Israeli soldiers kill Arab in West Bank

JERICHO, Occupied Jordan (AP)—Israeli soldiers shot and killed an Arab man Monday as West Bank Arabs continued to protest to two-day march by thousands of Israeli Jews demanding that their government annex occupied Jordanian land.

An Israeli military communique said a patrol was "attacked this morning by a large group of rioters in an alley of the casbah in Nablus. The patrol fired a number of warning shots and as a result three persons were hit."

One of the wounded, a 55-year-old man, died while being rushed to a hospital, the communique said.

He was the sixth Arab casualty in a wave of anti-Israeli riots by the 670,000 West Bank Arabs since February.

Shortly before the shooting incident was announced, the Jewish marchers arrived in Jericho, dry and dusty at the end of a 24-mile trek across the desert. Buses took them back to Jerusalem. Some carried guns, others guitars and babies. Many had camped out overnight.

Troops sealed off the center of Jericho before the marchers arrived because Arab residents earlier stoned soldiers and passing cars. There was no direct confrontation between Israeli marchers and Arab protesters along the route of the march.

An estimated 20,000 to 40,000 Israelis took part in the march organized by the right-wing Gush Emunim, or Loyalist Bloc, which claims the West Bank is part of the land promised to the Jews by God. They want Israel to keep the land it captured from Jordan in the 1967 Mideast war and allow Jewish settlement near this biblical city.

Another Arab was slightly wounded by Israeli soldiers in a separate protest near the West Bank town of Jenin. Israeli officials said the troops fired warning shots to break up a riot by about 100 Arabs.

Elsewhere on the West Bank, students burned tires and set up roadblocks.

A military spokesman said an Israeli major was killed and three soldiers injured in a road accident outside Nablus but denied it was an act of sabotage.

In Ramallah on Sunday, about 10,000

Arabs turned a funeral into a protest against the Israeli march. They waved Palestinian flags and banners saying, "No march, no settlement on our land, no Zionists."

The funeral was for a local man shot Friday by another Arab and a 6-year-old boy killed by Israeli gunfire during a demonstration that resulted from the first shooting.

Last week, Palestinian radicals and supporters of the Palestine Liberation Organization won most of the municipal council seats in local elections on the West Bank, defeating moderate supporters of a return to Jordanian rule.

Hearing called to settle detention rights question

By Debbie Absher
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The questions of when detention of a person by a police officer becomes an arrest and what information an officer may elicit without violating a person's rights prompted Jackson County Circuit Judge Richard Richman to call an evidentiary hearing Monday afternoon to settle the issues during the trial of two men charged with three counts of drug violations.

Mark C. McPherson, 25, of Carbondale, and Donald Coleman, of Raleigh, N.C., are each charged with possession of over 500 grams of cannabis with intent to deliver it, possession of over 500 grams of cannabis and possession of the controlled substance ethchlorvynol, also known as placydil.

The men were arrested Jan. 27 after law enforcement officials discovered about 262 pounds of marijuana and other drugs in a house on Route 2, Murphysboro, where the two men allegedly lived.

A fourth charge of possession of a controlled substance was dismissed after Richman ruled that the substance was found in a place where items listed in the search warrant would not have conceivably been located. The warrant specified only that officers look for marijuana and materials related to the processing and distribution of it.

McPherson is being represented by Larry Debus of Arizona, and Coleman is being represented by Brockton Lockwood of Carbondale.

The first witness called by Jackson County Assistant State's Atty. Howard Hood was Quentin Parrish, a Carbondale rental businessman, who testified that the tri-level house in which the defendants allegedly lived had been rented since September to a Christine March.

The house, which is located adjacent to the Jackson County Country Club, had been for sale for a year and a half, but was leased meanwhile, Parrish said. The tenant's contract noted that and contained a clause which allowed the landlord to show the house to prospective buyers, he said.

Parrish said he and an employee went to the house Jan. 27 to see if it were in condition to show to some people, he said.

No one was home, Parrish said, and they had to shove open the doors to gain entry because the locks had been changed.

"We saw a bunch of stuff wrapped in black paper stacked up in the front room," Parrish testified. "I didn't know exactly what it was. We were there only as long as it took to walk in, look at it and get out."

Parrish, who lives near the house, said he called the Illinois State Police.

Parrish said he had never seen or had contact with the defendants prior to Jan. 27 and that he had seen March only once when she was in his office paying her rent.

A special agent for the Southern Illinois Enforcement Group (MEG) testified in court that he was sent to the house for surveillance after he received a call that a large quantity of what was reported to be cannabis was in the house.

The agent said he observed three white males approach the residence from the country club's golf course and enter the house.

A few minutes later, the agent said, two of the subjects exited the house and proceeded across the golf course in the same direction from which they had come.

The agent said he took pictures of the house and the men's activities.

Student attorney applicants reviewed

By Mike Springston
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The first ten applicants for the student attorney position were reviewed Monday during a meeting of the Student Attorney Program's board of directors, but a selection of a student attorney will probably not be made until June. Student President Doug Diggle said.

Diggle said the program's board was waiting for the responses from ads which will appear next week in two professional law magazines before making the selection.

Diggle said applications would be accepted for two weeks after the ads appeared in the "ABA (American Bar Association) Journal" and the "IBA (Illinois Bar Association) Journal."

Diggle said the board was pleased with the response received from the ad that was run in the "Chronicle of Higher Education" but that the ad in the law journals should produce about 90 more applicants for the student attorney.

Diggle said that any person who does not submit a resume within two weeks is probably not that interested in the position.

Diggle said the board would probably invite the top three choices to SIU at the end of May and interview them for the position. Diggle said the attorney should be hired by the beginning of summer session.

Dean of Student Life Harvey Welch said there were four outstanding candidates reviewed by the board Monday, but none of the applicants were rejected.

Welch said some of the candidates were law students who would be graduating this year.

Diggle said graduating law students would not be rejected but they would not be given high consideration because they would not receive the results of their ABA Entrance Exam until September.

Welch said that law students applying for the student attorney position might still be considered at a later date.

"I think a position like this will turn over a great deal," Welch said.

Diggle said the applications will be screened by the individual board members as they come in.

"We'll get some applicants who are not qualified, some who are marginally qualified and others who are extremely qualified," Diggle said. "We should be able to knock them down pretty quickly."

Gus Bode

Gus says the student attorney will need an unlimited budget for aspirin.

Hearing called to settle detention rights question

However, a picture showing three men walking across the golf course to the house "didn't turn out," he said, but the other pictures showing the defendants did turn out.

The agent said he could see to within two feet of the house's front door using the binoculars.

"But you never specifically saw McPherson or Coleman enter the house?" Debus questioned the agent, who admitted that he could not actually see the men walk in the door.

The question of whether McPherson and Coleman were actually under arrest because they were being detained surfaced during the state's questioning of State Trooper David Mileur. And if the men were actually under arrest, the question of their volunteering identification information when they hadn't been given Miranda warnings of their rights must be proven by the preponderance of evidence in a hearing, Richman said.

Mileur testified that he arrived in the area at 3:05 p.m. to answer a request by MEG for assistance. He said he was to help surveil until a search warrant had been obtained.

Mileur said he was standing in Parrish's driveway when Parrish pointed out a passing car which he said was similar to one he had seen parked at the house.

Mileur said he entered Parrish's car with him and they drove to the country club parking lot, where they observed the same vehicle parked.

The trooper returned to Parrish's house, obtained his squad car and returned to the lot after he received a report that two subjects were proceeding across the golf course, he said.

Mileur said after the men got into the car he asked Coleman, who was in the driver's seat, for identification. When Coleman asked what the trouble was, Mileur said he explained that the house the two men had just left was under surveillance for marijuana violations, and that he had to detain the men until the investigation was complete.

In the evidentiary hearing, which is held to inform the judge so that he can make a decision on the issue which precipitated the hearing, Mileur said Coleman produced a valid North Carolina driver's license. McPherson said he had no identification with him, Mileur said, but told him his name and occupation and provided a phone number to verify it.

McPherson said he was a salesman for Bluegem Enterprises, Inc. of Carbondale and that he lived with Christine March at Lakewood Park, Route 2, Carbondale, when he was in town, the trooper said.

Mileur said he didn't tell the men they were under arrest and therefore didn't treat them as if they were because he "didn't feel it was my duty to do further at that point based on my knowledge." He said he had no way of knowing what the investigation would produce.

May 10 deadline set for dean of continuing ed applicants

Nominations and applications for the position of dean of continuing education must be submitted to James Tweedy, chairman of the search committee, by May 10, said Frank Horton, vice president for academic affairs and research.

The positions of dean of continuing education and dean of general academic programs were created as a result of an administrative reorganization of University Programs last month. A national search has been initiated for the dean of continuing education while the search for the dean of general academic programs will be limited to individuals at SIU. The deadline for submitting an application for the latter is April 22.

The dean of continuing education will be responsible for continuing education, military programs, the Labor Institute and the Listener's Program.

Requirements for the position include a doctorate degree or equivalent academic qualifications and administrative experience.

Applicants for the job should submit to Tweedy a copy of their curriculum vita, a list of three references and a statement of their views on the future of continuing education, their role as dean and the relationship of continuing education to the University.

Special F-Senate session set

The Faculty Senate will meet in a special session Tuesday to continue reviewing proposed grievance procedures for faculty and administrative staff members.

The meeting is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. in the Agriculture Building's Seminar Room.

At last Tuesday's meeting, Faculty Senate President Herbert Donow criticized the proposed grievance procedures, saying it will take too much time for the process.

Retired SIU professor dies

Retired SIU Professor Claude J. Dykhouse, 72, of 4408 Pleasant Ridge Court, Peoria, died at 3:30 a.m. Monday.

Mr. Dykhouse served actively with the University from September 1947 until 1968 when he took a disability leave. He resigned in 1972 because of ill health.

He was a professor of secondary

News Roundup

Ford to name Telecommunications director

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford plans to nominate Thomas Houser, a Chicago lawyer and former member of the Federal Communications Commission, to the long-vacant post of director of the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy (OTP), informed sources said Monday. There was no immediate comment from the White House. Houser's Chicago law office said he was out of the country and unavailable for comment.

The sources confirmed reports published over the weekend by the New York Times and two trade publications, Television Digest and Broadcasting magazine. John Eger has been acting director since Clay T. Whitehead left the post in September 1974. OTP sources said Eger plans to leave the agency and return to private law practice. Television Digest said Eger failed to get the job because he succeeded in blocking a move by Roy Ash, former director of the Office of Management and Budget, to abolish the agency as an economy move.

Justices asked to ban lower court gag orders

WASHINGTON (AP)—The news media asked the Supreme Court Monday to bar lower courts from restricting news coverage of pending criminal trials. But a Nebraska prosecutor, who obtained a conviction in a mass murder case after a so-called gag order was imposed, argued that the orders are needed to protect the rights of defendants. The court heard arguments for the first time on the constitutionality of the so-called gag orders. It is expected to reach a decision by June.

