Council approves Carnival permit

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council voted 4-1 Tuesday to grant the Chamber of Commerce a permit to use the land on New Era Road for the Halloween carnival, despite objections from the community.

Councilman John Yow, the only council member to vote against giving the permit, said he was concerned the crowd at the carnival would migrate to the Strip when the carnival ended.

"I originally supported the carnival, but now I have second thoughts about ending the Halloween street party and beginning something else," Yow said.

City manager Steve Hoffner said he would rather not see the carnival occur this year, but would like to see it in future years when the street party definitely has died out.

In addition to Yow's reservations, Hoffner said the city staff also has mixed feelings about the carnival.

"On one hand, the council is trying to respond to the suggestions of some on the council and in the community that alternative activities that are more family oriented be scheduled for fall," Hoffner said.

"On the other hand, we have tried to put forth a consistent message that there will be no major reasons to come to Carbondale at the end of October this year."

Before other activities are scheduled, many city staffers said they believe the city needs to bring to a close the type of activity that has occurred on past Halloween weekends, Hoffner said.

But city staffers aren't the only ones concerned about the carnival.

Marcy Brown, a student at Carbondale Community High School, said the carnival will be just another excuse for people in the city to drink.

"There's going to be a lot of drinking going on regardless of whether or not it's banned at the carnival," Brown said.

Brown said kids probably will get drunk somewhere and then come to the carnival.

James Prowell, executive director of the Chamber of Commerce, said everyone will probably have some concerns Earthquake!

San Francisco area hit heavily

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A major earthquake struck northern California Tuesday night, killing at least 50 people, knocking out power, starting fires, and collapsing buildings, freeways and a section of the Bay Bridge. The quake postponed the World Series.

The rolling quake along the notorious San Andreas fault struck at 7:04 p.m. and lasted about 15 seconds.

A spokesman for Lt. Gov. Leo McCarthy said 40 people were confirmed killed in the collapse of a freeway in Oakland across the bay from San Francisco, where at least six people were killed in the collapse of a building.

One fatality was confirmed in the Bay Bridge collapse, and at least two deaths were confirmed in Santa Cruz, near the earthquake's epicenter, and there were unconfirmed reports of additional fatalities.

Damage was reported as far away as Reno, Nev., about 250 miles northeast of San Francisco, and the quake was felt in Los Angeles, about 450 miles to the south.

The earthquake struck during the rush hour and a half-hour before Game 3 of the World Series was scheduled to start at Candlestick Park in San Francisco. Players and their families rushed onto the safety of the field. Some of the 68,000 fans said the park shuddered under the rolling motion.

The game was postponed as players and tearful wives were hugging in the infield.

San Francisco International Airport was closed because of tower damage. The airport in Oakland was also closed.

At least two aftershocks were felt. Caltech seismologists in Pasadena estimated the quake at between 6.5 and 7.0 on the open-ended Richter scale. Russ Needham, geophysicist of U.S. Geological Service in Golden, Colo., said the quake had a magnitude of 6.9.

A magnitude 7 is considered a major earthquake capable of widespread, heavy damage.

At least six people were killed in San Francisco when a brick building collapsed. Some of the victims were in cars crushed by falling bricks, police Lt. Jerry Kilroy said. A seventh person was confirmed killed in the collapse of a section of the upper roadway of the double-deck Bay Bridge.

Student loans, grants fall to Gramm-Rudman

By Chris Walka
Staff Writer

Stafford Loans are not the only federal student-aid programs on the chopping block as Pell Grants will be the next casualty of federal deficit reduction legislation.

According to a Monday United Press International story, one million Pell Grants will be cut.

Stafford Loans, formerly the Guaranteed Student Loan, have also been cut because of the legislation.

The reduction in Pell Grants results from a sequester order enacting automatic, across-the-board cuts in both domestic and military spending.

The 1985 Gramm-Rudman law says Congress has until Oct. 16 of each year to pass deficit-reduction legislation. Since Congress did not meet the deadline, the cuts were put into effect by President George Bush Monday night.

However, Robert Clement, public information director for the Illinois Student Assistance Commission, said Congress now is working on reconciliation legislation. If passed, the legislation would annul the sequester order. If not passed, the cuts would not be enacted until the funds are used up.

"I don't think the average col-

Missing teen-agers found in Jonesboro

By Douglas Powell
Staff Writer

Two missing Carbondale teens were found by Anna and Jonesboro police around 11 p.m. Monday in Jonesboro, a spokesperson for the Center for Comprehensive Services said.

The teens, both from the Grand Rapids, Mich., area, were missing for a little more than 48 hours and were patients at the Center for Comprehensive Services University House, 610 S. University Ave. They were recovering from major head injuries they suffered in separate car accidents.

The teens, identified as Michelle Wynna, 16, and Mark Moore, 17, left the center Saturday evening. A note from the teen-agers was found Sunday.

Carbondale Police placed the two teens on its "Hot List" because

Committee delays vote on abortion bill

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The House Rules Committee Tuesday effectively ended any chance for abortion legislation in Illinois this year, handing anti-abortionists setback by voting not to hear a bill restricting abortions.

Ten votes were needed to get the House and Senate to consider it as "emergency" legislation in the fall veto session of the General Assembly, but only nine of 17 committee members present voted in favor of it. One member was absent.

The vote was the third setback anti-abortionists have suffered in the past week. A special session of the Florida legislature called by Gov. Bob Martinez ended early when lawmakers refused to approve bills restricting abortions. The U.S. House of Representatives last week voted to allow federal financing of Medicaid abortions in cases of women who become pregnant because of rape or incest, although President Bush has said he will veto the bill.

Rep. Penny Pullen, R-Park Ridge, the sponsor of the Illinois bill, said she hopes the committee will reconsider the legislation before the session ends Nov. 2.

"I certainly hope that members of the committee will examine their decisions and understand what they have done," Pullen said.

Anti-abortion activists had written the bill to mirror a Missouri law that the Supreme Court upheld in July. Before the vote, Pullen pleaded with fellow legislators.

"There are actually individuals present in their mother's wombs whose lives will depend on the votes we cast today," Pullen said.

Pullen needed 10 votes to get the House to consider the bill, but only nine were cast in its favor. Rep. Terry Stezco, D-Oak Forest, missed the vote because of the death of his wife, Linda, but he has voted against abortion restrictions in the past.

The bill would have required doctors to perform a viability test before aborting a fetus more than 20 weeks old. If the fetus appeared viable, a second doctor would have to be present at the abortion.

The legislation would have also banned public facilities and employees from performing abortions not necessary to save the mother's life.

Medellin judge shot, killed in latest Colombian incident

BOGOTA, Colombia (UPI) — A gunman shot and fatally wounded a Medellin judge as he got in a car to go to work Tuesday and a caller later claimed responsibility on behalf of drug traffickers avenging recent extraditions to the United States. The shooting appeared to be the latest incident in the cocaine cartels' war against Colombia. Police said a man armed with automatic weapon shot Superior Court Judge Hector Jimenez Rodriguez at 6:40 a.m. The attacker escaped on a motorcycle driven by another man waiting nearby, officials said. The 55-year-old judge was shot six times and was dead on arrival at a Medellin hospital.

Freed Sisulu demands economic sanctions

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — African National Congress leader Walter Sisulu, newly freed from 26 years in prison, called Tuesday for tougher economic sanctions against Pretoria to prevent it from retreating from reforms. Sisulu spoke in an interview with the independent South African Press Association as a summit of the 48-nation Commonwealth in Kuala Lumpur opened to debate the imposition of tougher sanctions on Pretoria. Sisulu demanded that long-standing conditions be met before black leaders would agree to negotiate with the minority government, including Nelson Mandela's release.

Austrian leader cleared of Nazi war crimes

LONDON (UPI) — Austrian President Kurt Waldheim was not responsible for Nazi war crimes against more than 80 British servicemen during World War II, the Defense Ministry said Tuesday. The report, a review of a 1986 investigation, said the former lieutenant knew of the capture of 80 British servicemen, mostly members of the Special Forces who were taken hostage in 1943 and 1944 in Greece. "But no evidence has come to light to indicate that as a junior staff officer he had the power either to order or to prevent that fate or indeed to affect the outcome in any way," said Archie Hamilton, armed forces minister.

Expert feels Iowa blast was chemical bomb

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Navy technical expert believes a chemical bomb, not an electronic device, ignited powder in one of the guns aboard the USS Iowa, causing an explosion that killed 47 sailors, Pentagon officials said Tuesday. The Navy's claim remains unchanged — that some sort of detonating device most likely triggered the blast, said Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams. Williams said it was the "personal opinion" of Capt. Joseph Miceli that the blast was caused by a chemical bomb, but Miceli "doesn't expect to be able to identify a specific chemical device."

Southern Illinois will build prison facility in Greenville

GREENVILLE (UPI) — Southern Illinois picked up another prison Tuesday with the announcement that a new medium security federal correctional center will be built in Bond County, Greenville City Manager Larry Stoever said. Stoever said the prison will be built at a cost of $50 million to $60 million. The facility will have a 600-bed medium security unit and a 250-bed minimum-security camp, Stoever said Tuesday. The prison will employ about 275 when it is completed. It will also provide about 190 "spinoff jobs," Stoever said.

Awareness week seeks to educate about alcohol

The goal of Alcohol Awareness Week is to help students make healthy choices about drinking and raise awareness through education and activities, Barb Fijolek, coordinator of drug and alcohol education at the Wellness Center, said.

Students should be informed about decisions about drinking whether they choose to drink or not, she said.

During this year's awareness week, Oct. 15-21, a new idea was implemented to get a broader participation by the campus.

A pledge sheet was sent to all faculty members asking they designate 10 minutes of their classes to mention Alcohol Awareness Week or give students information or an assignment on an alcohol-related topic.

