Diggle named AISG interim chairperson

Student President Doug Diggle has been named interim chairman of the Illinois Association of Student Governments (AISG).

Diggle replaces Robin Roberts, former student president at SIU-E, who had resigned both positions for personal reasons March 20.

Diggle said Roberts' resignations are a loss to both SIU-E and AISG.

"Robin was an extremely competent AISG chairman," Diggle said. "It's hard on an organization to lose an individual of that caliber."

Diggle's term as AISG chairman will run until June 30. The new AISG officers will be voted into office during the July AISG meeting, he said.

Diggle had served as vice chairman of the AISG prior to Roberts' resignation. Paul Hagan, Northern Illinois University student president, will become the new AISG vice chairman.

Diggle said AISG will be working on its lobbying efforts in Springfield and assessing the success of the AISG campaign to get the student vote out during the rest of the academic year.

Diggle said AISG had been instrumental in keeping the Illinois State Scholarship Commission (ISSC) from billing students for ISSC grants when the ISSC ran out of money. He said AISG would lobby for additional appropriations for ISSC through the Illinois legislature.

SIU gives sales pitch for fire academy

By Ray Urchel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU has presented its sales pitch for a proposed $9 million fire academy to federal officials considering the site of the facility.

George Mace, vice president for University relations, met with officials of the National Fire Prevention and Control Administration (NFPCA) for two days of meetings in Washington, D.C. this week.

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Carbondale, also urged NFPCA to locate the fire academy in Southern Illinois.

Mace said, "We were very well received by the site selection board." SIU representatives had been scheduled to give a 15-minute presentation to the committee but they received 45 minutes.

The University proposed that the fire academy be constructed on land that is presently used for School of Technical Careers (STC) classes in Carterville. The STC program is expected to be moved to the Carbondale campus sometime in 1978.

The location of the fire academy at the Carterville site has the support of many area governing agencies.

Some of the points the University stressed at the NFPCA meetings included the fact that the STC site is near the geographical center of the United States and that the fire academy could cooperatively use existing University resources and personnel for joint research projects.

Mace said about 90 other cities throughout the United States, including Milwaukee and New York City, expressed an interest in the fire academy.

NFPCA is expected to inform SIU whether it is being considered as the site sometime between April 25 and May 10, Mace said.

April 25 is the deadline for submission of applications. Federal officials are expected to tour the sites under consideration starting May 10. Legislation creating the NFPCA and providing for the fire academy was signed by President Ford in October 1974. A site must be selected by Oct. 29, 1976, according to the law.

Mercury found in Cedar Lake fish

By Tom Chesser
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Illinois Department of Conservation released test results Wednesday showing that fish in Cedar Lake, Carbondale's water reservoir, are contaminated with mercury.

A test by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency, however, showed no traces of mercury in the water, EPA officials said.

Colleen Ozment, laboratory supervisor for the city, said the city has run tests on raw and finished water from Cedar Lake and also found no signs of mercury contamination. Ozment recommends, however, that persons eating fish taken from the lake eat no more than half a pound per week.

Ozment said she and the other agencies involved in the tests are uncertain why the fish contain mercury while the water doesn't.

John G. Warren of the Illinois Department of Conservation said it is possible fish were contaminated at the time Cedar Lake was stocked in 1973 and 1974. The department of conservation stocked Lake Shelbyville and Rend Lake, and they are experiencing similar problems of fish contamination, Warren said.

Ozment said contamination of the fish can be worked out through regeneration if the cause of contamination were solely from a contaminated stocking of the fish.

Other causes of contamination being

Quincy customers, who have been paying lower rates than other CIPS customers, will find their bills increased more than the others, the ICC said. The monthly increase for residential customers in Quincy will average about $1.03.

An average residential gas heating customer will pay an extra 84 cents a month.

CIPS had sought a boost of 19.2 per cent in electric service rates. The 5.2 per cent increase approved by the ICC was expected to boost annual revenues by $8.9 million.

The company had requested a 7.2 per cent boost in gas rates, but received a hike of 4.2 per cent which the ICC estimated will produce about $1.8 million in additional revenues a year.

The ICC order also requires the company to retain a consulting firm to study the utility's management and operations.

"The selection of CIPS to be the first Illinois utility to undertake such a study in no way reflects upon the management of the company nor this commission's opinion of the company," the ICC spokesperson said.

The spokesperson said the study will be of value to the company, the ICC staff and other utilities which the state regulates.

The selection of the management company will be made after discussions with the ICC.

CIPS serves nearly 287,000 customers who buy electric service in 549 communities in Central and Southern Illinois.

It provides gas service to about 140,000 customers in 245 communities.

looked into by the department of conservation include the water runoff of pesticides from the surrounding orchards. Ozment said, however, that pesticides containing mercury were banned in Illinois years ago.

EPA officials said it is possible for water life to absorb mercury from a runoff of pesticides or from elements contained in the bottom of the lake possibly passing along to the fish through the food chain and leaving no traces of mercury in the water.

Fish species found to be contaminated in Cedar Lake include large mouth bass, bluegill, walleye, bullhead, channel cat and crappie. Carp was the only species found to contain no mercury, conservation officials said.

Saluki Stables reopening may cost students money

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said that if the Saluki Stables are to be reopened, they would have to be subsidized and there is a possibility that students would have to pay 50 cents more per semester in activity fees.

