Council restores part of social funding

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Four local community social service organizations received good news from the Carbondale City Council Monday night.

The council voted to fund the Carbondale Women's Center, the Senior Citizens Center, the Attucks Board Youth Program and the Jackson County Youth Services Program at higher levels than suggested by City Manager Carroll Fry.

The council voted to increase social service funding $29,240 more than Fry originally budgeted for the programs. To pay for the increased social service funding while retaining a balanced budget, the council voted to cut $6,740 from the council contingency fund and use $22,500 of revenue sharing funds originally slated for two storm sewer projects.

As outlined in the city budget adopted Monday, the Women's Center will receive $10,000 in fiscal year 1983-84, which begins May 1. Fry proposed that the center, which received $10,000 this year, be given $5,000 next fiscal year.

Although Fry had recommended that the Senior Citizens Center receive $16,200 next year compared to the $32,000 in city funds it received this year, the council decided to give the center $26,200.

The Attucks Board Youth Program was budgeted $21,450 in city funds for next year by the council. Fry had proposed cutting all funds to the program, which received $20,565 from the city this year.

The council also rejected Fry's recommendation to cut off funds to the Jackson County Youth Services Program. With Mayor Hans Fischer and Councilwoman Helen Westberg dissenting, the council voted to give the youth program $3,740 next year. Council members Neil Dillard, Sammie Aikman and Archie Jones voted in favor of the motion. Program leaders had requested $6,700 — the same amount they received from the city this year.

The council decided to give the Attucks Board Unified Social Services Program $10,500 rather than $2,450 — the amount recommended by Fry. This cut was suggested by members of the Attucks Community Board as a compromise to retain funding for the Attucks Youth Program.

Westberg, who will step in as mayor May 2, provided the plan to pay for most of the increased social service spending.

On her motion, the council unanimously voted to delay a $20,500 project to improve drainage between East Walnut and Main streets and $2,000 slated primarily to design other drainage improvement projects in the city.

The motion, which was to cover the increased spending for all but the Jackson County Youth Services Program, also called for an additional $3,000 to be cut from the council contingency fund.

A motion by Aikman to cut an additional $3,740 from the contingency fund to pay for the money given to the Jackson County youth program also passed, with Westberg and Fischer dissenting.

Fischer, presiding over his last formal council meeting, commended the council and city administration for their work on the budget. He expressed hope that social services would remain a priority item with the council after his departure.

CIA analyst among dead in embassy blast

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Searchers pulled six mangled bodies from the bomb-shattered U.S. Embassy Tuesday and said they expected to find more victims in the rubble. The toll stood at 24 confirmed dead, including a top CIA analyst and seven other Americans, and 23 presumed dead.

Embassy spokesman Robert Reid said eight Americans were confirmed dead and eight others were missing in the wreckage. Among the confirmed dead was Robert Clayton Ames, the CIA's Near East and South Asian analyst, officials said in a rare case of naming a CIA agent who worked abroad.

But authorities still don't know the precise extent of the carnage in the worst attack yet on a U.S. facility in Lebanon. There also was no clear picture of how it was accomplished, although most accounts said a terrorist drove an explosives-laden vehicle into the compound and died in the blast.

Ten Lebanese embassy employees, visa applicants and visitors were confirmed dead, while 20 others were missing, Reid said. The 47th victim listed was an embassy visitor of unknown nationality, he said.

After Reid's announcement, workers recovered six more badly mutilated bodies and parts of bodies from the destroyed embassy cafeteria, but it was not clear how that affected the casualty count.

Police said 120 people were wounded in the explosion, including 22 Americans.

The bodies were hauled from beneath chunks of masonry and concrete left in huge piles by the bomb, which exploded at lunchtime Monday. It blasted off the center facade, collapsed all seven floors in the central section and caused heavy damage to the two wings.

U.S. Marines, Navy personnel and other searchers used a steamshovel and two backhoes to dig through the devastation.

A squad of Marines raised the stars and stripes at sunrise Tuesday on a flagpole that escaped the blast.

CIPS, SCAM find little compromise

By Terry Leveck
Staff Writer

A compromise was reached on an issue of policy reform for Central Illinois Public Service Co. but most of the requests made by the Southern Counties Action Movement were rejected Monday night.

SCAM met with CIPS at the Eurma C. Hayes Center in Carbondale to consider policy revisions to enhance customer relations that were suggested in a letter to the utility company from Diane Gibson, a SCAM member.

In the letter, SCAM requested that various pamphlets about utility service and customers' responsibilities be mailed out twice a year. At the meeting a compromise was reached and the pamphlets will be mailed once a year.

The letter also requested that customers be notified on their third disconnection notice that they will be required to make a deposit of one-sixth of their annual bill if the customer receives another disconnection notice.

SCAM questioned the need for CIPS to collect one-sixth of a customer's annual bill for deposit. The letter suggested that deposits should be reduced to the amount of one month of service.

CIPS sent SCAM a written response, but Gibson was not satisfied with the responses and arranged the meeting to settle rebuttals. The meeting did not provide any more positive results for SCAM, but CIPS officials were able to cite more reasons for some of their policies.

Clyde Heaton, CIPS southern division manager, attended the meeting with James M. O'Daniel, area superintendent; Doris Freitag, area administrative supervisor; and H.A. Booten, public affairs representative.

Heaton said that the amount of deposit required after a customer is disconnected cannot be lowered because that amount is needed to protect the account.

"It takes two months before we can terminate service," Heaton said. "We feel at the present time one-sixth of the annual charge is adequate to protect the account."

Heaton also rejected the proposal to put a notice in the customers' bills about the deposit requirement.

"We tried that for a number of years," Heaton said. "We sent a 'soft letter' after the second late payment. People strenuously objected to it, saying 'I object to you sending me a letter threatening to charge me with a deposit when I'm not in that position.'"

Gibson, seeking proof of Heaton's claim, asked if CIPS had documents of the complaints. But Heaton said the company received most of the complaints over the phone and it did not keep track of the specific number of calls.

"I think people would be more receptive if they knew about the policy," Gibson said.

Heaton responded: "They weren't, that's why we stopped doing it." He said the deposit policy is in the pamphlet given out when a customer begins service. Heaton offered to give pamphlets to SCAM so they could inform their constituents of the policy.

Revised downtown plan OK'd;

Fry to seek federal approval

By Karen Torry
Staff Writer

After an hour-long executive session to discuss land acquisition, the Carbondale City Council unanimously approved plans for a revised downtown redevelopment project Monday night and authorized City Manager Carroll Fry to begin working for federal approval of the project.

The amended plan would reverse the sites of the proposed conference center and parking garage and would scale down the conference center to about 75 percent of its size in the original proposal.

The revised plan calls for building the conference center on the west side of the 300 block of South Illinois Avenue and the parking garage on part of the 200 block. The center originally was to be built on the entire 200 block of the avenue.

The new plan would allow completion of the project without property held by the Walnut Street Baptist Church and Nutrition Headquarters, whose owners have refused to sell their land to the city.

However, four new pieces of land not included in the original proposal would be needed for the revised plan: the First Church of Christ Scientist at University Avenue and Elm Street; a house and apartment building on Elm Street; and an apartment building on Walnut Street.

Fry told the council last week that the owners of those properties had indicated a willingness to sell their land to the city. Speaking at a public hearing on the project last week, Jim Quisenberry of the First Church of Christ Scientist said that given an "appropriate" offer for the church's land, "We certainly would consider it."

