Gay ban lift opposed by doubtful senators

Los Angeles Times
WASHINGTON—The Clinton White House struggled Tuesday to gain control of a boiling controversy over gays in the military, apparently avoiding, at least for the moment, a damaging and highly public break with leading congressional Democrats and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The fledgling administration was given breathing room on the issue when Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., Congress' most influential voice on defense, put off a major floor speech in which he was expected to take a role as a leading opponent of Clinton's proposal to lift the ban on homosexuals in the armed forces.

Nunn's decision came after Clinton met with congressional leaders at the White House, a session that ended with Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell D-Maine, giving public assurances that the issue could be handled by negotiation rather than confrontation. "I think it will all be worked out beforehand," he said.

Even so, the White House insisted that it intends to press ahead with the issue in a confrontational way. Clinton spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers said that the president would likely announce Wednesday that he is freezing all investigations and discharges of homosexuals in the military pending the outcome of his discussions with Congress and the military.

"I don't think it gets any easier," another Clinton spokesman, communications director George Stephanopoulos, reiterated that Clinton "remains committed to his policy." But, he added, "if we can avoid a legislative battle, that's all to the good." White House scrambling came as an administration as with see GAYS, page 5

Simon supports family bill

Another attempt to pass a family leave bill cleared the hurdle of a Senate committee Tuesday, moving toward a more receptive president.

U.S. Sen. Paul Simon, D-Makanda, a long supporter of the bill, voted in favor of the family leave bill, his employment and production committee.

The bill would require employers that hire 50 or more people to give employees up to 12 weeks of unpaid leave for family services, such as caring for newborn children.

University officials have managed to keep Recreation Center fees at the same level, but at the expense of those who use the facility most.

Michael Dunn, director of Intramural Sports, said Recreation Center fees will not increase for at least two years.

Dunn said the Recreation Center Advisory Board has found three alternative ways to raise money and to avoid a fee increase.

Dunn said the advisory board is considering charging an up-front fee for intramural activities. An example of an up-front fee would be a $5 payment by any basketball team wishing to enter the intramural tournament.

Mike Gourley, a junior from Danville, has played intramural basketball in the past and plans to play this semester.

Gourley said the students' fees should cover everything.

"I don't think it's fair to tack on extra fees," Gourley said. "I think the fees we pay each semester should cover everything, but I will still play."

Dunn said for intramural activities such as aerobic classes the board may require students to purchase rate cards that would be worth a certain number of classes.

Jill Compardo, an aerobics instructor, said the rate card system might discourage those in financial binds, but not a large number of students.

Board considers having students pay to play intramurals

A lot of students think the classes are worthwhile and have die-hard attitudes, so they will stick with it," Compardo said.

Dunn said another way to generate more funds is through instructional and camp programs that require an up-front fee. The programs will be extended over longer periods of time and more participants will be allowed.

In additional programs include: golf, tennis, raquetball and others.

Gatsby's allowed to choose days of license suspension

By Sanjay Seth
City Writer
A local bar and billiard parlor found guilty of liquor violations by the Elder Liquor Control Commission was allowed to pick two of the three days it will have to serve a license suspension, a practice of which the state liquor control attorney said he had never heard.

In a negotiated plea at the commission hearing on Jan. 14, Gatsby's was found guilty of unattended delivery.

City Attorney Michael Wepiec said the dates were decided between a lawyer for the city and the Gatsby's, and the liquor commission agreed to the dates. The City Council also serves as the liquor commission.

Weed Smith, representing the city, said in the proceedings of the negotiation Gatsby's was given the opportunity to choose two days that the suspension could be served within a four-week period. Not surprisingly, Gatsby's chose Saturday and a Monday.

One day of the suspension had to be served on the same day the violation occurred—a Wednesday.

City Councilor Dale Feldman, the chief legal council with the Illinois Liquor Control Commission, said he has never heard of a case where the license is given a choice on the days to serve a suspension.

"Normally in cases we pick the suspension days," Feldman said. "There is nothing illegal or wrong if that's the way they choose it (the local commission) want to handle it."

He said because it was a local decision, the severity of the suspension is in the discretion of the City Councilor.

Saluki baseball team to play tough 1993 schedule

Salukis to face tough schedule

By Dan Leahy

Sports Writer

The SIUC baseball team won’t have to wait long to find out if it is going to be a contender for the Missouri Valley Conference title, or mere also-rans.