"This has been done at other universities. We are using curriculum infusion to get broader participation by the campus," Fijolek said. "We are getting administrative support. It's not just something coming from the Wellness Center, but administrative, faculty and students working together in a partnership."

According to Wellness Center

statistics, 89 percent of SIU-C students use alcohol, one in five student drinkers report missing a class because of drinking and one in 10 student drinkers report doing poorly on a test because of drinking.

The Wellness Center and University police co-sponsored a visual display next to the two-level parking garage on campus Tuesday of a car involved in a drinking and driving fatality, Joe Baker, wellness coordinator, said.

"The car display is to remind people not to drink and drive," Baker said.

Students on campus have been contributing to Alcohol Awareness Week. One group was passing out black armbands in Trueblood Hall Monday night. The armbands are being worn in memory of college students nationwide who lost their lives at the hands of drunken drivers.

State universities spread word about Halloween

By Jeanne Bickler
Staff Writer

The word is getting out about the end of Carbondale's Halloween street party.

University newspapers throughout the state are running public service announcements and news stories about the demise of Halloween.

John Pletz, the editor of the Daily Illini at the University of Illinois at Champaign - Urbana, said the paper has run several stories about the end of Carbondale's Halloween during the last month.

Pletz predicted a lot of "aborted road trips to Carbondale this year."

Champaign also has a Halloween celebration which has not been free of problems. In 1986, a Northwestern student was partially paralyzed when he was hit in the head with a thrown bottle.

To combat underage drinking, the Champaign City Council is considering a wristband policy. This policy would require patrons who are over 21 to get a wristband from one of three identification checkpoints in order to purchase alcohol.

Champaign Mayor Dannel

McCullum said he would like to experiment with the wristband policy and consider it for future use in local bars.

Mike Fitzgerald, editor-in-chief of the Daily Eastern Newspaper at Eastern Illinois University at Charleston, said coverage of the end of Halloween has been limited.

"We had one story telling about the end of Carbondale's Halloween," he said. "EIU students usually go south to Carbondale or north to Champaign for Halloween. We don't have any celebration here."

Larry Bloenker, chief assignment editor of the Daily Vidette at Illinois State University in Bloomington - Normal, said he has a reporter working on the story.

"I just received a flyer about the end of Carbondale's Halloween and a copy of a three page fax from SIU President John Guyon addressed to our vice president of student affairs," Bloenker said. "The fax had details of the end of the party and about why it was canceled."

Beth Behland, editorial editor of the Northern Star at Northern Illinois University at De Kalb, said there has been one story on the end of Halloween in the Star.

"Not a lot goes on here for Halloween," she said. "I know a lot of people have gone to Carbondale in the past."

Behland said that the Northern Star probably will run more stories on Carbondale's Halloween.

The Western Courier, Western Illinois University's newspaper, ran one story about Halloween in Carbondale last month, Omar Sofradzija, the Courier's assistant editor, said.

Sofradzija said he was not aware of any other stories about Halloween in the Courier.

Opinion & Commentary

Take the challenge of Awareness Week

IF YOU had a rough weekend on the strip don't worry, there is still time to redeem yourself.

Alcohol Awareness Week started Oct. 15 and goes through Oct. 21. The goal of this week, according to Barb Fijolek, coordinator of drug and alcohol education at the Wellness Center, is to help students make healthy choices about drinking and raise awareness through education and activities so students can be informed about their decisions whether they choose to drink or not.

At the University, according to Wellness Center statistics, 89 percent of students used alcohol, one in five student drinkers report missing a class because of drinking and one in 10 student drinkers report doing poorly on a test because of drinking. Also to be considered is the violence and crime that alcohol contributes to.

ALSO, THE average consumption is 14.3 beers per student consumed per week and 150,000 beers are consumed by students every week in Carbondale, Joe Baker, Wellness Center coordinator, said.

Alcohol is drug and although national statistics show abuse of most drugs is on the decline, the use of alcohol is increasing.

In the college atmosphere drinking is a norm that is often taken lightly. And awareness week is not condemning responsible drinkers. However, abuse of the drug is something else that is taken lightly — too lightly.

For many of us, coming to the University means the first full-fledged introduction to alcohol that can be readily available. Drinking and college life has come to be synonymous and it is something that has been tolerated and accepted as a given. Students do and will drink at the college level.

BUT SOMETIMES the social drinker becomes an alcoholic in the blink of an eye. Many students deny or don't realize that they have become alcoholics. The Friday and Saturday drinking turns into the Friday, Saturday, Wednesday or Thursday drinking, or more.

Abuse of alcohol affects people not only physically, but mentally. The body starts to wear down after months or years of heavy drinking, and motivation as well as the alertness can be stunted after too much partying.

Body and mind deteriorates.

AWARENESS WEEK is featuring the beerfast pledge table in the Student Center who can pledge not to drink for three days this week. Also, the Wellness Center and University police co-sponsored a visual display next to the two-level parking garage on campus of a car involved in a drinking and driving fatality.

Students also have been contributing to the week by passing out black armbands, which are worn in memory of college students nationwide who lost their lives at the hands of drunken drivers.

Many people never think that they could ever be guilty of killing a person by climbing behind the wheel of an automobile. They think it could never happen to them, but it does. It happens more than 20,000 times every year in the United States.

WHAT IS three days? Take up the challenge to see if the conscious effort to not drink for three days causes you to reassess yourself and the way you drink. Three days is a very short time, but it could mean the difference that may change the way you drink, or don't drink, the next time.

And if nothing else, take the time to stop and learn something that could guide your decisions in the future and possibly help someone you care about.

A few minutes or a few days could mean all the difference.

Desecration of the flag means more than exercising right of free speech

Recently the Supreme Court of the United States voted five to four in favor of desecrating the American flag as a form of freedom of expression.

While this decision is not popular with most American citizens, the Supreme Court justices who voted in favor of flag burning, felt that these people should be allowed to express their feelings of dissatisfaction against the nation by desecrating the symbol of freedom, justice, and the American way.

Is the right to desecrate the American flag a freedom of an American citizen in the United States of America?

It would seem as if these people are destroying themselves in the fact that it stands for more than just one aspect of our country that they may be dissatisfied with.

I personally think that the American flag, as a symbol, stands for more than anything in the world. It stands for the desecrators freedom, which he or she has probably taken for granted since birth.

But most of all, it stands for all of us, for all of the freedoms we enjoy every day and don't even think of. Think of all the Americans through all the years who have fought or died fighting for this country and what it means to them and their families.

The American flag flies beautifully atop the Iowa Jima Memorial in Arlington, Va.

Think about the proud Marines and how much this means to them! When you see the flag draping a coffin, then being folded with honors and handed over to the survivor of an American soldier, what does it mean?

"Ma'am, this flag is presented as a token of appreciation on behalf of a grateful nation for the honored and dedicated service of your loved one."

It will forever mean something to the people who hear these words. To someone who may want to burn a flag because they may be upset that abortion is still legal, should think of these people also, and all the other things that the American flag stands for.

Major Nicholson was an Army Intelligence officer who was shot for alleged spying in East Germany in 1985. I can see clear as yesterday his wife and daughter, who is about ten years old no., thinking of this.

Every Memorial Day Major Nicholson's wife and daughter visit Arlington National Cemetery and look at the American flag, one foot in front of Major Nicholson's grave.

The American flag should not be an expression of speech. It is against the law, technically to spit on public property.

It is also against the law to use vulgar language out of context in public. But hey, lets desecrate the flag and get some attention.

Is the flag this meaningless to some people? Obviously the five Supreme Court justices who voted in favor of this vile act of stupidity have never served in the military or looked at any aspects of life as I have.

These justices must have been freeloading in their college history classes, then they probably enjoyed their lawyer money in another country, and finally they were appointed Supreme Court justices. They didn't even have to run for this office, it was appointed or "given" to them. Kind of like their freedom. — Bill Davis, sophomore, political science.

Student's senseless killing didn't have to be

I am writing in response to your editorial of October 17 in which you commented on the tragic and untimely shooting death of Jason Jackson, the Jeremiah's employee murdered in an armed robbery.

Although I am not in disagreement with our position, I would simply like to comment on two points.

I left school at the end of my junior year to accept a position with a large metropolitan police department in the northeastern part of the state. I stayed two years before returning to SIU-C after making the proverbial reassessment of goals and aspirations.

But in that time I had the eye-opening opportunity to work out of a district that was very busy and in which my colleagues and I engaged in active criminal law enforcement on a daily basis.

After seeing a few "senseless" deaths, I quickly learned that they could have been prevented had the victims not made themselves vulnerable.

You wrote: "Death is never easy, but when a young life is taken for no apparent reason, the hurt and disgust is somehow magnified." But there was a reason. Jackson put himself in a dangerous situation in which he had no means to protect himself. He would be alive today had he simply allowed the gunman to flee and then call the police.

The second passage I'd like to comment on: "Nowhere in this senseless crime can justice be found except that Jackson perhaps died the way he would have wanted: a hero."

We use to have a saying in the police department: "The cemetery is full of heroes, don't be a hero."

With this adage in mind, I have to say that your eulogy of Jackson is touching, but naive.

Perhaps his senseless death could be better used as a warning: There are people out there who have the faculties to kill you and will kill you without hesitation if it will result in their eluding what they perceive as a threat.

In the instant case, $400 is a terrible price to pay for a young man who had his whole life in front of him.

And doing what is perceived as right — to give chase in order to capture a fleeing criminal — is not always the correct course of action. Leave that to the police. They are professionals who are trained to deal with such situations and — more importantly — who are equipped to protect themselves.

Simply stated, when confronted with an armed gunman, give him what he wants and let him go. His objective is flight and he will stop at nothing to achieve such flight.