Milton R. Larson, county attorney of Lincoln County, Neb., told the court he sought the restrictive order because he thought it was his responsibility as a prosecutor to "take reasonable steps to protect the individual's right to a fair trial." Larson told the justices that he was called to Sutherland, Neb., last Oct. 18 to investigate the slaying of six members of a Sutherland family in their home. Before the bodies had been removed, he said, a television network helicopter and reporters for wire services and newspapers had arrived.

Federal grain inspectors report to work

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Forty federal inspectors, many of whom were just children when cheating began at Mississippi River export grain elevators, reported for duty Monday to begin the task of keeping the $12 billion business scandal-free. The arrival of the inspectors, fresh from a five-week training course, comes after two years of investigation and court action in which there have been 100 indictments and 60 convictions.

Included in the group are such relative youngsters as 22-year-old Alice Evans, of Vicksburg, Mass., holder of an agricultural degree from Alcorn State University at Lorman, Miss. She will be the second woman inspector in the New Orleans port area. The new inspectors, who will watch over some 200 private and state grain graders, precede by a few weeks another 80 inspectors scheduled to bolster the grain division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture in New Orleans, the port from which 40 per cent of all exported grain leaves.

Prosecutor challenges Hearst's revelations

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—A prosecutor said Monday that authorities here did not believe Patricia Hearst's secret revelations about a bank robbery in which her former lover, Steven Soliah, is charged. "There is rational reason for disbelieving a woman who wants to look out for her boyfriend, and that's what it comes down to," said Asst. U.S. Atty. Richard Nichols.

Nichols made the statements challenging Hearst's credibility in a hearing to decide whether authorities who questioned the convicted heiress should be called to testify about what she told them during closed-door meetings. Soliah's chief defense attorney, Sheldon Otis, said he could call witnesses to prove that Harst confided to prosecutors that Soliah was outside—not inside—the bank he is accused of robbing. Soliah is charged with participating in the robbery of a branch of the Crocker National Bank in suburban Carmichael last April 21 in which a woman bank customer was killed.

Supreme Court refuses discrimination case

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court Monday refused to review the case of a woman who contended she was dismissed from her teaching post at the Illinois Institute of Technology because of sex discrimination. She had based her case on two federal civil rights laws her attorney argued may be applied against private universities.

The court left undisturbed an appellate court opinion written by one of its own members, Justice John Paul Stevens, about two months before taking his seat on the Supreme Court last December. Stevens took no part in the Supreme Court's decision not to review the case. Women's rights groups cited this case, brought by Helen Cohen against the Illinois Institute of Technology, in opposing his nomination to the high court.

India slum dwellers fight to keep homes

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Slum dwellers fought a bloody conflict with police Monday to prevent the razing of their shacks and forced resettlement. As many as five policemen and seven slum dwellers were reported killed and dozens more injured. The fight with police and city demolition crews was the first known open resistance to a massive New Delhi face-lifting program started shortly after Prime Minister Indira Gandhi proclaimed a national emergency and suspended most civil liberties last June.

The federally controlled Delhi administration has said that at least 250,000 slum dwellers, generally lower caste poor living in shacks near their places of work, have been moved to resettlement sites outside the city. In other Indian developments:

—Gandhi's government said it is prepared to open talks with Pakistan on restoring diplomatic relations that were severed when the two countries went to war in December 1971.

Former Gov. Kerner readmitted to hospital

CHICAGO (AP)—Former Gov. Otto Kerner, who had part of a cancerous right lung removed, has been readmitted to a hospital suffering a general decline in health, hospital officials reported Monday. Kerner's condition was listed as fair. He has recently suffered a weight loss and shortness of breath, a hospital spokesman said.

Kerner, the first sitting federal judge in the nation's history to be convicted in a criminal trial, was readmitted to Illinois Masonic Hospital April 12. He had undergone surgery there in March 1975 when doctors removed a cancerous tumor from his right lung. Since January, he has been receiving chemotherapy treatments.

Unemployment rate high on Northeast side

Bottles and cans are strewn in alleys every day in sections of the Levy area in Northeast Carbondale. The Levy stretches from East Jackson to East Oak Streets on North Washington Avenue. (Staff photo by Linda Henson)

Editor's note: This is the sixth story in a seven-part series exploring life in the "other Carbondale—the Northeast Side.

By Judy Vandewater
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The unemployment rate in Northeast Carbondale probably averages five per cent higher than the overall unemployment rate in Jackson County, said Richard Morris, director of the Illinois State Employment Service.

The Northeast has a 95 per cent black population. Morris said he does not feel racial prejudice is necessarily the cause for high unemployment.

"I know a lot of people would say, 'Well, the employers in this area are not going to hire blacks.' I feel that if people want a job, they can get a job," Morris said. He added that jobs are available.

The Illinois State Employment Service does not deal with specific areas of Carbondale, but Morris said he could generalize as to why the Northeast has a higher unemployment rate.

The Northeast "has the lowest achievement rates as far as academic background," he said. "The average level of education is 11 years."

Morris pointed out that there is very little industry in Carbondale, the major industrial employers being Truck Industries, Inc. and SIU. "In order to work for the University you have to have a higher level of education," he said.

There is a higher rate of unemployment among 18- to 25-year-old non-students, Morris said. "These kids may not have scholarships to go on to college, and without marketable skills behind them in high school, they are going to have a hard time."

The Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) finances a variety of programs which teach marketable skills to the disadvantaged. Morris said people are accepted into the programs on a priority system based on income with disabled veterans receiving the highest preference. Vietnam veterans and public aid recipients also receive high priority, Morris said.

Mike Fiorenzi, employment counselor at the Illinois State Employment Service, said CETA programs are divided into three phases: public service employes, classroom training and vocational training. Participants in the program receive a nontaxable hourly wage of $2.30, while public aid recipients receive $30 per week above their regular grant.

Fiorenzi estimated that 175 to 200 people have participated in training programs since they began in December, 1974.

The Black Labor Area Coalition Council, Inc. (BLACK) provides an outreach program in high unemployment areas. Al Ross, director of the non-profit corporation, said the agency uses a grassroots approach to try to involve people in CETA programs.

Representatives of BLACK, Inc. go door-to-door "trying to explain what it (CETA) is all about and get people registered with employment services."

BLACK, Inc., which is subcontracted through the Illinois State Employment Service, "is into a thing of supplying needed services." Ross said the agency provides counseling for emotional support, follow-up services and transportation. "Sometimes we are able to help by providing a simple referral."

"We would like to think of ourselves as helping a person develop," Ross said. "If people live for 18 years, you know they have skills. We assess their skills and their needs."

The 'Other' Carbondale

Ross believes discriminatory hiring patterns are a problem in the area.

"We exist and our existence screams out the fact that it is not as it should be."

Results of a survey of Jackson County employers showed that 10 to 15 blacks are employers. Ross said blacks were missing from all major categories including wholesaling, manufacturing, mining, construction and financial institutions. "That speaks to the entire myth of free enterprise," Ross said.

There is no longer a concerted effort by blacks to support black-owned businesses, Ross said. "We had a glimpse of that in the '60s, but the people's minds were skillfully redirected to feel that they could get their's if they moved away from solidarity." The strategy worked, Ross said. "poor people do not feel collective anymore and are not acting together."

Ross believes that laws designed to bring about equal opportunity employment have been largely ineffective. "Laws do not change attitudes."

'Travelin' man' arrives, looks for available work

By Judy Vandewater
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Lester, a 65-year-old black man, has been in Carbondale a little over a week. He rode into town in a boxcar and expects to leave that way. "I'm a travelin' man," he laughed and drew a bottle of Bardenheis Sherry from his back pocket.

Tuesday he intended to look for a job in Cobden "setting out tomatoes or squash" or doing any kind of work that is available.

Lester was passing the time with five other men Saturday afternoon near the rear of Land of Lincoln Legal Assistance Foundation, Inc. at 127 N. Washington Ave. He said he attempted to sleep Friday night in the Illinois Central Railroad depot, "but they put me out of there."

Another man, who appeared to be in his late twenties, approached the group. The two white women, one taking notes and the other shooting pictures, had raised his curiosity and his skepticism.

Beg your pardon

The times for the films "Rape Culture," "Rape—An Inquiry into Prevention" and "No Lies" were incorrectly listed in Saturday's Daily Egyptian. The films will be shown from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday in Ballroom B of the Student Center.

He refused to give his name, perhaps fearing the women were police. "The last time I had my picture taken I ended up in jail," he said but did not elaborate.

He willingly philosophized about a street in Northeast Carbondale known as the Levy or the Square. The Levy is a block long section of North Washington Avenue that runs between East Jackson and East Oak Streets. "A lot of black people up there—all they do is get high, because they were never given a chance," he said, adding that "the only thing that is important is a fifth of wine."

"Carbondale is just like Cairo, it's a melting pot," he said. "People hear, 'Hey, in Carbondale there is plenty of jobs,' but they get here and there are no jobs."

He pointed across the street to the Levy and said, "You could walk down that street and within three minutes have enough to get a bottle. Somebody will give you the money to get booze. Nobody will give you a roof over your head." He called another man, Robert Evans over to confirm his statement.

Evans, who has no family, has been unemployed since April 9. He has been in Carbondale about a year and is currently living at 324 E. Jackson St. Even though his apartment has no gas or electricity Evans intends to stay there, "for as long as I can."

Lester (right) and a friend spend a leisurely afternoon talking and drinking near the Levy in Northeast Carbondale. Finding someone to help you pay for a bottle of wine is a lot easier than finding someone to give you a roof over your head for a night, Lester said. (Staff photo by Linda Henson)

Don't treat addicts as criminals

By Lane Snider
Student Writer

Two things are readily apparent in looking at the use of hard drugs in the United States. First, the problem of addiction to narcotics, especially morphine and heroin, is not new to this country. There were sizable numbers of Americans addicted to opiates during the Civil War, and again, early in this century. The current rise in narcotic addiction started in the early 1960s and has grown to the present.

Second, the problem of drug abuse and addiction to heroin is not going to go away by itself. Addiction is on the rise not only in large cities where it started, but is spreading to medium and small-sized cities where it has been unknown in the past.

Editorials

Estimates of the number of addicts in the United States vary from 200,000 to 750,000 and heroin use is said to be increasing at a rate of 100 per cent a year in major cities.

There are two basic ways of dealing with the problem of addiction—the punitive approach, as practiced in this country, and the medical approach used by the British. The United States has banned the use or manufacture of heroin since early in this century, choosing instead to treat addicts as criminals.

The British have always considered addiction to be a social disease, much as we have come to view alcoholism. In England, addicts are supplied with heroin by prescription through a nationwide system of clinics. The choice of treatment method lies with the doctor, and the ultimate aim is to gradually reduce the addict's consumption until the habit can be broken or, failing that, to stabilize the addict's use of the drug.

Neither approach is entirely successful. There are no easy solutions to the problem. The myths surrounding the use of heroin have only served to compound the problem. Too little is known about why people become addicts, the effects of the drug on the body and what method of treatment works best.

Addicts are likely to turn to prostitution, burglary, selling the drug or muggings to support their habit and have been recognized as major contributors to the alarming rise in crime in the past several years. The British experience has been that heroin maintenance can reduce the addict's likelihood to steal as well as acting as a "treatment lure" to get the addict into a supervised treatment situation.

