Couple advocated City manager gives report to council

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

A report by City Manager William C. Dixon recommends completion of the controversial east-west couple along with measures that would reduce the detrimental impacts of the couple.

The report, which will be considered by the City Council Tuesday, says the Illinois Department of Transportation's proposal to make Main Street one-way westbound and Walnut Street one-way eastbound is "in the best interest of the Carbondale community and the area that Carbondale serves as a regional center."

"Implementation of the couple will provide an attainable near-term improvement to existing congestion and safety problems," Dixon writes.

Dixon also advocates research on the possibility of construction of a northern bypass.

Mayor Neil Dillard has said that the City staff report would figure prominently in his Sept. 27 vote for the couple out it would not be the most important factor.

A "northern connector" has been recommended as an alternative to the couple by citizen groups in opposition to the couple's construction.

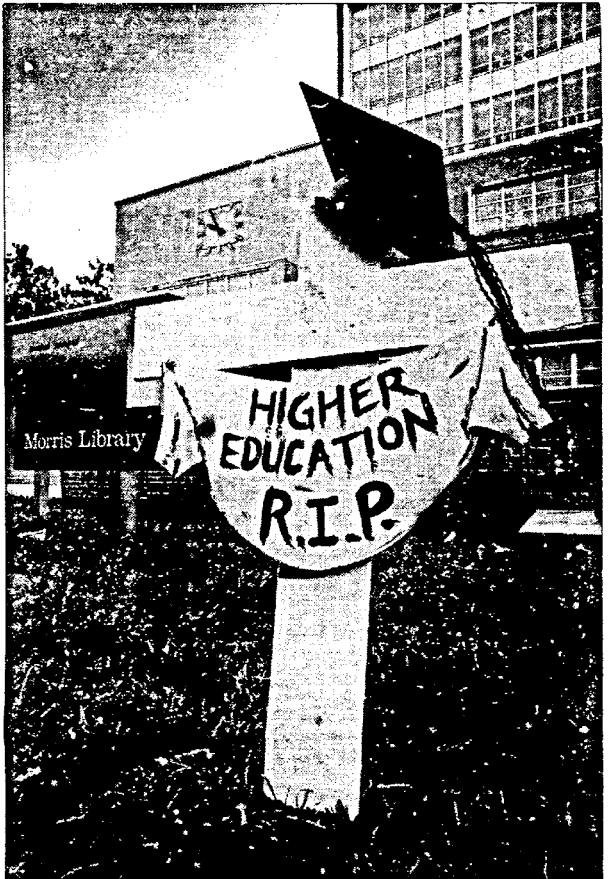

Dixon writes that if the City chose to pursue funding for a northern connector instead of the couple it would be waiting a long time for state approved money, and the couple would be needed in any case.

"If the City were to wait for a north bypass or connector without taking earlier steps to have the Couple implemented, Carbondale and the area will wait many years. At the same time, congestion and safety problems will continue to grow more acute."

Dixon says a $250,000 to $300,000 amenity package to be provided by IDOT if the couple were to be constructed could be used not only to reduce the ill effects of the couple but to improve the historic area.

Dixon recommends a moratorium on zoning for one year in the area to prevent businesses from taking root on Unknown individuals believed to be responding to tuition increases that may be imposed next semester placed this cross and message in the front of Morris Library Monday morning.

Some say rise in tuition brought cross to library

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Sheets of rain fell and gray clouds dipped from the sky. Wind blew a tassel attached to a graduation cap sitting atop a cross that read "Higher Education R.I.P."

The cross was planted Monday in front of Morris Library.

Responsibility for the cross, which is believed to be in protest of a probable tuition increase, has not been claimed.

Bill Hall, Undergraduate Student Government president, said he thinks a student group planted the cross.

"But I am not for sure because no one from the group is talking," Hall said.

The group is not a registered student organization, Hall said. Many people in the group do not want their names released, he said.

"But I don't see why because the students aren't doing anything that needs protection," Hall said.

The group also is believed to be responsible for the Black Thursday protest at the Board of Trustees meeting on Sept. 8 when seven students dressed in black and carrying a coffin with the word "education" written on its side walked into the meeting, Hall said.

"I like what they are doing, but I would like them to feel encouraged to participate in the solution to the problem they are protesting," Hall said. "They are giving peripheral publicity without taking any role in the decision making."

Darrell Jenkins, director of library services, said he had no idea why the cross was placed in front of the library other than it is a high traffic area for students.

"I do not know if the group had to have permission to put the sign up or if we will have to take it down," Jenkins said.

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit's office said no one from the office had seen the cross.

"All we can do is mount platitudes until we find out more about what's happening with the situation although the situation is very real," Catherine Walsh, assistant to the chancellor, said.

Nitz's wife testifies for defense

Rita Jo Nitz testified Monday in a murder case against her husband that her son's blood type is O positive, the blood type found on a Timex watch seized during a search on the Nitz property April 28.

Witnesses testified earlier that the watch belonged to Michael D. Miley, who had type O blood. Both Nitz and Rita Nitz have type A blood.

Nitz is charged with the April 6 murder of Miley. Rita Nitz is charged with aiding and abetting and concealing a homicide in connection with Miley's murder. Her trial will begin in November.

Michael C. Hayward Jr., Rita Nitz's 12-year-old son, said he was living with the Nitzes the day Nitz allegedly killed Miley.

Hayward said he remembers being

Students upset with poor quality of refrigerators

By Phyllis Coon
Staff Writer

Many dormitory residents were left in the cold this semester when the housing-approved refrigerator rental company provided poor quality equipment, the director of housing said.

Academic Service Products, the rental company, say they will replace any units that dissatisfy students.

But housing still is unhappy with the deal, Edward Jones, director of housing, said.

"To be honest, we are not pleased with Academic Service Products," Jones said. "We were promised we would start with like new or new refrigerators."

The department of housing plans to break its 3- to 5-year contract with the company at the end of the academic year, Jones said.

"We made a mistake. We did," Robert Yeager, owner of the Erie, Pa. based company, said. "No one was there to supervise the operation from the warehouse in Minnesota to the University."

Students can get a replacement unit in eight to 24 hours by contacting the campus representative, Yeager said.

When asked later who the campus representative was Yeager replied, "I don't want to talk about the situation anymore." Yeager then hung up the phone.

The housing department has no knowledge of a campus representative, Jones said.

"In all the paper work I have on the company there is no number or even a mention of a campus representative," Jones said.

But when students purchased a unit they received a yellow piece of paper with a telephone number to the Pennsylvania office, 1-800-445-7735, Jones said.

"Students should be able to get a replacement unit by contacting that number," Jones said.

The company wanted to provide students with high quality units, but a mistake in shipping sent the wrong refrigerators to the University, Yeager said.

Also adding to the company's problems in meeting the contract is a refrigerator shortage, Yeager said.

"The University is looking for brand new refrigerators, but there are no new refrigerators in the country available this year," Yeager said.

