SIU contestant takes crown in state wheelchair pageant

By Patti Kirkpatrick
Student Writer

Pledging to "do all I can to raise people's consciousness about those in wheelchairs," Cheryl Toomey, an SIU junior in social welfare, took the crown in the 1978 Miss Wheelchair Illinois Pageant.

Eight contestants participated at SIU Saturday in the Easter Seal Society-sponsored event, including four SIU students, one Carbondale resident and three students from the University of Illinois.

Jill Smith, a junior in music therapy at the University of Illinois, was first runner-up, while Joyce Dawidczyk, a 20-year-old social work major at U of I, took the title of Miss Congeniality.

In her farewell speech as Miss Wheelchair Illinois for 1976, Eilyn Boyd, an accounting clerk in the SIU budget office, asserted that "even though on the surface we're dependent on our wheelchairs, underneath, handicapped people are no different than anybody else."

The final contest took place after a series of interviews and questioning by five Carbondale judges, who based their decision on three criteria: personality, poise and personal achievement since the onset of the disability.

Each woman, escorted by a member from a branch of the U.S. military, was asked one final question at the pageant. Dottie Davis, a professional puppeteer from Carbondale, said that if she could say one thing to President Carter, she would ask him if he's ever tried maneuvering into a bathroom facility in a wheelchair.

Increased communication between people in wheelchairs and others will best help change negative attitudes toward the handicapped, Toomey said after she had been crowned.

"It's important that we get out and talk with people and be our active selves," she said, still beaming with excitement. "It's the only way people will become aware that we lead full, normal lives."

It was five years ago that 19-year-old Toomey woke and found herself paralyzed from the waist down.

"The cause of the paralysis is unknown," she said, affirming that her life has taken a complete turnabout since that morning.

An extremely active participant in wheelchair athletics, Toomey is a member of the SIU Squids and was the only female basketball player chosen to play in the first men's intercollegiate tournament.

She also won the Class 4 trophy for best all-round female athlete at SIU's Little Egypt Games and was a runner-up for the sportsmanship award at the Rocky Mountain Wheelchair Games.

Judges agreed that Toomey's poise and personality were the decisive factors in their choice.

Charles Lynch, chairman of the department of radio and television, emceed the pageant and appealed to the audience to organize efforts in making future pageants possible.

"Right here in this room is where it all starts," Lynch said. "It is most important that we work together to make people aware of the problems of the handicapped and make sure this kind of event is continued."

City Council appropriates funds for three projects

By Sue Greene
Staff Writer

Three projects were approved by the City Council Monday night to Economic Development Administration (EDA) funds for which the city is eligible.

The council voted to finance the construction of Lake Heights sewers, to improve East Grand Avenue, and to allocate funds for the Carbondale High School District 165.

Last week the city was notified of an EDA computer error resulting in a $630,000 increase in EDA funds. The city will receive a total of $907,000 in federal funds instead of the original $277,000. The extra money caused the City Council to reconsider priorities for funding in Carbondale.

A new library building, improvements for Sycamore Street and improvements in the city's industrial park road were projects under consideration for the funding.

The library building has been planned for over seven years and was originally the council's No. 1 project priority. However, when the city was first notified it would receive a total of $277,000, the Lake Heights sewer project was designated to receive the money.

Helen Westberg, city council member, said she felt the library should receive first priority for the funds since its board members had been waiting for so long.

Sheriff's police check disco, crowd scurries out back door

By Pat Holden
Staff Writer

It was as if somebody pulled the plug on the DuMaroc lounge in DeSoto.

At 3 a.m. Sunday the flashing disco lights stopped flashing, the stripper, doing an imitation of Mae West, found herself bumping and grinding without music and the crowd of about 50 people quickly began filing through the discotheque's back doors.

The scene was triggered by two Jackson County sheriff's officers who were checking the lounge to make sure it was complying with the new county ordinance requiring bars to close at 2 a.m.

Jackson County Asst. State's Atty. William Schwartz said that sheriff's officers routinely patrolling the area early Sunday morning noticed a number of cars parked in the lounge's lot and stopped to investigate.

According to a report filed by the sheriff's office, the officers found the front doors of the lounge locked and by the time they gained entrance the lounge was cleared out.

SIU to fund student wage hike

SIU will fund the 35-cent increase in the minimum wage to $2.65 an hour Jan. 1, Gordon White, director of student work and financial assistance, says.

For the 4,500 student workers at SIU-C, the hike, supported by Congress and President Carter, will mean a $7 weekly raise based on a 20-hour work week.

White said SIU's fiscal year 1978 budget provides enough money to maintain the increase, which was agreed to by the White House, Congressional leaders and organized labor.

The compromise, which Carter endorsed this month, calls for future automatic annual raises based on the average factory wage.

In 1979, the automatic hike would be pegged at 52 per cent of the average

Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) District 165 discovered Monday afternoon it was eligible for the EDA money. Donald Yost, CCHS business manager, told the council the board of education wanted to submit its request for funds in a joint application with the city.

The school's request, if made separately, would have competed with the city's application for funds Carroll Fry, Carbondale city manager, said.

A representative from Lake Heights subdivision told the council that residents could not afford to pay for installing the sewer themselves and asked the council to consider the health and safety problems now created by sewage for the subdivision.

SIU President Warren Brandt asked the council to improve Grand Avenue because of the increased traffic created by the Recreational Building.

East Grand Avenue has become the city's second east-west artery.

In two separate motions the City Council approved preparing an application for the Lake Heights, East Grand Avenue and Carbondale High School projects. In both motions Westberg voted against using the money for the projects, council member Hans Fischer abstained, and council members Joe Dakin, Archie Jones and Mayor Neal Eckert voted in favor of funding the three projects.

Schwartz said he wasn't sure what action would be taken in the matter, if any.

"I feel that the matter should be brought to the attention of Jackson County Board Chairman Bill Kelley, who also is the county liquor commissioner," Schwartz said.

"There is a dual jurisdiction in the situation," Schwartz said. The county liquor commission could yank the DuMaroc license, or the state's attorney could bring them up on charges of violating the 2 a.m. ordinance," he said.

