ISAC to vote on cuts

SIUC students would lose $315,000 in 1993

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

State financial aid officials will vote Friday on a proposed 3-percent cut in the Monetary Assistance Program for next year, a decision that would reduce financial aid to 95,000 college students statewide.

Illinois Student Assistance Commission voted in January for a 12-percent mid-year cut of $4.7 million to the MAP grant program. ISAC officials now will consider cuts in the program for next year.

SIUC has the second largest number of recipients of MAP awards for an Illinois four-year public university, with aid amounting to more than $10,500,000 in state grants each year.

A 3-percent cut to the MAP grant at the beginning of next school year would create a loss of more than $315,000 in grants to SIUC.

Pamela Britton, director of Financial Aid, said these cuts will have a significant and negative impact on SIUC students.

"A majority of the 6,700-plus students at SIUC get their full tuition and fees covered with the grant," she said. "But if they take 3 percent off right from the beginning, they will not be able to get their tuition and fees covered."

Bob Clement, spokesman for ISAC, said the bottom line to the situation is that there is not enough money to go around.

"Nobody enjoys cutting funds and bring hardships to students because of money reductions—it is not a pleasant experience," he said. "We're just following the mandates of the General Assembly."

Clement said ISAC will decide campaigns by garnering 41 percent, a much narrower margin than expected.

"It shocked me," said Scott Hays, SIUC political science associate professor. "I don't expect radical changes in the electorate."

This seems to be a serious threat to overall electability of Bush. If Buchanan can carry this momentum into the southern states there is a decent amount of potential for an election."

The Democrats posted two front-runners for nomination. Former Sen. Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts received 34 percent of the vote and Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton received 26 percent.

USG changes stance about tuition increase

By Casey Hampton
General Assignment Writer

The SIUC Undergraduate Student Government criticized a proposed tuition increase for SIUC students Wednesday, only two weeks after supporting it.

At the Feb. 5 USG Senate meeting, a resolution was introduced, accepting the proposal of the President's Budget Advisory Committee for a tuition plan.

But two weeks later, USG formally announced opposition to the increase.

"In concept we do not support any tuition increase, but we're not unrealistic in realizing the University needs revenues," USG President Jack Sullivan said. "If the tuition increase is going to happen anyway, it's important we hold onto the plan the Budget Advisory Committee proposed so a plan doesn't come out of a back office somewhere."

The Budget Advisory Committee proposal outlines a three-year tuition plan, which raises the 12-hour tuition cap to 15 hours the first year and increases tuition by 5 percent and 3 percent the second and third years, respectively.

The plan is the only one USG would recognize if an increase occurred. But Sullivan announced Wednesday USG will not support any tuition increase for the University.

"This is a very symbolic message we're sending out today. The ball is in (the University officials') hands and they can make a difference," he said. "But we won't accept this tuition increase."

SIUC President John C. Guyon said a 3-percent rescission in general revenue appropriations to the University makes a tuition increase necessary.

"(USG's opposition) is fairly unrealistic because it would appear there will have to be a tuition increase," he said. "We will stumble into the end of the fiscal year $3.7 million less than we had going into the year July 1, 1991."

Walker's Olympic dream cut short

ALBERTVILLE, France (UPI) — Skier Diann Roffe won an improbable place on the medal stand Wednesday at the Winter Olympics while football star Herschel Walker earned a seat on the bench.

Roffe captured a silver medal in the giant slalom, allowing the United States to top its medal count from the 1988 Calgary Games. Walker won nothing but a rebuke from the driver of his four-man bobsled.

Randy Will, a veteran who has guided his sled to consistent top-six finishes in bobsled training runs this week, said after practice he wanted his longtime teammate Chris Coleman in the sled instead of Walker.

"Herschel Walker is probably the most incredible athlete I've met in my life," Will said. "But you can't tear apart a team that has been successful and put someone on who has limited race experience."

"Even though he's a great athlete, it's unfair to expect a miracle. I should have known this from the beginning. I know bobsledding and I've been in this sport eight years.

"Right now I feel I'm going with what's best for everyone, not just for me or anyone else, but the United States. This is nothing against Herschel Walker or professional athletes. These guys can come out any time. We need these guys more than anything."

Walker's demotion came on a day in which just two medal events were decided around the venues. But hockey and figure skating figured prominently.

The Unified Team routed Finland 6-1 in the hockey quarterfinals to set up a semifinal Friday with the United States.

Women's figure skating began Wednesday night, featuring Midori Ito of Japan, Kristi Yamaguchi and France's Surya Bonaly.

The gold medals Wednesday went to Antje Misserky of Germany in the women's 15-kilometer biathlon and to Pernilla Wiberg of Sweden in the giant slalom.

Wiberg gave Sweden its first alpine medal in Olympic history. She took advantage of a series of mishaps to win the gold while the second dead heat in Olympic alpine history gave silver medals to Roffe and Austria's Anita Wachter.

Roffe's success lifted the U.S.

Junior center Firth academic honoree in Midwest district

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

Junior Kelly Firth has a chance of becoming the first SIUC women's basketball player to be selected as a national GTE All-American.

The 6-1 center was named Tuesday to the GTE Academic All-District 5 team in women's basketball. Firth will be one of 40 nominations on a national ballot when 1,600 members of the College Sports Information Directors of America select GTE Academic All-Americans March 9.

Firth, a recreation major, is the first Saluki cager since Ann Kattreh in 1987 to be chosen All-District. Besides starting for the basketball team, Firth maintains a 3.41 grade point average.

Coach Cindy Scott said Firth exemplifies what a student-athlete should be.

"She is incredibly deserving of the award," Scott said. "She has a tremendous work ethic on the basketball court and in the classroom."

Scott said Firth has had an excellent year on the court.

"Her two key contributions on the court have been her rebounding and her defense," Scott said. "She's a great role model in terms of action."

The two-year starter has sparked the Salukis to a 16-5 record this season, averaging 12.4 points and 9.8 rebounds a game. She has notched double figures in 13 games and has a team-high nine double-doubles this season.

THE SIUC WOMEN'S basketball team is in a must-win situation for the last six games of the season.

SIUC will close out a four-game homestand at 7:35 tonight against Indiana State, 7-6, and Saturday against Illinois State, 8-5. The Salukis and the two ISUs are among six teams battling for the top four spots in the Gateway conference.

SIUC, 10-2 in the Gateway and 16-5 overall, is making a run for the championship a pace behind 12-1 Southwest Missouri State, which is ranked 12th nationally in the USA Today poll.

Illinois State and Indiana State are fighting for the remaining positions with Wichita State and Bradley.

SIUC blew Illinois State, 75-55, and Indiana State, 81-53, off their home courts earlier this season, but splits have been the norm with the two teams the last four seasons.

Coach Cindy Scott said the Salukis need to be at the top of their game to beat both the teams and continue a 19-game arena win streak against Gateway foes.

