Colleges urged to aid 3rd World development

By Darci Allan
Staff Writer

It is important for American universities to become involved in the development of Third World countries, said Robert W. Kleis, executive director of the Board for International Food and Agriculture Development.

This involvement is based on humanitarian and moral factors, said Kleis, who spoke Thursday to about 30 people in the Agriculture Building. Progress in the development of countries such as Brazil, Pakistan and Bangladesh offers hope to other countries like Kenya, he added.

American universities are "lagging behind" and need to "get with the process" of globalizing their curriculums and programs so that they will relate to "the world that exists and will continue to exist" and not to the one that "existed in the past," Kleis said.

International activities need to be more integral to the entire campus and not just set aside in one office, Kleis added.

"We need to develop as many opportunities as we can to involve as many faculty members as we can in international development," said Kleis. "Agriculture universities are more committed to international development because they have developed interests and expectations about it."

The political and economic ties the United States has with other developed countries is obvious, said Kleis.

"We talk about exports but we're dependent on imports, too," he said.

The five models on the low end of the John Deere horsepower scale are not manufactured in the United States, Kleis said.

"We are not masters of our own fate in self-contained situations and we never can be," he said.

There is a basic interest in political and economic stability with countries overseas, said Kleis. American aid increases trade potential and brings about mutual benefits such as access to research and results, he added.

Khadafy's hold on Libya unclear as turmoil, violence rock Tripoli

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI) — Moammar Khadafy made his second TV appearance in 24 hours Thursday, shortly before a brief artillery and rocket barrage forced a power blackout in the jittery capital. The Reagan administration said Khadafy has been forced to quell revolts by Libyan military units.

Two hours after the gun and rocket volley, about 100 Libyans waving Soviet-made rifles, Libyan flags and Khadafy posters drove in a motorcade through the streets of Tripoli, shouting "Down, down U.S.A.!" No violence was immediately reported.

In Washington, White House sources said several Libyan army units rebelled against Khadafy after the U.S. bombing raid but were dispersed by forces loyal to the Libyan leader.

The officials, who asked not to be identified, called Khadafy "a coward," and added, "He's scared now."

"He knows we're going after him," one official said. "We know that several army units in the first couple of days (after the bombing raids) rebelled. One even tried to march on Tripoli."

And Secretary of State George Shultz said that while Khadafy himself was not a specific target of the air raids, "If a coup takes place, that's all to the good."

Libyan army units have mutinied several times in the past, another administration official said, adding that "they know they are not trusted" and have built up resentment against Khadafy's elite guards, who get special treatment.

President Reagan said Thursday he thinks Khadafy is "staying under cover," and administration officials said the Libyan leader chose to put his children's lives in danger by housing them at his military headquarters which was bombed by U.S. planes.

An administration source said U.S. intelligence reports indicate Khadafy fled to the Hun Oasis in the Sirtic Desert, southeast of Tripoli, his boyhood home. "That fits a pattern of what he has done before, going back to his roots," the source said.

Officials believe Khadafy already was at the oasis when his message to the Libyan people was broadcast Wednesday night.

ABC News quoted U.S. intelligence sources as saying Khadafy has since returned to Tripoli.

Red streaks of anti-aircraft fire and white arcs of Soviet-made SAM surface-to-air missiles lit up the skies over Tripoli at 9 p.m. There was no sign of aircraft or incoming fire, and the barrage ended after about five minutes.

As the barrage began, the lights in the city quickly were doused and remained out hours after the shooting ended.

Outbreaks of artillery, rocket and small arms fire have erupted regularly in the city since the U.S. air raids early Tuesday on Tripoli and Benghazi. At least 17 people died and more than 100 were injured in the attacks, which the Reagan administration said were in retaliation for Libyan involvement in terrorism.

There has been no explanation for the firing by Libyan forces. A top Western diplomat speculated that Khadafy either was trying to show Libyans he was repelling new U.S. attacks, or was being fooled by U.S. reconnaissance flights sent over the capital to draw the fire "and keep the city in a high state of tension."

The United States has denied that its warplanes are flying over the capital.

GPSC election twist has opponents on same staff

By Catherine Edman
Staff Writer

Although it may seem strange to work with the opposition, Kelli McCormack, newly elected president of the Graduate and Professional Student Council, says she is looking forward to the upcoming year.

On April 9 McCormack defeated Paul Antonacci and Darrel Johnson for the GPSC presidency. After the election, both opponents were elected to the two vice president positions.

She said that it feels strange to defeat them both and then have them as the two vice presidents, but thinks they will all work well together.

One trait her opponents shared was their involvement in the committees and proceedings of the GPSC. McCormack said she was embarrassed to say that she had never been on one of the committees. In fact, McCormack has only been a member of the council since last fall. But thinks she showed her involvement in other ways mainly by being active in the meetings.

"Most of the time I knew the issues and stood up for what I believed in," McCormack said. "I pretty much had a comment on everything, and I had backing for it too."

Being outspoken and letting people know why she felt the way she did are what she thought helped her become elected. Now that they have chosen her, however, she has to put many of her comments and feelings aside to be fair during meetings and she thinks she is capable of doing that too.

Aside from working well with the executive board McCormack hopes to accomplish a good flow of communication with the council members. But more representatives need to become involved, she said, and hopes to encourage them to do so.

"We have the same reps that come all the time and there's a lot more out there that haven't been coming," McCormack said. "GPSC is what the whole

A delay in federal funds for the city's railroad relocation project won't hamper the project's progress, even if funds aren't allocated for more than one year, says Railroad Relocation Project Director Eldon Gosnell.

City officials were recently notified that $2.8 million in Federal Highway Administration funds won't be released until the city submits a "viable" financial plan for the project. The funds will be needed to pay for construction costs related to the temporary railway phase of the project.

If funds are not released, work on other funded projects for the relocation will continue, he said.

Congress originally appropriated $3 million for the temporary railway phase of the project, but budget cuts under the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings budget balancing law cut 4.3 percent from that total, Gosnell said.

Ed Liebold, of DeLeuw, Cather and Co engineering firm, said work on the Highway 51 phase of the project is 95 percent complete and "ahead of schedule."

All designs for the project are expected to be completed by November, he said.

Arab gunmen kill three in retaliation for U.S. raid

BEIKUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Arab gunmen killed three Westerners, abducted a British journalist and attacked the British ambassador's residence in a wave of terror sparked by the U.S. raid on Libya and Britain's role in the attack. The violence came a few hours after Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi, surfacing for the first time since the attacks early Tuesday, condemned the United States and Britain for the U.S. air raids on Tripoli and Benghazi.

Chunk of shuttle's right wing brought ashore

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A chunk of Challenger's right wing bearing the chipped and faded name of the shuttle was brought ashore Thursday with remains of all seven astronauts finally identified, sources said. In another development, radio transmissions from the salvage vessel Independence raised the possibility the search for crew cabin wreckage could be wrapped up in "12 to 24 hours."

Justices criticized for E.F. Hutton decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Democratic senators harshly criticized the Justice Department Thursday for not seeking criminal prosecution of top E.F. Hutton officers but Justice officials denied they were pressured to go easy on the brokerage firm. One of the senators, Joseph Biden of Delaware, later told Hutton Chairman Robert Forman that he accepted the company official's claim that he did not know about the check scheme.

Sudan recalls ambassador from United States

KHARTOUM, Sudan (UPI) — Sudan said Thursday it recalled its ambassador from Washington to protest the U.S. attack on Libya and trade unions urged workers to refuse to service American planes and ships. Because of concern over Libyan-directed violence against Americans in the Sudan, the United States has announced it will evacuate dependants of embassy officials and others beginning later this week.

Suspects say colonels, major in on abductions

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Two men arrested for allegedly working with rightist kidnapping rings said Thursday that two army colonels and a major on active duty were involved in carrying out the abductions of prominent businessmen. The accusations came as leaders of the country's coffee industry urged the Senate to investigate alleged "interference" by U.S. Ambassador Edwin G. Corr in domestic politics.

OPEC oil ministers consult panel of experts

GENEVA (UPI) — Feuding OPEC oil ministers Thursday accepted a Saudi suggestion and asked a panel of experts to help the beleaguered cartel break its deadlock over production cuts to bolster sagging oil prices. After meeting for 2-and-one-half hours in their third day of talks, the ministers adjourned for the day to give the OPEC specialists time to prepare a report for discussion Friday. The oil experts were expected to issue a report on projected world oil demand for the remainder of the year.

Computer hacks charged for changing grades

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two former University of Southern California students and a former USC employee have been charged with breaking into the school's computer and changing student grades for fees ranging up to $2,000, prosecutors said Thursday. The District Attorney's Office said it withheld news of the felony charges against the three men until two of them were located. One of the former students, Mehrdad Amini, 28, of Beverly Hills, was arrested Feb. 25 on five counts of illegal computer access.