Kelley, reached by phone Monday, said, "I'll have to read the sheriff's report before I reach a decision on what to do."

Dennis Immen, owner of DuMaroc lounge, said "The only people in the bar when the police arrived were my employees."

Dennis Caluffetti, owner of Midland Inn on Old Illinois 13, said he was going to go along with the ordinance until something else happens.

manufacturing wage, with the percentage rising to 53 per cent in 1980. It was reported this would boost the minimum wage to $2.89 in 1979 and $3.15 in 1980.

White said he would not recommend lowering the number of hours students work before earning the automatic raise SIU grants. Currently, students receive a 10-cent an hour increase after 1,500 hours of work.

Carter first proposed to increase the minimum hourly wage to $2.50. At the same time, a House subcommittee introduced a bill providing for an immediate raise to $2.85 based on 60 per cent of the average factory wage.

Top administration officials and Congressional leaders worked out the compromise two weeks ago.

News Roundup

Government to investigate oil companies

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Carter administration announced on Monday a new drive to uncover possible overcharges of billions of dollars by the nation's 15 largest oil refiners.

In taking the action, Federal Energy Administrator John F. O'Leary admitted that his own agency has failed to adequately enforce federal price regulations in the past.

The report complained that although nearly four years have passed since the Arab oil embargo of 1973-74 and the emergency imposition of pricing rules to cope with the sudden tripling of world oil prices, "not a single audit has been completed of a major refiner, particularly for the embargo period."

Lance denies charges in bank probe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Budget director Bert Lance denied under oath Monday any wrongdoing in connection with his purchase of stock in the Atlanta bank he once headed. Senators who questioned him about it said he has been "smeared."

Lance appeared before the Senate Governmental Operations Committee, as his trustee in Atlanta made it known that Lance's 200,000 shares in the National Bank of Georgia, now held in a blind trust, may be sold as early as Wednesday.

U.S., Korea to share military command

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—The United States and South Korea agreed Monday to set up a joint military command that would give the Seoul government control over movement of its 600,000-man army for the first time since the Korean War.

The agreement was reached in the first day of talks between U.S. Defense Secretary Harold Brown and South Korean Defense Minister Suh Jyong-chul on President Carter's plan to withdraw 33,000 American ground troops from this peninsula by 1981 or 1982.

The ground troop pullout, which will leave American Navy and Air Force units in place here, was criticized by both the South Korean government and opposition parties and was a subject of dispute within the U.S. military command itself.

Trustee: I didn't break promise on bargaining

By Andris Strassmanns
Staff Writer

A member of SIU's Board of Trustees says he did not break his promise to Herbert Donovan, president of the Carbondale Federation of University Teachers (CFUT), concerning collective bargaining.

Donow has asked that William Norwood, a trustee and airline pilot from Elk Grove Village, be expelled from his union, the Airline Pilots Association.

CFUT and the Airline Pilots Association are both affiliated with the AFL-CIO.

Donow said the trustee told him "without qualification" that he would vote for a collective bargaining referendum if the General Assembly failed to enact enabling legislation by June 30, the end of the last session.

Norwood said Saturday, "I didn't promise to vote for collective bargaining. I don't make promises."

In April the board voted 4-3 to wait until the legislature enacted enabling legislation. At the July meeting of the trustees a motion calling for a faculty referendum on collective bargaining was defeated 6-1. Norwood voted against bargaining both times.

Donow, who also has asked the Illinois AFL-CIO to censure Norwood, called the trustee's vote "a very inappropriate action for a member of a union." He also said Norwood has done "irreparable damage to the collective bargaining movement."

Norwood, said he has been sympathetic to collective bargaining all along and also said Donow was entitled to his opinion.

"Each man has to answer to what he thinks is in the best interest," he said.

Norwood said he voted against collective bargaining because he did not see "an overriding concern for the students" and "for the overall academic program."

"I saw it as a clear-cut decision as to what was best for SIU at the present time," he said.

Donow said he does not know for sure if the union can expel Norwood according to its constitution, but that he would like the union to know of the trustee's actions.

Norwood said, "I don't anticipate the union throwing me out."

He also said Donow's request for expulsion and censure will not affect his stance on collective bargaining.

"Most of us don't react very positively to pressures," he said.

Carter says poor will be aided by domestic programs, policies

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter, in an aggressive defense of his domestic policies, promised the National Urban League on Monday that a "flood of new programs" to help the nation's poor will emerge from his administration.

Ticking off a list of job-creating programs he has supported during his first six months in office, Carter declared, "We're committed to the poor, the hungry, the timid, the weak, and the unemployed."

The league's director, Vernon Jordan, had charged on Sunday, "Many black people feel that their hopes and their needs have been betrayed" by Carter.

The President said he has "no apologies to make."

"A flood of new programs will be coming to your communities in the coming weeks and months," said Carter, explaining, "It takes time to change the trend of history and reverse the bureaucratic mechanisms."

Carter recalled the joke about a fellow arrested for getting drunk and setting a bed on fire.

"When he got before the judge, he said, 'I plead guilty to being drunk, but the bed was on fire when I got in it.'"

"Well, to some degree the bed was on fire when I got in it," the President said.

He did not announce any new programs, but said the plans to help the cities already are in the works. He noted that expanded job programs already have been approved, but not yet implemented.

Carter vowed to "respond well to the counsel, advice, encouragement and criticisms" of the civil rights community.

The speech was well received by the more than 4,100 persons jammed into the breakfast session on the second day of the Urban League's 67th annual meeting. The conference ends Wednesday.

But Newark, N.J., Mayor Kenneth Gibson told the conference later, "We must not allow ourselves to be lulled into total approval of the administration's programs just because some progress is being made."

Gibson, a black who is past president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, said he had questions about the administration's plans for welfare reform, mass transit and energy and national health insurance.

The league is a moderate, predominantly black organization concerned with civil rights and urban poverty.