The aim of any treatment program should be the integration of the addict back into society. Despite commonly held beliefs, the British experience indicates that addicts can hold steady jobs and live in a family situation.

Supervision by trained professionals and flexibility in dealing with the individual addict are the key to understanding and treating the problem. Heroin maintenance is not a new concept to this country, but it should be instituted in conjunction with other forms of accepted treatment such as Methadone and chemo-therapy already in use here.

A good drug-abuse policy should first try to get the addict under treatment, rather than in jail or dead in the gutter.

Man fulfills American dream

By Arthur Hoppe

According to the magazine, Psychology Today, the actor who plays Marcus Welby, M.D., on television has received more than 250,000 letters, most of them requesting medical advice.

It was sometime during the night of April 2 that Herbert Skite became the first person to achieve The Great American Dream: He escaped into his television set.

His feat was discovered by his wife, Millicent, when she came down to make breakfast in the morning and noticed the set was still on. "Don't tell me you sat up and watched tee-vee all night again, Herbert," she called.

But he wasn't in his chair. She walked over to the set. When she reached to turn it off, Herbert's familiar voice cried, "Millicent, don't touch that dial!" And there he was on the screen, as big as life.

"Herbert," demanded Millicent, "what are you doing in there?"

"I don't know," said Herbert. "I think I was watching The Awful Late Show. I can't remember what old movie it was. I'm sure I'd seen it a couple of times before. I've seen them all. Then suddenly I was in here looking out at my empty chair."

"Well, no matter," said Millicent, "you come out of there right this minute."

"Why?" asked Herbert. "I haven't anything else to do."

"Don't be silly. You have to keep on looking for work so you can support me and the children and get

Is pulling the plug ethical?

By Kathie Anderson
Student Writer

The Karen Ann Quinlan decision is not a solution of the right to die issue. It is instead a reaffirmation of the abortion question, an eye-opener to the fact that humans cannot yet distinguish that gray area defining life and death.

The New Jersey Supreme Court did expand the legal right to privacy when it gave Mr. Quinlan the decision to end artificial life support for his comatose daughter. But the real issue here—homicide v. euthanasia v. something else—has been skirted by both legal and medical jurisdictions. And no matter what rights the Quinlans have legally obtained, someone is sure to call pulling the plug on Karen murder.

No one has satisfactorily outlined where life begins and ends. The responsibility of such a definition has not yet been accepted by either the private or public sector of human society. The echoes of denial for having to make the decision are evident in Mrs. Quinlan's post-trial hope that Karen "would die naturally" before the family had to make the dreaded decision. Without a redefinition of death a court-given right to die is meaningless; the guilt and avoidance and trauma will occur in every case. And the public must not delude itself into believing that Karen Ann Quinlan is an isolated example. There must be a raising of consciousness for the nameless others whose respirator plugs were pulled "accidentally" or "when the nurse wasn't looking."

The buck stops where? How can society go about defining a subject that is the final taboo? How will a hospital ethics committee determine when death is right or wrong?

In 1968 the Harvard criteria for the diagnosis of death were defined and adopted by a majority of the medical society. These include: no spontaneous respiration, no purposeful response to any pain, no response to voice stimulus, fixed, dilated pupils, no blinking or ocular movements, no voice reflexes and a negative or "flat" electroencephalogram response twice within 24 hours. A prominent doctor who helped to define these criteria said that brain death and coma are not synonymous. Severe coma, according to medical definition, is an abnormal state of consciousness in which a patient may have varied degrees of unresponsiveness.

In an article published in New York magazine in October, 1975, Karen's lawyer described her as "sweating, blinking, gasping and curling in a fetal position. To a layman this is not conclusive evidence of life, but it cast doubt on the absolute theory that Karen Quinlan was dead. In the same article the author, Joan Kron, described another girl, who died naturally while hooked to a respirator. If this is possible, how can one justify defining the gasping, blinking Karen as a corpse?"

The other side of this argument suggests that Karen Quinlan was reduced to the state of the neo-mort, a non-being whose vital functions were limited to the mechanical capabilities of the machine to which she was connected. A school of theory predicts that students of medicine may someday use entire hospital wards of bodies hooked to respiration machines, and that these breathing corpses will replace the medical school anatomy cadavers in teaching human functions and diagnosis.

It is in this horror, the human fear of death, that the Quinlan decision rests. Over the year that Karen has been in her coma, doctors have discussed and rediscussed the issue of whether she is dead or not. They cannot even agree as to whether she meets the Harvard criteria. Many say they believe her EEG readings to be non-negative, which would cast doubt on the death of all of her brain cells.

Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World" is not so far away. Perhaps when the concept of birth and death can be settled in a test tube and in an instant, the taboos and the guilt feelings will finally come to an end, and humans will be able to face death as squarely as they have faced other experiences which are part of life.

Certainly, just as brain death and coma are not one and the same, death and privacy are not synonyms. Until death is redefined, that respirator is Karen Quinlan's life. Any hand on the plug commits murder.

Non-voters more aware of the con game

To the Daily Egyptian:

Student government elections took place on Wednesday, and again there were pleas for students to vote. Some underlying meanings are hazed over when one thinks of voting as being a duty and differentiates only between the candidates, instead of concentrating on what is perpetuated by a vote. Student government is a ritual conducted at the discretion of the SIU administration. It also tends to become another vehicle for the extension of administrative control over the students. The student government placates the students into thinking they actually have some representation in the affairs of SIU; it regulates and controls student mobilization and activities by putting it directly under the control of the administration. Also, the student government conveniently takes care of the trivial and time-consuming affairs that the administration does not want to be concerned with. The two student initiated programs that are of any importance—the Student-to-Student grant program and the Student Attorney Program are both in danger of extinction.

The former may be abandoned, and the latter is caught up somewhere in the administration. Of course, the latter was doomed from the start. (Do you think the administration will upset the business community by the possible law suits by the students?) Perhaps the silent majority of the students who did not vote are not apathetic—just more aware of the con game.

CIA atrocities no joke

To the Daily Egyptian:

I was dismayed to read, in his article 'Colby-Stapleton: The hottest comedy on stage,' that Constantine Karahalios should consider CIA activities to be some kind of joke. His misplaced humor is symptomatic of the sort of cynicism and moral bankruptcy that enables the CIA to survive and prosper; his slapstick sentiments might have succeeded in raising a titter within the cozy confines of Carbondale, but to the citizens of Vietnam, Chile, Iran, Guatemala, Italy etc., as well as the victims of CIA harassment at home, they were a particularly malodorous, misdirected, cruel and distasteful insult.

In appealing to the lowest common denominator in his audience, he has trivialized what is in point of fact an extremely serious matter; no amount of slapstick comedy can conceal the fact that the U.S. is largely despised abroad—the people of other nations do not distinguish between the CIA and the American people; in their eyes we are all tarred with the same brush, we are all guilty. As for 'entertainment politics,' the only people who could possibly be laughing are the American people, generously accompanied by the Nero-like fiddling of Mr. Karahalios. If we do not learn to accept responsibility for CIA atrocities then the proverbial chicken will eventually return to roost, as it always does. And that, Mr. Karahalios, is no joke.

Concert promotion

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to thank you and the staff for taking the time and the interest to give publicity and promotion to the Stan Kenton concert Monday in Carbondale, the purpose of which is to provide needy funds for the CCHS music and band and extracurricular programs. The added comment in Friday's Daily Egyptian was above and beyond the call of campus journalism.

The music teachers, and the music boosters, and the musical children thank you. I do too.

Driving course valuable

To the Daily Egyptian:

I would like to express a personal note of thanks to Mr. Dan Shannon of the Safety Center, and his graduate assistants, Brad Giles and Rob Bates for the excellent defensive driving course which they recently gave at the SIU driving range. All three men exhibited not only a high degree of technical ability, but also the ability to teach those skills to their students.

I appreciated the valuable and worthwhile service they are providing.

Dilemma deserves effort

To the Daily Egyptian:

In reading your third story in "The Other Carbondale" series, it occurred to me how very unfortunate it is that laws and regulations on distribution of tax dollars make an obviously needy person such as Mrs. Elsie Steele ineligible to receive a $5000 government grant to upgrade her home.

It also occurred to me that if each student at SIU donated 25 cents, a fund in excess of $5000 would result. Then, if a fraternity or other group of students donated some time and talent, Mrs. Steele's home could be rehabilitated.

Students at SIU have, in the past, made significant contributions to community betterment. Is Mrs. Steele's dilemma worthy of another such effort by these energetic young people?

Thief spoils idealism

To the Daily Egyptian:

I have had a puppy stolen from my back yard. I live at 202 S. Poplar. She is six weeks old, gold orange hair, curly on her head and ears. She resembles a golden retriever. Her name is EeN.

I am very sad because she was promised to three young boys. This puppy was my gift of friendship to them.

I am even sadder than someone felt so right and justified to take her from me. They gave no thought to the value someone else could have placed on this pup. That along with stealing a puppy, they also took with them part of the trust I gave my fellow man.

To the thief: how dare you ruin my idealistic outlook of the world and the world of my three young friends.

I truly hope as the puppy grows up you enjoy her. I also hope if your friends and family ask you about her background, you'll mention she is stolen. After all, you should feel pride in your puppy, she comes from a good litter.

If anyone has information concerning the puppy, I would appreciate if you'd contact me at 202 S. Poplar. I have no phone. If I don't get the puppy back, I would just like to know she is safe.

Blood drive a success

To the Daily Egyptian:

This year's Red Cross blood drive has been a tremendous success. In the fall semester at SIU, 1,286 pints of blood were donated. Another 1,108 pints were donated during the spring semester drive, bringing this year's total to an all-time record high of 2,394 pints of blood. This is all due to the students who cared enough to get involved either by donating blood or by volunteering their time to the blood drive.

The success of this year's blood drive is related to broader participation on campus through the cooperation of Angel Flight, Arnold Air Society, Gay Peoples' Union, Health Education 500, Inter-Greek Council, Journalism 341, M.O.V.E., Rugby Club, Saluki Flying Team, Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Gamma Rho, Alpha Kappa Alpha, Alpha Phi Omega, Alpha Sigma Alpha, Alpha Tau Omega, Beta Alpha Psi, Delta Upsilon, Delta Zeta, Phi Sigma Kappa, Tau Kappa Epsilon.

Never before have so many people been involved in the campus blood drive. Everyone should feel very proud of what we have accomplished. Let's keep up the good work and try to top our record for next year. Only with your continued help can it be done. Thank you.

'Taxi Driver:' tough, complex

By Jim Crocker
Student Writer

"Taxi Driver," directed by Martin Scorsese and written by Paul Schrader, lunges at the throat but misses the jugular. The film (at University Four) is a mean, frequently fascinating look at individual despair in urban life, and the plunging of that despair through a ritualistic act of violence.

