Democrats' campaign money faces a roadblock

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Republican Party announced Monday it filed a complaint with the Federal Election Commission over Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, that seeks to block the release of taxpayer money to the Democratic presidential campaign.

The complaint, filed Friday by the National Republican Senatorial Committee and by Rep. Beau Boulter, R-Texas, Bentsen's Senate challenger, stems from Bentsen's dual candidacy; he is running for re-election and vice president.

Jann Olsten, executive director of the NRSC, said at a news conference that the Democrats would have an unfair advantage if Bentsen is allowed to spend Senate campaign funds in Texas "above and beyond" the national $46 million presidential campaign spending limit.

Bentsen, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, already has raised $7 million and has nearly $4 million on hand in the bank, according to the June 30 FEC report.

The Republicans are seeking to block the release of public funds to the Democratic ticket pending an FEC decision on their complaint.

They also are asking that Bentsen's Senate re-election funds either be allocated against the $46 million or that they be disallowed for use.

Federal law prohibits any private contributions to candidates receiving taxpayer funds to run for president and vice president.

"A dollar spent by Senator

Bentsen in Texas, whether for the Senate or the national campaign, is going to immediately and directly benefit both," Olsten said. "He's basically getting two bangs for the same buck."

Jack DeVore, Bentsen's press secretary, dismissed the Republican objections as a sign that they are "scared silly."

Discrepancy in cost of new phone system

By Christine Cedusky
Staff Writer

Although the University official in charge of installation of a new telephone system says it will cost $4 million over a 10-year period, records indicate it will cost nearly two-and-a-half times that amount.

Harry D. Wirth, director of Service Enterprises, said the cost of the new system will be almost what the University pays for phone service now, about $155,000 a month.

"No new money is going to be spent," he said.

Wirth would not comment further on the $4 million figure cited in a University News Service release on the phone system.

A May 14, 1987, Board of Trustees report on the purchase of the system said the basic contract cost determined by the State of Illinois Department of Central Management Services is $3,966,240, and the total cost over 10 years is about $9,450,837.

Pat Foley, a CMS spokesman, referred questions on the financing of the new system to Wirth.

While Wirth said he does not know how CMS arrived at its figures, a $155,000 monthly bill amounts to $18 million, not $4 million, over a 10-year period.

CMS is responsible for coordinating and approving all telecommunications services for state organizations.

Donald Wilson, board treasurer and system financial officer, said according to law, the University was required to purchase the system through CMS.

CMS awarded the contract for the new system to GTE and will pay for equipment purchases and installation through the sale of revenue bonds, Wirth said. The University will reimburse CMS monthly over a 10-year period.

The University is buying the new telephone service as opposed to renting one, which is what it does now, Wirth said.

The Board of Trustees' May 1987 report said the present monthly cost of the basic equipment is $153,600, and the cost of new equipment will be about $158,000.

Wirth said the new system is a complicated process involving many people.

"We've been working on this for 10 years," he said.

Some departments will pay larger phone bills depending on the number of lines installed, he said.

Wirth told News Service that a department with four lines and 30 extensions will now pay for 30 lines. The University plans to reallocate money to help departments with higher phone costs, Wirth said.

Dormitory residents will have to furnish their own phones beginning this fall, George West, GTE project manager, said.

West said GTE is installing jacks, wiring and one-party lines, but is not providing telephones.

Students will be charged a basic line fee for private lines as part of room and board, Wirth said.

However, Ed Jones, director of housing and food services,

University engineering camp helps bridge the gender gap

By Kimberly Clarke
Staff Writer

The 15 high school students who attended an engineering camp that ended at the University last week are something of a rarity. They are all female.

Only five percent of all engineers in the United States and ten percent of all engineers at the University are women, Linda Helstern, public information officer for the College of Engineering and Technology, said.

To help reverse this trend, the University has been encouraging women to consider engineering as a career by holding an engineering camp for women each summer since 1981. The participants are selected on the basis of academic performance and interest in science and mathematics, Helstern said.

"There is a pool of very bright and talented women, and the need for engineers will not be met unless this talent is tapped into," Helstern said.

The camp, which lasted two weeks, was sponsored by the College of Engineering and Technology. It was financed with funds from the college, a small fee from the participants and a grant from the National Science Program, Helstern said.

Instruction — including courses in calculus, mining and mechanical, civil and electrical engineering — was from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily.

One major project required students to build a bridge at least 20 inches long using only

BAS issue is content of courses, Bryson says

By Richard Goldstein
Staff Writer

The new assistant to the president for affirmative action and equal opportunity said Monday that "most people feel" a Black American Studies course should be reinstated in the General Education curriculum.

Seymour Bryson, who is also acting director of the affirmative action office, said the issue is the content of the course.

Bryson was formerly the dean of the College of Human Resources. The BAS program is a part of the college.

Bryson said it is likely that a committee to be named next fall to study the status of the program would recommend reinstating a BAS course to General Education.

The Black American Studies Association held demonstrations last April to protest what Luke Tripp, coordinator of the program, called the administration's "undermining and eroding (of) programs supporting minorities."

Two consultants reviewed the program in June and suggested how to structure the program, Bryson said. He would not disclose the specifics of the consultant's advice.

Bryson also plans to change the University's affirmative action policies. "It's probably not as tight or as stringent as a lot of people think it should (be)," Bryson said, "By the middle of September, I intend to have modified the affirmative action plan."