Stalin's daughter in U.S., heads for unknown city

CHICAGO (UPI) — Dictator Josef Stalin's daughter, who defected from the Soviet Union and then returned to her homeland 17 years later, quietly entered the United States and headed for an unknown destination, officials said Thursday. Svetlana Alliluyeva arrived at O'Hare International Airport on Swissair Flight 124 at 2:17 p.m. CST Wednesday without public notice and left for another U.S. city, said Cherise Mayberry, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Customs Service in Chicago.

Injury prevents Stevenson from attending fundraiser

By William Walker
Staff Writer

A fund-raising event for gubernatorial candidate Adlai E. Stevenson III will be held at 6 p.m. Sunday at the Student Center, but Stevenson, who is recovering from an injury sustained in a recent fall from a horse, will not be present, campaign workers say.

But the 55-year-old Stevenson may participate in the event via an audio video hookup, said Pete H. Riggio, Stevenson's press coordinator in Southern Illinois.

Stevenson's wife, Nancy, will attend the $50-per-plate event, as will local Democrat leaders and Sen. Paul Simon, who will be the principal speaker, Riggio said.

Stevenson suffered a fractured vertebra when he was thrown from a horse Sunday on his farm in Hanover. He was taken by ambulance to the Mercy

Adlai Stevenson

Health Center in Dubuque, Iowa, where he was listed in satisfactory condition.

Riggio said the injury was "not critical," but he said it would keep Stevenson off the campaign trail for a couple of weeks while he recuperates.

Officials say they won't interfere with 'Hail Mary' despite protest

By Wm. Bryan DeVasher
Entertainment Editor

"Hail Mary," the controversial film about the birth of Christ directed by French filmmaker Jean-Luc Godard, will be shown at the Student Center Sunday and Monday despite expected protests.

University officials say they will not interfere with the Student Programming Council's First Amendment right to show the film, although they have received calls concerning its campus screening.

Richard Grost, SPC film chair, said SPC has received "slight pressure" to cancel the film via several telephone calls and letters. The film depicts the immaculate conception in a modern setting in which Mary is the daughter of a gas station attendant, Joseph is a taxicab driver and the angel Gabriel is a passenger in Joseph's cab.

Pope John Paul II labeled the film blasphemous when it was released and the Catholic Church has taken a firm stance opposing the film. Grost said the film has been banned in Italy altogether because of that country's large Catholic population.

Several people have indicated that they may demonstrate in protest of the film, which will be shown in the Student Center Auditorium at 7 and 9:15 p.m. Sunday and Monday, Grost said. However, he added, demonstrations will not cause SPC to cancel the showing of the film.

"There's no way we will cancel the film," Grost said.

"It's a good film. It's not some film halfway thrown together by some unknown director.

"Most the people who are protesting the film have not seen it," Grost said. "It's gotten good reviews everywhere it's played."

Grost said there is some nudity in the film, but that it is "innocent" and "natural."

"People who have seen the film say the nudity is not at all erotic," he said. The nudity in the film occurs near the film's end, when Mary is shown naked while experiencing her mysterious pregnancy.

"People have been calling trying to get us to cancel the film," Grost said, adding that all calls regarding the film are now being handled by the University president's office.

President Albert Somit said his office has received "eight to 10" telephone calls and several letters concerning the film, but the Office of Student Affairs has been handling the matter.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president of student affairs, said his office has received about "20 to 30" calls and a number of letters.

He said the University stands behind SPC's decision to show the film, adding that for the University to intervene would be a breach of the group's First Amendment rights.

"It has nothing to do with the showing of the film but with freedom of expression," Swinburne said. He said protesters may demonstrate if they want, in keeping University regulations on demonstrations, because everyone has the same rights under the First Amendment.

John Corker, Student Center director, said people will be allowed to demonstrate if they want, but all demonstrations must be peaceful, must not interfere with the flow of traffic in the center or the safety of anyone in the center and cannot include signs.

Corker added that the regulations apply to demonstrations both inside and outside the Student Center.

He said he has not received any letters concerning the film and supports SPC in the matter.

"My feeling is that the film being shown is a four-star film," Corker said, adding that it was done in an artistic fashion. Corker also cited First Amendment rights when questioned about canceling the film.

Local Catholic churches are opposed to the film, but say that they will not sponsor any protests in the Student Center.

The Rev. Eric Meyer at the Newman Center said his group is urging people to boycott the film.

"We made an announcement that people shouldn't waste their money on the film," Meyer said. "I have not seen the film. It has the reputation of being repugnant."

A spokeswoman for St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church in Carbondale said the church has no comment on the matter and will not sponsor any demonstrations against the film.

Chairman says USO funds are dry; RSOs must budget

By Brett Yates
Staff Writer

Three representatives from recognized student organizations have taken issue with the Undergraduate Student Organization Senate over their fee allocations for next year.

The senate Wednesday allocated $228,467.25 to 41 RSOs and Rainbow's End Preschool was given $2,350 for fiscal year 1987.

The senate also passed a resolution opposing a recent decision to cut women's gymnastics from the women's athletics program.

Jean Paratore, assistant to the vice president of student affairs, said the USO will receive about $253,479 for fiscal 1987, which begins July 1, 1986, and ends June 30, 1987.

Don't strike back at innocent people

DURING THE IRANIAN HOSTAGE crisis, some Americans punished Iranian students for the actions of Khomeini's minions. The rash and often violent actions of angry Americans toward innocent people who had nothing to do with the policies of their native government marred campuses throughout the United States in 1979 and 1980.

That kind of reaction must not occur in the wake of our recent conflict with Libya's Col. Khadafi. Even though there are no Libyan students enrolled at SIU-C, the University does have a sizable population of Middle Eastern students who have nothing in common with Libya's rogue leader.

It is always easy to find a scapegoat when something makes us angry or upset. Iranian students who were hassled during the hostage crisis had to defend themselves for simply being Iranian.

PEOPLE SHOULD NOT HAVE TO feel they must hide their nationality out of fear of reprisal for actions they had no part in. Middle Eastern students should not be identified with Libya's leader. Most of the Middle Eastern students enrolled here are from moderate countries that do not support Libya's involvement in international terrorism.

It is easy to project our anger for Khadafi toward any Middle Eastern student. It is easy to blame them because they are close and easy to see, and even easier to strike out at verbally or physically.

But the international students haven't declared war on the United States and certainly won't be trying to kill Americans wherever they find them, as Khadafi has declared all Arabs should.

Show Col. Khadafi that we are a fair and civilized people.

Get more money to educate

Okay, that's it. I don't get it — financial aid, that is. No chance. Nowhere. No how. Not even if an actor gets elected president.

I planned on attending SIU-C in the fall of 1986. However, I'm geeked royally, as federal financial aid refuses to consider me independent since I have not lived on my own for two full years. That is, I have not been independent for two years, but only one; therefore I am "dependent." This means my stepfather, who is not paying for my attempted education, is expected by the gods to pay for my education.

My stepfather, of course, refuses, as I am 23 years old and "Am old enough to take care of myself." All well and hunky-dory. Except that I can't go to school because of some bureaucratic regulation requiring me to report my stepfather's income. Which automatically flushes my dreams down the toilet, which was, apparently the location all along.

I hear Congress is debating a bill which would declare all financial aid candidates 23 years of age and younger dependent students regardless of whether they live with Mumsy and Pop or not. Call me Ronnie! We'll do lunch!

$100 million to kill Sandinistas and $370 million cut from the Pell Grant program. The world may be shorter a few commies, but it will also be shorter by a few hundred college graduates.

Someone needs to refigure the priorities of our federal government. Money that should be going for the future of our country is being spent in some flea-bitten, steaming, jungle pesthole of a country to kill people.

But enough of this soap opera. I would like to conduct an unofficial poll of SIU-C students. Is there anyone out there who has had, is now having, or will have the same ulcer-producing frustrations with financial aid applications?

At the last Illinois constitutional convention, an amendment was adopted which stated, "Every person is to be educated to the limit of their abilities." Financial ability? Mental ability? Physical ability?

In closing, I would like to thank the financial aid officials of SIU-C for all their non-committal answers. If I hear "I don't know" one more time, I will throw up. Thank you very little. — Timothy Harte, Murphysboro.

Libyan attack was a grave mistake

The Reagan administration has made a grave mistake in Libya. Reagan is feeding a fire that can only escalate into further military intervention and an American casualty list. Moreover he is inviting more terrorism, and encouraging an anti-American coalition of Arab states.

Reagan's theory of terrorist deterrence through "military action" is a faulty one. This can be seen in Israel's long and bloody cycle of terrorist raids, which ultimately bog down to the killing of innocent civilians, such as schoolchildren in buses. The Israeli officials boast of never having an airline hijacked, but I think this can be attributed to their highly sophisticated screening technique... Reagan has negated any peaceful future in the Middle East, as far as the United States is concerned. Our Egyptian and Saudi allies will have a hard time justifying their pro-American position in the near future. This eye for an eye tactic might work in a John Wayne movie, but international diplomacy is another matter. The sad part of the story is that this incident will go unchecked after the American public has been "Rambo-ized" into a type of blind nationalism.

