SDS recognized by senate after delaying action fails

By Wayne Markham

A parliamentary hassle erupted at Wednesday night's Student Senate session during which four separate attempts to stop Senate recognition of the Students for a Democratic Society failed.

Before a convocation-credit audience that largely filled the main dining area of Trueblood Hall, the Senate also voted to withhold approval of two appointments made by Student Body President Sam Panayotovich.

Action on the SDS recognition bill was delayed for a full half hour during which at least one recess was called to iron out the difficulties which arose.

First objection to Senate acceptance of the organization came shortly after John Haney, east side non-dorm senator, read the Campus Organization Committee report on SDS.

Jack Seum, Thompson Point senator and a member of the Committee, called attention to the fact that a formal vote had not been taken in committee.

He was backed by another committee member, Larry W. House, commuter senator, who with Seum, was one of four senators sitting in on the committee session.

The move to squelch the report was stopped when Senate Chairman Pete Rozzell accepted the chairman's report under rules of the Senate constitution.

It had appeared earlier that approval of the report might not be forthcoming when Haney appended two amendments to the group's bylaws.

One of the amendments called for insertion of the wording "non-violent" in a passage.

However, Suzanne Faulkner, west-side non-dorm senator, spokesman for SDS, accepted the amendments suggested by Haney.

Attempts to stop Senate approval continued with a motion by Dale Boatright, west side dorm senator to refer the report back to committee.

Objection to Boatright's motion was made and action killed when the second for his motion was withdrawn.

A final move to delay Senate action on the recognition was also voted down and the move to formally recognize the group came 15-9.

Earlier the Senate proved intractable when Student Body President Panayotovich made the announcement of two appointments to an administrative review body known officially as the Chancellor's Appeal Board.

The Senate closed action on the contested appointments by passing a motion asking Panayotovich to withhold appointment of the students to the Board.

Food service employees rebel; won't buy decals

By John Durbin

Local officials for food service union employees at SIU are scheduled to meet today at 10 a.m. with Frank Hartman, SIU personnel director, and John M. McDermott, SIU Labor Institute director, to discuss employees refusal to purchase parking decals.

Mrs. Roslyn Wright, president of Illinois State Employees Local 878, said almost all of the approximately 120 members have refused to purchase parking decals and insist they will not pay any resulting parking tickets. She said the employees have been parking in lots which require decals that cost $25 or $45 for a school year.

Mrs. Wright said all of the union members are employed by the University Food Service and work at Thompson Point, University Park, Brush Towers and VTI.

Mrs. Wright said, "we figure paying for parking decals is taking money away from us without giving us a raise." She claims it is similar to giving the employees a cut in wages.

"It is not fair to make us pay to park so we can work for the university. We need to negotiate this matter," she said.

Mrs. Wright said she was told that the Board of Trustees would be informed about the situation and a decision would be reached today.

"I know the University plans to fight us," Mrs. Wright said. "But we plan to fight too."

Representative Ed Pool of Council 34 of the Food Service Employees Union will be present at the meeting with Hartman and McDermott, Mrs. Wright said. Mrs. Wright and three other local union officials are expected to attend the meeting.

Mrs. Wright said that "all of the employees are getting tickets every day but are holding them in protest."

Local 878 will hold a union meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Carpenter's Union Hall to determine what action they will take, Mrs. Wright said.

Hartman said he did not wish to comment and would prefer that any questions be directed to the Chancellor's office. McDermott was out of town but will be back for the meeting scheduled today.

Dissatisfaction was also expressed Wednesday concerning the sale of an additional 225 blue parking decals.

One unhappy blue decal owner was Richard Stonemark, graduate assistant in chemistry. He accused the Parking Section of going back on its word, saying that it was announced originally that no new stickers would be issued unless new lots were opened.

"I would not have bought a blue decal if I knew they would flood the market," he said. "I bought the sticker with the understanding of one space per decal. I wanted to be sure I had a space in any lot I chose, but now we'll be back to driving from lot to lot."

Housing major topic at first forum program

By Nathan Jones and Phil Anderson

Fielding questions on a variety of student problems, Chancellor Robert W. MacVicar engaged in give and take questioning from approximately 50 students and faculty Wednesday.

MacVicar bore the brunt of the questioning while Wilbur Moulton, dean of students, and Sam Panayotovich, student body president also answered questions in the first of a series of planned open forums between SIU administration and the rest of the University community.

Response to the first forum was favorable despite the fact that it was held in the second floor coffee area of the University Center. Disruptive background noise prevailed throughout as Center employees cleared tables, and as a photography class snapped pictures of the proceedings.

The single most popular subject of discussion at the meeting was the question of housing.

MacVicar said that although the students do not want their rights infringed upon, they depend upon the "maternal arm" of the University to protect them from the unfair practices of others.

Approving off-campus housing is an extremely difficult business, he said. Some students seek the University's protection from outside forces, while others, who are against "in loco parentis," tell the administration "to stop bugging them," he explained.