The city has a $2.071 million grant from the Department of Housing and Urban Development for acquisition of land for the project. Fry said last week that HUD would approve the revised plan if the public and the City Council indicated that they would support it.

Robert H. Ratcliffe, dean of the Division of Continuing Education, told the council Monday night that his department, which does conference planning for SIU-C, has supported the project "from day one."

Ratcliffe said that in 1981 it was necessary to hold 117 conferences outside of Carbondale — usually in Springfield or Chicago — because the number of hotel rooms in Carbondale was inadequate. The proposed conference center plan includes a 240-unit hotel.

The hearing held last week to solicit public opinion on the matter generated mostly favorable comment, particularly from members of the business community. Developer Stan Hoye, who withdrew from the downtown project last November, said at the hearing, "I would like to help in any way I can to make this project work."

Spokesmen for the Chamber of Commerce, Towne Central and the Business and Industrial Development Association also voiced support for the project.

Several citizens spoke in opposition of the project, some expressing concern that a number of small business owners would be displaced by the project.

Resident reports silver set stolen

About $6,000 worth of silver was reported stolen from a Carbondale residence Tuesday, according to Carbondale police.

The burglary was reported by Bradley Rinella, of Carbondale, who noticed that the residence at 7 Pinewood Drive had been broken into, police said.

The resident, James Brigham, told police that a sterling silver tea set, made in England, was missing. The theft took place between noon Sunday and 6:30 p.m. Monday, according to police.

News Roundup

Reagan embraces 'safer' MX plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan embraced a plan Tuesday to build 100 MX missiles and put them in existing launch silos, promising it "will mean a safer, more secure America" and put pressure on Moscow to negotiate nuclear arms cuts.

Even congressional critics conceded the proposal has a far better chance of winning approval than Reagan's first two attempts to deploy the MX.

The plan, drafted by the President's Commission on Strategic Forces, calls for putting the MX, armed with 10 nuclear warheads, in Minuteman missile silos near Warren Air Force Base in Wyoming.

Court rules in favor of nuclear plant

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government can allow Pennsylvania's Three Mile Island nuclear power plant to reopen without first weighing whether that would mentally injure nearby residents fearful of a recurring accident, the Supreme Court ruled Tuesday.

In a 9-0 decision, the court said potential psychological harm to individuals is not addressed by a federal law requiring the government to examine environmental questions when it licenses nuclear reactors.

Reports of serious crimes decrease

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of serious crimes reported to police in America dropped 4 percent in 1982, according to FBI figures released Tuesday. It was the sharpest decline in five years.

The FBI said murder, robbery, rape and aggravated assault were down 3 percent from 1981. The far more numerous property crimes of burglary, larceny-theft and motor vehicle theft dropped 4 percent.

Report on selection of ICC 'slanted,' consumer groups say

By Terry Levecke
Staff Writer

Two utility consumer advocate groups released a joint statement Monday criticizing the Department of Energy and Natural Resources' study on the advantages and disadvantages of an elected Illinois Commerce Commission.

The ICC is presently appointed by the governor. Two bills proposing an elected ICC were introduced in February. Since then, the issue has been studied by two legislative committees and a task force appointed by the governor.

The Southern Counties Action Movement and the Illinois Public Action Council say the DENR study is "incomplete, selective and slanted."

SCAM staffer Willy Holton, a member of the Governor's Task Force on Utility Regulatory Reform and author of a minority opinion report to the task force, said DENR's study omitted commercial and industrial customer class rates. Other more comprehensive studies show commercial rates 17 percent higher and industrial rates 51 percent higher in states with appointed commissions, Holton said.

Holton said that at the last task force meeting in early April, DENR said it did not have the time and resources to do a more comprehensive study.

"Regardless of rates, and regardless of how commissions are working in either states with elected or appointed commissions, the prevalent opinion is that the Illinois Commerce Commission is not working well," Holton said.

Both groups criticized not only DENR but also the task force. Holton said. The task force committed a substantial amount of time to the issue and its members believe in making a recommendation to the governor, "even if it's wrong."

Roy Davis, IPAC Energy Committee Chairman, criticized the structure of the task force. "This task force is just like the ICC. It is appointed by the governor where the majority will side with him and the utility companies."

The task force was created by Gov. Thompson last August. He appointed 14 people from business, utility, government and consumer constituencies. The task force is to review and make various recommendations to the governor concerning reform of the ICC. In January, Thompson added former ICC Chairperson Michael Hastens to the task force.

SCAM and IPAC expect the task force to adopt DENR's recommendation that a committee be appointed by the governor to aid him in finding potential commissioners.

The task force will take a final vote on the proposal and other options at its meeting Thursday in Springfield.

was the recent increase in utility rates.

Anger with CIPS reached a peak when Roberta Lindsey, SCAM board member, denounced the increase.

"We're being penalized for conserving, that's what it boils down to," Lindsey said. "We conserve and the rates go up. Stockholders are still making a lot of profit. If you put a plant on line that we don't even need, we still have to pay — we don't have any choice in the matter. You're not losing any money. We just want affordable rates."

Heator responded: "That's what we're trying to give you — the very best rates we possibly can. We are certainly hopeful we are out of the rate increase business for the next few years, hopefully. Unless we have a lot of inflation again, we should be in very good shape and hopefully have the lowest utility rates in this state."

Community members attending the meeting complained about the cashiers at the Carbondale office. They said the cashiers were rude and were not cooperative when customers asked to speak to someone in charge. The citizens also complained that they had to tell their whole business to cashiers in front of other people.

Freitag and O'Daniel said they would speak to the cashiers and said they were usually available when a customer wanted to talk to them.

Editorial Times demand a tax increase

ADVOCATING A TAX increase is nowhere near as difficult as paying one. The current state fiscal quagmire, however, demands that both be done.

Nothing is certain in life except death and taxes, it is written, and no one likes either. But if taxes are not raised in Illinois, it just may be the death knell for state government services as we know them.

We need not tell the faculty, staff, administration and students of SIU-C what life without adequate higher education funding is like — they have lived the penny-pinching life for years now. And while the passage of the tax proposal introduced in the Illinois Senate last week will not put SIU-C back on the gravy train days of Delyte Morris, it certainly would be a step in the right direction.

THE PROPOSAL, WHICH will raise some $1.6 billion for the state, was introduced by Senate Republican Leader James "Pete" Philip of Elmhurst. It is a temporary, four-year measure and affects everyone from big business to blue collar. Some "highlights" include:

- Raising the individual income tax from 2.5 percent to 5.6 percent.
- Increasing the corporate income tax from 4 percent to 5.6 percent.
- Increasing alcohol taxes by 87 percent.
- Increasing the motor fuel tax in 1984 to 11 cents per gallon and an indexed increase according to the price of gasoline in the remaining three years.
- Increasing license plate fees for small cars to $36 from $18 and then again in 1985 another raise to $48; fees for large cars would jump from $30 to $48 this year.
- Increasing the diesel fuel tax by 2.5 cents in addition to the 11 cents proposed increase on motor fuel taxes.

WHAT WOULD IT MEAN for Illinoisans? A much needed influx of dollars, though citizens should not believe that things will be as they once were. Only $477 million of that $1.6 billion will be available for boosting spending above current levels and the fight for that money by the various state agencies promises to be fierce.

Closer to home, only $102 million of the new revenue is earmarked for higher education, which would not even match the higher education cuts made by Gov. James Thompson earlier this year under the Emergency Budget Act.

