Newspaper recycling program discontinued

By Lisa Eisenhauer
Staff Writer

Less than a month after the city suspended its newsprint recycling program because no bids were made for the contract, Pollution Control announced Wednesday that the campus paper recycling system has been terminated.

John Meister, director of pollution control, said market prices have dropped so low that the University was losing money gathering the paper collected for the eight-year-old recycling system and hauling it to a buyer or shipping point.

Meister said that when the campus recycling system began in 1978, the used newspaper, letter-grade and computer paper products the system collected could be resold for as much as $65 a ton. He said the price is now down to about $10 a ton.

The city's last recycling contractor, Don McWhorter, cited similar reasons for not continuing his collection contract in June. McWhorter told city officials that gathering the newspapers cost his company more than the papers were worth.

Clarence Dougherty, vice president for campus services, said Pollution Control's stockpile of 100 tons of paper, collected over the past year, will remain in storage for the time being in hopes that the market improves.

"I thought it was a good program, very strongly supported," Dougherty said, "but apparently it's just outlived its usefulness."

He said that Pollution Control has been unable to the paper products it's collected since May 1985 and "there's no market for the product they have."

Meister said the maroon bins used as collection sites for newspapers will be removed by the weekend.

He said if the market for the products improves the system may be started again.

On the average, he said the system collected 100 tons of paper each year.

Crystal president notorious for unique aesthetic tastes

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

Carbondale is a long way from Boulder, Colo.

That is the point Wallace D. Palmer, president of the Crystal Development Corp., stresses when discussing questions of aesthetics and the appearance of the proposed downtown hotel-convention center.

Palmer recently signed a "preliminary memo of intent" to develop the downtown project. He has until Oct. 31 to present a final development proposal to city officials.

Palmer, 50, has been involved in more than 40 projects in the Boulder area, including private residences, apartment complexes, industrial parks, banks and ski resorts. His biggest project was drawing up plans for a $500 million condominium-hotel-resort complex, part of the Aspen ski resort complex in Snowmass, Colo.

In his 33 years as an architect and developer, Palmer has become somewhat notorious for his unique aesthetic tastes. This has ruffled some feathers in Boulder, a city that tries to keep tight reins on its growth and development and that Palmer believes is too resistant to change for its own good.

Boulder city ordinances regulating the size and height of downtown projects are strict, and Palmer has often run into difficulty in getting approval of his projects from the Boulder City Council. Plans for Palmer's most recent development Crystal Square in downtown Boulder were rejected by the council several times because of the size of the project. And, according to an article about Palmer appearing in the Boulder Daily Camera, Palmer's aesthetic tastes are often questioned by fellow architects.

Palmer is adamant about his judgments on aesthetics.

"Beauty isn't a democratic value, it's a personal question," he has been quoted as saying. This attitude has earned Palmer many critics, who have faulted him for the imposing size of his buildings, his callousness toward public tastes and the "coldness" of his buildings' interiors.

Palmer brushes off such criticism, contending that the most important consideration to take into account when designing a structure is not what the public thinks, but rather, the attitudes and tastes of the designer and his client.

"So many people have so many points of view that you can never get 100 percent consensus on an aesthetic issue," he said in a recent telephone interview.

But, he added, "We always consider the context of where projects are built." And since Carbondale and Boulder are two "vastly different" places, design considerations in both places will obviously differ.

Crystal's $15.7 million downtown development proposal calls for a 230-room hotel-convention center with 20,000 square feet of conference space and 25,000 square feet of retail space.

As currently envisioned, the structure would consist of two towers with a retail area bridging Walnut Street and linking the hotel on one side of the street to a parking garage on the other.

Joblin ties with city about to be severed

By Toby Eckert
Staff Writer

City officials indicated Wednesday that they are very near to severing their ties with developer Robert Joblin on the downtown hotel-convention center project.

But some City Council members say Joblin isn't out of the picture yet.

City Manager Bill Dixon said he informed Joblin during a telephone conversation Friday that the city probably would not attempt to enter into a final agreement with him for development of the downtown project.

It is unlikely the city will consider any new development proposals from Joblin, Dixon said.

But when asked about the apparent severing of ties with Joblin, Mayor Helen Westberg said, "the door is still open if he chooses to come back and give us some information," although Joblin still "has to come up with some pretty big answers" before the council will seriously reconsider his proposal.

Councilman Neal Dillard said the city's attempt to distance itself from Joblin "does not foreclose the matter as far as Mr. Joblin is concerned."

Joblin is out of the picture only if he chooses not to continue work on the project, Dillard said.