At a meeting of administrators Tuesday, Swinburne said that the proposed cost of reopening the stables was considerably underestimated and certain steps must be taken before the stables could be reopened.

Swinburne said, "We are going to check with the internal auditor as to the projected cost of running the operation based on a study made years ago. Then we will call in expert assistance to transpose those figures to '76-'77 standards."

Inquiries will be directed to the Office of Business Affairs to see how equipment needs could be handled. The operation moved from Chautauqua Road to the Touch of Nature Environmental Center because of financial problems, and the stables have been under the jurisdiction of business affairs since the move.

Swinburne said that it seemed natural that if the stables come under the jurisdiction of student affairs, they be placed in campus recreation.

"We will try to do an assessment of the non-recreational impact, such as liability costs and 'hidden costs'—those that the University would be billed for but are not accounted for in the estimates made in the proposal," he said.

The environmental impact of having the stables located at the Chautauqua facilities will also be studied.

Before the stables can be reopened extensive repairs would be required, said Barbara Spears, director of employment services.

Two area men to bring drug case before jury

By Debbie Absher
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Two Carbondale men arrested in a drug raid March 2 were bound over Tuesday for jury trials in Jackson County Circuit Court after pleading not guilty during arraignment.

Andrew Niceburg, 21, 100½ N. Almond St., and Elva Akers, 26, 604 E. College St., are each charged on two counts of illegal delivery of a controlled substance.

Niceburg is alleged to have sold phenobarbital to a Southern Illinois Enforcement Group (MEG) agent Nov. 20 and Dec. 5.

The agent testified in the preliminary hearing Tuesday that he had been introduced to Niceburg Nov. 20 by an informant and that he had sold him 11 red capsules purported to be "downers" for 75 cents each.

The agent said he returned to Niceburg's house Dec. 5 and asked if he had any more "reds" for sale. Niceburg sold him 20 capsules for $14, the agent said.

Ex-student gets fine, probation

A 20-year-old former SIU student entered a negotiated guilty plea Wednesday in Jackson County Circuit Court to a charge of delivery of a substance purported to be a controlled substance.

Mark Barnhill, now of Park Forest, was arrested in a drug raid March 2 and charged with selling what was purported to be amphetamines to a Southern Illinois Enforcement Group (MEG) agent at Barnhill's room in Wilson Hall Nov. 18.

Tests conducted by the Illinois Bureau of Investigation crime lab in DeSoto showed the substance to be caffeine.

Judge Richard Richman sentenced Barnhill to two years' probation and fined him $350 plus court costs.

Councilmen indicate support for farmers market proposal

Carbondale City Council members indicated support of a proposed farmers market in an informal meeting Monday. Sponsored by Illinois South, Inc., the market would be located in the city parking lot adjacent to the Prairie Farms Dairy Inc. on South Washington Avenue.

A uniform fee for stall or booth rental would be established and preference would probably be given to commercial farmers over persons selling a few homegrown vegetables or fruits. Possibility of farmers paying a seasonal fee is also under consideration.

Guidelines for selecting vendors to Circuit Judge Payton Kunce set the case for trial 9 a.m. May 10, Niceburg, who will be represented by Jackson County Public Defender Charles Grace, is free on $10,000 bond.

Akers is accused of two sales of heroin to a Federal Drug Enforcement Agency agent Oct. 14 in Carbondale.

The agent testified in the preliminary hearing that his informant told him that a guy named Dave, a name which Akers also goes by, was selling heroin at Pizza King, 308 S. Illinois Ave.

The agent and his informant went to the bar, where the agent was introduced to Akers, he said. Akers told him he could obtain some $25 bags of heroin, so the agent gave him $50, he said.

Akers went to Quicksilver Billiards, 304 S. Illinois Ave., and came back in about five minutes with two tin foil packets containing a brown substance purported to be heroin, the agent testified.

At 7 p.m. that night the agent said he and the informant again met Akers in front of Pizza King. Akers said he could obtain more heroin but that he needed some money for himself, the agent said.

The agent gave him $60 and Akers entered the bar and returned with one big packet containing the equivalent of two $25 packets of heroin, he said.

Judge Richard Richman set May 10 as the trial date. Akers is free on $10,000 bond.

Beg your pardon

The Daily Egyptian incorrectly reported Wednesday in a court roundup story that Donald Badger, R.R. 3, Murphysboro, allegedly hit Patrick Burke, also of R.R. 3, Murphysboro, in the head with a flashlight and swung it at a Jackson County deputy. Burke, who was charged Tuesday in circuit court with one count each of battery and assault, hit Badger and the deputy with the flashlight.

participate in the market will be designated in a City Council meeting at 7 p.m. Monday at the council chambers. At that time, council members will vote on the farmers market proposal.

"I think using the South Washington Avenue lot two days a week is a good idea," remarked Councilwoman Helen Westberg. Councilman Hans Fischer agreed, saying the farmers market project was carefully planned.

City Manager Carroll J. Fry said, "The corporation would be directly responsible for the market although the city would enter into a contractual agreement with the corporation.

Senate passes bill restructuring FEC

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate passed a bill Wednesday to restructure the Federal Election Commission and make other changes in the 1974 campaign finance law. Passage of the measure, a compromise fashioned by leaders of both parties, ended the stalemate that had threatened to keep the Senate snarled in controversy. The legislation, approved 55 to 28, now goes to the House, where no action is in prospect before next week.

