Bar owner reapplying for liquor license

KAREN BLATTER
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Matt Maier reappplied for a liquor license that would bring another bar to South Illinois Avenue after being denied a license at the same location less than two months ago by the Liquor Control Commission.

Maier, owner of Mugsy McGuire's, 1620 S. Main St., plans to open a new bar and dance club at 315 S. Illinois Ave., formerly T.J. McFly's, Merlin's and most recently a paintball facility.

In August, Maier was denied a B-2 liquor license 3-2 by the Liquor Control Commission because it would exceed the cap of liquor establishments that are allowed in the Strip area.

In 1995, Carbondale officials established a cap on the number of B-2 liquor licenses for the entire city. A B-2 license allows a business to make all its profits from the sale of alcohol.

Only 15 licenses are allowed in the city, and the license Maier is reapplying for recently was given up by the owners of The Globe, 1215 E. Walnut St.

City ordinance allows only five licenses in the area from University Avenue to the railroad tracks and from Grand Avenue to Walnut Avenue. Maier's establishment would be in that area and exceed the five-license limit.

The commission denied the license because of the precedent it would set by raising the cap and because of concerns about the additional crowds it would bring to the area.

Maier said he is reapplying for the license because of the City Council's consideration of closing the Strip to vehicle traffic Friday and Saturday nights.

"The City has given a lot of positive support, and there may be a new way of thinking," he said. "There are changes the city is making."

At the Sept. 20 meeting, the City Council discussed the closing of South Illinois Avenue, but no final decision was made at the meeting because the council requested more feedback from the local businesses that would be affected in the area.

Local bars safeguard against binge drinking

DAN CRAFT
DAILY EGYPTIAN

As students line up each weekend to get into Stix Bar and Billiards, Matt Basak is not just checking to make sure the picture on that driver's license looks like the person using it. He also is checking to make sure they have not already had too much to drink.

"Usually, people have been drinking before they even get here," Basak said. "They're mostly college kids so they can't usually afford to do all their drinking in the bar."

October is Alcohol Awareness Month, and local bars are always looking to assure the safety of their patrons through a variety of safeguards. Many of the problems bars encounter come from those who drink too much too quickly — a practice commonly known as binge drinking.

Binge drinking is defined as five or more drinks at one sitting for males or four or more drinks for females. A study released by the Harvard School of Public Health indicates 44 percent of college students surveyed were categorized as binge drinkers.

Alcohol Awareness Week

Carbondale ordinances require bars to enroll at least 51 percent of their bartenders and waitresses in the Training for Intervention Procedures (TIPs) program. The program, offered through the Jackson County Health Department, shows servers how to deal with customers who have had too much to drink and the signs that drinkers may need to be cut off.

Matt Maier, owner of Mugsy McGuire's Restaurant and Pub, 1620 W. Main St., said all of his servers go through TIPs training.

"We need to be able to deal with the small percentage of drinkers who do get out of control," Maier said.

"In my experience, 99 percent of the students in here are good kids. Most of them are just here to see people, maybe play pool and have a good time, not to start problems."

Maier said most patrons are cooperative when a waitress or bartender suggests a glass of water or a soft drink instead of booze, and most who have had too much to drink will quit voluntarily.

"I have no problem with calling a cab for someone who shouldn't be driving home," Maier said. "Most people who come in are very responsible about their drinking, though."

Basak said there are several lines of defense in stopping problem drinkers, from refusing to let them into the bar to cutting them off at the bar, or escorting them out in extreme cases.

"It's actually pretty rare that we have to kick somebody out of the place for drinking too much," Basak said.

"The rowdy ones are really a bigger problem, and some of those get weeded out before they hit the door. If I see a guy already causing problems in line at the door, he's not getting in here."

Eric Marquardt, a manager at Stix Bar and Billiards, 517 S. Illinois Ave., said the problem is not as big as many would think.

Students support equal rights bill for gays, lesbians, bisexuals

VISIT

Students interested in visiting Mike Bost's office Wednesday should contact Willis Reynolds through the USG office at 536-3301.

GINNY SKALSKI
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Several student organizations are working together to support an Illinois House bill that would give equal rights to gays, lesbians and bisexuals.

Three student organizations are supporting House Bill 474, which would add discrimination based on sexual orientation to the Illinois Human Rights Act. The bill would not grant any special privileges, but would provide equal rights.

Members of the Saluki Rainbow

Network and College Democrats spoke on behalf of the bill at the Undergraduate Student Government meeting Wednesday night. USG members later passed a resolution in support of the bill.

USG Vice President Brian Atchison said he will forward the resolution to Rep. Mike Bost, D-Murphysboro. Bost previously voted against the bill during the spring session.

Willis Reynolds, USG governmental relations commissioner, said he was pleased senators voted for the resolution because it showed that students are for equal rights.

"I was very happy about the vote in USG and that only one person voted against the bill," Reynolds said. "It sends a strong message that students here don't support discrimination on any basis."

Reynolds said he hopes that by presenting information to Bost, he will change his mind about the bill.

"I think it might help if he is told about it and educated about it," Reynolds said. "Even if he doesn't change his mind, it's important that we presented our viewpoint."

Reynolds is taking 10 to 15 people to Bost's office Wednesday to speak on behalf of the bill.

Bost, who is concerned with the language of the bill, said he will listen to what the students have to say, but it's not planning on changing his vote.

"I'll be glad to talk to them, but I'd say my position will remain the same," Bost said.

The bill would also make it illegal to

POLICE BLOTTER

CAMPUS

A 19-year-old SIUC student contemplated suicide at about 2 a.m. Friday at Schneider Hall, University police said. The student broke a window in the hub lounge of the 17th floor and walked out onto the window ledge. After talking to a resident assistant and police, the student came back inside and was taken to Memorial Hospital of Carbondale.

