Plans advance for St. Louis freeway

By Stan Kosinski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Despite Gov. Daniel Walker's veto, the plan for a four-lane highway connecting Southern Illinois with St. Louis is taking its first steps.

Under Walker's predecessor, Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, the proposed four-lane highway was approved, but with the election of Walker, the project has reached "a state of limbo," Ray Lech, executive vice-president of the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce, said during a recent interview.

The highway project was studied and planned for nearly two years, yet nothing concrete has evolved, Lech said.

John C. Gardner, member of a special committee involved with the highway project, said Walker revised the $900 million bond issue, eliminating the supplementary expressway. Walker decided to widen Route 13 into a four-lane highway from Carbondale to Murphysboro and build a two-lane freeway from Murphysboro to Nashville, Gardner said.

"This received negative reaction from state legislators," Gardner said. Walker vetoed the supplementary freeway project in July.

His reason, Lech said, was that not enough money was available for the project. Legislators did not share the same opinion, Lech added.

Mayor Neal Eckert said the governor told him it was a matter of priorities. The mayor said Walker did not elaborate.

"What must be done now is change the governor's priorities," Eckert said. In an attempt to achieve this, 10 cities have been asked for letters of support from their citizenry of the highway project. The letters are being solicited by mayors and chambers of commerce for use at a meeting with Walker and Department of Transportation Secretary Langhorns Bnd.

The meeting is scheduled for sometime after Labor Day. Arrangements are being made by Rep. Clyde Choate, D-Anne, minority leader of the House.

Written support for the highway is being solicited from Pinckneyville, Sparta, Du Quoin, Chester, Charleville, Johnston City, Harrisburg, Vienna, Metropolis and Anna-Jonesboro.

Letters also will be sought from area industries, President David R. Derge of SIU, President Thomas Deem of John Logan College in Carterville and mayors from Carbondale, Murphysboro, Herrin and Marion.

Gardner was unable to give any figures concerning the number of letters submitted by the cities. He said that since the drive had just begun, the cities have not been able to inform him of any returns.

The highway, if approved by the governor, should open industrial opportunities for Carbondale and provide the resident of St. Louis an opportunity to visit Carbondale, Eckert said.

"The highway is just one of the projects to make Carbondale a diversified city," Eckert said.

"From the inception of such a freeway to the actual work takes seven years on the average," J.E. Newton, district engineer, said. "The work can be completed by two construction seasons."

Pinckneyville corridor

The proposed Pinckneyville corridor as illustrated on the map would run from Carbondale to St. Louis. It would roughly parallel Illinois 13 but would tie a few miles to the southwest.

Walker campaign funds questioned

CHICAGO (AP) — Gov. Daniel Walker's campaign received contributions that could compromise his administration, newspapers reported Friday.

These included gifts from companies and businessmen that have had alleged underworld connections, contributions of questionable legality and others that flirt with the spirit of state law that prohibits contributions from agencies and firms regulated by the state.

Walker, approached by a newsmen at the state fair in Springfield, said he could not comment on the report of alleged hoodlum-linked contributions until he saw the specific allegations.

That report was carried in the Chicago Daily News, which Friday ran three copyrighted articles it said were based on a seven-month investigation.

The Daily News and the Chicago Sun-Times, which began a copyrighted series in Friday's editions, said they possessed computerized documents containing contributors and amounts. The amounts, the papers said, were printed in code.

Walker, a former corporation executive and maverick Democrat scored an upset victory over the Chicago organization of Mayor Richard J. Daley in 1972 and put himself in the national spotlight. He has repeatedly cast himself as a populist reform candidate.

Although he campaigned favoring full financial disclosure, he has refused to reveal the sources of his contributions until his opponent, former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, a Republican, does so.

Walker's campaign is believed to have cost about $2 million. At its conclusion, it was about $1 million in debt and Angelo Geocaris, his chief fund raising adviser, said recently the deficit currently totals about $500,000.

The Daily News said among Walker's contributors were two Chicago area contractors whose companies shared nearly $14 million in state business last year. It also said Geocaris secretly told prospective contributors they could buy good will in the Walker administration.

Geocaris was unavailable for comment Friday.

Walker said he still has the "highest confidence" in him and the governor generally denied any wrongdoing.

The Daily News said the governor's campaign received contributions from the August H. Skoglund Co., described by the Chicago Crime Commission as a business whose owner "openly and frequently associates with syndicate members."

Walker was president of the Crime Commission when Skoglund's construction company came under its scrutiny in 1968.

The daily News said Walker's official fund raising records credited the company with make two contributions, totaling as much as $6,000.

In addition, the newspaper said Frank V. Pantaleo, listed as a director and former president of the company, was credited with buying $1,000 worth of tickets for a $100-a-plate fund raising dinner for Walker last March.

Walker told the newsmen who approached him at the fair that those allegations added up to "one of those cases where the headlines supported by the facts."

He said the Skoglund company was cleared of alleged underworld suspicion in 1969. The governor, however, did not deny he received the contribution.

The president of another construction company investigated for syndicate links gave up to $5,000 to the Walker campaign, the newspaper said.

The two Chicago contractors that received the $14 million in state business were identified as Thomas J. Bowler and George Krug. The Daily News said they gave as much as $15,000.

Other contributions which were revealed Friday came from employee groups at the Kemper Insurance Co., and the American National Bank and Trust Co., both of Chicago.

Spokesmen confirmed the contributions of each but said they did not violate the state law barring contributions from agencies regulated by the state, because the money was given by individuals.

Ceiling might force cut in retail price of gas

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Cost of Living Council said Friday the new price ceilings for gasoline will force many service stations to reduce their retail prices between one and three cents per gallon on Sept. 1.

A spokesman said these stations are already charging higher prices than will be allowed under the new price ceilings. Others, however, may be able to increase prices by a few cents.

The council released its new Phase 4 regulations for the oil industry and said they will take effect for all of the industry except retail gasoline and diesel fuel dealers on Monday.

The regulations provide for ceiling prices on gasoline, diesel fuel, heating oil, crude oil and other petroleum products.

A council spokesman said users of heating oil, especially in the Northeast, will face some increase in prices. That is because higher costs of imported heating oil can be passed on to the consumer automatically although other costs may not.

The June 13 price freeze has been extended for retail gasoline and diesel fuel sales until Sept. 1 to give retailers time to compute new price ceilings. It will be lifted from heating oil and other petroleum products on Monday.

Meanwhile, the council said the ceilings should also result in some rollbacks of crude and heating oil prices by some firms, and increase for others.