Many black leaders are afraid Carter's efforts to balance the federal budget by 1982 will force broad cutbacks in social welfare programs, but Carter said his budget-balancing act is predicated upon "employment and the creation of jobs."

He said an additional million jobs will be created if his forthcoming welfare reform proposal is adopted.

He has not yet unveiled all the details of that reform plan, but administration officials have said an aspect will be to set up a minimum federal welfare grant for families of about $3,000 a year.

Faculty members can propose trips for travel study in U.S. and abroad

By Rick Asa
Staff Writer

SIU students can study abroad or in different areas of the United States for the summer for little more than tuition and expenses through the University's International Travel Programs.

Proposals for programs are being received from faculty members until August 10. The original deadline of July 29 was extended when faculty members said they could not get the proposals completed in time.

Joseph M. Lynch, coordinator of the division of continuing education, said the proposals will be reviewed by a committee representing major academic units. Most of the committee members have taught courses in the program.

Programs selected are those which seek faculty salary support from the University and would take place during the summer term. A typical program would be four, six or eight weeks long.

"The main advantage of the program is the value of a better learning experience by being on location," Lynch said.

"It's a different learning format from the usual textbook sequence and most of the instructors have knowledge of the geographical areas covered."

This summer, students are touring western Europe, England, France, Germany, Italy and the Soviet Union.

Three groups toured all of Europe and two went to the Western United States. Sites for the 1978 program include various parts of the United States, Brazil, the Canary Islands, Russia, continental Europe and England.

"A lot of people think these programs are for the rich kids, but it's not much more than what a semester costs at SIU," Lynch said.

"We try to keep the cost down and campus fees for that period are waived since the students aren't here anyway," he said. Instead of going first-class, many students stay in hostels, which are like dorms.

Students attend formal classes and tour places of interest. Lynch said, with most professors lining up guest lecturers who have first-hand knowledge of the material.

Academic categories have included chemistry, ecology, music, elementary education and botany.

"Thirteen categories were offered in the past and in the last year we had seven groups, twice as many as any time in the past," Lynch said.

SIU has run the study program for over 10 years, offering credit of six hours to undergraduates and five hours to graduate students.

"The cost for students is based on $10 per credit hour and expenses ranging from $200 to $2,000, depending on the site," Lynch said.

Jeckyll-Hyde trait is MP's defense in multiple murder

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP)

The defense rested Monday in the case of a military policeman who admits killing three teenagers but says it was the dark side of his Jeckyll-Hyde personality that did it.

Spec. 4 Johnny Lee Thornton's defense was rounded out with a tale of a startlingly abused childhood.

His mother and other witnesses told of a broken home: a father who choked and beat him and even shot at him; a mother who was rarely home; a babysitter who tried to molest him.

Then, without calling Thornton to the stand, the defense turned the case back to the prosecution for rebuttal.

Spec. 4 Thornton, 23, was a military policeman at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., when four teenagers on a double date were shot and left in snowdrifts on the base last Jan. 12. Two boys and a girl died, but the other girl escaped. The survivor has testified that both girls were sexually attacked on a remote corner of the base.

Thornton's defense is highly unusual: he concedes he did the killing but says he is afflicted by a dual personality and was acting under his second personality.

Protest of SIU Foundation needs SIU's support in fight for freedom

Students, faculty and administrators at SIU must join together in demanding that the SIU Foundation sever all its economic ties to South Africa's apartheid regime.

Nothing less than full participation in the protest planned for 11 a.m. Wednesday in front of Anthony Hall is required of any person at SIU who claims to be an enlightened member of a civilized society.

There is a blatant contradiction between the stated goal of the Foundation—to raise money for scholarships and other University projects which are intended to be of benefit to people—and the fact that the Foundation obtains part of its funds from corporate profits which are acquired through the racist economic exploitation of black people in South Africa.

Since this contradiction is not evident to James Goodman, director of the SIU Foundation, the campus community is obligated to make him aware of it by protesting on Wednesday and continuing to protest until the stocks the SIU Foundation owns in companies which operate in South Africa are sold. If anyone has any doubts about the major role that U.S. corporations play in the exploitation of blacks in South Africa, they should come to the protest and listen to Bonet Mtukudzi, a black man from Southern Africa, describe the appalling conditions that exist and are nurtured by U.S. corporations.

Mtukudzi is a Ph.D. candidate in economics at SIU. He is a native of Zimbabwe (Rhodesia) who has also lived in South Africa.

Doubters should listen to him tell, in his own subdued rage, of the Ford Motor Co. plant in South Africa where black workers are paid five dollars a week.

They should let him explain that there are no minimum wage laws for blacks and that blacks do not have the right to strike.

And they should look into the man's eyes when he says that there are black wages, colored wages, Asian wages and white wages in South Africa but there are only white prices and white laws.

Then they should decide for themselves whether the SIU Foundation should sell its stock in companies which operate in South Africa or should continue to benefit from the racist oppression of human beings.

Letters

Goodman is guilty of outright prejudice

As an SIU student for the past three years, I have obtained a valuable learning experience to complement the knowledge I had prior to enrolling. Yet, though I rank this university and its educational program very highly, I nevertheless must question some of its policies and underlying practices.

I speak specifically of the SIU Foundation's vested interests in South Africa's apartheid regime and Joseph Goodman's appalling statement that he "could care less" which firms that SIU has holdings in do business with South Africa.

Goodman's statement portrays a man who either knows very little, if anything, about South Africa's system of government and its policies, or a man who is aware of South Africa's policies and quite honestly "could care less."

If the former is true it simply means that Goodman could not help himself when he made his statement and was just plain ignorant. But ignorance is no excuse for a man in his position because he is responsible for what he says and the obvious implications.

In considering the latter (which I am inclined to believe Goodman subscribes to since I have not heard a retraction of his statement) one cannot help but feel sorry...no...not sorry—pity! Pity for his show of inhumanity and pity for his mouth. His mouth? Why? Because his mouth is at the mercy of his mind and Mr. Goodman's mind has obviously made the choice of placing the value of raising money for scholarships and awards for the University over the value of the lives of fellow human beings.

