County Clerk charged in vote fraud

By Jane Grandolfo
Staff Writer

Jackson County Clerk Robert Harrell was arrested Thursday and charged with perjury in connection with the March 1984 primary election after a special grand jury completed its investigation into election fraud late Wednesday.

Also arrested were Precinct 2 committeeman Brady V. Buckley, and Mary K. Lacy. Both were charged with forgery, mutilation of election materials and ballot box stuffing.

The three were indicted and warrants were issued for their arrest by Circuit Judge Richard E. Richman.

Carbondale Township Trustee Freda M. Stalls was also indicted Wednesday on two separate charges of unlawful observation of voting and solicitation of perjury.

The investigation began after a suspicious "large number of absentee votes were cast in a couple of precincts in the March 1984 primary," said Dan White, head of investigations for the Illinois State Board of Elections.

The indictment against Harrell charges that he made a false statement to the grand jury while under oath.

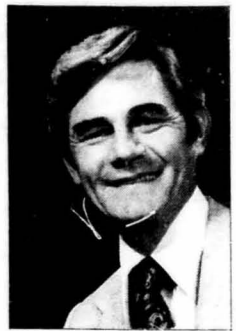

The other indictments range from allegations of forging absentee ballots, ballot box stuffing, encouraging each other to fill out absentee ballots, and observing another marking an absentee ballot.

A special prosecuting attorney, Hamilton County State's Attorney Alan Downen, was appointed to the case since Jackson County State's Attorney John Clemons was a candidate in the 1984 election.

Harrell was released Thursday on a $2,500 recognizance bond and is scheduled to appear in Jackson County Court May 2.

Buckley and Lacy were arrested at their Carbondale homes and released from custody after posting $200 cash bail each. They are both scheduled to appear in court May 7.

USO results to be withheld

By Cynthia Weiss
Staff Writer

The results of the Undergraduate Student Organization election held Thursday will not be released until the USO Judicial Board of Governance decides whether the Phoenix Party will remain disqualified, said USO Election Commissioner Lamont Brantley.

The USO election commission voted Tuesday to disqualify the entire Phoenix Party after receiving and reviewing a number of campaign violation complaints.

The party is appealing the commission's decision to the Judicial Board of Governance, however.

The Board has jurisdiction over the election commission. Therefore, if Phoenix Party members won their appeal, they would become "re-eligible" for election, which is why the Party was not removed from contention Thursday.

BRANTLEY SAID he met with Jean Paratore, assistant to the vice president for student affairs, and they decided that "it wouldn't do any good to release the (election) results until the appeal is resolved."

Release of the results before the appeal is resolved "could possibly be detrimental" to the fairness of the appeal proceedings, Brantley said.

However, the three presidential candidates, including Phoenix candidate Tony Appleman, and a Sun Yat-Sen's Revolutionary Action Party senatorial candidate, said they weren't so sure they liked the idea of the results being held.

In fact, presidential candidates Dan DeFosse (Independent Party), Stuart Lowrey (write-in) and Appleman, as well as the chairman of Sun Yat-Sen's Party John Rutledge, said they agreed Thursday afternoon to submit a request that the results be released Thursday night as scheduled.

THE THREE CANDIDATES said they asked Andy Leighton, current USO president, if he would call a meeting of the Judicial Board of Governance on Thursday — this time to request reversal of the election commission decision to withhold the voting results.

The board, which did not have an official membership until senate approval of seven members Wednesday night, had not yet met at 6 p.m. Thursday.

DeFosse said he thinks the USO will lose credibility by holding the results.

Lowrey said he thought it would be wiser not to release the results until the status of the Phoenix Party is resolved, but that he had agreed to go on record with the rest of the candidates who made the request.

"IF EVERYONE wants the results released beforehand that's fine with me, but my personal opinion is that the appeal decision would be freer from bias if they (the Judicial Board of Governance members) didn't know the outcome

Thompson OKs farm aid, state wage increase bills

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Measures aiding cash-strapped framers and funding pay hikes for state officials were signed into law Thursday by Gov. James R. Thompson, hours after narrowly winning approval from lawmakers.

The Republican governor, who initially opposed aiding farmers with state dollars, changed his mind when it became evident that the federal government was not going to take any action to help the agricultural community.

The bill was co-sponsored by Democratic Sens. Glenn Poshard and Vince Demuzio.

"Our farmers face a difficult time, particularly during this spring planting season," Thompson said. "This bill will allow farmers to receive emergency loans at below-market interest rates so they can buy the material needed to plant their crops this year."

The governor's signature came shortly after lawmakers approved a multimillion dollar spending measure that included the salary hike money and $25 million to fund the low-interest loan program to aid farmers in planting their crops.

It took three tries in the Senate before that chamber voted 30-25 to send the plan to Thompson's desk. Earlier, House members voted 62-55 to approve the plan after debating whether lawmakers were giving themselves a pay hike "on the backs of Illinois farmers."

The measure won Senate approval by one vote — cast on behalf of absent Sen. Margaret Smith, D-Chicago, who left Springfield earlier in the day.

Turner announces $2.9 billion CBS offer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cable television entrepreneur Ted Turner Thursday made his long-awaited bid to take over CBS Inc. in a complicated $2.9 billion deal and promised he would make no major changes in the giant network's programming.

CBS vowed to fight the takeover and several Wall Street analysts were skeptical of the flamboyant Atlanta broadcaster could pull it off.

"We do not intend to make any fundamental changes in CBS broadcasting," Turner said at a news conference after a closed-door meeting with analysts evaluating the Turner deal for their clients.

Turner earlier filed papers with four federal agencies outlining his proposed takeover, in which he spoke of providing the public with "more high quality, innovative programming than CBS currently provides through its broadcast outlets."

Turner wants to acquire 21 million shares of CBS stock — or 67 percent of the company's stock — and then merge CBS with his Turner Broadcasting System cable network.

Analysts valued his bid at anywhere from $150 to $165 per share.

He offered CBS shareholders a no-cash package of stock in a new combined company, as well as bonds and fixed income securities in exchange for their CBS stock.

Blacks set white man afire in retaliation for killings

UITENHAGE, South Africa (UPI) — Blacks dragged a white man from a car in a white area and set him afire Thursday just hours after autopsies revealed 17 of 20 blacks killed by police at an outlawed funeral were shot in the back. The attack marked the first time in 14 months of South African racial violence that blacks have attacked a white person in a white area.

Education consultants resign after criticism

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two of the Department of Education's newest consultants resigned Thursday in the wake of criticism from their views of the federal role in education, particularly regarding the handicapped, the department announced. "Education Secretary (William) Bennett did not ask for them to resign, but he was happy when they did," a department source said, referring to the heat Bennett received for hiring the two, Eileen Gardner and Lawrence Uzzell.

Air Force plane crashes off Honduran coast

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — A U.S. Air Force plane taking part in military training exercises crashed Thursday off the northern coast of Honduras and rescuers conducted an aerial search for the aircraft and two U.S. crewmen. The A-37 "Dragonfly" plane plunged into the ocean at 10:15 a.m. EST near Punta Sal, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said. It was not known, pending return of searchers, whether the men were hurt or killed in the accident.

Reagan defends trip to German war cemetery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan said Thursday "there is nothing wrong" with his visiting a German army cemetery. Survivors of the Nazi Holocaust pleaded with him to cancel his cemetery visit in the name of all who died fighting Hitler. "I think that it (cancelling the visit) would be very hurtful and all it would do is leave me looking as if I'd caved in in face of some unfavorable attention," Reagan said about his scheduled visit to the Bitburg cemetery next month.

First charges filed after drug officer's death

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Two of Mexico's reputed top drug traffickers were arraigned Thursday on charges of kidnapping and killing a U.S. drug enforcement agent and a Mexican pilot. They were the first traffickers to be formally accused of the crimes. Rafael Caro Quintero and Ernesto Fonseca, along with their top aides, Samuel Ramirez and Jorge Mari Salazar, each were accused of two counts of murder in the slayings of U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique Camarena and pilot Alfredo Zavala Avelar.

SEMO student dies after getting meningitis

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (UPI) — A senior at Southeast Missouri State University died Thursday, one day after contracting what authorities said was a form of contagious meningitis. Julie A. Saenger, 22, of St. Louis, died at St. Francis Medical Center about four hours after she was taken to the hospital's emergency room by friends at the Delta Delta Delta sorority house. All 43 people who were at the sorority house when Saenger became ill are under a 24-hour quarantine, said Art Wallhausen, a university spokesman.

High school student shoots history teacher

SOUTH PITTSBURG, Tenn. (UPI) — A high school student broke free from a police officer escorting him from school Thursday, ran home and returned with a .45-caliber pistol and shot a woman history teacher. Clifford Price, 18, was arrested and charged with attempted murder. Marion County Sheriff Lloyd Hood said. Jan Henderson, 33, was in serious but stable condition with chest, abdomen and arm wounds from at least two bullets, Hood said.

Dairy workers ruled out as cause of food poisoning

CHICAGO (UPI) — Employees at Jewel Co.'s dairy have been all but ruled out as the source of salmonella bacteria that has led to the nation's worst outbreak of the infection, Illinois Inspector General Jeremy Marglis said Thursday. The likelihood that an employee or deliveryman could have carried the bacteria into Jewel's dairy in west suburban Melrose Park is "incredibly remote," he said.

Food vendors draw merchants' ire

By Jeff Curl
and Bob Tita
Staff Writers

In response to a complaint from a local merchant, Carbondale police Wednesday night began enforcing a city ordinance prohibiting street vendors from selling food on South Illinois Avenue past 8 p.m. The result could be the end of the "bagel men."

Jack Koeinick, owner of Jackson's Style Hot Dogs, 521 S. Illinois Ave., said he lodged a complaint with City Manager Bill Dixon about the street vendors hurting his business.

"I like them," said Koeinick about the street vendors, "but it was just getting too far out of hand."

Koeinick said when he began his business two years ago, there were one or two people selling bagels. Now there are several people selling bagels and one person selling hot dogs, all in the vicinity of his business. He said more people have applied for vending licenses, including one person who wants to sell hot potatoes.

A 1976 city ordinance aimed at "hawkers and peddlers" restricts selling times from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

CITY CLERK JANET Vaught said the ordinance was enacted primarily to control door-to-door salespeople in residential areas. However, no provision was included in the ordinance allowing vendors to operate in the downtown area after 8 p.m.

Vendors are required to purchase licenses from the city costing $150 each year. She said if vendors ask, they are informed of the times which they can operate. Vaught said the vendors are told that the police have not enforced the ordinance, but she said they are also warned that the times may be enforced in the future.

Koeinick said his sales

Jim McFadden is one of the bagel vendors whose business will be affected by the enforcement of an ordinance prohibiting street sales after 8 p.m.

"increased tremendously" Wednesday night after police asked the street vendors to leave. He said restaurants funnel money back to the community through taxes, building upkeep and employee wages and are an important part of the Strip's economic health.

Street vendors were starting to threaten that health, he said.