Joey D. Wiseman, 18, of Carbondale, was arrested and charged with the theft of a bicycle and possession of less than 2.5 grams of cannabis at about 11 a.m. Thursday. Wiseman was stopped after University police saw him riding a bicycle while Wiseman was being chased by another man on foot. Wiseman was taken to Jackson County Jail and released on $200 bond Friday.

CARBONDALE

An envelope containing $415 was stolen from the glove box of a truck parked in the 100 block of North Tower Road between 6 and 10:50 a.m. Friday. Carbondale police said there are no suspects in this incident.

CORRECTIONS

Monday's article, "SIUC conserves energy with environmental assessments," should have stated SIUC consumed about 1 million gallons per day in fiscal year 1998.

Director: core classes important

RHONDA SCARRA
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Halfway through college, Jim Allen told his father he wanted to change his major from engineering to English, much to his father's disappointment.

"That was not a happy conversation," Allen said. "That was not what he had intended."

Allen, history professor and the new director of the University Core Curriculum, said it was the general education English courses he took in college that caused him to change his mind.

Now, that he is responsible for the 41 hours of courses required of all SIUC students, he wants to stress the value of a varied curriculum to them as well.

"I want people to sense how the core curriculum can enhance their lives, even though it doesn't have anything to do with their immediate career objective," he said.

After submitting an application for the position in May, Allen and his wife traveled to Europe for the summer so he could research information for a book he is currently writing.

He spent months in Berlin and Paris researching women's roles in Freemasonry — a secretive charitable organization that thrived in the 18th and 19th centuries. When he returned to Carbondale he interviewed for the job.

Although Allen was not officially appointed prior to Thursday's Board of Trustees meeting, he began to work with the core curriculum in August. This fall, Allen has worked on course assessment reports, core curriculum reviews and the University Core Curriculum Awards Ceremony.

In a month he will begin preparing strategic planning documents concerning the future of the core curriculum.

One planning initiative is to expand the Pilot Block Advantage Program he said. The program groups entering students together in the same core classes each semester. Its purpose is to provide students a greater learning experience outside of the classroom.

The core curriculum is also seeking funds to develop a problem-based program that would allow 36 students to complete the required hours outside of a classroom. Six students would regularly consult with a faculty member and apply knowledge to real life problems for three semesters.

Allen said his ultimate goal is to see the University Core Curriculum at SIUC nationally recognized for its rigor, its quality and its innovation.

"I can't think of anything else I'd rather do — except write that book on women in freemasonry and teaching my history 201 class," he said.

Allen replaces Anne-Janine Morey, who left in July to become the associate dean of Arts and Letters at James Madison University in Virginia.

"He is good for the core curriculum and dedicated to his teaching," said Brenda Yucas, office systems specialist for the University Core Curriculum. "I think that is what the core needs."

Although Allen credits Yucas with keeping the University Core Curriculum going until a replacement for Morey was made,

"Without her the whole place would've grinded to a halt," Allen said.

Student pleads guilty to drug charges

BOB JACOBINI
DAILY EGYPTIAN

John Keith Dilg, 23, a former SIUC student, plead guilty Oct. 13 in a Chicago federal court to charges of illegally manufacturing GHB, a date rape drug while he was a student at SIUC.

GHB is an odorless, colorless, tasteless drug which is one of a group of drugs known as date rape drugs. It comes in powder or liquid form and mixes quickly in drinks.

Just a teaspoon of the drug can cause dizziness, unconsciousness, and when mixed with alcohol, can cause death.

In a signed plea agreement, Dilg admitted manufacturing the drug in his apartment in Carbondale and his parent's apartment in Elk Grove Village.

Dilg admitted selling about 240 gallons of the drug with a street value of $60,000 while he was a student at SIUC, court documents said.

Dilg sold and gave away the drug in water bottles and sport drink containers.

A victim of the drug can be unconscious for two to four hours and not remember anything that happened afterwards. Because GHB is not classified as a controlled substance the penalties for its manufacture and sale are less than penalties for the sale of drugs like heroin or cocaine.

Dilg faces up to two years in federal prison for operating an unregistered drug manufacturing facility, mislabeling drugs and conspiring to violate U.S. drug regulations.

Sgt. Mark Diedrick said that in 1997, when Dilg was in Carbondale, there were numerous cases of GHB poisoning. But Diedrick said he only knows of one recent case of GHB poisoning.

In the recent case, an SIUC student left her drink unattended for a few minutes at an early morning Aug. 22 party in the 400 block of West College Street.

She left the party with a friend, got sick and then became unconscious. Her friend called an ambulance that took her to the emergency room at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale.

State funds make Lincoln Drive bridge possible

BRENT COLLINS
DAILY EGYPTIAN

Funding for a bridge to span Lincoln Drive is no longer a problem thanks to various grants from the state.

The Illinois Department of Transportation recently released $249,000 for the project, while $276,000 from the Federal Highway Administration is still pending. The estimated total cost of the project is $1.5 million.

Three finalists have been chosen to engineer the Partnership Bridge, said Max Yen, director of the Materials Technology Center. The names of the three consultants are currently being withheld from the public until a final decision is made.

A meeting in November will be the deciding factor as to which consultant will handle the task. Consultants and SIUC officials will compare costs relating to the bridge's development upon conclusion of the decision making process.

The project is scheduled to begin March 2001.

Yen sees how many students and faculty experience the crowded congestion of pedestrian and automobile traffic along Lincoln Drive between the Neckers buildings.

"I'm sure you've seen it out here. It's dangerous," Yen said.

The 500-foot-long solution will allow safe, stress-free, and faster travel for both pedestrians to cross over the busy Lincoln Drive and drivers who will travel underneath it.

The bridge will also be a pioneer bridge for other bridges and projects throughout the state and nation.

The bridge will be composed of composite materials such as glass fiber and carbon epoxy, which allows the bridge to be stiff, strong, and stable. Also, the bridge can allow for structure movement in either unified or different directions.