One last-minute addition to the Senate bill was a sweeping financial disclosure provision adopted 76 to 13, applying to Congress members and all other top federal officials. Congress already has missed a March 22 deadline set by the Supreme Court for restructuring the FEC, created to enforce and administer the 1974 law. As a result the commission lost its key powers, including authority to disburse funds to help presidential candidates finance their primary campaigns.

The court ruled Jan. 30 that the FEC was unconstitutionally established because a majority of its members were appointed by Congress. It said they all would have to be appointed by the President, subject to Senate confirmation, since the FEC performs executive functions. The court first set a March 1 deadline for Congress to pass corrective legislation and then extended this to March 22.

Ford plans nationwide flu vaccinations

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford announced Wednesday a $135 million plan to vaccinate every American against a deadly flu virus by next November. "We cannot afford to take a chance with the health of this country," Ford said. He emphasized that at this point no one could determine the exact extent of the potential threat posed by a strain of flu known as swine influenza that could become epidemic here next fall.

However, the President said there was "no cause for alarm" because physicians and the drug industry are prepared to produce enough vaccine to protect every man, woman and child in the country against the disease. If Congress provides the money he seeks to produce the vaccine, Ford said, flu shots will be available in schools, hospitals, doctors' offices and public health facilities. "The reaction, I am told, may mean a few sore arms for a day or two," the President related.

But he called that "a small price to pay" for protection against a flu strain that killed an estimated 548,000 Americans in 1918-19. After Ford met with more than two dozen scientists and health and political leaders, the White House said Ford also directed the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to develop plans to make the vaccine available to everyone during September, October and November. Ford urged citizens to get a vaccination against the potentially lethal virus this fall.

None injured as earthquake shakes area

(AP)—An earthquake shook portions of a five-state area, including Carbondale and Southern Illinois, early Wednesday evening, authorities said. A spokesman for the St. Louis University geophysics department said preliminary data indicates that the initial tremor occurred at about 6:41 p.m. CST and registered a magnitude of 4.0 on the Richter scale used to measure the severity of earthquakes. A lesser after-shock followed approximately 20 minutes later, the spokesman said, and ranged from 3.5 to 3.75. No injuries or damages were reported.

State police in Cairo said the tremors were felt over a five-state region, including portions of Tennessee, Arkansas, Kentucky, Illinois and Missouri. The Rev. Mr. Donald Roll, director Seismological Station at Loyola University in Chicago, also said the shock registered between 4.0 and 5.0 on the Richter scale. "It seems to be rather local," Father Roll said. "It would certainly be felt in the area. There might be chimneys knocked over, some clocks stopped...but damage would be minor."

Teamsters union schedules trucking strike vote

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS (AP)—Teamsters scheduled a weekend strike authorization vote at a meeting Wednesday of some 1,000 local union officials from across the nation as contract bargaining continued. The union meeting was delayed for four hours as talks went on, but trucking industry representatives apparently failed to budge from a previous offer. The offer will be submitted to union members with a recommendation for rejection, sources said.

Those attending the closed meeting refused comment on the discussions and Frank E. Fitzsimmons, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, avoided reporters before and after Wednesday's session. Talks recessed Wednesday afternoon, but one Midwest union official said that negotiations are continuing and will proceed "right through the 31st. The romance is still going on." The current National Master Freight agreement, which covers 400,000 truckers and warehousemen, expires at midnight March 31.

Court ruling favors seniority for bias victims

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court ruled on Wednesday that black victims of job discrimination should be granted special seniority even though this gives them an advantage over previously hired workers when it comes time for layoffs. The 5-3 decision applies to workers who sought jobs, were turned down because of their race, and were subsequently hired by the same employer. The court said they should ordinarily be given seniority dating from their original rejection.

In other action the court ruled in favor of the armed services in two cases, holding that enlisted men are not entitled to legal counsel in summary courts-martial and that commanders have broad authority to keep political campaigners off of their posts. Another of the court's rulings may force hospital pharmacies to charge walk-in customers higher prices than hospital patients for prescription drugs or to turn away such customers entirely.

Argentina adjusts to military government

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—The military junta that ousted President Isabel Peron in a bloodless coup began Wednesday the gargantuan task of imposing order on this chaotic nation. Troops moved swiftly—with occasional gunfire—against traces of Peronism and left-wing political groups. Peron, 45, was believed flown to a resort-like air force compound in the interior. Reliable sources in Madrid said the Spanish government had been unofficially informed that she might travel to Spain this weekend.

Commanders of the three armed forces set up an austere military government, ordered an end to political and labor activity and said they would attack Argentina's political violence and economic woes.

The junta led by Gen. Jorge R. Videla, moralistic 50-year-old army chief, also said it would reorganize the country for an eventual return to "republican/democracy" and would align Argentina within "the Western and Christian world."

However, the poor performance of the military during the many years it ruled Argentina before the late Juan D. Peron returned to power in 1973 made it doubtful Videla and his colleagues could solve the economic problems. The military also had some trouble with guerrillas when it ruled before, and was slow to end the 21-month rule of Peron's widow.

The coup left only Venezuela and Colombia with civilian governments in South America's major nations.

By contrast to the last previous South American coup, the bloody overthrow of Salvador Allende in Chile in 1973, the Argentine overthrow was done with finesse and apparently little violence. Several thousand persons were believed killed in the fighting in Santiago, and Allende himself died in his flaming palace. The Chilean armed forces said he committed suicide, but Allende supporters claimed he was killed.