I also applaud GSC's detection of the blatant cancelling for an investigation of SIU's investments and a severing of "all such dubious economic ties."

I also applaud GSC's detection of the blatant conflict of interest which occurs when a university with liberal, humanitarian ideas (which SIU professes to subscribe to) does business and thereby helps support an inhumanitarian regime.

C'dale Friends adds voice to protest of Foundation

The following letter has been sent to the SIU Foundation. It is our hope that other individuals and organizations will consider taking similar action:

The Carbondale Friends Meeting hopes that the SIU Foundation will seriously reconsider its role as stockholder in corporations with investments in South Africa. There are two alternative actions the Foundation might take. One would be to join other concerned stockholders and actively attack corporation investment policy. The other would be to divest itself of stocks in corporations with investments in South Africa, shifting stock ownership to corporations and institutions where policies are closer to American democratic ideals.

We believe that withholding investment in South Africa is one way the United States can effectively exert pressure against the racial policies of that regime.

Margaret M. Stauber
Corresponding Clerk
Carbondale Friends Meeting

BAC: SIU guilty of financing racial injustice

We, the Black Affairs Council at SIU-C, emphatically oppose the SIU Foundation's investment in companies involved in trade with South Africa. Our reasons are: 1) Investments of this type support the apartheid policies of South Africa. 2) Such investments are contrary to established American policies on human rights. 3) Such investments cannot be justified solely on the basis of the benefits derived. 4) The investments and the statement by Joseph Goodman are a direct insult to the entire student body at SIU-C, particularly the black student body.

The investments by the SIU Foundation in companies which are fully aware of the policy of apartheid supported by the South African government implies SIU's support of such policies. An investment in a corporation makes the buyer a stockholder or partial owner of the corporation. As an owner, the SIU Foundation has the responsibility and duty to not only ensure the profitability and longevity of companies in which they invest, but also to ensure that the companies live up to their social responsibilities to the public. The six companies in which the SIU Foundation has invested have ensured their profitability and longevity, but they have neglected their human and social responsibility. They have, no doubt, increased their profit through their exploitation of black South Africans as a source of "slave" labor.

In light of President Carter's strong stance on human rights, any involvement by a state-supported, federally subsidized institution in South African policies of apartheid are contrary to the goals of the present administration. We, as American people, have been pointing an accusing finger at countries all over the world for their lack of concern for human rights. The problem is much closer to home than any of us care to realize. It even appears that this university is not as concerned about righting social injustices and inequality as it might espouse.

We would like to say at this point that the job being done by the SIU Foundation in raising funds for scholarships and awards is truly beneficial to all and should be applauded. However, we cannot continue to accept funds being reaped at the expense of the inhuman and racist treatment of black Africans. We would rather see fewer scholarship... and awards than to continue to accept this "blood money."

As the representative organization for blacks at SIU-C, we (the Black Affairs Council) were both shocked and insulted by Joseph Goodman's statements in the June 24th issue of the Daily Egyptian. His statements that he "could care less" which firms do business with South Africa and that "It's a petty political issue" raises questions as to Mr. Goodman's ability to perform as director of the SIU Foundation. Either he knows little about South Africa's system of government and its policies or he could truly care less. If the former is true then he is not the type of individual to direct a foundation such as ours which is capable of so much good. The statement which Mr. Goodman made demonstrated a complete lack of concern for our nation's policies on human rights, blacks in South Africa and the entire student population. Ignorance is no excuse for an individual in Mr. Goodman's position and apathy cannot be tolerated by the students at SIU-C.

We recommend that the SIU Foundation sell all holdings in companies which do business with or support the apartheid policies of South Africa. We further recommend that the SIU Foundation reject any further investments in such companies.

In order to ensure that future investments are in line with American policies on human rights and that these investments shed no doubt on the sincerity of this university in keeping with these policies, we recommend that all monies, investments and disclosures of the SIU Foundation be made a matter of public record. Finally, we recommend that Joseph Goodman receive, at the very least, a reprimand for his lack of diplomacy demonstrated by his statement in the June 24th issue of the Daily Egyptian. We also desire a written apology from Mr. Goodman to the students at SIU-C.

Four University MFA candidates to display works in thesis exhibits

ART EXHIBITS

Work by four University student-artists goes on display Wednesday in the Faner North Gallery and the Mitchell Gallery. Receptions are scheduled for Wednesday night.

FIBERS

"The Last Photograph" is an MFA exhibition of constructed woven and fiber images and photographs by Robin Becker. The exhibition will be at Faner North Gallery beginning Wednesday and continuing through Aug. 3. An opening reception will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday. During the opening, there will be a slide performance of personal photographic imagery in performance.

Becker's work involves photo images on cloth through the use of photo silkscreen rubbings and color Xerox manipulations. These personal views are photographic glimpses transformed and redefined into fiber and woven images. By interweaving her photographs, she said she seeks to rediscover the small slivers of the unknown in herself.

METALS

Timothy Glotzbach, a candidate for the MFA degree in metalsmithing, will also present a showing of his thesis work Wednesday through Aug. 3 in the Faner North Gallery. The opening reception will be from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Glotzbach's work consists of a series of badges and pendants. The badges are comprised of gold, silver, copper, brass and photo images. Although jewelry items, the badges tend to make sarcastic comments about people's personalities.

The containers are a combination of porcelain, copper, silver and brass. They are a study of the sensuous form of the egg shape, with intricate hinge and latch mechanisms used to add a surprise element.

MIXED MEDIA

The MFA thesis exhibition of Howard Halle will be presented

Wednesday through Aug. 3 at the Mitchell Gallery in the Home Economics Building, with an opening reception from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Halle's work consists of mixed media installations of wood, paper mache, grid wire, bedsheeting and paint. They explore various verbal-visual relationships revolving around the central metaphor of a boat form—literally a vehicle for ideas.

PAINTINGS AND DRAWINGS

The MFA thesis exhibition of Gail Mercer will also be on display at Mitchell Gallery in the Home Economics Building, Wednesday through Aug. 3. An opening reception will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Mercer will present a series of 21 drawings and paintings completed during the last two years.