"This bridge will be a showcase bridge," said George Swisher, Dean of the College of Engineering. "It's good for the institution and will provide a lot of research opportunities for students and faculty."

The bridge will provide a physical, hands-on laboratory for students and faculty to study the visual affects of weather, time and pedestrian stress. Yen said the data study of the bridge is beneficial for students and faculty.

Swisher said the reason a bridge was chosen instead of an underground tunnel beneath Lincoln Drive was that a tunnel may cause problems.

"A tunnel would be too risky. We don't want to stop traffic during construction and we want to avoid underground utilities and wires," Swisher said.

The bridge will serve as a monument of technology and ingenuity and will prove to be a proud marker for SIUC, Swisher said.

"I am very optimistic," Yen said. "I don't foresee any delays, but funding for construction should be an interesting situation."

This bridge will be a showcase bridge.

Campus-wide safety alert issued after Friday's attack

BOB JACOBINI
DAILY EGYPTIAN

University officials issued a campus safety alert Friday after two SIUC students were attacked by four rock-wielding assailants near the University Park housing area.

The alert was issued because of the seriousness of the attack and because the attackers are still at large, said Harvey Welch, vice chancellor for student affairs.

The two 18-year-old victims were attacked in parking lot 106, east of University Park at 1 a.m. Friday.

One student was hit on the head with a rock but did not need medical attention. The second student was not injured, but the suspects stole his wallet, police said.

Lt. Kay Doan of the University police said Monday no arrests have been made and there are no suspects in the incident.

The four assailants are described as African-American men. One suspect is described as 6-feet 4-inches tall with a thin build. He was last seen wearing a puff coat, a hooded sweatshirt and a red cap.

Another suspect is described as 5-feet 3-inches tall with a medium build. He was last seen wearing a gray hooded sweatshirt with an Old Navy logo on the front.

Police only said the other two suspects were last seen wearing black hooded sweatshirts.

Speak your mind about the Shawnee Forest

The Public Policy Institute is offering people the chance to voice their opinion about future land use in the Shawnee National Forest at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Lesar Law Building Auditorium.

Stimulating public involvement in how the forest should be managed is the goal of the open forum. Changing ownership of the Shawnee National Forest is not a topic for discussion, but issues such as logging and recreation will be addressed.

The Forest Service Plan, which is altered every 10 to 15 years, is under revision. The Forest Service's goal is to utilize public involvement as to what issues the plan needs to address.

The Public Policy Institute will inform the Forest Service of the issues presented at the forum.

'Real World' scores huge ratings

A young woman's problems with alcohol abuse have given MTV's "Real World" record-high ratings.

Ruthy Alcáide, a journalism student at Rutgers University, returned to the cast of the nonfiction show last week after spending one month in an alcohol-treatment program.

The show — a weekly series about what happens among seven young strangers living together for four months — has faithfully documented Alcáide's downward spiral. In one episode, viewers watched the 21-year-old fall down drunk in a club and throw up half-naked in a shower. After she passed out in her bathroom, the show ended with emergency workers pumping her stomach in an ambulance.

Since the season began in June, "Real World" has seen a 41 percent jump in the number of households tuning in each week. The show, which debuted in 1992, is now MTV's highest-rated series and has helped lift the network's overall ratings, up 18 percent so far this year over last, to an all-time high.

Alcáide's problems have been a significant part of this season's "Real World" and its promotions — something that MTV executives say has been instrumental in showing the dark side of alcohol consumption.

Some cast members wonder if Alcáide's return is wise. Colin Mortensen, a 19-year-old currently on the show, told The Wall Street Journal that the "Real World" is the wrong place for someone with a drinking problem.

The show "is conducive to heavier drinking" and "isn't a good environment for someone to recover in or be safe" if they are struggling with addiction, he said. Put a group of young people together and "what are they going to do?" he asked. "They party."

Alcáide has refused interviews to discuss the matter.

Do you have something to say?

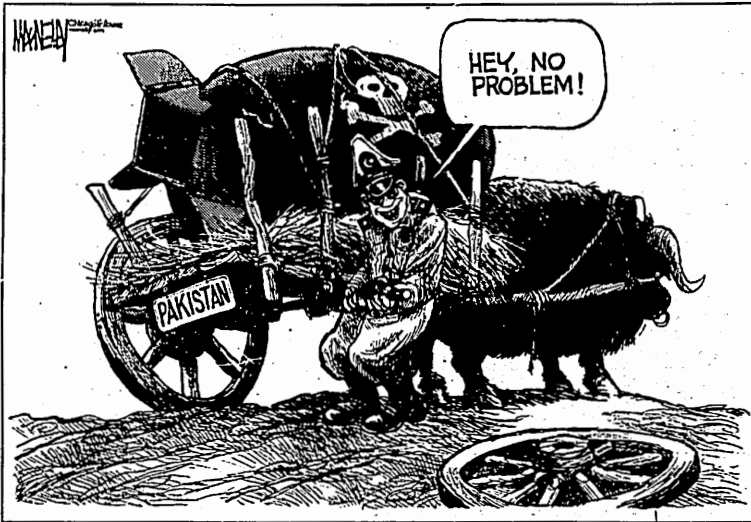

Bring letters and guest columns to the DAILY EGYPTIAN newsroom, Room 1247, Communications Building.

Letters and columns must be typewritten, double-spaced and submitted with author's photo ID. All letters are limited to 300 words; all columns to 500 words. All are subject to editing.

Letters also accepted by e-mail (editor@daily.egyp.ohio.edu) and fax (419-824-4141).

Please include a phone number (for publications) so we may verify authorship. Students must include year and major. Faculty members must include rank and department. Non-academic staff must include position and department. All others include author's home town.

The EGYPTIAN reserves the right to not publish any letter or column.

OUR WORD

Faculty Senate can be a beacon for SIUC

By defeating a resolution seeking a faculty survey about SIU President Ted Sanders' leadership last Tuesday, the Faculty Senate showed it knows when it is time to move on.