The new Argentine junta said it will welcome and promote foreign investment, paralyzed by restrictive laws for the past three years under the Perons.

The hemisphere's first woman president was arrested and flown to the interior just after midnight and within hours the military dissolved congress and took over municipal governments and main labor movements.

A number of Mrs. Peron's ministers and aides and some labor leaders in addition to Miguel were arrested, according to official communique and military sources.

Among those reportedly arrested was her private secretary, Julio Gonzalez, charged with criminal acts. Gonzalez was regarded as the power behind the Peron presidency in recent months.

Isabel Peron, a former dancer, became Peron's third wife after he was overthrown and exiled in 1955 during his first rule of Argentina.

SIU to study ambulance contract renewal

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

President Warren Brandt has been asked by the Jackson County Ambulance Service to renew SIU's contract with them which expires August 15.

Brandt said Tuesday that he will "look into the matter and see how the service has been functioning at the University."

Carbondale is serviced by two ambulances, one operates from Doctors Memorial Hospital and one operates from the Health Service.

"The county will be responsible to see that the ambulance service continues and the arrangements are made to continue the service in cooperation with SIU," said Hazel LeFevre, chairperson of the Health and Safety Committee and member of the Jackson County Board of Supervisors.

LeFevre said Wednesday that Brandt has assured them that he will continue the agreement between the county and SIU but he did not say for how long.

The present ambulance plan was brought into effect in July when "an existing ambulance service went out of operation, LeFevre said.

A major problem the county now faces is supplying service efficiently to the whole county.

"There are some out of the way places where it takes 20 minutes for an ambulance to reach," LeFevre said.

On all the ambulances there are emergency medical technicians, and the vehicles are certified by state public officials.

LeFevre said that other ambulances operate in the county, but they do not meet Department of Transportation standards. All of the ambulances under the Jackson County Ambulance Service meet the standards, she said.

"The vehicles used by Carbondale are on loan from the Department of Public Health, but the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has provided a grant to fund the purchase of two permanent ambulances for Carbondale," she said.

At that time, the ones on loan will be returned.

Carbondale Mayor Neal Eckert and Murphysboro Mayor Michael Bowers have stated that it is the county's responsibility to provide adequate and continuing ambulance service for all Jackson County residents. LeFevre said.

The Jackson County board has been examining and evaluating the current plan.

"Letters from people have stated how important it is that the response team knew what to do once they arrived," she said. The medical technicians are trained through trauma coordinators at Doctors Memorial Hospital.

"Getting to the location is important, but equally important is that the team knows what to do once they get there," she said.

Tom Jones to run for student president

By Mike Springston
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Stressing a need for Student Government to inform the student body of what the administration is doing, Student Senator Tom Jones announced his candidacy for the student presidency Tuesday night.

Jones will run on the Action Party ticket with Don Wheeler, also a student senator, as his running mate.

"We're aware of our limited power as a student government," Wheeler, also a member of the Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity, said. "The main thing students here need to do is to learn what's going on in the administration. The more knowledge you have of this university, the more power you'll have."

Jones proposed posting Student Government news and petitions on the first floor of the Student Center where they would be more accessible to students.

"The more interest and participation we can generate in students," Wheeler said, "the more effective this organization can be."

Jones, who was president of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity last year, also proposed allowing the new parking garage being constructed east of the Faner Building to become a blue sticker parking garage because the garage would become "too much of a hassle for students if they had to compete with the faculty for parking spaces."

Jones suggested turning Parking Lot No. 10, located east of Anthony Hall, into a red sticker only parking lot and prohibiting cars with blue stickers from parking in any red sticker lot.

Discussing the Recreation Building

now under construction, Wheeler said the building's programming should be minimized and that intramural programs should be kept out of the building as much as possible.

Jones also said he would fight to keep the Ombudspersons' Office a separate entity in the University.

"It's supposed to be a go-between for students with grievances with the administration and we'd like to keep it that way," he said.

Jones also proposed that interest money accrued from student activity fees should be kept in that account.

"It seems kind of ridiculous that the administration takes all our money, invests it and then doesn't give the interest back," he said.

Both Jones and Wheeler are members of the Student Senate Finance Committee and the Student Government Fee Allocation Board.

Stop harp seal pup slaughter

By Tom Bell
Student Writer

With spring almost here the robin is making its appearance in the area, but on the west coast of Greenland some migrating animals are heading for trouble. The chances of the robin making a successful migration from the southern to the northern United States are greater than those of the harp seal journeying south to its winter resting grounds. The female harp seal will give birth to a single, whitecoated pup, reviving a bitter worldwide debate.

The controversy centers on the annual seal hunt, which has taken place off the coast of Canada for more than 200 years. Lines are sharply drawn between those who demand a permanent end to the hunt and others who insist on the right to harvest the valuable marine resource.

The harp seal is truly in trouble. Adult seals are hunted in considerable numbers, but it is the infant pup with its snow-white pelt that appeals both to public sentiment and to the furrier. Conservationist and humane groups around the world have campaigned to abolish the hunt on grounds of cruelty, citing the common method of killing the pups by clubbing their skulls as they lie defenseless on the ice. The pups are often stripped for pelts while still of nursing age.

The seal pelts have been sought along with blubber and meat. The soft pelts yield fur trim and leather; the blubber produces fine oil for margarine, soaps, lotions, lubricants and perfumes. Due to the campaigns against the hunts the Canadian Minister of Fisheries set up a Committee on Seals in 1971 to examine all aspects of the issue, including annual hunting quotas.