Yes, something needs to be done to stop terrorism, so why not look at the reasoning behind these acts of terror? One of the main reasons why these people are vengeful towards the United States is because of our treatment of the Palestinian issue. The Carter administration at least made an attempt at dealing with the issue, with the Camp David Accord. Our present administration has made no such effort to bring peace to the Middle East, but now has committed our country to a future of terror and counter-terror.

By the way, isn't it ironic that this operation takes place the day before the Contra aid package comes up in Congress? I wonder if Reagan's trying to get some votes, hmmm? — Michael Edwards, sophomore, History.

Affirmative action on back burner

Your recent editorial (March 28) questioning whether the University's affirmative action policy has been adhered to in the search for a new chancellor deserves to be commended.

If, in fact, all four of the finalists are white males, as you indicated, the University will only repeat its lamentable performance in the search for an athletics director last fall.

As we said at that time, it seems unreasonable to us that, after a nationwide search, not a single woman or minority candidate could be found who, in the judgement of the SIU Board of Trustees, is qualified to fill the position. There are certainly enough qualified women and minority candidates, or potential candidates, available to insure that at least one would make the list of finalists.

If the DE is accurate, it appears that the University, once again, has conducted a thorough, nationwide search for the best possible candidate for chancellor, only to come up with yet another list of all white, all male candidates.

Following on the heels of the search for an athletics director, it seems to us that University decision-makers have once again failed to fulfill the University's policy commitment to affirmative action in employment.

The University's Affirmative Action policy does not apply only to clerical staff, professional staff and faculty. It also applies to the administration at all levels.

It is time for the University to begin to live up to its own policies — and to work with its faculty as colleagues in the academic community, not as employees of a corporation. — William C. Coscarelli, SIU-C Faculty Organizing Committee, Illinois Education Association-National Education Association.

Make government see the important issues

Citizens of the United States need to share in the important issues of our country. Cities and universities all around this nation participate in protests about nuclear disarmament.

These groups are for the most part small, but their ideas are shared by many Americans. One such group are the marchers who joined together in a walk across the United States, from the west coast to this nation's capital. All we seem to hear about this march are the setbacks that prevent the walkers from accomplishing their daily goals in mileage, and this is wrong. As a citizen of the United States, I believe that everyone needs to know about the accomplishments as well as the setbacks of these groups.

Americans can help these marchers by showing support. How can we support them if all we hear about is weekly progress and setbacks?

Many Americans are for nuclear disarmament, and if all the small groups in the country joined together, that would make the government more aware of our interests. — Stephan Trubitt, freshman, Radio and Television.

Local oil producers feel pinch of worldwide glut

By William Walker
Staff Writer

The current oil glut may mean low gas prices, but it also means trouble for Southern Illinois, says Lawrence Fieber, a consulting geologist whose family owns one of the many small oil businesses in southeastern Illinois.

Drilling in the state is down, with 303 permits issued in January and February compared to 647 during the same period last year. Unemployment is up. In White and Wayne counties, the two biggest oil producers in southeastern Illinois, it has topped 20 percent.

It's all been triggered by a massive increase in production by Saudi Arabia. The resulting glut has forced the price of Southern Illinois oil down from $27 to $14 per barrel, and the plunge may continue.

"Oil is a major economic factor in Illinois, especially Southern Illinois," says Fieber, who also is working on a master's degree at SIU-C. And the recent price drop, he says, will severely damage the region's economy.

"It's the short-sighted persons who believes if the price of oil continues to drop and oil rigs shut down it won't hurt the state," he says.

MANY PEOPLE think of Southern Illinois primarily as a producer of coal and agriculture, he adds, and they fail to see the importance of oil to the region.

In fact, the oil industry directly employed 6,500 Illinois workers and pumped some $800 million into the state's economy in 1985 alone, says Leland Russell, executive vice president of the Illinois Oil and Gas Association.

And, Fieber says, thousands of others, in industries such as trucking, construction, fuel sales, geology and petroleum engineering, have jobs thanks to the oil industry.

Most of the jobs and money go to southeastern Illinois, one of the most heavily drilled areas in the Illinois Basin, which extends across Central and Southern Illinois and parts of Indiana and Kentucky.

Like the Fiebers, who have been producing oil in Edwards County in southeastern Illinois since 1976, most oil producers in the basin operate small, family businesses that yield comfortable, but not extravagant, incomes.

OF THE $800 million generated last year, Russell says, only about 5 percent, or $40 million, was profit. About $500 million was spent on maintaining production and searching for new oil. $160 million went toward salaries and $100 million went to those owning mineral rights.

But for many, the oil glut has resulted in decreased profits and less money to explore for oil and maintain present production. For some, it has meant the end of their business altogether.

"What's happening now is a preview of coming attractions," Fieber says. "There will be a lot of people who will go broke before it's over."

For the Fiebers, who operate some 50 wells near Grayville, the price drop has not yet meant a crisis, due in part to the fact that they own the property where 35 of their wells are located, and therefore owe no royalty payments on those wells.

This has enabled them to keep their 10 employees working and all of their wells producing.

BUT IF PRICES continue to fall, there will be no choice but to curtail production and start laying off workers, says Lawrence's father, V. Louis.

Both father and son agree that one benefit of low oil prices is the corresponding low cost for equipment, drilling and production. They point out that for someone with money, now is actually a good time for drilling.

But to do that drilling, the Fiebers, like most of the small companies that dot the oil-patch communities, must rely on bank credit and investors, who vary greatly in location and amount invested.

The problem, V. Louis says, is that prices may continue to fall, and this scares away those important links in an oil venture.

Even the perception of lower prices scares them away, V. Louis says. "Tell me, would you want to invest in oil right now?" he asks.

Although the Fiebers are in relatively good financial shape so far, such is not the case for many others, especially those who have incurred a great deal of debt.

"It (the crisis) is the talk up and down the street," said a local reporter who stopped for lunch in a Grayville restaurant, referring to the panic that many Illinois oil producers are in.

BUT THE CRISIS does not surprise Fieber, who says oil production has historically been a "boom or bust" industry.

"This oil crisis that we're going through now has happened time and time again," Fieber says. "If you can last through the bust years, you've got it made, because then you're going to make money."

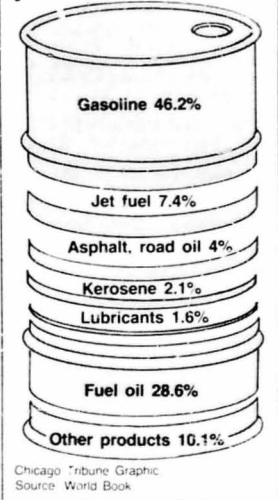

And although he admits the current glut will take its toll, Fieber insists that most Illinois operators will weather the storm, in part because of the conservative, low-key nature of most of the operations in the basin.

Most of the producers here usually drill 20 or fewer wells each year, Fieber says, pointing toward a heavily drilled field as he dives down a muddy dirt road to one of his family's wells. Last year the Fiebers drilled their most ever — 16.

PULLING ONTO the highway, he points to another field where the family has done some drilling. Twenty-seven consecutive wells have been successful, he adds, although he points out he has seen his share of failures.

The Fiebers are just one of many regional operators, who combined drill about 2,500 wells in Illinois each year, Russell says. Currently, some 29,000 wells in 47 counties produce oil.

What one barrel of crude oil provides

Most of those wells are concentrated in southcentral and southeastern Illinois, where 11 counties accounted for more than 70 percent of Illinois oil produced in 1983, according to the state Department of Energy and Natural Resources.

Southeastern White and Wayne counties are the biggest producers, accounting for more than 20 percent of all production in the state. And along with Crawford County, they are the most frequently drilled, with more than 200 completions reported in each county in 1985.

Edwards County, where the Fieber operation is located, along with Clay, Jasper and Richland counties — all in southeastern Illinois — form the next most active group, with 100 to 200 wells drilled in each county in 1985.

Christian County, with 66 wells drilled in 1985, was the most active county in the central region of the state, while western fields remained only moderately active.

ALTHOUGH Illinois accounts for only 2 percent of the nation's oil supply, it has made an important contribution since it was discovered in the state in 1869. To date, some 126,000 wells have yielded more than 4 billion barrels of oil — 30,264,711 in 1985 alone.

In recent years that production has been the result of the relatively low production levels of the numerous family operations, like the Fiebers', which cover the oil-patch communities in the basin.

But this wasn't always the case. Take the early 1900s, for example. At that time Illinois' oil production doubled that of Texas and nearly equaled that of all the other oil states combined. The old-timers can remember wells that produced 5,000 barrels of oil each day.

Today, a "very good" well is one that produces 200 barrels per day, Fieber says. Some may initially produce more than 1,000 barrels, although not for long.

But even 200-barrel-per-day wells are not that common; some 89 percent of the wells in Illinois are strippers — wells that generally produce less than 10 barrels of oil each day, Russell says.

MOST NEW WELLS produce more than 10 barrels a day, Fieber explains, but almost all wells yield the majority of their oil early and then become strippers.

The stripper wells, though, are the oil producer's bread and butter, he says, and the longevity of the wells make up for the low daily production. Many wells produce for several decades and yield between 20,000 and

A FILM BY JEAN-LUC GODARD

"HAIL MARY" is a celebration of the blessedness of life on Earth; it's one of the most tenderly religious movies ever made.

