MADD opposes Halloween liquor ads

By John Kmita
Staff Reporter

Murphysboro liquor store owners are meeting opposition from Mothers Against Drunk Driving in the form of letters asking them not to advertise for Halloween weekend.

Navreet Kang, president of the

Gus Bode

Gus says I don't think it's neighboring commerce we should be MADD at.

Jackson County chapter of M.A.D.D., said the letter being sent is his personal opinion and is only meant to discourage liquor store owners from excessive advertising that may be the result of the Carbondale Halloween liquor ordinances.

The liquor ordinances passed by the Carbondale City Council require all liquor stores in Carbondale to close at 10 p.m. and prohibit them from selling liquor in containers of two gallons or more during the Halloween weekend.

One Murphysboro liquor store owner, who declined to be identified, said the letter she received Oct. 15 from M.A.D.D. made her feel guilty because she planned to run an advertisement before Halloween.

After talking to several other liquor distributors, she decided she would go ahead and run the ad.

By passing the liquor ordinances, she said the city of Carbondale is sending people onto the street.

"It's not like I'm going there and selling liquor out of the back of a truck, they're sending people to me."

She said the letter almost discouraged her from advertising, while several liquor distributors have asked her for a copy of the letter and those who have read it are not happy about it.

Kang said he is not picking on liquor store owners—he is just asking them not to advertise heavily.

"We would like to see them help us keep problems down," he said.

In the letter, Kang wrote "We are not asking you not to sell liquor at all, but what we are asking of you is that you do not attempt to cash in on the opportunity since the

USG releases safety plan

By Chad Anderson
Staff Reporter

The Undergraduate Student Government released complete details of its Halloween Safety Committee at a press conference Wednesday.

Members and volunteers of the committee plan to converse with people exiting bars during the early closing times during Halloween weekend, and talk to them as a friend rather than an authority figure.

"They'll be distributing condoms, candy, and directions to bars open past 10 p.m. to help keep things safe," Edwin Sawyer, USG president and committee member said.

He said about 50 members and volunteers will be on S. Illinois Ave., but they do not intend to police it.

"They'll be there until the Strip is taken care of, or until things get out of hand," he said. "If things get out of hand, we will let the authorities take over. We're not going to be pulling people away from fights."

Sawyer said committee members and volunteers will concen-

SIU lauded for high rate of black doctoral graduates

By Marc Chase
Senior Reporter

A survey conducted by a national research agency shows that the number of African-Americans who received doctoral degrees at universities across the country last year rose by 15 percent.

According to the survey, SIU ranked in the top 20 in the nation for producing African-American doctoral graduates.

The survey, conducted by the National Research Council, gives a break down of the percentages of all ethnic groups which compose the total number of doctoral graduates in 1993 including African-Americans, Asians, Hispanics, Native Americans and Caucasians.

According to the survey, 1,106 African-American men and women earned doctoral degrees in 1993 which represents a 15 percent increase from 1992. Officials of the research council said the increase probably represents an upward trend in African-American doctoral graduates.

Julie Clark, research associate for the council, said SIU ranked twentieth out of all universities in the nation in the number of African-American doctoral graduates between the years 1989-1993.

"There were fifty-one black Ph.D.s at SIU produced over a five-year span,"

Clark said. "Right now, SIU is tied for black doctoral graduates with the City University of New York."

SIU also ranks twenty-three in the nation for recipients of African-American bachelors degrees, Clark said.

The new ranking that resulted from the survey represents an improvement in the number of African-American doctoral graduates from a past ranking, according to the figure provided by the SIU Graduate School.

Susan Morris, director of federal relations for the SIU Graduate School, said the University ranked thirty-one in the country for African-American doctoral graduates from 1990-1991.

Richard Falvo, an associate dean of the graduate school, said the University has historically had a large number of African-American doctoral graduates when compared to national figures.

"We have always been leaders in the country in this category," Falvo said.

Deb Smitley, associate director of public affairs for the Illinois Board of Higher Education, said on a state level, African-American students represented 2.9-percent of the doctoral graduates at Illinois public universities from 1991 to 1992.

Smitley said the 1991-1992 figures are the most current records IBHE has

Business college hires dean after 2-year search

By Kellie Huttes
Senior Reporter

After more than two years of searching, SIUC's College of Business Administration has a new dean.

Thomas Keon, an associate dean for the College of Business at Florida Atlantic University, will assume the post at the University Jan. 1 after a selection process that exhausted two committees and nine prospective deans.