The company has been operating for seven years and this fall provided about 70 univer-

Burmese troops open fire on demonstrators, kill 200

RANGOON, Burma (UPI) — Burmese soldiers opened fire Monday on angry demonstrators defying military orders in their challenge against the nation's fourth government in two months, reportedly killing some 200 people in widespread clashes. A diplomat said two demonstrators in front of the American Embassy in downtown Rangoon were shot and killed by troops whose bullets hit the U.S. mission.

Mexican crops ruined by Hurricane Gilbert

SAN CARLOS, Mexico (UPI) — Hurricane Gilbert turned farmland in northeast Mexico into huge brown lakes that destroyed crops and animals and trapped peasants on tiny islands or in trees where they were rescued by helicopters, boats or men struggling across raging currents.

Haitians show no resistance to military coup

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (UPI) — Streets crowded with people, cars and trucks reflected a return to normal life Monday a day after Lt. Gen. Prosper Avril seized power in a military coup and declared himself president of the troubled Caribbean nation. Soldiers in olive green uniforms, armed with automatic weapons and tear gas grenades, patrolled the capital's streets on foot, in jeeps and heavy trucks, but there was no sign of resistance to the ouster Sunday of Lt. Gen. Henri Namphy.

Polish government resigns, admits to failure

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — The government, bowing to accusations that it bore responsibility for the latest wave of labor strikes, resigned Monday conceding that its economic reforms failed to control runaway inflation. The surprise resignation by Prime Minister Zbigniew Messner reflected deep divisions in the East European nation's communist leadership over how to combat the deteriorating economic and political situation.

Minority students improve college test scores

NEW YORK (UPI) — Blacks and Mexican Americans among the high school class of 1988 made large gains in college achievement tests over last year's scores but barely a "twitch" was noticed for students overall, reports revealed Monday. It was the third year in a row that Scholastic Aptitude Tests and American College Testing scores taken by nearly 2 million college-bound students did not register a significant average change.

Homeless health panel urges housing, reform

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The health woes of the nation's homeless can best be solved by improving housing and reforming welfare progress rather than a new system of clinics within shelters, a government advisory panel said Monday. In a 242-page report on the health of America's homeless, a National Academy of Sciences' committee said: "More than anything else, homeless people need a stable residence. The health problems of homeless people that differ from those of other poor people are directly related to their homeless state."

Wind drops, wildfires brought under control

VACAVILLE, Calif. (UPI) — Firefighters, helped by a drop in the wind, managed Monday to stop the flames around half of a 14,000-acre arson wildfire that leveled several homes and sent ash over the San Francisco Bay area. About 200 miles to the north, near scenic Lake Shasta, crews declared 60 percent containment in a 6,290-acre grass and timber blaze.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (UPI) — Clinton County Sheriff Gerald Dall was arrested in Springfield Monday and charged with raping his ex-wife. Springfield Police Commander Kirk Robinson said Dall, 50, was arrested about 2:35 a.m. after allegedly sexually assaulting his ex-wife. Robinson said an officer on patrol spotted a man running on Springfield's near north side and stopped him for questioning.

Trio of 1936 classmates reunite and recall past

By Miguel Alba
Staff Writer

IN 1936, a hamburger and soda cost 5 cents, college students were dancing the jitterbug and the place to hang out in Carbondale was Carter's, the local "jelly joint."

It was also the year that three undergraduates in education first met at Southern Illinois Normal University, (later to be named SIU-C), beginning a friendship that has lasted more than 52 years.

Donald Bryant, retired senior executive vice-president of Equitable Life Insurance, was one of those undergraduates. He hosted reunion for the trio last week at the Carbondale Holiday Inn.

ALBERT GULLY, retired speech communications department chairman at Northern Illinois University, and Willard Kerr, retired psychology department chairman at Middle Tennessee, joined Bryant in a discussion that covered everything from economics to student issues of the late 1930s.

Recalling the past, the three, who called themselves "the triumvirate," pointed out the economic environment in which the students lived in.

Many of today's students find it difficult to find financial resources to pay for college. But there are federal aid and loan programs available for those who need assistance. Back in 1936, there was no such thing as financial aid.

"Students would drop out of school like flies their freshman year if they couldn't get a job," Bryant said. "Getting a job was directly related to staying in school. About 66 percent of the students were on work programs."

KERR AGREED with this observation adding that they lived during a period of limited economic depression.

"Students were serious about attending school. It represented a sacrifice on the part of the parents."

The cost of attending school in 1936 was about $45 for a year's tuition, and $2.50 for book rental. Bryant remembered borrowing $25 from the Rotary Club, which enabled him to stay in school.

The students who did manage to get a job could expect to make 15 cents an hour, working for about 100 hours or about $15 a month. Those who were lucky enough to get the better jobs worked at 30 cents an hour. For a long time, those better jobs were held by members of fraternities and sororities.

"WHEN WE came to school, there were only four Greek organizations, and they had control over all student offices and organizations," Gully said.

The triumvirate takes credit for cracking the Greek stronghold on student organizations on campus.

"We organized the first student council, opening up all student organizations to the Independents (non-Greek students)," said Bryant, who was the first freshman representative to the council. "We wanted to have part in the decision making, to have the opportunity to influence decisions."

But the most outstanding characteristic of those times was the students' attitude about themselves and their place in the world. They were a generation embedded in respect and devotion.

"There were no drug or alcohol problems," Kerr, a one time Daily Egyptian editor, said. "There were clear cut, defined cultural lines. We all followed them."

The triumvirate recognized the changes in today's educational system, calling high school education a travesty.

"THE STUDENTS were pretty much homogeneous, we were all the same age, from a 60-mile radius around the Southern Illinois area and all church going," Bryant said. The black population, however, was segregated. The civil rights movement was yet 20 years away.

The University made it mandatory for students to attend chapel service, a requirement that would draw fire in today's society.

"We didn't think twice about it," Gully, who once worked with the alumni newsletter said. "In a sense, we were all conformists. We didn't question our elders."

But they didn't blame anyone for the problems of the time either, and they certainly did not think less of their parents or leaders, Bryant said.

When something was out of the ordinary, the reaction was immediate and usually negative. There was a professor once that showed up to class with a beard, it created quite a stir," Gully said. "There was an unspoken dress code. We had an innate sense of decency between what was right and wrong."

THOSE HARD times molded a "can-do" generation, getting by on what resources were available. They took that attitude with them into World War II.

The triumvirate recognized the changes in today's educational system, calling high school education a travesty. Even at the collegiate level, the system is pandering to the students, where the student decides upon the curriculum.

"Education is a smorgasbord of classes, that is not education," said Kerr, a proponent of a more skill-oriented education.

"When an employer asks you what you can do, what will you say?"

Bryant disagreed saying that an education should involve a good liberal arts background, necessary in today's job market. "An education should let you enjoy life. It works towards fulfillment," he said.

ALL AGREED upon a need for improvement. Bryant cited the escalating cost of education as unjust.