TWO OTHER restaurant owners sympathized with Koeinick. John Karayiannis, co-owner of El Greco's restaurant, 516 S. Illinois Ave., said while he neither agrees nor disagrees with the city's enforcement of the ordinance, it's still important to consider the effect street vendors have on restaurants.

Joe Frick, owner of Booby's, 406 S. Illinois Ave., said something should be done about the increasing number of vendors, but the city's current ordinance isn't the best answer. A better idea would be to let the vendors on the street after 11 p.m., he said.

Larry Anderson, owner of Paghai's pizza parlor at 515 S. Illinois Ave., said he doesn't think the street vendors had any affect on his business.

"They didn't bother us," said Anderson. "In fact, when we started selling slices, we probably cut into their business."

"It was my livelihood," said Jim McFadden, who has been selling bagels for two and a half years. "I don't know what I'm going to do."

McFadden said he could not make a living from selling bagels during the day since most sales come later at night. He said the city acted "dishonorably" by enforcing the ordinance without first giving the bagel vendors enough time to finish selling their stock.

McFadden added, however, that a conflict between street vendors and restaurant owners was inevitable as the number of vendors increased.

Larry Gilbert, who has been coming from Cartersville to sell bagels for almost two years, said he and McFadden will get together with another bagel seller and see what can be done about changing the ordinance.

Brief riot fails to stop plans for execution

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — Convicts staged a bloody riot Thursday to support condemned killer James Briley, but a federal judge rejected a last-minute appeal to keep Briley from following his brother to Virginia's electric chair.

Nine guards and one inmate were injured in rioting that erupted at the State Penitentiary as prisoners — some armed with sharpened instruments and clubs — returned to their cells from breakfast. The disturbance was crushed in 15 minutes, said Corrections Director Allyn Sielaff.

The riot did not interrupt preparations for Briley's scheduled execution at 11 p.m. EST for killing Judy Bargon and her 5-year-old son — two of 12 murders committed in 1979 by the feared Briley brothers and their gang.

Virginia's Supreme Court rejected a plea Thursday to halt Briley's execution in the same electric chair where his older brother, Linwood, died last Oct. 12.

Defense attorney Gerald Zerkin then asked U.S. District Judge Dorch Warriner to halt the execution, saying he had an affidavit from a female convict that would prove Briley, 28, was framed.

Briley's lawyers said inmate Priscilla Scarborough had signed a statement claiming inmate Duncan Meekins told her he committed the execution-style murders of Barton and her son, Harvey.

$80,000 face-lift for city is OK, but...

AS CARBONDALE CITY COUNCIL and Undergraduate Student Organization candidates have told us, the condition of many of the city's rental properties are of substandard quality. This is nothing new to Carbondale dwellers who must suffer through drafty windows and leaky roofs.

But for lower-income families in the city, relief may soon be on the way. The Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs, in conjunction with the Housing and Urban Development Department's Rental Rehabilitation Program, is allocating $80,000 to the city, to be used in an effort to shape up some of Carbondale's woeful rental units.

Final approval of the project is to be decided at Monday's City Council meeting. If passed, the city might be ready to begin accepting applications for upkeep and repair work by about May 1.

Under the arrangement, Carbondale landlords would have to come up with the private financing to cover at least half of the money needed for the restoration of a particular rental.

ONE LOOK AT SOME OF THE RENTAL PROPERTIES in Carbondale and it becomes readily apparent why such a grant is justifiable. Indeed, double or even triple the amount allocated could be put to good use. Nor would it be difficult to build a case that the rentals occupied by SIUC students are in need of work; but the wording of the HUD grant is explicit: 70 percent of the funds must go toward rental units occupied by low and moderate income families.

According to Jane Hughes, director of the city division of renewal and housing, students shouldn't hold their breath waiting for similar federally funded projects to fall in their lap.

In fact, Hughes theorizes that, given the present political climate in Washington D.C., any such renewal and rehabilitation projects will find it difficult, if not impossible to gain approval. Funding for 1985 has been allocated, but Hughes entertains serious doubts as to whether the program will receive further funding for fiscal '86.

The future of many of the federal government's social service programs is in jeopardy, because of the national budget deficit. The monies that flow from the federal government to the state and then to the community are going to be scarce.

Upgrading the city's substandard rental properties is fine — and needed — but Carbondale citizens should be aware that in the long run, $80,000 will by no means cure all of the city's rental housing ills; it may be a long time before $80,000 in federal money finds its way here again.

Swinburne, integrity needed now more than ever before

From where I stand, and from what I read in the newspapers, allowing Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, to relinquish the responsibility for intercollegiate athletics may have been premature.

The contents of a cat's litter box useful in teaching parking etiquette

IT WAS a question of etiquette, the kind that city dwellers often must confront.

My friend, the blonde, had arrived home from work to find a strange car parked in front of her driveway. That happens from time to time in her neighborhood, which is part of Yuppiesville.

People drive in from the suburbs and other neighborhoods to visit the popular restaurants, bars and theaters. Although there's a big parking lot nearby that charges a reasonable $3 for the evening, many people find it a challenge to avoid using it.

Unable to use her own driveway, my friend drove to the parking lot, paid $3, and walked home. Then we discussed possible ways to tell the owner of the car, which was new and expensive and had a suburban vehicle sticker on the windshield, that parking in front of somebody's driveway is inconsiderate.

"I suppose we could ask the police to come out and write a ticket," she said.

YES, BUT it's the busiest time of the evening for them and we really shouldn't divert them from the more important task of chasing fiends. Besides, they probably wouldn't come.

"Well, why don't I write a note and put it under the windshield?"

We discussed possible forms the note might take.

Dear Visitor: You have parked in front of a private driveway. That is inconsiderate. Please don't do it again. Sincerely yours, the driveway owner.

So we thought about something a bit more emphatic.

Dear Jerk: If you ever block this driveway, gain, I will get a brick and cave in your windshield.

That was a little more soul-

Mike Royko

satisfying. But, realistically, it was meaningless. The odds were probably 10,000-to-1 that the jerk would ever come back and park precisely in that same spot. And he'd probably just glance at the note, snicker, toss it away and feel good.

Jerks are proud of their jerkishness. They glory in it. That's what makes them jerks.

IN FACT, there was nothing we could say in a note that would make any impression. When somebody parks in front of a driveway, they know what they're doing. But they just don't care.

"Then I guess I'll just overlook it," she said.

No, we couldn't do that. The reason civilizations collapse is that such things are overlooked. Rome went under when people began leaving their chariots all over the place. We had to do something to let him know he should mend his jerkish ways.

"What do you suggest?" "Well, we could puncture his tires with an ice pick. But that would be a criminal act. Besides, nobody owns ice picks anymore.

Then there is the old syrup trick. When I had my own driveway, it was sometimes obstructed. I found that Aunt Jemima syrup on the windshield conveyed a strong message. Especially on a chilly day, when it would congeal.

But she didn't have any syrup. She had some orange marmalade, but wanted to save it for breakfast.

I MENTIONED that it was too bad she didn't have a big dog. A friend of mine had a big dog, and when somebody blocked his garage, he would look around his backyard and find a few odds and ends left by the dog and place them on the windshield.

One night his doorbell rang and a man was on the front porch angrily shouting, "Did you put that --- on my windshield?"

My friend opened the door, and while holding his large, snarling dog by the collar, advanced and said, "No, he did. Care to try for stitches?" "A care thought, but I don't have a dog," the blonde said.

Ah, but she has a couple of cats. Which means that she has a Kitty Litter box. And that means...

I quickly went around to the alley and checked the garbage can to see if the most recently filled plastic bag was still in it. It was.

Oh, it made a fine message. Especially since the car had those recessed windshield wipers. I don't know how somebody goes about digging used Kitty Litter out of such places. I imagine he would need a manicure.

So, I have to apologize for having once written that cats are useless. I have finally found a practical use for them.

And if the owner of that car didn't get the message and is tempted to repeat his foolishness, go ahead. But a warning: I have a friend who works at the zoo. A loan from the elephants could be arranged.

Collective bargaining on the horizon

By David Liss
Staff Writer

Collective bargaining for faculty and staff at institutions of higher education has existed for less than 20 years, according to one union. Yet in that time it has spread to more than 400 schools and systems.

With the passage of the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Act on Sept. 23, 1983, and its activation on Jan. 1, 1984, faculty collective bargaining may become a reality within the SIU system, as three unions continue pushing for an election.

What does collective bargaining mean, and how will it effect SIU-C?

Union activists see it as a chance for equity and an opportunity to solve existing problems. Others feel it will make little difference, and some feel it will damage existing faculty and staff rights. These differing opinions will all become focal points for argument as a possible collective bargaining election draws nearer.

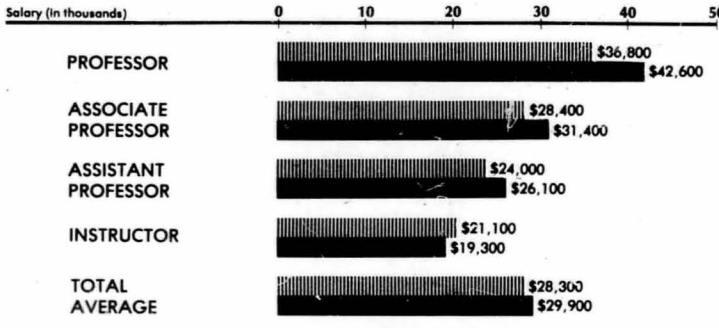

"THE FUNDAMENTAL reason behind collective bargaining," said Herbert Donow, professor of English at SIU-C, is to "achieve the process where decisions are made bilaterally rather than unilaterally."

Donow is the president of the University Professionals of SIU, which is affiliated with the Illinois Federation of Teachers, part of the American Federation of Teachers, an AFL-CIO organization.

Collective bargaining is "a method of bilateral decision-making in which members of the faculty and administration determine the conditions of employment ... through direct negotiations," according to the National Education Association Almanac.

Such bargaining would give faculty the "power base" to work with the administration, said Michael Altekruise, professor in guidance and educational psychology at SIU-C.

Altekruise represents the United Faculty Association on campus. The UFA is affiliated with the Illinois Education Association, which is part of the National Education Association.

BEFORE THE Illinois Educational Labor Relations Act was passed, faculty at state universities and colleges had to rely on their governing boards to grant permission to hold a collective bargaining election.

Five Illinois schools under the Board of Governors got that permission in 1976 when former Gov. Dan Walker made two appointments to the Board with the understanding that they support a collective bargaining election, Donow said.

Faculty at those schools — Eastern Illinois, Western Illinois and Northeastern Illinois universities and Chicago State and Governors State universities — voted in favor of collective bargaining in 1976.

However, a move by SIU faculty in 1977 to allow a collective bargaining election was defeated by the Board of Trustees, which decided to "await General Assembly approval of a collective bargaining law ... before engaging in such a relationship with faculty," according to a board agenda.