Vision to reality

Running House of Glass 'exhilarating, frustrating'

By Sam Denoms
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
Supervising an operation like the Southern Illinois Work Release Center (House of Glass) can be both "exhilarating and frustrating" and is always eventful, said Stephen E. Cosgrove, the center's new acting supervisor.
Cosgrove officially became acting supervisor of the House of Glass Aug. 1 succeeding Robert Buchanan, who was appointed superintendent of the Dwight Reformatory for Women.
The House of Glass, at 805 West Freeman St., has been referred to by members of the Illinois Department of Corrections as the "foremost work release center in the state."
Cosgrove said he felt qualified for the position because of a variety of past experiences.

"A good supervisor for a job like this must have an honest overall sensitivity to life, a clear vision of reality, and an appreciation of human needs and limitations," Cosgrove said.
Before coming to the House of Glass as a resident counselor in September 1971, Cosgrove said the only work he had done in correctional institutions was routine counseling at the Marion Federal Penitentiary.
Cosgrove has a bachelor's degree in psychology and a master's degree in counseling, both from SIU.
"We want the center to become more realistically involved in the Carbondale community and thereby more of a community based operation rather than a community-located institution," Cosgrove said.
Cosgrove added that in the past many limitations had been placed on the residents of the center with regards to community-involved activities.

"However, the success of the total program during the last few years has shown us that many barriers and limitations can be diminished without jeopardizing the community or the center," Cosgrove stated.
The 38 men residing at the House of Glass are divided into two programs—work-release and work-study. One of the main requirements for accepting a man at the center is that he have at least six months to a year remaining on his sentence or to his earliest possible release date.
Bill Lass, coordinator of the Illinois Work Release Center, said Cosgrove would remain acting supervisor of the House of Glass until a permanent supervisor is appointed.

A construction season, Newton said, runs from June to October or November. During mid-December to March 1, little construction is possible because of inclement weather. During these months, the state construction crew works whenever weather permits.
The Department of Transportation is awaiting approval of its corridor recommendations from the Federal Highway Administration (FHA). Upon receipt of approval, the department will conduct a design study and submit its findings to the FHA.
Newton defined a corridor as an extension from one point to another, varying in width from one-half mile to three miles on the route where the highway is proposed.
If the design report is approved, the department will schedule public hearings discussing the advantages and disadvantages of alignment in the corridors, Newton said.

After the hearings, a report will be written and released to the federal agency for approval and actual construction can begin.
Corridor hearings were held in January 1970.
"One of the things that set back the corridor approval was the Environmental Control Act," Newton said. He said this act compelled the department to conduct an environmental study and submit an environmental statement before the corridor recommendation would be considered.
Five corridor sites, extending from Carbondale to East St. Louis, were evaluated before the Pinkneyville Corridor was decided upon and submitted for approval, Newton said.

Criteria used by the Department of Transportation for selecting the Pinkneyville Corridor included traffic volume, projected use, and the number of people that the highway will serve.

End of session has little effect on businesses

By Linda Lipman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The end of the eight-week session at SIU Aug. 10 has had little effect on businesses on South Illinois Avenue, according to most managers interviewed Thursday and Friday.
Some businesses attributed fluctuating sales to the summer months in general. Most agreed they found it difficult to tell how many students had left Carbondale at the end of the eight weeks.

John Vicini, manager of 710 Bookstore, said sales have been steady all summer. "I don't think too many students have left town yet. But by Sept. 1 (the close of the 11-week session) our business will be way down."
Scott Evers, Merlins manager said, "Maybe students have paid their rent through the end of the month, staying at SIU waiting for graduation or are still employed through the end of the quarter." He said the number of people frequenting the bar has changed little but found it difficult to tell how many were students.

Wayne Solomon, assistant manager at McDonald's, said the restaurant depends on students for 90 per cent of its sales, but business has not been affected by the close of the term.

Wallace Bookstore, which opened July 5, has maintained a "consistently slow pace," Bruce Eustice, supply manager, said. Eustice attributed the slow pace to the newness of the store.
A few stores reported they were doing better business than usual. Discount Records' sales have increased since the same time last year, manager Ernie Anderson said, and sales throughout the summer have remained steady.

Gwen Hunt, owner of Pizza King, said, "Business has increased very much. Maybe the students have less classes and more time to celebrate."

Last week at Rocky Mountain Surplus was "very busy," Manager Mike Adorjan said. He suggested maybe studentw were buying clothes before they went home. Last week was also the "best week yet," for Goldsmith's Men's Wear, Vince Casella, manager, said. He said he doesn't know what triggered the good business.

Varsity South Barber Shop does not depend on student business, Henry Benton, owner, said. "We get our business from all over Southern Illinois. But we have noticed an increase in graduating student coming in. They say they are preparing for job interviews or weddings."

Two stores reported they were experiencing a slow season. Tamra Moore, manager at Maine Street Boutique, said business had been slower than last year at the same time. She said it may be due to lower enrollment.

Martin Chaney, pharmacist at University Drugs (on South Illinois), said the store is experiencing "a letdown of about 25 per cent." He said it may be due to the decrease in general of people in Carbondale during August.

If this fire box is about to report a false alarm, the chances are good that it's located on campus. Carbondale Fire Chief Charles McCaughan estimates 85 per cent of the false alarms in the city are reported from SIU.

DuQuoin State Fair aims to give best

With entertainment ranging from the Osmond Brothers to Sonny and Cher, from the Hambletonian to a Demolition Derby, the 1973 DuQuoin State Fair is expected to be the best ever.

Operating under the theme "For Sport's Sake, Keep the Hambletonian in Southern Illinois" this year's fair is expected to draw the largest crowds on Hambletonian Day.

The fair opens Aug. 25 and runs through Labor day Sept. 3, with the Hambletonian taking place on Aug. 29.

Marilyn Phillips, member of the DuQuoin State Fair's promotional staff, said record crowds are needed to keep the famous race in Southern Illinois.

A Riverboat, donated by the Perry County Shriners Club, will provide the stage for free entertainment for the public the 10 days of the fair.

The Riverboat will feature all local talent, including SIU student Sam Denoms, and 14-year-old Joey Endres from Murphysboro, who played the Artful Dodger in the musical "Oliver".

Other entertainers appearing in the Riverboat include the Blue Country Boys and Marilyn and the Country Boys, two country and western groups from Murphysboro, the Little Egypt Chapter of Barbershop, and the True Blue Review made up of young people from Marion.