Shawnee tourism group to use grant for training

The Shawnee Convention and Tourism Bureau will utilize a grant of $196,500 for training guides and marketing arts and crafts.

The group received the grant after submitting a 50-page application entitled, "Guides to Adventure."

The Shawnee Development Partnership Program was awarded the funding through the Demonstration Partnership Program, a division of the Office of Community Services in the Department of Health and Human Services, Washington D.C.

"We're especially proud of this approval for funding since Shawnee Development's application was just one of several submitted from across the United States," Herb Nance, chief of program operations at Shawnee Development, said. "We're finding that Southernmost Illinois is beginning to compete more and more effectively on a national level."

"Guides to Adventure" will train nature historical interpreters, tour guides, hunting and fishing guides and outdoor recreation guides.

In addition, the funding will be used for increasing marketing activities for artist-craftsmen throughout the region.

Grants, loans go to students, not stereos

THE RECENT eligibility restrictions for Pell Grant awards is a much needed step in the right direction for the University's overwhelming financial aid problems.

The Congressional Methodology Act of 1986 went into effect this school year and categorizes students in two ways. In the first category, the act assumes freshmen are able to contribute $700 toward their educational expenses and those older than freshmen are able to contribute $900.

THE SECOND category assumes that students can contribute 70 percent of their base income from the previous year if the 70 percent exceeds $700 or $900.

Ultimately, the act weeds out those students who do not really need Pell Grants and places the grant in the hands of those who do. Those who receive Pell Grants this year may be awarded more money than they previously had gotten.

WE ALL know students who, after receiving their Pell Grants or other forms of financial aid, use the money to purchase items such as stereos, automobiles, motorcycles and bicycles. Obviously, this is a misuse of money.

In the early to mid-1970s, the situation was so ridiculous that area businesses would advertise sales during the time grants and loans were being issued to students.

GRANTED, SOME students who need the money will be excluded from eligibility, but the number of needy students who were excluded in the past probably will far overshadow those in the future.

Of those students who cry foul about the changes in eligibility, some probably are the same students who depended on grants and loans to upgrade their stereo system or to purchase new tires for their government-bought cars.

RESTRICTIONS ON financial aid may seem inappropriate during the worst budget crunch the University has ever experienced, but the new act will reduce a lot of spending waste and give money to students who would rather get a good education instead of a new stereo system.

Apologies to Indiana; a misread map indicates that Iowa is the real pits

ALL THOSE unflattering comments I've made about Indiana in recent weeks — I take them all back.

It appears that I've made a terrible mistake, and I owe the people of Indiana an apology.

I discovered my error this way:

A friend of mine, who is a Hoosier, had suggested that he take me on a tour of Indiana.

"BELIEVE ME," he said. "When I show you what a wonderful place it really is, you'll change your mind."

"Never," I said. "I've been to Indiana and nothing you show me can convince me that it is not the dullest, most miserable state in the union."

"That's what has me confused," he said. "I don't understand how you could say that about such a lovely state." "Because it's true," I said.

"WHY DON'T you take one more look," he said. "I appeal to your sense of fairness."

"All right," I said. "But I warn you that nothing you can show me will change my mind because I've already seen it."

So we set out for Indiana.

Within an hour, I knew something was wrong. "Isn't that a pretty sight?" he said, pointing out a part of the countryside.

"You're right," I conceded. "I don't understand how I could have overlooked it."

A LITTLE LATER, he showed me something else.

"Isn't that beautiful?" he said.

Once again I had to agree.

Finally I blurted out, "Something's wrong. I'm thoroughly confused. I've never seen any of these things before."

He said, "I can't understand that. If you've been to Indiana, then you couldn't have overlooked these pleasant sights."

"Are you sure this is Inwhich is why I seldom travel outside the city. I was once lost in Schaumburg for two days. It was such a frightening experience that my hair turned white almost overnight.

SO WHAT APPARENTLY happened was this: When I went to Indiana, I must have turned onto the wrong road. And I ended up somewhere else.

My question was, where? My friend provided the solution. He got out a book that has pictures of towns, cities and the countryside in every state. And we went through the book, page by page, hoping that I would see something that looked familiar.

"How about this?" he said. "No. Those are skyscrapers. I didn't see anything taller than a silo. Lots of silos."

We were about to give up, when he turned a page and I said: "That's it! I've seen that town before — that's Indianapolis."

MY FRIEND SHOOK his head. "No, that's not Indianapolis."

"Then what is it?" "That's Des Moines, Iowa."

"Iowa?" "That's right. When you thought you were in Indiana, you were actually in Iowa. And when you were in Des Moines, you thought you were in Indianapolis."

HE SAID, "But you said you had been in Indiana. You wrote that in your column."

"I meant it. I thought I had been in Indiana. But none of this is familiar."

It was a baffling mystery. But we finally got to the bottom of it and discovered how I had made the mistake.

First, I have to explain that I'm not very good at reading road maps. They all look the same to me, and I'm always turning onto the wrong highway.

Also, I have a poor sense of direction — especially when I go beyond the city limits,

Never mind.

Pay raises out of line

I am totally fuming. While students all over are trying to decide whether to give up school because of low funds, Chancellor Lawrence Pettit and President John Guyon decide to raise their income. They justify this by telling us that it is in line with the other faculty member raises.

Well, I think this administrative pay raise is out of line. I understand that the University needs to keep competitive with other universities, but not at the expense of the students. I believe we have a problem with inefficient spending.

This discrepancy lies in the area of administrators giving themselves paid increases, spending an enormous amount of money on Stone House (upkeep and operation in Sept. 1987 was at $109,500 annually). Pettit asked for some funds to replace the roof, carpets, doors, draperies, and for paint and security system modification.

In addition, Pettit seems compelled to making sure that his lawn is groomed and manicured at a cost of approximately $20,000 annually. I see no reason why he could not hire a student at a much lower cost. In my opinion, the above is an example of inefficiency. If tuition fees are being used for the improvement of quality of teaching for students, why is it that we are suffering from accreditation problems? We implemented an 18 percent increase last spring, and this was not enough? When will these increases stop? Shouldn't it be that quality is improved? Quality only improves with efficiency.

All we want is to see that the administration show they care by making some personal sacrifices as well, on the behalf of students. The only justification for executive salary increases is when there are sufficient funds. Besides the fact that civil service people have received no pay increases and administrators are not to accept pay increases for themselves until everyone below them has received one. Furthermore, people do not take pay raises when their company is going down the toilet.

It just seems to me that the chancellor and president are saying, "Yes, we are aware that the students are suffering, as well as the University programs, but we are more interested in keeping our affluent lifestyle intact. Thus all students will have to bear the brunt of our decision to procure the luxury that we are so used to living with."

So this is the death of education. We see increase in tuition, but no productivity in organization. If there are students at this university who feel the same as I do then please come to the Undergraduate Student Government and become involved. If we, the students, get together on this issue, maybe we can stop the tuition hike before it happens. There are alternatives to this situation other than hitting the students up for money they do not have. — Vicki L. Aponte, Undergraduate Student Government.