SUCH A LAW was finally passed in 1983, and since then three unions have jumped into the ring. The University Professionals of SIU, the United Faculty Association and the American Association of University Professors have all started petitions to bring a collective bargaining election to SIU.

Low faculty salaries stand out as the major problem facing these potential collective bargaining agents.

Salaries at SIU are below the average of other Category I public institutions, according to information gathered by the American Association of University Professors. Category I institutions are those which grant a minimum of thirty doctoral-level degrees in at least three doctoral-level programs.

According to the AUP entry-level salaries at SIU are very competitive, but higher-ranked faculty fall in the bottom 20 percent.

COLLECTIVE bargaining would have little impact on faculty salaries, SIU-C President Albert Somit said.

To increase funding "you've got to bargain with the authority who is responsible" for allocating that funding, Somit said. "Our funding comes from Springfield."

Unlike states such as New York and California, where state school systems bargain directly with the governor and the legislature to establish master contracts, he said, there is no current provision in Illinois legislature for systems to bargain directly.

However, Arlene Tobias, representative for the National Education Association, said the lobbying power of unions would be an advantage.

The lobbying power of unions such as the Illinois Education Association and the Illinois Federation of Teachers "would give the University legislative clout," Tobias said.

A COLLECTIVE bargaining agent would also be working with the Board and the administration to reallocate present funds and place them where they could be better spent, Altekruise said.

A collective bargaining agent could improve the distribution of merit pay as well, he said, by setting into a contract a standard evaluation procedure similar to a plan recently approved by the Faculty Senate.

"We would probably take (that plan) one step further and put some safeguards into the evaluation process," he said.

Collective bargaining can also strengthen grievance procedures, Altekruise said.

The Faculty Senate is currently working on establishing new grievance procedures, he said, but "many faculty feel its not worth the effort because on the final analysis the administration can turn (the grievance) down."

Under collective bargaining, the grievance policy would be set into the contract, he said.

Another concern of the potential collective bargaining agents is providing greater faculty input into University governance.

ALL THREE union representatives agreed that the SIU-C Faculty Senate does a good job representing faculty interests, yet "I think there have been times when it did a good job that was ignored at the next level," said Emil Spees, associate professor in higher education. Spees is the head of the SIU-C chapter of the American Association of University Professors.

Academic and education decisions should be made by faculty and administration together, Donow said. "It's not shared governance when one side advises and the other decides. It's shared when the two parties negotiate and reach a decision."

However, there are disadvantages to faculty working under contracts, said Gola Waters, professor in finance at SIU-C.

Collective bargaining could "potentially inhibit the input and effectiveness of the Faculty Senate as a representative board," Waters said.

Collective bargaining could also be a disadvantage to administrative and professional staff if they were included in the same bargaining unit, said Terry Mathias, assistant director of university relations.

"A large section of the administrative and professional staff would fall under the managerial category," Mathias said, which, according to the Illinois act, are not eligible to be represented in collective bargaining.

Union representatives optimistic on qualifying

By David Liss
Staff Writer

It appears likely that a collective bargaining election will be held at SIU, say two union leaders, as their petitions draw closer to the required number of signatures.

And if so, three unions will be vying to become sole bargaining agents for SIU.

Herbert Donow, president of the University Professionals of SIU, said his union is close to its goal of 600 signatures.

Unions must gain the signatures of 30 percent of its proposed bargaining unit before filing a petition with the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Board, according to the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Act.

Donow said his union's goal of 600 signatures constitutes 50 percent of its proposed bargaining unit.

The UP-SIU is affiliated with the Illinois Federation of Teachers, which is part of the American Federation of

Herbert Donow

Teachers, an AFL-CIO organization.

Closing in fast is the United Faculty Association, affiliated with the Illinois Education Association, which is part of the National Education Association. The UFA is "very close" to its goal of about 340 signatures, said Michael Altekruise, the association's representative on campus.

Due to differences in the proposed bargaining units, his union does not need as many signatures as the University Professionals, Altekruise said.

A third union, the American Association of University Professors, began its petition later than the others, starting only last week, Emil Spees said. Spees is the head of the SIU-C chapter of the AUP.

However, Spees said he "would expect that if either of those groups reaches 30 percent the AUP would have no problem getting 15 or even 30 percent."

If one union gets the signatures of 30 percent of its proposed unit, the other unions need only 15 percent to act as intervenors and get on an election ballot, according to the Illinois Educational Labor Relations Act.

Group mixes dance, culture

The African Heritage Dance Troupe does more than just dance. Its members, who range in age from 3 to 19, study all aspects of African life, including African history and poetry. In the words of its founder and director Safiyah Chauvin, "we just don't come in and shake our booty."

The St. Louis-based troupe, which will perform at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Lutheran Center as part of the Africa Week festivities, was founded in 1973 after Chauvin had visited several African countries.

Chauvin said she founded the troupe because she felt it was necessary for black American youth to know more about their ancestral home than the prevalent negative images supplied by the film industry.

"I found out that many of the youths are ashamed of their African heritage because they think Africans are like what they see on 'Tarzan,'" she said.

Many of the youths are already familiar with the African moves in the dances Chauvin teaches them. According to Chauvin, many of the popular American dances have roots in African dance. She cites as an example the Chicken, a popular black dance of ten years ago, which she said is a direct descendant of the Ghanaian "aduwa" dance.

The troupe is an independent organization, and therefore must raise money on its own to travel to various engagements around the country. Any extra money it accrues is put into a scholarship fund for its members.

The African Heritage Troupe has visited New York and Washington, D.C., and has performed at all the universities and colleges in the St. Louis and Southern Illinois area.

Capt. Dennis Linn of the Air Force ROTC works on a painting in his home studio.

Air Force ROTC captain finds artistic freedom in the military

By Belinda Edmondson
Staff Writer

Dennis Linn does not fit the mold. A slight man with a boyish face, a homey sense of humor and a real passion for the French Impressionists, Linn might be taken for any other fine arts undergraduate — until one spots the close-cropped hair and the sky-blue military uniform. Dennis Linn, man of contradictions, is a captain in the Air Force ROTC and an artist.

How does an artist wind up in the Air Force and actually like it? In fact, Linn was drafted into the Air Force, but decided to remain after his enlistment was up.

He says his reasons for staying were a mixture of genuine like for his job and practical considerations: he has a wife and five children to support.

"I need the medical benefits that the Air Force gives me that I couldn't get working only as an artist," said Linn, who explained that one of his children recently had an expensive operation.

Linn believes that working in the Air Force will eventually help his career, though the constant moving has often been to his detriment.

Several of his paintings have been accepted into the national Air Force Art Collection at the Pentagon, and Linn recently landed a position of professor of fine arts at the Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, which he will assume this July.

Linn is excited about his upcoming position because it gives him a chance to infuse Air Force recruits with an appreciation for the arts, something he has often found lacking in the Air Force ROTC curricula.

Describing his style as Abstract Naturalism — a term he coined — Linn has been influenced by a myriad of painting styles, including the Impressionists, the Post-Impressionists and the Abstract Expressionists.

Abstract Naturalism, said Linn, is a method of fracturing the shapes and colors of the object being painted until it takes on a new texture and form.

Except for his biblical pictures, Linn mostly paints scenes from nature, a preference he attributes to his love for animals and nature.

What does Linn plan to do in future? According to him, make it big.

"I want to do a painting that everyone wants to own," he said enthusiastically. "I'm really confident in myself; I know I can make it."

Final play scheduled

Oscar Wilde's 19th century classic comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest," will be staged as the final production of the season at STU-C's McLeod Theater April 25-28.

Performances Thursday through Saturday will begin at 8 p.m. and Sunday's performance will be at 2 p.m. Appearing in the play will be Carbondale native Lawrence Dennis, professor of educational leadership, and Clinton resident Thomas Moss, senior in radio-television. Tickets are available at the McLeod Theater box office and cost $4 and $5.

Recently an ad (from another paper) was singled out on Late Night with David Letterman by the man himself. Apparently the ad promoted the appearance of this weeks band, Area Code 618, at a club in a nearby Southern Illinois town. Dave remarked that "This town is so stupid they have to advertise their own area code!" We'd like to say something funny about the band, but these guys have no sense of humor. T-shirt counterfeiters face lawsuit

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Counterfeiters selling millions of dollars worth of fake USA for Africa T-shirts and other merchandise were sued in federal court Thursday for the "moral crime" of stealing from starving Ethiopians.

In a message to bootleggers nationwide that "we're out to get them," USA for Africa attorney Jay Cooper said the suit against seven Southern California manufacturers and retailers was the start of a bigger effort that could save millions of dollars for the famine victims.

"These bootleggers and infringers are taking from the mouths and the bodies of the people of Africa," said Cooper, saying private detectives throughout the country are gathering evidence against other counterfeiters.

"These bootleggers are not stealing from Lionel Richie. They are not stealing from Michael Jackson. They are stealing from the people of Africa. That is a moral crime, not only a legal crime."

The suit, claiming copyright and trademark infringement, unfair competition and violation of the right of publicity, seeks an injunction preventing the sale or manufacture of unauthorized merchandise.

Defendants included United

Sportswear, Choi's T-Shirts and Gifts, Here 'n' Now, Progressive Distributors Inc., doing business as Chicken-shirt, Dreams, Market Store and Energy Stores Inc., plus 500 John Does.

"This is only the beginning," Cooper said. "Two million dollars could have been lost in illegal sales, but I'm going to guess it's a lot more."

The entire USA for Africa effort — the single "We Are The World," an album and video, plus T-shirts, buttons and other items — has so far raised $35 million, the group said.

Cooper conceded the slowness of getting related merchandise into stores may have been a contributing factor to the plethora of phony items.

The counterfeit clothing line carries the trademark USA for Africa logo with a shaft of wheat in the first "A" of Africa, but Cooper said the official logo on the authorized clothing, which will soon be available, has the wheat shaft in the second "A."

"We're finding bootleg merchandise in Beverly Hills and Westwood (Los Angeles) and in major department stores in Florida, New York, Chicago, Detroit, Phoenix, Tucson, San Francisco," Cooper said.

He said the counterfeit products appear to have been manufactured by individuals or small operators, with one exception.

"There's one that's so organized that it has an 800 number," he said. "They've taken us out. It's an organization in Wisconsin. They've already put out catalogues."

One rival shirt maker who has sold 800 shirts is contributing a portion of the profit to Operation California, a bona fide California charity.

The "USA for Africa" album rose to the top of the Billboard LP charts this week, its second in release.

Jayne Thompson adjusts to life with governor

CHICAGO (UPI) — Jayne Thompson wants to discuss "in some depth" with her husband whether he should seek a record fourth term as governor of Illinois in 1986, but she insists the decision is his alone.

She also insists that she doesn't have strong feelings one way or the other on whether he should run again.

But she is very proud of his accomplishments and not so comfortable with her title of First Lady of Illinois. Those were among insights into Jayne Carr Thompson's life gained from a recent interview with the Decatur Herald and Review.