Bryson said the "plan" says how the policy is to be instituted.

"We're trying to examine the affirmative action policies

Amid peace talks, fighting persists among Iran, Iraq

MANAMA, Bahrain (UPI) — Fierce fighting raged between Iran and Iraq Monday even as their foreign ministers headed for U.N.-mediated talks to end nearly eight years of hostilities between the Persian Gulf neighbors. Iran said it recaptured a town, a garrison and a desert strip from Iraq, while Iraq pledged to withdraw its forces from Iranian cities Tuesday to demonstrate it had "no territorial ambitions."

In good will, Israel frees nearly 150 Arabs

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Israel released nearly 150 Palestinians from administrative detention Monday as a goodwill gesture for the Moslem celebration of Id al-Adha, but the army forced an estimated 200,000 Arabs to stay home following several days of violence. Families and friends gathered at the homes of those released, kissing one another and shaking hands, to celebrate their freedom.

Armenians end general strike, Tass reports

MOSCOW (UPI) — Armenians in the disputed enclave of Nagorno Karabakh in the republic of Azerbaijan Monday ended a two-month general strike that paralyzed the region but failed to secure the transfer of the area to the republic of Armenia, the Tass news agency said. The work stoppage in Stepanakert, the capital of Nagorno Karabakh, was one of the most dramatic acts of civil disobedience and public defiance since Mikhail Gorbachev came to power in March 1985.

Cambodia talks a triumph, resolution unlikely

BOGOR, Indonesia (UPI) — The gathering of warring Cambodian camps for informal peace talks Monday was unlikely to produce a breakthrough in the 9-year-old conflict, but the mere meeting itself was a triumph. Rival: so steeped in rancor that they could not submit to face-to-face negotiations for almost a decade found themselves smiling and chatting around a circular table — intentionally installed to avoid seating disputes.

Carlucci willing to cancel military contracts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci said Monday he is willing to cancel some military contracts if it becomes clear from search warrant information that the government deals were illegally obtained. At a Pentagon news conference, Carlucci spelled out a series of internal steps aimed at improving the weapons-buying process.

White House ignores trade agreement threats

WASHINGTON (SHNS) — The White House Monday dismissed a threat by Canadian politicians to block the U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement and sent the measure to Congress. The agreement is a landmark proposal, not yet passed by the U.S. Congress and the Canadian Parliament, to end all tariffs between the two countries in 10 years.

Reagan ready to open hostage talks with Iran

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan said Monday the United States is prepared to open direct talks with Iran about the fate of the American hostages in Lebanon "if they are willing and ready to talk." The willingness to talk, a longstanding public position reaffirmed by Reagan during a Rose Garden ceremony, came as the White House continued to rule out negotiations or deals for the freedom of the nine Americans held in Lebanon.

Knife recovered, lockdown remains on Pontiac prison

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — The Pontiac Correctional Center will remain on lock down status while prison officials complete shake-down searches of all cells, even though a missing kitchen knife that led to the search has been recovered, state officials said Monday. The knife was found about 8:30 a.m. Sunday, 10 days after it disappeared, in a dumbwaiter shaft connecting the prison's kitchen with a dining room, said Corrections Department spokesman Brian Fairchild.

Pettit: If tuition increases, SIU-C still a bargain

By Susan Curtis
Staff Writer

SIU is a bargain compared to other state universities, even though a tuition increase is likely in the near future, administrators say.

Other state universities also are planning tuition increases, many of them taking effect in the fall.

If the Board of Trustees approves a tuition increase for January, it will be the 16th time tuition has been raised in the last 20 years.

Although most of these increases were gradual, the last increase raised tuition by more than $100 per semester. Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit said the increases in the past two years were "more or less forced upon us."

Pettit told the Board at its July 14 meeting that it is likely that another tuition increase would be recommended at the September board meeting. If passed, it would not take effect until January.

Pettit said administrators are trying to keep the increase lower than the last one.

The increase is necessary because a tax increase was not passed by the legislature for additional funding of education. Pettit said university officials need to look at what percentage of the cost of education tuition pays for. If there is sufficient state revenue for education, students ideally shouldn't have to pay more than 25 percent of the cost of instruction, he said.

Some people think students should pay the entire cost because they are the only benefactor, Pettit said. These are the people who think of education as a consumer good, he said.

Pettit disagreed with this view, saying that society also benefits from the students' education.

It has been suggested that 33 percent is a fair amount of the educational cost for students to pay, Pettit said.

Some states choose to keep tuition low for state residents but don't offer much financial aid, he said. However, Illinois offers substantial financial aid, he said.

Statistics from the Illinois Board of Higher Education show freshmen and sophomores at SIU paid 42.3 percent of the cost of instruction - the cost of teaching courses - for fiscal year 1985. It was only 33.8 percent in 1985.

For juniors and seniors, the cost was 29 percent, up from 25.5 percent in 1985. Graduate students paid about 14.8 percent, up from 14 percent in 1985, and law students 16.8 percent, up from 15.8 percent in 1985.

To help balance the cost of instruction for students, some state university systems have a higher tuition rate for juniors and seniors than for underclassmen.