The Carbondale Police Department had a suspect in custody within 36 hours of the killing. Is it not correct to assume that they would not have made an arrest had Jackson and his companions simply allowed the suspect to flee and then call the police immediately after the robbery?

It's easy to play Monday morning quarterback, but in this sense perhaps Jackson's death was not in vain.

Hopefully it will serve to prevent future tragedies and the need to eulogize the victims of violent crimes as "heroes." — David A. Cowan, senior, journalism.

Class schedule new, improved

Three cheers to Allan Jones and his staff at Electronic Communications for a super job on the spring 1990 schedule of classes. The needless pages of advertisement are not missed. The heavier paper is easier to handle and will hold up better.

The print is much easier to read (style as well as darker copy)...but do you think the titles could be put in caps again?

They seemed a bit easier to read when they were capitalized. — Marilyn R. Juhlin, vocational educational studies.

American flag is a piece of nostalgia; people rely on symbolism not action

The notion that the American Flag is a sacred symbol representing democratic freedoms of truth, justice, and the American way is nothing more than patriotic, ultra-conservative, flag-waving rhetoric.

For more than two centuries we arrogantly waved this banner in the face of the world as if it truly represented all that, we as Americans, said it does.

From America's own White Anglo Saxon Protestant historical accounts it was the flag, then minus quite a few stars, that led battles to eradicate native Americans from their land. No, not W.A.S.P.'s — the American Indian. The same symbol of truth, justice, and freedom waved over the heads of my Afro-American people during slavery. Even after the "Emancipation Proclamation" Afro-Americans were denied equal status and treatment as they were discriminated against then lynched. It was the same patriotic, ultra-conservative flag-wavers who committed most of later under the guise of W.A.S.P. American Idealism.

But, that was so long ago! Yet, thirty-five years ago Afro-Americans could not attend the same schools as their white counterparts. Twenty-five years ago civil rights legislation was passed to give minorities federal protection to ensure their rights as afforded by the United States Constitution. More recently, it was the same flag we waved during the ultra-conservative Reagan Administration's refusal to totally divest in South Africa.

The flag is clearly a piece of nostalgic Americana that represents political ideology that when analyzed is reduced to myth. Just ask early twentieth century European immigrants,

"How free was America?" Let me remind you that they were white!

Today, the myth has manifested itself into the minds of American citizenry, creating a patriotic pathological disease that promotes more half-truth, deceptions, and delusion of grandeur.

I suggest that Americans put more faith in actions, attitudes, behavior, and values versus symbolism. For if you act in accordance to democratic creeds — what flag that burns will effect your serenity?

The flag, people, is just a piece of cloth. If what you believe in is represented by the flag; then what you believe in is only worth the cloth it is sewn on. So, be careful what you sell America, you just might have to buy it back! — Derek Steven Burrell, graduate M.P.A.

Student feels SIU-C officer was unreasonable

On Tuesday, Oct. 10, I received a ticket from an SIU officer — a Mr. Harrington. Before I express my feelings toward the situation, let me explain to you what happened. I pulled my car in front of the Student Center. I was going to cash a check. Upon arriving, I noticed Officer Harrington writing tickets. I got out of my car and approached the officer. Politely, I asked him if I might park in front for just a few minutes. He rudely responded "You already got the ticket, so you might as well go cash the check."

I was kind of stunned. I thought to get in my car and move it, but I did not want to be guilty of leaving the scene of a "crime". Confused, I followed his direction and proceeded to cash the check. What I returned, sure enough I found an $8 ticket on my car. Frustrated, I went to seek justice. I decided that I would go to Washington Square D, and plead my case to someone without such a horrible disposition. I was disappointed to find what I had expected. I was given the run around completely, sent here and there and back again. Finally, I was told to come back tomorrow. Reluctantly, I agreed.

Wednesday I went back to meet with Lieutenant Smith, hoping he would be at least somewhat reasonable. Well, no such luck. I could barely get a word in to explain the situation, and when I did get to talk, he completely turned the situation around. He was rude and unreasonable. He treated me as totally inferior, and made me feel like I was completely ignorant.

This is wrong, and should not have ever happened. I am very disappointed in the University's handling of the situation. The people I dealt with were very cold, unreasonable, biased and completely unwilling to listen to fact. I feel victimized by the ordeal, and upset that it happened. There was no reason for this thing to get this far. I did nothing wrong. I was merely in the right place at the wrong time. A time when maybe an individuals personal problem interfered with his ability to distinguish right from wrong. Perhaps Sahki Harrington should reconsider his career choice, before harassing and badgering other innocent students. — Martin Victor, senior business management.

We can all learn a lesson from shooting death

The murder of Jason Jackson can be a lesson for us all. During an armed robbery, many things run through your mind, from self preservation to irrational hasty decision, such as the one that caused Jason his life.

I can only imagine what was going through Jason's mind. Staring down the barrel of a pistol caused his adrenaline to soar through his body. It caused him to go one step beyond rationality. It caused him to chase down an armed robber, who had already fired a shot into the ground — maybe as some sort of warning to stay away.

Jason's reaction to this by chasing the robber resulted in his death. Had he not chased the assailant, Jason would still be alive today.

My friends, death is always final. Money and possessions can always be replaced. My condolences to the family and friends of Jason Jackson, such a senseless death, let it be a lesson for us all. — Jeffery "Bear" Dupuy, sophomore history.

Editorial Policies

Signed articles, including letters, viewpoints and other commentaries, reflect the opinions of their authors only. Unsigned editorials represent a consensus of the Daily Egyptian Board, whose members are the student editor-in-chief, the editorial page editor, the associate editorial page editor, a news staff member, the faculty managing editor and a School of Journalism faculty member.

Letters to the editor must be submitted directly to the editorial page editor, Room 1247, Communications Building. Letters should be typewritten and double spaced. All letters are subject to editing and will be limited to 500 words. Letters fewer than 250 words will be given preference for publication. Students must identify themselves by class and major. Faculty members by rank and department, non-academic staff by position and department.

Letters for which verification of authorship cannot be made will not be published.

At least two sections of elevated freeway had collapsed near the San Francisco waterfront in the vicinity of the Bay Bridge, which links San Francisco and Oakland. The Golden Gate Bridge was not reported damaged.

The state Capitol in Sacramento was evacuated.

Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent said Candlestick Park, where Game 3 of the World Series was to have begun a half-hour after the quake struck, would be inspected before a decision is made on whether the San Francisco Giants and Oakland Athletics play the rest of the Series there.

Tom Mullins, a spokesman for the State Office of Emergency Services, said the epicenter was in the Santa Cruz Mountains between Santa Cruz and San Jose about 40 miles west of Hollister and appeared to be along the San Andreas fault.

He said there was major damage with people trapped in buildings in San Benito County, buildings had collapsed in Santa Clara County, freeway overpasses buckled in Alameda County and a major fire was burning in Oakland.

Gas, electricity and phone service was knocked out over hundreds of square miles.

"It's the scariest thing I've ever lived through," said Tom Honig, assistant managing editor of the Santa Cruz Sentinel. "There is substantial damage on the downtown streets and at the mall. We have at this point only two confirmed injuries, both from flying glass."

There were several fires burning in downtown San Francisco, including one covering a city block in the Marina District, and across the bay in Oakland and Berkeley. Some cars were trapped or crushed beneath a downed section of the Bay Bridge, which links San Francisco and Oakland. Officials said at least one person was killed in the collapse.

In Oakland, a half-mile section of the upper deck of Interstate 880 collapsed. The Embarcadero Freeway, an elevated double-decked roadway that runs along the city's waterfront, also sustained some damage and was shut down. In addition, the San Mateo, Carquinez and Richmond-San Rafael bridges were closed off for inspection.

Residents said it felt like the strongest earthquake felt in the Bay Area in memory, and it was stronger than the Sylmar quake in Southern California in 1971.

about any activity this time of year, but he anticipates no problems at the carnival.

"We want the carnival to be a family-oriented event with no alcohol permitted," Prowell said. "When it ceases to be that, the carnival will be stopped."

Prowell assured the council that the company hired to put on the carnival, Tinsley Amusements, would stop the carnival at any sign of trouble.

With that guarantee, and the guarantee that the carnival will close down at 10 p.m. instead of 11 p.m., Carbondale Mayor Neil Dillard said he supported it.

Councilman John Mills said the chamber hasn't approach the carnival project "half-heartedly."

"I think it's a good idea to give this a try this year," Mills said.

Jackson County Sheriff William Kitquist said he also had some reservations about the carnival because the cancellation of the street party may require there to be a strong police presence on the Strip.

the center listed the two as dangerous to themselves.

Steve Hartline, Anna police chief, said two juvenile officers from the Carbondale Police Department went to Anna on a tip from a center staff member.

Hartline said two Anna officers and two Jonesboro police officers traced the teens to a residence in Jonesboro.

How the teens got to the Jonesboro residence and the exact location of the residence was not disclosed.

Kathleen Fralish, center president, said the teens' disappearance was acted on quickly because the teens have difficulties in the judgment of situations, problem-solving and orientation.

"Because of their head injuries, they have more problems."

Anti-abortionists have scheduled a rally for Wednesday outside the State Capitol, and Pullen said she hopes this demonstration will help change the mind of at least one committee member.

Legislators on both sides of the issue, however, said they were firm in their votes. The vote also means lawmakers can avoid the politically charged issue until after their primary elections next March.

"There is virtually no chance that any member will change his or her mind," said Rep. Barbara Flynn Currie, D-Chicago.

Stock market sag halts hopes for United takeover

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market sagged Tuesday along with Wall Street's hopes for the financing of a planned $5.65 billion management-led takeover of UAL Corp., parent of United Airlines.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which surged 88.12 points Monday and erased nearly half of Friday's 190-point loss, closed down 18.12 points at 2,638.73.