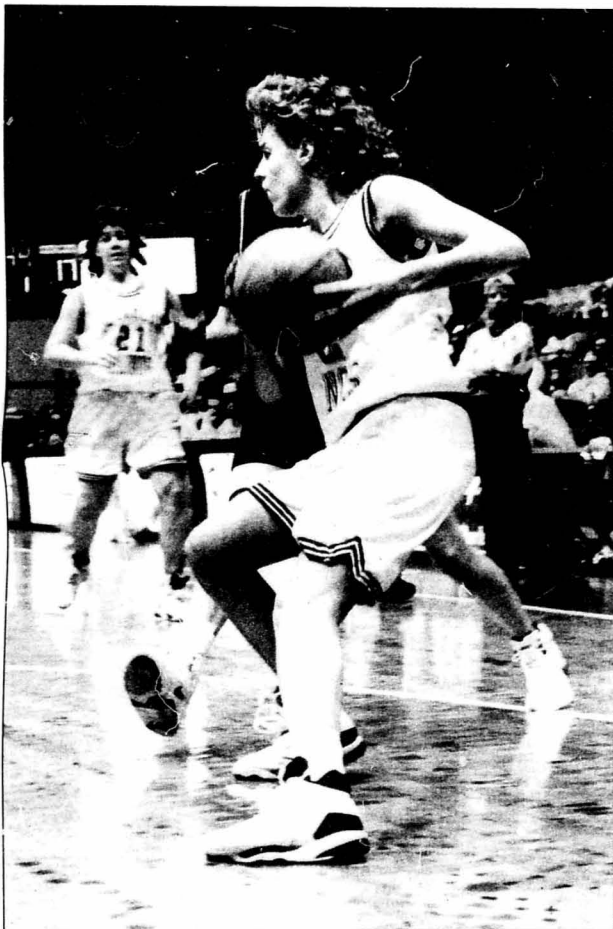

"Every game we play is do or die," Scott said. "Both the teams are fighting for a spot in the conference tournament. I think we've rebounded from the Northern Iowa loss, and our team is going to have to be at its best to beat the two teams."

AFTER A 5-1 start in the conference, Indiana State, 10-11 overall, has dropped five of its last seven matchups including a 66-62 loss to Drake Saturday in Terre Haute.

The Sycamores top two players are senior forward Angie Eichhorst, who is averaging 16.1 points and 8.5 rebounds a game, and sophomore guard Hazel Olden, who is averaging 13.5 points and 5.3 assists a game.

Kings get Coffey in 3-team swap

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Pittsburgh Penguins Wednesday traded Paul Coffey, the all-time NHL scoring leader among defensemen, to the Los Angeles Kings in a three-team deal that breaks up one Stanley Cup nucleus and reunites another.

Coffey, a Stanley Cup champion with two teams, in Los Angeles rejoins former teammates Wayne Gretzky and Jari Kurri. The Kings sent defenseman Jeff Chychrun and Brian Benning and their first-round 1992 draft choice to Pittsburgh. Pittsburgh then sent high-scoring right winger Mark Recchi, Benning and the Kings' pick to the Philadelphia Flyers for right winger Rick Tocchet, defenseman Kjell Samuelsson, goaltender Ken Wregget and a conditional 1993 draft pick.

"Our intention in making this move was to improve our team defense, improve our physical presence on the ice, and to improve our chances to repeat as Stanley Cup champions," Penguins General Manager Craig Patrick said.

The Penguins are 1-4-2 in their last seven games and are only six points ahead of the New York Islanders and eight points ahead of the Flyers for the fourth and final playoff spot in the Patrick Division.

"Whenever we make any kind of movement, we always do it to improve ourselves," said Patrick. "We wouldn't have made a deal unless we felt we were improving ourselves."

The trade reunites Coffey, 30, with Gretzky and Kurri, who played together on three Stanley Cup championship teams with Edmonton in the 1980s. Coffey has 10 goals and 53 assists in 54 games this season, and he passed Denis Potvin this year as the NHL's all-time scoring leader among defensemen. Coffey has 1,108 points in 863 games.

Fifth, sixth seeds advance to second round in Classic

STUTTGART, Germany (UPI) — French Davis Cup hero Guy Forget earned a second-round berth at the $1 million Eurocard Tennis Classic Wednesday, taking advantage of an injury to Jakob Hlasek, his doubles partner.

Forget, the fifth seed, won the match, 7-6 (7-5), 6-2, after Hlasek slipped and injured his left foot while trailing 3-2 in the second set. The 27-year-old Swiss player took a three-minute injury timeout for treatment, but he was unable to move well and Forget swept the next three games to end the match in 1 hour, 34 minutes.

In the first match of the day, No. 6 seed Petr Korda of Czechoslovakia survived 14 double faults to edge German Arne Thoms, 7-6 (10-8), 7-5.

In later first-round action, No. 3 seed Boris Becker was to play Sweden's Jonas Svensson, and John McEnroe was paired against No. 8 seed Karel Novacek.

SCANDAL-TAINTED BANK TO LIQUIDATE — Negotiations for the sale of the Hong Kong branch of the scandal-tainted Bank of Credit and Commerce to an Indonesian group have broken down and the bank will be liquidated, it was announced Wednesday. The announcement drew protests from many depositors following months of negotiations expected to lead to the sale of the bank. The bank had an estimated $1.4 billion in deposits when it was closed in July.

NORTH, SOUTH KOREA MENDING TIES — North and South Korea, ideological enemies for more than 46 years, put three key treaties into effect Wednesday in a major step toward full rapprochement and eventual unification. President Roh Tae Woo urged the government of North Korea to implement the rapprochement accords in a televised address.

VOTERS GO TO POLLS IN TROUBLED PUNJAB — Voters braving death threats from Sikh militants cast their ballots amid tight security Wednesday in elections aimed at restoring local rule to strife-torn Punjab state after five years of direct central government control. The news agency Press Trust of India said officials predicted turnout at about 30 percent, but unofficial sources estimated fewer than 25 percent of the voters cast their ballots.

U.N. FED: NO NEED TO RAISE INTEREST RATE — The Federal Reserve does not plan to cut interest rates again anytime soon to boost economic growth because action already taken should be sufficient, Fed Chairman Alan Greenspan told Congress Wednesday. While the situation "needs to be monitored closely," Greenspan said "the early indications of a marked pickup in residential real estate activity and a rise in retail sales are a particularly favorable sign."

BUCHANAN CHALLENGES BUSH TO DEBATE — Conservative columnist Patrick Buchanan, energized by a stunning performance against President Bush in the New Hampshire primary, Wednesday challenged the president to a face-to-face debate. Bush has repeatedly said he would not participate in a debate during the primaries or against members of his own party. Buchanan said the president's refusal would be an admission the Bush's policies have failed.

JUDGE FINES JUDGE FOR NEGLIGENCE — A charge of driving under the influence of alcohol against St. Clair County Circuit Judge Patrick Fleming has been dismissed at the request of the state's attorney's office. The charge was dismissed Tuesday by St. Clair County Associate Judge Jan Fiss. However, the judge found Fleming guilty of failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident and fined Fleming $150. Council: Dismantle historical building

Old freight building to come down, be reconstructed

By Teri Lynn Carlock
City Writer

The walls of the old rail freight building in downtown Carbondale will come tumbling down—but they will be put back together again.

The City Council Tuesday night voted to dismantle the building and place its historical components in storage until funding for a new open air pavilion is available.

City Manager Steve Hoffner said the total cost of dismantling the building will reach $105,000. The reconstruction will cost $80,000, and the engineering costs will be about $15,000.

The city and the Carbondale Citizen's Committee will have to provide $71,000 for the project to add to the $34,205 funding in the budget this year.

Ellis Mitchell, a member of the Carbondale Citizen's Committee, said the group would be willing to raise funds for the dismantling project.

"The committee is supposed to raise between $30,000 and $35,000 for the project," he said. "We have presently raised less than $15,000—it's hard to ask for money when you have no goal."

The City Council agreed to give the committee until July 1, 1992, to raise more than $30,000 for the project.