SIU administrators and the Board of Trustees have tried

Farmers' market the target of site change to promote downtown revitalization efforts

By Robert Baxter
Staff Writer

A city official says moving the farmers' market downtown would boost a revitalization effort, but some of those who buy and sell the fresh garden products hope it stays put.

The market is held each Saturday during the growing season on Route 13, just west of the Murdale Shopping Center.

Don Monty, director of community development, said moving the market downtown fits general plans the Carbondale Downtown Revitalization Committee has established for the area.

"The farmers' market move would bring activity and people back downtown," Monty said, adding that the market originally was located downtown more than 10 years ago.

Farmers from all over the area come to sell everything from apples to zucchini, some of which are brought in by station wagon, and others which fill the back of 18-foot trucks.

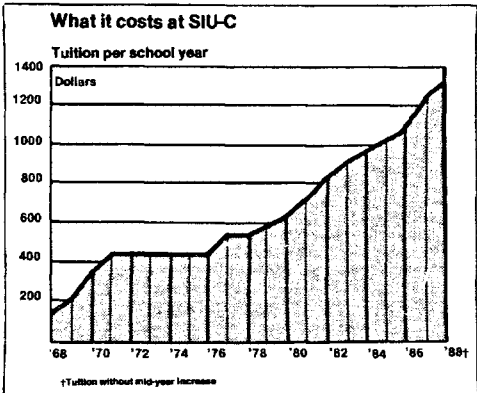

According to farmers, a festive atmosphere prevails - a mood they say is enhanced by the location of the market.

"I like to think of it as a social event, a sort of 'Town n' Gown' type of event," Roger Plapp, a teacher from Herrin, said.

Plapp said selling vegetables at the market is just his hobby, but he enjoys it because he meets all sorts of interesting people.

East St. Louis man pleads not guilty to killing woman

By John Walblay
Staff Writer

Dwight E. Jones pleaded not guilty at a preliminary hearing Monday to murder charges stemming from the October 1987 stabbing death of a Carbondale woman.

Jones had been found mentally unfit to stand trial at two previous hearings. But a July 1 evaluation found him able to stand trial. A trial date has not been set.

Jones, of East St. Louis, was arraigned on three counts of first-degree murder in the death of Marabella Sanders Houston, who died of multiple stab wounds Oct. 22.

At a May 4 hearing, Valla Bahanani, a psychiatrist at the Chester Mental Health Center, said that Jones was mentally competent to stand trial but the court ruled Bahanani did not provide sufficient evidence.

Bahanani said on May 4 that he thought Jones was faking a mental disease or disorder to escape the legal consequences of his actions.

Houston, a mother of four, was attacked outside her home at 705B N. Barnes St. after Jones came to the door. Houston went outside to talk to Jones and the family heard Houston scream.

When Houston's mother, Evelyn Johnson, went outside she said Houston fell to the ground and Jones fled the scene.

Houston earlier had ended a relationship with Jones and had not seen him for the two weeks prior to her death.

Vultures won't flock for free doughnuts

HAIL, HAIL, THE Queen of Parking, Marilyn Hogan. She has recognized the need for plebian parking, by deeming Arena parking lot 56 free.

For parking free, the rewards are bountiful — a sound mind and fit body to those who walk to class. Instead of tickets, meter attendants might be passing out orange juice and doughnuts to those who park in lot 56.

Hogan knows what she's talking about when she equates the laws of parking in lot 56 to fitness. She was the first woman officer on the Carbondale police force, and she has an undergraduate degree in health education.

Hogan should be commended for creative use of student workers. Instead of having them perform drudgery tasks in the parking office, Hogan had her student staff walking campus, timing how long it takes to get from lot 56 to classroom buildings.

BUT HOGAN'S GOOD intentions probably won't matter come fall semester, when the race for close-to-class parking begins. It's doubtful that many will take advantage of the free space, even with the lure of a possible free breakfast and worry-free exercise.

What's needed is a deterrent from parking close to class. As long as the red student decals remain as cheap as $10, vulturing for the choice spots will continue.

Other Midwestern universities charge as much as $40 for student parking permits. SIU-C's parking price should be comparable.

When offered a free decal, students facing a $40 fee, would gladly park free.

What's good for some, may not be for others

"WE ARE VERY fortunate to have had someone of Cindy's background and experience on our staff for the past 14 years. Her knowledge of the SIU-E athletics department and her ability to work closely with both coaches and the academic community should help make the transition to a new athletics administration quick and easy." Dr. James R. Buck, vice president for development and public affairs at SIU-Edwardsville, said about the naming of Cindy Jones to the athletics director position.

Too bad such criteria wasn't important in SIU-C's athletics director search.

Error puts Pettit, union on common ground

In last week's University Professionals newsletter, I wrote a column that detailed the waste associated with too-frequent Board of Trustees meetings — at least ten per year, while the statute only requires four.

I pointed out that VIP treatment — including meals for forty or more and special arrangements — at local campus expense, is a burden this University cannot, and should not be asked to bear.

Briefly, I wrote about a report I received from a "usually reliable source" that Libby Pettit was flown to a board meeting site in a chartered plane. I did not confirm the story.

Chancellor Lawrence K. Pettit was quoted in a July 22 Daily Egyptian article to the effect that I was either lying or deluded.

I concede that the piece about Mrs. Pettit may have been in error. However, the interesting thing is that Chancellor Pettit, in a letter to me and in his remarks to the DE, had not one word to say in defense of the board.