A preliminary development agreement between the city and Joblin expired June 30, allowing the city to accept other bids for the project. The city entered into a preliminary development agreement with the Crystal Development Corp. of Boulder, Colo., on June 14, one week after Crystal officials submitted a revised development proposal to the city.

Dixon cited three factors that led to the decision to stop working with Joblin: Joblin's continued involvement in a foreclosure lawsuit filed

Schultz, senator clash on S. Africa sanctions

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., led a bipartisan assault Wednesday on the administration's no-sanctions stand on South Africa, angrily telling Secretary of State George Shultz the U.S. policy lacks "more backbone."

In a table-thumping denunciation of President Reagan's renewed declaration of opposition to sanctions against the white-minority government in Pretoria, Biden told Shultz, "I hate to hear an administration and a secretary of state refusing to act on a morally abhorrent point."

Schultz, responding to Biden's complaints during a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing, argued the senator had misconstrued his testimony and said the president's policy evolved on a bipartisan basis and has "tremendous moral backbone."

The House has passed legislation calling for an economic boycott of South Africa to press Pretoria to end its system of racial segregation known as apartheid. The Senate is considering sanctions, with its Republican leaders leaning toward a milder package but parting with Reagan's policy.

In a speech Tuesday, Reagan rejected calls for new sanctions and reaffirmed his view the United States must maintain economic and diplomatic links in order to press for internal South African reform. Saying the United States should not "cut and run," he called on Congress to resist the "emotional clamor" for sanctions.

Schultz underlined that plea, imploring lawmakers not to make a "declaration of economic war" on South Africa.

Smokers to pay more taxes to help meet budget goal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Finance Committee, in an unexpected move to comply with the Gramm-Rudman law, voted Wednesday to increase the cigarette tax by 8 cents beginning in October, upping the total tax to 24 cents a pack. The committee voted 11-8 for the tax increase, part of a $13.5 billion three-year package needed to meet the Gramm-Rudman target of reducing the deficit to $144 billion in fiscal 1987, which begins Oct. 1. Raising the cigarette tax would raise $5 billion over three years.

2nd Senate vote approves judge nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, with Vice President George Bush casting a tie-breaking but unnecessary vote, ended the bitter battle over the nomination of Daniel Manion to a federal appeals court Wednesday by narrowly confirming the conservative lawyer. Manion won confirmation on a 53-49 vote. The conservative Indiana lawyer, whom opponents accused of being unqualified for the federal bench, waited in limbo for a month. Although tentatively confirmed on a 48-46 vote June 26, Democrats forced a new vote.

Israel, Morocco leaders discuss peace plan

IFRANE, Morocco (UPI) — Moroccan King Hassan II briefed Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres Wednesday on a proposed Arab peace plan during their surprise summit seeking to revive the Middle East peace process, Israeli delegation sources said. A Moroccan diplomatic source said the two leaders also discussed a Hassan proposal to stage an international conference in Morocco between Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization to discuss Middle East peace.

Reagan rallies GOP support in the South

MIAMI (UPI) — Blaming Democrats for an economic tailspin in Texas and railing against "enemies of freedom" in Central America, President Reagan cut a wide swath across the South Wednesday in hot pursuit of GOP gains this fall. Reagan played to oil-related economic discontent in Texas and the fervent anti-communism of south Florida as he crossed the once-solidly Democratic South, huddling with big-money donors and seeking to plant the seeds of a Republican resurgence.

5 Americans charged for plane sales to Libya

ATLANTA (UPI) — Two Libyans and five American businessmen were charged Wednesday with selling two civilian transport planes worth almost $60 million to the government of Moammar Gadhafi. A seven-count indictment released in Atlanta said the Libyans — acting on the orders of that nation's top military official — paid $57.4 million for two Lockheed L-100-30 planes and spare parts. U.S. Attorney Stephen Cowen said the Libyans planned to buy equipment to modify the aircraft so they would have aerial refueling capabilities.

Three Mile Island shipment angers Nebraska

A train carrying nuclear waste from the crippled reactor at Three Mile Island crossed the Nebraska prairie into Wyoming Wednesday, leaving behind an irate Gov. Bob Kerrey angry that he had not been notified of the shipment. Kerrey Tuesday night ordered the train halted at the Kansas border for four hours because he said federal officials did not disclose its timetable.