The college has been without a dean since August 1992, when Thomas Gutteridge, dean for 10 years, left to take a position at the University of Connecticut, according to Greg White, an associate professor of management and chairman for the COBA dean selection committee since June.

White said in the years the college has been without a dean, faculty members have served as interim deans.

White was selected to chair the search committee after the preceding chair, Gordon Bruner, stepped down.

Bruner, acting chairman of the marketing department, said the selection process took a lot of time and work. After the first and second selections failed, he said, he was fed up with the situation.

"We had an 'A list' with three people and a 'B list' with three people that all failed," he said.

"Ultimately none of the people were satisfactory to the people on the committee or to parties in the group.

"After that Dr. (Ben) Shepherd (vice president for academic affairs and provost) said we officially aborted the (selection) process."

He said the process was put on hold because of the lengthy amount of time it took the committee and

FRENCH CANDIDATE FALTERS AMID SCANDALS — PARIS—Only a month ago, the presidential fortunes of France's Gaullist Prime Minister Edouard Balladur looked unassailable. He was riding high in opinion polls, the economy was starting to perk up and even his political foes admitted he loomed as Socialist President Francois Mitterrand's most likely successor. But within a matter of weeks, Balladur has come close to being knocked off his patrician pedestal. His center-right government is being ripped apart by judicial inquiries and political intrigue as two Cabinet ministers have been forced to resign on corruption charges, and four more are believed to be under investigation by prosecuting magistrates for "abusing the social trust." Aides to the prime minister say they suspect the timing of the scandals and the coming presidential campaign are related.

DEADLINE APPROACHES ON BOSNIA EMBARGO — WASHINGTON—While Washington anxiously watches Haiti and Iraq, the clock began ticking last weekend on another sticky foreign policy challenge — a presidential promise to seek an end to the U.N. arms embargo against Bosnia. And according to Bosnian and U.S. sources, President Clinton is expected to keep his promise as early as this week by introducing a resolution in the Security Council to lift the embargo in six months if the Bosnian Serbs have not agreed to a pending peace plan. The outlook for passage is in doubt because of opposition on the council from Britain and France, who fear their peacekeeping troops would be threatened and say they'll be withdrawn if such a resolution is approved.

BAGHDAD FALLS VICTIM TO CRIME, POVERTY — BAGHDAD, Iraq—The city where few people used to lock their houses, where noisy nightclubs and riverside restaurants once kept the streets alight until dawn, now is a wary place of rampant crime and medieval punishment where the government preaches religion as a balm against social unrest. Four years of U.N.-imposed economic sanctions have caused widespread shortages and skyrocketing inflation, which in turn have spawned an outbreak of thefts, killings and petty corruption unknown in the Iraqi capital during the boom years of oil prosperity.

FDA CLEARS PEPSI AFTER RAT FOUND IN SODA — Federal investigators found a decaying rat inside a Diet Pepsi Cola can sold in Southern California, but decided to close the case without issuing warnings to Pepsi Cola or to the public, U.S. Food and Drug Administration authorities confirmed Wednesday. Investigators inspected the Pepsi-Cola bottling company factory in Buena Park, Calif., that produced the soda, but turned up no problems with cleanliness or quality control, FDA spokeswoman Rosario Quintanilla-Vior said. A 22-year-old woman has filed suit against Pepsi Cola Co. and the Albertson's grocery store chain, alleging she bought and drank from the can of Diet Pepsi that contained the dead rat. Pepsi officials say the incident may be a hoax.

Book sale offers low prices, literary cause

By Benjamin Golshahr
Staff Reporter

Enough books will be available at Morris Library's book sale for someone to begin their own private library.

David Koch, director of Special Collections at Morris Library, said thousands of books of all kinds and subjects will be sold for dollars and cents at the book sale.

"There will be books of all topics — literature, political science, some good books on linguistics, philosophy, religion, sociology, education, some children's books, quite a few on foreign language and many good history books," he said.

Koch said there will be many good titles that would enhance anyone's personal library.

"There are some critical works as well as primary works," he said. "Some are first editions as well. There are really some good books — you just have to find them."

Koch said most of them will sell for 50 cents, others for a dollar.

"Some of the better ones, like encyclopedias, may cost two of three dollars," he said.

He said many of the good titles may go fast, but since some of the books will be held until Friday morning, there will be a good selection throughout the sale.