—David Denby, New York Magazine

"Audacious... Godard endows Mary with a nobility of spirit... the ideas and images are provocative. A serious movie by one of the cinema's most important and innovative directors."

—William Weir, Gannett Newspapers

"Full of gentle reverence... thank you, Jean-Luc Godard, for daring to put a cutting edge on a story that has before been told too blandly, and for not only bringing it up-to-date but making it a tale completely viable for enlightened eyes and ears of today."

On the morning of July 5th, a scientist named Zack Hobson awoke to find that the world was gone - not things like cars, buildings, factories, the intricate mechanisms of humanity. Those were intact, as were the grasses that grew and the trees that stirred in the soft wind. But humanity itself - every human being in the world - had simply vanished. Zack Hobson, middleaged and unremarkable, was the last man on earth! ... or was he? From this premise emerges THE QUIET EARTH - a visual and provoking new film that compels an audience to truly grapple with their imagination and emotions.

Media-military relations subject of talk

Col. F. William Smullen III, who is a media relations officer in U.S. Army, will speak at a meeting of Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalism fraternity, at 6:30 p.m. Friday in the Student Center Thebes Room.

Smullen's talk, "Lessons Learned from Gander," will focus on military-press relations in light of the crash of the Arrow airline flight that killed 248 Fort Campbell soldiers coming home from a peace-keeping mission in the Sinai last Dec. 12.

Smullen received a commission as a second lieutenant in the Army in 1963 and his career has included a tour of Korea, one in Panama and two tours in Vietnam.

He has been assigned to the Pentagon in the Army's Office of Public Affairs as chief of the Media Relations Division since 1983. His talk is open to the public.

20 alumni named to business hall of fame

Twenty graduates of SIU-C will be the first inductees in a newly established College of Business and Administration's Alumni Hall of fame.

Induction will be at 7 p.m. Friday during the annual COBA Awards Banquet in the Student Center.

Selection to the Hall of Fame is based on achievements in business and industry since graduation. Candidates must have completed studies at SIU-C at least 10 years ago and must have reached senior managerial positions or have made other significant contributions.

Names of charter members will be engraved on a plaque that will hang in Rehn Hall, home of the college.

Following are those being inducted:

Thomas Barry, professor at Southern Methodist University; John Carnaghi, vice chancellor for financial affairs at Indiana University-Purdue; Walter Clark, executive vice president of Citicorp; Larry DeJarnett, vice president of Lear Siegler, Inc.; Robert Doretto, senior vice president, Wang Laboratories Inc.; Harold Dycus, partner and co-owner of Dycus and Bradley; Irl Engelhardt, senior vice president-marketing, Peabody Development Co.; and Francois-Regis Ferran, president of Pechiney Japon, Tokyo.

Also being inducted are:

Daniels Midland Co. and president of ADM-Growmark; Charles Lounsbury, group vice president of Leaseway Transportation; Kenneth Pontikes, president of Comdisco Inc.; Vincent Sauget, president of Sauget Properties Ltd.; J. Daniel Snyder, president of engineered products for Allegheny International; William Spencer, comptroller for Union Pacific Railroad; and Robert Stevens, president of First American Bankshares.

'Wrongful life' suits cause moral dilemma, prof says

By Tricia Yocum
Staff Writer

A definite conflict occurs when, given a woman's right to procreate, courts allow a mother to be sued by her handicapped child because she allowed her child to be born rather than have an abortion.

This, philosophy professor George Schedler told about 30 people at the Philosophy Colloquium Thursday at Paner Hall, is the basic conflict dealt with by the courts when they grant settlements to disabled people in what is known as "wrongful life suits."

Parents of the disabled have also been allowed to sue physicians, saying that if they had been informed of the disability they would have aborted the fetus and saved themselves pain and anguish. These suits are known as "wrongful birth cases."

For example, he said, a mother could have rubella during pregnancy and her child be born deaf. The mother may sue the doctor for wrongful birth, saying she would have aborted had she known of the handicap.

In the same case, a child may say he or she should have never been born and sue both the mother and the doctor.

In discussion following the talk, he said the rights of unborn children are moot.

Student assaulted in liquor store lot

An SIU-C student was assaulted and robbed Wednesday shortly after 7 p.m. in the parking lot of ABC Liquor Mart at 109 N. Washington St., according to Carbondale police.

Carbondale police spokesman Neil Jacobson said William C. Altenberger, 28, of Warren Hall, Thompson Point, was approached by two men who asked him for the beer he carried as he was leaving the liquor store. Jacobson said when Altenberger refused, he was hit in the face and neck. The two suspects then took Altenberger's wallet with $38 in it and $3 worth of beer, Jacobson said.

Police are looking for two black men in their 20s who are about 5 feet 9 inches tall and of medium build.

except, in effect, when the unborn is handicapped — in which case the child has a right to not live and it's the mother's duty to kill her child in the womb.

Schedler asked, if a woman has the right to decide whether or not she wishes to bear children, does she then have a duty to the unborn child to abort in light of possible handicaps? Other problems, Schedler said, occur because of Roe vs. Wade, which legalized abortion in the United States.

The Supreme Court said the state could not interfere with a woman's pregnancy, but state interference is indeed present when wrongful life suits are allowed, he said.

30,000 barrels.

This rather steady, predictable nature of Illinois oil production is one factor that helps Illinois producers weather the "bust" cycles of the oil business, Fieber says.

Another is the fact that oil here is relatively easy to find and pump from the ground.

The Illinois Basin, he explains, is relatively shallow, and many of its multiple sandstone and limestone formations produce oil, making it much easier to find and pump than in many other oil-producing states, such as Texas, Louisiana and Alaska.

THE SUCCESS rate for the 2,260 wells drilled in 1985 was 61.7 percent, with 1,347 wells producing oil and 47 wells producing natural gas, according to Joan E. Crockett, assistant geologist with the Department of Energy and Natural Resources. The average well depth was 2,522 feet.

Such a success rate and average depth makes Illinois wells attractive by eliminating the need for a large initial investment, says George R. Lane, a petroleum engineer with the Illinois Department of Mines and Minerals.

According to industry figures prior to the recent drop in oil prices, a typical well in Illinois cost between $50,000 and $75,000 to drill and about the same amount for completion.

Lease costs are also low, an acre generally leasing for about $25, with a one-eighth royalty to the landowner. Terms for the leases are usually one year or less.

Some operators, like the Fiebers, save even more by drilling on land they own, thereby saving royalty costs. Fieber, whose family owns 35 wells on their 2,000 acres, says this savings is especially important during bust periods, when many operators must plug wells because the oil income does not cover lease costs.

ILLINOIS WELLS also provide favorable tax breaks because of the relatively low production levels, Lane says. "Historically Illinois has been a good investment for businessmen with large incomes."

And, Fieber says, the Illinois Basin is very responsive to a common secondary recovery technique known as waterflooding, which increases production and makes the basin even more attractive to investors.

The waterflooding technique, Fieber explains, involves flooding a formation with water at one point to force oil out of another. And here in Illinois the sandy formations that hold the oil are particularly responsive to waterflooding, which often produces as much oil as primary recovery.

In addition to oil, the wells in the Illinois Basin produce natural gas. But most sites do not produce enough to make capturing it economical. Instead, it is flared off, Fieber says. However, some sites, particularly those in Kentucky, do produce enough gas to warrant capturing it for sale.

But all the oil is for sale. And even though Illinois is no longer a major oil producer, Illinois oil does make an important contribution to the nation and, more importantly, the state.

The question is what happens now?

Although the experts disagree on just what the answer to that question is, there is no doubt that it hinges on what happens in the Middle East.

Says Fieber: "Everybody knows that if something changes in the Middle East tomorrow, everything from today and earlier becomes ancient history."

Journalism head expects 500 at spring conference for press

Five hundred people are expected to attend the 36th Annual Spring Conference of the Southern Illinois School Press Association Monday, according to W. Manion Rice, acting director of the School of Journalism.

The conference will be held from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Student Center and is the first scheduled event for Journalism Week, which begins Monday.

Awards will be presented to advisers of the year, newspapers, yearbooks and individual students. Twelve faculty members and students will serve as judges. Discussions will be led by 11 faculty and graduate students. There will also be a public relations speaker at the conference.

Also on Monday, Robert W. Charleton, public affairs manager for Dow Chemical Co., will present a lecture titled "Crisis Communication," from 1:30 to 2:50 p.m. in the Morris Library Auditorium.

The SIU-C Chapter of the American Advertising Federation will present its 1986 advertising campaign for the Levi Strauss Co.'s women's jeans, Blue Shadow, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in Lawson 141. The five-member team presented the same campaign Thursday for a district competition in Chicago.

A representative from D'Arcy Advertising, St. Louis, will visit journalism classes Wednesday. A presentation of photographs by Larry Burrows, a photographer killed in the Vietnam War, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Lawson 171.