Jayne Carr Thompson, 39, a lawyer in the Illinois attorney general's office when she married Republican James Thompson during the first gubernatorial campaign, says there have been a lot of adjustments to make during their eight-year marriage.

The couple met when Thompson was an assistant professor at Northwestern law school and she was a student. They announced their engagement on Thompson's 40th birthday, May 8, 1976, and married during his campaign against Secretary of State Michael Howlett.

"I would be foolish to try to tell people it wasn't difficult," she said about the marriage. "But I think we were both fortunate because of our backgrounds in the sense that we were used to long work hours and very goal-oriented work habits...so I probably wasn't as upset with his long hours as someone else who was used to having her husband home at six o'clock for dinner."

She says they also keep in touch by telephone several times a day when they talk about their family and their work.

Ceremony given in Capitol to honor Holocaust victims

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The solemn tones of the ancient Hebrew prayer for the dead echoed Thursday under the soaring dome where America traditionally pays its highest honors and last respects to fallen presidents and national heroes.

But this time it was victims who were being remembered in the great rotunda of the U.S. Capitol: the 6 million Jews and uncounted millions of other Europeans who were murdered in the Nazi Holocaust that ended 40 years ago when Allied troops began liberating the German death camps.

The administration sent Secretary of State George Shultz to say "Never again" to the aging band of concentration camp survivors and several hundred spectators who attended the "Days of Remembrance" ceremony at the Capitol.

The ceremony was designed also to honor the 10 U.S. Army divisions that took part in the liberation of the concentration camps in the spring of 1945. The Army turned over the brightly colored divisional battle flags of the units that overran the camps for the Holocaust museum to be built in Washington.

The erect young soldiers who marched into the rotunda with the flags joined the bent and fragile concentration camp survivors as the ceremony wound down with the plaintive recitation of the Kaddish, the prayer with which pious Jews remember their dead.

The drama was heightened by the obvious anger of the participants about President Reagan's insistence on visiting a German Army cemetery where a number of Waffen SS troops are buried during his European trip next month.

The dismay was made clear early when Mark Talisman, vice chairman of the U.S. Holocaust Commission, opened the ceremony by calling it "unthinkable to pay homage to these criminals."

Sigmund Strochlitz, a white-haired Auschwitz survivor, said refusal to cancel the Reagan visit for fear of offending the present German government was "an insult" to all who died fighting the Nazis or at their hands and "aids those who say... Holocaust never took place."

But it was council chairman Elie Wiesel who laid the sharpest lash.

Addressing his remarks to Shultz, who was sitting behind him, Wiesel said, "We look with understanding upon our government's efforts to deal with German sensibilities."

But, he asked, "Did no one consider the pain and the shame some of us not most Americans, would feel upon learning that the president of the United States, for whom we have genuine affection and admiration, plans to visit a cemetery in which there are a good number of SS graves?"

"Have our policy planners forgotten what SS stands for?" he asked. "They were the killers of Jews primarily, but not only of Jews. They butchered Poles and Czechs, French and Dutch, Norwegians and Danes, Yugoslavs, Ukrainians, Greeks, Gypsies and gays; Auschwitz was a universe and the SS were its gods."

Sirens and silence mark Holocaust day

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israelis stood at attention as sirens wailed throughout Jerusalem Thursday to honor the 6 million Jews murdered in the Holocaust. Israeli leaders lashed out at President Reagan for agreeing to visit Nazi war graves.

As sirens sounded at 8 a.m. to mark Holocaust remembrance day, the normal bustle of life in Jerusalem came to a grinding halt for two minutes.

Pedestrians immediately stopped in their tracks and stood at attention. Drivers braked their cars and let them idle in the heart of Jerusalem, snarling traffic during the morning rush hour.

In schools, memorial services for Jews slain in Adolf Hitler's Nazi extermination camps began at the sound of the sirens.

Israeli officials were not appeased by Reagan's decision to visit a concentration camp in West Germany next month as well as the Bitburg cemetery, where some members of the Third Reich's elite SS units are buried.

"The president is a true friend of the Jewish people and a great friend of Israel, but whoever proposed that he visit the cemetery greatly misled him," said former president Yitzhak Navon, now deputy prime minister and the education minister.

"You can't visit a concentration camp and pay tribute to the murderers at the same time," he told Israel radio.

Members of the Knesset, or parliament, criticized Reagan's reasoning that the cemetery visit was to honor West Germany's democracy 40 years after the end of World War II in Europe.

The cemetery is not part of today's democracy, said Knesset member Haika Grossman, who fought against the Nazis in the Bialystock ghetto in Poland. "The cemetery is of soldiers of the Third Reich."

Letter reveals poison plan against Germans

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — U.S. military experts considered poisoning 500,000 Germans during World War II with radioactive food, according to a letter released Friday from A-bomb father J. Robert Oppenheimer to Italian-born physicist Enrico Fermi.

Oppenheimer wrote to Fermi, who was working in Chicago, on May 25, 1943, about the plan to poison the Germans' food with radioactive strontium.

There is no evidence the plan was ever carried out.

Oppenheimer, who was in charge of the Manhattan Project — the top secret atomic bomb development team — recommended that Fermi delay work on the plan until some of the technical problems could be worked out.

"I should recommend delay if that is possible," said Oppenheimer in the letter. "In this connection I think that we should not attempt a plan unless we can poison food sufficient to kill a half a million men, since there is no doubt that the actual number affected will, because of non-uniform distribution, be much smaller than this."

Barton J. Bernstein, a history professor at Stanford University who discovered the letter, said he was not sure why Oppenheimer requested a delay.

"Oppenheimer may have been trying to establish a nearly impossible standard of lethality as a way of gently blocking the plan on technical grounds without directly raising moral objections," said Bernstein.

Bernstein discussed his finding in Technology Review, a magazine published by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Prof works to find chemicals that aid memory

By John Dyslin
Staff Writer

If someone was asked what a mummychog is, chances are he wouldn't know. His mind would immediately know that mummychog is not stored in his memory.

However, if he was told that it eats sea plants, lives in the water, swims and has gills he probably would say that a mummychog is a fish — which it is.

If he was to hear mummychog again one week later, his memory would recognize it and he might even remember that a mummychog is a fish. One year from now, chances are he wouldn't remember that but his mind would try to recall it. This is all a part of the process of memory.

"One of the greatest unanswered questions in science is what changes in the mind when you learn something," Robert Jensen, assistant professor in psychology, said.

Jensen, who came to SIU-C in 1981, has researched the biology of memory since the 1960s. He now works with five people led by graduate student Larry Wichlinski.

The goal of the research is to understand the neurobiological memory storage, Jensen said. There are several memory storage theories. One is that there are chemicals in the brain that store memory. Another is that there are a group of cells that interact with one another.

"All of this has to do with the enhancement of the passage of electrochemical impulses through certain pathways through the brain," Jensen said.

Memories of different experiences, he said, are coded in different strengths. The memory selects the important from the unimportant. Jensen refers to this as memory consolidation. It is also the transfer from short term to long term storage.

Jensen's also wants to find out what chemicals can enhance the ability to remember. One chemical under research is called beta carboloyne. Jensen said that preliminary evidence indicates that it enhances memory, but has its drawbacks.

Wichlinski said the beta carboloyne derivative that is being tested on rats causes anxiety, increases the heart rate, blood pressure and stress-related compounds into the bloodstream. He said that it was tested on a human once and because of the anxiety it produced, it will never be done again.

The relationship between anxiety and memory is also being researched. Wichlinski said there may be overlapping of substrates or circuits for each anxiety and memory in the brain.

Beta carboloyne may be similar to a chemical compound in the brain, Wichlinski said. The presence of that compound makes the brain more vigilant, attentive and prepared for dangers.

"Hopefully, if it does enhance memory we will be able to perfect a similar drug that enhances memory without the increase in anxiety," Wichlinski said. "However, that may not be possible."

Jensen said the brain seems to work with similar substances and researchers are wondering if these naturally occurring substances may be playing a role in the modulation of memory storage. He said that if that is the case, then these substances may enable pharmaceutical companies to develop effective medication for some memory and certain types of mental retardation.

The extent that memory can be improved is being tested in the laboratory on rats. Two tasks are currently being used. One is a mild foot shock in a darkened area and the other is water reward.

In the first case, Wichlinski said they are trying to find out how long the animal takes to learn to avoid the area of the shock which is called inhibitory avoidance. Beta carboloyne is given to the rat after the experiment to find out if it has any affect on its memory capacity.

The second task involves a T-maze that has a water bottle at either the right or left side of the T. The task for the rat is to learn which side the water is on. Again, the chemical is given after the task has been completed.

Wichlinski said one problem with the experiments is that the rats are remembering too well. He said the trick is to make the experiments progressively more difficult, but not too difficult that the rat can't learn.

Since the research started, three memory processes have been learned. Jensen said that memory is not a single unitary process, but a multiple parallel system.

S-Senate gives $25,000 in fee allocations

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

The Student Senate Wednesday gave 17 Registered Student Organizations more than $25,000 in fee allocations.

The only RSO funding for the 1985-86 school year discussed was $3,600 allocated to the SIUC Forestry Club. Mark Skowronski, of the Finance Committee, said the original $1,500 given to the club was a "realistic amount" of money for a Midwestern Foresters' Conclave.

THE COST OF housing participants from 27 schools during the convention, said Senator Mark Case, will be about $12,000. The Student Senate finally agreed to give the club $3,000 for several reasons, including the academic standing of the School of Agriculture. The school rates as one of the nation's top 10.

Fee allocations to RSOs for the 1985-86 school year total $218,969.

In other action, the Senate passed resolutions urging a reconsideration of the

S-Senate rejects Reagan ban

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

While most of Wednesday's Student Senate meeting focused on fee allocations, one resolution brought the woes of presidential proposals to the attention of the SIUC senators.

East Campus Senator Victor A. Cesario wrote and submitted a resolution to bar Ronald Wilson Reagan from our campus.

Cesario wrote that President Reagan has "shown that he is the enemy of our University and our student population and should be barred from our campus and any event related to our University."

Cesario said he submitted the resolution because he said Reagan has ignored students' well-being and he wanted to call attention to it. He said he's disappointed that the resolution did not pass.

"I don't think they (students) want him here," Cesario said in a phone interview. "My constituents showed great support in not having him on campus," he said.

The resolution, after being amended to include Nancy Reagan, failed to receive passing votes from more than half of the 25 senators at the meeting.

elimination of the Woody Hall cafeteria and opposing the fall mid-semester break. Also, two resolutions seeking more effective use of on-campus parking were passed.

SENATOR Michael Majchrowitz submitted the resolution urging the SIUC Board of Trustees to "reconsider a hastily made decision" to convert the Woody Hall cafeteria into a reception area.

"The cafeteria serves an average of 3,000 people per week and brings in more than $3,600 gross revenue during normal school sessions," Majchrowitz said. The elimination of the cafeteria would also displace student and civil service workers, he said.