Having a good time has its price

There's more to life than drinking. Everyone is talking about the increase in enrollment. Someone should match those numbers with last year's graduates for a big laugh.

There's a lot to do in Carbondale and you would be amazed at the capital to be made off of a good time. The next time you're lured to the Strip by one of those attractive drink ads printed all over the D.E., so you can wait in line for an hour so some big guy can spill a beer on you or a bigger guy can threaten your existence because you were looking at the same girl he was, remember, nothing looks more fat and juicy than badly-dressed, peach-fuzzed freshmen connected to their parents' bank accounts. —Robert Donato, graduate, English

Dixon lists criteria for couple

Zoning restrictions must be suitable for neighborhoods

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

City Manager William C. Dixon's support of the east-west couple at the City Council meeting today will hinge on the condition that landscaping traffic control, and zoning restrictions he deems necessary to retain the residential character of the neighborhood coincide with construction of the couple.

In his report, Dixon listed criteria to be met if Illinois Department of Transportation's proposal to make Main Street one-way west-bound and Walnut Street one-way eastbound is to be constructed.

■ IDOT should install traffic signals at the intersections of West Walnut Street and South Oakland Avenue "to minimize the starting/stopping speeds of eastbound traffic."

■ A moratorium on zoning in the area to prevent business speculation in neighborhoods the couple would run through should be enacted.

■ The City, the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency, IDOT, and community representatives should decide how to spend $250,000 to $300,000 that would be appropriated by IDOT as an amenities package to lessen the impact of the couple on Carbondale neighborhoods.

■ As it is now, parking would be permitted on the north side of west Walnut after construction of the couple. IDOT should resurface west Walnut from south Oakland east to reduce vehicular noise.

■ The couple proposal includes a street that would connect Main Street with Walnut Street running from the intersection of Brook Lane and Main Street to the intersection of Oakland Avenue and Walnut Street. This street should be bermed and landscaped to "minimize the impact of the couple on Brook Lane and (West) Walnut, west of (South) Oakland," the report said.

■ A historic preservation ordinance should be enacted.

■ IDOT should contribute money to researching the feasibility of a north bypass or connector.

"We've always provided quality units for students," Yeager said. "Our objective is that we respond to problems, and I think with the University we have. It wasn't a big mistake. Students need to look for a company that will stand by a mistake and try to rectify it. That's what we've done."

Another complaint with the company is that the University hasn't been sent its 10 percent commission on campus sales.

Housing doesn't think the company has made good with its product, Jones said.

"I talked to them when they first started bringing the units," Jones said. "I looked at a separate crop that was brought down and they didn't look any better."

A proposal for future business has been made to the University by Yeager.

When asked if he noticed anything strange April 6, Hayward answered "The Nitzes" left in the afternoon and came back in the nighttime. That was sort of odd."

Public Defender Larry Broeking said during his opening statement Friday that part of the defense would center around a neighbor who didn't see or hear anything "unusual" outside the Nitz trailer the night the murder allegedly happened.

Robert Baumbeck, Nitz's neighbor, testified he could not remember "exactly" what he was doing April 6, but he doesn't remember anything

"We have made a proposal to provide a percentage of new units and a percentage of high quality used units," Yeager said.

The University asks for bids to provide the refrigerators in spring, Jones said.

"The University gets commission from the company," Jones said. "We provide space for the company on campus and they do the contacting of students."

Another complaint with the company is that the University hasn't been sent its 10 percent commission on campus sales, Jones said. The University was supposed to receive the commission the second week of September, he said.

"We checked the company out before we accepted its bid," Jones said.

Other schools that the company has provided refrigerators for are Iowa State University and Clairmont College.

"After talking to those schools, I can say what we got doesn't look like what they got," Jones said.

Yeager said, "We've got contracts all around the country and haven't lost a contract yet."

"out of the ordinary" happening that week.

Baumbeck's trailer is approximately 100 yards from Nitz's trailer.

Miles Jones, pathologist and lab director at Herrin Hospital, testified that the amount of rigor mortis found in Miley's limbs was greater than would be expected in a person who had been dead for 72 hours. The autopsy was performed April 10.

Miley's decapitated body was found in the trunk of his car April 10 near Rocky Comfort Road in Union County.

The trial will resume at 9:30 today at the Williamson County Courthouse in Marion. Judge Donald Lowery is presiding.

Council sponsors funhouse

The Citizen's Council of Evergreen Terrace will sponsor a Halloween Funhouse from 6 to 8 p.m. Sept. 29 to 30, at Building 150, Evergreen Terrace Activity Room.

The house will be open to children 2 to 8 years old on Saturday, and to children 8 years and over Sunday.

The funhouse will have five rooms and two slides. There will be a room filled with balloons, a room filled with popcorn, a goll room with manequins and people in costume, a climbing room designed like a jungle, and a haunted room with happy monsters and ghosts.

Connie Hall designed the house with help from her children. Everything used in the construction of the funhouse has been donated by local businesses.

Walnut Street, an action that citizen groups had asked of the City Council.

Dixon also recommends that an Historic Preservation ordinance be enacted by the Council, but he does not say what the ordinance would do.

Dixon says the ordinance was suggested by the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency, and the agency does not object to the construction of the couple through Walnut Street which is an Historic district.

In the report Dixon dismisses other suggestions citizen groups have posed as alternatives to the couple.

"Widening Main Street east to University would not address existing problems at Main and University and at University and Walnut.

"A diagonal (street) east of the tracks would be disruptive. Widening Main Street to five lanes would not solve existing problems Main and Oakland or on Oakland between Walnut and Main.

"Widening Main Street to five lanes would set the stage for a subsequent widening to seven lanes. Widening Main Street to seven lanes would have severe consequences for existing properties."

The Central Carbondale Historic Area Association and the West Central Carbondale Neighborhood Association presented the alternatives which Dixon addressed.

Listening Post lets students blow off steam or just talk

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

In the Student Center solicitation area is a place for students to say what is on their minds, and to know that someone is listening.

The place is the Listening Post, operated by campus ministries. It's a place for students to blow off steam or just talk to someone about something that happened during the day. Ken Wallace, director of the Wesley Foundation of the United Methodist Church, said.

"Some people are just lonely so the idea was to have a neutral place for students to go where people care and are willing to listen," Don Wooters, director of campus ministries for the Western Heights Christian Church, said.

The Listening Post isn't meant to be a counseling situation, Wallace said. The average visit usually lasts about five minutes, and is confidential, he said.

Although most visits are casual, some can be more serious. Wooters recalled a time when he talked to a student who was so frustrated about some things stolen from his car that he was thinking about shooting someone. "I think I was helpful in defusing him," he said.

Dr. Al Turl, director of the American Baptist Campus Ministry, said he talked to a person who was upset over the death of a friend, but that he has also talked to students who just wanted to tell someone that they had received an "A" and didn't have anyone else to tell. "It's great" being involved in the Listening Post, said.