I am delighted to confess my unintentional (call it deluded) error about Mrs. Pettit has revealed that Dr. Pettit and I are in agreement. As Jesse Jackson so recently said: "The lion and the lamb can find common ground."

In my bumbling way, I obtained tacit admission from Pettit that the board is an unjustifiable extravagance. And I am more than happy to admit that Mrs. Pettit is not. — Herbert S. Donow, president, University Professionals.

Alcohol consumption at Turley should stop

I didn't see Brian Elmore's letter in the July 14 Daily Egyptian, but based on the retorts in the July 20 issue, it appears to have caused quite a commotion.

The replies to Elmore's letter fiercely defended the promotion and consumption of alcohol at the Sunset Concert series in Turley Park. Among comments that insulted Elmore was the suggestion that recovering alcoholics should "just say no." Obviously the contributor of this profound advice is not a recovering alcoholic.

People recovering from addictive illnesses are among the bravest in the world. Possibly the biggest challenge facing a person trying to alter destructive behavior is participating in social events where they are exposed to the substance that they had been addicted to.

Whether there is a genetic factor in addictions or not, there is certainly a cultural factor. Unfortunately, we seem to equate fun with intoxication.

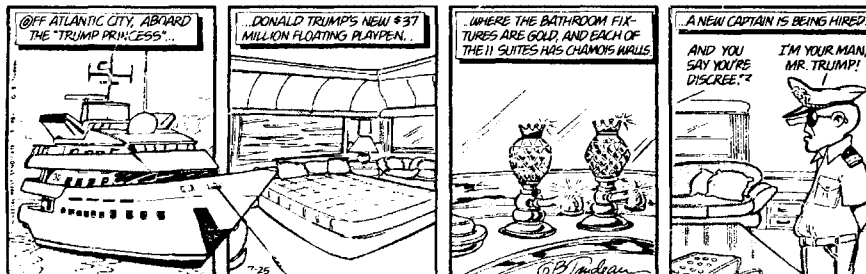

Alcoholism is a disease that destroys families and often kills its victims. Nonetheless, many people strive to emulate the lifestyles portrayed in television beer commercials.

Alcohol consumption should not be permitted at the Turley Park concerts. If people can't survive a concert without a drink, then they should stay home and get loaded where their actions will only impact on themselves. — Elizabeth Feighty, graduate student, speech communications and disorders.

New equipment not expected to eliminate student work positions

By Christine Cedusky
Staff Writer

Student work positions will not be eliminated by the University's new telephone system, Clarence Dougherty, vice president for Campus Services, said.

New phone equipment will replace 53 switchboard stations, but this will not have a major impact on student employment, Dougherty said.

Many students are employed as switchboard operators within University departments, but Dougherty thinks most departments still will require a central answering service. No department has indicated it will eliminate its answering services, he said.

Telephone Services plans to alter two operator positions,

Dougherty said, adding that Telephone Services presently has one operator supervisor and three operators.

He said the three operators will be reduced to two, with one operator relocated to a clerical position in Telephone Services. The supervisor's title will change to telecommunications officer.

said the new phone services will not increase the cost of room and board. He added phone charges have always been included in housing costs. The total data line usage fee has not been confirmed, he said.

Most of Thompson Point has been without phones since July 8, when the first of two changeovers to the new system were made, West said. Thompson Point residents used pay phones until telephone jacks were installed, he said.

"Right now, we're concentrating on the dorms," West said, adding that the University wants the new system ready for returning students in the fall.

GTE is presently working on the Towers and University Park, and hopes to have all dormitory phone jacks in by August 17, West said.

Buildings on Greek Row will continue to have the same phone service, he said, except that each room will now have a phone.

West is not sure Greek Row will be completed by August 17, but said it is not critical because it will have essentially the same phone service.

The second change-over will replace the rotary-dial phones with touch-tone phones, and this will be done one department at a time, West said. He added GTE will install one telephone at a time so no department will be without a phone.

"It will be very gradual," he said.

The complete switch to the new system is scheduled for mid-February, 1989, Wirth said. The new system converts all party lines to one-party service, and eliminates all switchboards, West said. But if a department wanted all calls to go through one person, it is still possible, he said.

The present phone system has been in service since the 1960's, and Wirth said the University found it hard to find parts for the outdated system.

Features such as call transfer, call forwarding, three-way and six-way conference calls, group intercom, call park and speed calling will be available through the new system.

"It will be a completely new system," West said, adding that it is an improvement on the University's communication system.

CAMP, from page 1

popicle sticks and glue. A razor blade or hammer were the only tools at the students' disposal. At the end of the camp a competition was held to determine whose bridge was the most durable.

The bridges were put to the test last Friday when they were placed in a vice-like object and weight was set atop each one to determine which was the strongest.

Andrea Coffman, who attends Jersey Community High School in Jerseyville, took first place for the lowest deflection, which is how stiff the bridge remained as the load was increased.

Lori Krueger, who attends Massak County High School in Metropolis, was the winner in the highest load competition, a measure of how much weight the bridge could hold.

"Building the bridges was pretty fun, but it is kind of sad seeing them destroyed,"

Jennifer Stover, Marion High

School, said. For Stover, engineering is a family tradition. Her grandfather, father and two sisters are all engineers. However, she has not decided which area of the engineering field she wants to study.