This, however, is nothing new. Higher education's share of tax dollars have gone from 16 percent of the appropriated dollars in 1969-70 to less than 12 percent for 1982-83. At the same time, enrollment at state colleges and universities has increased by 35 percent. Tuition, too, has increased 88 percent between 1974-83.

STILL, WE SUPPORT the tax increase. If it is not passed, higher education stands to lose $100 million in funding. SIU-C will lose more than $12 million. This would have some far-reaching effects.

How attractive will Illinois be with sub-par public services, sub-par transportation, sub-par education? It is a very real possibility that many Illinois students who can afford a college education will decide to find it in another state. And who's to say once they leave they will ever return?

Tax increases are a wasteful at best and a severe hardship at worst. But the times demand it.

Kill a dog; save my sleep

I think all the dogs in Carbondale that run around loose day and night should be put in a gigantic gas chamber and killed. I am sick of the Carbondale Animal Patrol Unit waking me up at 7 a.m. to ask me if the dog they have in their truck is mine. I am sick of all the dog crap in my yard, and most of all I am sick of having to pick up the garbage that has been dumped and scattered all over my yard by the dumb dogs that wander the streets like they pay taxes or something.

Well, from now on, I am putting meat laced with rat poison in my garbage, and if your dog eats it, that's too bad.

If you have a full class load, you're short on cash, and your roommates do not like having your pooch constantly in the house, then don't get a dog. You obviously do not have the time for it, the extra money to feed it, or the sense to tie it up in your yard when you put it outside. — Susan M. DeGeeter, Junior, Special Major.

Buying habits go snap, crackle, pop

BENEATH the photograph, the advertisement's text begins: "You never thought you'd see a toilet quite like this." Actually, it looks like an orthodox toilet, except it is sitting on the yellow line in the middle of a deserted Western highway. And behind it is a woman shimmering in a silver gown, and hitchhiking. This toilet, the Kohler Co.'s pride and joy, is the San Raphael model, shown in "Swiss Chocolate" — that's the color, not the material.

George F. Will
Syndicated Columnist

WELCOME TO the world of advertising, America's least understood big business.

In 1982, $67.3 billion was spent on advertising. The biggest spender, Procter and Gamble, spent upwards of $700 million. The biggest agency, Young & Rubicam, had U.S. billings of $1.6 billion. Critics of advertising often ascribe to it vast and unproven powers of manipulation. Such powers are an article of faith among critics of capitalism, who argue that big business can manage, even dictate, demand and hence is not disciplined by market forces. But now Daniel Pope, a University of Oregon historian, has published a clarifying book, "The Making of Modern Advertising."

Selling, he says, once was the storekeeper's responsibility. But modern manufacturers must sell as well as make products. The technology that made mass production possible made advertising necessary. It was necessary to generate strong demand for goods produced by capital-intensive industries with high fixed costs.

RAILROADS that could distribute goods nationally called forth advertising to stimulate wants. Advertising of national brands helped give rise to national magazines. A benefit to consumers was an economy increasingly based on high-volume production with low profit per unit.

Advertising promises a flowering of individuality as persons define themselves in choices. Yet advertising presupposes mass tastes. (Pope notes that at 9:15 p.m. EST, Feb. 5, 1982, Coca-Cola engaged in "roadblocking," buying time on all three networks, to introduce its "Coke Is It!" commercials. That night four out of ten Americans saw the commercials.)

Advertising promises a democratic distribution of pleasure, but sells many goods by stressing exclusivity — the idea that the purchaser will elevate himself above the herd. Advertising celebrates choice — "consumer sovereignty" — yet stirs anxieties about whether human volition is sovereign over manufactured persuasion.

ADVERTISING PERFORMS an informal — often minimal — function necessary for rational choice. But as Pope says, advertising assumes that consumers often are impulsive and suggestible. He says the average supermarket stocks about 10,000 different brands and products. If each consumer bought only what he came to the store intending to buy, supermarkets would be very different. They depend on impulse buying. Some impulses are triggered by previous exposures to advertising.

One hundred years ago, Americans read advertisements just to ascertain the availability of goods to satisfy elemental needs — food, clothes, tools. Now they read advertisements to ascertain what they might decide they desire. Certain necessities (soap, toothpaste) are heavily advertised, but it sometimes seems that half the GNP is generated by personal anxieties — about bad breath, damp underarms.

McDONALD'S advertisements talk as much about convenience as about hamburgers: "You deserve a break today" or "We do it all for you." The gorgeous "Miller time" commercials make no claim. They create a mood, and are weapons in a market-share battle. They do not aim to get you to buy a Miller beer rather than a Buick, or to make you thirsty, or to get you to buy Miller rather than Dr. Pepper when you're thirsty. They aim to get beer drinkers to drink Miller rather than some other beer.

Advertising is less a "science of persuasion" than an art of arresting attention briefly so that perhaps some commercially useful response will occur, sometime. Arresting attention is increasingly difficult as Americans become inured to sensory blitzkriegs. Print advertisements must be especially ingenious to seize the attention of persons saturated with sound and motion. So: Put a toilet on a highway.

BOB SIEVERS is with the Campbell-Mithun agency in Minneapolis, Kohler's agency. Plumbing fixtures are, he says with some understatement, "a low-interest subject." If you just show a pretty bathroom, few eyes will pause. The toilet on the highway is an eye-catcher, all right, but to what end?

The aim is not to get Aunt Mip to say to Uncle Ralph, "Hey, let's get a new toilet rather than a new Buick." Rather, the aim is to get people who must think about plumbing fixtures to think that Kohler is a company with snap, crackle and pop. Well, that is the least you can say for folks who name toilets "San Raphael" and "Rialto."

Letters Save a budget; kill a university

The proposal by the current SIU-C Administration to insert a condition into faculty and staff contracts that would allow their compensation to be adjusted to the financial constraints of the budget on an ad hoc basis is the death knell for this institution as a university. The reason is simple: To build up a university where teaching and research interact demands continuity in faculty and the expectation that research and faculty compensation will be funded at an adequate level.

The administration's proposal will make it impossible to assure either of the above conditions. It will certainly create a disadvantage in the recruitment and retention of faculty and will work to hamper the creation of an atmosphere in which research and research-related teaching are the main goals of the institution.

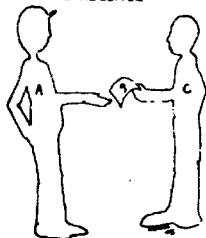

However, the institution will not cease being an educational institution devoted to technical education. Faculty turnover would not affect technological research. Technical education can be carried out with a rapid turnover of faculty. Technical programs in junior colleges and four-year colleges are the proof. Instruction in technical programs only requires knowledge about the state of the art; it does not require advancing the art. Whether it is a question of physics, philosophy, art or hydromechanics, an institution only becomes a university when all the programs, theoretical, artistic or technical, are backed up by advancing the current state of knowledge and by preserving traditional knowledge through criticism and increased appreciation.

The University is at a turning point. Efforts have been made over the past 20 years to build up departments with depth in research interests and programs. The next 20 years could see that work come to fruition. But a continuity in faculty and constant expectations is needed. Otherwise, what might have been a university will be explicitly transformed into a super technical school. The managers of the University may not have that in mind; they may be acting under serious financial constraints and scrambling for ways to solve their problems in the most expeditious way. But expediency will not do in this case. Expediency will destroy what intellectual life is struggling to exist in this institution. The managers of the institution may save the equipment budget, but kill the soul of the university. And a university without soul, without a faculty pursuing intellectual tasks, is an institutional corpse wired up to go through the motions, but in reality only a parody of real life. — Garth Gillan, Professor, Philosophy.