The Listening Post is open Monday and Thursday from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Comedian Dana Carvey, better known as the Church Lady, sits in his dressing room after his performance at Shryock Auditorium

Sunday night. Carvey brought the capacity crowd to its feet with his own brand of fast-paced, hilarious stand-up comedy.

Carvey's characters amuse audience with spontaneity

By Theresa Livingston
Staff Writer

Comedian Dana Carvey brought the crowd to its feet as he presented his "special" one-man show to a packed house Sunday night at Shryock Auditorium.

BETTER KNOWN as the Church Lady on NBC's Saturday Night Live, Carvey electrified the crowd with his own brand of fast-paced, hilarious stand-up comedy. Moving easily through the transitions and a few technical difficulties, he covered a number of seemingly unrelated topics.

NO ONE was spared from Carvey's comedic wrath as he expounded upon his experiences growing up in Southern California, his family, the Olympics, Southern Illinoisans, the upcoming presidential elections, as well as a multitude of other social issues.

CARVEY WAS interrupted several times by loud applause, most notably during a bit about Olympic skaters (yelling the refrain "I am SKAT-ING" while manically running across the stage, flailing his arms) and, of course, when he launched into the Church Lady.

TEASING THE audience early with a hint of the holier-than-thou character he has made famous, he nevertheless waited until the end of his routine to bring out the character. Without a costume change, Carvey carried on a conversation between the Church Lady and the sleazy Uncle Rico; switching in and out of characters the way some change clothes.

HIS REPERTOIRE also included uncanny imitations of Jimmy Stewart, Katherine Hepburn, Ronald Reagan, Robin Leach and an uproariously funny take-off on the rhetoric of Jesse Jackson.

CARVEY ALSO noted the difference between his generation and current college students. "When I was growing up it was 'Just say Yes!,'" he noted to the crowd.

ROCK STARS were the main target of the two encores, with Carvey satirizing Bob Dylan, folk singers, rock lyrics ("Do they just make them up as they go?!" he asked incredulously at one point), and what Neil Young would sound like on a commercial.

THE MICROPHONES periodically switched off throughout the show, but showing his gift for spontaneity, Carvey incorporated the difficulties into his act. Asked after the show whether this distracted him, Carvey replied, "The only thing that is unexpected is the expected. Write that down."

Nightly news show added to WSIU-TV

WSIU-TV Channel 8, run almost entirely by students, has added a local nightly news broadcast to its schedule of local programming this season.

David A. Campbell, a producer at SIU-C's Broadcasting Service, said faculty-supervised students will do 95 percent of the work by writing, producing, directing and delivering the half-hour shows.

Compared to previous morning broadcasts, the new time slot will force students to write and produce stories in a more timely manner — real world experience that is invaluable when job hunting, he said.

Viewers may tune in week nights at 10:30 p.m. to see the broadcast, which began Monday.

Other plans for the station include the return of "Medically Speaking," a popular call-in show that features health topics each week. It will air at 9 p.m. on Thursdays and features Anne K. Johnson, faculty member of SIU's School of Medicine, as the host of the live production.

Tapes of each broadcast will air the following Sunday at 3 p.m.

The station will broadcast a taped version of West Frankfort's Old King Coal parade Sept. 25 and Marion's Big Lake Country parade Oct. 1. Both shows begin at 1:30 p.m.

High school students from throughout Southern Illinois will compete in the 1988 edition of "Scholastic Hi-Q" beginning Oct. 4. Weekly shows will be repeated on Saturdays and Marvin D. Kleinau, chairperson of speech communication, will return as host.

In addition to this local programming, national PBS broadcasts for the fall season offer viewers a variety of entertainment, Erv Coppi, veteran broadcaster and director of special promotions for WSIU-TV, said.

New shows include "The Mind," which uses state-of-the-art computer graphics and time-lapse photography to examine how the mind works.

Stress and lifestyle habits are factors in illness

By Dave Elam
Wellness Center

Hippocrates said he would rather know what sort of person has a disease than what sort of disease a person has. Paralleling today's technical advances in medicine is a growing acknowledgement of the importance of attitude, belief and personality in staying healthy.

More physicians are referring patients to psychologists, stress counselors and other mental health workers as they realize how frequently stress and lifestyle habits are a factor in creating illness.

To Your Health

Each semester hundreds of students are referred for stress management counseling by Health Service physicians as well as for nutrition, eating disorders, weight control, substance abuse, and sexuality concerns.

One recent book that examines healing and how patients participate in their own healing process is Dr. Siegel's "Love, Medicine and Miracles."

Siegel shows how working with a doctor on a "healing team" influences the course of a person's illness and often leads to profound life changes.

As Siegel explores the link between the body and mind, he frequently returns to the theme of love, and how the journey to recovery begins by examining your attitudes toward yourself.

To quote Dr. Siegel: "The fundamental problem most patients face is an inability to love themselves, having been unloved by others during some crucial part of their lives."

"This period is almost always their childhood, when our relations with our parents establish our characteristic ways of reacting to stress. As adults we repeat these reac-

"The ability to love oneself, combined with the ability to love life, fully accepting that it won't last forever, enables one to improve the quality of life."

Siegel says the power of positive thinking is important, but is not enough. He supports modern medicine in combination with a wholesome attitude.

"Love, Medicine and Miracles" is available at the Wellness Center library and at most local bookstores.

'Condom man' trying to save a generation

MIAMI (UPI) — David Scotkin, known on the streets he cruises until the wee hours as "Condom Man," said Monday he is trying to save a generation by distributing thousands of free condoms to low-income youths.

Scotkin, 42, who formerly worked with a local organization called Cure AIDS Now, drives his own mobile home packed with condoms and brochures on AIDS, pregnancy and venereal disease printed in three languages. He cruises Miami's low-income neighborhoods, sometimes until 4 a.m., distributing the materials. "Teenagers, young adults that are on the streets, are the least likely to get the facts on AIDS," he said. "They're the only ones that can stop an epidemic. I can't think of any other time in history that teenagers can save a generation and stop an epidemic."

The State Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services has donated thousands of condoms since he started the Mobile AIDS Prevention Program in late July, and condom companies are donating thousands more, Scotkin said.

Dana Blanchard, senior in business and administration from Belleville, models an outfit for her group fashion show in the Student Recreation Center alumni lounge

Friday. Students in Display and Exhibits Design class will have their own fashion shows throughout September to learn all the aspects of putting on a show.

Students put on fashion show

Coordinate music, lighting, budget, for designs class

By Diana Mivelli
Staff Writer

Students in the vocational education studies Display and Exhibit Designs class are learning the ins and outs of putting on a fashion show.

They are planning and executing their own fashion shows throughout September in the Recreation Center alumni lounge, Jean Nathlich, graduate assistant in Vocational Education Studies in the clothing and textiles department, said.

The class is divided into 6 groups. Each group is responsible for its own individual show from start to finish, Nathlich said.