The council also agreed to use money from its budget next year to help fund the project.

Mitchell said there is a possibility of SIUC providing an architect and engineering services for the project.

"President John Guyor gave me the authority to look into the University helping us," he said.

Councilman Keith Tuxhorn suggested the city pour a concrete slab and place wooden boards over it as a cost compromise. He said doing this procedure would cut some of the expense to have a new pier built underneath the freight building.

"The history of the building and the building itself is important," he said. "I do want to see this building in its pavilion form, and pouring the concrete ourselves will help with the overall cost."

Tom Redmond, downtown coordinator, said the estimated cost to place the building on a slab and shorten it by 20 feet is over $65,000. The length of the freight building is 90 feet.

Councilman John Mills said he would prefer to see the building keep its original size and to look the same as it did in the 1930s.

Mayor Neil Dillard said Hoffner could begin negotiations with J & L Robinson Construction Co. to reach the lowest possible cost, then begin construction as soon as possible.

The old freight building was built in 1854 by Daniel Brush, the founder of Carbondale for the arrival of the first train in the city July 4, 1854.

The council has been reviewing the idea of renovating the building during the past year and a half.

The Carbondale Citizen's Committee had wanted to renovate the building but later decided that the city should dismantle it.

Federal project provides money for training of dislocated workers

By Christy M. Gutowski
General Assignment Writer

Southern Illinois was chosen as one of five sites in the nation to develop an entrepreneur training program that areas nationwide may implement as a model to help battle high unemployment.

The Illinois Farmers Union-Training Inc. and the Southern Illinois Small Business Incubator at SIUC were awarded $454,000 for a federally funded demonstration project. The project differs from previous ones because it trains dislocated workers to start their own business, not just re-enter the labor force.

Traditionally, this type of program has focused only on retraining dislocated workers to enter the labor force, said David Hampson, incubator director.

"The Department of Labor is testing in this type of program the principal that many dislocated workers are well-trained, have a lot of background and are interested in developing a business of their own," he said.

The grant recipient of funds for the Business Entrepreneur Support and Training (BEST) project, which was one of six proposals accepted, is Illinois Farmers Union-Training Inc.

It receives Department of Labor funds and disburses it to training programs throughout the area.

Old attitudes on trial after Tyson verdict

THE UNITED STATES PUTS ITS HEROES ON A pedestal and then sits back to admire them. The awe associated with sports heroes makes them appear to be above social standards, but the true person behind the glimmer oftentimes does not deserve the respect.

MIKE TYSON HAS NEVER BEEN ACCUSED of being a peaceful man. He has been paid millions of dollars to beat opponents senseless. Out of the ring, his personal life also is far from peaceful—whether it be the short and violent marriage to actress Robin Givens, or his past record as a juvenile roaming the streets looking for trouble before being picked up and trained into a champion.

Too bad this Rocky story does not have a happy ending. Rather than leaving the streets behind and taking constructive advantage of the opportunities given him, Tyson kept the street thug attitude and developed an untouchable ego.

Tyson claimed in his own defense that he had made his intentions clear, describing bluntly and graphically what he wanted of the victim before the rape took place. The victim, he said, left his hotel room irritated when he refused to walk her out.

In short, Tyson's defense hinged on his lack of respect for women. Yes, he admitted, he was rude, arrogant, sexist and tactless, but not a rapist. Surely a first among rape defenses.

CRITICS OF THE CONVICTION AGAINST Tyson questioned the wisdom of the young victim, a Miss Black America contestant, going unescorted to Tyson's room. True, it was a misjudgment, a slip of common sense. But at 18 years old, no one knows all the ways of the world, and wisdom is hard to come by. It is hard to believe any woman would volunteer herself to be abused by one of the strongest fighters in history.

PERHAPS BLINDED BY THE GLAMOUR of escorting one of the world's most successful fighters, she overlooked the basics of self-protection. There is a lesson here for other potential victims. Some would like to think they may freely walk any street and go where they please with whom they please. The harsh reality is that no one is absolutely safe from rape or other violent crimes. Some assaults, but certainly not all, can be avoided with forethought.

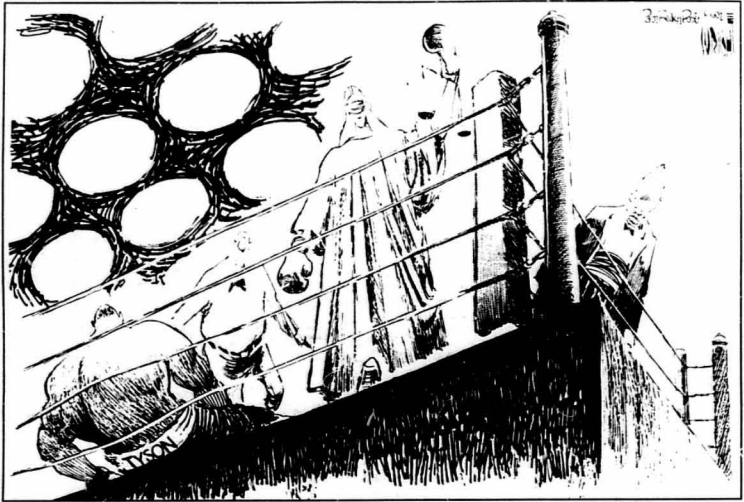

THE TELEVISION AND NEWSPAPER TABLOIDS will soon be ablaze with stories featuring the 18-year-old victim. Assuredly money will be offered for her story and the truth of the case will become lost in commercialism.

But before the inevitable happens, the public must learn what lessons it can from the Tyson trial. Men cannot fall back on barbarous attitudes to justify unwanted sexual aggression; women cannot ignore the reality of rape as a personal threat.

There is a hope, however faint, that the Tyson fiasco will help members of both sexes modify their attitudes in a dangerous age. Maybe, with those modifications, the danger can be reduced, and men and women can begin to approach each other with more respect and trust.

Letters to the Editor

Resident vs. Housing on power, pest, water woes

To University Housing, Washington Square D: I am a student living in University Housing. Recently I received a letter from you that gave me three options. The first was to find myself another roommate. The second was for me to find myself a room with another occupant in it. The third was to pay an additional $384 or top of the $1440 I have already paid for this semester.

I have problems with this, the first being that I neither broke my contract nor asked for a single room. I don't feel that I should be charged an additional fee, or that I should have to move. If University Housing wants to have rooms filled with two occupants, then it is their job to do so. I am not the one at fault for there not being two people assigned to this particular room.

I would also like to say that the quality of University Housing is less than satisfying. This year I have had more than my share of problems.

I had to have my room exterminated twice because of a problem with roaches. The electricity in the bathroom has fouled up. There is no pressure for the hot water valve. My biggest problem yet, though, is that there was a mouse in my room. I will not even mention the quality of food in True-blood Cafeteria.

I sincerely hope that you take note of this letter. I am absolutely appalled at the way the University is trying to make up for its budget cuts by way of the students' pockets. I will not accept this type of treatment. My pockets are empty.

By the way, when my original roommate moved off campus, over $300 of her money was kept. Where did that go?—Etoni Tankersley, Neely Hall.

Returning grad takes DE dare, tries early morning parking

Thank you for the newsworthy article published in the Monday, Feb. 10 issue of the Daily Egyptian. I've just enrolled this semester, and much to my surprise, parking availability on the roof of the Faner parking garage after 8 a.m. can be challenging. Unlike 1968, when I was an undergraduate student here, there is a larger number of students on campus with automobiles.