The Riverboat will be located in the island in front of the grandstands and will provide entertainment daily when other concerts or stage shows are not being held. Special Hambletonian Day activities include an address by Tom Haggai, who is being presented by area I.G.A. stores at 10 a.m. and a noon parade which will feature the University of Illinois Marching Illini band.

The fair will also have, for the first time, a senior citizens tent, which will provide a rest area for senior citizens.

Phillips said, in order to attract more people to the fair on Hambletonian Day, Aug. 29 will be a special senior citizen and youth day.

Another new attraction at the fair will be educational exhibits which include:

—An exhibit from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) which will feature a moon rock exhibit, models of the Command and Lunar Modules and the Space Skylab, a space suit, a Sky Lab back lighted wall panel and a Lunar Moon Rover back lighted wall panel.

—The Respiratory Disease and Tuberculosis Association exhibit which will feature "Smoking Sam," a clear plastic mannequin of a 14-year-old child that smokes cigarettes.

—An exhibit entitled "The Way to Better Light—2,500 Years of progress," provided by the General Electric Corporation.

—A display demonstrating early arts and craft will be shown by the Southern Illinois Arts and Crafts Guild.

SIU-Carbondale will also send three exhibits: International students will display the clothing and artifacts of their respective countries.

—The SIU Traveling Museum will display Southern Illinois Indian artifacts.

—The SIU School of Engineering will exhibit the low pollution Wankel engine, the only engine that currently meets the 1975 federal pollution standards.

Over 36 exhibits are expected to be set up and they are free to the general public.

Most false fire calls in city traced to SIU

By Stan Kosinski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

University housing complexes and the campus account for approximately 85 per cent of Carbondale's false alarms, Fire Chief Charles McCaughan said Thursday.

McCaughan estimated the yearly false alarm total at 180.

"This percentage of false alarms is expected in a college town," McCaughan said. "If a survey were taken, which I have never seen, I'm sure the figures would be drastically higher here than surrounding areas."

Realizing the overall false alarm problem, Ray Schlager, SIU safety officer for the Housing Safety Office, showed specific concern about Evergreen Terrace and its mounting false alarms.

"From Jan. 1 to June 1, false alarms at the Terrace were two, while from June 2 to July 27, alarms increased to eight," Schlager said.

"It would be my guess that a child or children pulled these alarms."

Schlager said summer vacation, which allows more time for play, is probably behind the increase.

"A child may not realize he is setting off an alarm at Evergreen Terrace. An alarm bell doesn't sound there," Schlager said.

He said the matter will be turned over to the Evergreen Terrace Council.

As yet, the alarm situation at the Terrace is not serious, Schlager said. However, the Housing Safety Office, 615 S. Washington St., has been criticized by residents of University housing for the increased number of false alarms, Schlager said.

During the winter and spring terms, the number of false alarms was 150, during winter '92 and during the spring '58.

"We don't believe the majority of false alarms are due to malfunctions but by individual misuse of the alarm system," Schlager said. "An alarm system is only as effective as the people who attempt to use it."

The $81,600 central fire alarm system for 64 permanent buildings, including VTI, Brush Towers, University Park, Thompson Point, Small Group Housing, Southern Hills and Evergreen Terrace, has been in operation since Jan. 1.

The alarm network triggers simultaneous signals at Carbondale Fire Station No. 3 and at the central control panel at the physical plant. This network replaced the old system of individual alarms. The alarms were not connected to the fire station, which had to be called by telephone after an alarm sounded.

The proper procedure is to pull the alarm and then call the fire department, Schlager said. If a friend is with you, one should pull the alarm while the other calls, he added. Pulling the alarm is the better of the two since it gives, through an electrical code, the position of the fire, Schlager said.

"People too often hang up the phone before giving all the necessary information to the fire station," Schlager said.

Schlager also criticized overuse of fire extinguishers.

"Fire extinguisher is for evacuating people—not putting out fires," Schlager said. "In the time it takes to put out the fire by extinguisher, professional help could be on its way."

In an effort to solve the false alarm problem, Schlager, Fire Chief McCaughan and Samuel Rinella, director of University housing, are combining their efforts, McCaughan said. But there doesn't seem to be a solution, he added.

"Everything we have attempted doesn't seem to work effectively enough," McCaughan said. One idea was coating the pull boxes with phosphorous paint, which would make the handle of the person who pulled the alarm glow under a black light.

"All you have to do is use a stick to pull the alarm and no one will know," McCaughan said. "The only way we can catch someone pulling an alarm is through an eye witness."

Under Illinois law, pulling a false alarm is a felony. Punishment can be a $300 fine or imprisonment in a penal institution other than a penitentiary for no longer than six months, or both, or imprisonment in a penitentiary for no longer than 18 months.

The main problems facing the fire department when a false alarm is sounded are reduction in available manpower if a real fire should occur at the same time and wear and tear on the equipment, McCaughan said.

"The only way to stop the spread of false alarms is through student cooperation," Schlager said. "The student must realize the danger in setting off a false alarm. Each time a firetruck leaves its station, lives are in danger."

Schlager said, there are no regulations concerning false alarms on the University books.

No false alarms were rung at Thompson Point, Small Group Housing or VTI last spring.

False alarms haven't been a problem at Southern Hills, Schlager said. This may be because Southern Hills has fewer family units—and children—than Evergreen Terrace, he added.

Comparing all University housing, "false alarms are much less a problem in family housing as compared to student housing," Schlager said.

Excuse my bicycle

"Eerk!" Squeak, clank.

Another pedestrian almost bites the dust. I try gently to excuse my carelessness and clumsily try to coordinate myself enough to pedal away before someone gets irate.

Ziping along on my battle-scarred but serviceable bicycle.

I try to imagine myself breaking the universal bike-slam record. Dodging people is lots of fun on a bicycle especially along the hilly sidewalks on campus. However, I don't think many pedestrians are very fond of becoming human bowling pins.

I've tried riding on those skinny green paths that are supposed to be reserved for bicycles. Those get me where I want to go, sometimes, and in a very roundabout way. Occasionally, people walk on the paths risking near collision. Meeting a fellow bicyclist barreling toward me along one of those paths is not a real pleasure, either. Both of us tend to get very indecisive and a bit wobbly. Detouring on the grass really slows me down, and I risk falling off my bike trying to get back on the path.