A Review

Scorsese has, consciously or not, adopted the assassin from "Nashville," the instincts of "Death Wish," the rites of "The Virgin Spring," and the unintentional media-formed hero from "A Clockwork Orange," and mewed all of these elements with his own New York sensibility. The result is a lethal cocked gun, itching to be fired. "Taxi Driver" may be more powerful than any of the above movies. It's a confusing film which paradoxically derives power from its confusion.

The story is an almost clinical case study of one Travis Bickle

(Robert De Niro), a Marine vet who drives a hack at night because he can't sleep. Constantly exposing himself to the squalor of New York City, Bickle finds any normal outlets of satisfaction thwarted. He's a man full of undefined tension with no methods of release—then he becomes acquainted with handguns. Suddenly he has the power to drastically alter life. This power consumes him; inwardly drawn, the guns provide the only means with which to express himself.

But Bickle's purpose becomes clouded when he first sets his sights on a presidential candidate. A side-stepping sequence concerning a bungled assassination attempt ensues; Bickle pulls back at the last moment, but his urges are now too strong to suppress. He goes hunting for what he knows to be wrong, subjects for which he feels no inhibitions.

The message is loud and clear: our cities are hellholes of humanities, and nothing is going to purge the devils but a force capable of completely eradicating them.

The complexity lies in what happens to Travis. He becomes a contemporary psychotic Westerner, but is he a hero, as the media would have us believe? We know better. What we don't know are the reasons behind Travis' struggles with his conscience—we just see him struggling. For a character study, "Taxi Driver" is uncommonly shallow. The material has been provided, but not explored. For, ultimately, what becomes of Travis? What has he turned into? Is he healthy and happy? Or will he go hunting again?

Scorsese's camera work gets better each film, having ridden himself from most of the superfluous camera movements that plagued his previous work. The editing could be sharper. Some scenes drag on without revelation, while others (the pimp consoling his 12-year old hooker and Scorsese himself playing a potential wife-killer) seem unnecessary.

The explosive, bloody and demanding violence at the end of the film provoked laughter from some. But it wasn't the yahoo, whoop-em-up type of laugh that some people confront bloodletting on the screen with. The laughs were nervous exclamations of disbelief—a public disturbed. And "Taxi Driver" is disturbing, a film that should not be passed off with a word or two. It deserves to be discussed.

Children's music expert to give Tuesday concert

Ella Jenkins, often described as the Mitch Miller of children's music, will present a concert at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Muckelroy Auditorium in the Agriculture Building.

A rhythm and song specialist, she is known for her "call and response" teaching technique. She demonstrates creative methods for teaching children about sound, rhythm and body movement, said Suesanne Sykes, graduate assistant in the College of Education.

Two ballet greats perform on film in Davis showing

Two of the greatest performers of contemporary and classical ballet—Margot Fonteyn and Rudolf Nureyev—will join the Royal Ballet on film to present William Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" at 7:30 p.m. in Davis Auditorium, Wham building.

The film is the 10th—in a series of 12—shown every Wednesday evening. Robert Giffin, associate professor of English and organizer of the series, said the films are a "broad survey—a representative sample of the Shakespearean films."

The "Romeo and Juliet" film is directed by Paul Czinner with music by Serge Prokofiev. Prokofiev's music will be performed by the Orchestra of the Royal Opera House and will be conducted by John Larchbery.

Nureyev and Fonteyn are, reviewers said, the best ballet dancers of the 20th century. Time magazine called Nureyev "the finest male dancer since Nijinsky... and is a thing of melted fire and sinew, a tiger in tights."

Fonteyn has been called the best female dancer since Pavlova and has danced to rave reviews across the United States and Canada.

The most beautiful section of the two-hour movie, produced in 1966, is when Romeo finds Juliet in her crypt and tries to make the dead woman dance. The discipline Fonteyn uses in making Juliet's limp body fall over and over again is breathtaking, said a description of the film.

"Romeo and Juliet" is about two teenagers who are members of quarreling families. They fall in love and meet secretly. Complications arise as Romeo believes Juliet is dead and kills himself. Juliet, who is not dead, discovers Romeo is dead and kills herself. Both families, grieved at the loss, unite for the first time in sorrow.

The concert is sponsored by the SIU graduate students in elementary education.

Jenkins will perform on the baritone ukelele, percussion instruments and tenor guitar in the program that will mix songs, chants and rhythms.

'Third President:' well done, moving

By Constantine Karahalios
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Judy Stevenson's play "The Third President," showing Tuesday through Sunday in the Laboratory Theater, weaves a 12-year period of Thomas Jefferson's life into an entertaining yet compelling drama of early-American politics.

Stevenson, a novelist and playwright from Hubbard Woods, Ill., creates a story from the back-room intrigues of American government between 1789 and 1801. She centers the story around the ideological battle between Jefferson and Alexander Hamilton.

A Review

Jefferson, played by professional actor Tony Flacco, is the libertarian philosopher, who is forced into politics in order to save government for the people. Hamilton, played by Frank Caltabiano, embodies the opposite ideology that the few elite should govern for the "rabble."

Stevenson develops the story through the conflicts facing the new American republic. In the first of three acts she introduces the problem of American support for the French Republic. Caltabiano paints a stunning portrait of a venomous Hamilton, who sees no advantage to America supporting the "French mob."

Contrasting Hamilton is Flacco's sensitive and detailed portrayal of Jefferson. Basically a thinker and not a man of action, Jefferson is forced into the political arena because of his fervent support of the French cause.

In the second act Stevenson reveals the real problem facing the new republic—who will govern it. This takes shape in the battle over the Alien and Sedition Acts.

Jefferson and his party believe there should be no restrictions on speech, while Hamilton's party would like to gag everyone opposed to them. For Hamilton it is imperative that government not be criticized so that it can go about the business of ruling. But Jefferson views speech and the press as a means for the people to rule themselves through the government.

The conflict comes to a head in act three, as Jefferson agrees to be his party's presidential candidate.

The issue is the Alien and Sedition Acts, with Jefferson running on a platform denouncing the Acts and their supporters.

The play seemingly has a happy ending. Jefferson wins the election and settles—for what seems like all time—the ideological direction in which the nation would develop.

Stevenson makes good use of Brechtian-type alienation techniques. Using slides, she keeps up the link between modern-day politics and the play. At the beginning of each scene, she has Jefferson break character and talk directly to the audience.

The effect keeps the audience from being so drawn into the narrative, that they miss Stevenson's point. This kind of effect necessarily needs the attention of a skilled director.

Christian Moe, professor of theater, adds that skill to the production.

He directs his actors interestingly, but never allows the direction to overshadow the playwrights message. Instead he works in unison with Stevenson, combining his talents with hers and the actors to make a very worthwhile show.

Students will be admitted for $1 to Tuesday and Wednesday night performances of "The Third President." Tuesday through Saturday performances begin at 8 p.m., with 3 p.m. matinee on Sunday.

Judy Roth, as Patsy Jefferson, consoles Tony Flacco, who portrays Thomas Jefferson, in this week's theater department production of "The Third President." The three-act production is by

Craft show winners awarded

Winners in the Illinois Ozarks Craft Exhibition, on display at the University Museum and Art Galleries, Faner Hall, have been announced by the judging committee.

Prizes of $30, $20 and $10 were awarded for first, second and third places in folk-traditional, student work and contemporary professional categories. Two special $50 awards were given for best in show and work in glass.

The show featured the Southern Highland Handicraft Guild traveling exhibit from the Southern Appalachian Mountains and the Illinois Ozarks Craft Exhibition.

Top prize winners were James Sanders, a graduate student in art and Bill Boysen, associate professor in art. Sanders won for his fiber construction called "Recycled Love Seat" and Boysen exhibited work in glass called "Flared Form."

First place awards were won by M. Joan Lintault, an assistant professor in art, for "Object from My Life," Joseph Clift, a graduate student in art, for a steel and sterling pin and by B. Marlene Webb, from Ewing, for a rug called "Stripes and Broken Glass."

Second place winners were Harris Deller, from Carbondale, for a ceramic tea pot; Judy Keyes, a junior in art, for her ceramic "Fly by Night" and Evaline Rogers, from Metropolis, for her Irish chain quilt.

'Tempest' performance scheduled for Friday

San Francisco's New Shakespeare Company will present William Shakespeare's "The Tempest" beginning at 8 p.m. Friday in Shryock Auditorium.

The program, to honor the bard's traditional April 23 birthday, is a tale of shipwrecks, exiled novels, lovers, drunkards and the ghost of a murdered king. The story is about Prospero, an exiled duke and magician who, with his daughter Miranda, and the spirit Ariel, were cast on a small island during a storm at sea. They live on the island with Caliban, a monster, until there is another shipwreck which brings ashore the ghost of an assassinated king, a handsome young prince, an evil duke and a crew of drunken sailors. The complications from the situation provide the story in one of Shakespeare's best known romantic comedies.

The New Shakespeare Company, from San Francisco, is a non-profit organization of 25 actors and technicians under the direction of Margrit Roma. The company "strives to present the story that Shakespeare told so clearly and simply and entertainingly that people who have never heard of Shakespeare will enjoy the man's magic."

The production will mark the third time the New Shakespeare Company has performed in the University Convocations series. The presented "As You Like It" in 1974 and "A Midsummer Night's Dream" in 1973.

The previous performances of the company were presented outdoors, but the company requested the use of the auditorium because of the play's special effects.

The performance is open to the public free of charge.

Earth Day environmental films set

By Gail Wagner
Student Writer

In observance of Earth Day, the SIU Student Environmental Center (SEC) will sponsor an all-day environmental film festival, Wednesday in the Student Center Auditorium. Films and slides will be shown continuously from 10 a. m. to 4:30 p.m.

Dennis Adameczyk, SEC coordinator of Earth Day, said the film festival represents consciousness-raising effort. "We're trying to make people more aware of the environment," he said.

No admission will be charged, and the public is invited to drop in anytime throughout the day, Adameczyk said.

The scheduled films include Sierra Club movies on redwoods, oil spoilage and mining; "Seals," concerning the annual seal hunt in Alaska and three films from the PBS series "Earthkeeping," featuring Second City actors in skits entitled "Sobbusters," "Greenbacks," and "Little Big Land."

A slide show on the Middle Fork of the Vermillion River near Danville will also be shown, highlighting the currently endangered beauty of the area. Legislators have proposed damming the Middle Fork to create a recreation area, and SEC is fighting this action.

Society of Mining Engineers approves charter for SIU

The Society of Mining Engineers of the American Institute of Mining Engineers has approved the formation of a chapter at SIU. Faculty sponsor Russel R. Dutcher, chairman of the Geology Department, said the SIU chapter now has 15 members.

Membership in the club is open to students of at least junior rank, in good standing, in the fields of geology, technology, electrical science and systems engineering, engineering mechanics and materials and thermal and environmental engineering.

Rick Sumner, graduate student in geology and president of the SIU chapter, said the club is "probably the most prestigious organization that someone in this field can belong to."

A number of benefits will be available to the group, Sumner said. "We will be able to get speakers and money for research topics, and we'll be able to attend the national conference in Denver in September."

The annual membership fee of $4.50 for the national organization and $7 for the local chapter includes a subscription to the monthly periodical Mining Engineering.