On Thursday, Rob Schorman, executive editor of the Messenger-Inquirer, Owensboro, Ky., will visit two graphics classes. Ric Cox, senior editor of Reader's Digest and graduate of SIU-C's School of Journalism, will lecture at 3 p.m. in the auditorium-theater of the Student Center.

A joint banquet for the School of Journalism and the Southern Illinois Editorial Association will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday. D.G. Schumacher, executive editor of the Alton Telegraph, will be honored at the banquet as the 1986 Journalism Alumnus of the Year. Scholarship awards will also be presented.

Tickets for the banquet are $8 for students, $10 for non-students, and $4 for scholarship winners.

Three journalists who recently entered the SIU-C's Journalism Hall of Fame will be honored at noon Friday at the Carbondale Ramada Inn group makes it, and what the representatives are," she said. Involvement from all the different departments is needed, not just a select few, she said, but is not sure yet what it will take to get them involved.

The Hall of Fame entrees are Edward H. Jenison, editor and publisher of the Paris Beacon News; Erwin J. Mahlandt, editor of the Breese Journal; and Jack Vertrees, editor of the Wayne County Press.

Their input will be needed by the GPSC in the coming year, McCormack said, because many important issues will be coming before the council. The issues regarding the Rain-the proposed library expansion and graduate student monies are a few of those she listed.

Students at SIU-C are lucky, she said, in that the administration asks for and listens to the students input when they need to make decisions.

As an individual and with the group, McCormack said she would like to help the University make those decisions.

Law leadership course to be held

The Law Enforcement Leadership Management and Adventure Course, a three-day training workshop, will be held at Touch of Nature Tuesday through Thursday, Thursday.

The outdoor and classroom training workshop is designed to promote the law enforcement concepts of teamwork, leadership, trust, safety, communication and employee and supervisor relationship.

Correction

The Daily Egyptian incorrectly reported that Army ROTC graduates receiving commissions are committed to six years of active duty.

Graduates who were on scholarships must serve four years on active duty and then may serve two years in the reserve or National Guard and two years in the inactive reserve.

Pornography, prostitution called an insult to dignity

By Clotelia Slider
Staff Writer

Women's bodies being used as commodities for prostitution and pornography is "an insult on human dignity," said Kathleen Barry, feminist and sociology professor at Brandeis University near Boston, at a lecture in Lawson Hall Wednesday.

Barry is in Carbondale as a guest of the Women's Studies Program in conjunction with the College of Human Resources Conference.

Having conducted research on pornography and prostitution, Barry said many women are forced into "commodifying their bodies" for prostitution.

According to Barry, many women go into prostitution to fulfill a need. This may be a need for survival, Barry explains. She used the example of a girl being put out of her parents household into the streets after being sexually violated by her stepfather to show how a woman can be "forced" to use her body as a commodity in order to survive.

"Sexual violence in family is the beginning of spitting a person," Barry added. "The split in oneself becomes so complete when the experience is so devastating."

A split in the self is necessary to live the daily experience of being paid, like a commodity, for sexual pleasure, says Barry.

Barry said 65 to 80 percent of women have been victims of incest, rape or both.

She said there is an interconnection of different types of sexual violence.

Barry said men are solely responsible for prostitution, adding that she blames women who help make the system work on an individual basis. According to Barry, prostitutes who may make their lives easier by helping the pimps gather other women for prostitution should be held accountable for their actions. However, Barry said these women started out as victims, therefore they should not be faulted.

6 students get $10,000 scholarships

Six graduate students from across the nation were awarded Delyte and Dorothy Morris Doctoral Fellowships Thursday.

Each scholar will receive annual stipends of $10,000 a year and free tuition for up to three years of doctoral degree study at SIU-C.

This year's Morris Fellowship recipients are Steven C. Baker, Hillsboro, Tenn.; Ellen A. Cypher, Makanda; Lizbeth L. Goodman, Yorktown Heights, N.Y.; Jeffrey D. Haseltine, Hitachi, Japan; Debra C. Jeter, Clarksville, Tenn.; and Cindy J. Peters, South Euclid, Ohio.

The recipients will be candidates for degrees in one of 31 doctoral degree programs.

The fellowships, named after the late SIU-C President Delyte W. Morris and his widow, Dorothy, are among the most valuable available anywhere to graduate students.

amount, $25,011.75 will be left to allocate to RSOs for general funding during fiscal 1987.

The USO received $272,161 in student fees for fiscal year 1986. After fee allocations in spring 1985, the USO had $60,307 for general funding to be used in 1986. After voting to allocate $4,327 to fund 13 RSOs Feb. 19, the senate had exhausted all of its general funding for the fiscal year.

Representatives from Black Affairs Council, Mid-America Peace Project and the Gay and Lesbian People's Union attended the senate meeting Wednesday to protest recommendations of the USO Finance Committee for their fee allocations.

The Finance Committee recommended that BAC receive $17,546 for fiscal year 1987. However, Jim Davis, assistant coordinator of BAC, said the group needs an extra $2,000 to expand the circulation of the Five O' Clock News, a student newspaper produced by BAC.

Justus Weathersby, the editor of the Five O'Clock News, said the paper's circulation of 2,000 is not enough to meet the demands of people on campus. He said BAC has been receiving complaints from people who have not received issues of the paper.

Dan Sheridan, general funding chairman for Finance Committee, said that because the USO will have just $25,011.75 for general funding for 1987, it cannot afford to allocate any more funds.

Sheridan said that BAC received a $2,000 funding increase this year.

Sheridan said larger RSOs are draining most of the funds and need to budget their money so that enough funds will be left for smaller RSOs.

The Finance Committee recommended that GLPU receive $687 for fiscal year 1987. Of that money the USO allocated a total of $189 to the organization for Gay Awareness Week activities. Lori Hanniran, director of GLPU, said GLPU needs $700 for advertising.

She said that it was not fair that GLPU was only recommended $189 for promoting Gay Awareness Week since the committee recommended that RSOs such as the Mobilization of Volunteer Effort get $700 for a newsletter and the Non-Traditional Student Union $310 for advertising.

Sheridan said the Non-Tradition Student Union and MOVE were recommended more money because those organizations encompass a larger population of students than GLPU.

He added that GLPU events such as Gay Awareness Week are well covered by the media and that GLPU has an established "grapevine" to inform members of events.

Prior to voting on the funding, GLPU and the Finance Committee agreed that $146 that was to go to a GLPU resource library could be diverted for advertising.

The Finance Committee

recommended that MAPP receive $700 for fiscal 1987. Brian Blank, chairman of MAPP, said the group was allocated $1,200 last spring. He said it was unfair that the group's funding be cut because it has sponsored movies, concerts and other events that may have benefited many students on campus.

MAPP had requested $300 more than the Finance Committee recommendation for funding, which Blank said is needed for advertising.

Sheridan said the group did not receive funding for other programs because it had requested funding for events that are still tentative. Blank said the group is aware of exactly what funding is needed and that the Finance Committee did not take enough time to evaluate the MAPP request.

John Attard, member of the Finance Committee, said the committee "took plenty of time" to evaluate MAPP's funding request and had only recommended the funding MAPP had specified as necessary.

The bills to fund the three RSOs were passed by the senate according to the Finance Committee's recommendations.

The senate also voted to remove School of Communications Senator Bradley Boggs because he missed three senate meetings. The USO Constitution allows senators to miss only two meetings.

primary plans to run as an independent so as not to run on the same ticket as two followers of extremist Lyndon LaRouche who received Democratic nominations.

Although state law prohibits a candidate who participated in a primary from running as an independent, Stevenson is seeking a legal solution that would permit him to do so.

The LaRouche followers, Mark Fairchild and Janice Hart, won the nominations for lieutenant governor and secretary of state in an upset that shocked the Democratic Party.

Since the primary Stevenson has been trying to distance himself from the LaRouche candidates, and he is still pursuing legal remedies for having them removed from the Democratic ticket, Riggio said.

Despite the setback, Democratic leaders have pledged their support for Stevenson. His Southern Illinois campaign manager, Einar V. Dyhrkopp, has called on downstate Democrats to make a show of unity by supporting Sunday's fund-raising event.

"Southern Illinois needs Adlai Stevenson, and right now Adlai needs Southern Illinois," Dyhrkopp said.

"We need to rout the LaRouche extremists and direct all our efforts to replacing a do-nothing governor with one who wants Illinois — southern, central and northern — to get moving again," he said.

Riggio said ticket sales for Sunday's event have been going "extremely well," but he did not have a count on just how many had been sold.

A press conference will be held before the event.

Art graduate's work stands out in competitive Big Apple market

By Maureen Cavanagh
Staff Writer

Frederick Brown, internationally acclaimed painter, returned to SIU-C, his alma mater, this week to escape the fast lane for a few days and paint ceramic pots and speak with art students and faculty about his life as a watercolor and oil expressionist.

Brown, 41, presented slides of his work before a packed audience in the Museum Auditorium Tuesday and lectured on the tribulations of being an artist. His visit was sponsored by the College of Communications and Fine Arts.