The books were donated to the library by the 'Friends of Morris Library,' an organization which exists to further library goals.

Koch said the library did not want to put these books on its shelves for different reasons.

"Some of the books were in poor condition, the library already had many copies of some of them and others are outdated," he said.

Steve Esling, president of the 'Friends of Morris Library' and an SIUC associate geology professor, said all the money raised from the book sale will be donated to the library.

"Our primary concern is to generate money in addition to funding the library receives from the state," he said. "A lot of the computers in Morris Library were purchased through our funds. The book sale is our primary fund raising event."

He said the organization is composed of Southern Illinois citizens who appreciate and support the library.

The organization is going to pay for half of the remodeling of the library's browsing room, he said.

The book sale will last from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Thursday, and from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday.

Meeting to promote gang awareness

By Connie Fritsche
Staff Reporter

A program in a neighboring community this evening will address the issue that gangs are no longer a "big city" problem and raise awareness of signs that may show the presence of gang activity.

Kendall Glodo, Murphysboro police chief, said the meeting was not scheduled in response to any particular crime incident, but to raise community awareness of gang identification and history in order to prevent future problems.

School officials in the district held a similar meeting last spring at Murphysboro Junior High School. Glodo said that meeting met with good response from the community, and he expects this one will receive a similar response.

He said although gangs have not become a large problem in the area, they still are present and the community needs to know about gang signs and symbols in hopes that awareness may preclude a gang problem.

"We're (the police) seeing gangs everywhere, not necessarily organized groups, but we have seen gang activity," he said. "We (the community) need to be aware of tip-offs that someone may be trying to form a gang."

Sharon Feltman, substance abuse prevention coordinator for school district 186, said the district has been involved with gang awareness and prevention efforts for some time.

She said some gang programs were presented in the district's schools last spring and teachers participated in an orientation program this year.

One of the teachers who attended last year's orientation noticed some gang-related doodling by an elementary student.

Because of the program, the teacher understood what the doodling was, Feltman said.

She said the program tonight is a precautionary measure.

"This is a decision to be proactive rather than reactive," Feltman said.

"We don't want to wait until gangs are entrenched in our schools before we do something."

The meeting will be at 7 p.m. at Blackwood Auditorium in Murphysboro High School. It is open to the community.

Lt. Calvin Stearns of the Carbondale Police Department will be speaking at the event. Other scheduled speakers include Sheriff Bill Kilquist, regional school Superintendent Don Brewer, Chief Kendall Glodo and Mike Norrington, director of the Southern Illinois Criminal Justice Training Program.

Partners should be treated as legitimate

DENIED THE RIGHT TO MARRY, GAY AND lesbian couples on campus are unfairly being left out of family housing. The SIUC administration has recently responded to gay and lesbian groups on campus, stating that the issue of same-sex housing is being considered. The formal push by campus gay-couple rights advocates began about a year ago when a committee was formed to look at the possibilities. The committee, called the Committee to Investigate Domestic Partnerships on Campus, is concerned with giving gay couples an equal opportunity in University-owned housing. The administration's tone concerning the issue is understandably one of caution due to the possibility of various opinions on the subject.

What the group Gays, Lesbians, Bisexuals and Friends (GLBF) wants is the right for student and faculty who have established domestic partnerships to share the same rights as legally married couples. Domestic partnerships are living arrangements and lifestyles between same-sex partners. SIUC presently does not have a process by which to become domestic partners. If such a process is adopted it would probably be similar to those on other campuses where two individuals sign a statement saying they are long-term partners. Other stipulations are that two people are currently living together and are sharing resources.

Gay couples have a legitimate argument saying that family housing is currently unavailable to them because they are unmarried. And, the fact that under Illinois state law same-sex couples do not have the legal right to marry automatically excludes them from consideration for family housing. The Triangle Coalition, a gay and lesbian group on campus composed of SIUC personnel, has also voiced its desire for change in the faculty housing requirements. Currently, only full-time faculty members, their spouses and children are eligible for living quarters in Southern Hills. This again makes a gay couple's only option to go off campus. The push for a policy change originated last year when a University employee, who was assigned to live in Brush Towers because of her position, wanted her mate to live with her. Policy kept her from doing so.