A solution to both the woes of pedestrians and bicyclists could come in the form of more extensive and wider bicycle paths. Plans are slowly being made to do this, but in the mean time, a little consideration has to come from careless bicyclists like me. From now on, I will try, on my honor to slow down and avoid hitting people walking on campus. And if by some chance, I fail to always be conscientious I will at least smile and be nice to the people I almost run over.

There is another problem concerning bicycles on campus, and that is parking them. There are bicycle racks on campus, but they aren't close enough to the buildings to suit some bicyclists. So, bicycles end up almost anywhere usually protruding themselves nicely into the sidewalk.

Imagine yourself a blind student coming from class or the library feeling fairly confident you can make it across campus without too much trouble. Then imagine falling or tripping on or over someone's carelessly placed bicycle. Your foot rams through the spokes, you scratch or bruise your shins and feel like cussing up a storm.

O.K., there aren't really enough bike racks at the library to handle the volume of bicycles that are parked there. This is a problem, and I hope somehow it gets solved. But until the problem's remedied, bicyclists (present company included) have to take a little time and park our bikes more carefully. At the Student Center some nice new bicycle racks have been installed just south of the main entrance only a few yards away. Now many bicycles can be found parked there.

The fact remains: the rack is there, and it might as well be used. It might even eliminate the bicycle jungle that accumulates in front of the Center and might even prevent a blind student from getting his shins knocked up.

But, we're just students. We can't pave new bicycle paths or install new bicycle racks, but we can keep griping until we get them and meanwhile take a little more time to be a little more careful.

Paradise paved: letter to the SIU Board of Trustees

To the Daily Egyptian:

Wednesday night, August 8, I attended in Mt. Vernon one of Gov. Walker's "accountability" meetings with the public. At the meeting an SIU student at Carbondale and a resident of the campus trailer court raised objections to the construction of a $296,000 parking lot on the site of the trailer court. I shared this student's opposition to the parking lot and called the Board of Trustees office for further information. Dr. Ed Flentige of the office took the time to inform me about the parking lot and a $900,000 parking garage which he called a Mobile Structure.

I'm sure each board member has pondered the cost to the taxpayer, the displacement of students, the site, the beauty of the Carbondale campus, and other important considerations in deciding about these two construction projects. But I would like to put the two construction projects in a broader ecological and philosophical context, hoping that such a context is still important to us efficient and car dominated Americans.

Not all of us would agree with the ecologists who predict that our earth will stop supporting human life if our ecological disasters are not brought under control within a generation. Yet I think all of us would agree that developing an ecological consciousness and a love for the earth is now an essential, certainly not an impractical, part of every university student's education. Aren't we subverting the necessary development of that consciousness by spending vast amounts of money on projects which symbolize and reflect the degradation our environment has suffered nation wide? Can we expect our future engineers, city planners, architects, lawyers and others to image, dream of, and work for an earth with pure air, livable cities, and green countryside when in the process of learning they are confronted with ugly structures and vast spaces paved over to service the car which is most responsible for our air pollution?

R. W. Emerson in his eulogy of Henry Thoreau said, "His soul was made for the noblest society. Wherever there is knowledge, wherever there is virtue wherever there is beauty, he will find a home." I think all of us deserve such a home. If we are not going to find a home of knowledge, virtue and beauty on the college campus, where are we going to find it? If what we find west of the Gateway Arch in St. Louis, and I'm referring to the rows of parking garages and acres of parking lots, is our model for America's future, then the doomsday prediction of the ecologists rings more clearly and truly in my ears.

If I could take another moment of your time, I'd like to leave you with a few lines from a very compassionate and moral song by Joni Mitchell,

They took all the trees
And put them in a tree museum
And they charged all the people
A dollar and a half just to see 'em
Don't it always seem to go
That you don't know what you've got Till it's gone
They paved paradise
And put up a parking lot

P.S. On August 10, the SIU Board decided in favor of the $296,000 parking lot for 675 cars and decided earlier to construct the $900,000 parking garage. School officials argued for the parking lot on the grounds that it would be convenient to dormitories and that it would attract students to SIU because they could have parking space for their cars near their dorm. What are they running a motel or a university? When such huge sums are so foolishly spent then the richness of the curriculum and the quality of the instruction must suffer.

Epicures afloat

American housewives trying to figure out how to provide a bit of hamburger for the family table should be greatly interested in a forthcoming 12-day "culinary cruise" in the Caribbean aboard a luxury liner. The days will be filled with eating and learning how to prepare food, and if the passengers manage to waddle off the boat at the end of the voyage they ought to have at least some well-cooked memories along with enough surplus poundage to get them through another part of Phase 4. It's the sort of cruise, we think, that really would be spoiled by getting seasick.

Opinion & Commentary

EDITORIALS—The Daily Egyptian encourages free discussion of current issues through editorials and letters on these pages. Editorials—labeled Opinion—are written and signed by members of the student news staff and by students enrolled in journalism courses and represent opinions of the authors only.

LETTERS—Readers are invited to express their opinions in letters which must be signed with name, classification and major, or faculty rank, address and telephone number. Letters should be typewritten, and their length should not exceed 250 words. Letter writers should respect the generally accepted standards of good taste and are expected to make their points in terms of issues rather than personalities. Acceptance for publication will depend on limitations of space and the timeliness and relevance of the material. Unsigned letters will not be accepted, and authorship of all letters must be verified by the Daily Egyptian. It is the responsibility of the Daily Egyptian to determine content of the opinion pages. Other materials on pages four and five include editorials and articles reprinted from other publications, syndicated columns and articles, and interpretive or opinion articles authored locally.

13 STC associate programs full

By Linda Lipman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The School of Technical Careers (STC) has closed thirteen of its associate degree programs to new admissions, for fall, Assistant Dean Donald Harbert announced Friday.

Harbert said the STC enrollment has surpassed a 6 per cent increase each term and "we need a larger instructional staff." Harbert said budget restraints have prevented the addition of the faculty necessary to accommodate enrollment growth. Programs still open for fall include construction technology-civil, correctional services, electronic data processing, media technology (library assistant), law enforcement, tool and manufacturing technology (numerical control), and secretarial and office specialties. Harbert advised persons interested in programs which are closed to contact the admissions office at the STC or the program chairmen.

However, the situation is discouraging. There is no way to get in a closed program, unless the student waits until the following quarter.

Harbert said if a waiting list were started it may take as long as two years for a student to move the list and into some programs. Lists of names are being taken for the closed programs, but Harbert said there is little hope.

"Enrollment is taken on a first-come first-serve basis. Transfer students are treated the same as incoming freshmen. Once a student has started the program (finished one term) he is allowed to complete his sequence."