Students interested in joining the organization should contact Sumner or E. Leon Dunning, chairman of the Department of Technology.

Nutritionist gives diet advice at Family Practice Center

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Nutrition as a preventive measure against disease and illness is a major element for patient care at the Family Practice Center, said Carol Cole, graduate assistant in food and nutrition and community development.

Cole, originally from New Jersey, is the first nutritionist to work at the center as a consultant. She works mostly with prenatal patients, although she plans to hold seminars for residents and involve herself with community outreach nutrition programs.

The center is a unit of Doctors Memorial Hospital and a department of the SIU School of Medicine.

"The purpose of the center is to provide comprehensive medical care for families in the area and to increase the supply of doctors throughout the Southern Illinois area," she said.

In addition to the full time faculty, the center has a number of resident doctors who have graduated from medical school and will be licensed to practice in Illinois.

The physicians are trained to practice preventive medicine, which means they not only work to make patients well, but also to keep them well. In preventive medicine, an emphasis is placed on immunizations, pap smears, a reduction in bad health habits, screening and examinations.

"My ultimate goal is to see every patient in family practice and to see that they have a healthy diet," Cole said.

Cole said it is important for patients to understand their nutrient requirements. In order to have a healthy attitude about oneself a person needs a good nutrition program.

"Nutrition as a preventive measure is an agent against disease," Cole said.

"There is a great dichotomy in people's attitudes toward nutrition. Some of very aware of what they eat and others live basically on junk food," she said.

"I think the public is becoming more aware of the food situation and people have become more in tune with the needs of their bodies, through nutrition," she said.

The family practice doctor studies in six broad areas of medicine: pediatrics, surgery, internal medicine, obstetrics, and gynecology and psychiatry and family medicine.

"The patient is part of the medical team, in letting him make the ultimate decision about his health care," Cole said. "The physicians and the patients work together. It is not a matter of forcing the patient to do something."

For example, if a patient comes in determined that he has a high cholesterol level, some doctors would send him home after telling him that the level is not serious. In preventive medicine, the high level would be recognized as potentially dangerous and the doctor would discuss with the patient just what proper foods are important to lower the level.

Club of Rome symposium to cover science, U.S. future

By Judy Vandewater
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
"Bicentennial Horizons: A Club of Rome Symposium on Systems Science and America's Next Hundred Years" will be held Wednesday through Friday in the Student Center.

The Club of Rome is an elite organization whose membership is composed of world leaders in industry, research, government and education. The symposium at SIU is one of two in the United States in which the Club of Rome has agreed to participate during 1976.

The symposium is being jointly sponsored by the SIU Systems Science Committee and the Bicentennial Committee, said John Dotson, chairman of the Systems Science Committee and director of the President's Scholar Program.

Dotson said the Club of Rome is concerned with the immediate future of the world. Founded in 1968, the non-political organization "decided to try to spot the crucial variables in the picture to study them as closely as they could." The club considers crucial variables of world survival to be population, resources, food, pollution and industrialization Dotson said.

Results of a first generation of studies are recorded in "The Limits to Growth: A Report for the Club of Rome's Project on the Predicament of Mankind." The report indicated that "we will probably use up our resources and choke on our own pollution" shortly after the year 2000, Dotson said.

The second generation studies indicated that "we'd probably blow one another up" before then. "They are presenting at this conference the results of a third generation of studies, 'Goals for a Global Society', Dotson said. "This is an attempt to work in human factors toward the problem."

"Goals for a Global Society" is directed by Ervin Laszlo, a member of the Club of Rome and a professor of philosophy at the State University of New York at Genesio.

Laszlo, the author of 19 books, was instrumental in bringing the conference to SIU. Dotson said Laszlo has worked with the Systems Science Committee to establish courses in systems science at SIU.

"It was he who suggested a conference of this sort."

The symposium will begin at 9 a.m. Wednesday in the Student Center Ballrooms. In the Wednesday session four members of the Club of Rome will discuss previous projects of the organization and "set up the issues," Dotson said.

Laszlo, Aurelio Peccei, director of the Club of Rome and manager of Italconsult, International Industrial Consultants in Italy; Alexander King, chairman of the International Federation of Institutes for Advanced Study and Alastair Taylor, professor of International Affairs and Cultural History at Queens University in Canada will lead the discussion.

In the Thursday morning session "Goals for a Global Society" will be presented. Laszlo, Taylor, Thomas E. Jones, research coordinator for the project and O.W. Markley, senior policy analyst for the Stanford Research Institute Center for the Study of Social Policies will lead the session.

Col. John Whiteside, of the Committee for the Future, Inc., will give the luncheon address "Toward a Choiceful Future."

Three sessions will run concurrently Thursday afternoon. The sessions, which begin at 1:30 p.m. include "The Use of Solar Energy in Temperate Climates," "The Future of Soviet-American Detente," and "The Delivery of Human Services to the Rural Environment in Post-Industrial Society."

"The Use of Coal to Meet the Energy Crisis," "Systems Science and the Future of America," "Ethical Values Affecting Transition to a Post-Industrial Society" and "Beyond the Limits of Growth," are scheduled to run concurrently at 9 a.m. on Friday.

The closing session at 1:30 p.m. Friday will be an open discussion with Club-of Rome and all other speakers.

PEACE CORPS needs volunteers for specific positions in the following areas: math, science, home economics, agriculture, business, engineering & health fields.

Recruiter will be on campus April 22 & 23. Seniors & grads sign up for interviews now at Placement Office.

SIU graduate appointed YMCA extension director

Gary Ferguson

Gary Ferguson, a December graduate from SIU has been named extension director of the Jackson County Family YMCA.

Ferguson's responsibilities will include coordinating special interest groups and public relations work.

While at SIU, Ferguson majored in journalism and minored in speech. His academic interests included public relations and the mass media.

Ferguson is a member of the Illinois Governor's Committee on the Handicapped, Regional Council No. 17, Architectural Barriers Removal and Transportation Committee, and the University Baptist Church.

"I am looking forward to working with the Jackson County Family YMCA. The opportunities for involvement are unlimited," Ferguson said.

Group plans panel discussion on student teaching semester

The SIU chapter of the Association for Childhood Education (ACE) will sponsor a panel discussion at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Wham building faculty lounge.

The discussion, entitled: "Everything You Have Always Wanted to Know About Student Teaching, But Were Afraid to Ask", will inform students majoring in elementary and early childhood education about the required semester of student teaching.

According to Richard Jacobs, ACE president, "It (the panel) will help people get an idea of what will be expected of them in the student-teaching semester. The panel was purposely comprised of people to cover all the grades, kindergarten through high school."

The four-member panel will be composed of a coordinator from the College of Education, two students now student teaching and an elementary school teacher, he said.

"I believe the panel is well versed," he said. "They will answer any question concerning student teaching they are capable of answering."

"This is the first time we have done this," Jacobs said. "We hope to get a large number of students interested. If we get sufficient response, we hope to do this at least once a year or maybe once a semester."

Jacobs said the informal discussion is open to anyone in the College of Education who may be interested in finding out about student teaching.

Auction to showcase bulls

The first sale of performance-tested bulls from SIU's new Beef Cattle Evaluation Center will be at a 7:30 p.m. auction Friday at the center.

James Males, assistant professor of animal industries in charge of the testing program, says more than 50 tested bulls are up for sale. The bulls are from the first consignment of 70 animals that completed a 140-day testing period at the station.

The bulls have all been fed the same growing ration during the period and were weighed individually at 28-day intervals to compute information on their rate of gain and feed efficiency. Beef producers who ship animals to the station for testing use the information to improve their herds.

Cattle producers with animals on test are provided the information periodically. The center's facilities were constructed with $100,000 in state funds provided in a special appropriation for the purpose. The testing program is operated on a self-paying basis. Cattle producers pay a $100 entry fee for each animal put on test to cover station operating costs and feed and veterinary service.

Academic awards program will honor black students

By Kathy Drew
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Many black students come to college with disadvantages stemming from their previous environment and education. Black Affairs Council (BAC) and Black Faculty Group (BFG) are responding to this problem by organizing a special Black Awards Program.

Emphasis on the academic aspect of school and a deemphasis on the "party school" concept is one of the purposes of the awards program. Darold Tucker, awards committee chairman, said "The purpose is to get more people interested in studying and learning," Tucker added.

Eleven categories have been specified, honoring students in professional fields, students on Dean's List and President's Scholars and students excelling in their respective colleges. Honors for athletics and organizations in BAC and community work will also be given.

Criteria for receiving awards will be different than the University's criteria, according to Tucker. Students who think they may be eligible should contact BAC by April 25. The awards program is scheduled for May 2 in Student Center Ballroom D from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Liquor Advisory Board renews nine licenses

The Carbondale Liquor Advisory Board approved nine liquor license renewals last week, subject to final approval by the City Council in its role as the Liquor Control Commission.

The advisory board did not approve a request from Gatsby's and Crazy Horse Billiards to operate under a joint class A license. The board did approve a request to recommend a Class A license for Gatsby's alone.

Businesses receiving license renewals include Booby's, 406 S. Illinois Ave.; Das Fass, 517 S. Illinois Ave.; Peppermint Lounge, 101 W. Monroe St.; Merlin's, 315 S. Illinois Ave.; Downstairs Arcade, 611 S. Illinois Ave.; Strive's LBJ, 119 N. Washington St.; Village Inn, 1700 W. Main St.; Buffalo Bob's, 101 E. College St.; and Spanish Key Lounge, 520 E. Main St.

Requests by the Southern Illinois Racquet Club, Old Rt. 13, and Quatro's Deep Pan Pizza, Campus Shopping Center, will be reviewed by the board in a special meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday at City Hall. The board will also review a license request by Lum's, East Main Street, denied earlier by the board because of unsanitary "housekeeping problems," secretary Leilani Waits said.

Assistant City Attorney Phil Gilbert said he had received numerous complaints of disorderly conduct at the Peppermint Lounge. Representing the lounge, Bill Hitchcock said he "instructed people to call the police at any hint of a problem."

"It's a small place and gets pretty crowded," he added.

Gilbert warned Hitchcock that his office will keep a "running tab" on Carbondale bar disturbances and report findings to the Liquor Advisory Board.

A problem with strong odors produced by sewage drainage at the lounge prompted the board to request that the City Council investigate drainage problems in the area.

John Holmes, instructor and adviser for the School of Technical Careers, said though there are a great number of black students who do very well, the attrition rate among black students is about twice that of the rest of the school's population. The majority of black students come from inner city schools and do not get sufficient instruction in the basics, Holmes said. He added that when they get to a college geared for a middle-class white student, they compete with a deficiency.

"Lack of sensitivity" from the University is another reason Holmes gave for the student failures. "The school doesn't provide enough in the way of accommodating for these students," Holmes said.

BFG had a special honors program in mind when they were approached by BAC for support for their proposed awards program. "We were talking about doing it to raise the level of consciousness toward academics," Holmes said. An award for the most outstanding black faculty member will also be given.

Garage destroyed by fire, fire marshal suspects arson

Arson is suspected in a fire that destroyed a garage at Gene Bramlet Motor Sales on Illinois 51, Carbondale fire officials said.