Without a doubt, Sander's image is more than tarnished in the eyes of the Faculty Senate. The senate issued a resolution of no confidence this past summer just three days prior to the June 5 termination of former Chancellor Jo Ann Argersinger.

With reasons for their displeasure with Sanders entailing his use of interest earned from the University's income fund, expansion of the president's office and budget, costly contractual agreements with outside consultants, a lack of interaction and consultation with the Faculty Senate, his handling of the proposed shared service center and the paltry budget increases SIUC received in recent years, the senate was set for a long period of myopic University vision.

Their recent decision to no longer seek fuel to add to this anger and frustration is a sign our campus may finally be ready to get back to the business of being a University. By moving past our summer of discontent, perhaps our campus can stop focusing on the perceived problems regarding a single individual and move onto the variety of other, more important problems currently facing SIUC. The DAILY EGYPTIAN will be reporting on some of these problems in an upcoming series regarding last spring's North Central Association of Colleges and Schools Commission evaluation of our University.

While recognizing the defeat of another resolution concerning the job performance of Sanders doesn't mean the senate has forgiven or will forget the actions of SIUC's president, we still believe it was the best move. It is true the communication between Sanders and the faculty needs improvement, but once our campus makes the decision to start working together as a complete unit, we're sure SIUC will benefit much more than a replacement of Sanders would.

To echo previous editorials, replacing Sanders probably isn't the cure-all some people think it would be. The true common sense is to be found in moving on. While we shouldn't forget the events of the past months, SIUC must not sacrifice the many fruitful purposes of being a University for the sake of applying a stationary magnifying glass to performance of one person.

The EGYPTIAN wants the best possible people performing their duties to the best of their ability the same as everyone else, but SIUC isn't a giant human resources department; it is an institution of learning. There are problems at SIUC affecting the learning process much more than Sanders and the SIUC Board of Trustees, and these are the issues on which our campus must focus. In our mission to educate the future, we can't dwell on the past actions of a few. The time to move forward began months ago, and we wish the rest of our campus would follow the Faculty Senate's example.

Take time out and have some fun

Angels Among Us

ANNA BETH TRAYNOR

Angels Among Us appears Tuesdays. Anna is a senior in English Education. Her opinion does not necessarily reflect that of the DAILY EGYPTIAN.

Alpha, at Evergreen Park.

When I arrived, I was just going to stay for a bit so that I could spend some time with my sisters and friends I had not seen for awhile. As I relaxed, I began to hear the beginning rumbles of a touch football game.

Now, I was raised in a house where the mere word "football" is sacred. My family would huddle around Auburn and other SEC conference football games when I was little and eat pizza. My dad made sure his girls knew about the game.

Although I enjoy watching sports, I mostly participate in the liberal arts (singing, dancing, writing, etc.), but I do enjoy playing softball, football or basketball on occasion for fun.

As we divided up teams, I began to wonder if I should just sit out and enjoy the games from the sidelines or be a real woman and play.

The fleeting thought was gone as soon as our side snapped the ball. I had forgotten just how good it can feel to run and jump and catch the ball, and occasionally take an unplanned hit. The fresh air and aggressiveness melted all the stress I felt weighing down on my shoulders as we played.

As I looked around at the smiling faces of those who normally march during half-time, I realized it is sometimes fun to try something new. Granted, we musicians might have made a few penalties here or there. But the important thing is that we had a blast.

When stress engulfs you, it is easy to forget that having a few hours of fun with your sisters, brothers and friends can erase some of the perfectionistic pressures we put on ourselves to succeed.

So, if you are feeling tired, stressed out or just like giving up, take a break, play a game, laugh a lot and have a ball.

THEIR WORD

Greeks need to expand offerings if they want to change image

The following editorial appeared in Wednesday's The Lantern, the student-run newspaper of Ohio State University. The views expressed here do not necessarily reflect those of the DAILY EGYPTIAN.

"Because drinking's a big part of philanthropy."

This is the type of information that was offered to a reporter from Rolling Stone Spring Quarter who was profiling Ohio State University's greek system.

And this is the information the reporter used.

A few beers after stating how his fraternity taught him to be a gentleman, this greek casanova asked the reporter if he wanted to "have sex with" some sorority girls. It can be arranged. Anyone you want.

While fraternities and sororities claim the reporter painted an unrepresentative picture of greek life, the only thing that we know for sure is that this is an old joke.

Drinking, drug usage, philandering and other "naughty" behavior happens all around campus.

That doesn't make it right, but it does raise the question of what purpose a fraternity or sorority serves.

For Chris Papadakis, president of OSU's InterFraternity Council, greek life means philanthropy.

Although he doesn't mention the symbiotic relationship between alcohol and charity, he did tell a Lantern reporter about the $1,000 the greek community raised for the American Heart Association.

When compared with the $1,600 to $1,800 a sister or brother pays in dues every quarter, it seems that greek philanthropy has more to do with beer drinking than fund-raising.

In January, David Williams II, vice president for student and urban/community affairs, put together the Greek Life Task Force to recommend actions for improvement to the greek system.

The recommendations were submitted on June 2, but nothing has been done.

One of the ideas was to create a greek chapter recognition and incentive program.

The purpose would be to work with chapter leaders to set and achieve goals that would give them recognition for their achievements and make sure the chapters achieved the stated goals.

But this will take funding of which has yet to be approved.

If a student is concerned about making a difference in someone's life, that student can join Big Brothers/Big Sisters or Habitat for Humanity.

Until the strict control that the Greek Life Task Force is put into effect, there is only one reason to join a fraternity, and magazines will continue portray its members as nothing more than a group of binge-drinking blue-bloods waiting to return to the picket-fence life of the suburbs.

TWA participates in SIUC's aviation program

TIM BARRETT
DAILY EGYPTIAN

A crowd of nearly 70 people covered their ears and watched in awe as a Boeing 727 shook the sky above Carbondale Saturday afternoon.