Both skepticism and optimism challenged me to accept the "dare". I decided to try out Brian's suggestion this morning. Instead of arriving on the roof at 8:15 a.m., I was there at 7:15 a.m. I must admit, I was delighted to find the roof only one-third filled. Parking availability was indeed abundant. I also noticed only one car parked in the red parking lot near Anthony Hall and Highway 51.

Thank you, Brian, for the statistical analysis and detailed report provided in your article. I only hope other students will follow your tried and true advice and come early. There is really a lot of parking if you're willing to get up early.—Rosalynd Vaughn, graduate assistant, Center for Basic Skills.

Parking fixes must give way to priorities

I would like to respond to Mr. Schuyler's letter in the Feb. 10 issue of the DE.

As an employer, the university is obliged, as are all employers, to provide parking for its employees.

Staff, including maintenance personnel, are required to work during the "core hours" of 9 to 3 p.m., and there are 4,169 blue stickers and only 1,866 blue parking slots.

That means there are either 2,303 night employees or a lot of staff having to park in red lots.

However, Mr. Schuyler is quite right about the fiscal problem of the university, and given the staff and program cutbacks which have and are taking place, parking is of minimal concern, or should be.

Clarence Dougherty, vice-president for Campus Services, would have $25,000 spent to give a proposal on a parking garage to be built on the east side of the stadium at an intermediate cost, as well as use parking funds to conduct a feasibility study.

At a time when the university needs a science building, a library annex and restoration of programs, one may inquire as to who needs to sharpen their priorities pencil?—Michael J. Laudone, LTA I, Morris Library.

Easy parking a student right

I am responding to Phil Schuyler's letter to the editor. He tries to cut down the truth of the parking problem to insignificance. However, the majority of the students agree that a parking problem does exist.

Solutions, of course, are not easily implemented. It is not arrogant of me to assume that SIU revolves around students. SIU is not a business. It is an institution for higher education. Without students, the University is pointless. If ticket money isn't used to help with parking lots, what is it used for?

I propose that all of the parking lots could have levels added on to them, e.g. the parking lot at the Student Center. With tuition increasing and financial decreasing, I find it appalling that students must worry over finding a parking place on campus. That isn't amusing at all.

I definitely disagree with your view that parking is a privilege. When I'm paying tuition and fees, plus a separate fee to park on campus, I have a right to park on campus.

Apparently you don't see the importance that students have in this university. SIU has several problems, but parking is one of them, whether you admit it or not.—Terri Bozovich, senior, special education.

station started in the basement of Wright Hall 21 years ago.

Although the station has grown and moved to offices in the Student Center, Halton said WIDB still is in the basement because it is not on-the-air and will stay that way if local radio stations have their way.

WIDB is available only through cable radio, but a proposal made last year would put the station on-the-air through funding from student fees.

A University committee, formed to study problems with going on-the-air, submitted a report to President John C. Guyon Friday. One of the concerns addressed was the response of local radio stations, which oppose WIDB going on-the-air.

Guyon will not reach a decision for several months, but the opposition of the stations will be a factor, he said.

Halton, a senior in radio-television, said the committee checked with three of the largest stations, WCIL and WOOZ in Carbondale and WDDD in Illinois Student Association Executive Director Phil Lyons said the cuts will be detrimental to the future of ISAC.

"Education and welfare used to be sacred cows, but in November, Edgar said they could no longer keep them out of the state cuts and cut 3 percent across the board," he said. "This is not a temporary thing--this could affect the ISAC monetary award program for years down the line."

Supplemental appropriation bills should be passed in the legislature replacing ISAC and MAP reductions, Lyons said.

"The legislature in Illinois will realize continued cuts in financial aid and increases in tuition will Both candidates garnered nine delegates for the Democratic National Convention, but some analysts say Tsongas does not have the political stamina to stay in the lead.

"I don't think Tsongas has the strength to pull through," SIUC political science lecturer Barbara Brown said. "The pieces are not in place to gain and build on this win."

Tsongas' victory was a surprise to few as his chief opponent, Clinton, has struggled with rumors, since his campaign began.

"I would have certainly been surprised (about Tsongas' victory) a month ago," Hays said. "Public opinion left his campaign a strong air of respectability. Tsongas is close to Buchanan in their campaign. He plays the disgruntled-with-the-party tune."

New York Mayor Mario Cuomo's write-in campaign garnered 4 percent of the vote, 2 percent higher than liberal consumer advocate Ralph Nader.

ISAC officials do not take into consideration the tuition and fee increases for next year when making the cuts, Britton said.

Michael Bruno, a junior in marketing from Schaumburg, said the money he is losing from current MAP cuts is crucial to paying his rent.

"They say, 'Here's your money so you can budget for it,'" he said. "Now it's gone and we have to re-budget."

Britton said University officials need to take cuts in financial aid into consideration when voting on the tuition increase if they want to keep a college education in reach for students.

"There was a speculation that Bush was un-defeatable," Hays said. "But Buchanan may find a receptive ear in the new south. The demographics are changing in the south. Conservatives have flocked to the fun belt and Buchanan appeals to that element of society that is supportive of limited government."

Brown said current discontent with the government also will favor the Democrats.

"People clearly disagree with the way the political system of this country is going," Brown said. "That is one thing Clinton and Tsongas can say is that 'I am a Washington outsider.' By the same token, Tsongas may not look like so much the outsider when the media begins to scrutinize him."

CAROL MOSELEY BRAUN FOR U.S. SENATE

Will Speak February 20, 7:30 P.M. at the SIUC Student Center Auditorium

Paid for by Southern Illinois Committee for Carol Moseley Braun

Marion.

"They felt another station was not needed," Halton said. "Of course that's just good business. They're trying to keep their pockets fat."

Halton said WIDB's primary goal is not to be a commercial entity but to provide alternative music to students, especially minorities, and give student disc jockeys better experience.

"WIDB has been on-the-air 20 years, and in a sense, we're still in the basement," he said. "There's no programming for minorities in the Carbondale area. Maybe 5,000 students can pick us up outside the Student Center."

Dennis Lyle, general manager for WCIL, said WIDB's presence on-the-air would cut into the Southern Illinois audience share and provide unfair competition.

Lyle, who worked for WIDB in 1971, said the station offers great experience to students, and not being on-the-air does not deter this experience.

Lyle has told the University administration that WIDB would be unfair competition because of its connections with the state institution, he said.

"WIDB is run by volunteer help, and existing broadcasters have to pay employees," Lyle said. "Our electric bill is not paid for by an institution. If WIDB is going to be a player, they should be a player on equal time."

WDDD would not comment and WOOZ could not be reached.

Guyon said he places a lot of importance on the attitudes of businesses because the University wants to maintain good relations with the community.

Halton said the situation is a public relations matter.

"It's up to President Guyon," Halton said. "He'll weigh and decide. If it's good for the University, then he'll say 'Let's do it,' or if he wants to appease local broadcasters and not invade their territory, then he'll let those guys make all money. They can make all the money they want off students and the University, but they will not let students do what they want with their own dollars."

available resources poses another serious problem, Guyon said. A possible solution will be an enrollment cap.

"It looks like it's going to be a lean mean FY93," he said. "I am supportive of the premise we will have to generate revenues through an increase in tuition."

Sullivan criticized the state government for not making education a priority, forcing the University to make students cover the cost by increasing tuition rates.