When handling off campus housing grievances, MacVicar said he had never overruled the Office of the Dean of Students.

If inadequate facilities do exist in off-campus housing, and attempts to get them improved fail, the University will arbitrate between the student and the landlord, he added.

Many of the students expressed grievances against motor vehicle regulations and motorcycle restrictions.

When asked why there are so few motorcycle parking facilities on campus, MacVicar replied "noise is the major factor which motorcycles definitely present."

Gus Bode

Gus says that the shredded yellow paper in his tossed salad makes him wonder if all the parking tickets given to Food Service employees are going to the Union.

Ticket sales to begin

Day for grads initiated

Graduate Studies Day will be held for the first time at SIU from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today in the University Center Ballrooms.

The program is to provide present and prospective graduate students with information on graduate studies here. Lon R. Shelby, associate dean of graduates studies and research, said invitations have been extended to colleges and universities in Illinois, Missouri, Tennessee, Kentucky and Indiana.

Departmental booths will provide visitors with information and advice about the graduate programs on campus. Admission forms and printed materials also will be distributed. If the program is successful, Shelby said, it possibly will become an annual event.

St. Louis trip includes movie

A St. Louis bus trip to the movie matinee of "2001" is to leave at 10:30 a.m. Saturday in front of the University Center, Steve Danko, of the Student Government Activities Council, said.

After the 2 p.m. showing, students will have the rest of the evening to themselves, he said. The bus will leave St. Louis at 10 p.m. and will arrive on campus at about 1 a.m.

The cost of the trip, including the movie, is $3.75. Students must sign for the trip by Friday in the Student Activities Office.

'Odd Couple' tickets on sale

Tickets for the Southern Player's Homecoming play, "The Odd Couple," are now on sale at the Information Desk in the University Center and the Theatre Box Office in the Communications Building.

The play will be presented at 8 p.m. Oct. 25 through 27 and Nov. 1 through 3 in the University Theatre in the Communications Building.

The Neil Simon comedy is the Player's first production of the season. Season coupon books may be obtained at the Information Desk or Box Office.

Dormitory murder rumor quashed

There is no truth to the rumor circulating around campus that Jeanne Dixon, well-known prophetess, recently predicted between 18 and 20 girls would be murdered in a dormitory in a college town beginning with the letter "C."

According to a spokesman from Miss Dixon's Washington, D.C., office, she did not make this prediction.

Pi Mu Epsilon picnic set Saturday

Pi Mu Epsilon, SIU mathematics honorary fraternity will hold its annual fall picnic Saturday at Lake Murphysboro State Park.

Members and any faculty or students interested in joining will meet in the Tech parking lot at 12:30 p.m.

Leadership meeting begins tomorrow

The newly initiated leadership Development Conference will convene tomorrow through Sunday at the Methodist camp at Little Grassy Lake.

The conference, sponsored by the Student Government Activities Council, will provide student identification with group process as related to university affairs, Don Kapral of the council said.

Kapral said 100 students have registered for the conference. Free room and board will be provided. The conference was open to the first 100 students who signed.

University officials at the session will include Chancellor Robert MacVicar and Dean of Students, Wilbur Moulton. Student Government Activities Council staff members also will attend, Kapral said.

Writer boosts school spirit

Realism prevails in Jones' plays

The two LeRoi Jones plays, "The Dutchman" and "The Baptism," were presented recently on campus. It is unfortunate that the entire student, faculty and administrative body could not crowd Shryock Auditorium to see them.

Playwright Jones is one of America's most talented, sincere and candid contemporary black writers. His two plays, presented here by the Concept East Theater of Detroit, consequently, were free of all pretense and expressive of true current American racial mood and thought.

Lacking the facade behind which society prefers to see or imagine the black man, "The Dutchman" symbolically presents its characters—the black man versus the white establishment—in un veiling and realistic discourse and action. The play, in essence, tells it like it is.

Jones' "The Dutchman" throws off the shams so evident in current television attempts to attack the racial problems. The premise of these attempts, by and large, apparently is that at least the psychological and traumatic experiences of the black masses in a socially, economically and politically oppressive society will be eased or appeased with the showing of a few black faces in superficial, highly white-assimilated settings and roles (as in the television series "Julia").

The language of the play is real and unrestrained; the conflict is familiar; the fateful conclusion is all too usual; the message needs greatly to be heeded—the sham won't last, black Americans want to be pleased and not appeased regardless of the price.

The other play, "The Baptism," brilliantly satirizes the general social hypocrisy and the illusions of Christianity instead of its truths, as perpetuated through the years. It suggests a certain negative effect these aspects have had toward enlightening society to the life changes which are necessary.

More plays of the Jones unrestrained-uncensored type should be brought to southern Illinois and this campus.

Specifically, the Student Government-Activities Council would do well to sponsor and publicize other activities of the type which will build a better black-white understanding than some of the "corny" unattended attempts in this direction. Of course, this is only if both sides are to be understood as they are and for what they are.