Trans World Airlines Flight 9120, carrying nearly 115 students, parents and TWA volunteers, transported the passengers to the University's first ever Transportation Career Day.

"We've been somewhat criticized for ignoring the St. Louis area," David NewMyer, chairman of the Aviation Management and Flight Department, said of the aviation program. The program has co-sponsored a similar event in the spring with United Airlines of Chicago since 1994.

The proposal to get TWA involved in a fall event was brought to the company in June, NewMyer said, and the airline agreed in less than a month to the plan.

"We were shocked to get a 727," NewMyer said. Bruce Kunz, captain and fleet manager of TWA's DC-9 airplanes, said the airline will be retiring nearly half of its 3,000 pilots in the next five years. The airline also will expand its fleet by 20 to 25 percent in the next seven years, creating a need for more pilots.

The Federal Aviation Association requires pilots to retire when they turn 60, which is forcing the turnover, Kunz said.

"I have to retire when I turn 60 in 2003 and I'm taking a lot of guys with me," Kunz said.

Brandon Hartgrove, a junior at Duchesne High School in St. Charles, Mo., took flight with nearly 80 St. Louis-area students. They were accompanied by about 30 pilots, flight attendants, mechanics and other TWA employees.

"It's a neat opportunity to meet people who are flying above you all the time," Hargrove said.

Hargrove learned of the event through his membership in the U.S. Civil Air Patrol in Wentzville, Mo. The patrol allows teen-agers to clean and refuel aircraft, assist in addressing emergencies and learn leadership qualities.

While Hargrove said he thought the chance to meet TWA employees was a "neat opportunity," it appears the opportunity was just as much fun for the airline employees.

Mike Mayer, a Boeing 727 captain for TWA, was one of the employee volunteers who graduated from SIUC. A 1974 graduate of the University, Mayer has fond memories of his alma mater.

"It's the same user-friendly campus," Mayer said. "I really enjoy my years at SIUC."

NewMyer said he had not seen many alumni since his graduation from the University 20 years ago.

"It was really great. It was like a reunion,"

NewMyer said.

Students were paired with TWA employees as they took a tour of the University and the aviation facilities at the airport.

As aviation students led student groups on a tour of simulators, aircraft, and other facilities at the airport, it became apparent that the alumni were just as, if not more, interested in the operations than the students.

Mayer and fellow co-worker, Jim Jackman, who also graduated from SIUC, gave students quick physics lessons on how airplane instruments work, told old flight stories and explained the history of certain simulators as they toured the facilities.

"Bringing them together like that was magical," NewMyer said. "It was a great group."

On a grander scale, the event may benefit the recruitment of future aviation students.

"This will clearly be a step to enhancing our recruitment effort," said interim Chancellor John Jackson, who greeted students and TWA volunteers at the airport. "It was a great day for SIUC and a great day for our transportation programs."

NewMyer said he hopes the event will become an annual addition to the aviation program. A third event, with a third major airline, is also a possibility, he said.

"Most kids do know when they've had enough," he said. "A lot of kids are just in here to have a few, maybe dance and blow off some steam they've accumulated at work or in classes." While cutting someone off from drinking is a judgment call on the part of employees, Marquardt said there are plenty of signs that can tip off a bartender, including overly aggressive behavior, lack of eye contact or very loud speech. More obvious signs include slurred speech, stumbling and vomiting.

"If they reach that point, they're pretty clearly done for the evening," Marquardt said. Basak said that while binge drinking is a problem, the source of the problem does not start in the bars or even on a college campus.

"Our society raises us to be binge drinkers," he said. "By making alcohol taboo until a certain age, anyone who drinks earlier than that will drink quickly, for fear of getting caught.

"I've been to Europe, where they are more open about the subject, and they have far fewer problems than we do here." As part of Alcohol Awareness Month, Barb Fjolek, coordinator for Drug and Alcohol Education at the SIUC Wellness Center, hopes to enlighten students about the dangers associated with binge drinking. "The main point we're trying to get across is that students should drink responsibly," Fjolek said. "There's an impression out there that all students are 'binge drinkers' but most of those I've seen drink in a social manner."

Fjolek said the idea of defining binge drinking by a set number of drinks isn't a practical definition for most people. "Holding a 200-pound guy to a standard only one drink away from that of a 95-pound girl isn't realistic," Fjolek said. "Each person needs to determine what their own limits are. The minority of students who do exceed those limits are the ones who have a problem. "SIUC's image regarding alcohol hasn't been real good, but we cannot allow that image to be defined by that minority."

Fjolek said Carbondale's 19-year-old bar entry age doesn't appear to affect the rates of binge drinking.

"Being a unit of academics, I look to the research, and the research doesn't prove it one way or the other," Fjolek said. Andrea Barclay, a manager at Pinch Penny Pub, 700 E. Grand Ave., said controlling underage drinking is a challenge. "They come up with all sorts of ways to try and scam us, and they're usually surprised when we shut them down," Barclay said.

"We do have some problems with anyone who has had too much to drink but we're all aware of that possibility and do all we can to prevent it," Basak said and anyone who knows how to drink responsibly is ahead of the game.

"We're all young," Basak said. "This is the time and place to enjoy yourself while we can. You just have to keep it in perspective."

Members of the Rolling Saluki basketball team wait for their first practice of the season at Davies Gymnasium.

IN THE MOUTH OF MADNESS

CHRISTINE BOLIN — STORY

Bruce Weber smiles as the SIU men's "Millennium" basketball team comes together for the pre-game huddle.

Saluki basketball teams involve fans in first practice of season

THE AVERAGE SIU BASKETBALL FAN DOESN'T OFTEN GET TO SEE MEN'S BASKETBALL HEAD COACH BRUCE WEBER WEARING OVEN MITTENS.

But Friday night at 9:30, almost 1,000 Saluki basketball followers swarmed outside Davies Gymnasium, eager to sample the food Weber and other Saluki basketball coaches prepared for the second annual Almost Late Night with the Dawgs.