His works are now quite comfortable resting beside Picasso's, Rembrandt's and Dekooning's. They hang in such prestigious places as the Marlborough Galleries in New York City and Hokin-Kaufman in Chicago. He also has several pieces in the permanent collection of the New York Metropolitan Museum of Art. One work, titled "A Window in Paris," is hanging in the White House. His pieces range from stark and depressing to aggressively colorful.

AS AN UNDERGRADUATE, Brown turned in work for grades and then returned to his native Chicago to sell them. He made enough money then to buy a car.

After graduating from SIU-C with degrees in psychology and painting, he landed a job with the Chicago Tribune selling advertising. He had given up painting after works he exhibited in the Student Center were stolen.

When he arrived at Harvard University for a graduate interview, Brown spoke with a professor who advised him to go to Europe because he was "culturally deprived" and decide whether he wanted to be an art historian or a painter.

He was offered a scholarship at the University of Chicago but was later rejected. He was told he should be working professionally.

HIS FIRST one-man show was arranged then. The series was done entirely on industrial roll paper. The show sold out. When his friend told him "Chicago is a town, New York is a city," he went to New York to write plays.

"I liked it so much and I saw all these different artists and musicians and people I used to read about," he said.

He moved to New York for a summer and was installed in a prominent show displaying the works of such artists as Andy Warhol. "It was just a matter of persistence and also knowing the game," says Brown.

"The act of painting is a love. The marketing of it is a business, and there is only a small group of people who run that business."

TO INCH HIS way in on one occasion while in Liberia, a debt-plagued Brown borrowed more money to entertain, for the sole purpose of accumulating more prospective buyers and dealers.

Later in his life, Brown traveled to London, intending to attend the Royal Academy of Fine Arts. But because he disliked Britain, he found his way to Denmark, which was at the time "a really avant-garde city on all fronts."

When he missed a flight back to the United States from Europe, he was stranded in an airport and vowed to take the next flight out. It happened to be Air Bahamas. Once in the Bahamas, Brown decided to dedicate his life to painting under the motto, "If I starve to death it's okay, at least I won't be bored."

PERHAPS BROWN'S painting of "The Last Supper" was the clincher that inaugurated him into the world of art. The grand-scale painting depicts a black Christ. Eleven of Brown's friends modeled as the disciples. The men are wearing modern clothing, such as business suits and polo shirts. The tablecloth in the painting is very ornate and Judas has his back turned to the viewer.

The one work he says he will never sell is "Joshy's Dream." "Joshy" was Brown's favorite cousin who relayed his "idea of the other side" as he lay dying of cancer. Brown listened and immediately went to work on a painting.

"LIVING ON EDGE just about gave Brown a nervous breakdown. When he became ill, he did a very bleak series of faces to try to record his feelings. Most of the faces are globular and reminiscent of the wooden hat stand in a department store.

He also did an abstract of the Milky Way Galaxy for Chicago's Adler Planetarium. The painting brings out the myriad of stars and matter in the universe with vivid, splashing colors.

"Art is a creative energy," says Brown. "People are attracted to it, believe in it or maybe they're just like a sort of guardian angel."

BROWN SAYS he has made a personal pact with God. He tells him "I just want to be your humble servant on your planet here, but I'm one of your top servants because I try more than anyone else."

The information he needs for art, he believes "doesn't come from you it comes through you."

"Everyday you get some more 'equipment' to persevere and work with," he says. That equipment is experience, which keeps you from worrying."

Life as an artist is one of "ups and downs," he says. "I don't want to paint it as a totally rosy picture, but the down side of it has a lot to do with stamina, as well as experience."

HE SAYS he strives to "paint feelings that are pretty universal and go beyond language."

"You become a sociologist" in discovering human nature's "common denominator."

Brown says he is "absolutely amazed at professionalism of students. I really take my hat off to the whole SIU department."

Upon receiving a certificate of honor from the Alumni Association, Brown said that it confirms he "will no longer be taking cold showers and everything else."

"DO IT NOW, because tomorrow is not promised" is his advice to aspiring artists. "If you don't get it out, you'll go crazy." He also recommends attaining discipline through education. "The professional world is just a continuation of school. After you graduate, you still have to do homework."

Also, he says, "Don't play victim. There are more prey than predators." He tells himself that he alone "is in charge."

Last year, Art News featured Brown as one of the "Artists The Critics Are Watching." Vogue Magazine featured him in a June 1985 article, titled "Rule Breakers."

Women tracksters face 35 teams at prestigious Kansas relay meet

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

The Saluki women's track team faces a field of competitors from 35 schools Friday and Saturday at the Kansas Relays in Lawrence, Kan. The meet is part of track's "triple crown," along with the Texas and Drake relays.

Saluki Coach Don DeNoon said Wednesday that the tracksters' performance in the non-scored meet could earn the Salukis considerable prestige.

"We'll be competing against a lot of really strong programs and by virtue of us showing that we can compete at this level it will give us some prestige.

He added that a strong performance could also enhance the Salukis' prospects of recruiting top-level athletes for next season.

DeNoon will take 13 athletes to Kansas, making the Salukis one of the largest teams at the meet. DeNoon says that is indicative of how much the Salukis have improved since last season. Last year, the Salukis entered only three or four athletes in one or two events, he said.

Among individual athletes, throwing event specialist Rhonda McCausland is expected to turn in a strong performance in the shot put and the discus. McCausland, a senior from Valparaiso, Ind., "should perform at the top of the heap," DeNoon said.

McCausland has already qualified for the nationals in the shot with a 51-1 throw. She will seek to do the same in the discus, where she is seeded fourth with a 159-3.5 throw.

Sprinters Carlon and Denise Blackman, are also expected to turn in top performances. Carlon will be competing in the 400-meter dash and the 1,600-meter relay.

Denise, SIU-C's all-time leading scorer, will compete in the 200-meter dash, in which she is seeded in the top ten, and in the 1,600- and 400-meter relays. She has a good chance of qualifying for the NCAAs in the 200-meter, DeNoon said.

DeNoon is also looking for top performances from the 400- and 1,600-meter relay teams. In the 1,600-meter, the Saluki quartet of Dora Kyriacou, the Blackman sisters and Angie Nunn will be taking aim at the NCAA qualifying mark of 3 minutes, 37 seconds.

DeNoon learned Wednesday that the University of Nebraska, not the Salukis, had the top 1,600-meter relay team in the country. Nebraska broke the 3:35.0 mark earlier this season, probably at the Texas Relays, DeNoon said.

But DeNoon is still optimistic about the Salukis' chances in the event. "Any time any one of those kids runs well enough to place well in this particular meet they're probably, one, going to break a school record, and two, qualify for the NCAAs."

Other Salukis who will compete in the meet are: Christiana Philippou, triple and long jumps; Amy Marker, 10,000-meter run; Brenda Beatty, long jump and 400-meter relay; Darcie Stinson, 400-meter dash and 400-meter relay; Audra Corson, shot and javelin; Kathy Raske, 100-meter hurdles and 400-meter relay; Felicia Veal, 100- and 400-meter hurdles; and Vivian Sinou, 3,000- and 5,000-meter runs.

Netters to hit with GCAC foes at SIU-E

By Steve Merritt
Sports Editor

The SIU-C women's tennis team travels to Edwardsville this weekend for an individual tournament that will pit the Salukis against five Gateway Conference opponents.

With no team points being kept, all competition will be based on individual performances, coach Judy Auld said. In singles competition, brackets will be drawn for the No. 1, 2 and 3 players and the No. 4, 5 and 6 players in another pool. Doubles brackets will have the same format.

"It's an important weekend for us because it's the weekend before the conference tournament," Auld said. "It would be a really good time to knock off some other schools."

Auld said she will be looking for good performances from No. 1 singles player, Ellen Moellering, and a good showing from the No. 1 doubles team of Moellering and Dana Cherebetiu.

Men tracksters face 7 teams at invitational

By Steve Koulos
Staff Writer

The SIU-C men's track and field team will be competing in the seven-team Arkansas Invitational at Fayetteville on Saturday.

The seven-team field includes Illinois, Mississippi, Missouri, Oral Roberts, Tulsa, SIU-C, and host Arkansas, which is the defending NCAA outdoor champions. Arkansas has also won the last three NCAA indoor track titles.

Saluki men's track coach Bill Cornell says the competition at Arkansas will be strong as the competition last weekend at the Dogwood Relays.

"Our main purpose in this meet is to look for general improvement from the whole team," Cornell said. "We also hope to qualify three individuals for nationals."

Cornell believes Mike Elliott and Bret Garrett can reach the national qualifying standard of one minute and 48.11 seconds this weekend in the 800-meter run.

Last week, Elliott ran a personal best 1:48.84 in the 800 and missed qualifying by only .73 of a second. Garrett also turned in a strong performance in the distance medley relay, running a 1:48.89 split over 800 meters.

"There will be some fine 800-meter runners from Arkansas that should push Elliott and Garrett," Cornell said.

Arkansas' top two 800-meters runners are Espen Borge (1:48.70) and Robert Bradley (1:49.17), who each ran personal bests last weekend in the Razorback Invitational.

Cornell also thinks Ron Harrer can qualify for nationals in the discus.