Earlier in the day, investors were spooked by a sharp $2.5 billion rise in the nation's August trade deficit figure to $10.77 billion and the widely followed Dow index of 30 blue chip stocks was off by as much as 68.65 points.

Declines led advances, 938 to 631, among the 1,966 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Volume was around 225 million shares, compared with 416 million shares Monday, the fourth-busiest trading day on record.

The price of an average NYSE share lost 17 cents, while the NYSE composite index was off 0.87 points to 188.89. The Standard & Poor's 500 stock index fell 1.69 points to 341.16.

The Dow Jones transportation average, which tumbled more than 102 points Monday for its second-largest decline ever, dropped another 49.96 to 1,256.04.

The failure of the UAL investor group to secure adequate backing for its original $6.75 billion bid triggered the Dow's free fall Friday as investors bailed out of scores of takeover stocks.

At that point, computerized trading programs, used by institutions to automatically buy or sell stock at certain price levels, kicked in and a selling spree ensued.

Analysts said program trading again dominated the market Tuesday, whipping stock prices back and forth.

Citibank said it was trying to arrange financing for a scaled-down $5.65 billion takeover of UAL, but analysts said impatient investors continued to sell the stock amid indications Japanese banks were not warming to the deal.

"It just doesn't look good," said Trude Latmer, a market analyst with Josephthal & Co. "What really has to happen is the (UAL stock) price has to fall to a level where it will be attractive to another investor."

UAL stock closed down $24.875 to $198 a share. AMR, the parent of American Airlines, was off $3.25 to $73.25 a share, Delta was down $1.875 to $67.875 and USAir Group was down 75 cents to $40.25.

August trade deficit figures also did not boost investors' enthusiasm.

Record imports pushed up the nation's merchandise trade deficit by a sharp $2.5 billion in August to a seasonally adjusted $10.77 billion, the highest level since December, the Commerce Department said.

The August deficit was considerably higher than the $8.5 billion to $9 billion monthly shortfall generally anticipated by economists and may reflect the effects of the stronger dollar, which makes imports cheaper for Americans and U.S. goods more expensive abroad.

The disappointing deficit figures stopped a round of bargain hunting Tuesday on the London International stock exchange, where trading was active.

The key Financial Times 100-stock index, which tumbled 70.5 points Monday, ended off 27.9 points at 2,135.5 for a cumulative 4.4 percent decline since Wall Street's sharp drop Friday.

lege student has anything to worry about," Clement said.

Clement said the cuts are a 5.3 percent reduction in the Pell Grant budget.

The 1988 to 89 Pell Grant budget for Illinois was $184.86 million, he said. SIU-C was allotted $11.4 million.

The national budget for 1989 was $4.484 billion, Clement added.

The budget this year, still undecided because of shortfalls is estimated at $4.74 billion, Clement said. Clement also said he expected the budget to be finalized soon.

Leo Salazar, a U.S. Department of Education official, said 5,997 SIU-C students receive Pell Grants. In Illinois, 133,474 students receive the Pell Grant, Salazar said.

Without Congressional legislation to reconcile the budget deficit student aid checks might be cut proportionately, via a linear reduction formula, Clement said.

The linear reduction formula is used by the Department of Education in determining what amount of the grant will be cut from the student. When Congress fails to appropriate enough funds for all students entitled, cuts must be made to insure all students get some of the grant, sources who refused to be identified at the department, said.

The same sources said some students, those who receive the full entitlement, are exempt from the cuts.

Ronald Hubbs, an administrator at the SIU-C financial aid office, said the maximum amount a University student under the grant can obtain is $2,300 per year.

Clement said, the Pell Grant is the largest of all student aid programs.

Famous controversial poem by Ginsberg to be presented

By Carrie Pomeroy
Entertainment Editor

One of the most famous and controversial poems of the 20th century will be presented in a reading at 7:30 p.m. Friday in Morris Library Auditorium by eight members of Aegis, the Association of English Graduate Instructors and Students.

"Howl," a long poem written by Allen Ginsberg in 1956, sparked a highly-publicized obscenity trial and is one of the few poems to sell over a million copies.

The presentation will be introduced by English professor and poet Rodney Jones and prefaced by a reading of a shorter Ginsberg poem, "America."

Neil Steiff, a graduate assistant in English and "Howl" co-director, said "America" "sets the stage and the time frame for Ginsberg's view of America."

"Howl" was chosen for presentation by Aegis because of its length and its vivid portrait of "the decadent lifestyle of the underground intelligentsia of the '50s," Steiff said.

The poem refers to such Beat Generation literary figures as William S. Burroughs, Neal Cassady and Jack Kerouac.

"It's one of the more lyrically beautiful American poems of the era," Roy Flannagan, English graduate assistant and co-director of the reading, said. "It's sort of like the beginning of the '60s, a rebellion against the conservatism of the '50s," he said.

Flannagan said this polyphonic presentation of the poem will allow cast members to use vocal effects such as chanting, cross-over voices and repetition.

"It's almost like a musical score, with men playing the low notes and women playing the high notes," he said.

Steiff said he wants to de-emphasize the players and "rely on the beauty of the language."

Former Carbondale mayor, University Prof Wright dies

University News Service

John I. Wright, former associate professor of history at the University and mayor of Carbondale in the 1940s and 1950s, died Friday, Oct. 13, in Memorial Hospital of Carbondale. He was 94.

Services were held Tuesday at Huffman-Harker Funeral Home in Carbondale for the World War I veteran, who was buried with military rites at Pleasant Grove Memorial Park in Murphysboro.

A Carbondale native, Wright enrolled in what was then Southern Illinois Normal University in 1912 when it had only about 450 students. After completing his first year, he taught in Jackson County public schools until he entered the Army. After the war, he served as Pomona High School principal for two years.

Wright received a two-year certificate from SIU in 1922 and went on to study history at the University of Chicago, where he earned a bachelor's degree in 1925. He then returned to SIU to teach at the University High School, joining the University faculty in 1931. He received his master's degree in history from the University of Chicago in 1933.

During Wright's years at the University, he served as building and grounds superintendent, student council adviser, Socratic Literary Society sponsor and faculty adviser to the freshmen and sophomore classes.

He also helped raise funds to build McAndrew Stadium and vigorously supported a state bill granting SIU full university status.

While at SIU, Wright was also one of Carbondale's most active civic leaders. He served as mayor from 1947 to 1959 while Carbondale changed from a small rail town to a growing college community. He also was civil defense coordinator, city finance commissioner, federal rent control board member and police commissioner. He retired from both the University and city government in 1963.

A founder of Teeter-Carter-Watson Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2605, Wright was its third post commander. He was also a charter member of Carbondale's American Legion. Other memberships included the Odd Fellows, the Illinois Historical Society and World War I Barracks 641.

He was born July 9, 1895, to Isaac and Mary (Grammer) Wright.

He married Helen Hord in 1926. She died in 1987.

Survivors include a son, John L. Wright of Carbondale; a daughter, Mary Lou Anthony of Cincinnati; a sister, Dr. Lula Brown of Royal Beach, Md.

Weather scrubs Galileo mission; NASA schedules launch for today

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Launch of the shuttle Atlantis was rained out Tuesday and delayed 24 hours to Wednesday in another frustrating setback for the crew's bid to fire the $1.4 billion plutonium-powered Galileo probe to Jupiter.

Despite the prospect of deteriorating weather, NASA launch director Robert Sieck and other top managers decided to press on toward another launch attempt at 12:50 p.m. EDT Wednesday, six days later than originally planned.

Already running five days late because of work to swap out a faulty engine computer, Atlantis had been scheduled to take off on the year's fourth shuttle flight at 12:57 p.m. Tuesday, despite claims by anti-nuclear activists that Galileo could leak deadly radioactive fallout in a launch disaster.

Threats by protesters to infiltrate the launch zone to block the flight did not materialize, but rain clouds did, prompting Sieck to extend a planned "hold" at the T-minus nine-minute mark in hopes conditions would improve before Atlantis's 26-minute launch period expired.

But it was not to be, and, with the countdown holding at the T-minus five-minute mark, Sieck reluctantly postponed the sixth post-Challenger mission at 1:18 p.m.

"It looks like the local weather is not going to cooperate, so we're going to have to call it a day," Sieck radioed shuttle skipper Donald Williams. "We will scrub and reconfigure for a 24-hour turnaround."

The delay was a frustrating setback for Williams, 47, co-pilot Michael McCulley, 46, flight engineer Franklin Chang-Diaz, 39, Shannon Lucid, 46, and Ellen Baker, 36, who had hoped to rocket into orbit to launch the Galileo probe to Jupiter.

If Atlantis gets off the ground on time Wednesday, the five-day mission would end at 12:36 p.m. PDT Monday with a landing at Edwards Air Force Base in California.

Program offers concurrent degrees in law and medicine

By Tony Mancuso
Staff Writer

Two first-year SIU-C students are the first to enter a program which will allow them to receive both a medical and a law degree after six years of studies.

Gene Basanta, SIU-C law professor, said the program was approved last year and benefits the students by cutting a year off the normal amount of time it takes to receive degrees in both fields.

Basanta said it normally takes four years to acquire a medical degree and three years to receive a law degree. He said the program allows students to take health/law classes that give them credits toward both degrees.

"We are very pleased with the interest the program has generated, and we are just beginning to receive entry applications for next year," Basanta said.

Frank James and Claudia Kachigian are the first students to enter the program. James graduated from Notre Dame with a double major in pre-medicine and Japanese and Kachigian graduated in pre-medicine as a biology major at SIU-E.

James said he entered the program primarily to become a medical doctor.

"I hope someday to be an oncologist [cancer specialist]," James said, adding that it would take an additional three to four years to get a specialization qualification to treat cancer.

"The reason I decided to also get my law degree is that I feel it will give me an edge as a physician. Having a JD will make me more prepared in case I become involved in hospital administration or the formation of new health care policies," James said.