THE SENATE voted 24-1 to oppose the proposed fall mid-semester break. Senator Bob Jones presented results of a survey taken on East Campus which showed that 445 of 568 students polled oppose the break-up of the Thanksgiving vacation.

Case and Jones also presented arguments that students, especially agriculture students and those from Chicago, would not be able to afford going home twice a semester. Jones also said University Housing would have to be kept open and staffed for an extra four days, causing housing bills to go up.

The Senate also passed two resolutions submitted by Majchrowitz dealing with the availability of on-campus parking. The resolutions stated that 9,105 red parking decals are issued for 4,598 designated stalls.

THE OVERCROWDING problem, he said, could be rectified by redesignating the overnight parking stalls in Lot 4, across from the Communications Building, to stalls in Lot 23, near Thompson Woods.

The resolutions requested that cars with overnight parking decals be restricted to overnight stalls between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. with the exception of several lots on Thompson Point and along Thompson Point Drive.

Vatican denies giving approval of U.S. activities in Nicaragua

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — The Vatican Thursday denied President Reagan's claim that Pope John Paul II sent him a "verbal message" endorsing U.S. activities in Nicaragua and the rest of Central America.

In a carefully worded statement, chief Vatican spokesman Joaquin Navarro Valls made it clear that the Roman Catholic Church remains ready to mediate the conflict between Nicaragua's leftist government and U.S.-backed rebels.

But Navarro Valls said the pope did not send Reagan any message that could be interpreted as an endorsement of U.S. policy in the region. Papal backing on such a political question would be highly unusual.

The controversy arose from statements Reagan made Tuesday to a group of religious leaders at the White House.

"I just had a verbal message delivered to me from the pope urging us to continue our efforts in Central America," Reagan told the group.

On Wednesday, the president said the pope "has been most supportive of all our activities in Central America."

The pope Saturday addressed six U.S. senators, led by Senate Majority leader Robert Dole, R-Kansas.

Dole delivered a personal letter from Reagan, dated April 5, which the senator said outlined "U.S. policy on arms control and Central America."

In his remarks, made public by the Vatican after the audience, the pope did not discuss U.S. policy and described himself as "a friend of the American people" who, he said, "have a special mission of service in the world."

"There are no further messages from the holy father," Navarro Valls said.

"There was no specific reference to Nicaragua in the holy father's address to the senators. Thus, one cannot interpret this as an answer to Reagan's letter."

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan and the Vatican were saying "the same thing" and that "the president was speaking in very general terms."

Referring to the Vatican announcement, Speakes said, "You will see in their statement support for the president's plan for peace in the region and that's what I said and that's what the president said" Tuesday and Wednesday.

Reagan has proposed a cease-fire and talks with Nicaragua's Sandinista government if Congress approves $14 million in "humanitarian" aid for anti-Sandinista rebels — known as Contras — but has warned the funds would be used for weapons if the talks fail.

USO: Election results being withheld

of the election beforehand.

"I think we're perpetuating problems if we allow them to make decisions about incidents which happened prior to the election with knowledge of the election results in mind," Lowrey said.

Appleman said he had mixed feelings about the issue. On the one hand, students will want to know the outcome of the election, and that information should be made available to them, he said.

On the other hand, he said he wonders what kind of effect the release of the results might have on the Phoenix Party's appeal.

BRANTLEY SAID at about 6:30 p.m. Thursday that he had not yet received any letter requesting that election results be tabulated and announced Thursday night and that he could not predict when the announcement would be made.

Announcement of the winner of the Student Trustee election, in which only Andy Leighton ran, would be announced late Thursday night, Brantley said.

The withholding of the USO election results was not the only cloudy detail in what should have been the final day of a campaign and election characterized by confusion.

Several polls, which were scheduled to open at 7 a.m. Thursday, opened late, and so were kept open beyond their scheduled closing time of 7 p.m. to compensate for the lost time, Brantley said.

Warplanes, skydivers to drop by during fly-in

By Thomas Mangan
Staff Writer

Warbirds are coming to Carbondale

These "birds" are actually U.S. and German World War II military aircraft. They will be landing and performing at Southern Illinois Airport Saturday for a "fly-in" celebrating the 20th anniversary of the SIU-C Aviation Technology program.

Alpha Eta Rho aviation fraternity and The Rotor and Wing Association of America are sponsoring the fly-in. Some of the planes due to arrive Saturday include the P-40 Warhawk that the late John Belushi flew in the movie "1941," and a Wildcat fighter flown in the movie "Midway."

Former SIU-C aviation technology student Tom Frasca and his father, Rudy, will be flying the P-40, the Wildcat and two World War II trainers. The four planes flying in to Carbondale on Saturday are part of a multi-million dollar collection of rare antique aircraft that the Frasca keep in a museum in Champaign.

Aircraft collector John T. Baugh of Nashville, Tenn., will bring his German Messerschmitt ME-108, a trainer for the WW II ME-109 fighter. Baugh is also planning to fly in his P-51 Mustang. The two planes will fly in a mock dogfight, much like the two planes might have been involved in during the war.

Other events planned include a parachute jumping exhibition by the SIU-C skydiving club and a rap-elling demonstration by the U.S. Army Pathfinders Jump Team, which plans to rappel to the ground from a hovering helicopter.

The army is also sending UH-60 Blackhawk and UH-1 Huey helicopters along with the jump team. The Air Force is sending a giant C-130 transport and a C-9 aeromedical evacuation aircraft to the fly-in.

Between 50 and 100 total civilian, military and experimental aircraft are expected for the fly-in, said John Fuentes, president of the Rotor and Wing Association. Fuentes said the association is counting on a crowd of 10,000 to 15,000 to attend the show.

Sen. Paul Simon and Rep. Ken Gray have been invited to a brunch Saturday morning given in honor of the aviation technology program's anniversary. Both men could be on hand for "the air show," Fuentes said.

Saturday's festivities are the second annual fly-in organized by the Rotor and Wing Association. Last year, about 4,000 people came to the show, Fuentes said, but SIU and Pepsi-Cola Bottling Co. in Marion have pooled their support of the fly-in so that it could be put together on a larger scale this year.

The Rotor and Wing Association is a club consisting of 25 SIU-C aviation technology students, Fuentes said. The club formed in 1983, a remnant of the former SIU Helicopter Club.

'The pill' implicated in infections

NEW YORK (UPI) — Oral contraceptives may make women more susceptible to an increasingly common bacterial infection that can lead to infertility, federal researchers said Thursday.

Contrary to what doctors have thought, birth control pills are linked with an increased incidence of pelvic inflammatory disease caused by Chlamydia trachomatis, Dr. A. Eugene Washington of the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Washington and his colleagues reviewed 14 epidemiological studies of pelvic inflammatory disease, some of which had indicated that oral contraceptives protect against PID. In 12, they found a two-to-threefold increase in chlamydial infections among women using birth control pills.

About three million people a year are infected with Chlamydia, which has become the most common sexually transmitted disease in the United States. Though up to 70 percent of the women do not have any symptoms, infection can spread to the upper reproductive tract and cause infertility, Washington said in a telephone interview.

Young, sexually active women with multiple sexual partners are at greatest risk for chlamydial infection, said Washington, and tend not to use barrier birth control methods that would prevent exposure to bacteria from the partner.

Because such women often prefer oral contraceptives to barrier methods, doctors often prescribe birth control pills for them.

"But instead of protecting these young women's future fertility, we may very well be jeopardizing their fertility," Washington said.

Chlamydia grows only in a small area of cervix leading to the womb. That area is larger for some reason in women who use birth control pills and may account for the increased incidence of infection, said Washington.

Prof says 14-month-olds comprehend words

By Jeff Carl
Staff Writer

An SIU-C professor says that children begin to realize what words mean at 14 months of age.

Dennis L. Molfese is in the last year of a three-year National Science Foundation grant to study how a child's brain processes words for the first time.

Research goals, Molfese said, are to examine how babies acquire their first words and what these words mean to the infant.

His current research study — there are nine stages in all — has two steps. Step one requires going out to the child's home for two consecutive days and letting the child play with a small wooden box which has a Frisbee screwed on top.

THE FRISBEE is rigged so that every time the child touches it, the box exerts a sound, like "toe toe."

For step two, the child comes to Molfese's lab in Life Science II, where Molfese and his assistants will hook up brain transmitters to the child's head. In the lab, the children will sit and hear, from a speaker above, two sounds — the sound "toe toe," with which the child should be familiar and an unfamiliar sound, such as "gee gee."

While the child listens to the two different words, the computer connected to the brain transmitters logs the different responses. Molfese learned through previous studies that children eight to 12 months of age have similar brain responses to different words. That is, they cannot tell the difference between two words.

CURRENT TESTS with 13 to 15-month-old children, however, show that starting around 14 months of age, children begin to have different brainwaves for the different sounds, Molfese said.

A week after step two, the children are brought back to the lab to test their long-term memories. Parents get a small fee for their time, said Molfese, and more 13 to 15-month-old children are needed for the study. Interested parents may call 536-2301.

MOLFESSE SAID HE hopes to study the brainwave data and figure out things researchers have never known before, such as when do babies understand certain words and what a child thinks the meaning of a word is.

When a baby says "dog," do they mean a certain dog or all dogs in general? Molfese said he hopes to find out. He added that studying how children learn to attach meaning to words is a relatively new field.

Molfese said if he is successful at finding that certain thoughts have distinct brain waves, then it might be possible to program those brain waves into a computer. The computer might then be used by people with brain damage to accomplish certain tasks.

Workshops aid oral literature interpretation

By Paula Buckner
Staff Writer

Six Illinois colleges and universities are focusing on creative and effective performances during an SIUC Department of Speech Communication oral interpretation workshop this weekend.

The focus of the workshop, which began Thursday evening, is "interpretation of literature as opposed to dramatic materials," said Marvin Kleinau, chairman of the speech communication department. The workshops continue through Saturday afternoon.

The workshops were begun at SIUC in the mid-1960s, said Marion Kleinau, also a professor of speech communication.

"They've been passed around the state ever since," she said. This is the third year the workshops have taken place at SIUC.

About 50 students and faculty from DePaul and Northeastern universities, SIUC, Sauk Valley and Blackburn colleges, and Morehead State College in Kentucky are involved in more than 15 prose, short story and poetical presentations.

What sets the interpretation workshops apart from stage performances is the emphasis on what is said rather than the acting, Kleinau said. The discussion periods that follow each performance also make the workshops worth attending, he said.

On Friday's agenda, Tom Isbell of Ithaca College will present a workshop, "The Zen Attitude," at 8:30 a.m. Gary Ballfanz of Morehead State will direct his students in performances of "A Door," "Vietnam: An Image," "Gimple the Fool," and "An Appalachian Tale," at 10 a.m. also on Friday.

At 11 a.m., SIUC students will present "Kiss the Lip of the Sea for Me" from E.M. Broner's "A Weave of Women." Judith Casseday will direct the performance.

Jacqueline Taylor will direct DePaul students in "A Conversation with my Father" and "The Immigrant Story" at 2 p.m.