The young Salukis play a challenging schedule, including many tough tests for SIUC.

In addition to the Cowboys, SIUC faces the University of Miami, Wichita State, Indiana State and Creighton, all of whom are ranked in Collegiate Baseball’s Top 30.

SIUC coach Sam Riggleman said playing the best conference competition available will help prepare the team for the MVC portion of its schedule.

“The schedule is worked out a year or so ahead of time, so we know the caliber of the team we’re going to be playing,” Riggleman said.

The Salukis hope a solid schedule will keep them in favor.
FOACHING LAW ENACTED IN BOTSWANA — Anyone caught killing a rhinoceros in Botswana's national parks could face 15 years in prison and a fine of $43,500, the state radio said Tuesday. Under a new Wildlife Conservation and National Parks Act, elephant poachers would spend 10 years behind bars and pay a fine of $21,750. Those caught illegally killing other protected animals inside national parks would be given seven years imprisonment and fined $4,350. The law stipulates that a person may kill a wild animal that "endangers him..."

DEFECTS FOUND IN FRENCH POWER PLANTS — Safety inspections of French nuclear power plants last year found dangerous cracks in six reactors caused by premature corrosion, supervisory authorities said Tuesday. Five other reactors were found to have other deficiencies, the DIN authorities of the Rhone region said. The inspections were in the lids of the reactors causing the fuel rods were found both in first-generation and second-generation reactors, they said.

RUSSIAN LEADER TRIES TO DISPEL RUMORS — Russian Foreign Minister Andrei Kozyrev moved Tuesday to dispel speculation that he had been diagnosed with cancer. Kozyrev said he was diagnosed with a "very treatable" cancer several weeks ago, the International Herald Tribune reported. TEENAGERS LIED ABOUT BUYING BABY — A California teenager Monday admitted he made up a story about buying a baby from a drug addict for $10. Robert R. Garcia also admitted that he is the baby's father. Garcia and his girlfriend, 17, concealed the pregnancy because they were too afraid to tell. With the baby's birth Saturday, the panic-stricken parents concocted the story as a way to turn the infant over to child-welfare workers.

POLICE STILL SEARCHING FOR GUNMAN — State police were still searching Tuesday for a gunman who killed two people and wounded three others near the headquarters of the Central Intelligence Agency in suburban Virginia. The gunman, described as in his 20s, opened fire with a title Monday morning on occupants of vehicles waiting to turn from a busy road into a smaller road leading only to the main gate of the agency.

CLINTON ChoOSES AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA — The current U.S. ambassador to Russia, Thomas Pickering, was nominated by President Clinton Tuesday to be the next U.S. ambassador to Russia. The appointment, announced in a news briefing by White House Communications Director George Stephanopoulos, must be approved by the Senate. Pickering, a career diplomat, was appointed to the U.N. in 1988 by President George Bush.

STRESSEnd CONSIDERS RUNNING FOR SENATE — Singer Barbra Streisand may be contemplating running for election to the U.S. Senate, The New York Post reported Tuesday. The newspaper, quoting "high-placed" sources in the Democratic Party, said the 50-year-old superstar expressed her interest last week during the inaugural of President Bill Clinton. "Barbara said she has been giving the idea of political office some thought," a source was reported to have said.

MAID SPEAKS ON BEHALF OF ALLEN — Film star Woody Allen received a boost Tuesday in his fight with former partner Mia Farrow for custody of his children when an employee of Farrow spoke in his favor. Monica Thompson, who worked for Farrow for seven years, said Allen had "always" been the better parent. She left Farrow's employment when she found she had been called as a witness for a custody hearing next month.

False alarm at Fairview

Environmentalists find no loggers to protest at Shawnee

By Angela L. Hyland
Environmental Writer

In what turned out to be a false alarm, environmentalists from all over the area came together Tuesday to protest cutting in the Shawnee National Forest. They arrived in Fairview, an area 15 miles southwest of Carbondale, shortly after dawn. They came alone or in groups, each one bundled in layers to ward off the cold.

Immediately after arriving, the group making plans to stall the loggers.

"Maybe we should build a fire in the middle of the road," said one SIUC college student. "We could put a lock on the gate," another suggested.

Within the hour, a small fire had been built in front of the gate leading to the site. The glowing embers served twice as a source of heat for the sleeping group than as a novel block, but no one seemed to mind.

They were making their opposition known. They did this not only by their presence, but by the very clothes they wore.