"We the students will not accept this trend anymore," Sullivan said. "The state must make education a priority not just with its campaign rhetoric, but with its dollars--obviously they've not been doing this in the 80s."

Tuition increased 50 percent in the past decade and tuition and fees jumped 272 percent, but state funding decreased 13 percent.

More than 19,000 SIUC students depend upon financial aid for their college education, but recent cuts in the Monetary Assistance Program have hit 6,700 SIUC students in the pocket.

President Bush also has cut about 20 percent of college work study under his proposed budget, which would affect 17,000 college work study employees on campus.

Too many students do not realize the impact a group can have when influencing a decision, Sullivan said.

"When you get that group mentality, that's when things are going to start changing," he said. "And when its that one-person-can't-make-a-difference mentality, that's when everyone sits back and gets screwed in the end."

World-renown organist to play SIUC

By Kristi Rominger
Entertainment Editor

The director of the SIUC School of Music admits organ recitals can be dreadfully boring sometimes.

But Robert Roubos, an organist himself, said he tries to make his recitals as interesting as possible.

Roubos will play a wide variety of music on the Reuter Pipe Organ Friday at Shryock Auditorium.

The Reuter Pipe Organ is the largest instrument in Southern Illinois.

Selections from Johann Sebastian Bach, who termed the organ "king of instruments," to modern pieces will be performed.

Roubos said listeners should expect a few amusing moments in the selections.

"The program will end with a French toccata—something you might hear in Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris," Roubos said.

This piece will be played "full organ," meaning as loud as possible.

The concert begins at 8 p.m. Friday at Shryock Auditorium. Admission is free.

The Reuter Pipe Organ at Shryock Auditorium has a very extensive capability.

It has the widest dynamic level available, and it ranges from the

"The organ at Shryock is the largest and finest instrument in this region, and it is a wonderful resource to students at SIUC."

—Robert Roubos

very lowest to the very highest pitch available, Roubos said.

The lowest key vibrates at 16 cycles a minute, almost below defined pitch range, and the highest keys vibrate about 40,000 cycles.

Roubos said some people cannot hear that high—only dogs can.

"If students have not heard the pipe organ, now is an excellent opportunity to do so," Roubos said. "The organ at Shryock is the largest and finest instrument in this region, and it is a wonderful resource to students at SIUC."

This program is diverse in composers and mood, and the selections range from church music to humorous pieces usually reserved for a concert hall.

Roubos has been an international concert organist since he began recitals in Holland, France and Scotland during the 1970s.

Since he began working at SIUC, he has performed on concert tours of Hungary, Romania, Yugoslavia, Austria, Latvia, USSR and Japan.

On these visits, he not only played concerts but also was involved in international exchange programs, developing faculty cultural exchange programs for the University.

SIUC is a leader in the field of developing these exchange programs, Roubos said.

"Now, communism has fallen in Europe, which has led to free enterprise and emerging democracies," Roubos said.

"This is an excellent opportunity to develop relationships between SIUC and conservatories for music in Europe.

"Our ultimate goal is to enable students, rather than just faculty members, to be involved in the exchanges," Roubos said.

Roubos said these are exciting times for the SIUC music school.

"Music is a very important window to the University, and people can look in and see the quality of our program," he said.

Roubos has been involved with music most of his life.

He has been playing the organ for about 45 years, since junior high school.

Before then, he played violin and piano, and he was the choir accompanist during high school, he said.

In the late 1950s, Roubos taught organ, music theory and church music courses at the University of Southern Mississippi.

He headed music departments at Adrian College, the State University of New York College at Cortland and Indiana University-Purdue University at Fort Wayne before coming to SIUC in 1981.

Roubos is responsible for establishing the first formal arts exchange agreement for the University between the Latvian Academy of Music and SIUC.

Several faculty members are going back and forth to Latvia, and by the end of this semester, about eight will have experienced this exchange, Roubos said.

Sony dominates Oscars, earns 36 nominations

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Sony Corp.'s two American studios — TriStar and Columbia — dominated the 64th Annual Academy Award nominations Wednesday with 36 nominations, or more than a third of the total.

The strong showing, headed by TriStar's gangster-drama "Bugsy" leading all films with 10 nominations, represents a vindication for Tokyo-based Sony, which had found rough spots in its foray into the world of U.S. moviemaking since buying the studios in late 1989 for $3.4 billion.

Analysts have criticized Sony's lavish spending since then, notably on buying out the contracts of executives Peter Guber and Jon Peters from Warner Brothers and for last year's biggest box office dud, TriStar's "Hudson Hawk," which cost an estimated $70 million and then grossed less than $20 million.

"Bugsy," had been widely expected to do well in the Oscar derby.

The incubator is the primary subcontractor of the project, responsible for development of all curriculum and testing.

"What we hope to have at the end of this, apart from serving the immediate community, is a model that any other agency across the country can adopt," Hampson said.

Ideas like this are not easily disseminated throughout regions because management information formats and recruiting forms differ, Hampson said.

"We've designed the curriculum and management system so it can easily be integrated into other Department of Labor delivery networks," he said.

The project is the first federally funded project in which the incubator has been involved.

The Southern Illinois proposal was chosen as one of six from a group of 75 applicants who had ideas for job creation and entrepreneurship projects.

"We took all our good ideas that we had in our earlier, state funded programs, expanded them and added things we always wanted to try," Bartels said.

Four pieces comprise the program, including classroom training correlated with one-on-one intense training, BEST Clubs and special seminars.

The classroom training provides individuals in the project with management, marketing and finance skills.

"Individuals learn everything from how to do taxes through how to design a marketing plan," Hampson said.

The project is proving to be successful, with 44 percent of the first class having operational businesses, Bartels said.

Southern Illinois also was chosen because of the high unemployment rates in the area, Hampson said. "There is a great need for this type of job creation project in this area."

The demonstration project targets five rural southern counties which are underdeveloped and have high unemployment rates, including Franklin, Jackson, Jefferson, Perry and Williamson counties.

Unemployment figures in these areas were higher than both state and national averages in 1990 and 1991.

The report also notes a number of mine and plant manufacturing closures that have added to the high unemployment figures.

Members of the cast for "Pinocchio" rehearse the scene "Pinocchio Joins the Marionettes." They were performing Tuesday night in McLeod Theater. The members are, from left to right, Jonathan Cofield as Arlecchion, Scott-Brady Barnett as Pinocchio, Terr Sader as Pulchinella and Janet M. Chow as Columbina. They production will run weekends Feb. 28 to March 8.

SIUC theater cast brings life to timeless Italian marionette

By Ronn Byrd
Entertainment Writer

A cast of SIUC students and local children will present the classic children's story of "Pinocchio" this month in a performance the director calls the best of both worlds—for children and adults.

"Pinocchio" is directed by Christian Moe, chairman of the SIUC theater department.

"It is an adaptation, so the playwright has taken dramatic license with the original story, which is grimmer than the play," Moe said. "They do portray Pinocchio as a misbehaving, willful boy which the novel does. We're sticking to the text pretty much."

Moe decided to use the children in the play.

"I wanted to have a spirit of youthfulness," Moe said. "And I thought children could give me that. Also, it generates interest in the show and I like to get the community interested."

Children performing in "Pinocchio" include Bonnie Beltz of Carbondale, Joshua Davis of Cobden, Seth Kolhaas of Benton and Melanie Smith of DuQuoin.

Beltz, who attends Thomas School in Carbondale, is part of the ensemble cast, and said rehearsing has been rough on her.