IF DOMESTIC PARTNERS ARE ALLOWED TO live together in family housing they would only be entitled to the University services normally available to spouses, so the change would not be drastic. This would include facilities such as the Student Recreation Center and Morris Library to name two examples. If both partners are students these services are already available to them anyway. Even if allowed to reside together in family housing, domestic partners would not have access to any state-provided service available to married couples on campus. Insurance and other benefits would not be extended to same-sex couples because of the state's failure to recognize them. To alter this would require a policy change at the legislative level, but the GLBF has expressed that the right to share housing is the most important issue. But, for now there is no reason same-sex couples should be denied the right of living together in University Housing.

Letters to the Editor

Hawkins absent on SIUC issues

I have been reading all the comments about the State Representative's race in the 115th District between Gerald Hawkins and Mike Bost. I have received literature and would like to address Mr. Hawkins concerning his claims of securing 13 million dollars in funds for SIUC. Looking closely at this claim, I can't help but wonder if Hawkins is once again taking credit for the hard work of others.

It should be known that Mr. Hawkins was absent on 7 of the 11 education appropriations bills considered by the House Appropriations-Education Committee, of which he was a member. Most notably is his absence when the committee considered funding for the ordinary and contingent expenses for SIUC, the Board of Higher Education, the State University Retirement System, and the State Universities Civil Services System. I do not understand how Mr. Hawkins can claim that he worked so hard to secure tax dollars for SIUC when he doesn't care enough to be in attendance to vote!

Mr. Hawkins needs to realize that he can no longer lie to the people of Southern Illinois. His continued effort to take credit for anything positive in our area is getting redundant and smacks of desperate measure to sway the vote. Hawkins continually states that the constituents should vote on his record. I feel that is exactly what we need to do. We need a responsible voice for Southern Illinois. We need a committed representative that will take the time to listen, make the effort to actually show up, and be a strong voice for our community. We need to elect Mike Bost as our next state representative on November 8. He'll work for us and he will work for SIUC!

—Michael D. Morgan, senior, administration of justice

Retirement update becoming too political

I recently received a "Legislative Update" from the State Universities Retirement System (SURS) which informed me, for the second time, that legislation had been passed which will increase the state's funding of the SURS system. While I am pleased about the legislation, I questioned why SURS sent two separate "Updates." The first had a picture of Governor Edgar with the SURS staff, and highlighted the bipartisan efforts of the Governor and legislative leaders.

The latest mailing had a simple picture of Gerald Hawkins and proclaimed Mr. Hawkins' contributions to the SURS funding efforts. But the title of the update indicates that it was Senate Bill 533 that became law.

Since this looked more like a campaign mailing than a "legislative Update" I called Mr. Tony Freveletti, SURS Governmental Relations Officer in Springfield, to find out just what Mr. Hawkins did for us. Mr. Freveletti indicated that Mr. Hawkins was one of six (or so) co-sponsors of the legislation. When I asked what Mr. Hawkins did except sign on to the bill, Mr. Freveletti indicated that he "held a press conference in Springfield." When further pressed, Mr. Freveletti indicated that this legislation would not have passed if it had not been approved by legislators who have "large pockets of SURS membership in their district."

He also indicated that surveys of SURS members have indicated that they "want to know which legislators are supportive of SURS initiatives." Why didn't SURS indicate how Senator Ralph Dunn voted? Maybe because Senator Dunn isn't up for reelection this year, or because he is Republican?

All previous publicity about the SURS funding has focused on how the Governor and legislative leadership put aside politics to pass this legislation.

Mr. Freveletti admitted that the legislation that passed was different from Edgar's original plan and from Mr. Madigan's original plan. So why did SURS go to all the expense to mail a separate informational piece to us?

It turns out that SURS sent 20 separate mailings to SURS members, of which this mailing with Mr. Hawkins' picture was the only one. Each piece was a separate printing! The piece I received indicated that it was "Printed by the Authority of the State of Illinois: 3,630 copies." Mr. Freveletti indicated that this was the number printed for Mr. Hawkins' constituents alone. Assuming 20 equal mailings (a total of 72,600 pieces) at the lowest bulk postal rate of $.051, the mailing costs alone for this "Legislative Update" cost our retirement system $3702.60—not including printing and staff costs.

A reasonable figure for the total costs probably approaches $20,000. This does not appear to me to be effective use of SURS money, and appears to be a way to use SURS funding to subsidize the re-election efforts of Mr. Hawkins and others.

Upon further inquiry, it turns out that before joining the staff Mr. Freveletti was a member of Michael Madigan's staff! This "Legislative Update" still looks like a campaign tactic to me. I just wish they would raise their own campaign funds, rather than use our retirement funds to try to get Mr. Hawkins re-elected. But desperate men use desperate means.