Many colleges around the country conduct similar events, which take place at midnight the day the NCAA officially allows college basketball teams to begin practice for the season.

Almost Late Night with the Dawgs introduced the Southern Illinois community to the 1999-2000 SIU men's and women's basketball teams.

"It is kind of our New Year's party a little bit before New Year's," Weber said. "So it was our new season party."

Almost Late Night featured the Salukis participating in a three-point contest, a dunk contest and a scrimmage game, along with performances by the Saluki Pep Band, the Saluki Shakers and cheerleaders.

Last year, the event took place at the SIU Arena. Both coaching staffs elected to locate the event at the smaller Davies Gymnasium this year to create a closer connection between the teams and the fans.

About 1,400 fans, including a high percentage of students, overflowed Davies for the basketball showcase. SIU women's basketball head coach Julie Beck was pleased the event was in Davies Gymnasium instead of the SIU Arena. "Davies really got people up close and personal with the players," Beck said. "I thought it was a good idea and fun for the community." Hungry Saluki basketball fans waited in line outside Davies to be served a grilled hamburger or bratwurst, courtesy of the men's and women's basketball coaching staff. "We decided to do something different," Weber said. "The cook-out went well and created a bit of atmosphere to the whole thing. It was a beautiful fall evening, and we were happy with the turnout." Right before 10 p.m., the Saluki Pep Band came storming to Davies from Altgeld Hall, bringing festive sounds to the event. Marching Salukis president and SIU basketball fan Larry Robinson, a senior in music education from Homewood, said the cookout gave fans a welcomed opportunity to interact with the coaches.

Courtney Smith, a junior forward from Carlyle, was introduced to the capacity crowd at Davies Gymnasium Friday night.

"It was cool to see the coaches cooking and being loyal to their fans," Robinson said. "It was a great chance for the fans to show their support." At about 10:30 p.m., a long line of fans of all ages lined up the stairs and outside the doors of Davies in anticipation of watching the Salukis in action. Meanwhile, in a smaller gym adjacent to the main gym, both the SIU men's and women's basketball teams, along with the Rolling Salukis, honed their fundamentals in anticipation of entertaining the crowd. Slam-dunk contestants — senior Derrick Tilmon, sophomore Jason Ward, and freshmen Jermaine Dearman, Sylvester Willis and Brad Korn — practiced baptizing the rims as teammates looked on, evaluating the slams. Freshman Molly McDowell, the 1998-99 Illinois "Miss Basketball" from Nokomis High School in Filmore, warmed up for the three-point contest at the opposite end of the court. She was one of four contestants in the women's three point shoot-out. A pumped-up McDowell looked into the main gym, which is exceeding the gym's 1,250-person capacity. "I don't think we anticipated this many people showing up," McDowell said. "This is about as many people [who are] in my town." Shortly after 11 p.m., Almost Late Night officially began with the Rolling Salukis, a team that impressed the crowd with its ability to play basketball in a wheelchair. Some of the men's team members curiously looked over the taller teammates' shoulders to catch a glimpse, and applauded with the crowd as the Rolling Salukis' game ended. After the Rolling Salukis, eight members of the men's basketball team took the court for the three point contest. Freshman Kent Williams, a highly-touted recruit from nearby Mount Vernon, eventually blew away the field of mostly upperclassmen nailing 13 three-pointers. Another highly touted freshman, McDowell easily captured the women's event sinking 12 three-pointers. Williams then faced McDowell in what turned into the 'battle of the freshmen. The competition was close, but Williams turned out to be the better shooter of the night. "I told Molly [McDowell] I was going to get her in the finals," Williams said. As midnight approached, the official time in which the teams can practice, fans were energized from the McDowell and Williams show. But the crowd was ready to be thrilled again, as the five contestants in the dunk contest took the court. After three rounds of non-stop dunks, including Dearman's crowd-igniting dunk over sophomore Brandon Nells, the rookie Dearman proudly walked away with the title of slam dunk king. "I just fed off the crowd. I knew I could make [my dunks]," Dearman said. I was working on them all week, and I just came right out and did them." At midnight, both squads were introduced to the crowd, setting the stage for the last event of the night, the scrimmage game. The game began with the women's team, as men's players were slowly added into the game. Soon, the men's team dominated the court and finished the event with Willis' dunk at the buzzer. As the time neared 1 a.m., the crowd had almost entirely vanished leaving the coaches to fold up chairs in the once-packed gymnasium. A former Saluki men's basketball player, James Watts, was waiting for his former teammates after the event. Watts, now in his second year of graduate school at SIU, said the evening reminded him of his days as a Saluki basketball player. "I miss the times we had playing together as a team," Watts said. "I came out to support my old teammates, plus [to see] the new freshmen." Coach Weber was satisfied with the turnout of fans and the attitudes of the players, who appeared to have a great time. "The whole idea was to create some atmosphere in [Davies Gymnasium] and get people excited. I think that happened," Weber said. "It brought people together and jump-started the season."

LICENCE

Even though there was no definite decision made by the council, they are still exploring the idea, and it will be brought back to the council in the spring. Closing the street would allow people to walk freely in the street eliminating the potential for a pedestrian-vehicle collision. Maier said if the street is closed, there would be no problems with additional people added to the area. "There would not be a problem with the shut down of the street," he said. Maier bought the building about two years ago for $200,000 and has had it for sale. Rob Taylor, Undergraduate Student Government Liquor Advisory Board representative, said the person who is submitting the application should be a consideration. "My main concern is who is behind it," he said. "With what I know now, I am leaning toward a yes vote."

Taylor said that Maier should be looked at as a role model because he is a quality landlord and his other bar serves all of the community, rather than just students. The Liquor Advisory Board must make a recommendation before a final decision is made to the Liquor Control Commission. Maier's license application should be before the board at the Nov. 4 meeting.