"It's a lot of work," she said. "I get tired afterwards. Sometimes we don't get home until after 10 and then I usually do my homework."

Cast members said the play is written for children and is better with them performing. "They've been great," said Stephanie Crist, who plays the Cat. "They work really hard and pay attention. I've heard them comment on how much they've enjoyed themselves during this."

Crist also has been seen in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "The Women of Troy," and "Grease."

Pinocchio is played by Scott-Brady Barnett, an SIUC junior in theater performance. Barnett said rehearsing every night for more than three hours has taken its toll on the entire cast.

"The play right now is rather frustrating simply because there are times when you have to be together to work on choreography," Barnett said. "We have to be together at the end to work on the musical selections and then in between we must work on the actual play."

"It is a little difficult because cramming all that into two or three hours leaves you a little exhausted," he said.

Most viewers are familiar with the popular Walt Disney version of "Pinocchio" released in 1938, but Moe said his presentation of the marionette will be closer to the original.

"I think Disney was a long way from the original. It was full of cheer and that's the preconception audiences have when they visualize Pinocchio. It's hard to get away from that."

Moe has his own interpretation of "Pinocchio" but leaves the characters open to the actors who play them.

"Everything I do, rather than what Dr. Moe gives me specifically, I do myself. When I'm on stage I feel like I'm Pinocchio the whole time."

"Pinocchio" will show Feb. 28, 29 and March 6, 7 and 8 at the McLeod Theater. After the initial Pinocchio is no Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle.

The Italian marionette lies, steals, fights and kills.

Pinocchio is the creation of Italian author Carlo Collodi.

Collodi's "Pinocchio" is a more Brothers-Grimm version of the tale. Within the first five chapters, Pinocchio kicks Gepetto, makes the police believe he had been beaten, sending Gepetto to jail and kills the famous cricket with a mallet.

Pinocchio later sells his school books for which Gepetto sold his coat to get. He spends the money to get into a marionette show.

Some of the truly grizzly turns in the children's story are Pinocchio being hung by assassins, turned into a donkey, eaten by fish and swallowed by a shark.

Pinocchio would be considered a terrible role-model for children today. Despite the eventual happy ending, Pinocchio is robbed repeatedly, fights other children, steals and is put in prison several times. And, of course, Pinocchio begins to tell lies.

"Lies, my dear boy, can be easily recognized," the blue fairy tells the wooden boy. "There are two kinds of them: those with short legs, and those with long noses. Your kind have long noses."

With every lie then, Pinocchio's nose begins to grow. In the end, Pinocchio redeems himself by saving Gepetto from sickness by working very hard

City to install parking meters at Corner Diner's request

By Teri Lynn Carlock
City Writer

City Council members are taking the next step in dealing with a parking problem in downtown Carbondale.

The City Council voted Tuesday night to allow 25 parking meters to be installed in the Corner Diner parking lot located at West College and Renfro streets in Carbondale.

Bill Haupt, owner of the Corner Diner, said parking is a big problem near his business.

"In the past I have had people towed off, and at one point I had someone stay out in the parking lot from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. telling people they can't park in my lot if they don't use my business," Haupt said.

Installing parking meters is the solution to the problem of having to argue with people or tow cars, Haupt said.

"This way, everyone can get along a lot easier," he said.

But Susan Hall, president of the SIUC graduate and professional council, said installing meters will not guarantee open parking spaces.

"It still doesn't leave an access to those parking spaces at the Corner Diner," she said.

"The spaces still will be open to anyone if they can pay the meter."

Brad Cole, USG chief of staff, said the Undergraduate Student Government is not in favor of the installment of parking meters in Haupt's lot or any other lot near campus.

"It would really dishearten me to see the entire community become one gigantic parking meter," he said.

But Mayor Neil Dillard said the city needs to provide an opportunity for businesses to receive a turnover profit and not have people park in spaces all day for free.

"Because there is a charge, it really doesn't matter if they are a patron of the business," he said. "The fact is that they are renting the space—that's their prerogative."

Cole said 710 Bookstore places plastic bags on its meters during selling and buy-back times, and he suggested that Haupt place bags over the meters in his lot during finals week.

"Many students go to Corner Diner to study," he said.

"Placing bags over the meters should be considered to show support for the students."

Speaker urges African Americans to 'take control of their own minds'

By Trumier Camphor
General Assignment Writer

An African-American psychologist from Florida State University said for many years the only black psychologist he ever saw was the one in the mirror.

But things are changing. "African Americans need to meet the challenges of today and take back control of their minds," said psychologist Naim Akbar, a Black History Month speaker.

Akbar addressed a crowd of SIUC students, faculty and staff for two hours Tuesday night at the Student Center Auditorium.

"African Americans," Akbar said, "should first look at how they have survived up to this point."

He wants to give African Americans a handle on healing their community, Akbar said.

"This is done through studying ourselves," he said. "If we don't understand that there is a civilization of African people and that civilization existed in Africa, then we will continue to think that Africa is a dark continent, and we will think of those origins as being a dark origin."

"Then we will begin to think of ourselves as being incapable of providing the kind of intellectual leadership that we have already provided for the world," he said.

African American youths cannot understand what they can do in the world for themselves without understanding what already has been done, Akbar said.

"Our survival is based on our collective efforts to do what is right no matter what," Akbar said.

"Social psychologists studying African Americans never look at what makes us strong as a people."

African Americans have kept going for so many years because they believed in the undeniable principle that 'right' was in the universe, Akbar said.

"African Americans kept believing 'right' would be restored no matter how many injustices they suffered," Akbar said. "African Americans came out of slavery with dignity and that spirit of dignity has kept us going as a people."

A number of single black mothers have successfully raised their children during the years, and black men also have survived under tremendous obstacles, he said.

"Black women believed in their implicit abilities to do what was right for their families," he said.

African Americans have gotten away from their own values and internalized the values of other cultures and begun to treat them as their own, Akbar said.

What many call culture actually is a celebration of European culture, he said. African Americans need to restore their own value system and role models.

"The only Santa Clause that my children know about is their daddy," Akbar said.

Akbar also challenged predominantly black fraternities and sororities at SIUC to act as role models and provide service to the African-American community.

"The Alphas and the Kappas should be competing with one another to help black children in this area," Akbar said. "All of you black greeks should be spending individually at least one hour a week with some black kid who needs you."

Akbar also challenged SIUC African-American administrators, faculty and staff to provide service to the black community.

"There should be someplace in this country where the African paradigm exists," Akbar said. "We need institutions that address the needs of African Americans."

Gerald Walton, an SIUC junior from Chicago, said he related to and understood everything in Akbar's message.

"It gave me a sense of responsibility," Walton said.

SIUC sophomore Jaime Williams said Akbar's speech was not totally pro-black or anti-black.

A Christian student group will present "Breaking Free," an educational drama about growing up in a dysfunctional family at 7 and 9 p.m. tonight in the Student Center Ballroom D.

Campus Crusade for Christ, an interdenominational student organization, is sponsoring the program, which offers spiritual solutions to the problems of family dysfunction.

"Breaking Free" deals with how our relationship with our families affects our daily lives," said Blair Hubbard, spokesman for the group. "A lot of times people don't realize how strong the effects are."

Joe Baker, alcohol and drug coordinator at the Wellness Center, said a dysfunctional family is difficult to define.

"Dysfunctional family means any family unit that isn't working," he said. "This can be a result of substance abuse, physical or sexual abuse, negligence and many other things."