The present hunting limit is 150,000 animals a year, 60,000 each to the Canadian and Norwegian sealing vessels and the remaining 30,000 to landsmen. The quota reductions are long overdue. In the 1950's alone the harp seal population in the western Atlantic was halved from 3,300,000 to 1,250,000 animals. At the present rate the harp seal will be reduced to precarious numbers by the end of this century. Despite the reduction of hunting quotas and the ban on large sealing vessels the production of pups has declined. In February, Dr. David M. Lavigne, a zoologist, and Nils. Oritsland, a physiologist, counted pups in the western Atlantic Ocean at less than 200,000, an estimate one-fifth that of the 1952 count.

As the harp seal migration season approaches again, hundreds of thousands of mating adults will take up winter residence to produce yet another generation. Their success or failure will depend upon human reason and awareness of a valuable but threatened natural resource. The harp seal population cannot survive continued harvesting by big factory ships. Perhaps the landsmen, under strict rules, may still go out on the seasonal hunts. But the government must work fast to provide reliable figures to the hunter and conservationist alike, because the survival of the harp seal hangs in the balance.

Crab Orchard dips endangered; shower yourself, politicians

By Anne Heinz
Student Writer

When summer heat begins to stifle Southern Illinois residents, they seek refuge at the nearest swimming hole.

And for the average person who doesn't own a backyard pool or belong to a club, this hole is most likely a lake, such as Crab Orchard.

Thousands swim, sun-bathe and picnic at the Crab Orchard beaches every year. Gerald Gill, a biologist for the Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge, says that in 1975, visitors spent 196,200 activity hours on the Crab Orchard Lake beaches.

Seemingly a world away from the pollution and wildlife woes of Lake Michigan, visitors can count on the fresh, dazzling waters of rural Southern Illinois. Or can they?

Maybe not, contend lake officials. Wayne Adams, Crab Orchard Wildlife Refuge manager, said in a meeting Saturday that one of the three Crab Orchard beaches (Carterville, Lookout Point and Crab Orchard) will probably have to be closed before the end of the summer because of stepped-up bacterial count.

Gill says the pollution problem is caused by effluence from residential sewage treatment plants and bacteria off of unshowered swimmers.

The outdated treatment plants in Marion, Carterville and Carbondale need to be renovated. However, cost-sharing funds have not yet been allocated by the city or federal government. Renovation might not be completed for two years. But can the lake last that long?

The other polluters are swimmers who haven't showered before entering the water, thereby carrying a certain amount of pollutant into the lake.

Gill says that in a restricted area such as Carterville Beach, the pollutant from swimmers can be as significant as the effluence from the sewage treatment plants.

Adams has requested $200,000 for shower and toilet facilities for the Crab Orchard beaches. U.S. Rep. Paul Simon, D-Carbondale, said he would try to obtain funds for the facilities.

What can community residents do to register their concern and help the lake?

Write a letter to Simon or State Rep. Bruce Richmond, D-Murphysboro. Urge renovation of the sewage treatment plants and installation of shower and toilet facilities.

And even if you aren't a letter writer or can't spell yet, there's something you can do. Come May when the beaches open, shower facilities (if approved) probably won't be installed yet. However you can ease the pollution levels by showering before leaving home for the beach.

Crab Orchard Lake is a vital organ for the area's wildlife, vegetation, nature buffs and recreation enthusiasts. Do what you can to help a worthy cause.

Bailey blew it for Patty with weak, shallow deceptions

By F. B. Koplowitz

"Cinque's prophecy is coming true," wailed a chastened F. Lee Bailey. Papa Randolph muttered "Oh Christ," and tugged once more at his shrunken hip pocket. And Patty, she just sat there with her head in hands and a Mona Lisa smile on her face. Patty was found guilty, and the nightmare, seemingly at an end for us in the peanut gallery, grew worse for Ms. Hearst.

F. Lee Bailey blew the Patty Hearst case because he obscured rather than clarified the many perplexing aspects of Patty's conversion to Tania and her year spent underground. There are a lot of ifs to the Patty Hearst tale, but the trial of the century did little to clear the air.

—If Bailey had coached Patty to tell what really was going on while she was supposedly locked in a closet for 59 days, if she had told of her increasing alienation from society coupled with an increasing sense of identity, and yes, love, for her abductors, instead of that Korean brainwashing and rape nonsense.

—If he had asked Patty to tell the jury the mental processes she went through that led to her decision to rob the Hibernia Bank instead of that bunko about joining the SLA or die.

—If he had had her purge her memory of what went through her mind when she made the Tania tapes instead of telling the jury someone else wrote the scripts.

—If he had allowed her to explore why she felt the safety of the SLA had become synonymous with her own after S.W.A.T. had killed the S.L. A. core in that L.A. bonfire instead of trying to get the jury to believe it was "reflex action" that made her fire at Mel's Sporting Goods.

—If he had allowed Patty to tell the truth about her year and a half with the SLA instead of whitewashing it by saying she spent the time with her "head in a fog."

And finally, if he had asked her how she felt about the whole crazy ordeal in retrospect, if she still felt the SLA was a viable organ of social change, if she still believed, not merely in a "radical woman's perspective," but also in robbing banks, and whether or not she felt she may have made a mistake, then maybe the jury would still have found her guilty. But guilty of making a mistake in judgment, while under severe and extraordinary stress, rather than of willfully robbing a bank.