At 3 p.m., Rusalyn Andrews will direct Blackburn students in three original scripts. "Event in No.242D," "The Question," and "Thanks for the Memory," will be performed with "Chablis."

On Saturday, selections from Russell Hoban's "Riddley Walker," directed by Jerry Mathis, will be performed at 9 a.m. by students from Sauk Valley College.

"Kerouac(ky)" will be performed at 10 a.m. by students of Northeastern under the direction of Judith West.

"So You Want to be a Teacher" will be performed by students of Carbondale Community High School at 11 a.m. Director Karen Mitchell wrote the script, based on her experiences as a teacher, which won the Illinois High School Readers Theater Competition this year.

The public is invited, free of charge, to all performances and discussions in the Calipre Stage in the Communications Building.

Suspects arrested after drug seizure

By Jane Grandolfo
Staff Writer

Southern Illinois Enforcement Group agents arrested three men Wednesday who are suspected of selling cocaine and marijuana to high school students.

Agents from the Carbondale-based investigative agency and Carbondale Police Department officers reportedly seized $3,982 worth of cannabis, cocaine, pills, drug paraphernalia, and cutting agents.

Arrested were David P. Margraf, 38, of Carterville; Paul L. Ledbetter, 20, of 810 W. Mill St., Carbondale; and Donald F. Mays, 17, of Rural Route 1 in Carbondale.

Margraf and Ledbetter were charged with the possession and delivery of cannabis and possession of cocaine. Mays was charged with possession and delivery of cannabis.

All three were arrested at 2:15 p.m. at 810 W. Mill St.

SIEG director Dennis Bowman said the two-month investigation was begun after information was received that high school students had been frequenting Ledbetter's residence.

After surveilling activities at that address, Bowman said "a steady stream" of high school students were witnessed purchasing drugs.

About 23 ounces of cannabis with a street value of $2,300, 12 grams of cocaine worth about $1,200, 125 pills suspected of being controlled substances, $250 worth of drug paraphernalia including cutting agents, clips, pipes and a set of scales were seized, Bowman said.

All three were taken to Jackson County Jail to await the filing of formal charges.

Newspaper quality hurt by fear of libel suits, former judge says

By Julie Hoffman
Student Writer

Journalists have to assert their rights to protect the First Amendment, a former Illinois appellate court judge said Wednesday.

"Don't be chicken if you know you're right," Judge James C. Craven told future journalists.

Now an attorney in Springfield, Craven blamed recent U.S. Supreme Court libel decisions for causing American newspapers to turn into "meek, mousy papers."

"It'll be baby food," he said of the kinds of news that editors fearful of libel will publish.

Craven gained a reputation for being pro-newspaper on First Amendment decisions during the 17 years he served on the bench. He lost his bid as a Democrat for state supreme court justice last year.

"The First Amendment is under serious attack," he told an audience that included journalism and law students, "and you, as future journalists, have to do something about it."

'Don't be chicken if you know you're right.'

—Judge James C. Craven

The attack against newspapers, Craven said, is the decisions that are being made by the courts involving libel cases.

The cost of defense against a libel suit can ruin a newspaper.

"You may win the case," he said, "and lose the paper."

The future of journalists will be measured and determined by what they do now, he said.

"The law of libel took a step backwards as far as I'm concerned," he said, referring to a ruling for the Mobile Oil Co. against the Washington Post.

The U.S. Court of Appeals reinstated a $2.05 million damage award against the Post, because of an article that said William Tavoulaareas, Mobile Oil Co. president, had set up his son in a shipping business with Mobile Oil. The way the courts just the Post for malicious reckless disregard for the truth was determined by the "aggressiveness" of the paper, Craven said.

Another problem that journalists are faced with is that there is a natural tendency to exclude the press from courtrooms and other branches of government.

Craven said he knows many judges who have said "No camera or recorder is allowed in my courtroom," using a possessive to describe a courtroom.

The courtroom is "both yours and mine," Craven said. As another example, school board officials who have closed meetings to discuss public business do not want to be constrained by reporters.

Attention by the press to court proceedings helps protect journalists rights, along with the rights of everybody else, Craven said.

If one person's rights aren't protected, he said, nobody's are.

Women fight against war in Greenham Peace Camp

By Sarah Rohrs
Staff Writer

Men leave home to go to war. Women in England can leave home to go to the Greenham Peace Camp and work for peace, said Carol Moores.

Moores is a lawyer from Manchester, England, visiting a friend in Carbondale for three weeks. Women gathered at the Women's Studies house Wednesday to hear her talk about the peace camp and about feminism in England.

The camp began in 1981 when 24 women marched from Cardiff, Wales, to Greenham Common in Berkshire, the proposed site of 96 U.S. cruise missiles. Greenham Common is about a one-hour drive from London and was the site of a U.S. Army Air Force base in World War II.

The camp was created when four women chained themselves to a fence surrounding the common and refused to leave. It has grown since then; women from all social layers and age groups, some of whom have left behind jobs and families, stay at Greenham working for peace.

They have never left, despite the fact that the cruise, as Moores calls them, were deployed anyway in an agreement with the United States and England in November 1983.

"They're just not going away. In a sense they have lost, but in the spiritual sense, they haven't. The quest for peace is still there," Moores said.

Carol Moores

"In a way they are like a conscience for women around the world," she said of the women.

The camp is crude, especially in the wet English winters, and the women are constantly arrested and moved around by often-violent police, Moores said.

They also rely on outside help for food, firewood and clothing and devise shelters, called benders, out of twigs, stones and polyurethane, she said.

Getting media attention is important, Moores said, even though the national media have been less than favorable. The women make it a point to regularly stage protests and other gestures.

The women have danced on the missile silos and strung flowers and other decorations through the fences, she said.

Some of the protests have drawn up to 70,000 people who have joined hands and circled the camp, she said.

Moores has never stayed in the camp herself, but has brought the women food and firewood. She also sends telegrams of support, as many other people have done, she said.

The camp gives women in England much hope about the women's movement and what impact women can have on national policy, she said.

"Greenham women show that women can build a society that works. It gives women a sense of their power, power they have been forced to think they didn't have," Moores said.

Moores said that feminism in England is not as powerful a force as in the United States. English feminists have the same concerns as Americans — violence against women, equal pay for equal work and health clinics for women.

The peace movement is large and powerful because of the cruise missiles, she said.

Movie, speaker blast Agent Orange usage

By Justus Weathersby Jr.
Staff Writer

Human and agricultural dioxin contamination across the nation became the focus of a talk at Morris Library Auditorium Wednesday after a film was shown that depicted Vietnam Veterans who were exposed to a herbicide that was sprayed on foliage during the Vietnam War — Agent Orange.

The film examined the scope of Agent Orange exposure and showed children with birth defects, such as those without arms; testimonials of veterans with skin rashes covering their bodies; and other physical affects that attributed to the Agent Orange herbicide, that was used to destroy plant life in the upland forests of South Vietnam.

AFTER THE FILM, guest speaker Vince Lacey responded to questions and comments of the audience.

Lacey said the irresponsible use of herbicides in Vietnam is only a fraction of the widespread use of herbicides in America.

"We need to be more aware that we're poisoning the earth with dioxins," Lacey said.

"The birth defects in Southeast Asia are unbelievable," Lacey said, "and 10 years later there are still no trees or foliage in many areas of Southeast Asia."

Lacey said about 2.4 million Vietnam veterans have filed claims with the Veterans Administration. But the VA will not release its research data that has been ongoing for about 10 years, Lacey said.

"They take no responsibility for this problem."

HE SAID A $180 million lawsuit settlement was agreed upon this year after many years of deliberation between veterans' attorneys and the chemical companies that provided the U.S. government with more than 11 million gallons of Agent Orange and other dioxins. However, Lacey said that the settlement "will in no way compensate the veterans for their injuries."

There has been no distribution of the settlement money that was awarded the veterans as of yet because the federal court is undecided on a method that would efficiently distribute the money.

MEANWHILE, THE $180 million has been deposited in banks, he said.

About $5,000 has been authorized by the VA to be distributed to families of deceased Vietnam era veterans who filed claims. The payments will be broken down into monthly installments, he said.

"I believe the greatest crime was the fact that we were never warned about the dangers of dioxin after we returned from Vietnam," Lacey said.

"We need funds for research of health problems that have occurred," Lacey said. The larger picture is the fact that there has been increased use of commercial chemicals in recent years, "and I'm trying to help educate the people. That's my best remedy at the moment."

Men netters to face tough MVC foes

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

The SIU-C men's tennis team will face two of its most crucial matches of the season this weekend when it plays Missouri Valley Conference rivals Tulsa and Wichita State at Wichita, Kansas.

The Salukis are 10-12 after a win over Southeast Missouri State Tuesday and Coach Dick LeFevre has said the team's primary goal is to have a winning season. SIU-C has only six matches left and would have to win four of those to finish at .500.

"These are important matches for us," LeFevre said. "We know they'll be tough, but we have to think we can win both matches."

The Salukis will play Tulsa on Saturday afternoon before battling Wichita State Sunday.

Tulsa has a 9-12 record. All of the Golden Hurricane singles players have a sub-.500 record. Tulsa is led by its No. 1 doubles team of Richard Alexander and Brad Huff. They have a 12-8 record.

Wichita State is 8-11 on the year. The Shockers' top player is Andy Castle, who has a 15-6 record at No. 1 singles. The No. 1 doubles team of Jeremy Grubi and Kris Braaten has a 10-5 mark.

Per Wadmark will be a key performer for SIU-C. Wadmark is the Salukis' top singles player with a 13-9 record. He also teams with Rollie Oliquino at No. 1 doubles.

The remainder of the Salukis' singles lineup consists of Gabriel Coch at No. 2 singles, Chris Visconti at No. 3 singles, Oliquino at No. 4 singles, Scott Krueger at No. 5 singles and Lars Nilsson at No. 6 singles.

Coch and Nilsson play together at No. 2 doubles and Visconti and Krueger team at No. 3 doubles.

Following this weekend's play, SIU-C will return to action on Wednesday when it hosts Tennessee-Martin at the Arena tennis courts.

Prize tennis meet to be held in June

Cherry Insurance Agency and Bud Light will sponsor the first Cherry Insurance-Bud Light Open Tennis Tournament June 1-2 at Carbondale. All proceeds from the meet will be given to the Southern Illinois Junior Tennis Program.

Prize money for the event will be $5,000 and it will be the only prize money event in Southern Illinois this season. Entries are open nationally. Divisions will include the men's open, 35 and over and 45 and over, as well as doubles. Women's divisions will include open and doubles. Over 200 participants are expected.

For further information on the tournament, contact Cherry Insurance Agency at 549-7368. The entry deadline is May 18.