"I am the Lorax, I speak for the trees," read the slogan on middle-aged man's T-shirt. "Stop clear cutting the forest. I beg of you please!"

Forest Service officials said their decision not to come out to the site Tuesday had nothing to do with slogans, but instead had to do with priorities.

"It's really a very minor project," said Tom Hagerty, public affairs officer for Shawnee National Forest. "It involves a very small portion of land... only about half an acre. We need to remove trees left accidentally the last time we were here.

The Forest Service has not set an exact date to return to the area, but said they will be going out as soon as they get a crew together.

In addition to cutting the trees they moved in 1991, Hagerty said the Forest Service wanted to cut down trees that were leaning or were broken off during the last cut.

Edgar to address state economy

By Jeremy Finley
Politics writer

Gov. Jim Edgar will give his State of the State address today to announce a guide for the future of the state for the next year.

John Jackson, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said Edgar will give a general plan of his expectations and ideas for Illinois.

"(Edgar) will lay out a general plan and announce some themes, but the legislatures themselves will follow afterwards," he said.

John Foster, political science chairman, said Edgar will definitely discuss the state's financial situation during his speech.

"The budget is at the top of the list," he said. "He will discuss the state's financial situation and what they plan to do about it."

Jackson said he doubts Edgar will address education as one of his top priorities.

"(Edgar) hasn't done a great deal with education," he said. "There won't be a lot of new money, and I don't think it will get much attention."

Jackson said the speech is important because it gives a guideline for the state to follow.

John Baker, associate professor of information resources, said the importance of the speech varies with the person giving it.

The address will be at noon today on WSUI-TV. The speech will be repeated at 10:30 p.m. on WSUI-TV.
Early retirement plan benefits only a few

A NEW RETIREMENT PLAN has been approved for higher education that pales in comparison to the one offered to public schools and other state employees.

The limited early retirement plan, as it is appropriately coined, is somewhat better than no plan at all — but has enough limitations that it will benefit only a few. Under the new plan, those 55 to 60 years old can retire and have the University contribute up to 35 percent of funds that the employees highest annual salary.

THE CATCT, HOWEVER, is that there are only an estimated 300 employees at SIU that are in the 55 to 60 age group.

Of those people, only about 30 to 40 are apt to participate because most will not have been with the University long enough or will not have a high enough salary to benefit.

Other pitfalls of the plan are that it is only temporary: the dates to participate are between July 1 of this year and June 30, 1994.

In comparison, public schools have legislation for those between 50 and 60 that allows school employees to buy more pension benefits, up to five years in age and teaching experience.

Not only is its age bracket larger than for higher education but it is a long-term plan, unlike the

THE LOGIC FOR THE DISPARITY in plans is that public schools are estimated to yield about $100 million in savings when teachers with high seniority retire and are replaced with entry level staff.

In some cases, the retiring teacher would not be replaced; in both instances, the schools would save funds.

Universities, however, have more competition. Depending on the discipline and the faculty, it may not be possible to replace employees with entry salaries. The state could still have saved money but not as much, according to Jervis Underwood, president of the Faculty Senate.

"Market place conditions have driven up entry level salaries for some university positions as opposed to entry level salaries in public schools which tend to be controlled by salary schedules," Underwood said.

SIU INTRODUCED A COMPROMISE plan, called the 10 plus 30 plan, which would have increased the retirement annuity formula by 10 percent and allowed employees to retire after 30 years of service as opposed to the 35 years without a reduction. It was long-term enhancement and provided an increase in benefits.

"There's a real sense of frustration. The administration of SIU is terribly disappointed that the 10 plus 30 plan was not even considered," said Bill Capie, associate vice president for administration.

Administrators are frustrated because relatively few people will benefit under the adopted plan, and many deserving people are left out.

IF THE MISSION of state government was to accomplish a beneficial early retirement plan for everyone, it missed.

Despite helping state employees at other agencies, most people in higher education were overlooked.

It is better than no plan, but the state must continue to look for alternative plans so that universities are given equal treatment.

Black Crowes to play Arena, give SIUC taste of harmony

By Christian Kennerly
Entertainment Writer

The Black Crowes will make its first appearance at the Arena Feb. 28 during the final leg of its tour for its most recent release, "The Southern Harmony and Musical Companion," the band's second platinum album.

The Black Crowes plan to incorporate several lesser known songs such as "Non-fiction" and "Sometimes Salvation" into the show as well as the more established songs "Hard to Handle" and "Jealous Again."