Baker said the topic of dysfunctional families is an important one because the problem is so widespread.

One in 10 Americans has a substance abuse problem, and their abuse affects at least four other people, he said.

"Abuse erodes the family structure and this can have drastic effects," he said.

"I don't think anyone comes from a Cleaver household," he said. "It takes a lot of work to maintain a good relationship with anyone, especially family members."

The multi-media presentation tonight is the story of four students who deal with forms of abuse in their homes.

It is a production of Paragon, a company that presents programs on college campuses across the country.

Paragon programs range in topic from death to dating, and all offer a spiritual approach to solving personal problems.

Old-fashioned calculating Kouzi Suzuki teaches 6th grader Robert Bahr how to use a soroban. A soroban is a Japanese abacus. An abacus is a calculating instrument used to perform arithmetic by sliding counters on rods. Suzuki was at the Winkler Elementary School Wednesday morning.

run, the show will go on tour to elementary schools in the Southern Illinois area with a scaled-down cast and crew from 40 to 10.

The sets used in "Pinocchio" are charming in their simplicity. They consist of metal poles with stretched pieces of painted canvas that can become a cottage, the inside of a whale or a forest.

The actors themselves do the set changes between scenes.

Moe said the play should appeal strongly to the audience.

"The music, dancing and singing as well as just seeing a familiar story again will be very attractive," he said.

"People may think it's for children, but I think students will like it as well."

Barnett said "Pinocchio" is an accurate metaphor for growing up.

"I think Pinocchio exemplifies the innocence of youth while foreshadowing the perils of adulthood," Barnett said.

"It brings out the best and biggest kid in me."

and is rewarded by the blue fairy by becoming a live boy.

But "Pinocchio" was not printed originally as a book.

Written by Collodi in 1881, "Pinocchio" was popularized with 36 episodes of the mischievous puppet in "The Children's Journal."

Thousands of readers eagerly awaited what trouble the puppet would find himself in each month.

When the stories were collected and printed in a book, they quickly sold a million copies in Italy within a few years. The book has since been translated into such languages as Japanese and Hindu.

Claire Sachs wrote in the "Dramaturg" that Pinocchio is "relieved from the mere finger-wagging moralization about behaving well and not telling lies, and describes the realization of our human potential."

"It is not until Pinocchio risks everything for the love of his father that he gains everything—including his humanity."

Michael Douglas receives theater award from Harvard

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Actor-producer Michael Douglas, the object of homicidal obsession in "Fatal Attraction" became the recipient of theatrical ovation in a raucous parade and ceremony at Harvard University.

Douglas paraded through Harvard Square on Tuesday with a group of actors in drag then accepted a brass pudding pot from the Hasty Pudding Theatricals, the oldest undergraduate drama group in the country. The pot symbolizes Hasty's Man of the Year award.

Last week, the group honored actress-director Jodie Foster as its Woman of the Year.

Sweden captures first gold in women's slalom

MERIBEL, France (UPI) — Pernilla Wiberg picked up Sweden's first-ever women's Olympic alpine gold medal Wednesday, winning the giant slalom by almost a second from American Diann Roffe and Anita Wachter of Austria.

Wiberg posted a time of 2 minutes 12.74 seconds for two runs, while Roffe and Wachter tied for the silver with 2:13.71.

It is only the second time ever that an Olympic alpine medal has been shared.

"Maybe now people don't look at you being married as being too old to ski any more," said the 24-year-old Roffe, who was only in ninth place following the first run. "I may be an old married lady, but I have no plans to retire right now."

The United States had two other women in the top 10, Julie Farišen finishing fifth and Eva Twardokens

Roffe strikes another blow for married skiers

MERIBEL, France (UPI) — Diann Roffe, describing herself as "an old married lady," gave herself and the U.S. ski team a big lift Wednesday when she came from far back to share a silver medal in the Olympic giant slalom.

Roffe, in ninth place after the opening run, wound up in a tie for second place with Austria's Anita Wachter behind gold medalist Pernilla Wiberg of Sweden.

"Maybe now people don't look at you being married as being too old to ski any more," said Roffe, who is 24. "I may be an old married lady, but I have no plans to retire right now."

Roffe attributed her slow start Wednesday to her crash a day earlier in the super-giant slalom.

"I had my work cut out for me (in the second leg)," she said. "I thought for sure being ninth I had given too much time to the leaders."

"When I thought that, I knew all I could try was 110 percent. I have confidence in my skiing and I knew I could do it. It was just a seventh. "We have a strong team and when we train, we train to outdo one another," Roffe said. "It is exciting knowing that any of the American team can do well."

Although Wiberg is the first Swedish woman to prevail in matter of being relaxed and taking every chance I could.

"I knew there were good racers to come and I just had to wait. I didn't want to be fourth. I really didn't."

The medal was the second of the Games for the U.S. women's alpine team, following Hilary Lindh's second place in the downhill. Roffe said that was a reflection of the improvement in the squad.

"We have a strong team and when we train, we train to outdo one another," she said.

alpine, her victory is no surprise. The 21-year-old is the reigning world champion in giant slalom after winning last winter at Saalbach-Hinterglemm, Austria. "I thought I had a good chance to be in the top three but I was not sure I could take the gold," she said. "I would have been happy to have finished in the top five.

"This win means more to me than even my title last year in the World Championships.

"It is wonderful to take a medal for Sweden, and although I am sorry we haven't won before mine in these Games, I am very happy to be the one to finally do it."

Wiberg said there had been a lot of pressure on her at the beginning of the season to do well in the giant slalom.

"Everyone was saying I would come here and win a medal," Wiberg said. "But I have been scoring better results in slalom, so the pressure was off me. I could just go out and ski the way I know I can and today I just went for it."

Darkhorse goalie stuns fans, helps team stay undefeated

MERIBEL, France (UPI) — His surname is as easy to pronounce as any. But here, at the 16th Winter Olympics, they are starting to call him LeBlanc.

It's only fitting. U.S. ice hockey goalie Ray LeBlanc has been brilliant, outstanding, incredible, all the superlatives wrapped into one in carrying the American hockey team the farthest it has been at an Olympics since the "miracle" of 1980 at Lake Placid.

The United States came into the Games as a darkhorse, a notch below Sweden, Canada and the Unified Team. LeBlanc, however, has given the United States as good a chance as any to take it all.

Coach Kjell Larsson of France summed it up after his team fell 4-1 to the upstart squad in Tuesday's quarterfinal.

"The thing I want to say is the difference between the two teams is

"The difference between the two teams is the American goalie, LeBlanc"

— Kjell Larsson

the American goalie, LeBlanc," he said.

That's it. That's all he said. The U.S. team is 5-0-1 in the tournament, the best record of the 12 teams. France is 2-4, and the only difference between the two teams is one 27-year-old goalie who has spent seven years in the minor leagues and will return there once the Games are over.

"LeBlanc is unbelievable," said teammate Marty McInnis. "He's a great goalie now. Right now he can stop anything."

And that's the way it appears. The Americans take to the ice at the beginning of each game, and LeBlanc puts up his shield and spends the next 60 minutes of action diving from one side of the net to the other, fending off one attack after another like some heroic knight of old. He even had the net pushed on top of him from behind during the brutal game against Sweden.

During the first six games, the U.S. team has been outshot 207-160. At the Olympics, another interesting statistic is kept, and that is total shots, meaning not just the ones on goal but around the net. Overall, the six opponents of the United States have uncorked 323 shots toward LeBlanc in 360 minutes of action. It's a wonder he's still standing.

medal count to seven, one more than the Americans earned in Calgary.