Helstern said the University is a success if it encourages women to consider engineering as a career.

"It is a professional service for the profession," she said.

keeping tuition as low as possible through the years, Pettit said.

The quality and amount of education for the dollar has to be considered, Pettit said.

SIU offers a better education than some other state universities that charge more, he said.

"If we can keep our quality from declining this year, I think we have a very good bargain," Pettit said.

Other state universities have increased tuition at a similar rate in the past 20 years.

Yearly tuition at the University of Illinois has gone from $170 in 1968 to $1,620. Illinois State University's tuition went from $120 per year in 1968 to $1,014 per year in 1988.

Northern Illinois University and Western Illinois University have tuition rates comparable to SIU.

NIU tuition is $1,464 per year, and WIU is $1,666 for freshmen and sophomores and $1,678 for juniors and seniors.

Eastern Illinois University also is comparable to SIU, with $1,332 for freshmen and sophomores and $1,356 for juniors and seniors.

to see where they can be strengthened or enhanced," he said.

Bryson said his office is concentrating on discrimination "because it's the right thing to do, not just because someone's telling us to do it."

The assistant to the president's job had been vacant for the last 18 months, President John C. Guyon said. He said Bryson was appointed to provide a "hospitable environment for minorities on campus."

Deans throughout the University have said they are leaving positions unfilled because of the lack of money from the state legislature.

Bryson's salary is $65,000 a year.

Bryson said his new job differs in scope from his role as acting director of affirmative action.

The Affirmative Action office is concerned only with faculty and staff minority employment, while the assistant to the president takes students into account as well.

atmosphere here," Plapp said. "Many foreign students come in and buy goods much the same way they would in their homelands."

Plapp said he does not like the idea of moving downtown, unless adequate parking and facilities are available for sellers and shoppers.

"I really like it here and, unless we are given equivalent facilities downtown, it would be foolish for us to move," he said. "Besides, a lot of our customers would not follow us downtown."

Irvin Moffitt, who lives behind the Westown Shopping Center, where the market is located, said he would be very reluctant to go downtown if the market moved.

George Sheffer, vice-president of Murdale True Value Hardware store, said he enjoys seeing the market out there and hopes it will stay for a long time.

Two students exhibit works in museum

Clay, sculpture and paintings are among the works being displayed by two master of fine art degree candidates today through August 3 at the University Museum.

Anita Powell is displaying a variety of clay objects on a grouping of light and airy shelves.

Powell's thesis installation, "Bric-a-Brac and What-nots," is described as lively and animated, emphasizing the beauty of everyday objects and evoking the memories of experiences connected with such objects.

Powell has exhibited her work in numerous national and regional group and one-person shows in Chicago, St. Louis, Evansville and Louisville.

Ed Pogue is displaying sculptures and paintings. His cast metal forms are integrated with linear and geometric elements, and his paintings utilize a variety of materials in combination with graphite and oil paint.

Pogue's largest work, "Big Sky, Big Steel," measures 20 feet by 5 feet by 6 feet and is composed of forged and welded steel.

"The basic premise of the work is that transformation from profane space to secular space occurs via an interaction of opposites," Pogue said. "The cast metal sculptures symbolize this interaction through the integration of soft modeled forms with hard edged elements."

"In the steel piece the transformation is symbolized by the interactions of the ground, the viewer and the sky," he said.

An opening reception for the two artists will be held from 6 to 8 tonight at the Museum and is open to the public.

Clothesline will be hung for Arts '88

By Richard Scheffer
Staff Writer

Work is underway on "The Highway 13 Clothesline."

The "Clothesline" is a 500-yard brightly-colored, satin clothesline that will stretch east and west across Turley Park.

Sandra McMorris Johnson, a community artist, is preparing the giant clothesline as her exhibit for the upcoming Arts and Celebration '88, which will be October 1 to 2.

Johnson said the clothesline will consist of about 900, 2 feet by 4 feet dyed sheets of satin, with each sheet a different shade. The sheets will be hung on the clothesline with clothespins.

"I'm guessing there will be thousands and thousands of clothespins," she said.

Johnson said she needs volunteers for the project. Volunteers can learn how to dye fabric and mix a liquid palette of colors.

"I hope to have all the dyeing done around September 15," she said.

Johnson said community groups, such as Scout troops, sports teams, dance groups, businesses, schools or other special organizations, can make an appointment to participate.

Volunteers also will be needed to help put up and take down the clothesline, she said.

Work on the fabric is being done from 8:30 to 11:30 weekday mornings at the vacant lot across from Associated Artists Gallery, 213 S. Illinois Ave.

On rainy days, there will be alternative activities. Some of the work can be done indoors, Johnson said.

For more information, contact Johnson at 457-4743 or 457-5608.

Meese blames former aides for legal troubles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edwin Meese accused two former aides Monday of incompetence and blamed them for triggering the independent prosecutor's probe that last week found no evidence to prosecute Meese.

Meese's jab at Arnold Burns and William Weld came a day before the two men were scheduled to testify before the Senate Judiciary Committee to explain why they quit the Justice Department March 29.

Burns, as deputy attorney general, was the department's No. 2 official; Weld was the assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division.

Their appearance on Capitol Hill will be their first public explanation of why they left the department — apparently, sources say, in protest of Meese's leadership of the department.