Inez Rencher

To the editor:

It takes more than a good coach and ready, willing, and able guys to make a good football team. It takes spirit and enthusiasm from everyone! Maybe we're not a Notre Dame or Michigan State, or even a University of Illinois. But these teams didn't start at the top either. It is the spirit, the fire, the force, and the power behind these major teams that make them what they are.

For three years I have witnessed a mediocre enthusiasm toward SIU's football team and this year it is complete apathy. I doubt if five people walked away from Saturday's game against Lamar Tech with even a hint of being hoarse—the cheerleaders included! Come on girls, spread out and let all the fans know we have cheerleaders instead of huddling in one small area like it is a chore to cheer.

"Go Southern Go" . . . and who can sing the rest? From the sound of things last Saturday, it can't be anyone except the five people who left the game hoarse! I can make a sure bet that more students know Illinois' or Notre Dame's fight song than know their own. What happened to the cards they used to hand out with all the words to "Go Southern Go"? It is no disgrace to sing from the card and it takes only 5 minutes to learn the words.

Most students' typical question is "What do we have to cheer for?" Did you ever stop to think that this works the other way too? What does our team have to fight for? They aren't putting out three or four hours a day of hard, rigorous, back-breaking practice for a physical fitness program or for their own enjoyment. They are doing it for us; the students of SIU. Last year's Tulsa game is proof of this. When the team knows the school is behind them with enthusiasm, their fire, force, and fight increases and they do win! We must provide the incentive!

"Oops . . . Where did it go?" The congratulations, I mean! Tuesday's five column article in the Egyptian, I presume, meant the football. Yes, that certainly was an exciting, spirited sports article! It lacked nothing but enthusiasm, congratulations, approval for a job well done, and support and confidence for the future. Granted, the Salukis made mistakes, but so did the Boiler-makers! Is this the only thing on which our sports writers can capitalize? I'm sure it wasn't a mistake for Dale Dickhut to "fall" on the ball jarred loose from Lamar's Fontno as the Egyptian article made it seem. "Quillen and Bradley both had a tremendous day," the paper so emphatically stated. It wasn't just a matter of luck as this statement implies. There are some of us who are confident that these players will continue to have "tremendous days."

I rather doubt if Coach Dick Towers is completely to blame for Saturday's "fumbleitis." At least he shouldn't have to take all the blame. The guilt lies mostly with every fan who walked away from last Saturday's game without having to clear his throat!

This year, more than ever, because of the new athletic fee, support and spirit should be loud and clear. So come on Southern Fans, back your investments. Help make that $10 a quarter worthwhile!

And to the team: Good Luck against Dayton this Saturday. We know you can do it.

Letter

Wallace exploits fear

To the editor:

I'm writing this letter because I felt that it was long overdue. For quite a while I've been sitting in numbed silence taking in this year's political campaign, but believe me, the time for silence has ended. I've been shocked for quite a while at the supposedly rational, intelligent human beings who are supporting a candidate as notorious as Mr. Wallace or perhaps it sounds more candid to say of Mr. Wallace's notoriety.

I'm saddened and afraid at the same time, saddened because it seems that this country has become so filled with hate and mistrust that it has turned to a candidate who expresses these very same doctrines. I'm afraid because of what is happening to this country, gaps between our people are widening (racially, socially and economically) with little chance of closing, if a candidate of Mr. Wallace's concern is elected, although I've heard some of his supporters say that his election won't split the country, but will strengthen it, all I can say is who are they trying to fool, the American public or themselves?

Here is a man who is using the people's biases and fears to increase his own political gains. The people who are supporting this man had better take a closer look at their candidate and better yet, they had better take a closer look at themselves and see if maybe, just maybe a little hate and fear hasn't rubbed off on them.

To me as a supposedly conscientious member of the community of man there is something wrong with an ideology and with a people who support an ideology that feels that the best way to end dissension and unrest is suppress it.

In closing I would like to add that I realize that there are those in the Wallace camp who would call me a pseudo-intellectual or a pinko, or both, but that this doesn't bother me because at least I'm not guilty of bigotry and hypocrisy, only of concern!

Like to get paid for getting an education; Russian student does

By Linda Reiniger

How would you like to be paid to go to college?

There's a catch or two, though. You have to be a talented student and willing to work hard. That's the way it is in Russia, where the government pays its best students to get college educations.

Student stipends are just one of the differences between Russian and American education, according to Yuri Victorovich Pavlov, 29, the first Russian student to attend SIU under an exchange program. He is a graduate student from Moscow Chemical-Technological Institute and involved in research at SIU with Gerard Smith, associate professor of chemistry.

Everyone in Russia wants to get a higher education, but Russian educators want to train only the best minds, Pavlov said. "Only the talented students, male and female, may join the university, and they are all paid stipends according to individual talents. Everyone studies a lot because you must get good grades to stay in the university," Pavlov said.

According to Pavlov, the Russian grad system is quite similar to ours. A score of 5 is "excellent," 4 is "very good," 3 is "OK," 2 is "not too good," and 1 "you don't know anything."