"We want to create a vibe so that you'll just feel like you're hanging out at our pad for the evening," said lead vocalist Chris Robinson.

The stage show for "The High And The Moon Tour" promises to be an awesome display including strings of multi-colored lights, a stage covered in candles, and special backdrops to create a environment for each audience.

A new aspect added to this tour will be newly created anti-scalp measures. These management-created policies stipulate that the first five rows at each show will only be sold to fans.

This is achieved by giving each ticket buyer a voucher rather than a ticket.

The voucher must be brought back on the day of the concert with a photo I.D. in order to claim one's seat.

Also included in these measures are a four-ticket maximum for each buyer.

All tickets for the Black Crowes concert cost $20 and are on sale at the Arena, 433-5341.

Globe-trotting students earn credit, learn

By Candace Samoinski
International Writer

International Programs and Services gives students the chance to learn about other cultures while earning college credit.

"Our programs are designed to build inter-cultural skills," said Thomas Saville, Conference Coordinator of International Programs and Services. "Partly because it is a good thing to do. Overall because you need to do it if you want to be reasonably successful in mobile professions."

Saville and other faculty members plan to hold a number of lectures explaining the various study abroad programs offered at SIUC.

Trips to Greece, Egypt, Japan and Austria are included in the program. These exchanges are not just for people who are in business or studying a foreign language.

"These exchanges are not just for people who are in business or studying a foreign language. School is more for people who are seeking international experience."

"If you are a student in Liberal Arts and Sciences it is good way to satisfy your language requirements, he said. "It is a more effective way, because you take a first year's equivalent the first semester and a forth. For someone with a minor it can cut the time in half from three years to one and a half."

The campuses at Austria and Japan are much smaller than SIUC, Saville said. This is benefits students participating in the program.

"On a large campus the education is good, but the students don't always get the chance to meet people who are highly recognized in their field," Saville said. "For example, on the Nakajo, Japan, campus, if a student has a problem and can't get it resolved they can go and talk directly to the president of the college. That is something which rarely if ever happens here at SIUC."

Trips to Egypt and Greece are scheduled for the summer months. Trips to Austria and Japan are limited to the Fall and Spring semesters.

The costs of most of these programs are similar to those paid to send SIUC, Saville said.

He said Austria and Japan are high cost countries, but the costs of the exchanges there are reasonable.

To receive more information about these programs contact 435-7670.

Midwifery now covered by SIUC insurance plan

By Jonathan Serff
Health Writer

Those who will have to consider the tough options of childbirth will take interest in two benefits that have been added to SIUC's health coverage.

Starting last week, abortion was added to the SUIC student insurance policy, and now certified nurse midwifery also will be covered.

Midwifery is a cost effective alternative to regular physician care during pregnancy.

During pregnancy women are cared for by licensed nurses with midwifery certification that work in conjunction with physicians.

Angela Reidner, a certified nurse midwife from St. Joseph Memorial hospital in Murphysboro, said midwives are a more natural alternative to childbirth and are coming more prevalent with health care reform.

"Because of lower costs, midwives are an effective alternative. Women want to become closer to the person delivering their baby," she said.

"We visit the patients about once every four weeks for the first seven months of pregnancy, after that the visits are more often. At 36 weeks of pregnancy we see them every two weeks. We decrease them any less, but maybe more," she said.

The SIUC health insurance company, Aetna, was a little slow to cover the procedure.

Ann Felix, who is under the care of Reidner, said she was told at first she was going to get coverage, but then there was a problem.

"The SUIC health program had to influence the company," Felix said, "because like many, they weren't sure what midwives really do."

"The term midwifery often conjures up a negative connotation, which is usually unfounded," she said.

"There is a difference between certified midwives, and others called lay-midwives. In Illinois, only certified midwives are legal. Insurance companies don't always know the difference, so they immediately say away, SUIC insurance only covers care from certified midwives," she said.

Michelle Deneste, another SIUC woman receiving midwife care, said she started using the midwife before the SIUC coverage came, but now is glad she is covered.

"The benefit is that it is a higher quality care for a much cheaper cost," she said.

"The doctor only seems to talk about childbirth, whereas the midwife really cares about the patient as a woman," Deneste said.