Foreign Language Day to offer sample of courses at SIU-C

By David Wilhelm
Student Writer

The 12th annual Foreign Language Day will be held at the SIU-C Student Center Ballrooms and River Rooms on Tuesday April 26. Between 1,000 and 1,500 students representing 22 high schools are expected this year.

Foreign Language Day is a festival of foreign languages, literatures and cultures. The faculty of the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures at SIU-C will present short programs of interest covering a wide range of subjects and foreign cultures for the students. A few members of the SIU-C faculty who are outside the department, but also have particular expertise in these areas, will also present programs.

"Foreign Language Day is an opportunity for us (the Foreign Languages and Literatures department) to invite students from the region to participate in the program," said Rick Williams, committee chairman of the program and assistant professor of classics at SIU-C.

"The programs are a sample of the foreign language courses at SIU-C."

Williams said that most of the students attending this year's Foreign Language Day come from Southern Illinois. However, he said, the southeast Missouri and western Kentucky regions will also be represented.

Williams said that most schools bring all of their foreign language students, but added "Some schools bring only their second year students.

"This year the faculty will be presenting, among others, a Japanese folk dance and a Japanese tea ceremony," Williams continued. "Experts in other fields will also give presentations on topics that focus on foreign language or foreign culture. That provides a good opportunity, for the different departments to get together. We are usually so isolated from each other."

Williams said that each high school is invited to participate in Foreign Language Day by presenting a 10-minute presentation, such as a skit or a dance. There will be nine presentations this year and trophies will be awarded to the best.

The festival begins at 9:45 a.m. with a short welcome by Chancellor Kenneth Shaw. The faculty programs begin 10 a.m. and continue until noon. Student presentations will run from 12:40 p.m. until the end of the festival at 2 p.m. Low-cost lunches will be available in the Student Center cafeterias.

"The mixture of Foreign Language Day among high school students, faculty and the university hopefully was a positive effect on every student," Williams said.

Duo tells history with songs

By Thomas Sparks
Entertainment Editor

More than 30 instruments will be featured in concert Friday night. What's so unusual about that? All of the instruments will be played by two people — folk artists Keith and Rusty McNeil.

Southern Illinois Concerts will present the McNeils at 8 p.m. in Shryock Auditorium, following a buffet dinner to be held in the Old Main Room.

Their music, billed as "A Celebration of American Folksong," portrays the history of the U.S. through song, beginning with the American Revolution and continuing until today.

For 15 years, the McNeils have been presenting this aspect of U.S. heritage through concerts, television appearances and recordings. Both also teach graduate courses and conduct research on folk music.

The instruments to be featured include banjo, dulcimer, autoharp, six- and 12-string guitars, sitar, mandolin, bagpipes, harmonica and many types of drums and percussion.

Admission to Southern Illinois Concerts programs is by membership card only. SIU-C students, however, may purchase tickets for the dinner and concert as part of the Student Dinner Concert Series sponsored by the Student Center.

Tickets are $6.75 for dinner and concert, or $2 for the concert only for students. The dinner is served from 6 to 8 p.m. and tickets may be purchased at the Student Center Central Ticket Office.

This will be the last SIC event for this year. Memberships for the ensuing year may be obtained by calling 549-6729 or 684-3552. Adult memberships cost $15, family memberships which include all children 18 or under are $35, and student memberships are $8.

Resolution passed to protect Champ

Albany, N.Y. (AP) — State lawmakers are getting into the swim of things by giving official protection to a Loch Ness monster lookalike named "Champ," said to inhabit the depths of Lake Champlain.

The resolution approved Monday by both houses of the New York Legislature, encourages "serious scientific inquiry into the existence of unusual animals in Lake Champlain, especially one commonly known as 'Champ.'" It also says the creature — if there is one — "should be protected from any willful act resulting in death, injury or harassment."

The Lake Champlain Phenomena Investigation claims to have collected reports of about 170 sightings of what could be Champ over the past 200 years. Nine sightings were reported last year, the group said.

People who claim to have seen Champ say it is "blackish gray" and ranges in size from 15 feet to 50 feet with a "snake-like" neck and a small head.

Loch Ness in Scotland has been attracting tourists for decades with reports that a monster, fondly known as "Nessie," inhabits the depths of that lake.

On April 12th and 15th, a local distributor ran a 2-column by 16-inch ad in the D.E. which may have given the impression that the April 16th Leon Redbone concert in Shryock Auditorium was part of a national brewery's "concert series."

Leon Redbone was contracted for by the professional management staff of Shryock Auditorium. His performance was in no way related to any "concert series" by any regional distributor or national brewery. To Our knowledge, no such "concert series" exists.

We also wish to apologize to those persons who were confused by these ads which were run after the Redbone concert was already sold out. It should be noted that events presented and ads placed by Shryock Auditorium always carry the Shryock Auditorium and Southern Illinois University logos. # Redbone 'smooth' at Shryock show

By Jay Small
Student Editor-in-Chief

Smooth. That's Leon Redbone.

His music has its origin deep in the dixieland-ragtime-blues generation. There's even a trace of folk heritage to it. But it's impossible to classify — it's just smooth.

If any rough edges exist, Redbone's cool voice and personality smooth them over, as a packed house at Shryock Auditorium learned.

Redbone simultaneously relaxed and excited the audience. Sometimes, the house was completely silent; other times, the crowd was on its feet roaring with appreciation of Redbone's often-witty, highly talented act.

While many acts have a warm-up band, Redbone's show had warm-up films — a gimmick, perhaps, but at least as effective as some of the warm-up bands on the market today. The films were old Vitaphone shorts of blues bands — one featured cartoon heroine Betty Boop backed by Cab Calloway's "Minnie the Moocher."

The reels placed the audience in a strange anticipation of Redbone himself, who took the stage about an hour and 15 minutes after the show was scheduled to start.

He strutted onstage alone to the roar of the audience, wearing a black suit and Panama hat and sporting a walking stick.

Redbone then entered into his

delightful music, picking his guitar as if he'd been born with it and warbling up and down the scales as if God hadn't decided whether he should be a bass or a soprano.

Redbone established a rapport with the audience early, when he announced the "low point" of the show. Over the speakers came the sound of an opera singer — a pass — as Redbone made shadow-gestures in the spotlight. As the singer hit the lowest of lows, Redbone's hand impersonated every word. That moment won the evening for Redbone — from then on, the crowd, to its own delight, did not know what to expect.

Redbone brought on his accompanists — a tuba player and a trumpet player — and the show picked up steam. Redbone played tunes that helped make him famous, including "Blue Heaven," "Harvest Moon," "Champagne Charlie" and "Hot Time in the Hometown Tonight."

But the tunes Redbone performed weren't as important as the way he performed them. He used his versatile voice like another instrument — with a yodel to make Slim Whitman eat his heart out, a vocal trumpet impersonation which feigned the real thing, and the diversity to bounce with a dixieland rhythm and croon with the blues.

He whistled, he moaned, he grumbled — but he stayed in his seat the whole time. The extent of Redbone's theatrics was his use of props. He photographed the audience ("Now I've got a record of the whole thing"), beamed a flashlight on to fans who screamed requests ("Was that really you?"), and stretched out a tape measure between songs.