Although Harbert considers STC facilities outdated and in need of renovation, he said students are willing to attend classes because "the programs are unique."

He said the potential for job placement is high and when jobs don't exist for a program, the curriculum is dropped. The programs are not duplicates of those offered at community colleges.

He added that the STC's growth is attributed to this high job placement potential. "Many Ph.D.'s cannot find jobs. Skilled crafts are becoming more acceptable," he said.

The STC is closing more programs earlier each year, Harbert said. He said STC will not be able to maintain its growth, unless it gets additional staff. Harbert said the STC enrollment could easily double in two years, if it had the necessary staff.

The physical therapy program had at least 100 more applicants than spaces and the dental hygiene program received 200 excess applications. Only one class in dental hygiene is started each fall.

In the new bachelor of science (four-year) program, more than 100 applications were received for the 12 openings. "We expected a limited response because it is a new program, but were overwhelmed."

The bachelor's program is designed for students with specific career goals not met in existing programs. It provides for each student to work with an advisory committee of faculty and individuals in his chosen occupational area to design a course of study tailored to his specific needs.

Present registration for fall is 1,177, almost the same as last year, Harbert said.

When the open programs are filled, the STC will have an enrollment close to 1,300, Harbert added.

The faculty will be the same size it was last year.

Agnew gives his financial file to probers

BALTIMORE, MD. (AP)—Federal investigators responded Friday to Vice President Spiro T. Agnew's offer of voluntary cooperation and picked up copies of his personal financial records for examination in a probe of alleged political corruption.

U.S. Atty. George Beall told newsmen that copies of the records were picked up at Agnew's office in Washington but that the vice president was not interviewed.

Last Tuesday, in a letter to Beall, Agnew said he would turn over his personal papers and would make himself available for an interview. But he stressed he was acting as Spiro Agnew, citizen, and not as the vice president.

The vice president has denied allegations against him. Asked when Agnew might be interviewed, Beall said only that "the matter of the vice president will be carefully reviewed."

On whether the vice president will appear before the special grand jury, "That is Agnew's choice. You'll have to ask his lawyers."

Beall declined to discuss the progress of the case but said it was proceeding as quickly as the prosecutors could go.

In one move to speed the inquiry, Beall said the grand jury would begin meeting more than once a week to take testimony from witnesses.

Beall also acknowledged that he has talked with Henry E. Petersen, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's criminal division.

Beall notified Agnew through Agnew's attorney early this month that the vice president was under investigation for possible violations of tax, extortion, bribery and conspiracy laws.

Woman jailed for imprisoning aged tenant, taking checks

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Police were checking Friday a possibility that an 85-year-old man imprisoned in a tiny swimming pool pumphouse was held against his will for years.

"From the state of the old man we believe he may have been a prisoner for many years, even before he was moved to the house where he was found," police said. "He was imprisoned in the pumphouse for six months to our knowledge."

Victor Hartman was described in good condition at Jackson Memorial hospital where he was taken Thursday night after police discovered him lying in an overturned garbage can in the yard of an $80,000 south Miami home.

Police said Bonnie Wilkie Blanchard, 55, who had been drawing Hartman's $186-a-month Social Security check as payment for his room and board, was charged with false imprisonment. She was jailed pending a hearing.

Police said Hartman was kept in a padlocked 14-by 5-foot pumphouse surrounded by a chain link fence, topped with barbed wire. The pumphouse was filthy, mosquito-infested and had only two small windows. Investigators said they found a urine-soaked mattress in the cement floor.

"Apparently he sometimes escaped by propping the branch of a tree against the corner of the fence and climbing up it," police said. "But he never got very far and then was put back against his will."

When he got out, investigators added, Hartman would rummage through neighborhood garbage cans, looking for food.

Mrs. Blanchard told police Hartman had been her tenant for 25 years and they moved to the south Miami home six months ago. She said she kept him locked up so he wouldn't fall in the swimming pool.

Police said for several months neighbors had complained about an old man who ate garbage but police could never find him.

About 10 days ago, they said, a 12-year-old boy heard Hartman's cries for help while playing in a nearby wooded area.

They said the boy could hear Hartman shaking the door and crying to be let out. The boy told police he talked to Hartman and discovered he was hungry. For several days the boy and a friend fed Hartman potato chips, apples and tuna fish sandwiches which they threw over the fence, police said.

Police said the boys told their parents about the old man but "the parents apparently didn't want to get involved by going into the residence."

Russia said nearing missile equality

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger disclosed Friday that the Soviet Union has taken a long stride toward matching U.S. missile technology by successfully testing multiple warheads which can be aimed at separate targets.

Schlesinger said this could lead to Russia, which owns a larger number of missile launchers, gaining a clear nuclear striking advantage over the United States by the 1980s unless something is done.

But he told a news conference the chances for controls on multiple independently targetable warheads—MIRVs—in the current round of U.S.-Soviet arms limitation talks "have deteriorated sadly."

"This subject has been brought up before and I think it is fair to say that the Soviets have not been particularly interested in limitations on MIRVing," Schlesinger said.

At the outset of his meeting with newsmen, Schlesinger announced that "in recent weeks the Soviets have successfully demonstrated flight tests of the MIRV capability ... on at least two of their missiles."

He identified these two land-based ICBMs as the SSX-17, which is comparable to the U.S. Minuteman ICBM, and the SSX-18, a huge missile believed intended to replace Russia's currently largest weapon, the SS-9.

Giving most concern to the United States is the big missile, which Schlesinger said could be developed into a major threat to knock out land-based U.S. missiles.

But he said that neither the United States nor the Soviet Union could attain an ability to destroy totally the other side's missile-striking power in a surprise first strike.

He did not elaborate on this, but he apparently had in mind that both the United States and Russia would still have powerful submarine-launched missiles at sea even after destruction of significant numbers of those based on land.

Behind a nuclear war deterrent is the realization by both the United States and Russia that a nuclear surprise attack would trigger overwhelming destructive retaliation from the surviving forces of the country which absorbed such a first attack.

Schlesinger estimated the Russians will need another two years to deploy their first combat-ready MIRV ICBMs, that they probably will be able to equal the United States in the number of multiple warheads on land-based missiles in about six years.

If they achieve a MIRV for their submarine-launched missiles, which he said has not yet happened, the Russians "will have, if they continue the present program, a very formidable force structure."

The defense chief said the Pentagon has hard evidence of successful MIRV tests with at least six warheads on SSX-18 missiles and at least four warheads on the smaller Soviet SSX-17.