Secret honeymoon to top off royal wedding

LONDON (UPI) — Commoner Sarah Ferguson, radiant but nervous, married Prince Andrew amid great splendor Wednesday and the new Duke and Duchess of York began their honeymoon — destination unknown — in a carriage filled with rose petals and a huge teddy bear — a royal prank by the prince's brother Edward. Dr. Robert Runcie, the Archbishop of Canterbury, married Queen Elizabeth's second son and his bride, both 26, in Westminster Abbey — filled with 30,000 pale pastel flowers that set off the red-haired bride's dazzling light ivory gown.

Temblors continue to rattle Sierra Nevadas

CHALFANT VALLEY, Calif. (UPI) — Earthquakes ed eastern Sierra Nevada communities every few hours Wednesday, where residents anchored larger objects in their homes but were beginning to take the temblors in stride. "They're not creating any new problems, they're just an annoyance," Forest Service spokesman Ray Schaaf said from his post in Bishop. More than 1,500 temblors have hit the area since Sunday, when a quake measuring 5.5 on the Richter scale rocked the mountain tranquility.

Visitors say education in China is improving

By Brett Yates
Staff Writer

China can develop itself by learning from countries such as America, say Huang Qichang and his son, Huang Xiaogang.

Qichang is a professor of mathematics and vice president at Northeast Normal University in Changchun, which is in Jilin Province of the People's Republic of China. Xiaogang is a graduate student in mathematics.

Qichang says China has a lot of catching up to do with Western nations. He said Chira fell behind in education and technology during the Cultural Revolution of China between 1966 to 1976.

"AT THAT TIME education was in a very bad situation," Qichang said. "Almost all of the schools were closed. Most of the professors were sent to farms and factories to be labor workers."

Qichang said however, that since 1978, education in China has improved. He said new buildings have been built at Northeast Normal, the budget is almost twice the amount it was in 1978. The university also has 14,000 students currently enrolled, which is 3,000 more than in 1978.

"IN CHINA, people are in the process of catching up," Qichang said. "We lost a lot of time in the Cultural Revolution. Of course, we know the American people have a much better life than we have in China."

"You have more modern equipment than we have," he said. "We would like to have what you have, but it will take hard work. Without hard work, without education, we can't reach that point."

THIS IS Qichang's third visit to SIU-C. He arrived July 2 and will be leaving Aug. 2. Xiaogang, who has been at SIU-C 20 days, will work as a graduate assistant in the fall. He said he will remain two years to receive his master's degree in mathematics.

Qichang first came to SIU-C in August 1982 and stayed for one year and returned in October 1984.

Qichang said he chose to come to SIU-C because he was impressed with the research Theodore Burton, professor of mathematics, was conducting in differential equations. Qichang has been conducting research in differential equations while he has been here.

BURTON VISITED Northeast Normal University during May and June 1984 at Qichang's request. During that time he lectured to 40 mathematicians on differential equations. In May 1985 he returned to China.

Burton says he is impressed with the effort Qichang has put into his work. "He does very good work, and he is a nice person to work with," Burton said.

Qichang says differential equations is a burgeoning area of mathematics and has been a neglected area of study in China.

"IN CHINA NOT very many people have paid attention to it, so I think it is good for me to learn something new, bring it back to China, develop it and spread it."

Qichang will present a paper on differential equations at the International Conference of Mathematics in Berkeley, Calif. Aug. 3 through 11.

Xiaogang said he had heard a lot about SIU-C from his father, which is what sparked his decision to come here.

"I WOULD LIKE to study the American teaching method here," Xiaogang said. "I have taken some classes here, and I find that American students are very active, very inquisitive, and teachers and students are equal. They can talk freely in class."

Another reason Qichang is visiting SIU-C is to study the way the University administration operates. Qichang says he is concerned with how the administration manages the teaching load of professors, conducts its research and promotes its faculty.

QICHANG SAID the SIU-C administration is more efficient than that of his university. "The ratio of faculty to students at our university is 1-to-7, but at SIU the ratio is 1-to-20," Qichang said. "The efficiency is three times ours."

Qichang says there is a "friendship bridge" between SIU-C and his university. He said SIU-C faculty and administrators have frequently visited his university. In October 1983, President Albert Somit visited Northeast Normal University.

SOMIT SAYS there is a formal affiliation between SIU and Northeast Normal University and frequent exchanges of students and faculty are made. He says he has been impressed with the Chinese faculty and students who have come to the University. He added that Qichang has asked "very intelligent questions" regarding the operation of the University administration.

Qichang and Xiaogang say their experience at SIU-C has been rewarding.

"I think I like it here very much," Xiaogang said. "The campus is very beautiful. The people here are very friendly. I think it is a good surrounding."