"The medical profession is undergoing a rapid change and with a legal background I may be able to understand and adapt to the changes as they take place."

"If I get through, I hope to practice as a physician and use my law degree to back up my practice."

—Claudia Kachigian

He went on to say that his legal education, although greatly different from his medical education, should help him with his diagnostic and analytic abilities.

"This semester in the law school has already given me a new way of learning because law material is easier to comprehend but is less concrete and in greater volume," James said. "Some of my grades this semester will be based primarily on a four-hour essay exam."

Kachigian said many of the members of her family are either doctors or lawyers and that when she decided to go into medicine and read of the new opportunity at SIU-C she jumped at the offer.

"If I get through the program I hope to practice as a physician and use my law degree to back up my practice. I'm sure I won't use my law degree a lot, but my legal knowledge will help me if I ever run into a malpractice suit," Kachigian said.

She said she hasn't been accepted by the medical school yet, but that she is planning to take the Medical College Admissions Test in April.

"The students who complete their undergraduate work will spend two years taking courses from the School of Law. In this amount of time they will acquire two and a half years of credits because they will attend summer school twice," Basanta said.

Kachigian said her first semester has consisted of classes on torts (civil damage suits), property acquisitions, contracts, the ethics in legal profession, legal research and legal writing.

"Next semester I believe I will be taking higher level classes on properties and contracts as well as civil court procedure and moot court," Kachigian said.

Art exhibits to support WSIU drive

By Katherine Lydon
Staff Writer

"Earthy Treasures," original artwork donated by Southern Illinois artists to support WSIU-FM's annual membership drive will be on display until Nov. 22.

SHOWCASE '89 will be displayed in the windows of Caren Charles, Casual Corner and Sohn's in University Mall.

Listeners may obtain an item by donating money to WSIU.

The 31 works, donated by 12 sources, include ceramics, wrought iron wall art, sterling silver earrings, enameled jewelry and hand-made pottery items, such as vases, teapots, sculptural pieces and a casserole with a lid.

The fund drive will take place Nov. 11-18. However, donations for the artwork may be made at any time.

The "Earthy Treasures" exhibit opened Oct. 15 and a ceramic item has already been reserved, Godell said.

"I've been at the mall a couple of times and I've seen people looking at the works, so I know they're interested," Godell said.

Early pledges can be made between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. on weekdays by calling 453-4343. After Nov. 11, pledges will be taken at 453-WSIU.

This is the first year for the art incentive, Godell explained.

"It's something we hope will continue," she said.

"I have been a listener of WSIU and I like almost all of the programs. Since I'm a student and can't financially donate cash, I thought it was a good way to participate," Supratman Rikin, who donated a ceramic bowl, said.

There is no definite goal for SHOWCASE '89, but Tom Godell, WSIU station manager, said he hopes to raise at least $35,000.

Police answer call; canine 911 culprit

WAUWATOSA, Wis. (UPI) — When police officers responding to a mysterious call on Wauwatosa's 911 telephone line arrived at the scene of the "emergency," no one was home.

Except a dog. Two police squads, a medical unit, and a fire department engine and ladder company were sent to a residence from which 911 dispatchers got a baffling, wordless call Monday evening. They found a basset hound next to a chewed-up cordless telephone.

"It's our policy when we have a call like that, to send the fire department and two police squads," said police Sgt. John Lofy, a supervisor at the city's new 911 center. "So the dog got the works."

Dispatcher Margaret Rondeau got the call shortly before 7 p.m. "You heard noises like someone clunking the phone," she said. But no one spoke on the other end of the line.

"The caller didn't say anything and didn't hang up, so they got a computer printout of where the call originated," Lofy said.

A response team was dispatched to the residence. When the emergency units pulled up outside, the dog began barking but no one answered the officers' knocking at the door.

"They gained entry through a rear window and found no one there but the dog and a cordless phone on the floor all chewed up," Lofy said.

It wasn't certain exactly how the call to 911 was triggered. Lofy said the emergency center has received a number of unintended calls because of cordless phones with weak batteries.

"We have been getting a lot of calls where people haven't dialed 911" but their cordless phones have connected with 911 because the batteries were low, he said.

Wauwatosa's 911 center began operation Sept. 11.

Groups seek correct count of minorities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A New York City official warned the Commerce Department Tuesday its "reputation is at stake" as it considers whether to adjust census figures to more accurately count minorities.

Last July, the Commerce Department agreed to settle a suit brought by New York City — and joined by Los Angeles, Chicago, Houston, Dade County, Fla., the U.S. Conference of Mayors, the National League of Cities and groups representing minorities — charging that every census since 1940 had undercounted minorities.

The undercount allegedly resulted in unequal representation in Congress and state legislatures and miscallocation of federal funds to localities based on population.

In the settlement, the Commerce Department agreed to consider using new methods to correct miscounts. The department plans to conduct a survey of 150,000 households after the 1990 census to generate information.

The commerce secretary will make the final decision of whether to actually adjust census figures by July 15, 1991.

Developers issue plans for riverboat gambling

DAVENPORT, Iowa (UPI) — Two prospective developers submitted proposals to the city, seeking to be selected as the developer of riverboat gambling.

One proposal, submitted by the Monday deadline, calls for construction of a riverboat and a nine-story hotel. The other would see the 3,000 passenger "President" moved from its St. Louis home to Davenport.

Riverboat gambling becomes legal in Iowa in April 1991.

The first proposal is a joint $35 million project by an affiliate of Davenport's Alter Co. and hotel developer John Q. Hammons of Springfield, Mo. The plan calls for at least one $9.5 million dollar, 1,500-passenger floating casino and also the construction of a new, nine-story, 240-suite Embassy Suites Hotel and Conference Center.

According to the plan the hotel would be built on a city block near the Mississippi River and would cost between $18 million and $21 million. The plan also includes a marketplace along the riverfront with shops built on piers. The complex and the riverboat's boarding pavilion would be connected to the conference center through skywalks.

The second proposal, submitted by Pittsburgh hotel and excursion boat operator John Edward Connelly calls for moving his riverboat "President" from St. Louis to Davenport and turning it into a riverboat casino. The Connelly proposal carries an estimated $83 million price tag.

Riverboat gambling becomes legal in Iowa in April 1991. The Davenport City Council will select one of the two proposals to back in attempting to get a license from the Iowa Racing and Gaming Commission. In addition, a county-wide non-profit organization is being established to apply for a state license.

Conservationists claim EPA failed to check on cleanups

BOSTON (UPI) — A New England conservation group Tuesday sued the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, accusing it of failing to ensure that the federal government cleaned up its hazardous waste sites.

The Conservation Law Foundation filed the suit in U.S. District Court in Boston for an injunction that would require the EPA to abide by a 1986 amendment to the Superfund law.

The amendment ordered the EPA to evaluate all hazardous waste sites on federal property and determine by April 17, 1989, which of them were sufficiently contaminated to warrant inclusion in the Superfund cleanup program.

The act also ordered the EPA to issue regulations by April 17 requiring federal agencies transferring property to private firms to guarantee that clean-up work has been completed.

"It was the result of congressional dissatisfaction with what happened when you left the hazardous waste problem in the hands of the agencies that created it," said CLF attorney Stephen Barrington. "In effect, Congress said EPA has got to take charge of the situation. And EPA, unfortunately, has completely dropped the ball."

The foundation charged the EPA missed the deadlines set by Congress and has suspended efforts to complete required evaluations of many of the 1,170 federal facilities on its national hazardous waste docket — a list compiled as a result of the amendment.

To date, 41 federal facilities, including 36 military installations, have been placed on the Superfund list. While the EPA has estimated 200 more sites will eventually be added, the agency has not evaluated many facilities, Barrington said.

This week, the Comedy Cellar introduces a talented young St. Louisan. 23-year-old Kathleen Madigan is a bright, witty comedienne whose ability to bring a sardonic edge to such experiences as growing up Irish Catholic and attending a fundamentalist Baptist wedding delights audiences everywhere. Included in Kathleen's act are hilarious musical renditions, such as an irreverent parody of Juice Newton's "Angel of the Morning." Kathleen has performed several opening acts for such favorites as Sammy Davis, Jr., Louie Anderson and the Kingston Trio. She has performed in comedy clubs and on college campuses throughout the Midwest, as well as made various national TV appearances.

Opening the show for Kathleen is another St. Louisan, Steve Pollard. A talented writer and artist, Steve is also an upcoming comedian with over 350 comedy acts and concert openings to his credit. Double your comedic pleasure with the funny business of Kathleen Madigan and Steve Pollard.

Funding for Lincoln Home awaits presidential signature

Funds of $745,000 approved for home in Illinois capitol

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

The U.S. Congress approved a belated birthday gift for Abraham Lincoln this month, but Lincoln won't get his present until President George Bush signs the card.

Congress approved $745,000 in funds Oct. 7 for the Lincoln Home National Historic Site, a four-square block area southeast of downtown Springfield. The bill is waiting for presidential approval.

"This is the most significant (funding) we've had to work with since Congress approved money for the restoration of the Lincoln home in 1987," Lawrence Blake, chief of visitors for the site, said.

Lincoln's two-story home underwent a complete restoration and renovation project during 1987 and 1988. The cost of the renovation for the home, at Eighth and Jackson streets, was $2.2 million.

Since the renovation, Blake said the number of visitors has increased from an average 400,000 to 450,000 a year before the renovation to an anticipated 750,000 for 1989.

He said 518,000 visitors have toured the Lincoln home this year through September 1989. The peak season for visitors is from Lincoln's birthday in February until late

This is the most significant funding for the home since restoration began in 1987.

November, he added.

"The Lincoln home provides a marvelous history lesson and it's our responsibility to rehabilitate, preserve and protect it for future generations," Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, said in a press release from Washington.