There is no bachelor's degree or master's degree in Russia. A student attends the university from five to six years, and when he graduates, he receives a diploma certifying him as an engineer, a scientist, a teacher or whatever he has studied to be.

If the university graduate wishes to continue his education, Pavlov said, he studies for three more years as a doctoral candidate in his field. Pavlov is a candidate of science (chemistry).

"We do not have universities for special studies," Pavlov said. He explained that specialties are covered in separate institutes. There are institutes of foreign languages, art, foreign relations, teaching, history, technology, journalism and various others.

"Moscow State University has a large, beautiful campus with dormitories and classrooms, but the other universities have campuses and dormitories separated from their classrooms," Pavlov explained. "Usually the dormitories are about a half-hour drive from the university."

According to Pavlov, the Russian dormitories are not as "nice" as the American dormitories he has seen. The dormitories in Russia are usually old buildings, and two or three persons share a room, Pavlov said.

A variety of entertainment is sponsored by the Russian universities. "We have shows, parties, dances and meetings where we discuss poems," Pavlov said. "What I like about our education is that writers, poets, and musicians love to come to the universities to show their new works."

According to Pavlov, the Russian universities don't have hippies or drug problems. "A few people wear long hair and carry guitars, but they aren't hippies," he said. "No drugs are permitted in my country so they are very seldom heard of. I have never known anyone who took drugs."

Pavlov smiled as he talked about the campus sports he left behind. "We have soccer, basketball, volleyball, ice hockey, tennis and rugby teams. I played on the ice hockey and rugby teams."

"But I wish we had your football," he said. "I saw it for the first time a few weeks ago, and I liked it."

"Teachers feel very friendly toward students," Pavlov said. "They tell jokes and talk with the students, and welcome students to see them about difficulties."

Pavlov explained that free expression of thought is encouraged in the Russian universities, but anti-Soviet discussion outside of the universities, especially in public places, is discouraged. One who continually criticizes the government in a public place is warned to discontinue the practice and then is penalized or arrested if necessary, Pavlov said.

However, there are times and places set

Russian SIU student

Yuri Victorovich Pavlov, (standing) the first Russian exchange student to attend SIU, confers with Gerard Smith, associate professor of chemistry about the research the two will be doing during Pavlov's stay.

aside in the university where government people and students gather to discuss and criticize Soviet governmental matters. "Often students get together at these meetings and write a letter of disagreement to the government," Pavlov said.

The first two or three years in an institute are devoted to a general education. The student is introduced to as many varied subjects as possible, a system similar to SIU's General Studies.

The regular school year is divided into two semesters. About six or seven courses are taken each semester, and classes are about two hours long. No tests are given until the end of the semester, at which time the "session" occurs. This "session" is similar to SIU's exam week. Some exams are written, others are just conversations with the professors.

Our Man Hoppe

Snow White and the bureaucratic law

By Arthur Hoppe

Now hush up, you tads, and Pappy'll spin you a fairy tale about Prince George Charmin, Lessee, here. How 'bout Snow White and the Seven Bearded Yippies?

Well, now, onct upon a time there was this here typical, God-fearing, patriotic, decent, beautiful, stand-up American gal name of Snow White.

And she had this wicked ol' stepmother who lived in a real palatial palace called Washington on the banks of the Poe-toe-mac River, which was all full of bearded pseudo-intellectuals hanging around doing nothing.

And this wicked ol' stepmother never gave Snow White a moment's peace always telling her, "Do this, do that," until she drove her plumb out of her poor little mind.

So pore little Snow White was wandering around in a daze one day and she was captured by these seven pointy-headed, bearded little Yippies, name of Loopy, Snoopy, Whoopie, Croupie, Goopy and Stokely Carmichael. Is that seven? And they took her to their Yippie pad, where they sat around all day singing the Commie Internationale and whistling while they loafed.

If'n that weren't bad enough, the wicked ol' stepmother gets out this here magic mirror and says, "Mirror, mirror, on the wall, who's the fairest now, you all?"

And the mirror, which has got to tell the truth, says, "Prince George Charmin, who's going to rescue that pore little Snow White."

Well, now, the wicked ol' stepmother weren't having none of that. So she got the wizards of the evil ol' Supreme Court to mix up a batch of un-Constitutional laws. And she got one of her briefcase-toting bureaucrats to take these laws out and stuff 'em down Snow White's throat.

Naturally, Snow White choked on those there un-Constitutional laws and she fell down like she was dead. And all the Yippies jumped up and down out of pure joy and heaved rocks at our fine policemen.

"Bury her in the schoolhouse," says the bureaucrat. "We aim to make that place unfit for human habitation."

So's they carry her to the schoolhouse. But who's standing in the door? Prince George Charmin, that's who. And he sticks out his little ol' chin and puffs up his little ol' chest like a little ol' banty rooster and he draws his secret magic weapon — Common Sense.

"She ain't dead," he says, flashing his rapier-like Common Sense. "Take more'n that to kill a typical common American. I know what'll save her."