"We are dealing with the Strip," he said. "We're too small to deal with the whole problem."

Sawyer said the committee thought candy would loosen the tension of the Strip, and hopes it will remind people of the true meaning of Halloween.

Kim Clemmons, Student Programming Council executive chairwoman, and Megan Coulter, the only non-organizational student on the committee, both said they thought they were good additions to the committee.

Coulter also agreed that almost all types of students are represented on the committee. The committee will be setting up tables to for volunteer sign-ups and for students to voice their ideas.

"We will be setting up tables in the Student Center's Hall of Fame on Thursday and Friday, and hope to have tables in the cafeterias next week," Teomm Williams, Black Affairs Council coordinator, said.

Committee members said they thought it was too late to make any significant changes for this year.

Sawyer also agreed with Clemmons.

"It's (the committee) is planned for throughout the year. Hopefully we can find a solution for next year," he said.

The remainder of the committee is made up of Graduate and Professional Student Council vice-president Jason Matthews, Inter-Greek Council president Scott Pfeiffer, International Student Council president Wan Kamal Wan Napi, USG city affairs commissioner Chris Bruley and USG housing, tuition and fees commissioner Brian Rukas.

faculty members to screen, evaluate and select prospects.

Bruner said during the last selection process, the group and committee members had better luck with the applicants and agreement on Keon.

Once the 13-member committee agrees upon an applicant, more than 40 college faculty members must approve of the decision. Then the vice presidents, president and chancellor make the final decision on who the University will hire, he said.

White said although the committee might have approved a candidate, members of the faculty did not agree on the choice, or the candidates the group and committee were interested in withdrew from the search. He said in addition to college faculty, an English professor, the dean of the College of Liberal Arts, a representative from the Touch of Nature and a local business person were members of the selection committee.

Bruner said Keon is young, dynamic and will add a lot to the University because he is familiar with the Midwest and was an assistant business dean at the University of Missouri at Columbia. White said he expects Keon to add fresh ideas to the college.

Bruner said now that the college has a dean, an external search for a chairperson for the marketing department and an internal search for a director of the accounting department will begin.

on doctoral graduation rates. She said the most recent percentage shows a decline from the 3.3 percent of African-American students who received doctoral degrees between 1988 and 1989 at state universities.

SIU Graduate School officials said in July that the efforts of the University to recruit more African-Americans and minority students to graduate programs at the University will increase as part of a program titled Proactive Recruitment Of Minority Professionals of Tomorrow (PROMPT) which began this fall.

PROMPT, is a program in which SIU works with twelve African-American colleges in the country to actively recruit students to the University's graduate programs.

Falvo said the program should significantly increase the number of doctoral graduates in the future.

He said it is too difficult to project how many more graduates will be created by the program because it is a relatively new program.

The break-down of doctoral graduates in 1993 includes 4.5 percent African-American, 7 percent Asian, 3.4 percent Hispanic, 0.4 percent Native American and 83.8 percent Caucasian. At SIU, doctoral graduates from 1992-1993 included 6 percent African-Americans, 2 percent Asians, 1 percent Hispanics and 91 percent Caucasians with no Native Americans.

A committee of representatives from the Illinois House of Representatives conducted a hearing in July to question the minority practices of SIU in its hiring of minority faculty and the quality of its minority academic programs.

Some representatives on the committee, including Wyvetter Young, D-East St. Louis, said they questioned if SIU had adequate programs, retention rates and graduation rates for minority students in undergraduate, graduate and doctoral categories.

John Haller, SIU associate vice chancellor for academic affairs, said despite criticism from some legislators, the University has the second highest number of graduating African-Americans out of the top six predominantly white universities in the nation.

Award-winning Weir to perform

By Aleksandra Macys
Senior Reporter

The sounds of classical music will fill the air Friday evening as a concert organist puts on a free performance in Shryock Auditorium.

Weir

Gillian Weir at 8 p.m.

The purpose of the series, which has included performers Gerre Hancock and John Scott, is to bring noted organists to perform for the Southern Illinois community.

Weir, an English recitalist, is one of only a few concert organists today who earns her living solely from performances such as world tours, television appearances and master classes for which she has won many awards and honors.

"They (visiting musicians) must have world-wide recognition, be at the height of their career and be able to communicate with the audience."