The Unified Team led Finland 2-1 after one period and then scored twice in the second period to turn the game into a rout.

That decision set up what will could be one of the most dramatic moments of the Games — a confrontation between the old Soviet hockey machine and a surprising, physical American team that has not lost in six games.

If the United States can beat the Unified Team, the Americans will clinch no worse than a silver medal. Seizing on the opportunity, CBS-TV announced it would preempt its original afternoon programming Friday and show the game live.

Wednesday night's other quarterfinal game sent Sweden against Czechoslovakia, the winner of which was to meet Canada in the semifinals Friday.

The bobsled flap was unexpected since Will's sled, with Walker the brakeman, had turned in the third-best combined training times Monday, the fifth-best Tuesday and sixth-best Wednesday.

Moments after Wednesday's practice runs, Will said he wanted to meet with American bobsled officials and when he told them what he wanted, they quickly agreed.

Walker, who has grown used to sitting on the bench during his stay with the Minnesota Vikings, said he would continue to cheer for the American sled.

Unified team whips Finland, will meet U.S. in semifinals

MERIBEL, France (UPI) — The name has changed but the quality of hockey remains the same, if not better.

The two-time defending gold medalist Unified Team, formerly the Soviet Union, rolled into the semifinals of the Olympic hockey tournament Wednesday night with a 6-1 triumph over Finland.

The Unified Team, which appears undaunted by losing many top players to the National Hockey League since the last Olympics, will face the United States in the first semifinal Friday. The only loss for the former Soviet squad, 5-1, came against Czechoslovakia.

Yuri Khmylev and Vladimir Malakhov scored 2:22 apart in the second period to break open a close game, and the Finns never recovered.

"We took two stupid penalties you cannot take in this type of competition," Finnish Coach Sakari Pietila said. "In the second period we played 12 minutes one-man short and used so much energy we could not come back."

Pietila said the Unified Team effectively drew penalties in the second period. "They are firm stars, some of them," he said.

Finland, the silver medalist at the 1988 Winter Games, drops into the consolation bracket.

Germany files hockey protest

MERIBEL, France (UPI) — Germany, saying the penalty shots did not follow proper sequence, Wednesday filed a protest over Tuesday's sudden-death shootout loss to Canada in Olympic hockey.

The Canadians won the quarterfinal 4-3 when Eric Lindros scored on the 11th penalty shot of the shootout.

His shot came after a first round of 10 penalty shots, five by each side, ended in a 2-2 tie. The Canadians took the first shot of the first round of sudden-death penalty shots.

The German Ice Hockey Federation claims its team should have been given the first shot of the second round. The official rule backs that up.

"If the result is still tied after five shots by each team," the rule reads, "the procedure shall be repeated with the other team starting to take the shots in the same order of players until the decisive goal is scored."

and No. 3 in rebounder. Olden ranks No. 1 in steals, averaging 3.5 a game, and No. 2 in assists.

Scott said one of the keys against Indiana will be to keep the two players contained.

"Angie Eichhorst is very versatile as a post player," Scott said. "Olden does a great job, and hopefully (junior point guard) Anita Scott can take care of her. Indiana State shoots well from the perimeter and inside."

ILLINOIS STATE, 11-11 overall, is the only Gateway team to beat Southwest this season. The Salukis have captured five of the last six matchups against the Redbirds and have won three straight at the Arena.

Despite a nine-player roster with no seniors and lingering injuries, Illinois State ranks second in the Gateway in field goal offense and third in scoring defense.

ISU coach Jill Hutchison said her team will go into the game as the underdog.

"Southern has a very good offensive and transition game," Hutchison said. "Psychologically, Southern has a stronger program. They've been playing well lately and have the home court advantage and playing before the men's game will have a larger crowd."

"Injuries have been a significant problem. It limits the number of things we can do in a game."

The top two Redbirds are juniors Caryn Brune, who is averaging 16.3 points and 8.5 rebounds a game, and Tami Baalk, who is averaging 14.7 points a game.

Brune, who is the Gateway's No. 2 blocker and No. 3 scorer, has had double-doubles in six of her last nine starts. She also ranks as the Gateway's No. 4 rebounder and No. 5 field goal shooter.

Baalk, this week's Gateway Player of the Week, collected 21 points and the game-winning steal against Drake last Thursday. Baalk ranks 1st in the Gateway's top 10 in scoring, steals and assists.

Scott said Illinois State is always a contender and always will be a contender.

"ISU is very well coached, and they scare me to death," Scott said. "There is a tremendous respect and a tremendous rivalry between our two schools. They got fine players inside and can also shoot from the perimeter."

SIUC, THE GATEWAY'S No. 2 scoring team, is averaging 75.4 points a game this season. The Salukis will try to outscore their foes with their top four players who are averaging in double figures.

Anita Scott is SIUC's leader in scoring, assists, steals and minutes played. Scott, who averages 13.2 points a game, has posted double figures in 17 games this season.

Junior center Kelly Firth, the Gateway's No. 2 rebounder, is averaging 12.4 points and 9.8 rebounds a game, and junior forward Angie Rougeau is averaging 11.1 points a game.

SIUC ranks No. 1 in the Gateway and No. 8 in the nation in 3-point shooting. The Salukis are led from the perimeter by senior guard Karrie Redeker, the Gateway's No. 1 and the nation's No. 6 3-point shooter. Redeker is averaging 12.2 points a game and is making 46.9 percent of her treys and No. 6 field goal shooter, making 53.2 percent of her shots. She is SIUC's No. 1 rebounder and No. 2 shooter.

Her career-high of 24 points was against Wichita State this season, and she nabbed a career-high 15 rebounds against Bradley and Murray State.

Firth said her family, which live in Springfield, has played a big role in her basketball career.

"My brother got me started," Firth said.

"I used to go out and rebound for him. My parents are very supportive and have only missed four games this season."

Firth said she chose SIUC because she got along well with the players.

"The players here are very close," she said. "There like a family away from your family. I think good relations between players is very important. How well you get along off the court reflects on how well you cooperate and get along on the court."

Firth said basketball will not play an important role in her life after college.

"I like to work with disabled people," she said. "I think they're special special people, and I enjoy working with them."

"I might use my basketball skills to work sports therapy, but beyond that I don't plan on doing anything with basketball."

To be selected for All-American, the student-athlete must be at least a sophomore with a 3.2 GPA or higher and be a starter or a top reserve.

Mitch Parkinson, SIUC women's sports information director, said Firth fits the bill.

"Kelly is an outstanding student-athlete," Parkinson said. "She has the statistics. She's the No. 2 scorer and the top rebounder" on the team.

"She has a solid GPA. I think she's a strong candidate and has a good shot at garnering All-American honors."

"Probably the best way to describe it is relief," said Coffey, who has been the subject of trade rumors since training camp. "It's going to be tough. I have a lot of fond memories of Pittsburgh."

Coffey, who won the Norris Trophy twice as the NHL's best defenseman, said he is looking forward to playing with Gretzky and Kurri again.

"I definitely am," said Coffey. "If you're going to be traded, it's nice to go to a team that you know a lot of the guys. I'm a pretty lucky guy, if you ask me. I had a chance to play with Wayne in my first seven years, and I had a chance to play with probably the most talented guy who has ever played the game in Mario Lemieux, and getting a chance to play with Wayne again. I'm pretty lucky in that aspect."