"I THINK THAT the people at SIU from the president to the faculty members are all very friendly to our people," Qichang said. "I would like to take the opportunity to extend my deep thanks to them."

"I think the Chinese people and the American people can understand each other very much. We can cooperate and can have a very good future."

'Pinch hit for Tina' theme for blood drive on Friday

"Pinch hit for Tina" is the theme for a blood drive Friday in honor of Tina Copland, who was seriously injured in a hit-and-run accident last week.

The blood drive will be held from 2 to 7 p.m. Friday at Memorial Hospital of Carbondale in conference Rooms 1 and 2.

Copland, 22, is a graduate student in physical education at SIU-C. The Physical Education Department and Women's Intercollegiate Athletics are assisting in recruitment for the drive.

Copland is a patient at Memorial Hospital, where she has received more than 30 pints of blood.

Vivian Ugent, area director for Red Cross

Blood Services, said the goal of the drive is 100 units. Sponsors of the blood drive are Terri Mason and Lloyd Nelson. Mason is the softball coordinator for the Carbondale Park District and Nelson coaches the B and E Construction softball team, which Copland played for.

Anyone who is in good health, older than 17, weighs more than 105 pounds and has not donated blood in the past eight weeks is eligible and encouraged to give blood.

Cristado's Bakery and Arnold's Market have donated special refreshments for the drive. The hospital will provide parking tokens.

Spillway cleanup should be constant

IN THE PAST, IT HAS BEEN pointed out that troglodytes inhabit the Lake Kinkaid spillway, spewing trash in their wake and generally infesting one of Southern Illinois' scenic locations.

It is a common sight during the good weather months in this area. People lining every available niche all the way to the top of the spillway, lounging in the sun and water, consuming cold beverages as they attempt to escape the heat.

But there is an ugly fallout generated from this activity, namely the thousands of cans and bottles that are discarded daily into the spillway area. This trash not only looks bad, but it is a potential danger to those who frequent the place.

BROKEN BOTTLES SPREAD GLASS all over, presenting a danger to bare feet. Cans tend to get shredded, and pose the same problem. You would think that, at least at the spillway, you could walk around barefoot.

The Department of Conservation tries to keep the spillway clean, and sends workers out there twice a week. But that is not enough to even make a dent in the accumulation. Volunteer work seems the only solution to the trash problem.

This was the first clean-up day launched at the spillway, sponsored by SIU-C student groups. Finally, someone volunteered to help clean up the mess.

The three groups of good samaritans are Students for Pollution Control, The Wildlife Student Society and Student Environmental Center. It's about time someone got involved with trash collection rather than trash dispersion at the spillway.

RON COLLINS, ONE OF THE STUDENT volunteers who labored at the spillway this past Saturday, said he hoped the effort would make people more aware in the future of the trash they generate while having a good time. It is possible, you know, to have a good time and not defile nature.

But this effort should be continued. Although some people will start picking up after themselves, the majority will not. So maybe these student volunteer groups could press to make this a regular event, and get other student groups involved.

One way to do this would be to bring the subject up at USO meetings, placing it before the leaders of all the major student groups. A good sales job there could get the needed manpower to make clean-up day a weekly or monthly event.

STUDENTS HAVE MADE AN IMPACT in the local community along a similar vein with the Carbondale Cleanup Day, which proved to be a successful cooperative effort between SIU-C students and the city. Those results could be duplicated at Lake Kinkaid on a regular basis.

There is no reason why the spillway should not remain one of the main party spots for SIU-C students, and there is also no reason why the place can't be kept clean. Since mostly students frequent the place, it only makes sense that they should be partly responsible for its upkeep.

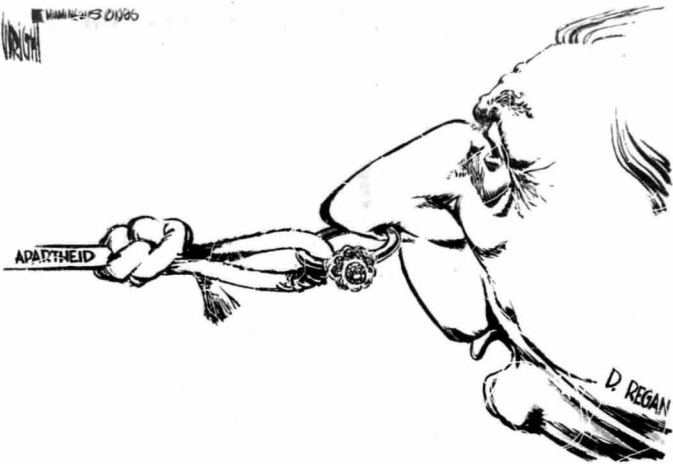

Project would still be here even without SDI funding

John Hughel's Viewpoint concerning SDI research at SIU deserves comment due to Hughel's total lack of understanding of the development and grant process. It also infers that because the Physics Department at the University of Illinois is not involved in Star Wars research that U of I has no SDI research dollars. Would you like to wager on that, John?