"Planning, advertising, budget, lighting, music, timing and the number of models needed should combine smoothly to look like it was no effort putting on the fashion show," Nathlich said.

Nathlich said the independent fashion shows are in preparation for the fashion show Sunday of Parents' Weekend at the buffet brunch. It is being organized by design students and clothing classes.

Nathlich said students can make the clothes, borrow the clothes from local merchants or use their own clothing to model.

Tamara Davis, senior in Home Economics and commentator for the Esprit fashion show, said no specific guidelines made it harder.

"I never realized how much work is involved in putting on a fashion show," Patricia Roche, senior in retailing, said.

One group chose the grand opening of Guzall's as its theme and decorated the stage area with colorful streamers and balloons.

Nancy Staudacher, senior in retailing and apparel design and chairperson of the Guzall's fashion show, said the planning of the show took about two weeks.

"I learned team effort. I think we took a different approach by using a store theme," Staudacher said. "We also used men in our group which was good because they aren't always aimed at in fashion."

A few onlookers stopped by the lounge to watch the shows.

More shows will run Sept. 23. They are open to the public.

Drill Team competes

The Saluki AFFOTC Drill Team will represent SIU in parades and competitions this semester. They already have performed twice this fall.

Aug. 26, they participated in the DuQuoin Twilight Parade at the state fairgrounds. It was their first performance of the year.

The second parade for the team was at the Royalton Round-Up Parade on Sept. 5, where there were over 30 entries.

The cadets performed again at the Murphysboro Apple Festival Parade Saturday. They will go to Creal Springs, IL, for the 7th Annual Creal Springs Parade Oct. 1.

Officials to discuss mass transit study

By Brad Bushue
Staff Writer

Officials from all areas affected by the proposed Carbondale mass transit system will meet today to discuss the scope of the feasibility study.

Representatives from Carbondale city government, Disabled Student Services, the Chamber of Commerce, campus services, the Undergraduate Student Government and Graduate and Professional Student Council will discuss the questions their organizations want answered by the feasibility study with Illinois Department of Transportation representatives.

USG Transit Commission's Marvin Tanner, who will preside over the meeting, said everyone who will be affected by the transit systems is invited to the meeting to help set the study's scope.

The transit commission will ask the study to include such concerns as the system's economic impact on the city and the University, an analysis of ridership, the effect the system would have on traffic and whether a $15 student fee increase will be enough.

The study, which will cost about $40,000 and be paid for in part by the University and the city of Carbondale, was requested by IDOT officials to determine whether the system funds from the state and by University officials before they would enact a $15 student fee increase.

Bryan Duncan shares ideas on Christianity through rock

By Wayne Wallace
Staff Writer

Somewhere between Amy Grant and Stryper you'll find Bryan Duncan.

At 7:30 p.m. tonight, local youth can sample his blend of uplifting lyrics and hard-driving pop as Duncan appears in concert with the Allies at the Marion Civic Center.

The concert is sponsored by "Jesus Solid Rock," a contemporary Christian radio program on WCIL-FM.

Jerry Bryant, host of the weekly broadcast, has been organizing gospel concerts in Southern Illinois for the past 15 years. He estimates that the popularity of Christian rock has reached an all-time high, stating "these concerts are a positive outlet for kids. They allow them to worship the Lord in their own way."

Bryant views Duncan and the Allies as two of the hottest acts performing progressive Christian music today.

"Duncan is every bit as good as Peter Cetera or Michael McDonald," he says. Duncan is also famous for his wonderful sense of humor on stage, a quality that appeals to a wide audience of both teenagers and parents.

Although Duncan is dedicated to leading young people to Christ, he relies more on his singing than on his preaching and consistently maintains his musical integrity.

Duncan will be backing such hits as "Have Yourself Committed" and "Holy Rollin'" from his latest LP "Whistlin' in the Dark."

Like Duncan, the Allies gear their message of Jesus Christ's love toward the younger crowd, especially teens.

Bryant admits that both Duncan and the Allies are two of his favorite Christian acts. "It's always nice when you can book your favorites," he says.

The "Whistlin' in the Dark" Tour has been receiving rave reviews all across the country.

"It's just like any other rock concert," Bryant says, "only without the drugs and alcohol."

Tickets are $9.50 at the door.

Liquor allowed in dorms

By Kimberly Clarke
Staff Writer

Hard liquor is permitted in University dorms in which alcohol is allowed according to a new policy, Steve Kirk, assistant director of Housing for Residence Life, said.

The previous University Housing policy for 21 and over dorms, Allen I at University Park and Warren Hall at Thompson Point, consisted of allowing only beer and wine on the premises.

The previous policy allowed beer and wine.

Illinois used to have a two-teared alcohol policy where 19-year-olds could buy beer and wine, and those 21 and over could buy all types of alcohol, Kirk said.

In 1979, Illinois changed the legal drinking age to 21 for all forms of alcohol. The University changed its policy in accordance with Illinois in 1979.

Kirk said University Housing just changed their policy again this summer.

"There was a desire to change the University Housing policy to include hard liquor, making it as liberal as the University's policy on alcohol," Kirk said.

Use of timeless theme brings reality to movie

"Pascali's Island" is the story of a man caught between two loyalties, one of which he ultimately betrays.

Basil Pascali, played by Ben Kingsley, best known for playing the title role in "Ghandi," lives on a Greek Island under Turkish occupation in 1908. He is an informant for the Turkish Empire.

An Englishman, Anthony Bolts, played by Charles Dance, comes to the island pretending to be an archeologist. Pascali interprets for Bolts when he leases some valuable land from a wealthy Turk.

Bolts shows the wealthy Turk valuable artifacts he claims were found on the leased site. Bolts agrees to sell back the lease contract at a profit.

Pascali knows the artifacts are not from the site. Confronted, Bolts offers Pascali part of the profit from the scam. Pascali accepts and they become partners and friends.

When Bolts stumbles onto a real artifact, he delays handing over the contract — and Pascali's money.

Film Review

To complicate things, Pascali is in love with Lydia, an artist, who falls in love with Bolts.

Pascali is torn between his love for both Lydia and Bolts, and his distrust of them. He is torn between his European friends and his loyalty to a dying Turkish empire.

The story is told partly through the scenes themselves and partly through Pascali's letters to his Emperor. The scenes, shot in Simi and Rhodes, Greece, are beautiful but fortunately does not overshadow the plot.

The only problem with the plot is a nagging sense that any statue buried for 2,000 years ought to be a little harder to find. The music is, for the most part, appropriate, but occasionally is a little too obvious and tries a little too hard to set the mood, as if the film makers are trying to see how loud it can get.

The best aspect of the film is that even though it is a period piece, the themes of betrayal, lust and greed are timeless. With good performances, nice scenery and a good plot with a fine sense of detail, the movie is worth seeing.

Golfers struggle in first matches

By John Walby/
Staff Writer

The men's and women's golf teams opened their seasons this weekend with comparable results as the women's team placed seventh at the Illinois State Invitational, and the men's team eighth at the Northern Iowa Golf Classic.