Southern Clay Works will hold a hand-made pottery sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday at the concourse of Grand and University Avenues near the Home Economics Building.

The Women's Studies course listing is now available from Women's Programs. Copies may be obtained by calling Ginny Britton at 453-3655 or by picking one up from the Women's Programs office at Woody Hall, B-151.

Blacks Interested in Business will hold their final meeting of the summer semester at 6 p.m. Tuesday in Student Center Activities Room B.

Nancy Herzog was appointed director/coordinator of Public Voices of the Arts Magazine and Elizabeth Anderson director/coordinator of the Public Voices of the Arts Theater. Both divisions are now being formed from American Voices In the Arts, and director-coordinators for three divisions are still needed. Contact Anthony Spector at 687-2184 (after 8 p.m.) or Betsy Anderson at 549-4006.

Robert Wolff and Thomas Stitt, agricultural industries professors, have prepared two publications for distribution. They are "Soybean Harvesting Losses in Jackson County, Illinois-1976. A Summary of Findings" and "Soybean Losses: Problems, Causes and Solutions."

James Males, animal industries professor, and Farrel Olson, plant and soil science professor, participated in a recent Farm-City Tour at Sunnybrook Farm on Ava. Males discussed the beef herd operation at the farm and Olson talked about the forages and pastures.

Gerald Aubertin, forestry department professor, is the recipient of a $2,000 grant from the Illinois Institute for Environmental Quality to continue research in non-point sources of pollution as related to forestry and fruit orchards in Illinois.

Raymond Maleike, Donald Elkins, Chairman Gerald Courts and James Mowry of the plant and soil science department attended a recent Horticulture Field Day in Dixon Springs, sponsored by the University of Illinois.

Tank takes unscheduled tour

BELLEVILLE, Mich. (AP)—Memo to an Indiana truck driver: Your Sherman tank has been recovered. And Wayne County sheriff's deputies want to know, what do we do with it? The tank—minus its turret—was parked on a flatbed trailer in the parking lot of Rogelle's lounge just off Interstate 94. Somebody crawled inside, started it—there are starting instructions on a dashboard placard—and drove it off the trailer, snapping the hold-down chains.

Diabetic diets topic of meeting

The Southern Illinois Chapter of the American Diabetes Association (ADA) will discuss how to interpret nutritional information to help diabetics expand their menus and save money.

The discussion will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Banquet Room of John A. Logan College. Cindy Mannarino, registered dietician will be featured at the discussion which is called "Diabetes Dialogue: Food Products, Labeling and Content."

Analysis of food samples will be done at the meeting for those who want to bring a product for evaluation.

Persons interested in attending may call Walt Otto, president of the Southern Illinois Chapter of ADA, at 549-4763.

Rural doctors work longer hours: survey

WASHINGTON (AP)—A typical physician in the United States says he works 58 hours a week and in 1975 made $53,000 before taxes, according to a survey conducted for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW).

The findings, based on interviews with 1,000 private physicians, indicate that doctors in rural areas work longer hours than those in cities and that urban obstetrician-gynecologists make more than general surgeons, internists, pediatricians or general practitioners.

The survey was conducted by the National Opinion Research Center as part of a $400,000 study being conducted for HEW by ABT Associates of Boston with the help of the national polling firm.

According to the survey, obstetrician-gynecologists in urban areas said they netted $65,300 in 1975. Net income was defined as income after expenses are deducted but before payment of income taxes.

Urban physicians generally make $5,700 more than rural physicians although pediatricians and general surgeons in rural areas reported earning more than their counterparts in the city. Rural physicians also claim to work longer than doctors in urban areas, with rural pediatricians reporting the longest work-week of 65.1 hours. Urban pediatricians on the other hand, work only 54 hours a week.

Cities find alternative answers to urban housing reconstruction

By David Treadwell
AP Urban Affairs Writer
Hoboken, N.J., has rebuilt itself by reviving its housing and has become a model for other cities trying to do the same.
Just across the Hudson River from Manhattan, Hoboken's housing was in serious decline until the revival began in the early 1970's.

Since then more than 15 per cent of the city's housing stock has been renovated at a cost of about $20 million in public and private capital, city officials say.
Brownstones and rowhouses have been restored. Altogether more than 500 buildings have undergone transformation in this largely working-class city of 45,000, nearly 40 per cent of whom are Puerto Ricans.

The reconstruction has ranged from middle-class housing to tenement buildings. About two-thirds of the money was spent for tenement rehabilitation.
Former New York City residents, drawn by the cheap housing, ethnic charm and relatively safe streets, are discovering Hoboken and adding their sophistication to the city's housing revival.

As housing construction and energy costs soar, cities like Boston, Baltimore, Norfolk, Louisville, San Francisco and Portland have turned to rehabilitation programs to combat urban blight.
But federal housing officials say Hoboken has been unusually imaginative in its use of public funds to stimulate private investment in the city's deteriorating housing stock.

"Hoboken got off to an earlier start than most other cities and remains a pacesetter," says Robert Dodge, development services director in the Department of Housing and Urban Development.
Hoboken officials say they rejected the "raze-and-rebuild" approach to urban renewal that often creates more problems than it solves.

"We wanted to stabilize neighborhoods, not disrupt them by demolishing one or two or three blocks and then putting up buildings that might be out of context with their surroundings," said Fred Bado, Hoboken community development director. Thus the city rejected the idea of building highrise public housing and concentrated on restoring the buildings that were already there.

One rehabilitation program encourages homeowners to make repairs to their property by supplementing bank home improvement loans with grants from the city's federal housing money.

Homeowners are allowed a grant sufficient to reduce the effective interest rate on their loan to 3 per cent from the customary 8 to 12 per cent.

The rehabilitation programs began with the Model Cities programs of 1971 and 1972. Since then banks have made loans totaling $2.7 million to more than 500 homeowners, and there have been no defaults so far, Bado said.