The DE article indicated that the engineering professors who secured the SDI grant had an ongoing interest in an area of technology needed for the Star Wars program. They would have had that interest regardless of the SDI solicitation.

Whether the Physics Department at the U of I or any other institution of higher learning does or does not respond to research funding proposals because of political reasons does not mean that other institutions should not undertake that research.

The only smearing of this University's reputation is being done by Hughel with his loose comments about destroying the ideals upon which the University was built, and by suggesting that President Somit and the Faculty Senate intervene in the research process, and label that research, about which Hughel knows nothing, as sleazy. — Jim Osberg, Continuing Education.

Letters

SDI funding at SIU a tragedy

The acceptance of a Star Wars research grant by two SIU-C researchers, Stelios Thomopoulos and Ramanara Viswanathan is a tragedy! These researchers have received $362,000 to develop part of the most destabilizing and dangerous weapon to be developed since the atomic bomb. For all this money, these researchers will help Ronald Reagan to make this world a less safe and more frightening place. If Ronald Reagan has his way, nuclear war will become more likely as the Soviets move their trigger finger more nervously toward the button. If the Star Wars system fails in even the smallest way, millions of people will die.

The Star Wars system is a weapon which, like any other, can be used either defensively or offensively, and Thomopoulos and Viswanathan are just as responsible for this weapon as anyone else who works on it. It does not matter that they are not working on the actual hardware. The software that they develop will be one more piece in the huge and awful system.

Thomopoulos and Viswanathan seem to take comfort in the hope that this research may have applications beyond Star Wars. President Somit hopes that "good science" may be benefited. Why must we tolerate spending more money on Star Wars than any other research project in human history in the thin hope that some "good science" will trickle down from all that wasted money?

Ronald Reagan has attempted to use this economic system for the last six years, and the result has been a record deficit. We can expect the same from Star Wars. The vast majority of Star Wars research will have little or no value to humanity, and most of it will be confidential anyway. The scientists who do this confidential work will not be able to publish their work or share it with their colleges.

In committing themselves to this research, Thomopoulos and Viswanathan have committed more than just their own time and abilities. They have committed the reputation and integrity of Southern Illinois University to Star Wars. We are all part of this University, so we are all now involved with Star Wars. Our campus has been polluted and all of us have been made unwilling partners in a moral travesty. — Tim Larson, Geography.

Protests must not deter research

I must protest the planned rally by Mid-America Peace Project. The rally has been fueled by the SDI research grant. There is nothing wrong with SIU's acceptance of defense funding. There is nothing wrong or new about universities getting defense funding, but some will protest strictly because it happens to be a small part of SDI's small portion of the defense budget.

Even if the superpowers never conceived of a defensive system for themselves, the same research and technology would still be needed and developed because of the demands of a non-defensive nuclear situation, space science and exploration and civilian applications. Any research the SDI involves is inevitable, SDI or not.

I hope those who desire careers in hi-technology fields are not intimidated or pressured by MAPP's conviction that anything to do with SDI is, without question, immoral, ignorant or whatever. One purpose of a rally, for right or wrong, is to put the pressure on. Believing this, I have to hope that hi-tech hopefuls and potential participants of SDI are not discouraged by this rally. The impression I get from MAPP is that they know for sure that SDI is simply impossible and thus not worth research. If you agree with this view, then forget about SDI.

Undoubtedly, there are people in the scientific community who disagree with Reagan on the issues. SDI is an issue they either support or discredit based on their convenient calculations. Of course, many answers are not yet known about "Star Wars." The purpose of research is to determine if the concept is feasible or not. I'm not ready to accept MAPP's word over the researchers' about SDI.

I would think SIU leadership would like to see SIU students involved in answer-searching and also in finding the non-military uses of knowledge gained from SDI. I cannot find any bad vibes or ill feelings about SIU's involvement in SDI. It's now certain that the Soviet Union has been devoted to its own strategic defense initiative. Their Star Wars is far beyond concepts and research. Sadly, they have succeeded in making it look like the United States is the only one with a defensive capability we know as SDI. — Henry May, sophomore, STC.