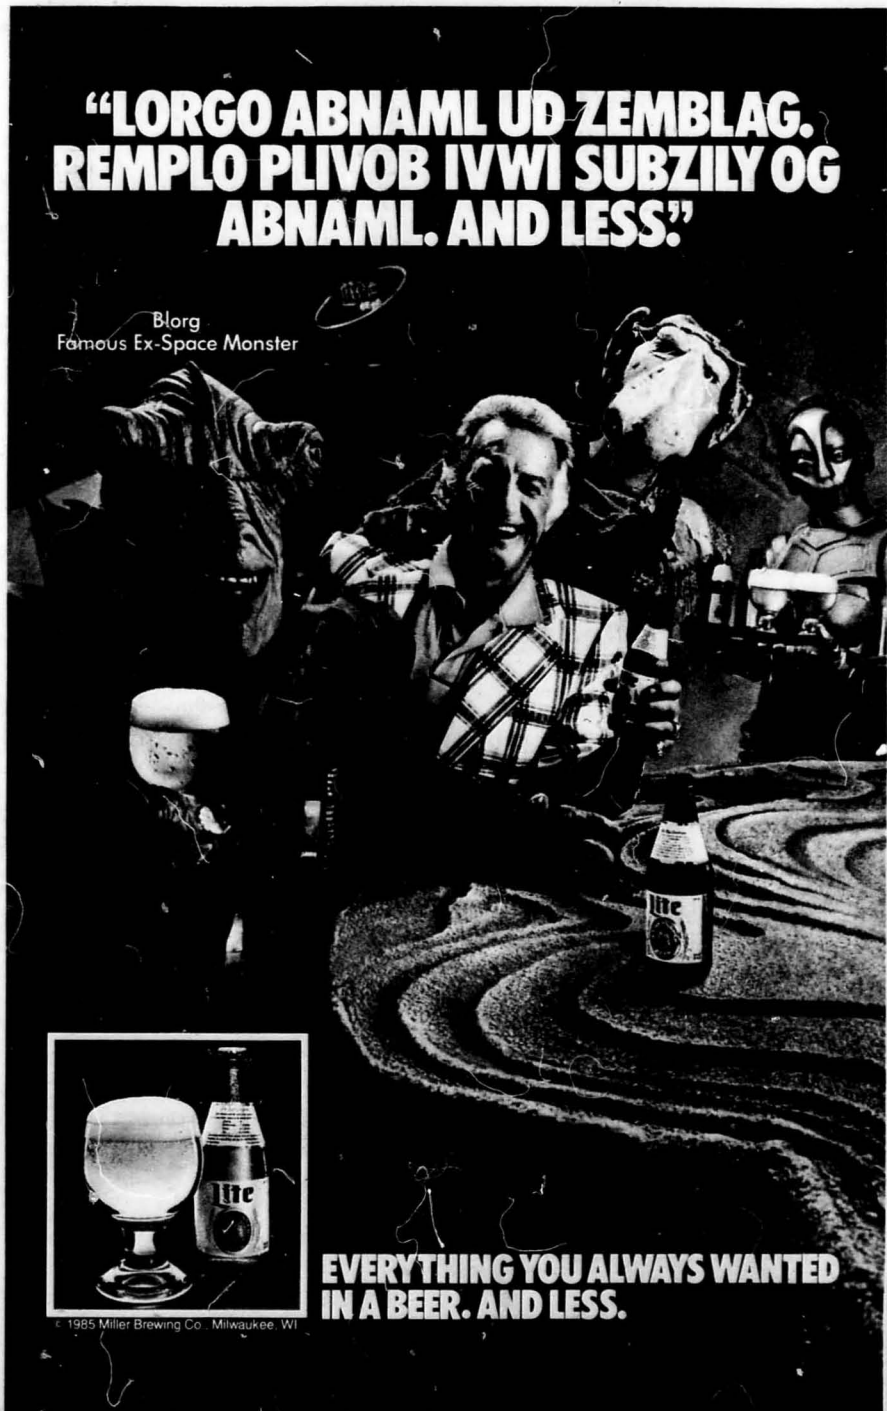

Per Wadmark executed a backhand return during a meet against Southeast Missouri State Tuesday.

Auld signs Burgess to women's tennis team

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Saluki coach Judy Auld didn't have to travel too far to sign her first women's tennis recruit last week.

Auld signed Julie Burgess of Carbondale Community High School, a four-time qualifier for the IHSA State Tournament.

Burgess compiled a 14-4 record last fall for the Terriers after transferring from Decatur MacArthur High School. She competed three years at MacArthur and compiled a 48-16 record over her sophomore and junior seasons.

Auld said Burgess didn't sign with SIU-C to stay close to home.

"She thought the program was suited to her," Auld said. "She got to know some of the students on campus and made friends, and was pleased with the school and the tennis program."

Auld is hoping Burgess can step in and make a contribution next season for the Salukis, who are losing four seniors.

"I can't say what position she'll play because it depends on who we recruit," Auld said.

"Strong competition day in and day out will make her that much better. She is solid from the baseline and is working to become more aggressive at the net."

DeNoon, women's track team signs four athletes

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Saluki women's track and cross country coach Don DeNoon signed four athletes last week to letters-of-intent.

DeNoon signed quarter-miler Angie Nunn of Terre Haute, Ind., and distance runners Pam Quarengi from Collinsville, Lisa Judicek of O'Fallon, and Robin Martin of Harrodsburg, Ky.

Nunn brings a time of 56.4 seconds in the quarter-mile to SIU-C. She will team with school record-holder Denise Blackman (54.35), two-time Gateway Conference champion Carlton Blackman (57.42) and a fourth athlete in the 4 x 400-meter relay next year.

"Barring an injury, our mile relay team will easily qualify for the NCAA nationals next year," DeNoon predicted. "Based on our recruits and returning athletes, we have a relay time of about 3 minutes, 36 seconds — almost six seconds faster than the NCAA standard."

DeNoon said Thursday the three distance runners he signed will take over as the leaders of next season's cross country team and hopes the competition can improve his returning athletes' times.

Quarengi will bring a lifetime best of 17:17 to SIU-C in the 5,000-meters, a time which would move her into first place on the all-time Saluki cross country list.

"Pam could be our leader in both cross country and in the distance events in track," DeNoon said. "She has an excellent chance to be the first Saluki to crack the 17-minute barrier in cross country."

Quarengi was the state champion in the mile as a sophomore with a time of 4:53 and runs the 800-meter dash in 2:12.3.

Judicek, the third recruit, has the best time in the state this year in the 800-meter run at 2:18 and has qualified for the state meet the past three years in the mile run. Her best time in the mile is 5:03.

"Lisa will give us needed depth in her events," DeNoon said. "In track she will compete in the 800-meter run and will move up to the 3,000 and possibly the 5,000."

Martin, who signed an academic scholarship, is DeNoon's fourth recruit. She has placed fifth in the Kentucky cross country state meet in the past two seasons and finished third in the state in the 800-meter run with a time of 2:21.

Martin ranks first in her graduating class with a perfect 4.0 grade point average. She turned down scholarships from numerous schools, including Purdue, North Carolina, Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia.

Track men prepared for Arkansas Invitational

SIU-C to battle NCAA champs

By Mike Frey
Sports Editor

The Arkansas Invitational should be a refreshing change of pace for the SIU-C men's track and field team.

The Salukis will compete in the six-team meet this weekend at Fayetteville, Ark., and it will be their first opportunity to compete in individual events in over a month. The Salukis' last two meets — The SEMOTION Relays and the Dogwood Relays — have consisted primarily of relay events.

The six-team field includes some of the nation's top teams including defending NCAA indoor champion Arkansas, Missouri, Oklahoma, Oklahoma State and Southern Methodist will also compete.

Coach Bill Cornell said he is happy to see his team get the chance to compete in individual events again.

"It'll be nice to compete individually," Cornell said. "We're still not in top condition, but several of our young athletes are beginning to come around."

Cornell will rely on Michael Franks to be the Salukis' top scorer again. He will compete in the 100- and 200-meter dash and will also anchor two relay teams. Franks has the best time in the Missouri Valley Conference this season in both events — a 10:56 in the 100-meter dash and a 21:10 in the 200-meter dash.

Senior weight man Tom Smith will also be a key performer for SIU-C. Smith has had outstanding performances in SIU-C's last two meets. He qualified for the NCAA outdoor championships in the hammer last week at the Dogwood Relays with a toss of 203 feet, three inches.

Several other Salukis have a chance to perform well, including Jim Sullivan, the pole vaulter, Steve Breathett in the long jump, Mark Hill in the 400-meter dash, Gavin Harshbarger in the triple jump, Richard McDonnell in the 1,000-meter run and Mike Elliot in the 800-meter run.

Next weekend, SIU-C will compete in the Drake Relays at Des Moines, Iowa. Over 100 teams will be represented at the meet.

Rugby women to host tourney

The SIU-C women's rugby team will host the annual collegiate tournament this weekend at the rugby pitch behind Abe Martin Field.

The 32-team field will feature some of the top teams in the Midwest. The club won the tournament last season.

Play will begin on Saturday at 9 a.m. SIU-C will play its first match at 10:30 a.m. and will play again at 1:30 p.m.

The championship game is scheduled for Sunday afternoon. No definite time for the game has been set, but it is expected to be played between noon and 2 p.m.

There is no admission charge for any of the matches.

Griffey paces Yankees past Sox

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ken Griffey made a spectacular defensive play for the second straight game and singled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning Thursday, giving the New York Yankees a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Griffey ran down a hard liner by Carlton Fisk and turned it into a double play in the sixth inning to help make a winner of reliever Rich Bordi, 1-0, who pitched one inning. Dave Righetti got the last five outs for his third save.

With the score tied 2-2 in the seventh, Don Mattingly singled to left center and went to second when Don Baylor walked. Griffey then sent a smash off the glove of second baseman Julio Cruz to give the Yankees their fourth straight victory.

In the sixth, Fisk was batting with runners on first and second and one out. He lined a shot into the left field corner, but Griffey caught it on the run for one out. The relay to first base doubled Tom Paciorek off first to end the inning.

Floyd Bannister, 0-2, took the loss.

The Yankees took a 1-0 lead in the second when Baylor was hit by a pitch, and scored on singles by Griffey and Dale Berra. They made it 2-0 in the third and doubles by Willie Randolph and Mattingly.

Chicago tied the score with two unearned runs in the fourth. Paciorek singled and went to third on a single by Fisk, with Fisk taking second on the throw. Third baseman Berra then booted Ron Kittle's routine grounder and threw the ball away for two errors, letting both runners score.

Griffey made another superb catch of a foul ball in the ninth inning.

Women netters hope to continue hot streak at SIU-E Invitational

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Women's tennis coach Judy Auld hopes the Salukis can finish second or better in the SIU-E Invitational this weekend at Edwardsville.

"We hope we can get a good draw because everybody on our team has played well lately," Auld says. "We hope we can finish in the top two."

Auld says SIU-E will probably have the strongest team in the eight-school invitational.

After an 0-9 start, the Salukis have won five out of their last seven matches to improve to 5-11 overall.