Schlesinger said that the first five-year U.S.-Soviet agreement on limitation of numbers of missile launchers resulted in a rough balance, with a Soviet advantage of about 2,268-1710 in missiles offset by the U.S. lead in multiple warheads and in the accuracy of those weapons.

The SSX-18 tests demonstrate that "the Soviets will have at some point in the future ... an array of warheads on the order of one megaton," which is the blast equivalent of 1 million tons of TNT.

The biggest U.S. MIRV is mounted on the Minuteman III, which carries three warheads each with the explosive force of about 200,000 tons of TNT.

The U.S. submarine-launched Poseidon missile can carry up to 14 warheads, each with a blast force of about 50,000 tons of TNT.

The U.S. missiles are designed as city-killers, rather than as weapons which could knock out Soviet land-based missiles in their launch silos.

The United States is well along in the deployment of its MIRVs, with at least 300 Minuteman III missiles already in firing position, and another 250 due to be ready by 1975.

In other matters, Schlesinger said:

He believes the American people and Congress would support renewed bombing by the United States if Hanoi should launch a massive offensive against South Vietnam.

He warned that Hanoi should not make what he called a mistake of launching such an attack because Congress ordered the United States to stop all military action in Indochina. U.S. bombing in Cambodia, the last such action, ended last Tuesday midnight.

—"There will be a reduction of our forces" in Thailand, but the timing has not yet been determined.

List of alleged hood ties released

CHICAGO (AP)—Here are the alleged hoodlum links the Chicago Daily News connects with contributions to the campaign of Gov. Daniel Walker.

The newspaper after a seven-month investigation disclosed today that:

—One of the firms, August H. Skoglund Co. of River Grove, was described by the Chicago Crime Commission in 1968 as a company whose owner "openly and frequently associates with syndicate members." At that time, Walker was president of the commission and specifically criticized associations between hoodlums and businessmen. The Skoglund company contributed twice, the newspaper said. One was as much as $5,000 and $1,000.

—Frank V. Pantaleo, a former president of the Skoglund company, counted among his customers syndicate figures Anthony J. Accardo, Joseph Glimco, Charles English and John Lardino, the newspaper said. According to the documents the Daily News obtained, Pantaleo bought $1,000 worth of tickets for a $100-plate fund raising dinner in March.

—Victor Salco, president of Paolo Salco & Co. of Elmwood Park, gave up to $5,000 to the campaign. The company was investigated by a grand jury in 1964 because two crime figures—Glimco and Murray Humphreys—were on the payroll.

—A contributor credited with buying $2,000 worth of tickets to a Walker fund raising dinner was once listed as a director and secretary of a beer distributing firm that hired Accardo as a beer salesman at an annual salary of $65,000 a year in the 1950's.

City Council to debate ordinance requiring list of employee interests

An ordinance requiring all city employees to disclose any interest in business deals in which the city is involved will be considered at the regular meeting of the City Council Monday.

Under the proposal, which amends Section 4 of the purchasing ordinance, disclosure of interest would be required before any binding agreement by the city is made.

Another proposal to submitted to the council for action Monday night is an ordinance establishing a Citizens Advisory Committee for Carbondale.

The proposed ordinance provides for the creation of a committee to study the problems of Carbondale and to advise the Council on such matters.

Membership of the committee would be limited to a minimum of 24 and a maximum of 30. All members would be required to be residents of Carbondale or live in an area within 1 1/2 miles of the city limits.

Appointment of members to the committee would be made by the mayor with the consent of a majority of the council. A member would serve for three years with about one-third of the membership's terms expiring at the end of each year.

Duties of the committee would include: studying problems in the city; serving as a fact finding, public information and education agency; offering advice and suggestions to the council and monitoring projects and programs directed by the council.

Other matters to be considered by the council include:

—A request from the U.S. Forest Service regarding swimming beach and boat launch at Cedar Lake.

—A request from Greater Egypt Regional Planning and Development Commission for appointments of a policy person and a technical person on the water coordinating committee.

—The 1973-74 tax levy ordinance.

Powell's shoe box money might go to state settlement

SPRINGFIELD (AP)—About half of the $3 million left by Paul Powell, a former secretary of state whose estate included $850,000 in cash found in shoe boxes, would go to the State of Illinois under a settlement announced Friday.

The source of the shoebox money has never been determined, although Powell was linked directly with the Illinois racing industry during the trial in which U.S. Appeals Court Judge Otto Kerner was convicted for bribery.

The money was found in Powell's room at the St. Nicholas Hotel in Springfield after he died Oct. 10, 1970, in Minnesota.

The settlement was described by Atty. Gen. William J. Scott, who sued in July 1971 to recover the estate for Illinois on the ground that Powell, as secretary of state, acquired the money from the people of Illinois.

Under the terms of the settlement, $100,000 would go to the state general revenue fund as compensation for alleged payments made to Powell by concessionaires and contractors.

About $1.5 million would be distributed in grants to the state Historical Library, the State Museum and the State Mansion, all as historical sites. The library is in the Old State Capitol. The mansion was recently rebuilt.

Scott negotiated the settlement with John Rendleman, Powell's executor, and the First National Bank of Mattoon, trustee of a charitable trust that Powell established.

The agreement is subject to approval of the Circuit Court in Johnson County, where Scott sued.

The theory underlying the grants is that although Powell left a charitable trust to maintain his family home in Vienna as a museum, the amount left was far in excess of what is needed to fulfill the terms of the trust.

Survey rates freshmen academic showing

Cartersville High School and Centennial High School of Champaign came out the leaders in a survey of new-freshman academic performance during 1972-73 at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale.

An analysis by the SIUC admissions office showed that frosh from Cartersville High School compiled an overall grade point of 3.96 during the school year, compared to 3.86 for students from Centennial. SIUC grades on a 5.0 scale.

The survey covered 2,701 new freshmen from 530 Illinois high schools. From that, the admissions office pulled out a "Top Ten" list of highest ranking freshman-year grade performances by students from schools with 10 or more graduates at SIUC. Following Cartersville and Centennial in the "Top Ten":

3. Rich Township High School East Park Forest, 3.92
4. Urbana High School, 3.91
5. Quincy Senior High School II, 3.90
6. Oak Park and River Forest High School, Oak Park, 3.88
7. Sparta Township High School, 3.85
8. Anna-Jonesboro Community High School, 3.79
9. New Trier High School East Winnetka, 3.78

Posthumous degree to honor Ritchie

A Bachelor of Science in social welfare will be presented posthumously at the commencement exercises Aug. 31 to George Ritchie, 69-year-old student who died April 3 of a heart attack. Ritchie, who returned to college after dropping out 50 years ago, was scheduled to graduate this summer and had been accepted for graduate work in the Rehabilitation Institute. "This degree is a tribute to an old man who was securing something only young people want—a preparation for a career," Arnold Auerbach, director of the Department of Social Welfare, said when announcing the approval of the degree. Auerbach said he petitioned the College of Human Resources last week about awarding the degree and had no trouble receiving approval from Stanley Smith, dean of the college.