What's better than a lavish country estate? How about a lavish country estate that belongs to the public?

Hickory Lodge, 1115 W. Sycamore in Carbondale, once belonged to the Martin family of Martin Oil, a company that formerly had been part of the J. F. Streeton Co.

Since being donated to the Carbondale Park District in 1978, the 14-acre grounds are used for community greenhouse and garden plots, and the 53-year-old brick house serves for Park District Administration offices and exhibition space for local artists.

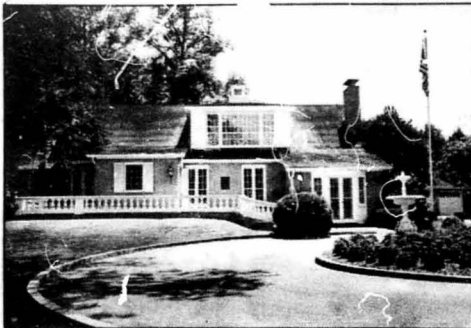

Park Director George Whitehead says that LaDean Martin Kirby, who made the donation, also gave $10,000 and many pieces of lawn statuary.

Looking at the lodge from Sycamore, a large brick house with gables and many-paned windows can be seen between stands of hickory trees. Whitehead said that use of the house for an art display area was begun this year.

Whitehead said that art exhibits change "about once a month" and that interested artists should send three slides representative of their work to the Park District office.

He said that exhibits displayed at Hickory Lodge are chosen by a special committee of Park District staff members.

To the right of the lodge is the West Garden, once used for the "coming-out parties" of Hickory Lodge on West Sycamore Street.

Martin family women. Whitehead said that since 1979, the garden has served as an "outdoor chapel" and has been the site of more than 40 wedding ceremonies.

A passive-solar community greenhouse stands in the lodge's backyard. Whitehead said the greenhouse is used as a "sort of hospital" for doctoring ailing plants from Park District facilities. Tended by Rob Greene, superintendent of park operation and planning, the greenhouse is also where the 14,000 flowers used in Park District flower beds get their starts.

Behind the greenhouse is room for 70 community garden plots, Whitehead said. A 20 feet by 20 feet plot can be rented for $8 with a $10 down payment.

A fountain, in what in 1914 was in the North-East

Railroad Park, stands in the lodge's immense front lawn. The park had been located south of the Illinois Central Railroad Division office on the corner of East Main and North Illinois Avenue.

The fountain had disappeared, Whitehead said, only to be rediscovered by Kirby in Minnesota and brought back to Carbondale.

As the Louvre museum in Paris changed from the home of French kings, the Martin family home is now used for planning softball games. Debutante parties have been replaced by weddings, picnic tables are scattered beneath the hickories and tomatoes grow in the backyard. The Hickory Lodge truly may be called a mansion for the people.

Threat of encephalitis

The Illinois Department of Public Health conducted surveys of the bird population in Southern Illinois which show there is an unusually high presence of the virus which causes encephalitis.

Encephalitis is a disease that affects the brain and spinal cord. An encephalitis epidemic in Illinois in 1975 infected 576 people and killed 47 others.

Certain varieties of mosquitos transmit the disease from bird to bird and from bird to human.

Some ways to prevent contacting encephalitis are: clean all gutters and downspouts; keep lawns, shrubs and trees well trimmed; empty and clean bird baths, ornamental ponds and wading pools weekly; properly dispose of all trash and containers which may hold water; properly dispose of all sewage and organic waste; and remove junk and overhanging vegetation from streams and ditches.

Somit says he has upheld all promises to Livengood

By Steve Merritt
Assistant Sports Editor

President Albert Somit said Wednesday that he feels he has lived up to all the promises made to Athletics Director Jim Livengood and acknowledged that a replacement would have to be found if Livengood takes a similar position at the University of Wyoming.

Livengood is one of four finalists for the athletics director position at Wyoming. "Jim and I had a very detailed discussion before he took the job here," Somit said, "and I feel we have honored any and all promises that may have been made to him; or to the athletics department."

Somit said that he has spoken with Livengood on several occasions since Livengood was hired in October and that those discussions never included "any discussions about our commitment to the (athletics) program."

"Jim comes in and talks from time to time, but without knowing specifically what promises have been broken, it would be hard to respond," Somit said. "I would have to know the specifics before I could even begin to comment in a fair manner."

The president added that he felt he had been more than cooperative with Livengood, saying that he felt the University had even "dug into their own resources" to help the athletics department. Somit did not elaborate on what or how those resources had been used.