—David N. Bateman

Her latest award was the Commander of the British Empire award in 1989. Weir also works as a broadcaster and communicator.

Music magazine, "The Musical Times," hailed Weir's concert as having "electrical intensity," and said there is true genius, not only in her playing, but in the composition and arrangement of her program.

Bateman, SIUC business instructor, said organists for the series are selected from the top musicians in the world.

"They must have world-wide recognition, be at the height of their career and be able to communicate with the audience," he said.

He said the series was created to bring quality arts exposure to Southern Illinois with no charge.

"The recital is always free," he said.

"Five years ago when Gillian Weir played at Shryock, it cost $10."

Although Weir will play classical selections, Bateman said her performance will be exciting.

"Even though its always classical, its certainly not dull," he said. "Gillian will be playing works by current 20th century composers along with the normal Bach items," he said.

"She's a dynamo — a delightful person."

A pre-recital buffet featuring London broil and marinated chicken breast will be available for $8.50 plus tax at 6 p.m. in the Student Center Ballroom B. Those interested in the buffet should contact 453-1130 today.

The series is funded by an endowment from SIUC professors Marianne Webb and David Bateman.

Campus life editor Charlotte Rivers contributed to this story.

Flickers hosts Burnt Nervends

Funk-rock band stops in Carbondale during Midwest tour

By Dave Katzman
Staff Reporter

St. Louis' Burnt Nervends are proof that sometimes you have to step back and reassess yourself before moving toward your goal.

The band can divide its history into two epochs.

Conceived in early 1990, the Nervends reached for the popular college funk sound, utilizing a sax-lying somewhere in the realm between alternative and metal.

Stephanie Metroulas, Burnt Nervends' manager, said Smith's addition was a metamorphosis for the band.

"They changed so much when they got rid of the sax and got a new bassist," she said. "It's like the band began then. That's the direction they wanted to go."

In May, the group released "Marrow." At over 70 minutes long, the release received good reviews for all its aspects, including musicianship and songwriting. The Nervends went down to Memphis to play the Crossroads Music Festival and a talent scout from A & M Records was supposed to see the show. But the scout caught the wrong band, wondering why it did not sound like the Burnt Nervends were supposed to.

The result of the near-brush with a record contract has not slowed the band down.

Eli Ball, who has produced acts including Lord Tracy and Mutha's Day Out, is interested in flying the Nervends out to Los Angeles to record.

Metroulas said all six bands Ball has worked with have ended up on a major label because Ball's work is of such quality that the label does not have to spend money to re-record the group.

Burnt Nervends has written eight new songs since "Marrow," and is currently touring the Midwest.

Burnt Nervends is appearing tonight at 9:30 p.m. at Flickers, 718 S. Illinois Ave. Admission is $2.

Old-timer gets tryout at Kutztown

Los Angeles Times

KUTZTOWN, Pa.—The sophomore they call "Iceman" rumbles through the crowded campus dining hall, stops to run his student ID card through a scanner, gets the go-ahead for dinner, grabs his tray and silverware and sets forth to do what college football players do best:

Eat. The grub is typical dormitory fare. Tonight's special is sweet potato pie ... with spinach?

There's enough starch on his plate to open a shirt laundry, but a man's got to eat.

So, the Iceman loadeth. Then, on to the salad bar, where en route he joshes with teammates who threaten him with noogies.

Seated, Iceman says a silent premeal prayer, hopeful his signals will penetrate the din of a fingernails-on-chalkboard rock song blasting from an overhead speaker. Asked if he could name that grunge tune, Chuck Roseberry reveals for a moment what he is—a 46-year-old grandfather of four.

"Music?" he says sarcastically. "I thought it was a noisy (ceiling) fan."

Most thought Roseberry was nuts. Certifiable. It was one thing to make like Rodney Dangerfield and go back to school in his mid-40s, quite another to walk into the football coach's office and ask for a tryout.

But that's what Roseberry did last February. Al Leonzi, the third-year coach at Division II Kutztown University, almost split a gut.

"You're at the wrong office," Leonzi told Roseberry, "You have to go to admissions."

Roseberry kept a foot wedged in the door and asked the coach to hear him out.

Leonzi told him to pull up a chair.

Roseberry successfully begged for the chance to live his life over. The first 45 years had gone bust. Roseberry had played his last football game Thanksgiving Day, 1965, but could never clear it from his memory.

"I don't know about the Olympics. It's something I've thought about, but I like to take things one at a time."