Auerbach will receive Ritchie's degree and send it to his family.

Ritchie was an active member of the Social Workers' Club. Anita Rosen, club advisor, said she was pleased when she heard of the presentation of the degree.

"Everyone knew who he was and we are all delighted," Mrs. Rosen said.

She mentioned that not only the club members but the other students and the faculty wanted the degree to be given. "He set an example that was most impressive."

Food price spiral slackens this week

By The Associated Press

Some of the pressure was taken off the sizzling food price spiral this week but shoppers are not likely to find any $1.29 pork chops.

Or $1.39, or $1.49, or $1.59... Even though pork prices appear to be coming down, no one expects them to drop anywhere near what they were six or eight months ago.

The reason for this week's decline, most sources seem to agree, has been consumer resistance to the high prices.

Some persons disagree and a spot check of a few supermarket chains around the nation was inconclusive.

Probably the most dramatic turnaround in the upward food price march was in the sale of hogs at the nation's major livestock markets.

There was relief in chickens, eggs and maybe grain prices, too, but the big reversal was in hogs.

At the Omaha, Neb., stockyards prices for the major hog categories were down as much as $6 a hundred pounds Friday, compared with what they were early in the week. With March, this was the sharpest price fluctuation on the Omaha market in 27 years.

At the Central Iowa Stockyards at Webster City, in the heart of hog country, the animals were going for $52 per hundred pounds when only three days earlier the price was a record $61.50.

While these are big declines, sources in the meat industry the price of hogs will be reflected in pennies at the retail meat counter, maybe a nickel or a dime.

Further, it takes a couple of weeks for the stockyard price to show up in the supermarket, even though some wholesale prices already are declining.

Visiting Dacca educator stresses goal for humanity

By Dan Haar
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Education should have as its goal the advancement of all humanity. I should exist for the benefit of the whole world.

This is how Mazharul Islam, director general of Bangla Academy at Dacca, Bangladesh summarized the essential purpose of an educational system.

Islam, who arrived at SIU Thursday for a three-day visit, is touring the United States for 45 days to gather information on universities.

"I have as my main purpose to visit academic institutions in this country," Islam said in an interview.

He said he hopes to acquire some knowledge of American academic institutions and cultural patterns in the United States. He explained he wants to use this information to help his country progress.

Islam is not a stranger to the United States. In 1963, he received a doctoral degree in folklore from Indiana University in Bloomington.

In 1966, Islam was invited by Henry Kissinger to attend an international seminar at Harvard.

Islam was born in Bangladesh in 1929. After receiving his doctorate, he continued teaching in his country.

Islam took an active part in his country's freedom movement. In 1971, he first tried to organize a resistance movement. When it failed, he went to India to organize camps for the freedom fighters.

Islam lost contact with his wife and children, who escaped to India, for six months. "I lost everything. I suffered a lot," he said.

After Bangladesh gained its independence in December 1971, Bangabandhu Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, leader of the Bangladesh freedom fighters, asked Islam to be the director of the Bangla Academy.

"The academy is a very vital and important organization in our national life," Islam noted.

Islam met Arthur L. Casebeer, associate professor of higher education at SIU, last spring, to explore the possibility of educational exchange programs with Bangladesh. Casebeer had gone to India as a senior Fulbright lecturer on student services.

Islam said he was so impressed by the meeting that he decided to stop at SIU during his tour.

"It is a very good university," Islam remarked about SIU. "Your campus is very beautiful."

Islam, who is the head of the education commission in Bangladesh, emphasized he hopes to achieve "diversified education" in his country.

He said this would include "not only knowledge of books but knowledge of practical experience." If Bangladesh is to progress, Islam said it will need the help of trained people.

"We need technicians, doctors, agriculturalists and scientists more than anything else in the country," Islam remarked.

Islam said a preliminary report has been prepared by the education commission suggesting ways to improve the educational system. The details have not been worked out but some possible suggestions include the adoption of the American semester and grading system.

Bangladesh now uses the British system of education, which Islam said needs to be improved to better suit the students.

The war ravaged the industries and farm lands of Bangladesh, Islam said. However, much of the industry has been restored. Food and the destroyed textile mills remain as some of the major problems of the country.

Islam said during the war for Bangladesh freedom, the students were the most powerful force.

"The students launched the movement for freedom," he said. "They gave their blood, shed their lives."

One problem the country experienced immediately after gaining independence was getting the students back to school and trained in practical fields which would further benefit the country.

Islam said the students, who are the most conscious force in the country, are very critical over the Watergate affair and the U.S. involvement in the Middle East. He said it has made them bitter toward the U.S. and the democracy which it represents.

Cardinals meet Broncos, Bears take on Dolphins in weekend exhibitions

MIAMI (AP)—The Chicago Bears return to the run-dominated offense of quarterback Bobby Douglass Saturday night in an attempt to halt the Miami Dolphins 21-game consecutive victory string.

The Bears went with rookie quarterback Gary Huff of Florida State last week and Huff responded, with nine completions in 11 attempts for 109 yards and three touchdowns in a 34-7 victory over the Houston Oilers.

Douglass, who completed only 37.5 percent of his passes in the National Football League last year, is getting the starting call in the preseason game here.

Coach Abe Giron says Douglass is still his team leader despite completing only 75 of 198 passes for 1,246 yards in 1972.

What Douglass does best is run. He led the Bears in rushing with 968 yards and an average gain of 6.9 yards last year.

Dolphins Coach Don Shula, meanwhile, will play both veterans Bob Griese and Earl Morrall against the Bears with impressive third string quarterback Jim Del Gaize possibly seeing some action.

Morrall hasn't seen action since the College All-Star game, when he led a second half touchdown drive. Shula said he wanted to look at his younger quarterbacks and that Morrall, after starting 12 games when Griese was injured last year, didn't need the work.

But Morrall maintains, "I want to get myself sharp for regular season, too, and the only way to do that is to get in the game."