Harrer, who has a personal best of 184.9 in the discus, needs a throw of at least 190.0 to qualify. Harrer is also entered in two other events - the javelin and the shot put.

Cornell announced that Andrew Pettigrew, a potential national qualifier in the 1500, has a small stress fracture in his left foot and is going to be sidelined for two weeks. Pettigrew was entered in the 1500-meter run and the 1600-meter relay this weekend.

"Pettigrew hopes to return in time for the Illinois meet on May 3 and be ready for the conference meet the following week," Cornell said. "Those decisions are personally his own because I would never ask him to run when he is injured."

While Cornell has lost Pettigrew, he said three athletes - Bill Henning, Gerard Horan, and Brian Bradley - have recovered from injuries and will compete this weekend.

Henning is entered in three events - the 110-meter high hurdles, the long jump, and the discus. Horan is entered in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles.

Bradley, who has been sidelined for three weeks because of a pulled hamstring, is entered in two events - the long jump and the 400-meter relay.

Other Saluki entries include Connor Mason in the 100 and 200-meter dashes; Larry Holloway in the 110-meter high hurdles and 400-meter intermediate hurdles; Felipe Martin in the triple jump and long jump; and Shane Weber and Mike Michels in the pole vault.

After returning from Arkansas, the Salukis will compete in the Spring Time Invitational at Tallahassee, Fla.

Salukis lose Simeon recruit to Fighting Illini

SIU-C is out of the running for Erving Small, the 6-7, 190-pounder out of Chicago Simeon High School. As reported by a Chicago based publication on Wednesday morning, Small has signed with the University of Illinois, which has pursued Small's services for several weeks.

According to Saluki head coach Rich Herrin, in attendance at Wednesday's baseball game with McKendree College, the Salukis still have two or three scholarships left and are "still trying to sign one or two."

"We'll can get by with what we've got," Herrin said of his recruiting crop of four early signers.

Herrin declined to comment on who SIU-C was recruiting, saying that from past experience that he'd "be better off not to tell anybody."

Herrin, who is looking for big men to help improve an 8-20 overall record last season, may have to turn to the ranks of junior colleges if he is to fill the remaining scholarships he has available.

Cubs hope friendly confines will spark team's showing

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Chicago Cubs are counting on the phrase "the last shall be first" to hold some meaning beginning Friday at the "friendly confines" of Wrigley Field.

The Cubs will be the last to stage a season opener when they host the Pittsburgh Pirates at sold-out Wrigley Field Friday afternoon. The Cubs, considered a major contender against the New York Mets for a division title this season, also will find themselves last in the National League Eastern Division after the season's rocky start on the road.

Rick Sutcliffe, 0-2, is expected to face the Pirates' Rick Reuschel before a crowd of 37,000 in the club's 70th home opener. Temperatures in the 60s are forecast.

The contest also will be the first of a nine-game home series which also will feature the National League champion St. Louis Cardinals and Montreal Expos.

Seats for the home opener, always one of the toughest tickets in town, have been sold out for several weeks.

Walter Payton of the Super Bowl champion Chicago Bears will toss out the ceremonial first pitch, mirroring the same task his coach, Mike Ditka, had on April 7 with the crosstown rival Chicago White Sox.

Chicago, which beat Pittsburgh in its home opener 2-1 one year ago, have fared well in the last two decades on Opening Day, which may spring some hope Chicago can bounce back from its slow start. The Cubs have won 12 of their last 20 home openers.

Chicago's opening homestand one year ago saw the Cubs win seven of their opening eight home games.

Things went downhill after a rash of injuries to the club's pitching staff in June and Chicago ended the season 77-84. The Cubs did feast on the Pirates, beating Pittsburgh 13 of 18 times.

Two familiar veterans who have been a source of controversy in the opening two weeks of the season are expected to be in the lineup for the Cubs. Ron Cey will start at third base and Gary Matthews in left, according to Manager Jim Frey, who benched the pair for the Cubs' season opening series in St. Louis.

"This is an issue that seems to be talked about every day and maybe there is too much focus on it, but I have decided to let them play for a while. I don't know how long," Frey said. "I've told them that we will go with this lineup for a little while and see what happens."

Women athletes get conference academic awards

By Steve Merritt
Sports Editor

Eight student-athletes from the SIU-C women's athletic department have been named as 1985-86 Gateway Collegiate Athletics Conference Presidents' All-Academic Award winners.

To be named to the all-academic team, student-athletes must maintain at least a 3.8 grade point average (on a scale of 4.0). Honorable mentions are awarded to athletes with GPA's ranging between 3.5 and 3.8.

Named to the All-Academic Award was: Maria Coch, tennis; Cynthia Espeland, softball; Deb Koher, basketball; Robin Martin, track; Dawn Thompson and Beth Winsett, volleyball; and Iris Von Jouanne and Sue Wittry, swimming.

The eight award-winning student athletes doubles the amount of award winners from other Gateway schools. Southwest Missouri, Eastern Illinois and Illinois State were the next closest schools, with each having four award-winning athletes.

SIU-C also took 14 honorable mentions in the awards. Honorable mention winners are: Sue Anderson, Pam Herker, Jenna DeMattei and Natalie Tyus of the track team; Jill Bertram, golf; Lori Day, softball; Lisa Cummins, volleyball; Margaret Calcott and Nancy Sanchez, gymnastics; Marialice Jenkins, basketball; and Lori Rhea, Jackie Taljaard, Amy Witherrite and Claudia Zierold of the swimming team.

The total 119 award-winning student-athletes represents an all-time high for the conference, surpassing the 113 awarded during the 1983-84 academic year.

Gateway commissioner Patty Viverito praised the student-athletes who still had time to be students.

"This award is one of the highest honors we can bestow upon our athletes," Viverito said. "It is difficult enough to maintain a fine GPA without the demands that athletics make on one's time and energy. These students deserve to be recognized and congratulated for their fine accomplishment."

Nilsson laid back in the second and third sets, relinquishing control of the match to Armbruester and losing the second set, 6-7, before capping the third set, 7-5.

"The first set I played my game," he said. "The second and third sets I played his game," Nilsson said.

Nilsson scored on several overhead smashes and service points during the final set to bring him through to victory.

Saluki No. 3 singles player Jairo Aldana defeated Evansville's Ben Battock, 3-6, 6-4 and 6-3, and Fabiano Ramos and Juan Martinez, Nos. 5 and 6 singles for SIU-C, handled their opponents in two sets each.

Women golfers to hit the greens at invitational

By Sandra Todd
Associate Sports Editor

The Saluki women golfers hit the greens this weekend at the Stevens College Invitational in Columbia, Mo.

Coach Sonya Stalberger described the 54-hole event as fairly small, which is a switch from the larger tournaments in the fall, but not quality-diminished because of the minute field.

"This is our third tournament this spring with only six teams," she said. "But the quality isn't any less than what we've faced all year."

The Salukis competitors are the University of Missouri-Columbia; the University of Northern Iowa, a Gateway Conference foe; Southwest Missouri State, also GCAC; Northeast Missouri and Stevens College.

Stalberger assessed that U.M.-Columbia would pose the most likely threat to the Salukis for the tournament crown.

"I look for a really competitive tournament with Missouri," she said. "They beat us three weeks ago at the Western Kentucky Invitational by 15 shots, but I don't feel they're necessarily better than us."

"It's our tournament to win if we keep playing with the level of confidence as we did at Champaign," Stalberger said. "The girls are really hungry for the win."

Stalberger said that the Stevens College course should be very scoreable, noting that it was not an extremely difficult course.

"Compared to Illinois' course, there are a lot fewer places to get into trouble," she said.

The tournament team which consists of Jill Bertram, Tina Kozlowski, Kelly Mason, Vicki Higginson and Pat Putnam, will play 27 holes (rounds of 18 and 9) both Saturday and Sunday.

primarily consists of Tom Julian (2-1, 3.23, three saves) and Mark Behny (2-2, 4.10, two saves).

The Shockers lineup is loaded with two jackrabbits, shortstop Arnie Beyeler and center fielder Kent Headley. Headley, hitting .364, leads the MVC with 25 stolen bases. Teammate Beyeler, with a .384 average, is second in the conference with 22 steals.

The two brothers who send the roadrunners home are the Raleys; third baseman Dan (.357, nine homers, 39 RBI) and Tim (.358, seven home runs, 44 RBI).

Women ruggers to play tourney in St. Louis

The SIU-C women's Rugby Club travels to St. Louis this weekend for four matches in Forest Park at the 11th Annual St. Louis Tournament.

On Saturday, the team faces Oklahoma, Mizzou, which they blanked 52-0 last weekend and St. Louis, which they defeated 33-0 earlier this season. On Sunday the top two teams from Saturday's contests will meet for the final match on Sunday.

SIU-C won the tourney last year and looks to be a strong contender to win again this year.

"We're pretty confident we're going to win," said Teri Hannigan.

Rollie Oliguino on the Salukis No. 1 doubles team to defeat Evansville's No. 1 and 2 singles players, David Petrie and Dick Waterfall, 6-4 and 6-3.