Somit said he hopes Livengood doesn't leave.

"Obviously, a replacement would have to be found," he said.

Somit said that even though a search committee was the "customary" procedure for hiring such University personnel as an athletics director, he added that he "wouldn't want to make an absolute commitment" that a search committee would be utilized if a replacement was needed.

"I would consider a search committee, though, to be probable to highly probable since 90 percent of all the University's personnel is hired in that manner," Somit said.

According to Somit, Livengood came to his office before the trip and he felt Livengood was serious about the job in Wyoming.

"I don't think Jim would have made the trip if he weren't seriously considering the position, if offered," Somit said. "I would personally like to know what his intentions are."

White Sox trade Bonilla for DeLeon

CHICAGO (UPI) — Infielder Dobby Bonilla was traded Wednesday by the Chicago White Sox to the Pittsburgh Pirates for right-handed pitcher Jose DeLeon, a team spokesman said.

DeLeon, who has a 5-8 record for Pittsburgh's Triple-A team in Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League, will report to Chicago's Triple-A team in Buffalo of the American Association.

To replace Bonilla, 23, on the roster, the White Sox purchased the contract of left-handed reliever Ray Searage from Buffalo, the spokesman said.

Between two stints with Hawaii, DeLeon, 25, appeared in nine games for the Pirates this season, posting a 1-3 record and a 8.27 ERA. He leaves the Islanders with a PCL-leading 2.46 ERA.

DeLeon began the season at Hawaii and was recalled by the Pirates May 8 and optioned back to the Islanders June 7, the spokesman said.

Searage, 31, was acquired from the Milwaukee organization last week for two former White Sox minor league players, pitcher Al Jones and outfielder Tom Hartley.

Searage appeared in 17 games during two stints with the Brewers this season.

Wynne's double sparks S.D. win

CHICAGO (UPI) — Marvell Wynne's one-out tie-breaking double in the eighth inning Wednesday gave San Diego a 7-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs and snapped the Padres' five-game losing streak.

With the score tied 5-5, Steve Garvey led off the eighth with a single off Ray Fontenot. Dave Gumpert relieved and pinch-hitter Bruce Sochy sacrificed pinch-runner Bip Roberts to second. Wynne followed with a double to left-center, scoring Roberts, took third on left fielder Gary Matthew's throwing error and scored on Gumpert's wild pitch.

Craig Lefferts, 7-4, pitched the seventh to get the victory while Goose Gossage worked the final two innings for his 16th save. Gossage struck out three straight batters in the ninth. Fontenot, 3-5, was the loser.

San Diego tied the score with two runs in the seventh. Tim Flannery reached base when Fontenot could not handle a drag bunt and scored on Tony Gwynn's third hit of the game, a double to left.

Scott stresses fundamentals at camp

By Peter Rechenberg
Staff Writer

"It's hard for us to teach the campers all the fundamentals in four days, but we'll do our best," says Cindy Scott, who is the director of the Saluki Girls' Basketball Camp.

Scott, the women's basketball coach at SIU-C, is assisted in the camp by Julie Beck and by several of her Saluki players. The camp started Sunday and runs through Thursday.

Scott says the camp is an annual event and there is a total of 65 campers this year. However, not all the campers come from the Southern Illinois area.

"We get campers from St. Louis, Springfield, and Decatur," Scott said. "Most of the campers are in high school."

Scott said the purpose of the camp is to help players develop good, sound fundamentals.

"We play a lot of games and that gives the players a chance to use the fundamental that they learned," she said. "We try to help improve the caliber of play among the campers."

Scott drills the campers in ballhandling skills, shooting, individual and team offense and individual and team defense.

"The morning session is for drills and the afternoon session is for games," Scott said. "We stress fundamentals in the morning and we have a team concept in the afternoon."

Scott uses videotapes and lectures to help the campers improve their games. "We give the campers a quick overview in basketball, but we stress the fundamentals," she said.

Scott is happy with the success of the camp. "It's really exciting for me to see the caliber of high school talent improving," he said.

One player who thinks the camp has helped her is 16-year-old Amy Fletcher. Fletcher will be a senior at Marion High School, where she is the starting point guard on the girls' varsity basketball team.

"The camp has really helped me with my defense," Fletcher said. "I go to about three camps a summer and they help me with my confidence."