"You can practice all you want, but you don't get the overall feeling for the game until they're coming at you full tilt," said Morrall, now 39 and entering his 12th NFL season.

The Dolphins have scored exactly 14 points in each of their last four games, including the Super Bowl and three pre-season contests, but Shula said he's not concerned with the offense. He blames the use of young players for some of the scoring troubles in exhibitions.

Miami hasn't been beaten since losing 27-24 to the Washington Redskins in the next-to-last exhibition game of 1972.

The Dolphins have piled up 21 straight National Football League victories but their last three haven't been anything to brag about. Miami held off the College All-Stars, 14-3, edged the Cincinnati Bengals, 14-13, and shaded the New Orleans Saints, also by a 14-13 count.

Quarterback Bob Griese was accurate enough last week, hitting seven passes in seven attempts for 92 yards. But reserve Jim Del Gaize had to rally the Dolphins in the last quarter with a 10-yard touchdown pass to Bo Rather to keep the Dolphin streak intact.

Career first

Trevino aces

SUTTON, Mass. (AP)—Veterans Ken Still and Bobby Mitchell moved into a tie for the lead and Lee Trevine, bolstered by the first hole-in-one in his career, vaulted into contention Friday in the second round of the $200,000 USI Golf Classic.

Still, 38, and Mitchell, 30, matched five-under-par 67s in warm, sunny weather and had identical 137 totals, seven-under-par on the 7,212-yard Pleasant Valley Country Club course.

Rik Massengale and Jim Wiechers were tied one stroke off the pace at 138. Wiechers had a 67 and Massengale took a 70 in this chase for a $40,000 first prize.

The flamboyant Trevine scored his ace on the first hole, a 185-yard layout, and continued on to a 67 and 139 total, two strokes back of the leaders.

Trevine used a six-iron for what he said was the first hole-in-one of his career.

He was tied at 139 with former champion Tom Shaw, Dave Glenz and Steve Melnyk.

The Bears, meanwhile, have been experiencing uncharacteristic offensive prosperity. Chicago rolled up its biggest point total since early in the 1971 campaign in last week's 34-7 rout of the Houston Oilers.

The Pittsburgh Steelers kicked off the exhibition weekend Thursday night with a 17-3 win over the Philadelphia Eagles. The Washington Redskins visited the Buffalo Bills Friday night.

Oakland meets Los Angeles Saturday afternoon in Berkeley, Calif.

In Saturday night action, Baltimore plays Detroit in Memphis, St. Louis is at Denver, Houston goes against Green Bay in Milwaukee, Minnesota is at Kansas City, New England travels to Atlanta and New Orleans plays at Dallas.

Sunday afternoon the New York Jets meet the New York Giants in New Haven, Conn., Cincinnati faces Cleveland in Columbus and San Francisco hosts San Diego.

Five players will not make the trip to Denver this weekend with the St. Louis Cardinals for their second National Football League preseason game. The Cardinals said Friday that wide receiver Mel Gray is out with a virus infection, linebacker Jeff Staggs has a back injury, defensive end Steve Beekholder has a leg injury, and running back Leon Burns is nursing a sore ankle. The Cardinals said another player who will not make the trip is Harold Sampson, acquired last week on waivers from Green Bay. A team spokesman said Sampson was not ready to make the conversion from offensive to defensive tackle. Tight end Jackie Smith will be with the Cardinals in Denver Saturday night but he is still nursing an injured leg muscle and won't see action.

Spiral stops at eleven as Cubs halt Dodgers 5-1; Williams homers

CHICAGO (AP)—Billy Williams drove in four runs with a bases-loaded single and his 15th home run and Bob Locker turned in clutch ninth-inning relief pitching, leading Chicago to a 5-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Friday that snapped the Cubs' losing streak at 11 games.

Bill Bonham, 5-4, who struck out nine batters and walked four, had a one-hitter going into the ninth inning. But he walked Bill Buckner to open the inning and, one out later, gave up singles to Joe Ferguson and Willie Crawford that loaded the bases.

Locker then came on and Steve Garvey hit his first pitch back to the mound to start a game-ending double play.

Bonham held the National League's West Division leaders hitless until Buckner pulled a one-out line single to right in the sixth inning.

Dave Lopes, who had been hit by a pitch just before Buckner's single, took third on the clean hit and scored on Willie Davis' sacrifice fly.

The Cubs took a 2-0 lead off Dodger starter Andy Messersmith, 11-8, in the third inning. Paul Popovich' leadoff single, Bonham's sacrifice, Don Kessinger's single and a walk to Jose Cardenal filled the bases, then Williams singled to center.

Rick Monday's single and steal of second followed by Popovich's double gave the Cubs a run in the fourth and they added two more in the fifth on Cardenal's leadoff single and Williams' line-drive homer into the right field seats.

Bonham, who was used mainly in earlier in the season, was making his fifth start since being installed in the Cubs' starting rotation July 29.

When he was still working on a no-hitter, Bonham got two sparking defensive plays by Ron Santo in the fifth inning.

Santo made a one-handed stab of Ferguson's low liner just inside third base, then made a diving stop of Garvey's smash toward shortstop and threw him out.

Bonham walked Ferguson and Crawford to start the second but a double play—almost a triple play—got him out of that jam.

Garvey lined to first baseman Williams, who was unable to beat Crawford back to the first base bag, but easily nailed Ferguson off second.

Russians take ninth gold medal at World University Games

By Will Grimsley
Associated Press Sports Writer

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union swept to five more gold medals, three of them in track and field, and the United States had to be content with a single bronze in a one-sided battle of the giants Friday in the World University Games.

It was a disappointing day for the Americans at the massive Lenin Stadium, where track and field began in bright sunshine and ended with the men's pole vault after dark.

The pole vault provided the United States its consolation prize-third place finish for Terry Porter, a Kansas University student out of Fort Worth, Texas, who tied Russia's Juri Isakov at 17 feet 4 3/4 inches. The event was won by France's Francois Tracanelli, who cleared the bar at 17-9 1/2.

The Americans could still take some pride in their basketball team, however. The teenage charges of Coach Ed Badger scored their second straight crushing victory, beating Sweden 120-31, and gained the semifinals.

David Thompson, the North Carolina State sophomore, and Marvin Barnes of Providence College again were the standouts.

The Soviet Union produced the women's pentathlon champion, Nadezhda Tkatchenko, the women's discus winner, Farina Melnik, and the men's 100-meter king, Yuri Silov.