But as it was, Bailey gave the jury nothing to grab onto except a succession of shallow deceptions, and in the end, the jury took only twelve hours to convict Patty Hearst, as much for what they didn't understand about her experience as for what they did.

If there is one redeeming aspect to Bailey's defense, it is that he hasn't, yet, revealed the names of the people who aided and abetted Tania and company while they were hiding from the feds. Bailey allowed Ms. Hearst to take the fifth 42 times, allowing her to withhold that kind of information, which he acknowledged was detrimental to the defense.

It's doubtful Bailey was concerned about protecting anybody's privacy. Maybe he's holding that as a bargaining card to play at a later date so she can cop a plea and sing before a grand jury. More likely, however, is the possibility that the SLA was no closer to George Orwell's underground than Jack Scott's brother was to the CIA.

Patty will next be sent to L.A. where she will stand trial with her former comrades Bill and Emily Harris for the shootout at Mel's Sporting Goods and the kidnapping of a young man. Future trials and tribulations for Ms. Hearst include other bank robbery charges, one in which a woman was killed, as well as probable appearances before grand juries that will want to know what she learned about the underground.

Hopefully, for Patty's sake, Mr. Bailey will launch a more truthful defense in future litigations. It's obvious that it's going to take more than a "super lawyer" to save this babe from the wolves.

Anti-Israeli slogans won't fool them

To the Daily Egyptian:

So here we go again—the umpteenth round of the SIU version of the Middle East debate. I guess it's not amazing, or surprising, to hear the same old Arab propaganda—as well rehearsed as it is.

Omar Harb gave us a wonderful little speech in the March 23 edition of the Daily Egyptian. But not surprisingly, his words were the same re-hashed crap we've been hearing all along. Harb and his comrades seem to love the rhetoric, poetry, and finely carved lines of their misguided propaganda.

I'm getting pretty damned sick and tired of hearing "Zionist liars," "racist Zionist," "Hitler-like murderers." Harb, why don't you and the rest of your friends here at SIU come out from behind the shield, supported by your sympathizers at the Daily Egyptian, and say what you're really trying to say.

Your anti-Israeli, anti-Zionist slogans will not fool us, no matter how you try to disguise them. Whether it comes from the P.L.O., Al Fatah, Black September, Arafat, Terzi, or Assad—the words are all the same anti-Jewish lines my people have heard for the last 2,000 years.

You had best recognize us, because if you've read your history books, you will find that no adversary of ours has ever survived—all of the enemies of the Jewish people have perished: Egyptian, Roman, Crusader, and Nazi.

Israel is the Jewish peoples national homeland. Zionism is the Jewish peoples national liberation movement. We invite you to be our friends in our country. Though Palestinians cry for the return of their country, it is useless. Palestine no longer exists. It was deserted nearly 28 years ago by your people.

God had chosen the Jews to be a "light unto the world." We have taught all of the great civilizations of history the beauty of knowledge. Now, after 2,000 years of wandering, God has brought His people home. We have tried to teach the world; we have wandered in the world; we have suffered in this world. Now, once again, we the Jewish People—Israel—live in this world. And it will be people like myself—Zionists—with the help of God, who will insure that our national homeland will remain free for us to worship, work, and live.

The Jewish people will never again bow to the sword of anyone, Mr. Harb, nor to your words, or threats. Your people surround us on three sides, with our backs to the sea, but we will not be forced there. May I remind you, Mr. Harb, Jews don't like to get wet, and we'll do anything to stay dry, except surrender our home.

Silent vigil

To the Daily Egyptian:

On Saturday night, March 27, at Shryock Auditorium, a dance group from the Soviet Union will perform. Our Hillel at Southern Illinois University will be sponsoring a silent vigil at that time to highlight the persecution of Jews and the restrictions put upon them in the Soviet Union.

As president of Hillel, I would like publicly state that we are not opposed to cultural exchanges and in no way wish to interfere with Saturday night's performance. All we ask is that other concerned people in the Southern Illinois University community join with us in giving the dancers a welcoming message, "Let My People Go."

The oppression of Jews in the Soviet Union is a documented fact and we hope that our protest vigil will get the message back to Moscow that we are concerned.

Abolish tenure practice

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Job security—is it in question for university professors and instructors across the nation? It certainly is and all because of incompetent administrative decisions being thrust upon academic freedom and excellence.

Tenure procedures were designed to protect faculty members from unreasonable firings after completing a six-year probationary period, although it actually starts at the eighth contract year. The alternative to tenure is the "terminal notice" and must be revealed to the faculty member, leaving one year for appeal or another position to be sought.

been protection for those faculty members who have finally earned the right to speak their political views without fear of reprimand. If a university is so conservative that it cannot leave open the freedom of expression for intelligent individuals, the institution should be condemned.

Educators should all join for an attack against tenure, for it provides them with no benefits. It is neither protection nor is it permanent. The administrative tide rolls in every time an individual is up for tenure and it is not quality that they base their decision on.

The alternatives to tenure are numerous. Whether all state universities join together in the same alternative or not is not the issue, the important thing is that tenure be abolished and abolished quickly.

"Quality of teaching and dedication to students need not be measured by column inches."

The practice of tenure should be exempt from all university functions, since it has already proved itself to be unworthy of its development. The firing of 104 teachers at SIU and similar firings at other universities are proof enough that "financial exigency" has no sympathy.