Redbone played two tunes for an encore and left the stage for the last time, though the crowd wanted more. His show was short — about an hour and 10 minutes, without counting the films — but it left observers relaxed and content.

Perhaps the beer company that hired Redbone for one of their commercials had that in mind.

U.S.-Soviet sciences subject of symposium

By Doug Meade
Student Writer

How far ahead of the United States is the Soviet Union concerning the technical fields of mathematics, science and education? This issue will be addressed at a symposium for the public from 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. on Monday, April 25, Ballroom B of the Student Center.

The symposium, entitled "A Look at Technology, Mathematics, Science and Education," will discuss possible resolutions to the situation between the Soviet Union and the United States.

Resolutions to be examined are the revitalization of mathematics and the "hard sciences" in public and post-secondary school curricula, the upgrading of public and post-secondary schools' technical offerings, a model for the transfer of technology and information exchange and to increase the technical competence of the U.S. workforce.

Richard Bortz, professor in Vocational Education Studies, has put this first-time symposium together.

Bortz said, "The U.S. as a society needs to be more technically aware and competent. To do this our schools must have a more technically oriented curricula and this will eventually carry over into the workforce."

A day long agenda has been planned with the highlight being the luncheon featuring a presentation entitled, "Transfer of Technology and Information Exchange Model." Making the presentation will be William Tweedy, director of the Bio-Chemistry Department at Ciba-Geigy Corp. Other speakers on the agenda are Izaak Wirszup, professor of mathematics at the University of Chicago, and William Richard, director of the Process Research and Application Department at Monsanto Industrial Chemicals Co.

"If this symposium is successful, then plans might be made for a national program," Bortz said.

The luncheon fee is $10, but the symposium is free.

The program is being sponsored by Vocational Education Studies, School of Engineering and Technology, College of Education and the Office of the President.

R-TV broadcaster convention to include workshops, banquet

By Alan Cockrell
Staff Writer

The Department of Radio-Television will sponsor a three-day broadcaster's convention beginning Thursday and ending with a banquet at 7 p.m. Saturday in Student Center Ballroom D.

The banquet's guest speaker will be Robert Ferrante, executive producer of the "CBS Morning News" program. Ferrante was formerly the executive producer of "CBS News Nightwatch" and a producer for 11 years at WGBH-TV in Boston. He also was news director for KDKA-TV in Pittsburgh and WBBM-TV in Chicago.

Tickets for the banquet are $15 and can be bought in front of the Radio-TV office in the Communications Building.

A reception preceding the banquet will be held at 6 p.m. in the Student Center International Lounge.

The convention will include

Robert Ferrante

broadcasting workshops Thursday and Friday in the television studio. Communications 1071.

Thursday's activities begin with a seminar on sales and management at 9:30 a.m. At 10:30 a.m., a session on programming and production will be held.

Larry Patrick, a partner in a Washington, D.C. law firm, will give a presentation on "Broadcasting and the New Technology" at 1:30 p.m.

Friday's activities begin with a session on writing and reporting at 10 a.m. A workshop, "Newsroom Ethics and New Technology," will be held at 1:15 p.m., followed by a session on "Preparation for that First Job" at 2:15 p.m.

A group therapy session is scheduled for 3:00.

All of the workshops are free and open to the public.

Speakers at the workshops will include representatives from the National Association of Broadcasting (NAB), WGN Radio in Chicago, KFVS-TV in Cape Girardeau, ABC in New York and the Illinois News Broadcasters Association, according to Chet Sisk, a member of the department's student advisory committee.

Youth program to receive city funds

By Keith Cornelius
Student Writer

Statistics collected by the Attucks Community Service Board Coordinated Youth Program indicate a 50 percent increase in the dropout rate of black high school students in 1982, compared to a 7 percent increase in dropout rates for white high school students, according to co-director Abdul Haqq.

The figures were obtained from public school attendance records, he said.

Although City Manager Carroll Fry had proposed eliminating city funding of the program, the Carbondale City Council voted Monday night to give it $21,450 from city funds. The program also receives some money from Carbondale Township and the United Way.

The youth program provides activities for low and moderate income families in Carbondale and has two directions: leadership development and helping youths develop their own activities within the community.

The program is operated out of the Eurma C. Hayes Center and operated by the Attucks Board of Governors. The Attucks Board of Governors is made up of city officials and community leaders who supervise and administer some social service and manpower programs in the center.

Haqq said the program provides tutoring services for youths who are in school. Ten members of Black Engineering and Allied Technology, an SIUC student organization, tutor 15 to 20 youths from 2 to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"By developing effective programming towards black dropouts, we can begin to make headway against crime and dropout rates," he said.

Haqq said this type of programming should get dropouts involved in the community and back in school.

The Coordinated Youth Program also works with other agencies to provide a summer food program, a swimming program, band and a youth exploration program.

In addition, the program has provided recreational programs, which are coordinated with Carbondale's Park District, and lectures about drugs, education and responsibilities.

Haqq said that if the youth program fades out, the result may be higher dropout and crime rates.

Interpreting statistics can be difficult, city police officer says

By Phillip Milano
Student Writer

Many reasons for increases and decreases in various local crime statistics from 1981 to 1982 make interpretation of the changes difficult, according to Commander Tom McNamara of the Carbondale police department.

McNamara, assistant to Police Chief Edward Hogan, made his comments during a recent press conference with journalism students.

Variables such as the economic situation, increases or decreases in population and changes in the amount of assistance from the public all come into play when considering the statistics, the commander said.

"If there are more cars in the area, we can assume an increase in car thefts will occur, just as an increase in the population of women may lead to an increase in rapes," McNamara said.

An increase in thefts from 1,142 in 1981 to 1,381 in 1982 may be due in part to the state of the economy, according to the commander.

Other changes, including a reduction of armed robberies from 62 in 1981 to 34 in 1982, may have resulted from "better information and descriptions from the public and not necessarily from the good work of the department," McNamara said.

Reports of rapes that were included in the statistics released by the Rape Action Committee, part of the Carbondale Women's Center, did not all occur in Carbondale, according to the commander.

"Of the 30 rapes reported, only 13 were reported in Carbondale, while the rest occurred in surrounding counties."

McNamara also commented on the department's handling of SIU-C students. "I would say, believe it or not, that our department is easier than most departments when it comes to handling the students." Many of the officers in the department went to SIU-C, according to the commander, and consequently are more understanding of the students and their actions.

"We have to deal reasonably with the students. If you moved a celebration such as Halloween to, say, Danville, there'd be a lot of really bloody students out there, mainly because there the police are used to a different population and different problems," he said.

The city's police department also uses tactics derived from the New Orleans Mardi Gras celebration to handle crowds. McNamara said current methods of crowd control have been effective in the past and will continue to be used.

"It's difficult to do advance planning for these types of situations, so we try to deal with the situation as it arises," he said.

McNamara graduated from SIU-C with a degree in sociology and has been a member of the department for 13 years.

Value of foreign language skills assessed

By Paula J. Finlay
Student Writer

There is increasing national awareness that foreign languages are an important commodity in business and diplomacy, but much of the American public still needs to be educated about the value of foreign languages, according to Jelmut Liedloff, chairman of the Department of Foreign Languages and Literatures.

"We need an educated population in terms of a foreign language, so they see that their way — that is the American way — is one way of many ways," Liedloff said.