"I'm not happy with seventh, but I don't think we'll stay there," said women's golf coach Diane Daugherty.

The team ended Saturday with a team total of 318 strokes, and returned Sunday to shoot a 333 for a two-day total of 651.

Daugherty said she was pleased with the team's play on Saturday since the team had set a goal of breaking 320.

Northern Illinois won with a score of 617.

Freshman Anne Childress shot an 81 and 83.

"It was really good for the freshmen to come in and play as well as they did not knowing what to expect," Daugherty said.

Junior Lisa Merritt, finished with a career low 76 and 83 to lead the team while junior Lisa Johnson finished with an 80 and 83.

Daugherty was pleased with the team's return play on the back-nine. "I think they're confident, I don't really feel they're discouraged."

The men's golf team and Minnesota tied for eighth with a 1,224 points.

Illinois was the eventual winner of the tournament with a total of 1,158 strokes, followed by Iowa in second with a 1,190. Third place was shared by Wisconsin and Illinois State, both at 1,193.

Hartzog said the team played well on Friday and Saturday, but had problems Sunday.

Junior Mike Cowen was the team's low-scorer with a 75, a 78, 74 and 72 for a total 299. Cowen, suffering from mono-nucleosis, placed 10th overall.

Britt Pavelonis was second for the Salukis with 804. Mark Bellas and Dirk Klapprott were third and fourth with 312 and 317 respectively. Sean Lechrone was fifth with a 331.

Rain propels men's tennis to first

By Megan Hauck/
Staff Writer

Rain suspended the finals of two doubles matches at the Murray State Invitational, leaving the men's tennis team tied with Southwest Missouri for first.

The six-team tournament at Murray, Ky., concluded Saturday.

The Salukis were minus No. 5 singles player Juan Martinez, who has a swollen kneecap. Martinez did compete in doubles competition with George Hime, though, to complete a 1-1 record.

Coach Dick LeFevre said it will take some time to get Martinez in condition for singles play.

"He's really out of shape," Coach Dick LeFevre said. "He hasn't been able to play for two weeks. Put two more weeks of rest on top of that and he may not play very well for a couple of weeks."

Joe Demeterco won the No. 2 singles flight, beating Chris Gillis of Southwest Missouri 6-4, 6-3. Demeterco teamed with Jairo A'dana to remain undefeated in two doubles matches.

Mickey Maule, a junior from Aledo, won the No. 3 flight by default. Maule and senior Fabiano Ramos won both of their No. 1 doubles flights.

Hime, a junior from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, dominated the No. 5 flight by defeating Thomas Hult of Murray State.

Injured linebacker 'doubtful' for game Saturday at Normal

By David Gallanetti/and Troy Taylor/
Staff Writers

Senior outside linebacker Henry Peer, who tore ligaments in his left knee during the Salukis' 28-21 victory over Murray State on Saturday, will be doubtful for this weekend's game at Illinois State, Coach Rick Rhoades said.

"This is primarily an opinion on my part," Rhoades said. "The medical observations are not yet completed."

Peer, a two-year letter-winner from Florissant, Mo., was injured on a second-quarter play near the east sidelines of McAndrew Stadium. He limped off the field, but later returned to the SIU-C bench, wearing street clothes and a protective brace on his left leg.

Peer completed three tackles up to that point of the game.

Proctor sets mark

Murray State quarterback Michael Proctor passed for 351 yards and set a career record.

Proctor marched the Racers upfield on four completions in the final 1:22 before the Salukis' prevent defense forced an interception as time expired.

The previous high for Proctor was 275 yards in last year's Murray State season opener against Tennessee-Martin.

Beat the clock

Murray State got nine plays off in that final series of plays, but coach Mike Mahoney thought he could have gotten one more.

Football notebook

"We just ran out of time," Mahoney said. "We didn't get set up at 10 seconds and we let it get down to four seconds. We should've done something to kill the clock at eight seconds."

The Racers were out of time outs.

Rhoades had fun

SIU-C coach Rick Rhoades said he was generally pleased with the attendance at McAndrew Stadium for what was his first home victory.

"I'll remember this for some time," Rhoades said. "I had a lot of fun. It looked like a decent crowd."

Attendance was estimated at 12,000. Last season's high for home attendance was 13,500 against Illinois State.

It's Singer, again

Western Illinois quarterback Paul Singer was named the Gateway Conference offensive player of the week for the second time. Three Gateway Conference teams were ranked in the Sports Network Division I-AA Top 20 poll this week. Western Illinois was sixth, Eastern Illinois was 14th and Northern Iowa was 17th.

Gateway scores from Saturday: Western Illinois 35, Southwest Missouri 31; Northern Iowa 59, Morgan State 14; Florida 58, Indiana State 0; Eastern Illinois 28, Liberty 27; and Western Michigan 44, Illinois State 14.

Rugby loses to defending champion

The men's rugby club invaded Springfield this weekend hoping to catch the defending Illinois Union champs off-guard. But the Celts Club took advantage of Saluki errors to take a 13-0 halftime lead, and go on to win convincingly 21-8.

Coach Steve Montez said the two teams played evenly in the second half, as both ended the half having scored 8 points each.

Mike Eichholz and Norm Smith were the lone scorers.

The rugby team was riding a wave of confidence the team had acquired after opening its season with a victory over Southeast Missouri, who they had lost to last year.

sputtered. Of the Salukis' 31 shots on goal, Central Michigan goalie Beth Koenig had to make a play on only 15 of them. The others were easily wide of the goal.

"It's not that we're not trying," Iliner said. "But we've got to play tougher.

"We're taking Monday off to get a little rest," she said.

The Salukis take on Toledo at 10 a.m. Friday and then Ohio at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Louganis recovers from head injury to win gold

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Greg Louganis added to his reputation as the best diver in history Tuesday, winning the third Olympic gold medal and 50th international title of his career less than 24 hours after banging his head on the diving board.

Louganis won the second gold medal of the Games for the United States, outdueling Chinese rivals Tan Liangde and Li Deliang with a series of near-perfect dives.

His performance was a bright spot for an American

Olympic effort that has been short of them since the Games began last Saturday. The gold medal he won Tuesday was added to the two he won at the Los Angeles Olympics four years ago. Louganis, 28, of San Diego, will try for another gold early next week in the platform event.

Louganis' victory Tuesday came a day after the qualifying dives, during which he made a rare mistake and came down too close to the board. The top of his head hit the board and his legs buckled as he splashed into the water. Although he was not seriously hurt, four stitches were required at poolside to close the wound in his head and another stitch was taken after he returned to the Olympic Village.

In sharp contrast to Louganis, middleweight boxer Anthony Hembrick came away from his first Olympic encounter without a sweat. But his hopes for the gold disappeared.

Hembrick, 22, of Fort Bragg, N.C., was to have fought South

Korean Ha Jong-Ho in a first-round middleweight bout, the winner expected to have the easiest path to the gold medal debut.