The money will be used for restoration work on the Cook House, exterior work on the Dean House and planning work for the Arnold House.

These three houses on the four-block area are named after Lincoln's neighbors during the 1860's.

Blake said the Cook House will be leased after it is renovated. The Dean House will be the home of exhibits and the park library. The Arnold House will be used as employee headquarters.

"The neighboring houses play a big role in providing visitors with the whole picture (of Lincoln's life)," Blake said.

The federal Lincoln site also will share in a $2.8 million pool for national parks and sites that are either new or have experienced an increase in service over the past year.

Blake said the increase of visitors has caused a staffing problem for the site.

"We have had some real problems with maintaining the appropriate level of staff members," he said.

The Lincoln site in Springfield is the only federally maintained Lincoln area in Illinois. The other two federal sites are Lincoln's boyhood home in Indiana and his birthplace in Kentucky.

Bush to veto federal funds for abortions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush will veto legislation that would allow government-paid abortions for poor women who are victims of rape or incest, a White House spokesman said Tuesday.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said Bush will send a letter to Congress outlining his views and stating that he will veto the appropriations bill for Health and Human Services, Labor and Education on which the abortion amendment is attached.

Fitzwater said Bush had been willing to discuss the abortion funding provision if he could find flexibility in the legislation, but that he had decided to veto the measure in the advice of senior advisers.

Bush has stated his opposition to abortion on several occasions.

"It is our judgment at this time that no one has been able to provide a convincing reason for the president to change his position," Fitzwater said. "So the president will not change his position."

Bush opposes abortion except in cases of incest, rape or when the mother's life is threatened. But he avers federal funding only when the mother is endangered, which is now the law.

The House last week voted to reverse an eight-year ban and allow federal financing of Medicaid abortions in cases of women who become pregnant because of rape or incest.

The House accepted the language as part of a compromise version of the appropriations bill for the Health and Human Services, Labor and Education departments. The measure must still be approved by the Senate, which proposed the abortion language.

Bush's decision was strongly criticized by House supporters of the bill.

Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., said Bush did not want to back off in earlier veto threats "because he might be called a wimp." Boxer, who led the fight for the language in the House, urged "the people of America to rise up" and press Bush to sign this legislation.

Jurors resume deliberations in extortion-conspiracy trial

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jurors resumed deliberations Tuesday in the extortion-conspiracy trial of Rep. Robert Garcia, D-N.Y., and his wife, both accused of taking thousands of dollars in payoffs from the scandal-ridden Wedtech Corp.

Garcia, 56, and his wife, Jane Lee, 48, are accused of selling the lawmaker's influence in exchange for payoffs and a no-interest loan from Wedtech, the now-defunct defense and government contractor.

Wedtech, a South Bronx machine shop that grew into a multimillion-dollar company through influence peddling and payoffs, collapsed in scandal in 1986.

During its third day of deliberations, the U.S. District Court jury asked Judge Leonard Sand whether they could infer the couple was guilty because the defense rested its case without calling a single witness.

Garcia and his wife were charged last November in a seven-count indictment with taking $75,000 in payoffs from Wedtech.

The judge warned the jury against drawing "any conclusions" based on that fact.

The defense rested without calling witnesses, asserting outside the courtroom that the government failed to prove the couple's guilt.

In closing arguments, defense attorneys contended prosecutors based their case on the testimony of a single, uncorroborated witness — a former Wedtech official who pleaded guilty to bribery and other charges in the scandal.

Garcia and his wife were charged last November in a seven-count indictment with taking $75,000 in payoffs from Wedtech. They were also accused of obtaining a $20,000 no-interest loan from a Wedtech official and of taking $77,500 in payments and a diamond and emerald necklace from another executive.

If convicted, the Garcias each face up to 20 years in prison for extortion, 15 years for bribery, five years for conspiracy and two years for receiving illegal gratuities.

Closing arguments begin in three-year trial

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Defense attorneys began their closing arguments Tuesday in the record-length McMartin Pre-School child molestation trial, telling jurors that common sense should dictate that they acquit the defendants.

Defense lawyer Dean Gits, who represents former pre-school teacher Peggy McMartin Buckley, 62, began his argument by displaying color photographs of nine children who testified they were molested at the school and 38 other witnesses who said they had never seen any molestations there.

Those 38 witnesses included Buckley, her son Raymond Buckley, 31, the chief defendant in the case, five other former instructors at the school, and neighbors.

"They all testified that they never saw anything happen at the pre-school," Gits told the Superior Court jury. "So, are the teachers a bunch of liars? If so, how about the neighbors? Are they liars? If so, how about the parents who dropped their children off at the school and picked them up? Are they liars?"

"Why didn't somebody see something in this case? From 1977 until 1983, not one person came in and said they saw anything that even remotely resembled molestations," he told the jury.

Gits told the jury that if they use their common sense, they will realize there is a reasonable doubt as to the defendants' guilt.

The Buckeys, former teachers at the defunct school in Manhattan Beach, are accused of one count of conspiracy and 64 counts of child molestation by sexually abusing 11 pupils from 1978 until 1983.

Gits said attendance records showed Raymond Buckley was not at the pre-school for much of the time that prosecutors said he was molesting children there.

The defense has long argued that the case was triggered by the allegations of an emotionally disturbed woman who believed her son had been molested by Raymond Buckley and that the subsequent police investigation created a climate of hysteria, with parents suspecting that their children had been sexually assaulted.

The trial, now in its third year, is the longest criminal trial in U.S. history and the most expensive, having thus far cost county taxpayers more than $15 million since the case was filed.

Superior Court Judge William Pounders has given each side 6 1/2 days to present their closing arguments. The prosecution concluded the first phase of its closing argument Monday and will give a rebuttal following the defense's argument.

Judge warned for instruction on metal detector avoidance

NEW YORK (UPI) — Court officers threatened Tuesday to arrest a judge who instructed jurors how to avoid metal detectors when reporting to court, telling him that jurors "are street people just like everybody else" and may be carrying weapons.

State Supreme Court Justice James Left, who is presiding over the murder trial of a former psychiatric patient accused of strangling a pregnant Bellevue Hospital doctor, was called a "psycho" by Dennis Quirk, the president of the New York State Court Officers Association.

"If Judge Left interferes with established court procedures place him under arrest immediately," Quirk advised officers manning metal detectors in the lobby of the New York Criminal Courts building.

He said if the judge defies the officers he will "be handcuffed, the whole works. He's gone. He's collared."

In the first six months of this year court officers confiscated 2,800 weapons.

House fire in Philadelphia kills two adults, five children

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Fire flashed through a three-story row-house Tuesday, killing seven family members — five of them children, fire officials said.

Authorities did not release names of the victims or announce the cause of the fire, but neighbors said all the victims were members of the same family.

Witnesses said one child, Joseph Lee, had escaped the blaze but ran back into the house to try to save his invalid grandfather.

"He never came back," said George Hoggard, who lives across the street from the Scott family home, where the fire broke out.

Hoggard, 48, said he was in bed when he heard a neighbor, whom he identified as "Miss Scott," screaming for help. He said he ran downstairs, saw flames pouring from a window, and charged into the house.

Hoggard said the intense heat drove him away. He returned with a wet blanket draped over his head, but could get no further than the kitchen.

Hoggard's son Glen, 13, said he was awakened by Scott's screams, and ran outside to see a friend standing at a third-floor window.

"His mom kept telling him to jump," said Glen Hoggard, who called 911 to report the fire. "But he wouldn't jump. He didn't say anything. He just went back inside."

When firemen arrived at 7:46 a.m., the first floor of the house was engulfed in flames, said Theodore Bateman, deputy fire marshal.

Bateman said firefighters brought the blaze under control in about 25 minutes, then entered the front door and pulled out three children from the first floor. All three were pronounced dead at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia.

Three more bodies were found on the third floor and another body on the second floor, officials said.

Johnny Bailey reflects on rushing record

KINGSVILLE, Texas (UPI) — In his own quick fashion, the small speedster from Texas passed Earl Campbell, Eric Dickerson, Lorenzo White, Thurman Thomas, Marcus Allen, Mike Rozier, Archie Griffin, Herschel Walker, Charles White and, finally, Tony Dorsett.

Dorsett's 6,082 career rushing yards at the University of Pittsburgh was an NCAA record for 12 years — until last Saturday, when Texas A&I's Johnny Bailey rushed for 172 yards against Central State (Okla.), giving him 6,085 career yards and putting him ahead of his childhood idol.

"It really didn't hit me until this past summer," Bailey said. "We never really talked about who the leading rusher was until they told me how close I was, and who was on top. It just made me work even harder."

"Accomplishing something like this is something you never forget, but it was something that took a lot of hard work and dedication, not only from me, but from all my teammates."

edged that this quake was a big one.

"I've been through earthquakes in Los Angeles, in Mexico City and two moderate ones in the Bay area. I think this one sets a record," said Spander.

Bob Smizik, columnist for the Pittsburgh Press, was in the football press box along the left field foul line.

"It would be nice to say we were calm and collected but I was scared," said Smizik. "I was scared the whole stadium was going to fall."

"My first thought was the press box was shaking because people were stamping their feet. Then, I realized it was far more serious."

"Right now, I'd like to be out of the state of California."

Foreman contends Tyson hasn't fought anyone tough

LONDON (UPI) — According to aging heavyweight George Foreman, anyone who thinks Mike Tyson is still going to be world champion in a year's time is sadly mistaken.

"If anyone thinks Mike Tyson is going to beat George Foreman you better put your strait jacket on every night, you're prime nuts," the 42-year-old former champion said Tuesday.

"I am going to be heavyweight champion of the world. I'm going to win the title, reign for a few years, then retire. Then I'm going to come back at 50 and do it again."

Foreman, once billed as the most frightening man in the world, retired from the ring in 1977 to become a fulltime preacher. Now he's back, boasts a record of wins over no-hopers and is planning a challenge to Tyson, possibly in China, next summer.