As Americans face more economic competition from Europeans and Japanese, foreign languages become more important in business, Liedloff said.

"We've lost the old dominance of world markets. We face much stiffer competition. The language of the customer becomes more and more important because we don't have the superb products that, simply by their own superiority, knock out the competition," Liedloff said.

"There's an old quote: 'There's one language you need to know when you want to sell and that's the language of the customer.'"

Liedloff asserted the U.S. is at a disadvantage when it doesn't know the languages of its adversaries and allies.

"If we don't know their language, we really don't understand them at all, because we can't really think in the same category that they think in," he said.

Liedloff said that although there are some problems with funding, his department has been able to make some changes in its curriculum.

"On the upper level we have now introduced courses in business and commercial language," he said.

Liedloff said there is a two-course sequence in business French and one-course sequences in business Russian, German and Spanish.

These courses have been introduced over the last several years. The business French course has been offered in the spring semester since 1980 and has an enrollment of about 13 students each time it is offered.

Rather than using just textbook drills, students apply their own experiences by writing and speaking in the new language. The language skills are linked with the country's culture.

Enrollments in foreign languages at SIU-C have remained steady, Liedloff said. There has been a slight decrease in foreign language majors, from 61 in 1979 to 38 in 1982, but an increase in others taking foreign language courses.

Only two colleges at SIU-C — liberal arts and sciences — require students to take a foreign language. Students in those colleges must take two semesters of a foreign language, a total of eight semester hours.

Blood Drive collection falling far short of goal

By Mary Pries
Staff Writer

Less than half the blood that was needed for the first day of the blood drive at SIU-C was given Monday and even less blood has been pledged for each day this week.

American Red Cross Assistant Director Marie Covilli said the goal for April 18 through 22 was to collect 450 pints, but only 219 pints were received. A total of 2,600 pints were expected from SIU-C, and students had set their own goal at 307 pints, Covilli said.

"SIU-C supplies more than 50 percent of the blood for 146 hospitals in Southern Illinois and southern Missouri. Now, half of that blood just isn't there," Covilli said. "We are going to have to try to play catch up all week."

Covilli said the combination of many students not knowing about the drive and students who cannot donate because they were immunized for measles is probably what is causing problems for the drive. The drive is usually the second largest in the state.

"I don't think students are aware of the drive and how urgent it is that we get the blood," she said. "In the past, the drive had more publicity and was highly supported by the students. I believe they would be empathetic if they were told."

Assistant Director Linda Martin said SIU-C has traditionally been good to the American Red Cross. The students have asked that the goals be raised because they are willing to help, and "if they know it is time to give, they will," she said.

Covilli said the other problem the blood drive is facing is that students who were immunized are probably health conscious, and therefore would have been likely candidates to give blood.

"Over 2,000 students were immunized," she said. "When a person is given a vaccination, some of the virus is put into his system so we cannot take that blood until we are sure it is healthy again. If a student was immunized for rubeola, he can not give for two weeks, and if he was immunized for rubella, he cannot give for four weeks."

Covilli said the Red Cross can't give up hope for this drive because the blood for the week must come from here.

Martin said, "Many of our nurses are here instead of helping at other drives. We expected a huge turnout and we want to give the students the best service we can."

Students, faculty and citizens may go to Ballroom D of the Student Center all week from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. to give, said Martin. Appointments are not needed.

Canadian group buys St. Louis hockey team

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ralston Purina Co. agreed Tuesday to sell the St. Louis Blues hockey team to a group of Canadian businessmen, a spokesman for Ralston said.

"A group of Ralston officials will fly to Saskatoon this afternoon," said spokesman Jim Reed. "We expect to sign a sales contract today."

Earlier, the company announced that its board of directors authorized consummation of the sale to Coliseum Holdings, Ltd., of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, despite a last-ditch effort by a group of local businessmen.

"It is regrettable that no way was found to keep the team in St. Louis," said the company. "We commend Mayor Vincent Schoemehl for his efforts in exploring all possible means of keeping the franchise here."

John C. Baird, senior vice president of Ralston, said the company had made a management decision to get out of the hockey business.

He said the company offered local investors an opportunity to present an offer, but that Coliseum Holdings had presented its financial package last week.

The Canadians are believed to have offered $13 million for the club, while the local group could only come up with about $8 million. National Hockey League by-laws specify that unanimous consent of the NHL's Board of Governors is required for sale of a team. However, the rules may be adjusted to specific cases and could be for the Blues, who became a member of the league as an expansion franchise in 1967.

Bill Hunter, head of the group which has been trying to purchase the Blues for more than three months, said Ralston Purina will take immediate steps to obtain the necessary NHL authorization to transfer the team to Saskatoon.

NHL president John Ziegler has repeatedly said he does not favor moving the team out of St. Louis and would do everything possible to keep it there.

However, Ralston Purina says it has been losing money on the Blues operation since it stepped in five years ago to bail out the NHL and keep the franchise in St. Louis.

Hunter and his major partner, Peter Batoni of Edmonton, have outlined plans to build a $44-million, 18,000-seat arena on the outskirts of Saskatoon.

Coliseum Holdings is a new name for the group, formerly known as Batoni-Hunter Enterprises, which submitted its original offer to Ralston Purina last January.

Black Hawks near goal of knocking off North Stars

CHICAGO (AP) — The Minnesota North Stars are on the brink of elimination and the Chicago Black Hawks hope they can deliver the final blow Wednesday night in the Chicago Stadium.

The Hawks gained their advantageous position and 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven Stanley Cup quarter-final playoff series with a valiant comeback Monday night, rallying from a 3-0 deficit to score a 4-3 overtime victory on North Star ice.

The end came at 10:34 of the extra period when Tom Lysiak set up Rich Preston for the winning goal following a pressure-packed performance by Black Hawk goalie Tony Esposito.

None of this escaped the scrutiny of Lou Nanne, the general manager of the North Stars, who also is calling the shots from the behind the bench.

"Tony is a Hall of Famer, one of the all-time great goaltenders," said Nanne. "Preston and Lysiak are pros who have

Consistent team marks earn golfers high tournament finishes

By Sherry Chisenhall
Staff Writer

Mary Beth McGirr's women's golf team finally turned in two fairly consistent performances, but it was opponents' inconsistency that boosted it up in tournament standings.

SIU-C shot a 638 in the Illini Invitational to finish fifth, then came back the next day and shot a 645 to claim third in the Purdue Invitational. It's not supposed to work that way, but Saluki opponents Michigan State and Illinois State were responsible for SIU-C's trek upward despite the higher team mark.

Conference rival Illinois State claimed the team title in the 11-team, 36-hole Illini Invitational with a 610, followed by Michigan State with a 623. At Purdue, though, SIU-C edged Michigan by a stroke, while Illinois State shot a dismal 652, inflating their mark from the previous two days at Illinois by 42 strokes.

SIU-C was the defending champion of the Illini Invitational but could manage only fifth place this time around. The Salukis were in third after the first day, but strong second-day showings by Missouri and Michigan slid them ahead of SIU-C. Mizuoff finished third in the tournament with a 624 team mark, while Illinois eked by SIU-C to claim fourth with a 630 team total.

Junior Lisa Bremer has been up and down for the Salukis for most of the spring season, but was definitely on the upswing at Illinois, claiming low individual honors for the team with a 75-79-154, good for seventh place overall.