The fire was first reported at 11 p.m. Saturday and was put out at 1 a.m. Sunday. Five men from the department fought the blaze. There were no injuries.

Officials said arson is suspected because a witness reportedly saw a man throw something into the garage before the fire started. Damage to the building was estimated at $14,000.

Barney West of Tamaroa, a deputy state fire marshal, is currently investigating the case. Officials said the Carbondale Fire Department will not assist in the investigation because the fire took place outside the city limits.

Civil Service ballots mailed

Ballots will be mailed Tuesday to all status Civil Service employees for the election of representatives to serve on the Civil Service Employees' Council. Ballots should be returned to the Campus Mail Service by noon, April 28.

One representative will be elected in each of the following categories: administrative, custodial, general, professional, secretarial, services, and trades and occupations.

All status employees are entitled to vote for a representative from their category. Any Civil Service employee who did not receive a ballot should contact Stan Copeland in Personnel Services, 453-5334. Results of the election will be published in the Daily Egyptian after April 28.

Bar owner recalls Charlie-- storyteller, patriot, helper

By Chris De Salvo
Student Writer

"I'm not an alcoholic. Alcoholics go to meetings."

That was one of Charlie's favorite sayings. Charlie, born Charles Harvey Tenowsky, died April 9 at the age of 57. Charlie, a thin man usually seen wearing a railroad cap, had become quite a familiar figure on the Illinois Avenue strip.

Charlie could usually be found at Pizza King, a bar at 308 S. Illinois Ave. Gwen Hunt, P.K.'s owner, was one of his closest friends.

"Charlie started coming here when I first opened up, about 10 years ago.

Ten years ago Charlie used to spend a lot of time at a bar called the "Rat Hole," which is now The Emperor's Palace, 100 South Illinois Ave.

Some bar owners would give Charlie 50 cents so that he could buy a drink at the next bar on the strip, thus he would drink for free most of the day. But then he made P.K.'s his place because he felt P.K.'s patrons were "his kind of people."

Charlie lived with his sister. She was more of a mother to Charlie than a sister. She told of how her brother would come home and tell her how the students were such good friends and she'd say, "They ought to be, they're just as crazy as you."

Charlie was a steeplejack by trade. He would go to nearby towns and paint their water towers, chimneys and flag poles. He painted until about three years ago.

At the bar Charlie told memories of serving in the Army. "Eight years, nine months and 12 days," Charlie would say as he proudly showed his discharge papers to everyone at P.K.'s. He told of being stationed in Alaska for eight years and five days. He said he "hunted Kodiak bears and drank torpedo juice."

Charlie was proud of the time he spent in the service and of his country's flag. One day he felt obligated to destroy an American flag because it had touched the ground. He was going to bury it, but he couldn't find a shovel. So he decided to burn it and was promptly arrested. He won his case after proving to the court that it was legal to destroy the flag after it had been desecrated.

Charlie's average day started with the cleaning of P.K.'s alley in exchange for food and drink. He would then attend "happy hour" at Booby's Submarine Shop to party with whoever was around, usually students.

Hunt said, "I miss Charlie. He used to run errands for me and in general just keep the place hoppin'." One day Hunt couldn't account for some missing beer and one of her employes said, "it must have been Charlie's spirit."

"By God I live, by God I die, by God I'll be here tomorrow, hopefully!" Charles Harvey

Tenowsky used to say. Charlie had a military burial Tuesday and donations were collected from P.K. patrons to help pay for flowers. Any excess monies will be donated in Charlie's name, to Jackson County Mental Health Center's Alcoholic program.

Trustee to speak at Agie's banquet

Wayne Heberer, newest member of the SIU Board of Trustees, will speak at the annual SIU Agriculture Banquet at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Student Center Ballroom D.

The event will include announcements of various service and scholastic awards.

Heberer, prominent Belleville area farmer, is past president of the Illinois Park Producers Association and farms about 1,500 acres of land in partnership with a brother.

Students, staff, alumni and friends of the School of Agriculture will attend the annual event.

Panhellenic unifies sororities locally, as well as nationally

By Cindy Yomantas
Student Writer

Panhellenic. If it sounds greek to you then you're close to understanding the governing body of SIU's five social sororities, the Panhellenic Council.

Organized as a coordinating and governing body for its member sororities, SIU's Panhellenic Council is a local extension of the National Panhellenic Conference (NPC).

Begun in 1891 by Kappa Kappa Gamma as a cooperative undertaking, the national organization works to assist member collegiate chapters in matter of mutual concern to all. These include pledging programs, rush schedules and scholarship standards.

In order for a sorority to be a recognized member of NPC, it must be established nationally for at least 13 years, have all of its collegiate chapters at senior colleges and universities and must have a minimum of 14 chapters—the 14th being at least two years old.

Each of SIU's five sororities is a member of NPC. At this time there are 26 members total.

Local extensions of NPC, such as SIU's, must be established whenever two or more NPC chapters exist at a campus. Alpha Gamma Delta, Delta Zeta, and Sigma Sigma Sigma organized SIU's Panhellenic in the early 1950s.

Since that time Sigma Kappa, Alpha Sigma Alpha and Alpha Omicron Pi, have joined Panhellenic. The latter chapter, Alpha Omicron Pi, was dissolved at SIU in 1973.

Area advisers, assigned to local Panhellenics by geographic location, serve as liaisons between the college and national organization. These women bring information on Panhellenic procedures, programming and workshops to the local extension.

Other divisions of NPC which promote greek life in general are junior and city Panhellenic.

Junior Panhellenic is composed of pledge representatives from all sororities. Its main purpose is to instill a sense of cooperation among the new sorority members.

City Panhellenic keeps sorority members and the public informed of matters important to each. They are composed of area alumnae of NPC recognized sororities.

Carbondale's city Panhellenic sponsors a welcomefest for sorority members in the fall, conducts an initiation ceremony for pledges into junior Panhellenic and holds rush parties for area high school girls interested in sorority life.

SIU's Panhellenic adviser, Nancy Hunter Harris, works as a liaison between national and SIU.

Harris, Panhellenic Council adviser since 1971, believes Panhellenic has brought better understanding between SIU's chapters.

"Sorority members are more willing to share ideas with other chapters in order to better the greek system," she said.

NPC encourages local Panhellenic Councils to get their members to work together to develop strong chapters which will better serve the students.

Harris said charity, scholarship, pledge and rush programs are some of the activities Panhellenic Council promotes. She said, "Panhellenic sponsored activities are usually matters of mutual concern to all sororities."

At this time Panhellenic is discussing the possibility of bringing another sorority to SIU. "The expansion process, involves many interviews and evaluations—much like you would encounter when applying for a job," said Harris.

Harris believes expansion would benefit the greek system by bringing new life to the established sororities. "Our five chapters at SIU don't offer enough diversity for a campus of this size. A new sorority, with interests different than those of the established groups, would hopefully attract more girls to the greek system," explained Harris.

Assisting Harris in her advisory position this year is Chris Cook, a 1975 graduate of Carroll College.

Waukesha, Wis. Cook is working with Panhellenic as part of her graduate practicum in the College Student Personnel Program. "That's where I have most of my experience," she said. "I was president of Panhellenic for one year at Carroll and a member of Delta Zeta sorority for four years."

Cook said one problem Panhellenic faces at all colleges is getting people to participate. "There's no glory in working for Panhellenic because you don't usually see any initial results."

Like Harris, Cook believes sorority growth is a must for SIU. "Sorority rush should be the major function of Panhellenic so all sororities can improve and not just a few."

She added, "Sorority members are hesitant about getting involved with Panhellenic because it's more rewarding to work with your own sorority."

Aeon agency experiences four year client increase

By Les Chudik
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Despite its untraditional procedures and overcrowded facilities, Aeon, Inc., Carbondale's alternatives agency, has experienced a 271 per cent increase in client intake since 1972, said staff member Larry Bennett.

Located at 913 S. Illinois Ave., the agency, which provides programs for personal growth and problem solving, has found that the largest percentage of clients are referred by former clients, Bennett said.

"We retain 47 per cent of our adult clients from cycle to cycle (group programs run in cycles of about 16 weeks). This says we're rather appreciated," he said.

According to Bennett, some of the reasons why people seek Aeon's services are drug abuse problems, poor personal relationships with others, family problems, trouble with the law, loneliness, or a desire for personal growth and change. Others come because they like what they have heard about the programs, he said.

The organization was originally formed by Synergy staff members as an alternative to treating drug abuse problems. Although this wasn't an original idea, it was original to Carbondale.

Bennett said the general philosophy of the agency was "Let's give people alternatives so when they have free time they'll have something else to do besides getting high."

Staff member Ron Benson said that these programs have the potential to help people change how they view themselves as individuals.

"By helping people increase their self awareness, they increase their self esteem and it's less likely that a person with high self esteem will be problem oriented," he said.

As the individual becomes more aware of what he needs, he becomes better about himself and can direct his energies to the things he needs," Bennett said.

Aeon offers programs for both adults and juveniles. The adult program includes encounter groups, women's groups, massage and meditation groups, couples workshops and individual, couple and family counseling. The juvenile program includes individual counseling, peer-counselor training and recreational activities.

Benson said that staff members use a holistic approach toward their clients. By this he means that individuals are viewed as physical, emotional and spiritual beings within their environments.

Bennett emphasized that Aeon has a non-clinical philosophy.

"A mental health clinic labels people as having a particular mental illness and treats people on that basis. We don't use labels. We are as much a growth center as a treatment center," he said.

Aeon presently has a 17-member staff of trained professionals and paraprofessionals. The weekly client load is about 100 persons.

"Carbondale is a small town with metropolitan problems like high unemployment, cramped conditions and racism," he said.

Bennett thinks the city does not agree with Aeon's philosophy, especially on the drug issue.

"The city says drugs are bad and people who use them should be arrested. We say drugs are neutral. Other factors cause a drug problem, not the drugs themselves," he said.

We're looking for certain majors to become Lieutenants.

Mechanical and civil engineering majors, aerospace and aeronautical engineering majors, majors in electronics, computer science, mathematics.

The Air Force needs people, many with the above academic majors. And AFROTC has several different programs where you can fit a 4 year, 3 year, or 2 year programs. Some offering full scholarships. All offering $100 a month allowance during the last two years of the program. Flying opportunities. And all leading to an Air Force officer's commission, plus advanced education.

If you'd like to cash in on these Air Force benefits, start by looking into the Air Force ROTC.

Former professor to receive award

William M. Marberry

Former SIU botany professor William M. Marberry will be the recipient of the Service to Southern Illinois Award at the annual spring banquet of the Jackson County SIU Alumni Club.

The banquet will be held at 7 p.m. May 2 in the Student Center dining room.

Jay King, assistant director of the SIU Alumni Association said the Service to Southern Illinois Award is given to "alumni in the county or area who have been outstanding and who have served to promote SIU."

Marberry, a native of Carbondale, retired in 1974 after teaching botany at SIU for 34 years.

In his 34 years at SIU Marberry outlasted five presidents. He first taught under William Henry Shryock's administration.