The Saluki men's and women's swimming/diving teams will begin their season at home against Louisville, Oct. 21 at 5 p.m. at the Recreation Center pool.

The SIUC men will be led by diver and Olympic hopeful Rob Siracusano, while the swimmers are anchored by three young newcomers.

Chris Pelant, an NJCAA

swimming champion, former Indiana state champ William Enoch and former Illinois state champion Steve Manz will try to step up and lead head coach Rick Walker's young Saluki squad this season.

The Saluki women return 15 members from last season's 7-6 team.

Along with Davis, Kelly Krouth, Sarah Schmidtkofer, Jennifer Bobanic and Camille Hammond will be Klumper's top swimmers, while the divers will be headed by Lisa Holland.

V-ball team overcomes Evansville

By Sean Walker

Salukis continue winning streak, 8-0 at home

The Saluki volleyball team extended its home winning streak last night taking three out of four games from Evansville in Davies Gymnasium.

With the 15-13, 15-11, 14-16, 15-4 victory, SIUC tied a school record by winning its eighth straight home match.

The Salukis also got its tenth conference win this year to set a school record. This is the best Saluki record since the '85 team won nine in Gateway play.

SIUC head coach Sonya Locke said the reason the Salukis have a better chance to get 10 wins this year is because of the double round-robin schedule in the MVC.

"We used to only play each team once, so 10 wins would be considered a feat," she said. "This year with the 21-match conference schedule, we should post 10 wins."

"Right now, we haven't really accomplished a big feat with the 10 wins, 20 wins would be an accomplishment."

The Salukis lost its first game at home this season, and Locke said a single game doesn't matter, the match win does.

"We will do whatever it takes to get into the conference tournament at the end of the season."

—Sonya Locke

"We are trying to get into the conference tournament, and if it means winning in four games, or even three or five, we just need the victory," she said. "We will do whatever it takes to get into the conference tournament at the end of the season. And that means win as many matches as we can."

SIUC started out slow in the first game, and Locke said she gave them some words of wisdom between games one and two.

"They looked lethargic in the first game, and I chewed them out after game one," she said. "They are a veteran team, and I think they are capable of starting better."

SIUC bolted back in game two, but still allowed Evansville to fight back and score 11 points.

Game three started out bad for the Salukis as Evansville took a five point lead early, but SIUC fought back hard throughout the game. The Salukis tied the game at 14, but couldn't hang on, and the Aces won game three. After the disappointing loss in game three, SIUC took the court for the fourth game, and dominated the Aces.

Junior outside hitter Heather Herdes tied a career-best win 21 kills in the match. Senior middle blocker Deb Heyne had 18 kills in 31 attempts and led the Salukis with a .419 attack percentage.

SIUC plays in St. Louis this weekend in a non-conference tournament.

Swimmer aims for Olympic trials, NCAA

Davis follows sister's example

By Chris Clark
Staff Reporter

For SIUC swimmer Melanie Davis, becoming a swimmer and a Saluki was a family affair.

Davis said she became a competitive swimmer at the age of six because of the success that her sister Cheryl had at the sport.

"My sister was a swimmer, and I basically wanted to do what she (Cheryl) did," she said. "She was getting awards and things, and I was kind of jealous and I wanted to do the same thing."

Although Cheryl, a Saluki swimmer from 1990-93, played a part in Melanie's decision to come to SIUC, it was the team itself that put her over the top.

"I gave verbal commitment to the University of Kentucky, so I was actually supposed to go there, and then I took another recruiting trip and it was here," Davis said. "I got along so well with the team that I already felt I was part of it, and I decided this is where I wanted to be."

SIUC women's swim coach Mark Kluemper, who would have been Davis' coach at Kentucky, was named head coach here during Melanie's freshman year.

"Mark recruited me at Kentucky. He was the assistant coach there, and he ended up coming here the same year I did," Davis said. "It worked out really well because he (Kluemper) was the reason I was going to sign there."

Davis will miss the first meet of the season Friday because she is still recovering from a fractured tailbone injury she sustained during the off-season.

Despite not being 100 percent, Davis said the injury will cause her some pain, but she does not think it will hamper her desire or performance.

"I have to be mentally tough for it (getting over the pain)," she said. "It's really painful because the kind of injury I got takes a long time to recover from, I think I'll still do well."

"I'm not swimming Friday, but I'm going to swim next week at Arkansas."