In a National Press Club speech, Meese, who announced July 5 he will leave office by early August, delivered a scathing parting shot at Burns, Weld and the independent prosecutor James McKay.

Weld and Burns were not immediately available for comment. McKay's office declined comment.

McKay's 814-page report of his 14-month criminal probe, released last Monday, determined Meese probably committed four violations of conflict-of-interest and tax laws but also said there was no evidence of criminal wrongdoing.

When he announced his resignation — the day that McKay's report was filed under court seal — Meese said he believed the report "completely vindicated" him. His lawyers, in a response to the McKay report, accused the independent prosecutor of exceeding his mandate to justify spending the taxpayers' money on his investigation.

Monday, Meese again expressed indignation with McKay, accusing him of "selective exposition of the evidence" and producing a flawed report because of many "misstatements and false conclusions."

In criticism of Burns and Weld, Meese said his former aides relied on "hearsay" in a preliminary study that led to McKay's appointment to investigate Meese's ties to the scandal-ridden Wedtech Corp.

Birth defects may be prevented by taking vitamins, researcher says

BAR HARBOR, Maine (UPI) — Women who take vitamins just before, and early in the course of their pregnancy, appear to have a reduced risk for a serious and common group of birth defects, a researcher said Monday.

Dr. Judith G. Hall of the University of British Columbia in Vancouver, Canada, said European studies suggest regular multivitamins appear to reduce the risk for babies being born with neural tube defects.

Neural tube defects include anencephaly, in which a baby is born missing most of the brain, and spina bifida.

This is the view of Joseph Greenspan, former president of the American Marketing Association, the organization producing the maps.

Besides raising money for the organization and its alumni association, the maps will promote the entire community — Carbondale and the University, he said.

Greenspan described the 35 by 24 maps as a "portrait of the city."

The map is like an aerial view, showing some of the businesses in Carbondale and University buildings, he said. Also it gives some of the city's and University's history, including the Halloween celebration.

Greenspan said the map was hand-painted by Same Pate, a graphic artist at the University. The organization plans to print 15,000 maps.

WCIL-FM will be given 5,000 of the maps, 10,000 will be given to other businesses and the University, he said. How the maps are distributed to the public depends on each business.

Greenspan said the University chapter of the American Marketing Association was recognized as second in the world at an international collegiate conference in New Orleans in April.

"The alumni association has been recognized as No. 1 internationally for five consecutive years," he said.

Pee Wee discovers sex in latest movie

By Kathleen DeBo
Staff Writer

Film Review

Three words sum up "Big Top Pee Wee": pure Pee Wee.

Pee Wee fans will notice some changes, though. The innocent geek from "Pee Wee's Big Adventure" has apparently suffered through puberty. In this movie he loses his innocence and his virginity.

Pee Wee now owns a farm ("Pee Wee Herman had a farm, E-I-E-I-O...") and dabbles in agricultural experiments on the side. He is accompanied by his trusty friend—a pig, Oh, and he has a fiancée, Winnie, the local school teacher, played by Penelope Ann Miller.

Life is going by at a tranquil pace when a storm, and a circus, literally blow into town. Kris Kristofferson plays the wise old circus owner Ace Montana. Pee Wee (Paul Reubens) plays the circus people stay at his farm while they patch up their tents.

Gena, a beautiful acrobat played by newcomer Valeria Golriz, catches Pee Wee's eye and eventually takes his virginity. Naturally, Winnie is peeved by Pee Wee's attentions to Gena. Meanwhile, the absurdly stuffy townspeople try to run the circus out of town.

Pee Wee must decide between the two women, between the farm and the circus and he must somehow stop the townspeople from ruining the circus.

The plot is not original or suspenseful but then that is not what movie-goers look for from Pee Wee. He is part 1950's kitsch and part spastic. The movie is full of that absurd, obnoxiously theatrical Pee Wee Herman humor. Some fans have complained that Pee Wee as a lecher just is not Pee Wee and suggest he should have retained his "golly gee" 1950's guise.

Spielberg beach-front home seriously damaged by fire

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Steven Spielberg's Malibu beach-front home was seriously damaged by a fire that spread to the home of his neighbor, fellow film director Walter Hill, officials said Monday.

County Fire Capt. Derek Reyna said the blaze broke out about 6:36 p.m. Sunday in a second-floor room of the home

Spielberg shares with his wife, actress Amy Irving, and son, Max.

By the time firefighters arrived, the flames had spread to Hill's residence.

The flames were extinguished by some 35 firefighters about 50 minutes later, Reyna said. Both homes were unoccupied and no injuries were reported.

Southern Region takes 5 gold, 1 silver, 4 bronze

By Nora Bentley
Staff Writer

Five gold, four bronze, and one silver medal gave the Southern Region a sixth overall finish at the Prairie State Games.

In the men's and women's open basketball division, the Southern Region won a silver and bronze medal respectively.

Open divisions are for athletes out of high school; scholastic divisions are for athletes in grades eight through 12.

The men's open division team was defeated by the Windy City team from Chicago in a battle for the gold medal. The score was 101-74, Gary Carney, regional director for the Southern Region said.

The women's open division team beat the Windy City team 89-74 to finish third. The men's scholastic division also won a bronze medal, Carney said.

Players participating in basketball from SIU were Amy Raker, Cathy Kampwerth, Bridgett Bonds, Dave Bush, Jerry Jones and former player Nate Bufford.