"To my mind Mike Tyson hasn't fought anybody. I resent talk of Mike Tyson," he said.

Foreman goes into the ring again in January to meet former championship hoppy Gerry Cooney, himself 33 and without a fight since being battered by Michael Spinks two years ago, in what is being touted as a world title elimination, the preacher versus the puncher.

Foreman was in London not to talk about that future pay day, but past ones with his old adversaries Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier, reunited to promote a video of their greatest days, Champion Forever.

Inevitably, Tyson was the subject of much of the questioning, and the champion was verbally dismissed by Foreman, who can at least still talk a good fight.

"I think everyone sitting at this table would whip Mike Tyson. Muhammad Ali had far more experience with tougher guys," he growled.

Frazier said he shares Foreman's optimism and hopes to help him prepare for the fight.

"I don't have any complaints about Mike's job. He's doing a fine job as a young man," he said.

But Frazier added he didn't think Tyson had met anyone of real quality or ability.

"I think Mike's in trouble, big trouble," he warned.

years in the ring, and one come-back too many.

Frazier and Foreman fielded many of the questions aimed at Ali, though he did offer an occasional glimpse of his old humor.

"I don't need to answer that," Ali grinned when one questioner asked who was the greatest ever. Ali refused Foreman's repeated pleas for him to climb into the mock-up ring and demonstrate the famous Ali shuffle.

Ali revealed his greatest moment had been beating Sonny Liston to become world champion in 1964.

"I think everyone sitting at this table would whip Mike Tyson. Muhammad Ali had far more experience with tougher guys."

'Personal Fouls' tells sordid story of N.C. State's descent to disgrace

By Stephanie Wood
Staff Writer

The negative side of big-time college basketball is powerfully portrayed in Peter Goldenbock's book on the controversially surrounding North Carolina State's program and head coach Jim Valvano.

In "Personal Fouls," Goldenbock reveals the secrets behind the success of Valvano's Wolfpack. Recruiting violations, payoff and drug use all have influenced the program's tradition.

"Personal Fouls" gives the basketball fan an inside look at the big business of college hoops, but the author never tells the reader how he stumbled upon this inside track.

Direct quotes from Valvano following crucial victories and losses show the true color of the coach. But Goldenbock skillfully forgets to inform the reader whether he was at these team meetings first-hand.

The credibility of this book must be questioned. If the author has received all his information secondhand from players and others close to the program, the impact is lessened. Goldenbock admits the book is strictly from the players perspective, but if Valvano and North Carolina State are going to be openly criticized, it is necessary to ensure the credibility of the sources' information.

The reader is told in the introduction that names of specific players agreeing to reveal their stories are left out for their protection. According to "Personal Fouls," a manager's shoulder was dislocated by an assistant coach when he heard the manager may be involved in the production of this book.

The content in the book is intriguing and at times causes one to wonder if these accusations could possibly be true. Did Valvano really allow two of his players, Charles Shackleford and Tevin Binns, to steal bedspreads from a Clemson Ramada Inn? Valvano had his manager retrieve the bedspreads from the bus before the game, but the coach did not discipline his players.

Can more than half the basketball team smoke marijuana prior to one of its most important games without Valvano realizing it? Does the charismatic head coach really run the University, bypassing admissions procedures and tampering with grades?

This book definitely portrays the evils of big-time college basketball, but the author insists the players are the only ones being abused. Goldenbock tells the reader that today's players are taken advantage of and do not know enough when they are being recruited to avoid these atrocious humans we call college coaches.

However, this perspective is a little hard to swallow. Players are taking advantage of the universities as much as the universities are using the players. As much as college basketball is a money-making business for all the nations' North Carolina States and the Georgetown, it is a springboard for college players to reach the National Basketball Association. One cannot survive without the other. So the vicious cycle perpetuates itself.

"Personal Fouls" is filled with action and outrageous stories about the game. Although it is not the final say on the problems of N.C. State specifically, and all of basketball in general, it does offer some explanation for why things are the way they are in the arena of college basketball.

Valvano changes recruiting pace

By Keith Drum
UPI College Basketball Writer

Jim Valvano's one-year recruiting ban at North Carolina State could have more implications for the future than next season.

Valvano did not visit prospective recruits during the recently completed one-month contact period, and he said none of his staff will be on the road for either evaluations or contacts until next summer. Also, Valvano said N.C. State will not pay for prospects to visit the campus.

Valvano said his intent is to spend more time with current players and to show that he's serious about clearing the cloud over the program.

"It didn't seem right for me to be out looking for players, like it was business as usual," Valvano said.

However, skeptics — and Valvano has a growing throng of them — charge the ban is mostly a way to get sympathy from the NCAA, which is considering eight violations against Valvano's program. Generally, the more action a school takes against itself the less sanctions from the NCAA.

Also, Valvano has one of last year's recruits — Craig Tyson of Baltimore — expected to enroll in January and a high school player already committed for next year. In addition, four other signees from last year are at junior college or prep school and one or more could be added, depending upon their academic work over the next year.

"We do expect to have some players visit campus on their own, and we probably will offer scholarships," Valvano said.

No matter Valvano's motives or his future, N.C. State's program is headed for changes. Thanks to the summer-long controversy, the academic interests have gained an important foothold, and some of them would like to see Valvano gone as much for spite as cause.

GO SALUKIS!

Vincent, Padgett two keys to cross country's success

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

SIU-C women's cross country coach Don DeNoon said that this year's team is the best one he's coached here.

Two of the many reasons why DeNoon made that claim is the emergence of junior Rosanne Vincent and sophomore Amie Padgett.

Vincent, from Palo Seco, Trinidad, ran the best time by a Saluki this season in the Pelican Cup Invitation I held in New Orleans Saturday. Vincent finished fourth out of 67 runners with a time of 18:08. Vincent's performance moved her into the No. 7 position on the SIU-C women's all-time list ahead of teammate Leeann Conway (18:10).

Vincent also was recently honored by the Gateway Conference as its cross country athlete of the week.

"I felt comfortable Saturday," Vincent said. "Where I'm from the average temperature is 85 degrees and I'm still trying to get used to colder temperatures here."

The Gateway honor was a surprise to Vincent. Vincent, also a track team member, holds the 800-meter school record in both the indoor (2:12.30) and outdoor (2:09.50) events. She also is a member of the No. 1 SIU-C all-time 4 x 800 meter (8:58.7) and distance medley relay (11:53.48) teams.

Vincent has eight indoor and outdoor school track records but this was the first time she had been named athlete of the week in either sport.

"That is an interesting twist," DeNoon said. "She has the school records in track but she receives the honor in cross country."

This is Vincent's second season of cross country. Vincent is ineligible to compete after this season because of her age (24).

DeNoon considers Vincent the most naturally gifted distance runner he has had at SIU-C.

"I think the old saying 'poetry in motion' describes Rosanne," DeNoon said. "She has a mixture of fluidity and ability. She is naturally gifted."

Vincent and DeNoon have had their philosophical differences throughout her career here. In high school, Vincent said she could win events without trying real hard. This attitude carried over to her collegiate career.

"Cross country isn't priority to me, I just do it," Vincent said. "Coach DeNoon thinks I can do so much more. I just want him to treat me as a regular."

DeNoon said he can't accept that.

"I told her that she had the potential to be the best 800-meter runner in the world," DeNoon said. "I think we should be the best we can be. God gave Rosanne tremendous talent and it's frustrating not to see her in nationals or All-American."

When she arrived at SIU-C, Vincent said she had a hard time accepting the fact that their were runners as good or better than her.

"Her first semester here was tough and we had some frustrating times," DeNoon said. "But I don't give up on people. Our chemistry is coming together now and Rosanne just goes out and does it."

Amie Padgett also has been doing it for the Salukis this season.

Padgett lowered her times in each of the last four cross country meets her freshman year.

"I was excited coming into the season," Padgett said. "I worked hard over the summer and with the talent we had joining the team, I was looking forward to the season."

Padgett, from St. Francisville, is No. 13 on the all-time list with a time of 18:28 in the Saluki Invitational Sept. 30. She is also ranked in the Gateway Conference top 10.

Padgett doesn't have the background of some of her teammates.

DeNoon discovered Padgett in a Prairie State Games competition her sophomore year in high school. Padgett attended a small high school that without a track and field or cross country program.

"I qualified for finals in Champaign my sophomore year and Coach DeNoon got back in touch with me my senior year," Padgett said. "I never thought I could compete at this level but he thought I could. I'm from a small area and getting a scholarship really meant a lot to me."

DeNoon said he just had a feeling about Padgett.

"She is slim with long legs like Vincent," DeNoon said. "She's built for distance running but she

"I told her that she (Rosanne Vincent) had the potential to be the best 800-meter runner in the world."

was extremely weak after I recruited her. I felt Amie had a talented body she could develop."

Padgett did things on her own to stay motivated. She ran in Prairie State Games, road races and ran while participating in other sports.

"It felt like I was at a disadvantage at first," Padgett said. "I was intimidated by the other runners. But now I'm physically and mentally stronger."

The development of Vincent and Padgett in addition to the rest of the team has been gratifying to DeNoon.

"To have Vincent, Padgett and Dona Griffin running at the level they are and people coming in like Conway and Dawn Barefoot has been gratifying," DeNoon said. "Everyone has pulled together in a short time. We have a long way to go but we have taken a giant step forward."

Herrin and his staff brought in an outstanding quartet of freshmen for the upcoming season.

Although it will take a few practices for Herrin to decide which players help out the most, Ashraf Anaya, 6-7, 210, Emeka Okenwa, 6-8, 230 and Jason Hodges and Tyrone Bell, both at 6-3 185 — will be looked upon to provide strong play this season.