So he picks her up and puts her in his carriage drawn by two white horses, name of Law and Order. And the Yippies, trying to stop him, lie down in front of the wheels—which is the last wheels they ever lie down in front of.

And he gallops off to Washington. And he kicks out the wicked ol' stepmother and he drags off the pseudo-intellectuals by their beards and he gives the evil Supreme Court a lashing they'll never forget and he tosses all the bureaucrats in the Poe-toe-mac River.

And with that Snow White coughs up the un-Constitutional laws and is right good as new. And everybody lives happily ever after.

Everybody, of course, 'cepting the Yippies, the Hippies, the pseudo-intellectuals, the bureaucrats, the Supreme Court, the Commies, the Pinko press and all the other uncommon folk who don't deserve to none, anyways.

Self-Instruction Center plans to add new electronic system

By Philip Heller

The Self-Instruction Center, located in Morris Library, will begin to take on a new look within the next few months, according to Harry Denzel, center director

The new look will be the introduction of an electronic retrieval system.

Twenty-four individual carrels, similar to the booths in the language lab, will be installed in the Self-Instruction Center, each equipped with a telephone. The student will then dial a designated number for the lecture he wishes to hear, Denzel explained.

Telephones will also be installed in the high rise dormitories, according to Denzel, where "students will be able to obtain information from the Center 24 hours a day."

Denzel said he is asking professors to make short tapes, approximately ten minutes each, "so telephone lines will not be overloaded." Incoming lines for students living off-campus are also planned.

Gurn to speak today

Paul Gurn, graduate student in the SIU Department of Zoology will present "Affinities of the Ethiopian Avifauna" at today's meeting of the department in Lawson 171 at 4 p.m.

The Self-Instruction Center will continue its present services, providing tapes, films, slides and programmed instruction materials to students free of charge.

Students need only to come to Room 112 of Morris Library, sign the register and be given the material from the receptionist. There are over 65 courses, available, ranging from GSA 101a to "Problems in Teaching English."

Since its opening in the fall of 1966, Denzel said, over 41,000 students have used the facilities of the Center.

The center director has a collection of quotations from students who have been helped in their studies by using the center.

One typical student comment was, "the tapes have really been a great help in reviewing and picking up missed lectures. It helps me organize my notes..." Another student said the center was the "greatest device since the discovery of the teacher."

The center is designed for both students and faculty. Students are able to extend their studies beyond their regular courses and can examine other fields of interest. Students have also found the center useful for reviewing material and preparing for exams. Faculty members have been able to evaluate and refine their courses with the help of the center.

No advance registration is necessary and the center is open during normal library hours.

Canadian Club being formed

An SIU student from Canada says he would like to see Canada's Prime Minister, Pierre Elliot Trudeau, elected president of the United States.

To help stimulate interest in his ideas and "to express his country's national identity," Ken Rubin is in the process of forming a Canadian Club. Membership is open to all Canadian students on campus.

The first meeting of the club will be at Rubin's home Friday. His address is 602 W. Main. Those Canadian students who are interested should contact Rubin at 457-2890, or Elaine Robson at 457-7873, Auburn Hall, room 49. The meeting will begin at 9 p.m.

Rubin holds a master's degree in history and political science, and is the past student body president of the University of Manitoba. He has also worked on the Canadian government's war on poverty and is presently doing graduate work in community development in North-east Carbondale's Negro ghetto area.

Talent Search Center seeks to help disadvantaged students

By Joseph Garuck

The Southern Illinois Talent Search Center is looking for "stars"—but not the kind that sing and dance.

The type of talent the center is looking for is exceptionally needy but capable youths to star as college students. To accomplish this, the center has an educational counseling service for all ages. It provides information on educational opportunities and financial assistance programs. It informs the public that there is no reason why capable youths cannot continue their education.

The goals and objectives, stated in the S.I.T.S.C. annual report, are to encourage full utilization of educational talent in southern Illinois and to find qualified, high need, out-of-school students. The talent center assists students in continuing or renewing their educational efforts and in counseling and planning programs for financial assistance. It helps academically qualified but economically disadvantaged youths to get the education which they might never have had.

Located on the Carbondale campus, but not affiliated with SIU, this federally supported talent center is only a little over a year old. Bill G. Pyle, director of S.I.T.S.C., and his staff have already referred 1,052 students to 82 different colleges. Its record has been so impressive that the budget has been increased from $50,000 in 1968 to $55,000 in 1969. All other federally supported talent search centers' budgets in the United States were cut or remained the same.

The center serves 50 of the southernmost counties in Illinois, which have a total population of 2,500,000 including 283 secondary schools. According to Pyle, the S.I.T.S.C. is constantly searching for talent in the southern Illinois area. Anyone who is qualified for college but cannot attend due to financial difficulties should contact the Southern Illinois Talent Search Center, 910 S. Wall Street, Carbondale.

Baptists to meet here in initial annual event

The first of proposed annual meetings of the American Baptist Churches of the Great Rivers Region will be held at SIU Sunday through Tuesday.