About 65 per cent of the loan applicants were long-time Hoboken residents. The remaining 15 per cent included many newcomers.

State law gives homeowners in communities with deteriorating housing a property tax break for five years after improvements are made.

The city's tenement rehabilitation efforts have been chiefly handled by a single private firm, Applied Housing Associates, under federal programs subsidizing developers for rehabilitation work.

Prospective tenants undergo close inspection. The firm's chief criterion is "family stability."

Osteopathic group supports saccharin

CHICAGO (AP)—Saccharin should not be banned, the American Osteopathic Association says.

The 163 delegates representing the nation's 16,000 osteopathic physicians took this position in a formal resolution.

It urges congressmen and senators to support legislation allowing the Food and Drug Administration "to use reasonable judgment" in the applying prohibitions on use or sale of products, "subject to appropriate warnings on product labels."

The resolution points out that saccharin is the only noncaloric artificial sweetener approved for use in foods and beverages and that many millions of persons need such a sweetener because of diabetes or to reduce weight because of heart and circulatory diseases.

The proposed ban, it says, is based upon data which required consumption of saccharin by rats in quantities far exceeding those consumed by humans.

But it notes that the FDA is required, under existing laws, to ban products shown to cause cancer in laboratory animals or humans.

The resolution calls upon Congress to grant the FDA some discretion in the application of this ban.

The physicians participating in the annual meeting of the AOA's annual house of delegates meeting also opposed restrictions proposed by the FDA on barbiturates, which are widely used as sedatives and anticonvulsant drugs.

It has been proposed that barbiturate drugs be removed from the open market and used only in a hospital because they frequently are used in suicides.

The AOA delegates pointed out that persons contemplating suicide can find other methods of killing themselves, including "toxic substances sold in grocery stores or over the counter in pharmacies."

Removing barbiturate drugs "could do irreparable harm to individuals suffering from convulsive seizures," the resolution asserted.

Retarded identical twins actually bright children

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Grace and Virginia Kennedy, 6-year old identical twins who were regarded as severely retarded for most of their lives, are actually bright children who invented their own private language, speech therapists say.

The twins' gibberish is their way of communicating with each other, therapists at Children's Hospital discovered.

The hospital said Thursday that investigators now know that Grace calls Virginia "Cabengo" while Virginia calls Grace "Foto."

The rest of their speech is still a mystery to outsiders, but the girls chatter rapidly when they are together.

"Dug-on, huu you dinkin, du-sh," Grace said to Virginia while they played with their dollhouse. "Snup-aduh ah-wee die-dipana."

Speech therapists Alexa Romain and Ann Koencke hope to find out what the girls are saying and publish their findings in the rare case.

The girls had seizures shortly after their birth in Columbus, Ga., and until recently they were treated as if they were severely retarded. They never learned to speak English or German, their mother's native language.

However researchers said the girls know four languages. They understand English and German with good comprehension, although they do not speak either.

Ms. Romain, who prefers that designation, said the cause of their unusual defect still is a mystery. The parents, Thomas and Christine Kennedy, were told their girls might be retarded.

Purolator thief resented

CHICAGO (AP) — An appeals judge has chopped five years off the 20-year prison sentence of the man named by federal investigators as the mastermind of the $4.3 million Purolator Security vault burglary of 1974, believed to be the largest cash theft in American history, it was learned Monday.

"Sentencing is a speculative art at best," Judge William J. Bauer of the U.S. 7th Circuit Court of Appeals said in a written order entered late Friday, cutting the sentence of Paquale Charles Marzano.

Marzano, 41, of Cicero originally was sentenced by Bauer, then a U.S. District Court judge, to five years in prison for conspiracy and 10 years for bank theft, plus 10 years to be served consecutively for train sporting stolen money across state lines.

Bauer, acting after three Little League baseball players testified that Marzano had coached their team, cut five years off the second 10-year sentence.

Carbondale City Clerk Leilani Weiss

Marc Galassini

Leilani Weiss, Carbondale city clerk, sometimes gauges how much work she does by the piles of paper that shift from one side of her desk to the other. In this picture, her desk is in order.

New city clerk gets education in her constantly changing job

By Sue Greene
Staff Writer

Leilani Weiss, Carbondale city clerk, likes plants and paper work and is still learning about her job.

Weiss, a native of Carbondale, became city clerk in May and has worked for the city in several positions since 1971. "It's a challenge right now," Weiss said, referring to her job. "I've been in the office for over a year now and I'm still learning."

Weiss was deputy city clerk before replacing Elizabeth Leighty as city clerk in May. She says her work included with the job is changing. "Liquor licenses were handed out of the mayor's office, but this office (the city clerk's) is handling them now," Weiss said.

Weiss also works with the Liquor Advisory board, a seven member citizen's panel that reviews liquor license requests. She prepares minutes for this group and for the city's Cable Television Commission.

She attends and takes minutes of all City Council meetings. "Shorthand isn't used much in my city. I have a system of speed writing but all of the city meetings are recorded on tape too," she says.

Currently, the city is working on an archives system, Weiss says. An archives center is being repaired in the basement of the Community building next to City Hall. "We're looking into microfilming since a fire could destroy all of the old records," Weiss said.

"Microfilming would provide two sets of records," she said. But, funds have not yet been appropriated for the project, and plans are still being made, she said.

As a secretary she has worked for the mayor and the city attorney since being employed by the city in 1971.

She enjoys paper work. "I like to see a pile for papers move from one side of my desk to the other and know I've moved them," Weiss says.

Plants are one of her hobbies. "I've liked plants before they became so popular," she explained.

While she was working as a secretary to the mayor, the city repainted many offices in City Hall. "We were told we could pick the color and the city could buy the paint if we did the work," Weiss said. She spent some of her own money and bought wallpaper for her office. "It was nice when it was finished," she said. "There were a lot of plants in the office too."

Currently she is the secretary for the Racing Association of the Midwest, a five-state group that races quarter horses. And in her free time Weiss likes to visit friends in the country.

The next city elections will be a learning experience, she says, since this year's City Council elections didn't include a primary.