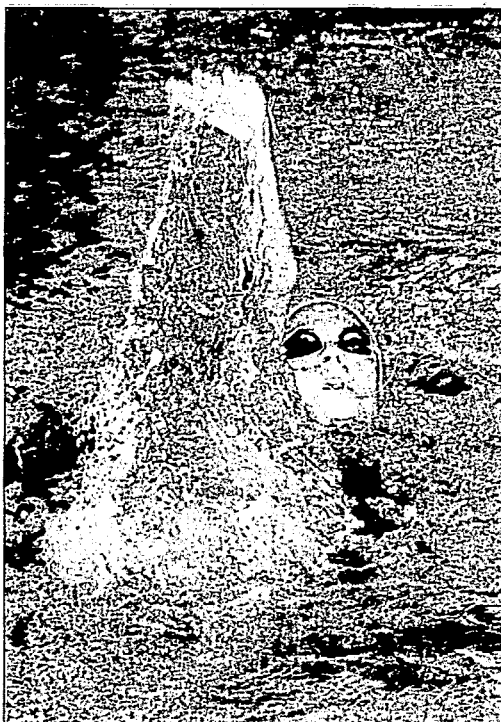

Even though she will have to work extremely hard, Davis said she will not let go of her goal for the year.

"My goal is to get back and still make the NCAA's. It's still the same goal I've had all year," she said. "Having an injury just means I'll just have to work harder."

Davis, a junior, said making the Olympic trials is another goal she is trying to reach.

"My senior year, I'm going to try and make the Olympic Trials," she said. "I just think it's a good way to go out and finish up swimming. I'm not far from it at all, and I know it's a goal I can reach."

NFL coaches rated: Parcells named best

By Bob Glauber
The Sporting News

Sometimes you have to wonder why Bill Parcells came back to the coaching business. Considering that he had a heart condition and had already won two Super Bowls, wouldn't it have been easier to collect a few million sitting behind a microphone for the rest of his days?

No, it wouldn't have been. And you know why? Because Parcells is a coach, pure and simple. And, for our money, he is the best coach in football right now, even if his rebuilding Patriots team is still struggling to establish an identity.

Parcells has plenty of competition at the top, but we give him the edge because of his motivational abilities, his record with the New York Giants and his relentless pursuit of perfection.

Here's how we rate today's National Football League coaches, 1 through 28:

No. 1 — Parcells: As long as he remains healthy—and that's no given, considering his past heart problems—he will build the New England Patriots into a championship-caliber team within four years.

No. 2 — Don Shula, Miami Dolphins: You can make a case for putting Shula at the top, given the fact that he's the winningest coach in pro football history. But we need to see him get back to the Super Bowl before anointing him king.

3. George Seifert, San Francisco 49ers: One of the most underrated coaches in football. All he does is

Ironman McQuarrie completes triathlon in Hawaii

MCQUARRIE

By Doug Durso
Senior Reporter

Combining three grueling events back-to-back, an SIUC staff member conquered the elements and overcame physical exhaustion in one of the most famous triathlons in the world.

Keith McQuarrie, an SIUC admissions and records officer, finished the Gatorade Ironman Triathlon on the island of Hawaii Saturday in a time of 12:43:37, which was the pinnacle of his triathlon career.

"This was a huge thrill," he said. "Even if I qualified for the World Championships, that would not be as important as running in the Ironman Triathlon. My goal was to finish under 14 hours and I did that."

The 48-year-old athlete finished 53rd out of the 82 runners who ran in the 45-49 age group. Overall, there were 1,460 athletes competing in the 2.4 mile swim, 112 mile bike ride and 26.2 mile run that made up the event.

McQuarrie said the emotion at the end of the race made it all worth while.

"When I came towards the end and saw the people lining the finish and going nuts, that's when the emotion of the Ironman hit me," he said. "I turned it up a notch at the end and jumped over the finish line."

The Ironman was not about beating other people but testing each individual.

"All of the spectators were rooting me on even though they don't know me," he said. "This event was about proving to myself that I could do it."

While the Ironman was at the top of McQuarrie's accomplishments, he does not see himself doing it again.

"It takes so much training because the event is so long and puts pressure on your friends who are helping you out that preparation is really hard."

McQuarrie said the first leg of the event, swimming, was not too bad although with so many people participating at once there was physical danger.

"There is no mercy during the swimming portion of the triathlon," he said. "If you plan on swimming the course in 75 minutes and others want to finish in less than an hour they will swim over or through you if you're in their way."