Being denied tenure is not a reflection of the faculty member's ability, intellectually or educationally. The rejection is a reflection of an administrator who sees failure because of lack of publication by the faculty member. Irony speaks for itself in that the educators, who shape the lives and futures for thousands of individuals, are being paid for one purpose and promoted for another. Quality of teaching and dedication to students need not be measured by column inches, buried between journal cover pages. Research is great and we could not and profit without it, but doing good research takes time and extensive investigation. If this is how all educators must spend their time, something is going to have to give way. The personal achievements of faculty members in their efforts to survive will result in a classroom atmosphere that is lacking, both for the student's gain and the teacher's reward of doing the job he or she was hired to do as well as possible.

Arguments for and against tenure have been afire, and it is time that they all be dissolved. The arguments for tenure are as flaccid as the procedure itself. Many are against tenure because they want to bring in new and innovative figures. Yet, when the SIU budget squeezed 104 teachers off their payroll, it was the youngest members that went, in several departments. It has also been said that tenure has

Some universities that have abolished tenure contract their faculty members on a year-to-year basis. Others contract on a five-year basis. The best of these alternatives is to have evaluations yearly, by students and faculty to determine appreciation of the individual for his or her contributions.

Job security should be determined by the job itself and how well that job is carried out. Enriched and liberal education needs to be endorsed by superior educators to make for a more credible and desirable future for faculty and students.

Graduate student gathers data from ancient Indian settlement

By Sue Fraley
Student Writer

The original businessmen in Southern Illinois probably wore buckskins instead of blue business suits and smoked peace pipes instead of fat cigars.

These prehistoric businessmen had little in common with today's variety except for a manufacturing complex where they made implements and tools.

The Mill Creek manufacturing complex is an area of both study and vocation for Bill Ganzer, an SIU graduate student in anthropology with a specialty in archaeology.

Ganzer was recently hired by Alexander County to collect information about the prehistoric occupations in the area. Alexander County is located in Southwestern Illinois, near Cairo.

Indians in the area manufactured hoes, spades and knives from deposits of chert or flint, Ganzer said from around 500 A.D. to 1300 A.D.

Alexander County includes an area where the Indians would quarry out residual deposits of chert, Ganzer said. Chert is usually found in dark gray nodules mixed with chalk and limestone. The nodules were manufactured into the objects by "flint knapping" pieces of material to obtain the shape, Ganzer explained.

"The stone hoes were attached to handles by gum resins, or by being lashed with pieces of sinew or vine," he added.

The artifacts he collected so far are surface collections. "We're not doing any digging yet," Ganzer said. The continuation of the project rests on administrative decisions. But present plans include the inauguration of a museum for the items they hope to excavate, Ganzer said.

When asked if his job had any dangers, Ganzer said "no more than crossing the street." He said, copperheads are often encountered when climbing foothills.

Collecting and analyzing the finds usually yield rewarding information to the geologist, but an excavation last year in Grand Tower was an exception.

Press council to meet Thursday

The University-Community Press Council will hold a meeting at 4 p.m. Thursday in the General Classrooms Building Room 108.

David N. Bateman, temporary council chairman, said council members will make up any suggestions, criticisms or comments they have received.

The council will also discuss its operating procedures concerning the handling of complaints. A date for the following meeting will be established at Thursday's meeting.

Ganzer was with a group from SIU conducting a study which included investigating some old buildings. A small building attached to an old Post Office aroused their interest because it had a comparatively new concrete floor, Ganzer said. The group decided to see what was under the floor so they removed the concrete.

Under the concrete was a layer of rock, dirt, sand and broken bricks. Ganzer said the group cleared the rubble to find a layer of trash which included a few old spoons and a lot of bones. The bones, he said, indicated the building was once used for butchering.

The group removed the layer of trash and found a floor of huge old limestone blocks. Ganzer said the size of the blocks caused the group to consider whether to continue to excavate. Individual blocks measured up to 32 inches long, 16 inches wide and eight to 16 inches thick.

The archaeologists decided to remove the blocks but found nothing.

If the Grand Tower excavation could be described as an archaeologist's nightmare, by comparison the Mill Creek complex is sure to be an archaeologist's dream if approval to excavate is granted, Ganzer said.

POLLUTION CONTROL

CHICAGO (AP)—More than $195 billion will be spent by American industry on water pollution control equipment over the next decade, according to Ecodyne Corp.

The firm said the amount represented three times the total 1975 Gross National Product of The Netherlands.

Confections plant will produce one million chocolate bunnies

CHICAGO (AP)—To Jack Zachary, Easter bunnies are a family affair and he will have one million of them ready for this year's late Easter, April 18.

Zachary says his confections plant tops the country in producing form-foil chocolate Easter bunnies—the kind formed in foil moldings on centrifugal force machines. Three months ago the firm's production lines began turning out 18,000 of the bunnies daily to be sure to have enough at Eastertime.

"There will be no price increase this year because of sugar chocolate costs and the decline in sugar prices after the sharp increase late in 1974," said Zachary, whose father formed the company in 1950.

Zachary's form-foil bunnies come in three sizes, ranging from six inches to 14 inches tall.

They carry such names as Engineer Ernie, Rapid Robert, Fireman Fred, Bernie Big Ears, Kuddly Karrie, Shoppin Susie, Chocolate Charlie, Bunny 'n Clyde and Peter's Cabbage Patch.