A World of Opportunity Awaits you at West! Marketing Representatives Looking for the right opportunity to make a career change? We have that opportunity at West! We hire the best, promote the best, and represent the best corporations in the nation. As a Marketing Representative, you will receive thorough training in product knowledge, sales and marketing techniques and computer skills. This training will assist you in marketing products and services, or conducting surveys to the customer base of our clients in an effort to help them achieve their sales and marketing goals. The pay? You control your income - on average our employees earn between $7 and $12 per hour including commissions. And, there is no attendance point system. We actually reward good attendance by offering $1.00 per hour more in addition to your base wage or commissions. (Incentive is based on hours worked per week.) But that's not all! Our employees enjoy an attractive benefits package including paid vacations/holidays, personal days off, tuition reimbursement, business casual dress on Fridays and weekends, health/dental/life insurance, stock purchase plan, opportunities for advancement into management, and more. Best of all, they work with the number one ranked company in the industry!

The real Sprewell arrives a little late

MAIT EAGAN
THE HARTFORD COURANT

It was only January when Knicks coach Jeff Van Gundy sat in a dimly lit hallway outside the team's training facility in Purchase, N.Y., and told everybody he thought Latrell Sprewell was coachable.

From January through July it seemed Van Gundy had indeed managed to coach the league's most notorious player.

Sprewell, for his part, seemed to embrace a second chance in the league. Rather than the choking monster many expected, he was articulate and contrite. Perhaps not a team leader, but certainly not someone who would create internal unrest.

There were moments, such as when he was fined because of agent Robert Gist's whining about a place in the starting lineup, when Sprewell still seemed to place himself in front of everyone else. Mainly, though, he was the good soldier.

This year, the soldier was AWOL.

Sprewell, who was excused from the first two days of training camp because of a civil trial in Oakland, Calif., decided to drive from Oakland to New York.

He also decided it wasn't necessary to answer his phone or notify the team that he was exploring his Kerouackian-side. Sprewell finally showed up in New York on Monday, a week late. The Knicks promptly fined him and then, in what is the subject of much legal wrangling, either did or did not suspend him.

The only thing that is clear is that Sprewell did not play Wednesday in the team's exhibition loss to Philadelphia.

The $30,000 fine and $100,000 in lost salary for being suspended from the exhibition game have union officials crying foul.

The players union called it "an unreasonable monetary penalty that is excessive and goes far beyond anything agreed to (in the collective bargaining agreement)."

Union chief Billy Hunter released a statement saying, "Hopefully, the Knicks will correct their error. If not, we will file a grievance." Once again, the NBA players seem to live in a fantasy land. Try not showing up for work for a week without telling anybody where you are and see what happens. Even more ridiculous is Sprewell's attitude about the whole fuss.

"Personally, I thought it was a little severe," Sprewell told The Associated Press. "I understand them fining me for maybe not getting back to them right away and maybe for missing some of the practices, but I felt I could have played, and that was probably a bit more than necessary."

Maybe not getting back to them right away? Maybe missing some practice?

All along there have been New York naysayers claiming it would just be a matter of time before the real Sprewell showed up.

They were right.

He was just late in arriving.

Hargrove interested in Angels' job

MIKE DIGIOVANNA
LOS ANGELES TIMES

BOSTON — Mike Hargrove, fired as manager of the Cleveland Indians on Friday, said he would be "very interested" in the Angel job, and the team is expected to contact Hargrove about the possibility of replacing Terry Collins.

"I think it's a very interesting opportunity given the level of talent they have — there's certainly a nucleus that has a lot of potential," Hargrove said Saturday. "I don't have a job and I'm available. I don't want to sound like I'm campaigning, but I am interested."

Hargrove guided the Indians to a 721-591 record in eight seasons, and the team won five consecutive American League Central division championships, but just about every one of Hargrove's critical moves in a division series loss to the Red Sox backfired.

The Indians, citing a "need for a change" and a desire to "get to the next level," dismissed Hargrove. Yankee Manager Joe Torre took exception to the team's decision.

"The thing that bothered me is when you fire somebody, and I'm speaking from experience, I wish the people would just say we are going to make a change and try something different," Torre said. "Don't say that we're trying to get to the next level, or we want to get these players to play harder ... You're telling me that somebody getting a base hit with the bases loaded or getting a hitter to strike out would have been enough to get him to the next level, that it would have been enough. It's a little insulting... I mean, if you are going to make a move, I mean, eight or nine years is a long time to wait and then use that reasoning."

deny a person housing because of their sexual orientation.

Marco Orozco, president of the College

Democrats, said the language of the bill is very specific in that it will not grant special advantages to anyone based on sexual preference, it would only grant equal rights.

"The language that is in the bill states that no special privileges are given to lesbians, gays and bisexuals," Orozco, a senior in political science, said. "It's in there to protect them and their jobs and their housing."

Reynolds said this bill would grant rights to people who should already have them.

"No one should have to live their life in fear of people finding out who they are," Reynolds said.

"If we step up our passing, then it's our serving," Kemner said. "If we pick up our hitting, then it's our passing. So, I think once we get a complete, all-around game we'll know what it's like and we'll know how to do it consistently."

There would be no better time for Locke to see some consistency than against the Racers (10-8, 6-5). With only seven conference matches remaining, a non-conference victory could be what the Salukis need to gain confidence and build momentum for the tail end of the season.

Defeating the Racers will not be an easy chore, though as MSU ranks No. 1 in the Ohio Valley Conference in fewest kills allowed (12.85 per game).

Kemner will attempt to continue her solid offensive production against the Racers. Kemner has led the Salukis in the past two matches with 21 and 20 kills, respectively.

But Locke knows it will take a solid, consistent team effort for a road victory against the "scrappy" Racers.

"Hopefully, Locke's strong belief in her team will rub off on the young, struggling Salukis.

"I don't think there's any question that they believe that they can win, I just don't know that they know what are the right things to do to get the win," Locke said.