Marberry is a collector of rare plants and flowers. He is responsible for the collection and planting of many rare plants on the SIU campus. He collected most of them in Europe when he was on sabbatical leave in 1953 and from China, where he was stationed in the Air Force during World War II.

Marberry was appointed the overseer and developer of the University greenhouse in 1951. In his long stay at the University he created floral decorations for thousands of official University functions.

In 1958 Marberry was presented a national award, the Purple Rosette, by the Illinois State Federated Garden Clubs. He also received the Theta Xi Fraternity "outstanding faculty" award in 1962.

To go along with all of these credentials King praised Marberry for his knowledge of plants and flowers along with his ability to pass this information on to other people.

—Walter Koch, director of the Institute for Social Rehabilitation in affiliation with Maharishi International University;

—Robert Anderson, deputy director of Community Services, Illinois Department of Mental Health and Developmental Disabilities;

—Arthur Aron, acting chairman of the Department of Psychology, Maharishi International University;

—Elaine Aron, instructor of Psychology, Maharishi International University;

—David Ballou, Ph.D. candidate from the Department of Anthropology, University of Kansas. Each speaker will give a 20 minute presentation, Mirable said.

Mirable said, "Transcendental Meditation seeks to promote human potential through a simple mental technique which provides coherent rest to the mind and body. This rest period enables an individual to expand his mental capabilities and to systematically eliminate stress, tension and fatigue from the nervous system."

TM symposium set for April 29

By Dana Henderson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Transcendental Meditation Society of Carbondale will sponsor a free social rehabilitation symposium April 29, from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Student Center Ballrooms A and B.

The purpose of the symposium is to relate Transcendental Meditation to the rehabilitation field and show how it can be used as a rehabilitation tool, said Richard Mirable, chairman of the Carbondale Transcendental Meditation Program and symposium coordinator.

"It is our desire that the leaders in the field of rehabilitation and the human services become aware of the enormous promise Transcendental Meditation programs offer," Mirable said.

Speaking at the symposium will be: —Guy Renzaglia, director of the SIU Rehabilitation Institute;

Campus Briefs

The Graduate Student Council will sponsor a luncheon meeting for women in graduate school or those who are considering graduate school at noon Tuesday in the Student Center Thebes Room. Carolyn Zimmerman, graduate student in community development, will discuss rapes which occur on the college campus.

A workshop on "VD and Vaginitis" will be presented from 3 to 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center Kaskaskia Room. The workshop, sponsored by Women's Programs and Human Sexuality Services, will cover basic information on venereal disease and its prevention.

Donald Ploch, director of the sociology program of the National Science Foundation, will speak at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in Faner Hall, Room 3208. Ploch will discuss and answer questions on the funding of social science research by the NSF.

The Department of Animal Industries will offer an adult education course in horse management and training. The first class will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the SIU Horse Center at University Farms. Registration fee is $15. Registration information is available from the department at 453-2329.

The College Democrats will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center Mackinaw Room to form a support committee for presidential candidate Morris Udall.

Three speakers from Kaleidoscope, Inc., in Bloomington, a residential treatment center for emotionally disturbed juveniles, will discuss their program at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Home Economics Building Lounge. Their visit is sponsored by the Social Work Club.

General Telephone to honor area employees at banquet

General Telephone will honor 196 area employees at a recognition banquet at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday in Student Center Ballroom D.

The dinner will honor employees of General Telephone's Carbondale and Marion Divisions.

Guest speaker for the banquet will be Charles Willey, of Moline, Ill.

The dinner is co-sponsored by General Telephone and the Gen Tel Illini Pioneer Club, an organization promoting the independent telephone industry and brotherhood among its veteran employees. A minimum of 15 years of telephone industry service is required for membership in the Pioneer Club.

Those attending the dinner will include employees being honored, their husbands and wives, retired employees living in the area and company officials.

Students share botany award

Two graduate students in botany at SIU, Michael Homoya of Carverville and Donald Kurz of Carbondale, will share this year's James Ozment Achievement Award in Natural History.

The award was established by Eckert Ozment of Stonefort in memory of her son, a Ph.D. student in botany at SIU who was accidentally killed in 1964 at Giant City State Park.

The Ozment Award is made annually through an SIU Foundation endowment. It is presented to naturalists who best carry on the ideals and interests of James Ozment.

Man arrested for alleged theft

A Carbondale man was arrested Sunday afternoon for allegedly stealing from a trailer in the same trailer court the man lived in, Carbondale police said.

Thomas Gray, 18, 708 E. College St., was arrested at 1:05 p.m. for allegedly taking items out of a trailer belonging to Joan E. Underwood, 708 E. College St. Police said Underwood had looked into his trailer and she saw items that had been stolen from her trailer during the early morning.

Gray allegedly stole an AM-FM stereo eight-track tape player and two speakers, head phones and record albums. The total amount is not known. Gray was taken to Jackson County jail, police said.

Kenneth E. May, 20, 401 E. College St., reported to the police Monday that someone entered his residence and took stereo equipment valued at $400. The method of entry is not known.

Chester Martin, 22, of Paducah, Ky., was injured at 12:15 a.m. Saturday when he either fell or was pushed off the curb in front of Merlin's Bar, 315 S. Illinois Ave., police said.

Martin fell on the hood of a vehicle driven by Richard Sulak, of Skokie. Martin was taken to Doctors Memorial Hospital where he was listed in satisfactory condition. No charges are being filed against Sulak.

State politicians to talk to PTA

State Senator Ken Buzbee, Representatives Ralph Dunn and Bruce Richmond, and state representative candidate Joe T. Dakin, will speak on "Issues Concerning Education Programs" at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday April 21 at Carbondale High School East.

The public is invited to attend and the legislative committee of the Carbondale PTA Council will submit questions to the legislators after the meeting. The questions will be based on public response.

Women tracksters take second place

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

First place finishes by Ann Stribling and Peggy Evans pushed the women's track team to a second place finish Saturday at University of Illinois Invitational.

SIU was only nine and half points behind first place Illinois at the end of the meet. SIU accumulated 74 1/2 points.

In third place was a familiar rival this season, Ohio State University with 70 points. SIU and Ohio State have met three times this year.

Coach Claudia Blackman described the Salukis' efforts as "just super." She said that Saturday's meet reflected a team effort by the Salukis. "This is the best we've ever finished at the Illinois Invitational," Blackman said.

Part of that reason for the successful SIU effort was the running of Stribling and Evans.

Stribling won the finals of the 200-meter dash with a 25.8, but her best race was in the preliminaries, when she was clocked at 25.5. This time of 25.5 was the qualifying mark for the AIAW nationals.

Blackman said that Stribling was also a last-minute addition to the 100-yard dash event, in which she ran sixth. Stribling was scratched from her original heat in the 100 because the carbon copy of the entry form wasn't dark enough to show the change. When Stribling came up to Blackman with the bad news that they wouldn't let her run, Blackman said Stribling had to run an additional 100 yards in order to clear up the mess, right before the final heat.

Her luck ran better in the 200-meter dash, however.

"Stribling beat the next three kids in the 200 finals by only one-tenth of a second. She won it right at the wire," Blackman said.

This new mark of 25.5 for Stribling is quite a drop from her season time of 26.1 earlier in the season.

"Last year Ann had so many shin splints, and since it happened so early in the season, I wasn't quite sure of what she was capable of doing," Blackman said. Evans' victory in the 880-yard run was just as pleasing to Blackman. She came in at 2:17.3, which sets a new SIU record.

"She wasn't really pushed in her heat," Blackman said. "In the heat ahead of hers, a gal ran 2:18, which surprised us and had us a little worried."

Next weekend Evans may be running in the Drake Relays, which would take some points away from SIU at the Panterette Relays in Charleston.

Regardless of the lost points, Blackman wants Evans to run at Drake because of the tougher competition at that meet. Blackman thinks in the end SIU will benefit from these type of trips.

"By her having better competition, she may be able to go to State and run a couple of events that she doesn't normally run," Blackman said.

Jean Ohly ran into an old nemesis at the Illinois meet. For the third time this season she was beaten by Ohio State's top runner in the three-mile event.

Ohly's time of 17:58.5 was good enough for a new SIU record, which is barely over the national qualifying mark of 17:57. Ohly was also third in the two-mile run.

Another new school mark was established by Kathy Vondrasek with a 16-10 leap in the long jump. This mark is a full foot better than her previous best.

The final new SIU mark was set by javelin thrower Sue Visconage with a 117-11 1/2 effort. Visconage's throw, which was in a stiff wind, is only one-half inch under the national qualifying mark. She was fourth in the javelin.

Another Saluki standout was Mary Shirk who took second in the 400-meter hurdles (1:06.4) and third in the 440-yard dash (1:01.3).

HE LIKES BOWLING

SHAFTSBURY, Vt. (AP)—The Women's International Bowling Congress says Mable Michell of Shaftsbury, Vt., has bowled in eight leagues a week since 1972-73. She is 80 years old.

The SIBC also lists Lillian Purdy of Alton, Ill., on its bowling longevity list. This season, at 74, she competes in eight leagues and is a substitute in two others.

Peggy Evans, winner of the 880-yard run at Illinois Saturday, has received an invitation to the Drake Relays this weekend. Evans has also run in the Dogwood Relays in Nashville, Tenn.

The new SIU 880 mark, 2:17.3, was established by Evans at the Invitational in Champaign. (Staff photo by Linda Henson)

Rugby Club takes third in weekend Ruggerfest

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

The SIU Rugby Club won two games and lost one as they finished in third place in their division at the Missouri Ruggerfest held Saturday and Sunday in St. Louis.

The ruggers won their first game Saturday by topping the St. Louis Rebels 10-6, getting all 10 points in the second half.

SIU got to the field about three minutes before the kickoff after a fast drive from Carbondale. St. Louis capitalized on the still stiff SIU team, and sprang out to a 6-0 halftime lead.

After getting warmed up, SIU came back in the second half. Peter Gordon scored, and Scott McClain tallied the winning try, with Jim Elderton adding the extra point for the final 10-6 score.

Less than two hours after the win, the ruggers were back on the field against Holy Cross of Massachusetts, where they didn't fare as well, and were defeated 12-0. SIU was tired and had a hard time getting together. Coach Tommy Skora said. With a brisk wind in their favor the second half, Holy Cross added to their 4-0 halftime lead with two second half tries, and the final score, Skora said.

The Rugby Club won their third game 17-7 against the St. Louis

Bombers Sunday, for their 2-1 weekend record.

SIU sprung out to a 13-0 halftime lead on a field goal by Elderton, and trys by Mike Dailey and Coach Tommy Skora.

Tennis team falls

The Big Ten got the best of the Missouri Valley Saturday when the Ohio State Buckeyes whipped the Saluki tennis team 6-3 in West Lafayette, Ind., at Purdue University.

The results of Saturday's match dropped SIU's record to 7-5.

The Salukis were at Indiana Monday. The team opens a three-day homestand against SIU-Edwardsville Tuesday at 2 p.m.