Approximately 500 American Baptist delegates will attend the convention, according to Rev. Willard G. Foote, pastor of the host church, the First Baptist Church in Carbondale.

The purpose of the meeting is to discuss "Our Mission to Modern Man," the theme, and church business, Rev. Foote said.

Delegates will hear a message to be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Culbert G. Rutenber, president of the American Baptist Convention and professor of philosophy of religion at Andover Newton Theological School, Newton Center, Mass., at the Sunday evening rally, 7:30 in Shryock Auditorium. Music will be provided by the SIU Men's Glee Club under the direction of Robert Kingsbury, assistant professor of music.

The Rev. Dr. William R. Meyers, pastor of North Shore Baptist Church in Chicago, will be the chapel speaker Monday morning and afternoon. Other activities on Monday's program include convention business and election.

Tuesday morning's program will feature the Rev. Norman Robert De Puy, editor of Mission, the magazine of the American Baptist Convention. He is known as a writer of provocative editorial material. His speech will be followed by business meetings, presentation of awards, office staff presentation, and dedication service.

The three-day meeting will conclude Tuesday afternoon with a dedication message to be given by the Rev. Dr. Harvey Everett of Valley Forge, Pa., a representative of the American Baptist Home Mission Society.

Management of water supply is goal of coming bond issue

The elimination of floods which cause Illinois $30 million damage each year is one of the objectives of the Natural Resources Development Bond Act, according to Mrs. Richard Fryman, water resources chairman of the Carbondale League of Women Voters.

The Act, a $1 billion bond issue, is a plan to manage Illinois water resources and eliminate water pollution, she added.

If passed Nov. 5, the act will give the Illinois General Assembly the working capital to control water pollution and floods, and expand water related recreation, Mrs. Fryman said.

New federal water quality standards will force many Illinois towns to improve certain conditions by 1970, she said. Six hundred towns do not even have sewage plants. This means the building of new sewage plants or water supplies which many of the towns could not afford, she added.

By 1980, Jackson County's bill is estimated to be $13,182,600 to control water pollution, and an additional $5,380,000 for the construction of new water supplies, Mrs. Fryman said.

Communities now receive 30-33 per cent federal aid for such projects, leaving 67-70 per cent for the towns to finance, she said.

If the bond issue passes, state aid would be 25 per cent and federal aid would increase to 50-55 per cent, leaving the towns to pay as little as 20 per cent of the costs.

MacVicar at lab

Chancellor Robert MacVicar will attend the fall meeting of the Central Midwestern Regional Educational Laboratory, Inc, board of directors today and Friday in St. Louis.

MacVicar is vice chairman of the organization, one of 20 U.S. educational laboratories set up in 1965 to improve education in public and private schools. The Central Midwestern unit includes southern Illinois, Kentucky, eastern Missouri and middle and western Tennessee.

Ag meeting set

The Department of Agriculture faculty will meet at 10 a.m. today in the Agriculture Building Seminar Room.

Textbook Service facilities expand with SIU

By Marty Miller

More than 150,000 books are handled by the SIU Textbook Service, and the number continues to increase along with the newly added courses at SIU and the increased enrollment.

Henry T. "Heinie" Stroman, manager of the textbook service, said "the University Textbook Service maintains both a textbook rental service for undergraduates and a textbook sales facility for graduate students."

Full-time undergraduate students pay an $8 book rental fee each quarter, which entitles them to the textbooks needed for each undergraduate course taken, including 400-level courses. Part-time undergraduate students are assessed a reduced fee.

If an undergraduate chooses to purchase all his textbooks, his rental fee of $8 is applied to the purchase. A 10 per cent discount is allowed on the purchase of new books (except where the publisher does not give a discount); used textbooks are sold at a 20 per cent discount; and there is a further reduction of price on well-worn text-

Bankers to meet here

Martin L. Bell of Washington University's Graduate School of Business, St. Louis, will lecture at SIU today to a group of Midwest banking executives attending a six-week seminar on bank marketing and the smaller banks.

The seminar, extending from Sept. 26 through Nov. 7, is conducted by the SIU Center for Management Development in cooperation with District 10 of the Illinois Bankers Association.

"SIU has used the undergraduate textbook rental system for over 30 years," said Stroman. "It started after the depression years when the students didn't have the money to buy the books."

Many schools have now adopted the rental system, which allows the student to rent his books for far less than it would cost to buy them.

SIU uses the textbooks for three years. At the end of that time, if the textbooks are outdated, new books are ordered by the head of each department. Many times, however, books will remain at SIU for a long time. The valuable information found in some of the older books, cannot be found in the newer editions. "Up until a few years ago, SIU had a zoology book that was printed in 1916," Stroman said. "Of course we ordered new books to be used with the old book, but the information found in this old edition couldn't be found in any other book."

The Textbook Service is located in Morris Library.

The rental service is located in the southwest corner of the basement and the sales facility for graduate students is located on the sixth floor.