Dania Meador, last year's medalist at the tournament, finished in a tie for eighth overall and second on the team behind a 77-79-156. Sue Arbogast shot a 79 and an 80 for a 159 total, third on the team, while Barb Anderson and Lisa Kartheiser both shot a 169, with rounds of 78 and 82.

Assistant coach Brian Wallace said the team played fairly consistently considering the playing conditions. The second day of the tournament was miserable, he said, with cold weather and heavy showers.

The Salukis added seven strokes to their team total at the Purdue Invitational, but moved up to third place in the 16-team field. Ohio State claimed first with a 601, while their closest opponent was Penn State with a 655. SIU-C edged fourth-place finisher Michigan State by one stroke, while Illinois State's 652 locked them in fifth place.

Arbogast, who has been the team's most consistent player throughout the season, was low individual for the Salukis, claiming ninth place overall with an 81-78-159. Kartheiser, a sophomore, finished No. 2 for SIU-C with an 82 and a 78 for a 160 total, good for 13th place overall.

Anderson carded a five over par 77 the first day, the low round for the team at Purdue, but ran into problems on the greens the second day and managed to record only an 84. Her 161 total for 36 holes put her in 14th place for the tournament.

Meador also started strong the first day with a six over par 78, but a slow start the second day gave her a round of 87 and a 165 total that earned her 23rd place.

Bremer couldn't hold onto her 154 pace from the Illini Invitational, carding a 171 behind disappointing rounds of 84 and 87.

The weather didn't break for the Purdue tournament, either, with most of the tournament played in snow flurries and temperatures in the 20s.

"We finished up well," Wallace said. "We almost had second place, but Penn State came on strong. We had a few problems with inconsistency the second day.

"Barb did really well the first day, then came back with 39 puts the second day. She's got a beautiful swing, but she's been a little erratic and just hasn't been able to put it all together.

"I'm impressed with their ability to stay out in that weather for five hours, though. I have a lot of respect for them for just being out there."

been in all kinds of situations for a long, long time. When you have a game like this, guys like Esposito, Preston and Lysiak want to be the hero.

Nanne admitted the North Stars made a mistake at the blue line on the game-winning goal, but he also thought back to Chicago's first goal Monday night.

"The first goal turned it around," said Nanne. "We're up 3-0 and it could have been 4-0. But we had a goal disallowed (Tom McCarthy kicking the puck in). We got mentally tight and when you're mentally tight, it goes to your legs."

If the Black Hawks can wrap up the series with a victory over the North Stars Wednesday night, Lysiak and Esposito can celebrate upcoming birthdays by resting for the semifinal round of the playoffs.

Lysiak will be 30 Friday and Esposito will be 40 Saturday. Preston will celebrate his 31st birthday May 22, which could be the very final day of the final round.

If the Black Hawks, who hadn't scored a victory at Minnesota all season until Monday night's stunning comeback, are unable to polish off the North Stars Wednesday night, the series will continue at Minnesota Friday night. If a seventh game is necessary, it will be played in Chicago Sunday night.

Knowing anything can happen in the playoffs, the Hawks would rather end the series Wednesday night, and are hoping for the return of Steve Lamer to the Dennis Savard line.

Lamer sat out both games in Minnesota because of a shoulder injury and defenseman Keith Brown, who finally returned from a shoulder separation suffered Jan. 26, re-injured the shoulder Sunday night and missed Monday's game.

man, he surrendered a single, a walk, two more singles and another walk, before exiting that gave Evansville a 3-0 lead. Bellissimo relieved again and worked until 'he fourth, by which time SIU-C had tied the game. Robert Jones and Gellinger had RBI singles in a three-run Saluki fourth.

In the bottom of the inning, Evansville untied it, tagging Rob Boreham for three runs in one-third of an inning.

This time the Salukis stayed down. Rich Koch went an inning and two-thirds and kept it close, but then Tom Caulfield got touched for three runs in his brief appearance.

Boreham got the loss, evening his record at 1-1.

SIU-C's next action will be this weekend, when the Missouri Valley Conference season begins. The Salukis face Illinois State in doubleheaders Saturday and Sunday.

The last month has been almost an unbelievable one for Babcock, who has been turning in consistently high-scoring routines.

"Everything is working out the way I've always wanted it," said the senior from Garden City, Kan. "I was on Cloud Nine for about two days after the meet. I don't know how much higher I can go. I'm on about the 10th floor of Cloud Nine by now."

His performance at the Emerald Cup was the kind of meet that Babcock had been "dreaming about all year long."

"I hit better than I hit all year long, everything just clicked," he said.

His routines were the same as those he used at the NCAA meet, with the exception of his parallel bar set, in which he added more difficulty. The moves he used were some he had been working on just the week before. Doing his swing movements on the end of the bars rather than in the middle where he had used them before added not only difficulty, but also originality, which he hadn't had before, he said. Babcock scored 9.9 on his set.

He was most pleased with his pommel horse routine, which was also rated 9.9.

"It was the smoothest and most rhythmical set I've done," he said.

Babcock's other scores were 9 on rings and high bar, and 9 on floor exercise and vault.

Daily Egyptian challenges WCIL to basketball game

They romped over REO Speedwagon. Now they'll meet the DE. The hardwork gang from WCIL will try to push their record over the .500 mark after being challenged by the staff of the Daily Egyptian to a basketball game 7:30 p.m. Friday in Davies Gymnasium. The game will be a benefit for the Harold McFarlin Heart Transplant Fund.

WCIL rolled over the rockers from Illinois three weeks ago by a 69-54 count. In a media tournament in Anna, they managed a win over the Southern Illinoisan before being tamed by WRAJ's intimidating front line. Including a loss to the S.I., the Recordbreakers stand at 2-2.

"We're playing better," said Mike Trude, sportscaster for WCIL. "We really played well against REO. In our tournament in Anna, we played well against the Southern Illinoisan in the first game. In the second game we were overmatched against WRAJ. We couldn't match their height. We just run and gun and have fun."

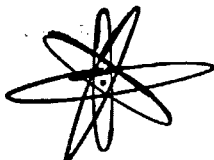

The Recordbreakers will bring in the same squad used against REO, including Trude, Mike Reis, Dave Strickland, Doug Dillard, Greg Gorham, Todd Manley, Tony Waitekus and Rich Byrd.

The DE Misprints, coached by faculty managing editor Bill Harmon in their first game, stack up with sports writers Dan Devine, Ken Perkins and Brian Higgins, as well as news writer Jim Derk, editorial page editor Andrew "Mr. Controversy" Herrmann, and production employees Tim "Eggo" Edgar, Matt Holdrege, Troy Brown, Todd Jones and Steve Bione.

"If our people play as they spell," Harmon said, "we'll devastate them. I can't see that there's any way a bunch of disc jockeys can ever beat even an unpracticed team of print journalists."

"I don't think there's any way WCIL can stay on the court with DE people," he continued. "Radio people are already out of breath from talking so much. We'll run them into the ground."

Donations to benefit Harold McFarlin will be requested at the door.

Franchise trackster hurdles ahead

On the road to '84

This is the second of a series featuring present and former Saluki athletes with Olympic aspirations.

David Lee was a member of the SIU-C men's track team from 1977 to 1981, and was a member of the 1989 U.S. team that boycotted the Games in Moscow.

By Ken Perkins
Staff Writer

Every so often there appears an athlete who seems to be born for what he does.

He can drill a 30-foot jump shot with a flick of the wrist or snag a football with the greatest of ease. They call him the superstar, the legend, the franchise that could turn bad to good and red to black.