Weiss says part of the city clerk's job is to provide continuity in the city government. The clerk serves in an appointed position at the pleasure of the mayor and the City Council and Weiss says she hopes to serve until she is personally satisfied with her accomplishments.

Jones signs four more, completing recruiting

By Dud Vandermaack
Staff Writer

Baseball Coach Itchy Jones recently completed his recruiting for the 1978 season when he signed three freshmen and one junior college transfer to letters-of-intent. The newest Salukis are: Jim Adduci, an outfielder from Chicago; Bobby Doerrer, a shortstop from Richton Park; David Stieb, an outfielder from San Jose, Calif.; and Scott Wachter, an outfielder from Chaffee, Mo.

Jones had previously announced the signings of pitchers Rod Peterson of Moline, Paul Evans of Granite City and Bob Schreck of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Jones, who lost six key performers from his 1977 team which finished third in the nation, said he was pleased with his recruiting effort. He said the new players should be able to help fill the void left by the departure of Dewey Robinson, Jim Reeves, Jim Kessler, George Vukovich, Rick Murray and Neil Fiala.

"We needed some outfielders and I think we did get some good ones," Jones said of his latest recruiting effort. "We also got some players with speed."

Adduci, who bats and throws left-handed, prep'd at Brother Rice High School. The 6-4, 200-pound outfielder was picked by the Philadelphia Phillies in the June free agent draft.

"He is a strong kid as evidenced by his size," Jones said of Adduci. "He is a top-notch prospect."

Doerrer stole 103 bases in succession during his high school career. Jones said that record indicates baserunning know-how more than it does speed.

Stieb will join his brother Steve, who is a catcher, on the Salukis next season. The 6-0, 180-pound outfielder led San Jose City College in hitting in 1977.

"Stieb should be able to help us," Jones said. "He has good speed and a strong throwing arm."

Wachter led his team to the Missouri state tournament finals two consecutive years. Jones said he is a solid player.

Biittner homer keys Cub win

CHICAGO (AP)—Larry Biittner's two-run homer in the bottom of the eighth inning Monday gave the Chicago Cubs a comeback 9-7 victory over the Houston Astros who scored all their runs in the top of the eighth.

After the Astros tied it with their seven-run outburst in the eighth, the final run coming in as Cesar Cedeno stole home, George Mitterwald walked to open the bottom of the eighth for Chicago. Two outs later, Biittner stroked his eighth homer of the season off loser Mark Lemongello.

The victory snapped a three-game losing streak and assured the Cubs of maintaining first place in the National League East.

The Cubs had a 3-0 lead going into the sixth when Steve Ontiveros singled and Dave Rosello walked. Mitterwald doubled in a run before Bill Bonham slashed a two-run double to right and scored on a double by Biittner to give the Cubs a 7-0 lead.

Ken Boswell opened the Houston eighth with a pinch single. Terry Puhl walked and Jose Cruz singled in a run. Bob Watson reached on an error by Rosello and Art Howe singled in a pair of runs. Joe Ferguson doubled in two more runs to knock out Bonham and then scored on a triple by Cedeno off reliever Paul Reuschel.

Reuschel struck out pinchbatter Wilbur Howard and was replaced by Willie Hernandez who went into a windup while pitching to Julio Gonzalez, allowing Cedeno to steal home.

TRACER II

Many people are surprised when they find that the Tracer II has performance superior to speaker systems costing twice its price. But the BML engineers are not Tracer II utilizes the same exclusive design concepts that make the entire Tracer line excellent performers. These features include Dual Phase Coupling™ and Active Base Radiator™.

Although the mechanics of these designs are somewhat complex and can only be fully understood by some, the auditory benefits can be appreciated by all. Another design feat achieved is the elimination of the crossover network and the problems it presents. This results in increased efficiency and total elimination of a source of phase distortion.

Report: Foundation ties to S. Africa increased

By Ron Morgan
Staff Writer

The SIU Foundation's investment ties to South Africa have grown to six companies.

An expanded list of companies which operate in South Africa, obtained from the World Council of Churches, show that the SIU Foundation has a total investment of $551,767.

The SIU Foundation previously owned just over $1 million worth of stock in 12 companies which operate in South Africa. The foundation's stock in six companies linked to South Africa was sold in February, Clyde Maulding, treasurer of the SIU Foundation, said Monday.

The Coalition Against Racial Exploitation (CARE) has scheduled a demonstration to protest the SIU Foundation's stockholdings in companies which operate in South Africa at 11 a.m. Wednesday in front of Anthony Hall.

The group maintains in its statement of purpose that the stocks "help support a police state where the white minority enjoys the highest standard of living in the world because the majority suffers one of the lowest."

William Ogonowski, a member of the CARE coordinating committee, said a black man from Southern Africa, Bonet Mtukudzi, would be the main speaker at the demonstration. Mtukudzi is a Ph.D. candidate in economics at SIU. He is a native of Zimbabwe, Rhodesia and has lived in South Africa, Ogonowski said.

Joseph Goodman, director of the SIU Foundation, said earlier that the foundation's investments do not constitute complicity in the policies of racial separatism practiced by the South African Government.

Goodman said Monday he does not know if the protest would persuade the foundation's board of governors to divest the holdings in companies which operate in South Africa.

"I hope they don't have any affect," Goodman said.

The Daily Egyptian has "blown out of proportion" the issue of the foundation's investments, Goodman said.

Both the Black Affairs Council and the Graduate Student Council (GSC) have endorsed CARE and have given it funds to help finance the planned demonstration.

The GSC voted last Wednesday to give CARE $248 in a resolution which said the money would "operationalize" a previous resolution passed by the GSC condemning the foundation's investment policy.

The GSC passed a resolution on July 8 "unequivocally" condemning the SIU Foundation's stockholdings in companies which operate in South Africa, and demanding that the foundation "sever all such dubious ties."

Ceasefire agreement reached in Egypt-Libya border conflict

CAIRO (AP)—Egypt and Libya have agreed to a ceasefire to end a series of air and land battles that broke out six days ago between the two Arab neighbors, a spokesman for Palestinian leader Yasar Arafat said Monday.