Angela Reidner, a certified nurse midwife at St. Joseph Hospital in Murphysboro examines Vanda Clemens of Ullin. Clemens was 26 weeks pregnant when the photo was taken, for about 10 minutes at a time, where midwives will discuss any question, she said.

"Along with a doctor's busy schedule, it's not always as comfortable to talk with them. The midwives explain all the procedures in detail, it's not just an order. They really care what happens to you," she said.

SIUC has decided to cover the procedure because of a strong request from students.

The SIUC women feel the procedure is not only more cost effective for the soon-to-be mothers, but for the SIUC insurance as well.

In short, having a midwife usually is cheaper than regular care.

Jake Segrest, administrator for the health center, said the coverage is a result of negotiations.

"The benefit is because of both parties involved, the woman and the insurance company," Segrest said.

"It is difficult to assess how many students are expected to take advantage of the coverage, but it seems a viable option for many women, now that it is under the policy," he said.

Bill Hall, vice president for the GPSIC, said GPSIC, at the request of the pregnant students, had proposed this solution to the health center.

"We are very impressed at how quickly the university administration has moved to solve this problem," he said.

With the Jan. 20 effective date of the midwife care, SIUC also will cover costs for student abortions.

Rob Sepich, coordinator of the Student Health Program, said the insurance only will cover 80 percent of the costs involved in the procedure.

The students first will receive counseling from SIUC health services. If they want to go ahead, they will be referred to an off-campus facility, Sepich said.

Students can go wherever they wish, but there are two main agencies to which referrals are made.

Groups discuss Colorado gay law

By Todd Schliender
General Assignment Writer

Graduate students may decide tonight to boycott a national convention in Colorado because of that state's gay law.

The Graduate and Professional Student Council will discuss at 7 p.m. whether to boycott the convention of the National Association of Graduate and Professional Students, the parent association of GPSC.

Susan Hall, president of GPSC, said the campus organization Gays, Lesbians, Bisexuals and Friends has submitted a formal request that GPSC not attend its national conference, as it is planned to be held in Boulder, Colo.

"NAGPS wants to continue with the conference in Boulder," Hall said. "The students at Boulder have put a lot of effort forth for this conference. These plans were begun before we knew we would have this problem." Hall said that NAGPS has decided to hold a protest during its conference.

"We want to let Colorado know that, although we are here, we are against Amendment 2," she said. "Colorado voted in favor of restricting the rights of gay men and lesbians in the November election."

Hill said members of GLBF will be in attendance to discuss this matter with GPSC. "I feel that when you have a request from an organization on your campus, and it's a just request, then it has to be taken seriously."

GPSC also will consider the creation of a University Police advisory board. This board would act as a liaison between the student body and SIUC police.

Executive board nominations and elections also are scheduled for Wednesday. GPSC will meet in the Student Center Mississippi Room.

Crime center founder Alexander dies at 83

By Jeffrey Wheeler
General Assignment Writer

Myrl E. Alexander, founder of SIUC's Center for the Study of Crime, Delinquency and Corrections, is remembered as a man who loved his work.

Alexander died of heart failure Jan. 14 in Corpus Christie, Texas, at the age of 83.

Alexander came to SIUC in 1961 to found the center where he was both director and a professor.

Retired SIUC professor Charles Mathews, who served as Alexander's assistant and later as his successor at the center, said Alexander loved his work.

"He was one of the most energetic and enthusiastic leaders in the field of corrections in this century," Matthews said.

In his retirement Alexander spent a lot of time gardening and started a tree farm a few years ago. But Matthews said he never lost his love for his field of expertise.

In 1965, at the request of U.S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy, Alexander left SIUC to become the director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons where he served until 1970. He then returned to SIUC until his retirement in 1972.

During his illustrious career in corrections he authored a popular penology source book titled "Jail Administration" as well as numerous professional journal articles.

While at SIUC he helped develop many of the theories that have been adopted by the nation's prison systems including community treatment centers and work- and study-release programs. He was a founding member of the Myrl and Lorene Alexander Fellowship Fund of the SIU Foundation.
SIUC Program to Prevent the Use of Illicit Drugs and the Abuse of Alcohol by Students and Employees

October 1992

MEMORANDUM
TO: The University Community
FROM: John C. Guyon
RE: Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act

To receive federal financial assistance of any kind, institutions of higher education must certify that they have a drug-free policy in effect. The--new Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act amendments of 1989. The materials which follow are being distributed as a means of our complying with this legislation, and perhaps more importantly, in forming the entire University community of the standards required with regard to illicit drugs and alcohol abuse.