In track and field, five gold medals and one bronze medal were won by SIU athletes. Gold medal winners include Larry Holloway in the decathlon, Bret Garret in the 800-meter run, Rosanne Vincent in the 800-meter run, and Tom Smith in the hammer throw and shot put.

Holloway competed against five others to win the decathlon by 200 points. Garret and Vincent competed against eight others in their events. Garret finished with a time of 1 minute, 52.31 seconds and Vincent with 2 minutes, 16.15 seconds, Carney said.

Smith won the shot put competition with a throw of 53 feet, 2 1/2 inches, Carney said.

Eric Pougues won a bronze medal in the 200-meter run with a time of 22 seconds.

WEST, from Page 12

—proven record in encouraging and mentoring minorities;
—fund-raising abilities;
—high level of administrative experience;
—knowledge of several different sports.

Jean Moss, assistant to President Sauer, denied comment on the search.

"It is inappropriate to say anything at this time," she said.

Voelz will begin her duties Sept. 1.

The Minnesota position has been open since the resignation of Marrily Baker in May. Baker, who had been at the university since 1982, left June 30 to be assistant executive director of the NCAA.

Donna Olson has been interim women's athletics director since her departure.

The University also is looking for a men's athletics director.

"It was a very packed and enjoyable two days," West said of her interviews. "It's healthy to go and exchange ideas with others in the field." West said she also came back with renewed pride in SIU-C.

"You think Big 10 and get excited, but I have a different attitude after going there," she said. "I came home proud of SIU and its atmosphere."

West is negotiating with athletics director Jim Hart as to continuing her work here. Hart was named athletics director July 5 after a search in which West also was involved.

West said last week she planned to continue her work at SIU-C as Hart's associate unless something "unforeseen" happens.

to the final round.

Saturday, Price trailed the third-place position and a spot on a second Olympic team by two inches with only one throw remaining. In what seemed to be a final burst of energy, she launched her best performance of the day, a 59-8 toss that gave her third place standing and a trip to Seoul.

"She always hits her throws when it counts," Smith said. "She handles pressure better than anybody I have ever seen."

Smith said her final toss was what he refers to as a "mental throw." She was able to overcome physical fatigue and come through with her mind in the clinch, he said, and that was enough give her a position on both teams.

Price said she did not know which would be her better sport, but her "realistic goal" is to make it through the Olympic finals in both events.

Price, who had never thrown a discus until three years ago after her basketball eligibility at SIU-C ran out, went into the trials with little recognition and few thought she could handle the pressure of the meet, Smith said. She continues to amaze those who were pessimistic, he said.

"What she has done in three years has never been done by anyone," Smith said. Most of Price's competitors have been training for 10 to fifteen years, he said.

Price has been training for the olympics only a year, she said, and her performance at Indianapolis does not reflect her best.

Both she and Pagel, the athlete she tied for first in the discus, agreed their distances could have been about three feet better if it had not been for the stress involved in an Olympic trial, Smith said.

Price was unsure of which event would be her strongest, but Smith said a sixty-foot toss in the shot put would make the Olympic finals and he was confident Price could make it through if she threw well, but the discus would be her strongest event.

Despite her recent success in the sport, track and field was not her original passion.

In 1980, Price was recruited out of St. Charles, Mo., by women's basketball coach Cindy Scott.

Between 1980 and 1984, the 6-foot-2 "tower of power," as her teammates referred to her, held five SIU-C records in women's basketball.

Among those records, she set national records as well. A 67.4 shooting percentage made Price the third most accurate female player in the country from the field her junior year. In her career at SIU-C, 1,271 points and 744 rebounds ranked her fifth in college basketball.

After she used up her eligibility in basketball, Price was approached by women's head track coach Don DeNoon, who introduced her to weight throwing competition. Price's third attempt at the discus resulted in a 96-foot toss.

Within a month Price increased her distance to 135 feet and became SIU-C's second all-time best in shotput and discus.

Price, the first female Saluki athlete other than a gymnast to make an Olympic team, placed 12th in the discus at the World Championships in Rome last year and became the third best American female when she won The Athletic Congress Nationals at San Jose, Calif., with a 212-8 toss and a record for that championship.

Price became the America's third best female athlete in the shotput with a 62-10 1/2 toss at The Athletic Congress Nationals in Tampa Bay, Fla., in June.

In two years, under the training guidance of Smith, Price improved her talents and tossed the discus 210-9 at the Gatorade Classic in Knoxville, Ky., which ranked her the third best in the country.

COST, from Page 12

The highest amount of money, $1,029.28, was spent on Ralph Barkey, athletics director at Sonoma State University in California.

The travel expenses of Barkey were higher than those of Jerry Hughes and Jim Hart, both of whom are from Missouri, because of the distance Barkey had to travel.

Charlotte West lives in Carbondale, therefore her expenses were less than $300.

The information was prepared by C. Michael Williams, budget director.

Connie Price makes Olympic teams

By Brad Bushue
Staff Writer

With only one throw left to keep from being eliminated from the U.S. Olympic shot put trials, former Saluki basketball and track star Connie Price captured a third-place spot on the Olympic team roster with a 59 foot, 8 inch toss.

Price already had assured herself of a place on the Olympic discus team by winning the qualifying finals with a 201-foot toss that tied for first place.