Egypt announced an end of hostilities Sunday night. Libya did not say if it had accepted the truce.

Neither side issued communiques about new fighting by Monday evening but there was no independent confirmation fighting had stopped. Reporters were barred from the 800-mile-long desert frontier.

Libya's official radio played martial music and patriotic songs much of the day and at one point announced it was accepting volunteers at home and from the outside Islamic world.

"A great loss of life has occurred among innocent civilians" because of Egyptian raids on five Libyan cities, the Libyan government charged in a message circulated at the United Nations in New York. "Hospitals and schools have been destroyed."

The message said Libya "will find itself compelled to take necessary measures to protect its people and its territorial integrity if this aggression is not stopped."

A Palestine Liberation Organization spokesman said PLO chief Arafat won agreement on a three-point truce. He did not elaborate, but Palestinian sources said he proposed a temporary military ceasefire, an end to the propaganda warfare and the start of negotiations to bring a permanent end to hostilities.

Arafat, who is on good terms with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, shuttled between the two North African nations and forged an agreement with the help of President Houari Boumedienne of Algeria, which borders Libya on the West.

Boumedienne, who reportedly opposed the conflict between Arab states on grounds it could only benefit Israel, met for about an hour Monday morning with Sadat at the former royal palace of Ras El Tin in Alexandria.

Sailing hopefuls had to tie up their boats early last weekend. A low turnout Saturday and light winds Sunday forced the SIU Sailing Club to postpone finishing their seventh annual inter-club regatta until next Saturday.

Skippers sail at SIU regatta, to finish racing this weekend

A low turnout of sailors for the SIU Sailing Club's seventh annual interclub regatta Saturday at Crab Orchard Lake prohibited finishing the race.

That "happily forces" next weekend to be full of racing, Gregg Schwabek, club president, said Monday.

Competition started after 10:30 a.m. and before the day was over, three races had been completed in Class 1, the novice and less experienced class. Two races were completed Class A, the experienced class of skippers, according to Schwabek.

"We tried to finish the regatta Sunday but light winds prevented us from doing it," Schwabek said. "We'll finish the regatta with three more Class A races and four more Class B Saturday at 9 a.m." There will be a skippers meeting at 8:30 a.m. at the Crab Orchard Lake boathouse.

"All trophies are still up for grabs in both the A and B classifications since racing was so tight," he said. "Next Saturday's races will determine the winners."

The club will provide refreshments for racers and spectators, but "food is BYO," Schwabek said.

School bus kidnapers guilty on one count

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP)—Three young men accused of the bizarre mass kidnaping of a busload of Chowchilla school children and their driver abruptly pleaded guilty to kidnap for ransom Monday but said they would stand trial on five more serious charges.

The three—Frederick N. Woods, 25, James Schoenfeld, 25, and his brother, Richard 24—said they were innocent of five counts of kidnap with bodily harm. They waived their right to a jury trial and agreed to let Alameda County Superior Court Judge Leo Deegan decide the issue.

"The crux of the matter has always been the bodily harm," said defense attorney Edward Merrill. "There has never been any question about whether or not they were guilty of kidnaping."

because in the early 1900s there were few jobs available.

"I had a family to support. I couldn't be choosy," he said.

When he started, he said he was paid $8 for each grave. Now he gets $80.

"The undertakers think I'm too cheap and they want me to charge $90. In other parts of the country, you know, gravediggers charge up to $200," he said.

Dudley often digs the graves by hand because a machine can't get between the narrow rows at the cemetery. He went for his annual physical recently and the doctor told him to keep working.

The maximum sentence for kidnap with bodily harm is life in prison without possibility of parole upon conviction. For kidnap for ransom, the maximum is also life in prison, but with the possibility of parole.

The surprise change in pleas came after hearings on evidence in the case. During the hearings it was revealed that authorities searching the lavish Woods family estate south of San Francisco six days after the kidnap had discovered a $5 million ransom note and a detailed plan for the abduction.

In exchange for the guilty pleas to 27 counts of kidnap for ransom, prosecutors dropped 18 counts of armed robbery covering personal items taken from the young victims on July 15, 1976.

On that day armed men, their faces covered with masks, blocked the rural road where the school bus was taking them home from summer classes. The children, ranging in age from 5 to 14, were herded into vans for a 95-mile ride north to Livermore, where they were imprisoned in a moving van buried in a rock quarry. They scratched and clawed their way to the surface after nearly 18 hours.

David Mimier, district attorney in Madera County, where the kidnaping occurred, said outside the courtroom Monday he was confident prosecutors could prove the charges of bodily harm.

"We're going to use the body scratches, the cuts, the nose bleeding, the claustrophobic effects of being buried underground and the emotional harm those children suffered," he said.

Woods and the Schoenfelds have been in custody on $1 million bail each for nearly a year while their attorneys argued motions in the case, including a successful motion to move the trial from Madera County to Oakland. On Monday the three asked to remain in protective custody.

The young defendants appeared relaxed during the long court session and even laughed a few times afterward.

Judge Deegan asked each of the defendants whether they understood the pleas and whether they had discussed the change with their attorneys. Each answered "yes" in hushed tones.

In exploring with Richard Schoenfeld whether he and Merrill had discussed the possibility of a plea of insanity or diminished capacity, Deegan asked, "Are you mentally sound?"

Young Schoenfeld chuckled slightly and answered, "I am now."

At 89 he's still digging graves

SOUTH WINDSOR, Conn. (AP) — Gravedigger Dudley Clapp, who has buried his mother, father, wife and many of his friends, says that at age 89 he still sometimes puts in a seven-day week because, "You can't plan when people die."

For more than 60 years, Clapp has helped take care of the 4,000 graves at the 11-acre Main Street cemetery in this New England town.

"I consider it an honor," he said. "I do the last thing for that body on this earth ... Everybody that lies here has the best. They don't have to worry about taxes. You can't convince me it isn't better."

He said he got into gravedigging