"We have to do different things against different teams to win and that comes along with experience."

happy, but I shouldn't feel sad. Either way, I thought it was a really good challenge for us."

Saluki coach Don DeNoon views this racing experience as a gain, not a loss.

"It looks devastating [to place 32nd]," DeNoon said. "But it really was an honor to be running against some of the top teams in the country. Being able to race against these types of teams really says something about us."

The only team the Salukis defeated, the University of Florida, is ranked 25th in the nation.

"We are going to use this race to our advantage," Monaco said. "We realize we have the next two weeks to ease off, then we will be ready to go."

results. "We raced a lot of good teams. It is not like we were beaten by bad teams."

Head coach Bill Cornell thinks his team was defeated because of the hard training at practice, which may have caused his team to be fatigued.

"The team said they were tired," Cornell said.

"Hopefully, we can get away from this tired feeling and regroup."

Owen hopes the results from the Pre-NCAA meet will prepare the Salukis better for the Missouri Valley Conference Championships, Oct. 30 at Wichita State University in Wichita, Kan.

"The Pre-NCAA race was a reality check for us," Owen said. "We learned from what we did wrong. We are now more focused on conference."

Tryout:
 The 1999-2000 SIU women's basketball team will take place Thursday night at 6:30 in the Arena. Second-year Saluki head coach Julie Beck said anyone interested in trying out should come ready to participate.

Lindsey Schultz, freshman middle blocker from Valparaiso, Ind., went up for a block during a home game this season. The Salukis will attempt to break their seventh-game losing streak tonight against Murray State on the road.

A hard streak to break

Volleyball team travels to Murray State in hopes of getting its first win in eight tries

SIU head volleyball coach Sonya Locke expected this season to be a rough one, but she never imagined it would get this carried away.

In the midst of their second losing streak of the season, which extended to seven matches Saturday night at Wichita State University, Locke has witnessed her troops drop to 3-15 (1-10 in Missouri Valley Conference play) for the season.

The three Saluki victories occurred between the eight-match losing streak to open the season and their current seven match drought.

Locke would like to see her team's second losing streak of the season snapped at 7 tonight in non-conference action against Murray State University in Murray, Ky.

"Personally, I have never been a good loser," Locke said. "I will never be a good loser. And for people that know me the best, probably wonder why I'm in coaching because there are going to be some losses."

While Locke admits to not being a good loser, what she has proven good this season is her will to believe, especially her will to believe in a young, struggling team.

"She believes in us more than anybody," said freshman outside hitter Kristie Kemner. "She knows that the talent's there. I just think it's rough for her to see us not believing in ourselves, when she believes in us so much."

What has helped the ninth-year coach this season has been a strong supporting cast. Even if the supporting cast is 3-15 and a little down on their confidence.

IN ACTION

• The SIU volleyball team plays at 7 tonight against Murray State University in Murray, Ky.

"This is a really good group of people and if we didn't have good people I think it would be much more difficult to handle," Locke said. "They make me want to work harder and that's what I do."

Locke's hardships have endured as her inexperienced team has seen troubled times in numerous areas this season. There has not been one specific problem area, but a combination of different ones.

"Technically, you could look at the statistics and see that we don't get enough offense, we're not getting very many digs or we've had too many service errors," Locke said. "It's been a variety of things, so I'm not sure."

The Salukis have shown improvement in many areas as the season has progressed, but what they correct for one match becomes a problem the next.

CROSS COUNTRY PRE-NCAA MEET

Women suffer tough race, finishing 32 out of 33 teams

CHRISTINE BOLIN
 DAILY EGYPTIAN

After the SIU women's cross country team finished second-to-last place in the Pre-NCAA meet, senior member Jenny Monaco does not think the Salukis were outdone.

"I do not feel defeated," Monaco said. "We ran against the best people in the nation. The only way we are going to get better is if we race against people who are better than us."

Thirty-three of the nation's top cross country teams participated in the 5K race Saturday in Bloomington, Ind., including SIU, who was ranked seventh of 10 teams in the midwest region last week.

Stanford University, the No. 1 ranked cross country team in the nation, dominated the race with a score of 77.

For the Salukis, freshman Katie Meehan (19:10.91) was SIU's top runner by placing 158th, followed by Monaco's (19:11.76) 160th finish, and senior Erin Leahy's (19:16.36) 169th finish.

Freshman Katie Henning (19:31.55) finished 181st, followed by junior Becky Cox's (19:32.57) 182nd place. Senior Joy Cutrano (19:43.44) placed 196th, and freshman Erin Simone (20:12.67) took the 212th spot.

Henning, who broke into the Saluki's top-five finishers for the first time all season, had mixed emotions about the race.

"It's strange," Henning said. "I don't feel

SIU men's cross country runner Chris Owen knew exactly what he was getting into when the Salukis arrived in Bloomington, Ind., for the Pre-NCAA meet.

"We knew going into this race it was going to be hard, so we just went out and ran," Owen said. "Not everyone ran to their full potential."

The race included 17 teams on the campus of Indiana University Saturday, including SIU, who finished fifth. Eastern Kentucky University placed three runners in the top 10 as it earned first place.

For the Salukis, senior Brian Bundren (26:07.48) led the way with a 21st-place finish. The rest of the Saluki upperclassmen did not fair as well, as senior Matt McClelland (26:31.38) finished in 43rd place, junior Chris Owen (26:45.13) placed 58th, senior Eric Rushing (26:45.43) followed at 59th and sophomore Joe Ziebert (26:58.61) placed 72nd.

The Saluki freshmen had their first taste of defeat as the four rookies finished fourth through eighth among Saluki runners. Joey Molteni (27:01.23) finished in 73rd, Travis Pressler (28:10.54) placed 124th, Brian Sauerhage (28:31.02) placed 137th, and Ryan Hauser rounded out the Saluki field in 155th.

"We are a little disappointed, but it is not the end of the world," Bundren said about the final