Natural talent, they call it, and no one knows that better than David K. Lee. He's 6-2, about 170 pounds, lean, mean, and has been running track since his early years in high school. Coaches, so-called track and field experts and broken down ex-athletes all say Lee "is" the 400-meter intermediate hurdles. He runs them like he eats toast. Quick. To the point. Nothing left behind.

Lee was ranked third in the world last year at what he does and second in the United States. He competed for SIU-C from 1977 to 1981 and was undefeated in the Missouri Valley Conference Championships.

He was the SIU-C all-time scorer in 1980, collecting 300 points while competing in four to six events per meet. In 1980, his best year ever, the University City, Mo., native was the Kansas Relays Champion, American Athletic Congress (AAU) Champion and NCAA Champion. He also made the 1980 U.S. Olympic Team.

That makes a colorful athletic resume for Lee. But when 1984 comes, when he meets the best of the U.S., when he gets in the blocks for the finals of the Olympic Trials, he knows that all of his opponents will have just as much color, just as many titles, and the same shot at the top three spots.

"You can't count anyone out in a race," said Lee, who should know better than anyone else. It was he who took the nation by storm when he blew by Texas-East Paso's Wilfred Makuyu Muli in 94-degree heat to win the 1980 national championship. He was just a junior then and running the intermediates for only the third year. Called "just a baby," in the event by SIU-C Lew Hartzog, Lee remembers that he was picked by the experts to take anything from third to sixth.

"I won it," said Lee, "because it was that particular year, that particular meet, when I put everything together."

He may not have been picked as a favorite, but just as he will have to do at the Olympic Trials, Lee put it all on the line for that one series of races. He raised a few eyebrows and changed a few minds when he breezed through his semi-final heat in 48.68, a Texas Memorial Stadium record. And when he came off the final turn and shifted into gear, he left little doubt as to who was No. 1.

"When I started running against the big name people, I felt I could run with them, but didn't have the experience over the hurdles to beat them," Lee said.

"So I ran every meet as hard as I could, even the little dual meets we had to get used to the work load. When I started winning, it just opened my eyes and showed me I could run right there with them. Lew (Hartzog) said I could and stayed on my back about it. You see, no one expected me to win the intermediates. And it's going to be the same at the Olympic Trials next year."

Only three will be picked to represent the United States in the intermediate hurdles. Lee's competition is clear. He's up against Andre Phillips, 1981 champion in the intermediates, David Patrick, 1982 champion in the intermediates and Edwin Moses, who hasn't lost an intermediate hurdle race since 1978. And that doesn't include other up-and-coming athletes from now until next year.

Moses is No. 1 in the world and has run 47 seconds in that event. Phillips has circled in 48.45 and Lee has clocked in at 48.44.

"The way it is right now, I should make the Olympic Team," Lee said. "But you can never tell."

Lee, 24, has time on his side. Since his freshman year when Hartzog suggested he try the intermediate hurdles, he has steadily dropped his times. His first race at Northeast Louisiana was in 55.01. He liked it, and started working with Andy Roberts, a senior at the time who finished fourth in the nation in the 110-meter hurdles.

With Roberts helping on his technique, Lee, who had run only the 180-low hurdles in high school, lowered his time to 51.05 by season's end. He dipped '0 to 50.09 his sophomore season and 48.87 by his junior year.

Lee said he isn't in very good shape right now, but will compete this weekend in the prestigious Mount Sac meet in Palmona, Calif. He will get a chance to see where he stands because both Moses and Phillips are scheduled to compete.

"I don't want to peak too early," said Lee. "The summer is the time to be at your best. Then I've got the Pan Am Games, World Games, the University Games and the Sports Festival."

After that, Lee will pack his 48.44 and head to Florida to work part-time, run full-time and wait for the Olympic Trials.

"I've got to get in a training situation and work on the hurdles," he said about his move. "The track here in Carbondale is too hard. I need rubber to train and concentrate on my technique without getting hurt."

Making the 1980 team and not being able to compete because of a boycott has Lee yearning even more for a shot in 1984.

"Some people think track athletes are crazy," he said. "I mean we don't get paid or anything like that. I know I may have natural talent, but I have to work as hard as anybody else. Sweat as much as anybody else and just kill myself on the track."

"But in the long run, it all comes down to that one race, or just being in the Olympics. Sometimes I say to myself, 'Why am I doing this?' But I've done all there was to do as a collegian. My dream was to make the 1980 team and that dream was taken away. But now I've got 1984."

Salukis split doubleheader

By Dan Devine
Associate Sports Editor

In the first game of a doubleheader against Evansville Tuesday, Saluki baseball Coach Itchy Jones had Richard Ellis on the mound, Jay Burch at shortstop, and former shortstop Rich Koch in right-field.

That combination worked, as Ellis kept the Aces scoreless until the seventh, and Burch anchored a flawless defense. SIU-C won 4-2.

In the second game, Jones had Dick Wysocki on the mound, and Burch and Koch in the same places, but this time it didn't work.

Wysocki couldn't get out of the first inning, Burch made two errors, and the Salukis dropped a 9-3 decision.

SIU-C will come back from Evansville with a 15-12 record, still looking for another starter and somebody to make routine infield plays.

The second game gave the day a bitter taste, after Ellis and teammates had expertly dissected the Aces in the opener.

The hitters scratched for four one-run innings, as the defense was sound, Ellis was strong until the last inning, and Jay Bellissimo came out of the bullpen to save the day.

Jim Reboulet started the scoring in the first, by singling, stealing second, moving to third after a pair of walks, and then coming in on a fielders choice by Mike Blumhorst.

In the second, Mike Gellinger led off with a single, advanced to second on a walk, went down to third on a sacrifice bunt by Steve Boyd, and scored on Reboulet's fly ball.

Three singles — by Koch,

Burch and Boyd — netted the Salukis another run in the third.

They went up 4-0 in the sixth. After two were out, P.J. Schranz singled and went to second on a wild throw by the shortstop, and then scored when Scott Bridges ripped a double.

While the Saluki hitters were harrasing the Evansville staff, Ellis was coasting. He didn't get into serious trouble until the last inning, when four singles gave the Aces two runs. But Bellissimo came in and retired two batters to record his first save.

Ellis, 4-1, scattered nine hits and three walks, while striking out three.

In the second game, starter Dick Wysocki retired fewer batters than Bellissimo had in his brief relief stint.

Lefty Rich Ellis notched his fourth win Tuesday, getting relief help from Jay Bellissimo. SIU-C split with Evansville.

Japan next for busy gymnast

By JoAnn Marciszewski
Sports Editor

Brian Babcock barely had a chance to unpack his suitcase before he learned he had to pack it again.

The gymnast returned home Monday night from his best performance ever, an SIU-C record 58.8 all-around score while tying for first with Scott Johnson of Nebraska in the Emerald Empire Cup competition on Saturday. Tuesday morning he received an invitation to compete in a meet in Japan this weekend. He leaves Wednesday.

San Jose State gymnast and national team member Roy Palassou was originally slated to make the trip, along with Nebraska's Jim Mikus, but an injury forced Palassou to remain at home.

This is the first international trip for Babcock, who finished third in the all-around competition at the NCAA championships two weeks ago. As a member of the U.S. team he was invited to make other trips during his career at SIU-C, but was unable to make them because of injuries.

"This is a trip I've always wanted to make because the Japanese dominated the sport for so long," he said.