The requirements of the law are separate and distinct from the requirements specified by the Drug Free Workplace Act of 1989. The Drug Free Workplace Act requires that employers provide an initial one-hour training session for employees which is to be repeated at least once every two years. This requirement is not included in the requirements of the Drug Free Schools and Communities Act.

The goals of the Drug-Free Schools and Communities Act are to create a drug-free environment and to distribute information about illegal drugs or the abuse of alcohol to students and employees. This program is being implemented on the University of Illinois campus to meet the requirements of the Drug Free Schools and Communities Act. The program includes a training session for students and employees, a counseling center, and a drug-free campus program.

The following is a description of the health risks associated with the use of illicit drugs and the abuse of alcohol; a description of programs available to students of the University community; counseling, treatment, and rehabilitation; and a statement of possible disciplinary sanctions which are applicable to members of the University community who violate the University community's policies and procedures, whether or not the distribution of illicit drugs or the abuse of alcohol; a description of applicable legal sanctions under local, state, and federal law for the unlawful possession, use, or distribution of illicit drugs and alcohol.

Faculty, staff, and students must adhere to a code of conduct that recognizes that the unlawful manufacture, possession, use, or distribution of illicit drugs is prohibited on property owned or controlled by the SIU Board of Trustees or as part of any University activity. The use, including the sale, delivery, possession, and consumption of alcoholic beverages in any manner, is prohibited on university property and at university functions.

The health risks associated with other drugs include both physical and psychological effects. The health consequences of drug use depend on the frequency, duration, and intensity of use. All drugs, even those of low risk of dependency, or abuse; and combinations of certain drugs, such as alcohol and barbiturates, can be lethal. The purity and strength of illegal drugs can vary widely, increasing the risk of harm.

Continued use of substances can lead to tolerance (requiring more and more of a drug to get the same effect), dependence (physical or psychological need), or withdrawal (a painful, difficult, and dangerous process of eliminating the use of drugs). These effects can cause physical and psychological problems, including chronic anorexia, decreased appetite, weight loss, and malnutrition. The risk of AIDS and other drug-related problems is increased for women using drugs, and cause abnormalities, such as Fetal Alcohol Syndrome (the leading cause of birth defects) in babies.

Some Physiological Effects of Specific Drugs

Alcohol is a depressant which, used in any dose, reduces coordination and alertness, making activities like driving a vehicle or operating machinery dangerous. Overdosage can cause unconsciousness, respiratory arrest, and death. Physical complications of chronic alcohol use include liver damage, hypertension, ulcers, bleeding ulcers, stomach ulcers, anemia, and brain damage.

Amphetamines/Stimulants increase heart rate and blood pressure; stroke and heart failure may result. Tachycardia may result in malnutrition and brain damage. hallucinogens (LSD, mescaline, PCP), have unpredictable effects that vary with individuals; panic reactions are common. Impairments are likely, as with any street drug.

Dissociative Sedatives/Barbiturates act much like alcohol, by depressing the central nervous system.

Narcotics/Heroin are opiate used to relieve pain. Tolerance develops quickly, and a user at- tempting to stop will experience withdrawal symptoms. Illicit and AIDS transmission are associated with narcotics of use conditions of use.

A drug may have some undetected functions of the patient. Side effects include liver and joint dysfunction, tremor, physical reactions, all over and in the brain.

Caffeine in high doses may cause nausea, diarrhea, sleeplessness, headache, and trembling.

Nicotine may cause cancer of the lungs, larynx, and mouth.

Alcohol and Drug Prevention and Counseling Services

The University community is encouraged to learn about the effects of drug and alcohol abuse. The SIUC Counseling Center offers services to students and employees who may need counseling for drug or alcohol abuse problems.

Mental relaxation, imagery among headache remedies

By Barb Fojdek
Wellness Center

"My head feels as if it's splitting." "My neck is so sore I can hardly move."

Everyone hurts at some time or another and headaches are one of the most common types of pain. There are many different types of headaches, but by far the most common is the tension headache. Tension headaches are the most receptive to healing without drugs. Taking drugs (aspirin, Tylenol, etc.), to ease the pain of tension headaches is a personal choice, but can run the risk of "masking" the body's message. Believe it or not, pain can be a positive message to help you look at what is out of balance in one's life.

Many people tend to think externally when trying to decipher the message behind the pain. They think, "It's my job, my relationships, my housing that needs to change."