During the issuance and return of textbooks at the beginning and end of quarters, access to the rental service is through the outside doors on the west side of the building. At other times, entrance is from the inside of the library.

Allen is 'finest'

By Mike Klein

Barclay Allen is "without a doubt, one of the finest punters in America today," says offensive line and kicking coach Ron Marciniak.

Allen, a native Canadian, is averaging 44.9 yards per punt on twenty-one kicks this season. In the Saluki's 24-7 trouncing of Lamar Tech last Saturday, Allen punted twice for 58 and 60 yards. A junior, he has been punting on the varsity since his freshman year and averaged 40.4 yards last year as a sophomore.

Marciniak said the "biggest reason Allen is such a good punter is his dedication. He is always on the field at three o'clock and is the last one off. The players have great confidence in him."

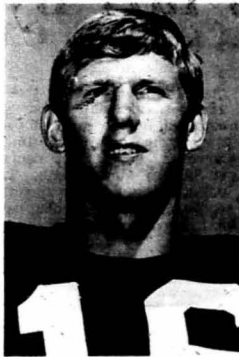

In addition to his punting, Allen is a versatile player who is a good backup quarterback and holder on extra point and field goal attempts.

A graduate of Montreal

Malcolm Campbell High School, Allen lettered in track, basketball, and hockey. Since the school had no football program, he played his football on the NDG Mapleleafs, comparable to American Legion teams baseball.

From the scholarship offers he received, Allen chose SIU because he felt he would have a good chance to play. It was at SIU that he met Larry Blixt, whom he credits with teaching "me everything I know about punting." Blixt was a graduate assistant and assistant baseball coach at the time.

Commenting on the season thus far, Allen says, "What we need is to win two or three games in a row and not just one so it won't be called a fluke. We have to score some points and get a couple of wins to build our confidence. As far as team cooperation and spirit is concerned, this is the best team I've been on in my three years on varsity."

Barclay Allen

If the opportunity comes, Allen definitely wants to try playing professional football. With almost two full seasons of college football left, he has already had feelers from the Dallas Cowboys and St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League, the new Cincinnati Bengals of the American Football League, and the Montreal Alouettes of the Canadian Football League.

A radio-television major, he hopes to go into broadcasting and may broadcast some Saluki basketball games this winter over WSIU(FM).

Fred Whittingham named week's top defensive player

(AP) — When the New Orleans Saints upset the Minnesota Vikings Sunday, Fred Whittingham called the defensive signals, made 13 individual tackles, six assists and stopped the Vikings twice in the final minute.

With credentials like that, Whittingham was named Wednesday the defensive Player of the Week in the National Football League by The Associated Press.

This is the same Whittingham who played without great distinction at Los Angeles and Philadelphia before he came to the Saints in the expansion draft last year.

He was a member of the ill-fated Cal Poly squad that was involved in a tragic plane crash but he missed that trip because of what he calls a "lucky, very lucky" concussion.

"Fred did one of the most outstanding defense jobs that I've ever seen," said Jack Faulkner, chief defensive coach of the Saints after the 20-17 victory over the Vikings.

In the final minute with the Vikings desperately trying for a first down, Whittingham stopped them twice. On a third down and one situation, Whittingham crashed through the line and threw Jim Lindsey for a loss. On fourth and two, he charged Joe Kapp and made him throw the ball wildly.

Rams' Casey two-way artist

By Paul Corcoran
Copley News Service

End Bernie Casey of the Los Angeles Rams is football's answer to Curt Flood of the St. Louis Cardinals when it comes to art.

The talented Casey also has something else in common with Flood, the Cardinals' center fielder. Both are masters of catching a ball in flight.

Casey, 29, spent six seasons with the San Francisco 49ers before the Rams obtained him in 1967. He quickly developed a "rapport"—and that's the word he uses—with quarterback Roman Gabriel on where to go, and when, to catch a pass.

Bernie established himself as the man Gabriel picked on crucial plays, particularly on short yardage plays near the goal line. Eight of the 53 passes he caught in 1967 were for touchdowns, including the deciding TD against Green Bay with 34 seconds left that saved the Rams the Coastal Division championship.

"It is very hard to establish rapport between a passer and receiver," says Casey, who is very serious about his career as an artist. "Each quarterback has a different style of throwing."

But in the case of Gabriel and Casey, "very hard work" paid off in a successful combination that is one of the principal reasons the Rams are favored in both the Coastal and Western divisions of the National Football League.

Casey differs somewhat from premier San Diego flanker Lance Alworth on what counts most in becoming a good pass catcher. Alworth believes having the speed, timing and moves to get into the clear is primary and that catching the ball is almost routine.

"If you get into the open and drop the ball, it goes for naught," says the Bowling Green graduate. "A fine receiver has to have both qualities—the ability to get open and receive the ball."

To Casey the "over-all ability to catch passes is "instinctive."

"It's like being able to shoot a basketball well, or to run fast," he continued.

Casey, who has caught 50 or more passes in each of the last seven seasons, was a track star in college. He ran the high hurdles in 14.0 seconds in the 1960 Olympic trials.