Price said by phone she was "very fatigued" after a four-day performance of endurance and strength in the Olympic Track and Field Trials in Indianapolis.

1st-place tie in discus, 3rd place in shot put

Price, who competed in a rain storm the first day and in intense heat the last three, was mentally and physically exhausted by the end of the trials, she said.

"The four days was a long time, especially when it's pouring rain on the first day and the rest is hot," she said.

With two inches of water in the throwing ring at times, Price struggled to make a legal discus toss on her first qualifying round Wednesday when the discus slipped out of her hand on the first and third tosses. She placed fifth on her second toss with a distance of 178-8 and advanced to the final round. On a hot Thursday afternoon, she won the discus finals with a 201-foot final throw and tied Ramona Pagel.

In accordance to Olympic regulations, the second best throw is used as a tie-breaker. Price's distance of 194-3 was about seven feet farther than Pagel's, and secured the opportunity to compete in Seoul, South Korea, at the summer games.

"I didn't really think about Pagel's throw. I already had third place sealed," Price said. She was relieved to have made one successful throw despite being one meter short of her competition goal, 62 meters, she said. Her fifth and second best toss brought her the victory in the event.

"At this point, she was 'mentally drained,' her coach and fiance John Smith, also a former SIU-C track athlete, said. He said he had Price practicing in the rain two days before the first round because rain was expected later in the week.

Price entered Friday's preliminary round in the shotput at a "mental low," Smith said. "She really didn't want to be there," he said. Price qualified and moved on

West doesn't get job at Minnesota

Interview brings renewed pride in SIU-C

Charlotte West, associate athletics director, was passed over for the position of women's athletics director at the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis.

The University announced Monday that they would hire Chris Voelz, assistant athletics director at the University of Oregon.

West, one of 22 initial applicants, interviewed for the position last Thursday and Friday.

"I was one of two finalists, and I'm happy about that," West said.

"I was pretty much prepared when I went there," she said. "The position involved lobbying the state legislature and doing public relations work."

"I'm much too interested in the administrative part of the job," she said.

"They picked the best person for the job," she said.

"Chris was definitely more qualified."

"I'm happy for them. They made a good match."

The decision was made by the president of the university, Richard Sauer, after being advised by a 10-member search committee.

"The search committee was very impressed with both candidates," Beth Wales, chair of the search committee, said. "(The committee) thought either candidate would make a good athletics director."

"(The committee) made a report of unranked strengths and weaknesses and submitted it to the president," Wales, director of University counseling services, said.

"Minnesota is clearly one of the top women's positions in the nation," Voelz told the Minnesota Daily before the decision was made. "Minnesota is outstanding academically and I strongly believe in mixing a strong academic program with athletics."

Voelz has been at the University of Oregon for ten years and was the women's volleyball coach for seven years. She served as assistant athletics director of women's athletics before being moved to assistant athletics director of both women's and men's athletics.

The criteria for the position, as listed by Wales was as follows:

Intramural softball playoffs almost make it before storm

The Roadrunners got by the Constrictors 6-5 Monday night and advanced to the quarterfinals of the intramural 12-inch softball tournament. Only one game was suspended because of rain.

Just before losing to the Roadrunners, the Constrictors pounded the Dragons, 25-3. The Constrictors combined an onslaught of extra-base hits with countless Dragon errors en route to the easy victory. Their next game was a battle.

The Roadrunners scored once in the bottom of the first inning, then the Constrictors struck for three in the top of the second. In the bottom of the second the Roadrunners took a 4-3 lead with a two-run home run into right field. The score was tied 5-5 going into the bottom of the fifth when the Roadrunners scored what proved to be the winning run. The Constrictors were retired in order in the top of the sixth. In other games, the Skydogs beat the Frat Rats by one run, then went on to play the Untouchables.

The Skydogs and Untouchables were tied 12-12 after six innings, but the Untouchables scored five times in the top of the seventh to take a commanding lead. But with runners on first and second and two outs, the game was called because of lightning.

Cost of AD interviews $3,419.79, 'expected'

By Beth Clavin
Staff Writer

The University spent $3,419.79 in the search for a new athletics director.

Advertisements cost $985.45 and $2,434.34 was spent on the candidates.

President John C. Guyon said this amount did not surprise him.

"The search costs what it takes to complete the two-day interviews for each candidate," he said.

"Giving (the candidates) a chance to meet and talk with the staff and others is the wisest money we spend," he said.

Radical America's Cup boat OK'd

NEW YORK (UPI) — A state judge Monday ordered the America's Cup race to begin in September as planned, ruling any objections to the United States' radical two-hulled catamaran will have to be brought to court after the race.

In her decision, state Supreme Court Justice Carmen Beauchamp Ciparick ruled against efforts by the Royal Burnham Yacht Club and the Mercury Bay Boating Club to bar the San Diego Yacht Club from racing the boat on Sept. 19 in the waters off San Diego.

Ciparick's ruling came nearly three months after Mercury Bay's New Zealand Challenge filed suit in her court, asking that she decide the issue that had kept the Kiwis and the San Diego defenders at loggerheads since last January.

Sail America Foundation announced at that time that it would dispose of New Zealand merchant banker Michael Fay's unorthodox, but legal, challenge with a multihulled yacht that would, by virtue of its light weight and small amount of drag, crush Fay's proud monohull.