Salukis clobber SIU-E twice

The Salukis sent five runs home in the fourth inning of the opener against SIU Edwardsville Sunday to give freshman "Rickey" "Buster" Keeton his sixth win without a loss. Keeton has the top record on the staff. He pitched six innings walking three, striking out four and giving up seven hits.

Keeton was replaced by Jim Kessler in the top of the seventh with the score at 8-3. Keeton explained that his arm got tight, and he has been bothered by a muscle spasm. SIU jumped out to a 2-1 lead on Hunsaker's two-run shot in the second inning. Neil Fiala scored ahead of the Saluki catcher.

Parachute Club hosts Midwest competition

Competition sport parachuting will come to Southern Illinois on April 24 and 25 when the SIU Sport Parachute Club (SIUSPC) sponsors a Midwest Collegiate "Chute-Out" at Hunter Field in Sparta.

Parachute teams from colleges and universities across the Midwest have been invited to the meet, which will consist of three major events in the two-day period. The events to be held are individual accuracy, four man team accuracy, and four-man

As soon as the ball left the aluminum, it was destined to hit the turf past the leftfield fence.

"It was right on the sweet part of the bat," he said. "It was probably the best ball I hit all year."

"I knew it was going out, but I didn't think it would go out by that much."

The lefthanded Vukovich hit a wind-blown solo drive over the leftfield wall in the third inning.

The Cougars didn't give up though. Kessler only retired one batter in the seventh while giving up two runs. Robinson came on to retire the next two batters to preserve the win for Keeton.

SIU-C 13, SIU-E 7

Waldrop returned for his first start since sustaining a groin injury April 3. He went six-and-a-third innings before being lifted for Robinson.

Waldrop struck out 5, walked 4 and gave up 8 hits. He evened his record at 3-3.

As in the other weekend games, the visitors jumped out to a lead, forcing the Salukis to play catch up ball. SIU led 5-3 after five innings and then exploded for eight runs in the sixth.

That included a three-run homer by SIU centerfielder John Hoscheidt. It was his fifth home run of the year.

Murray leads the squad with six. Waldrop admitted after Sunday's contest that it felt "pretty good" to get back in the lineup.

"I don't think it's going to take me that much to get back in shape," he said.

The Salukis face Western Kentucky in a doubleheader at Bowling Green Tuesday. SIU will meet Southeast Missouri State for two games at Abe Martin Field at 1 p.m. Wednesday.

relative work.

Jumpers will compete for trophies in the individual and team events. A trophy will also be awarded for the school with the best overall performance.

In the individual accuracy contest, jumpers will exit the aircraft 2,500 feet above the ground and attempt to land on a 10-centimeter disk located in the center of a 10-meter gravel target zone.

Each contestant will make four jumps. Upon landing, each contestant's distance from the target will be measured by the meet judges. The jumper with the shortest total distance from the disk after four jumps will be declared the winner.

The team accuracy event is similar to the individual accuracy contest, except that a four-man team exits the aircraft in a "stack."

The winning team is the one with the shortest total distance from the target after three jumps.

The third, and probably most exciting, competition event is the four-man relative work contest. In this event, a four-man team leaves the aircraft, one after another, and the parachutists maneuver their bodies in the air in an attempt to join hands with each other to form a large circle. This is known as a "star" in parachuting terminology. In this "speedstar" competition, each team competes against the clock as they try to assemble the star in the shortest time possible after exiting the airplane. Contestants are timed by the judges on the ground, who watch the formation of the star through a large binoculars-type instrument known as a telemeter.

The airport is located about 55 miles northwest of Carbondale on Illinois Route 4 two miles north of Sparta. Since its formation in 1963, the SIUSPC has been one of the top 10 collegiate parachuting clubs in the United States.

The club has fielded four national champions and placed a member on the U.S. women's parachute team and three members on the elite U.S. Army "Golden Knights" parachute team.

Women linksters finish seventh

The SIU women's golf team finished a disappointing seventh place out of eight teams in the University of Illinois Invitational Golf Tournament held April 16 and 17 in Champaign.

The Salukis two-round score of 796 was far behind Minnesota's winning score of 710. Both Nebraska and Illinois tied for second with 722. The top four scores counted in the team total.

Sarah McCree led the Salukis for the second straight meet, with score of 185, 14 strokes off Nebraska's Debbie Branish, who had 171.

The other Salukis who played were Marilyn Hollier, 200; Sue Henriksen, 202; Kim Birch, 209; Holly Taylor, 229 and Jan Ridenour, 233.

"It was pretty windy," McCree said.

Robins flies to victory at Kansas meet

By Mark Kazlowski
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

A record breaking performance by triple jumper Philip Robins and a first place by sprinter Mike Kee highlighted the SIU track team's effort in the Kansas Relays Friday and Saturday at Lawrence, Kan.

Robins, a senior from Nassau, Bahamas, took only three jumps, but all three broke the existing SIU varsity record. His best jump, 55-feet-5½, did not count as a Kansas Relays record because it was wind-aided. He set the meet record with a leap of 54-1. His third jump was 54-11½, but that was also wind-aided.

"When you've coached track for as long as I have, it takes a superior performance to get me going," Track Coach Lew Hartzog said of the 55 footer, "and that jump brought me right down onto the track to congratulate him.

"These jumps are nothing sudden," Hartzog said. "They are the result of four years of continuous work."

Kee, a freshman from Boston, had SIU's only other first place finish. He won the university division 100-meter dash in 10.1 seconds. That is comparable to a 9.2 100-yard dash.

The weather worked against Bob Roggy who took second in the javelin. Hartzog said the righthanded sophomore led the field until the final throw with a subpar toss of 224-6. Hartzog said it rained all day Friday and the competitors were throwing into a wind that gusted up to 50 miles per hour.

Scott Sorchik of Nebraska, the defending Big Eight and Kansas Relays champion in the javelin won the event with a throw of 229-0. Hartzog said when Sorchik prepared to make his last throw "it became dead calm. There wasn't a breath of air."

"That was a heartbreaker," the SIU coach said of the finish in the javelin. "We really wanted that one badly."

George Haley was the only other individual to place. He took what Hartzog termed "a solid fourth" in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles with a time of 51.8. In an unusual turn of events, pole vaulter Gary Hunter who had not lost in an outdoor meet prior to the Kansas Relays, did not place in the finals.

Cubs' losing streak hits four

CHICAGO (AP) - Pete Mackanin's two-run homer in the fourth inning and Mike Jorgensen's RBI doubled in the seventh carried the Montreal Expos to a 4-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs Monday.

Mackanin's belt, following a walk to Tim Lincecum by loser Bill Bonham, was his 13th career major league homer and his first with a man on base. It vaulted the Expos in front 3-2 and Montreal got what proved to be the winner in the seventh on successive doubles by Nate Colbert and Jorgensen.

Hunter qualified at 15-6 and "looked like he could have made 18" in the morning qualifying competition, Hartzog said. Hunter came back later in the day and missed three times at 16.

High jumper Kim Taylor and long jumper Rick Rock met similar fates. Taylor qualified for the finals with a jump of 6-9 but did not place. Rock also qualified for the finals but did not place.

Hartzog admitted disappointment at the performance of the five relay teams. "Other than the sprint medley, I was not happy," he said.

The sprint medley team of Scott Dorsey, Wayne Carmody, Ed Wardzala and Mike Bisase won its heat to qualify for the finals. Hartzog called the finals thrilling.

He said SIU got good legs out of Dorsey and Carmody in the 220 segments and a good leg out of Wardzala in the 440 leg to put the Salukis about three yards out of first behind Kansas State and Colorado.

Bisase handled the 880 leg and kept SIU in third place with a quarter mile to go. The freshman from Uganda made the mistake of trying to pass on the inside and broke through too late to catch Colorado and Kansas State. SIU finished third with a time of 3:21. Colorado won the race with a 3:20.3.

"It was windy," Hartzog said. "We probably would have had a new school record if it hadn't been so windy."

The mile relay finished fifth. The 880 relay qualified third but dropped the baton during the finals and finished out of the running. The 440 relay was seventh. The 2-mile relay was sixth.

The track team will travel to Charleston Wednesday for a nonconcurring dual meet with Eastern Illinois. Friday and Saturday the Salukis will compete in the Drake Relays at Des Moines, Iowa.

Weightlifters host meet

The Weightlifting Club will sponsor an all-campus bench press competition Wednesday, April 21 at 8 p.m. in the upper concourse of the Arena.

The meet, originally scheduled for Saturday, includes competition in the following weight classes: 123, 132, 148, 165, 181, 198, 220 and heavyweight.

The entry fee is $2, which is used to cover the cost of the gold, silver and bronze medals which will be awarded in each class.

All students and faculty are eligible. Participants should arrive before the 8 p.m. starting time to weigh in.

SIU wins 9 straight

Salukis take 4 from ISU, SIU-E

The SIU baseball team wrapped-up a 21-game home stand with a pair of doubleheader wins Saturday and Sunday.

The Salukis have won 19 of their last 21 and nine straight after beating Indiana State twice Saturday and SIU-Edwardsville twice Sunday. SIU's season record is 24-8-1.

The diamondmen continued their domination of Indiana State as SIU swept the three game series with 7-4 and 11-2 wins Saturday. SIU won Friday's game 23-5.

Against Edwardsville Sunday, the Salukis avenged a doubleheader loss from a year ago with 8-5 and 13-7 wins.

SIU 7, Indiana State 5

After hammering the Sycamores 23-5 Friday, the Salukis seemed a little flat for Saturday's tilt.

The Sycamores tallied first. Indiana State first baseman Dan Miracle who was 4 for 7 in the series hit SIU starter Jim Adkins for a one-out double in the second inning. He scored one out later on second baseman Kevin Madison's single to left.

SIU came back with three runs in the bottom of the second inning.

Adkins seemed to have the visitors from Terre Haute under control until the fourth inning when he gave up a leadoff single to centerfielder Jeff Brisson. The sophomore from Freeport then left the game with what SIU Assistant Coach Mark Newman said was a pulled muscle in his back.

"He had trouble with his arm all year," Newman said. "It hasn't been the same thing twice."

Dewey Robinson replaced Adkins. After walking Gary Van Pelt, Robinson gave up a three-run homer to Miracle. That gave the Sycamores a 4-3 lead.

While Indiana State was held scoreless for the remainder of the game, SIU scored four runs in the sixth off starting and losing pitcher Dave Drinkard.

The Salukis batted around in the sixth with third baseman Rick Murray driving in two of the runs with a single to left. Murray was 3 for 4 for the day.

Robinson picked up his fourth win without a loss. He struck out five, walked one and gave up four hits in his fourth inning stint.

SIU 10, Indiana State 2

Dennis Kizziah earned his second victory without a loss in the nightcap of Saturday's doubleheader. The junior righthander was the only SIU pitcher to go the full seven innings in the games Saturday and Sunday. He struck out four, walked two and gave up 11 hits in the win.

Kizziah gave up only one extra base hit-a double.

Sixteen SIU players saw action in the 12-hit attack. The Salukis batted around in the second and third innings.

Murray's average shot up from .372 to .400 after the three games with Indiana State. The righthanded hitting sophomore was 7 for 11 against Sycamore pitching.