Off the gridiron, Casey has enjoyed favorable reviews when his oil paintings were displayed. He considers himself a serious artist.

Casey also has appeared in movies, a preoccupation of several pro athletes who make their living by playing on Los Angeles teams.

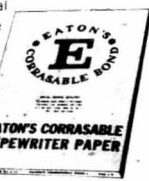

In 1968, some opponents have been putting double coverage on Casey but without noticeable success.

He became even more valuable to the Rams when Les Josephson, the team's leading rusher a year ago and one of its best pass receivers, was lost to the team because of a freak injury.

Salukis to play tough Dayton eleven

By Dave Cooper

If SIU is going to even its record Saturday at Dayton, the Salukis will have to beat a very tough team, a ball club which is entirely different from any Southern has played this season.

The offense of SIU's opponents in the first three games depended primarily on passing, but Dayton relies on their rushing attack.

"Dayton has the complete balanced offense. They have a tremendous ground game, and they throw only out of necessity," Coach Dick Towers stated.

Two weeks ago when Dayton physically mutilated Louisville, and defeated them 28-14, the Flyers ran 74 rushing plays. Against Lamar Tech last Saturday, the Salukis only had 77 offensive plays, 57 of which were on the ground.

"Dayton's fullback is bigger and stronger than our Huey Lee. They have two fine halfbacks, and their quarterback is a good passer. And what makes their ground game go is their big offensive line," Towers said.

Flyer fullback Mike Wilson is 6-2, 240 pounds. Last season he gained 217 yards, and this year is one of the squad's pro prospects, as a lineman, if not as a back.

The Flyers' halfbacks are Bob Madden, 5-11, 190 pounds, and Bernie Kress, 6-0, 195 pounds. Madden has been a regular for two years, and last season he rushed for 335 yards, averaging 5.7 yards per carry. Kress rambled 512 yards for a 4.6 average last year.

"Although we will have to switch our defense to play the pass, our game plan will be about the same," Towers added.

Concerning Dayton's defense "They are very aggressive and very tough—they try to hurt you. Physically, the Flyers are the toughest team that we meet all season. Besides being rough, the defense also gambles and uses the safety blitz."

For his excellent performance against Lamar Tech, wingback Mike Bradley was named the offensive player of the week, and Dave Krisman was picked as the defensive player of the week.

Bradley threw a 21 yard pass to Doug Hollinger and kicked a 40 yard field goal and an extra point.

"Bradley takes the pressure off of John Quillen, but he needs to improve on blocking. Quillen, who had a fine game, could just as well have been offensive player of the week," Towers said.

"Doug Hollinger also had an outstanding game. He is the one who threw the key block on Bradley's long gainer, and numerous key blocks on Quillen's and sweeps. Chip Marlow also did an exceptional job of blocking."

Towers commended Ed Edelman, Rich Smith, Dan Shields, and Willie Anderson all from the offensive unit.

In addition to landing Krisman, Towers praised Ted Ewert by saying, "He's probably the best linebacker we've got right now."

Southern suffered no injuries in Saturday's game that will keep anyone out of the Dayton game. But Towers stated that regular fullback Roger Kuba is still a doubtful starter. "He is working out, and he can run straight ahead, but he can't cut," Towers said.

Regatta scheduled

The SIU Sailing Club will host a regatta Saturday at Crab Orchard Lake's Look-out Point. A skipper meeting will begin at 9 a.m., with the races starting at 9:30 a.m.

Northwestern University, Western Michigan College, Xavier University, University of Iowa and Maryville College will join SIU in the regatta. Six "A" and "B" team races will be held.

A luncheon is scheduled for noon at Play Port's Sailing Shelter at the lake.

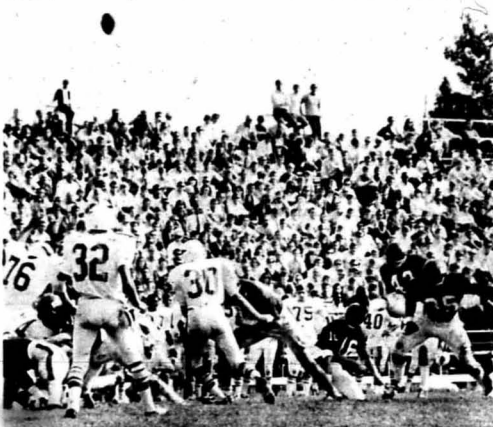

Intramural Office seeking six men

The Intramural Office is seeking six students to represent the Independent League on the Intramural Student Board.

Any student living off-campus in living quarters other than a dorm of thirty or more students is eligible.

The Board meets once a month to discuss intramural problems and make recommendations to the director, Abe Martin.

Interested students should contact the Intramural Office, room 128 in the SIU Arena.

Just missed

Saluki field goal kicker Mike Bradley (43) misses this 45 yard attempt against Lamar Tech. It was wide to the left. Holding is Barclay Allen (16), while Wilbur Lanier (35) stays back to block.