WE BRING MORE ROOMMATES TOGETHER BY SPLITTING THEM UP.
 At Lewis Park, we realize the closer you are to your roommate, the farther apart you want to be. Knowing this, we separated our four equally sized bedrooms and full bath apartment homes with a large kitchen, dishwasher, and large living area. Now you can still save money by sharing the rent - and keep your privacy too. So have a roommate...and still live alone. Four bedroom/ two bath roommate plans start from $480.00. Come by today. It's a wise "joint venture."

'Hazardous Waste' informs society of serious problem

By Debra Keen-Cooper
Staff Writer

Ignore it and it'll go away. Right?

That seems to be the general attitude when it comes to dealing with toxic by-products left uncontrolled in the environment.

"Hazardous Waste," which opened Tuesday, is a semi-documentary drama about one doctor's struggle to uncover the truth. It is a well-researched, well-dramatized re-enactment of a problem prevalent in today's society.

The play, written by Grant R. Walker as his master's thesis, is directed by Brian Carney. Presented by the Summer Playwrights' Workshop '86, it will be performed again at 8:15 p.m. July 28 in the Laboratory Theater.

Although the acting is bland, the story is interesting enough to keep the audience's attention. The plot shows typical human reactions to an intolerable situation and then adds a slight twist to the conclusion.

Based upon Frank Barnes' struggle to provide for his family with a failing farm,

"Hazardous Waste" proves that human nature makes us mix up priorities in life, causing more problems in the end than were present in the beginning.

Leading the cast is Dr. Susan Daggat, played by Mary Ellen Ford. Ford provides the narrative background necessary to draw the audience into a thought-provoking plot.

Frank's wife, Mary, is played by Lisa Wahlig. Their children, Chris and Ellen, are played by Barney Kirkland and Catherine Schmahl. Frank is living the American Dream, while his family silently wishes for other things in their lives.

To round out the cast, David R. Johnson plays J.J., Ellen's boyfriend, and Tommy Westerfield plays Jack, Frank's business partner.

Despite the lack of emotion in the characterization, the play is very informative and well-staged.

"Hazardous Waste" is a step in the right direction in educating the public about toxic pollutants in the environment.

Personal computer seminar set by COBA

The College of Business Administration will hold a series of seminars on Personal Computers for Enhanced Productivity. All of the PC seminars COBA has sponsored in the past will be included.

Lynn Andersen-Lindberg and William Thornburg will lead the one-day seminars. Both are independent business and computer consultants with broad backgrounds in data processing, business and industry.

"Introduction to Personal Computers" for Business will be held Aug. 5 and 19. The key topics include microcomputer communications, electronic spreadsheets on Lotus 1-2-3 and word processing on WordStar.

"Introduction to WordStar" will be held Aug. 12 and 13. Topics include keyboard basics, moving text in a document and using WordStar's menus will be discussed.

"Introduction to dBase III" will be held Aug. 7. It will focus on designing a data base, creating and printing reports and introduction to microcomputer systems.

"Intermediate dBase III" will be held Aug. 8. Advanced data base management techniques, using date and memo files and working with memory files will be discussed.

"Introduction to Lotus 1-2-3 Release 2" will be held Aug. 20 and include basic Lotus skills and graphics, creating a simple worksheet and working with budgets and statements.

"Intermediate Lotus 1-2-3 Release 2" will be held Aug. 21. Techniques to be discussed include more advanced spreadsheets, using the Lotus data base manager and creating simple macros.

"Advanced Lotus 1-2-3 Release 2" will be held Aug. 22. The seminar will include techniques on creating keyboard macros, combining simple macros and macro programming.

The fee for each introductory seminar is $95 and for intermediate and advanced seminars, $125.

Registration for each seminar starts at 9 a.m. Sessions run from 9:10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2 to 5 p.m.

Sally's Dream to play Shryock

"Sally's Dream," an all-women, new-wave band from Indiana, will perform at the Sunset Concert Thursday. The concert will begin at 8 p.m. on the steps of Shryock Auditorium.

against his Inn on the Lake hotel in Racine, Wis.; the withdrawal of a Joblin associate from involvement in the Carbondale project; and the city's desire to avoid having to obtain additional property for the project.

A foreclosure lawsuit was filed against the Inn on the Lake earlier this year after Joblin failed to make mortgage payments in the aftermath of a fire that caused a substantial loss of business at the hotel. Joblin told the City Council in June that he would sell 90 percent of his interest in the hotel and that the suit would be resolved by the end of July.

At that time, Joblin also addressed concerns over the withdrawal of Ralph A. Stogner from involvement in the project. Stogner, of Atlanta, was to have been the construction manager for the hotel-convention center and an equity partner in the project. Equity is a developer's own financial commitment to a project.