Visconti and Aldana split sets with Battock and Pat Hymen, 6-7 and 6-4, so instead of playing the third set in its entirety, coaches LeFevre and Eric Rogers had the two teams play a tiebreaker to decide the winner. Visconti and Aldana won easily, 7-2.

Ramos and Martinez also split sets and ended their match on a tiebreaker.

Evansville lost the first set, 6-1, then tied the match by winning the second, 6-4.

Both teams played the tiebreaker point-for-point until it was finally decided in favor of SIU-C, 6-6.

The Salukis are now 5-16 overall.

sacrificed him to second base. Finley fanned for the second out, and Robert Jones blooped a hit into right field to score Pitchford.

Floarke subsequently retired the next 12 Saluki batters in a row until Chuck Vershoore's single in the eighth.

The Cougars scored one run in the fourth and three in the fifth, but the big insurance blows came in the seven-run eighth inning.

Softball team plays host for weekend twinbills

By Steve Merritt
Sports Editor

Fresh from a sweep over nationally-ranked Division II opponent Southeast Missouri, the Saluki softball team continues its Gateway Conference schedule this weekend with twinbills on Friday and Saturday.

An even 12-12 on the year and 2-2 in the Gateway, the Salukis face Northern Iowa Friday at 2 p.m. and will follow up with Drake at noon Saturday. Both games will be played on the IAW fields across from the Student Rec Center.

The Bulldogs are 2-5 in GCAC play and 13-17 overall with Drake being 3-5, 12-17 on the season. Even though both teams have worse records than the Salukis, SIU-C coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said her team cannot take either opponent lightly.

"Anyone could win the conference this year," Brechtelsbauer said, using the Gateway standings to prove her point.

Preseason favorite Bradley has already lost three conference games and stands at 3-1, 15-8 while second-place pick Illinois State stands at 4-2, 21-8.

"The conference is pretty balanced this year and you really can't count anyone out," Brechtelsbauer said.

Brechtelsbauer said she was pleased with Wednesday night's sweep over SEMO, a highly-ranked Division II team that Brechtelsbauer said was "certainly no pushover."

In the first game against SEMO, the Salukis led the whole way and emerged on top by a 5-4 final margin. Right-fielder Dana Ridel went 2-for-3 with one run batted in while outfielder counterpart Rhonda Snow (cf) went 3-for-4 with two triples, two runs scored and two RBIs.

Shortstop Jenny Shupryt and freshman pitcher Lori Day contributed offensively, with Shupryt getting a two-run single and Day going 2-for-3 while scoring a run.

In the second game, the Salukis trailed 1-0 until the sixth inning, when Shupryt hit a two-run homer to get the game-winning hit. Pitcher Lisa Peterson added two doubles while Snow continued her torrid pace at the plate by going 2-for-3.

On the day, Snow went 5-for-7, collected two RBIs and scored two runs.

Brechtelsbauer said she was extremely pleased with the defensive effort by the battery of catcher Kelly Fox and Peterson in the second game, citing several heads-up defensive plays by the tandem.

"Lisa came through with some key strikeouts and Kelly did an outstanding job behind the plate," Brechtelsbauer said.

Brechtelsbauer, who has worried the past few weeks that her team was putting too much pressure on themselves, said she was also pleased that her team appeared to be more relaxed at the twinbill with SEMO.

"We're going to come out and play hard but we'll try not to pressure ourselves," Brechtelsbauer said of the weekend's games. "We're just going to go out and play and just try to have fun—we seem to play a lot better that way."

Saluki men netters serve Evansville 8-1 loss

By Martin Folan
Staff Writer

The Saluki men netters won their third-consecutive meet Thursday afternoon by defeating the Evansville Aces, 8-1, at the Arena courts.

The Salukis took five of the six singles matches against Evansville's hard-hitting squad. The Aces seemed to pose a greater threat to SIU-C than previous teams because of their strong ground game.

But the Salukis struck back to bring the Aces' games under control.

Saluki No. 2 singles player Chris Visconti met Evansville's Dick Waterfall in a rematch from last season in which Waterfall emerged the victor.

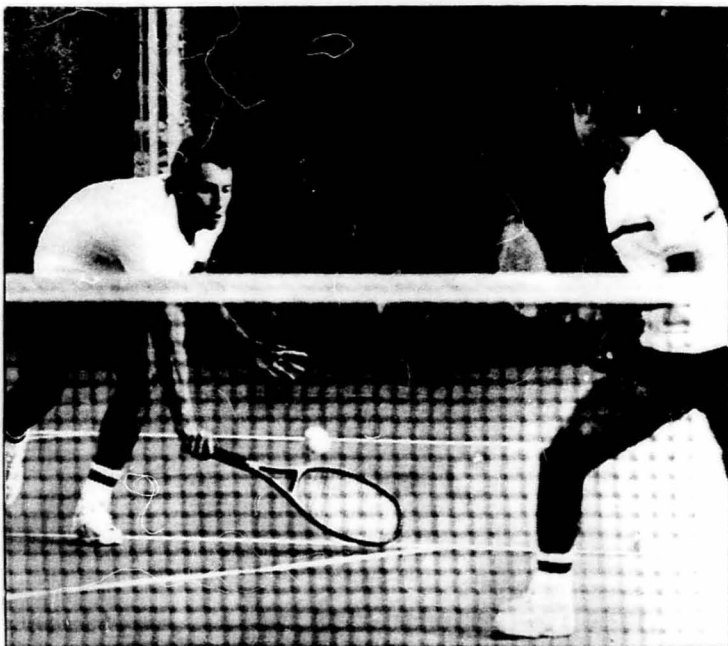

Visconti dropped the first set, 6-3, but found Waterfall's weakness and played on it the next two sets to avenge his loss in the fall, 6-4 and 6-3.

"I played to his backhand, which was his weak spot," Visconti said. "He's beaten me before, so he knew how to beat me, but I beat him today."

Saluki No. 4 singles player Lars Nilsson, 4-11 overall, improved his play in an aggressive match versus Mike Armbruster. Nilsson cleaned out Armbruster in the first set, 6-0, by leading an attack through all six games.

"The first set I played offensively," Nilsson said. "He

SIU-E ends Saluki win streak with 11-1 rout

By Ron Warnick
Staff Writer

The SIU-Edwardsville Cougars brought the Salukis' seven-game winning streak to a screeching halt with an 11-1 drubbing Thursday at Edwardsville and dropping the Dogs' record to 27-13-1.

Cougar pitcher Chuck Floarke pacified SIU-C's hitters' bats to only three hits as he went the distance for his fourth win of the season.

Floarke's biggest offensive contributor was catcher Daren DePew, who hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning.

The Salukis again had glove troubles, committing six errors. Pitcher Tim Hollmann committed two miscues and shortstop Jay Burch, outfielders Gerald Pitchford and Steve Finley and catcher Tim McKinley each had one.

Hollmann, in his first start of the year, pitched seven and two-thirds innings, allowing nine hits, three walks and five earned runs in his first loss.

Reliever Shane Gooden, one of the Salukis' most effective pitchers, was shelled for four hits and five runs (three earned), including DePew's dinger.

Ironically, SIU-C scored the first and only Saluki run of the game in the fourth inning. Pitchford trotted to first base on a walk, and Terry Jones

Baseball Salukis look to leave Shockers short

By Ron Warnick
Staff Writer

Wichita State's pride recently has been wounded, and the Shockers will want to take out their frustrations in two weekend doubleheaders against the baseball Salukis at Wichita, Kansas.

Two weeks ago, the Shockers, nationally ranked and looking to dominate the Missouri Valley again, fell flat on their faces in the first weekend of conference play, losing three of four games in their home park to Bradley.

Last weekend, Wichita State spun their wheels again, splitting four games with Illinois State to stagnate in fourth place in the Valley standings with a 3-5 record.

Meanwhile, the Salukis, fighting inconsistency all season, split with Creighton and took three of four from Bradley for a second place 5-3 conference record.

Wichita State will have something to prove this weekend, coach Richard "Itchy" Jones said.

"They probably feel they should be better," Jones said. "So they're looking for a good weekend to get back on 500."

"Of course, we're gonna push ourselves because we want to improve our record in the Missouri Valley," Jones added.

What will need pushing this weekend is the Saluki's inconsistent defense, which may have troubles with Eck Stadium's fast artificial surface.

On Saturday, the Salukis will send Dale Kisten (5-0, 2.35 ERA) and David Henley (2-1, 3.18) to the mound and Lee Meyer (3-2, 4.67) and Todd Neibel (5-4) on Sunday.

Even with its problems, Wichita State is a well-rounded, tough-to-beat team. The Shockers, after last weekend's games, were ranked first in the MVC in earned run average (3.91), fielding average (.959) and second in batting average (.326).

The straw that stirs Wichita State drink is their pitching staff, led by Rich McIntyre (7-0, 3.00), Shane Durham (5-1, 3.42), David Haas (5-1, 4.37) and Shawn Pumphrey (4-3, 4.62).

Their relief staff, which leads the Valley in saves,
