddie McSwain scored a game-high 24 points and was one of five Salukis in double figures for the game. Herrin's exhibition record at SIU-C remains perfect at 7-0.

Herrin said practices this week will be the same as usual with the exception of small differences in preparing for a different team.

"It will basically be the same thing," Herrin said. "We'll keep preparing for each game. We'll work for Tennessee State and then for Northern Illinois as they come along."

"The game with Tennessee State should be a wild, up-tempo game — they're very explosive. Their No. 1 objective is putting up the shot quickly," Herrin said.

The 60 points allowed by the Salukis was the lowest total by an opposing team since last year's season opening game against Toledo. The Salukis won that game 63-51 in the San Juan Shootout.

overall record is 21-9.

Redbird's head coach Julie Morgan was named Coach of the Year at the tourney. This is the second year in a row Morgan has received the award.

Although the Salukis ended their season with a loss, Saluki volleyball coach Patti Hagemeyer said the team accomplished goals that had been set at the beginning of the season.

"We wanted to have at least a .500 record and we wanted to qualify for the conference tourney," Hagemeyer said. "The team was able to accomplish both goals."

Women hoopsters take sixth in Hawaii

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

The Saluki women's basketball team opened its season over Thanksgiving break by taking a sixth-place finish in the Wahine Classic in Honolulu.

The Salukis, seeded eighth going into the tournament, bring back a 1-2 record from the Aloha State. The Salukis lost Sunday to Washington State 52-47. The Cougars took fifth place in the tournament, which opened Friday.

On Friday the Salukis took on No. 1 seed Virginia, ranked 13th in the nation, losing 81-60. SIU-C rebounded Saturday with a 63-54 win over Oregon State.

The Salukis' opening loss to Virginia overshadowed the standout performances of 5-9 sophomore guard Karrie Redeker and 6-2 junior forward Amy Rakers.

Redeker tied a school record with six three-pointers and scored a career-high 19 points. Rakers had game highs of 20 points and 10 rebounds.

Angie Rougeau, a 5-10 freshman guard-forward, contributed seven points despite having the flu Thursday.

The Cavaliers took early control of the game. Virginia led the Salukis 42-23 at halftime. SIU-C shot a mere 23.8 percent from the field and were out-rebounded 26-15 in the first half.

SIU-C cut the Virginia lead to 13 points on three occasions in the second half, but that was as close as they would come.

The Salukis played without 5-9 sophomore point guard Colleen Heimstead for the final 23 minutes of the Virginia game. Heimstead suffered a bruised jaw after a hard hit by a Virginia defender on a layup attempt with 3:31 remaining in the first half. Heimstead returned to action in the Oregon State game.

It was another uphill battle for the Salukis in their second-round game against Oregon State, but this time they got over the hump. The Salukis trailed 33-28 at halftime, but outscored the Beavers 20-4 to start the second half and went on to a 63-54 victory.

The Salukis led by eight points on three occasions in the first half, but went without a field goal during the final 11:38 of the first half. The Beavers outscored SIU-C 23-10 during that stretch and forged a five-point halftime lead.

The Salukis second half surge was led by Rakers, who scored six points during the run to give her team a 39-35 lead. A 12-footer by 5-9 junior guard Alison Smith gave the Salukis the lead for good at 37-35 with 15:48 left.

Deanna Kibelkis, a 5-11 senior forward, was the only

Power forward signs to play for Coach Scott

By Sports Information

After signing 5-9 guard Karen Powell of Lancaster, Ky. during the NCAA early signing period, the SIU-C women's coaching staff wanted to use their second and final scholarship to sign a power forward. They received their wish.

The Salukis signed 5-11 forward Endia Joiner from Memphis, Tenn., on Nov. 15, the final day of the signing period.

Joiner, a senior at Memphis Hamilton High School, averaged 18 points and ten rebounds per game last season, while leading her team to a 17-10 record and third-place finish in district play.

Joiner's talents on the basketball court carry into the classroom. An outstanding student-athlete, Joiner ranks No. 1 in her class academically and plans to study engineering at SIU-C.

"Endia is a real steal for us," Saluki coach Cindy Scott said. "Arkansas and Mississippi wanted her bad. We feel fortunate to sign another player out of Memphis. She's a strong, aggressive athlete who loves contact and scores well in the paint."

Joiner played AAU basketball with Angie Rougeau, a prep standout at Memphis Whitehaven, who is currently one of three freshmen on Scott's squad. Eddie Clinton, Joiner's AAU coach since she was age 12, says the Salukis have landed a budding superstar.

"Endia doesn't know how good she can be because she's never been pushed. But I'd still put her among the top ten high school players in the country," Clinton said. "She's definitely one of the best in Memphis. If her work ethic is what it should be, she can be an All-American in college."

Joiner played on two national championship AAU teams for Clinton. In 1988, she averaged 19.8 points, 15 rebounds and four assists for the Memphis Lady Celtics, who won it all in Shreveport, La.

"By college standards, Endia is not that big, but she has athletic skills to; dominate offensively or defensively," Clinton said. "She plays facing the basket. We've always used her inside to take advantage of her rebounding. She can shoot it outside too, which makes her that much more difficult to defend."

With only two seniors (Deanna Kibelkis and Eileen Richardson) on this year's squad, the Salukis had only two scholarships available. Scott thinks Powell and Joiner will be contributing factors in the Saluki program during their careers at SIU-C.

Powell is the No. 4 all-time scorer with 1,044 points for Garrard County High School and she averaged 19.4 points last season. She racked up a school record 40 three-pointers as a sophomore.

"I couldn't be more pleased with our recruits and Coach Julie Beck (SIU-C's eight-year assistant and recruiting coordinator) did another great job for us," Scott said. "Endia has tremendous potential and will strengthen our play inside. Karen is the outside scoring threat that we've been lacking."

Three spikers nab awards

The Saluki volleyball team ended its season at 18-11 after being defeated in the first round of the Gateway Conference Championships by the Illinois State Redbirds 15-10, 15-13 and 15-3 Nov. 18 in Normal.

Second-seeded Northern Iowa won a scesaw five-game match against Southwest Missouri State (third seed) 15-13, 3-15, 11-15, 15-11 and 15-9.

Defending champion Illinois State went on to defeat the Northern Iowa Panthers 10-15, 15-3, 15-13 and 15-7 to clinch another Gateway Conference title. In doing so they gained a shot at the NCAA Div. I championship.

Last year the Redbirds also beat Southern in first round play and continued on to win over Southwest Missouri, taking the championship. The Redbirds were defeated by the University of Illinois in the semifinals of the NCAA Championships.

The Redbirds batted a thousand this season as they ended up with a perfect 9-0 Gateway record. Their