"Defense wins games," Herrin said. "We have improved our defense a little bit every year. We might not be as good as a shooting team as we were last year, but we're a stronger team and a better team defensively."

about the team's motivation to avoid losing their third straight for the first time since 1981, the last season before Ditka was hired. "Mike got rid of a lot of guys like that when he got here. We just have to wake up and prepare to win. We can't just show up with the 'C' on our helmets and expect to win."

Despite winning their first four games, the Bears surrendered 435 yards in offense to Philadelphia in Week 4. The Buccaneers, whose entire offensive unit was named the NFC's Player of the Week after picking up 415 yards against Chicago the next week, went so far as to say the Bears' defensive schemes were predictable.

Because of the loss of House and Nurnberger, last year's main three-point shooters, Herrin said the team will push the ball inside more this season. Jones should be the recipient of many of those passes because of his dominating inside play.

"We're looking for good things from Jerry," Herrin said. "He is probably the best player I've ever seen. If he can't get the rebound the first time, he'll come right back the second time and get it."

The Salukis will push the ball up the court a little faster this season with Mahan controlling the threat.

"Sterling Mahan is our point guard," Herrin said. "Sterling deserved more playing time last year than he got. He had a great year for us. The point guard job is his. I always try and make the game exciting for our players. We're going to run the basketball more this season."

Herrin said McSwain will have a productive season if he takes his time and shows good shot selection.

Last year the Valley coaches began to watch the tapes and began to back off of Freddie," Herrin said. "He can be a good shooter if he just has a little patience."

1st, 11th against the pass and 10th against the run.

Veterans Mike Singletary and Steve McMichael point to the large number of first and second-year players. But whatever the problem, it appears to be getting worse.

After winning their first four games, the Bears were upset two weeks ago at Tampa Bay 42-35, allowing the most points during Mike Ditka's tenure as head coach and most since 1981. Last Sunday, the defense gave up another 33 points and failed to hold a nine-point lead in the final five minutes against Houston.

"Do you want to be good or do you want to collect your damn pay check," said McMichael, asked

Bears' defensive unit falls on rough times

LAKE FOREST, Ill. (UPI) — The Chicago Bears defensive unit, one of the NFL's most dominant forces from 1985-88, has suddenly fallen on hard times.

The defense that tore opponents apart in Chicago's 1985 Super Bowl season has undergone a massive face lift the past few years. The Bears, however, still managed to lead the league in defense in 1986, setting an NFL record for fewest points allowed. They finished second overall and first against the run the past two seasons.

But through the sixth week of the 1989 season, the Bears defense ranks an incredible 27th overall. In the NFC, the defensive unit is dead

Quake postpones Game 3 of Series

SAN FRANCISCO — A major earthquake struck Northern California Tuesday night and knocked out Game 3 of the World Series. Thousands of fans acted as if nature's uprising was part of the show.

They sat stunned as the upper deck of Candlestick Park rattled around for 15 or 20 seconds but when the shaking stopped, the crowd cheered.

Some picked up chunks of concrete that fell from the facade, vowing to keep them as souvenirs.

Eventually, when the 60,000 or so realized the seriousness of the situation, apprehension started to show, even on faces painted the colors of the San Francisco Giants and Oakland A's. The crowd buzzed when it felt the vibrations of two aftershocks, but, again, there was no panic, no screams in Section 2, behind home plate.

The quake centered near the beach resort town of Santa Cruz, Calif., 75 miles south of San Francisco. It measured between 6.5 and 7.0 on the Richter Scale and occurred on a part of the famed San Andreas Fault where small quakes are common, but no one had expected a large one.

Candlestick is some four miles east of the San Andreas Fault, on the edge of San Francisco Bay. Smoke, from fires in Oakland and Berkeley, drifted into view.

Baseball commissioner Francis T. Vincent said baseball and city officials were to inspect the stadium overnight and decide where and when to reschedule Game 3.

Jorge Costa, vice-president of stadium operations, said an earthquake specialist will be called in.

Minutes after the crisis, stadium announcer Jeff Bonds offered an evacuation plan: "In case of an emergency, those in the upper deck should leave the stadium. Those on the lower levels should go onto the field."

That was good for more cheers from the crowd. Baseball players found their families and headed for the exits. Fans were slower to leave. Some even chanted, "Play the game, play the game."

Most of the stadium lights went out. There were reports of ruptured water lines. Section 11, already reinforced because of old cracks, showed some new damage.

Police cars and a motorcycle came onto the field. Some had emergency lights flashing.

The paying customers generally kept calm. People in the aisles were polite and quiet. An hour after the quake, some lingered at the stadium, until they were specifically ordered out.

Men's basketball team affected by key losses

By Kevin Simpson
Staff Writer

The Saluki men's basketball team heads into the 1989-90 season missing a few key players from last season. At the same time, the losses have cleared the way for other talent to step forward.

Last season, the Salukis won 20 games for the first time in 13 years.

Herrin said he has a better basketball team this year, despite the loss of Kai Nummerger and Randy House, both starters who used all of their eligibility, and Tony Harvey, who dropped out of school.

Harvey has since enrolled at Connor State College in Warner, Okla., with plans on transferring to the University of Georgia.

Herrin said he has retained a strong foundation to build a good team. The key returners for the Salukis this fall are senior guard Freddie McSwain, 15.5 points and 4.1 rebounds per game, senior center Jerry Jones, 10.3 points and 8.8 rebounds, junior forward Rick Shipley, 8.8 points and 7.3 rebounds, junior point guard Sterling Mahan, 8.9 points and 2.2 rebounds.

The coach said Shipley is the most underrated player in the Missouri Valley Conference because of his court awareness and his ability to play the small or big forward position. Shipley led the team in rebounding in each of the last two seasons.

Shipley's versatility will enable Herrin to alter the lineup according to the competition. "We can play a big team or a quick team, it depends on where we put Shipley," Herrin said.

Southwest's wishbone, QB pose test for Saluki defense

By Daniel Wallenberg
Staff Writer

Gerry Hart, Saluki defensive coordinator, and the defensive unit will have a formidable task in stopping Southwest Missouri State's junior quarterback DeAndre Smith. Hart said the Salukis are up to the task.

Smith leads the Gateway Conference in three individual offensive categories and is second in a fourth.

In seven games Smith has carried the ball 123 times for 683 yards for an average of 97.6 a game. He also leads in scoring with 54 points on nine touchdowns.

As a passer, Smith leads in completion percentage (.602) and yards per attempt (8.1).

Saluki quarterback Scott Gabbert leads in total offense with an average of 241.3 yards a game followed by Smith with 199.6.

Last year the Bears ran primarily a wishbone offense but Hart said this year the Salukis can expect some deviations from the strict running attack.

"(Smith) is an excellent quarterback," Hart said. "He's not just running the option. He runs a lot of sprint-out passes and he's an excellent scrambling quarterback."

Hart said both Smith and the SMSU offense cannot be considered one dimensional like other wishbone offenses the Salukis have faced.

"What we'll have to deal with is basically a multiple offense that incorporates wishbone principles, option principles and run and shoot principles as well as a wide open passing attack," Hart said.

The Bear offense leads the Gateway in scoring offense with an average of 33.6 points a game, rushing offense with 335.4 yards a game and total offense with 443.1 yards a game.

Hart said the Saluki defense will have to be reasonably well balanced to stop the Bears.

"The game will be a challenge for our defense," Hart said. "I think we have good defensive football players and I think we'll rise to the occasion."

"Their ranking and their position (in the conference) will be a moti-vator for us," Hart said. "It's a conference game and it's homecoming. I think we'll have some things going for us."

The Bears are first in the conference with a perfect 4-0 record and are ranked No. 8 in division I-AA.

"We don't see a problem getting up for the game," Miller said. "We have played ranked teams before and played well against them."

When the Salukis played Murray State and Arkansas State earlier in the season both were ranked in the top 20 in I-AA.

Currently, MSU is No. 17 and ASU is No. 6. The Salukis' lone victory this season came against Eastern Illinois.

The Saluki defense has had some trouble with wishbone teams this season. Miller said adjustments have been made to play better run defense on the outside of the field.

Playing the Bears is "a good opportunity to get back on the right track, to get back in the win column," Miller said.

3 athletes win weekly honors

Nina Brackins

By Greg Scott
Staff Writer

Three Salukis nabbed Gateway Athlete of the Week honors for outstanding performances in their respective sports.

Anne Childress (golf), Rosanne Vincent (cross country) and Nina Brackins (volleyball) received Gateway honors this week.

Childress, a sophomore, finished fifth out of 90 in the Lady Kat Invitational held in Lexington, Ky. Saturday. Childress fired 77-80-76 for 233 strokes in the 54-hole tournament. Childress' 76 was a career 18-hole low and her 233 strokes was a career low for 54 holes.

Anne Childress

Childress led the Salukis to a fourth place finish in the 17-team tournament, bettering their 16th place finish from last season.

For the third consecutive week, a SIU-C cross country runner received Gateway honors. Rosanne Vincent, a junior, received the honor as a result of finishing fourth out of 67 runners in the Pelican Cup Saturday in New Orleans.

Vincent's time of 18:08 moved her into the No. 7 position ahead of freshman Leeann Conway on the SIU-C all-time cross country list. Conway received the Gateway honor the previous two weeks.

"God gave Rosanne a tremendous amount of ability," SIU-C cross country coach Don DeNoon said. "She's starting to go out there and do it."

Rosanne Vincent

Nina Brackins, a senior middle blocker, led the SIU-C volleyball squad to conference victories over Western Illinois and Bradley this weekend.

Against Western Illinois, Brackins had a career-high 29 kills for the match and a .367 hitting percentage. Brackins said the win meant a lot for her team.

"It felt so good," Brackins said. "It's a real confidence builder." Brackins also had eight kills and a .333 hitting percentage against Bradley.