The main reason for the Salukis' turnaround is a combined team effort by singles players Mary Pat Kramer, Maureen Harney, Amanda Allen, Alessandra Molinari, Ellen Moellering, Sue Steuby, and the doubles team of Kramer and Harney.

Kramer, who will play at No. 3 singles this weekend, has won her last seven matches to improve to 8-9 overall.

Harney, who got off to a 2-10 start, has won six out of her last seven matches to improve to 8-11 overall. She will be competing at No. 5 singles.

Allen has also won six out of her last seven matches and her record stands at 7-9 overall. She is entered at No. 6 singles.

Molinari, who will compete at No. 2 singles, has won four out of her last five matches to improve to 5-7 overall.

Moellering, Auld's No. 1 recruit last season, slumped to a 1-12 start but has won four out of her last six matches to improve to 5-14 overall. She will compete at No. 4 singles.

Steuby, also a freshman, has won four out of her last six matches to improve to 6-10 overall.

The No. 3 doubles team of Kramer and Harney has won five out of its six matches and has a winning record at 9-7 overall.

"I think we started the season with strong competition and we sustained injuries," Auld says. "But we're starting to come together as a team and I feel very optimistic going into this tournament and the conference tournament."

The Salukis will also gain the services of No. 1 singles player Heidi Eastman for the SIU-E Invitational. She has been sidelined for two weeks with a foot injury.

Former mound sensation McLain faces jail term

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — After more than a month behind bars, Denny McLain faces sentencing Friday from a U.S. District Court judge who can put the major leagues' last 30-game winner in prison for the rest of his life.

McLain, who won 31 games for the Detroit Tigers in 1968 and twice earned the Cy Young Award for pitching excellence, was found guilty on four counts March 16 following an arduous 14-week trial. He was denied bail by Judge Elizabeth A. Kovachevich the next day despite a parade of 10 character witnesses to the stand — including Tiger President James Campbell and McLain himself.

Judge Kovachevich is scheduled to pass sentence on McLain at 9 a.m. EST Friday.

A jury of nine women and three men deliberated three days before finding McLain guilty of loan sharking, extortion, bookmaking and cocaine possession.

Salukis set for third scrimmage

By Mike Frey
Staff Writer

Saluki football coach Ray Dorr will have another opportunity to evaluate the team's quarterback position when SIU-C holds its third spring scrimmage Saturday at 9 a.m. at McAndrew Stadium.

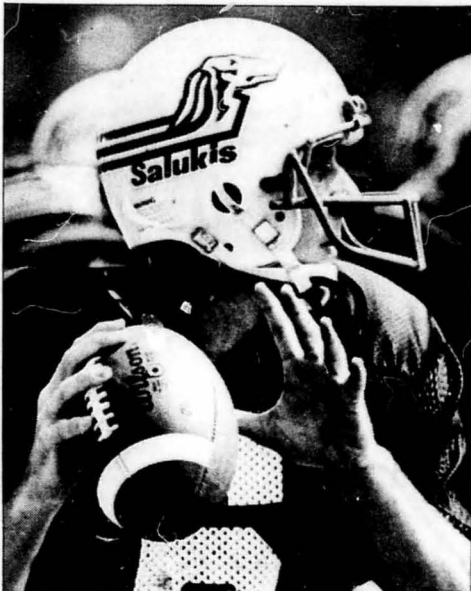

Pat King remains the Salukis' No. 1 quarterback, but Dorr said he was impressed with Brown's play during the scrimmage last Saturday. Dorr said King played well also, but Brown has now moved into a position where he can compete against King for the job.

Joe Graves was injured in last week's scrimmage and will miss the remainder of spring practice, leaving only King and Brown to battle for the position.

The defense dominated Saturday's scrimmage, and Dorr said the unit has made significant progress this spring.

"The defense has played well," he said. "They have accomplished the three 'A's' — alignment, assignment and accountability."

Saluki defenders who have been impressive this spring include noseguard Brad Crouse.

Kevin Brown, a redshirt freshman quarterback from Galveston Ind., has performed well in spring practice.

Crucial matchup Baseball team to test powerful Wichita St.

By Stan Goff
Staff Writer

Eighteen games remain on this year's schedule for the baseball Salukis, but this weekend's four-game series with Missouri Valley Conference foe Wichita State at Abe Martin Field may be the most important games.

SIU-C, 26-15, will host the first place Shockers for a pair of double-headers beginning at noon on both Saturday and Sunday. The Salukis are tied for fourth place in the MVC with Creighton at 3-5, while WSU is alone atop the conference standings with an 8-0 record.

"We know they are a club that is ranked high and playing very good baseball," SIU-C coach Richard "Itchy" Jones said. "But we are looking forward to going out and winning our share of games. We played No. 1 Miami tough at the beginning of the season, and we plan to do the same this weekend."

The Salukis, who are 13-4 at home this season, need to win at least one or two games from the country's third-ranked Shockers (48-6) this weekend if they hope to qualify for this year's MVC post-season tournament.

"We've got to split," Jones said. "We've got to win some ballgames or we won't qualify for the tournament, and that's our sole goal for the season."

The tournament is what counts."

The Salukis' five conference setbacks have come by a mere seven total runs, while the Shockers have easily swept four-game series from Indiana State (4-4) and Illinois State (2-6).

"This is the biggest home series in more than 10 years," Jones said. "It's critical because we're tied with Creighton and they've got to go against Illinois State, Wichita State and us."

SIU-C won its third straight game last night, defeating St. Louis University 13-2 at Sauge. Robert Jones hit his 11th home run of the year and freshman Bob Osborne picked up his first collegiate win as the Salukis finished the season 3-0 against the Billikens.

"Osborne did a commendable job for us, and now we'll go with Gary Bockhorn and Mark Wooten on Saturday," Jones said. "We'll just have to wait and see what we do on Sunday."

Bockhorn, SIU-C's top starter a year ago, has picked up where he left off last season when he led the team with five wins. Bockhorn missed some action earlier this season because of a sore arm, but now holds a 3-1 record and a 2.2 earned run average. Wooden is 2-2 with a 3.89 ERA.

The team's ERA is down to a solid 3.95, but it is the Salukis' bats that have played the biggest role in the team's success this season. SIU-C is hitting .321 as a team, and has already hit 37 home runs, compared to its 1984 total of 18.

Infielder Jay Burch leads the team in hitting with a .403 average, while Robert Jones (.365) and Steve Finley (.352) battle for the lead in runs batted in. Finley has five home runs and a team-high 42 RBI, and Jones is next with 40 RBI.

Second baseman Mike Gellinger is batting .345 with 20 RBI, after hitting .271 with 10 RBI a year ago, and newcomer Gerald Pitchford has become a big part of the Saluki attack. Pitchford, a junior college transfer, leads SIU-C with 46 runs scored, 22 stolen bases and six triples, while hitting .320 and cracking nine homers.

"There will be some good ballgames this weekend," Jones said. "We're looking forward to a good crowd and the support of the 'Hill Gang', but we hope they won't hinder play or create any problems."

At last Saturday's double-header against MVC rival Illinois State, Jones had to walk over and settle down the "Hill Gang", which was harassing the umpires and the opponent's players, and throwing ice onto the field.

Infielder Jay Burch leads the Salukis in hitting this season with a .403 average.

Stuck to report on investigation

Dean Stuck, SIU-C special assistant for intercollegiate athletics, has scheduled a press conference on Friday at 10:30 a.m. at Ballroom A of the Student Center.

Stuck refused to comment on what will be discussed at the press conference, but it is believed he will reveal the results of his internal investigation of the men's basketball program. Stuck completed the investigation on Wednesday.

Stuck began the investigation April 5 after it was discovered that center Kenny Perry received regular monthly payments of $900 for two years from Carbondale chiropractor Roy White.

Stuck said he worked on his report of the investigation Thursday. He will submit the report to SIU-C President Albert Somit and the NCAA once it is completed.

The search for a new head coach to replace Allen Van Winkle, who resigned April 9, was put on hold until the investigation was completed. A decision on a new head coach could also be announced on Friday.

Rogers, Expos shut down struggling Cardinals 6-1

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Vance Law had three hits and drove in two runs and Steve Rogers, amid a report that he may soon be traded, tossed a five-hitter Thursday to lead the Montreal Expos to a 6-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Rogers, who entered the game with an 0-2 record and a 6.23 ERA, struck out four and walked four in going the distance for the first time.

Rogers, who endured four long snow and rain delays in his first two decisions, stymied the Cardinals in 83 degree temperatures at Busch Stadium. The veteran right-hander did not allow a hit after the fourth inning and retired 13 consecutive batters in one stretch.

His impressive outing came less than 24 hours after a story in a Canadian newspaper said he might soon be traded.

Benton prep star will likely sign with Salukis

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

Herman Williams, interim coordinator of the Saluki men's basketball program, said Thursday afternoon there was a 99 percent chance that Randy House would sign a scholarship Thursday night with SIU-C.

House, a 6-foot-5 guard-forward, averaged 14.1 points, six rebounds and 5.6 assists for Benton High School, which finished 24-6 last season.

Williams said he expects House to play off-guard for the Salukis.

"He has a lot to contribute from an athletic standpoint," Williams said. "He played for a good high school coach (Rich Herrin), I think he can help us next year, and he's a good student also."

Williams said the left-handed House must improve his right-handed ball handling if he is going to play guard.

"He's a good shooter, a good team player, and fits in as a role player, which is important for a team to have," Williams said.

House turned down scholarship offers from Northeast Missouri State and Middle Tennessee State and would be the second recruit in less than a week to announce his intentions to come to SIU-C.

Last week, Williams signed forward-center Ken Dusharm, a junior college transfer from Rogers State College in Claremore, Okla.

If House signs, Williams will have five remaining scholarships to offer. Williams plans to concentrate on signing five front line players.

Eastern. The second-year mentor expects double victories from senior Connie Price in the shot put and discus and junior Denise Blackman in the 100 and 200-meter dashes.

DeNoon said Price should be the Salukis' first national qualifier on Saturday in the shot put.

"The way Connie has been competing, she doesn't need competition," DeNoon said. Price came within a half inch of qualifying for the nationals last week in the shot put at the Murray State Invitational. The national qualifying standard is 50 feet, and Price just fell short with a personal best effort of 49-11.5.

DeNoon said Price, Carmen Robbins, or Sydney Edwards have a chance of winning the triple jump. Last week Price set a school record in the triple jump in 37-8.5.

DeNoon said he expects first-place finishes from Karen Cooper in the 400-meter hurdles, Lisa Hicks in the 10,000-meter run, and the 4 x 100-meter relay team. Cynthia Joy or Laurie Dvorak in the javelin, and either Sharon Leidy, Robbins, and Edwards in the long jump are also expected to gain first-place finishes.

DeNoon said he expects strong performances from Kathy Raske and Felicia Veal in the 100-meter hurdles, and Kathryn Doelling in the 800-, 1500-, and 3,000-meters.

"I expect a major improvement from Kathryn in the distances," DeNoon said. "She looks as good as I ever imagined her being in practice and she has the confidence level to run well."