"There are a lot of reasons for what happened," Hembrick said in his only public comment on the freakish events that led to his disqualification from the Olympics.

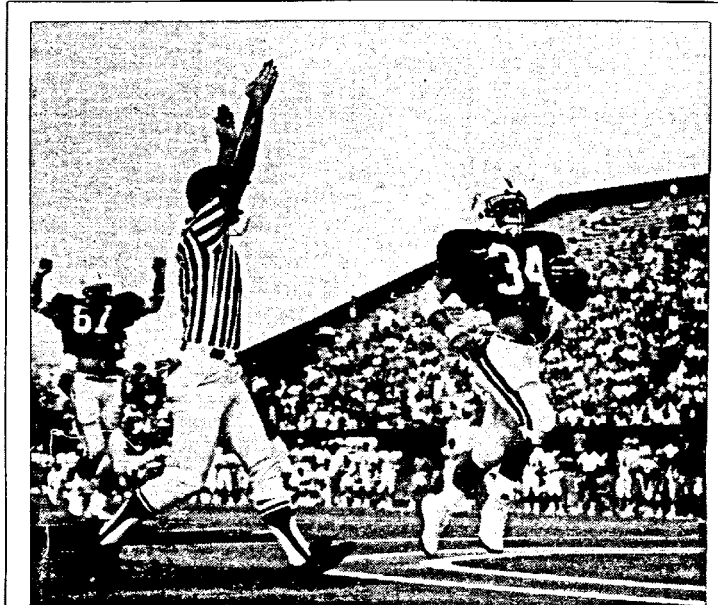

The six-women gymnastics team performed splendidly in the compulsory segment of the women's team competition, scoring 194.950 of a possible 200 points to land in fourth place and within striking distance of the third-place East Germans.

The jubilation of the showing following the men's dismal 12th-place finish in their compulsory Sunday was brief.

Shortly after the competition ended, the team learned it had been penalized one-half point for an infraction on the uneven parallel bars.

After shifting some equipment, team substitute Rhonda Faehn failed to get off the competition platform.

Touchdown stride

Charles Harmke, a senior halfback, glides into the end zone at 11:09 of the third quarter to put the Salukis ahead 28-14 during Saturday's victory over Murray

State. Harmke's 17-yard touchdown run is cheered on by freshman tackle Don Craig. Harmke was the team's leading rusher with 75 yards. See story Page 15.

Women's tennis opens slate by defeating 4 Gateway foes

By Megan Hauck
Staff Writer

Bradley, Eastern Illinois, Illinois State and Western Illinois all have at least one thing in common. All lost to the women's tennis team.

The Salukis opened the season against Eastern Illinois, winning 7-2 on Thursday. By Saturday, the Salukis had upped their record to 4-0.

"It's a good way to start out a season, especially against conference opponents," Coach Judy Auld said. "You want to start out strong and stay strong."

An undefeated doubles string from Dana Cherebitiu and Michele Jeffrey, and an undefeated singles showing from the 4-3 Jeffrey highlighted the weekend.

"The doubles looked a lot better than they have in the past," Auld said. "We've had a little bit of time to work on them, and it's really made a noticeable difference."

The road trip, which lasted four days, was an excellent way to start the season, Auld said.

Men's tennis results

"It was quite a boost for the girls," Auld said. "If we can stay healthy and keep playing well, we'll be a team to reckon with in the (Gateway) Conference."

Maria Coch, a senior from Bogota, Columbia, had a slow start against Eastern Illinois, losing at No. 5 singles and No. 3 doubles.

"Maria was bogged down with classes and homework," Auld said. "She was a little tired Thursday. On any other day she would have beaten the girl."

Coch won three and lost one in singles, and went two and one in doubles with Julie Burgess. Burgess did not play singles.

Beth Boardman also had an exceptional weekend, losing only to Western Illinois' No. 1 player, Kathy Gates-Washington, in three sets. Despite the loss, Boardman's record is 5-3.

Women's cross country runs into problems away from home at 27-team Midwest Invite

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

After a disappointing performance in the Midwest Collegiates this weekend, women's cross country coach Don DeNoon said he will be looking to regroup his squad for the Saluki Invitational coming up in two weeks.

"I don't know if I ran them too hard before the meet or what," DeNoon said.

The Salukis finished 16th out of a field of 27 teams with 459 points. The field was made up of some of the perennially best cross country teams in the country including Wisconsin, Minnesota and Purdue from the Big Ten, and Ohio University from the Mid-Atlantic.

Over 280 runners started the race with 269 finishers.

"But this was probably the worst collegiate performance I've seen since I started coaching here," DeNoon said, adding that he will reassess the situation as the week progresses.

DeNoon did not want to place all the blame on the athletes, and said maybe they weren't

"I don't know if I ran them too hard before the meet or what. But this was probably the worst collegiate performance I've seen since I started coaching here."

—Don DeNoon

prepared as well as they should have been.

"It was hardly worth the effort of an eight-hour bus ride to get to the meet," DeNoon said.

Last year the Salukis were fifth in this same meet, which had over 250 runners, but they benefited by having their two top runners, Lisa Judiscak and Vivian Sinou, participating in the competition.

Sinou has become an assistant coach and Judiscak is injured.

DeNoon said to be competitive in a tournament of this magnitude, the team really needed its top runner there.

DeNoon had hoped for three runners to finish in the top 50, but ended up with only one, which took away any hopes of the Salukis finishing ahead of the rest of the Gateway teams.

The meet saw Illinois State, Indiana State and Western Illinois finish ahead of the Salukis in 7th, 8th, and 10th places respectively.

"Jane Schumacher ran her best time of the year to finish 37th at 19:13 and we got good performances from some of the freshmen," DeNoon said.

Junior Cathy Brown finished in 83rd place for the Salukis at 20:15. Senior Pam Quarengi was 123rd, Tracy Guerin was 133rd, Amie Padgett was 157th, Beth Johnson was 198th, Michelle Sciano was 201st and Rosanne Vincent did not finish. Sciano's performance was hindered by illness, and Vincent complained of leg cramps about two miles out and had to withdraw from the race.

DeNoon said it was hard for many of the runners to jockey for position at the starting line with such a large group clogging the raceway.

"Even though our athletes came out strong, a 300 yard hill not too far into the race kept the runners from being able to pass people when they needed too."

The University of Wisconsin won the race with 45 points followed by Minnesota with 47 and Ohio University with 101.

The winning time was run by Wisconsin's Suzi Faver 17:47.

Field hockey drops 5th game of season

By Troy Taylor
Staff Writer

Field hockey coach Julie Illner said it's been frustrating, watching her team lose five straight games.

"We played our last three games tough and lost them," said Illner, whose team started the season with two victories. "That's harder to take sometimes."

The Salukis lost in double overtime late Thursday night and then fell 1-0 to Central Michigan on Sunday in St. Louis.

The Salukis are averaging 1.7 goals per game while allowing opponents 2.1 goals per game. The most important thing to turn around is the inefficiency of the offense, Illner said.