That may be true, but in many cases, the problem may be internal, such as worrying, not expressing emotions or not trusting one's own intuitions.

Individuals experience tension that may lead to headaches in their own unique way and must find their own plan to reduce it. Actions that may help are:

* Keeping a personal journal to record pain and notice patterns;
* Learning ways to communicate with discomfort through meditation or imagery;
* Examing "diet"—not only food, but noting all sensory input including noise, lighting and other positive or negative environmental impacts;
* Cultivating sensitivity to internal messages through relaxation techniques.

Practical measures such as use of heat, cool, massage, stretching, deep muscle relaxation or regular exercise may help. Some of these methods work by stimulating the release of natural body pain killers known as endorphins.

Often when pain arises in the body, muscles tighten around the area of pain. The fear and dread of the unpleasant then magnifies the pain.

Learning how to mentally relax often helps to significantly reduce the pain of the tension headaches. If you believe your headaches are related to tension, instruction in muscle relaxation, deep breathing techniques, imagery or other stress management strategies are available at the Wellness Center at 536-4441.

with the NCAA selection committee come tournament time. "We want to get the best possible rating so that we stand a chance of gaining a top-four NCAA ranking," Riggleman said. "Playing the best Division I schools will test our young players and help them improve." Riggleman said he's his job to keep the games in perspective. "Last season we opened at Ole Miss and we didn't play very well," Riggleman said. "The next weekend we hosted a tournament and showed marked improvement, so I think it's worth the risk of playing the good teams." Riggleman also will use the first 20 games to examine who can contribute. "It won't be open season on every position, but we will make some changes in the lineup," Riggleman said. "The outfield in particular will see movement because we have five players that can start on any given day." Riggleman also said that the Salukis will face some teams of a different level of quality that will allow them to shake things up more than normal. The Salukis' main concern is to win, and Riggleman sees some positive signs. "We added some great Jucos transfers and an outstanding freshman class that should fill some specific holes for us," Riggleman said. Riggleman also noted that having Dan Esplin and Jason Smith back from injury should provide a lift. Esplin and Smith had great freshman seasons, but were sidelined for the season in SIUC's tight game with Long Beach March 1992. They collided in the outfield chasing a fly ball. Espin in lacerated a kidney and Smith separated a shoulder, leaving the team two starters short for the rest of the season. The Salukis hope to put the injury marred 19-31 campaign of last year behind them and climb back to contender status. "We'd like to be in the top half of the conference, and we should have a say in who wins the thing," Riggleman said.

- Had at least two teams in the playoffs since 1989 and three in '90 and '92.
- Last year, four of the last six Super Bowls.
- Been represented in more Super Bowls (11) than any other division.

Giants linebacker Carl Banks said, "By the time you get through competing in the East and winning that division, the intensity level picks up in the playoffs, but it doesn't pick up that much. If you win that division, you know you are going into the playoffs that you're one of the best teams in the league.

There are a number of theories why the NFC and particularly the NFC East has produced the league's best teams so consistently-stability of front offices and coaching staffs, superior defenses and stronger running games.

Few organizations are as stable as the Redskins, Giants and Cowboys. Since taking over in 1989 and 1980 and Cowboys owner Jerry Jones have rebuilt the franchise through shrewd drafts and trades. Certitude within the organization are almost non-existent. "It's been a total commitment from the people involved plus the will of the resources to do whatever it takes to win," said former coach Joe Gibbs. "We've been very aggressive."

Redskins general manager Charlie Casserly has provided solid leadership since Bobby Boudreau's departure after the 1985 season. General manager George Young kept the Giants among the NFL elite by the ill-fated hiring of Ray Handley to succeed Bill Parcells after the 1990 Super Bowl season.

Joe Gibbs just completed his 12th season as the Redskins' head coach. Parcells led the Giants for eight seasons before resigning May 15, 1991. Johnson is completing the fourth year of a 10-year contract.

"You've had a lot of real consistency in that division," said ESPN broadcaster and former Redskin quarterback Joe Theismann. "You look around, the teams that have had that kind of stability, including the 49ers, have been the teams who have won."

"The style of football is a factor. With the great quarterbacks in the division, Joe Theismann, Theismann, Ken Stabler, like that in the AFC, bazınya was to see the whole way around," said former linebacker Mark Milan, who won Super Bowls with the Raiders, 49ers and Redskins.