"I use my children's names for some of them. We have three, Susie, Robert and Karrie, and we get Charlie from my wife, Charleen," said Zachary. "Bernie is named after a salesman."

The names of two other of his children, Janinie and Kathy, are on other chocolate novelties. "The name of our sixth child, Patrick, is yet to be used," said Zachary.

Sales are made to distributors and directly to retail customers in all 50 states, Puerto Rico and Canada, Zachary said.

Political science students to study effect of large industry on small town

By Edgar Tate

Student Writer

Analyzing the effect a major industry has on a small, rural Southern Illinois town is the course objective of an SIU professor and his students.

Osbin L. Ervin and his "Advanced Political Analysis" class, Political Science 544, are studying changes a coal gasification plant will bring to New Athens.

Located 17 miles southeast of Belleville in St. Clair County, the community of 2,000 faces no major changes according to Ervin.

"A lot of new faces will be in the area for a while," he said. "During construction—later this year—900 to 1,000 construction workers from the Belleville and St. Louis area will be employed."

Expected completion is late 1980 or early 1981. By then 300 to 400 New Athens residents will work at the plant, said Ervin.

Ervin has divided his class of 21 graduate students into different committees: economy, land use, environment, revenue and services.

Each committee will submit a paper and a class presentation of their group's work to Ervin for their grade. Each student will write and present part of his or her committee's total project.

Despite expansion, the town plans no new services, Ervin said. "But police protection, fire protection, sewage treatment and more county roads will have to be expanded," he said.

A sample questionnaire will be given to a random cross-section of New Athens residents soon, asking the residents what they feel the effects of the plant will be.

"We're not trying to come out with a finished, polished product, but it will be an educationally rewarding experience," said Ervin. "Besides, New Athens Mayor Benkin just may use it."

Scientists considering steps for massive flu immunization

WASHINGTON (AP)—Some of the nation's leading scientists Wednesday were considering recommending an unprecedented campaign to immunize every American against a potentially lethal new flu virus this winter.

President Ford called various scientists to a meeting at the White House after hearing concerns expressed by federal health experts that new swine flu virus might kindle another worldwide epidemic similar to the 1918-19 outbreak that killed 20 million persons, including 500,000 in the United States.

November, a scale that has never been tried before in this country.

It would cost the government an estimated $130 million to $140 million to produce enough vaccine for everyone and to get it into the hands of doctors this fall.

Drug manufacturers have said they need an answer before April 1, and that even then it will be a race against time. They currently produce about 20 million doses of vaccine annually for protection against the common B and A flu strains, but those vaccines are virtually worthless against the swine flu virus.

Concerns first arose after a flu outbreak at Ft. Dix, N.J., that killed a 19-year-old Army trainee Feb. 4 and spread to about 500 other personnel on the post.

That was the first documented evidence that swine flu virus can be transmitted from person to person, although it had been suspected for some time. Isolated cases in the past have been traced to persons living on farms with pigs, which frequently suffer from colds and influenza.

Flu experts suspect that a swine flu virus was responsible for the 1918-19 worldwide outbreak, called a pandemic, because the antibodies against it were found frequently in the blood of persons living at that time, an indication that they had been exposed to the virus and built up a natural immunity to it.

The federal effort would require at least 48 million fertilized chicken eggs to grow the virus, and many thousands of new vaccine guns to administer the flu shots.

There is no proof that a global outbreak of swine flu virus will occur next season but it is safer to gamble with dollars rather than human lives, the President's health advisers said.

Adding to the concerns is the fact that, in the past, virtually every time a new flu strain appeared, it eventually spread around the globe.

SIU police seek information from anonymous caller

SIU Security Police are trying to track down an anonymous phone caller who reported a hit-and-run car accident in Parking Lot Six Monday evening.

Detective Dave Bunton said the caller reported at 11 p.m. that he saw a vehicle hit a parked car. The accident caused $300 damage to the car owned by Karen H. Szewczyk, 24, Rt. 2. Officials said they want to talk to the caller and get more information.

Bunton said the caller is in no trouble, but the Security Office would appreciate it if he would get in touch with them again.

Statesman, editor to speak at Midwest press seminar

Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill., and John Gardner, editor of the Southern Illinoisan, will be among the 16 speakers at the Mid-America Press Institute, to be held in St. Louis March 26 to 28.

The topic of the three-day seminar is "Political Reporting in an Election Year" and will feature several editors and reporters from Mid Western newspapers.

W. Manion Rice, executive secretary of MPI and an SIU School of Journalism faculty member, said this seminar is "a continuation of a series of seminars by the MPI for the benefit of area newspapermen."

The seminars are usually held four times a year, Rice said. He said that students and faculty members are also welcome to register for the seminar.

Director: Pier Paolo Pasolini
Cast: Franco Citti, Ninetto Davoli, Angela Luce, Pier Paolo Pasolini

Pasolini, after his previously austere subjects, turns to the earthy ribaldry of Boccaccio. There are several episodes, each a comic gem in itself, and each illustrating a different facet of the complex of human sexuality. The director continually appears and reappears as the painter Giotto, personifying the central metaphor of the transformation of imagination into reality.

Student orchid growers find hobby, provide valid research

By Diane Pintaazi
Student Writer

What is it that women wear, men buy and no '50s prom is complete without? Orchids. With or without this in mind, two SIU students' interest in the care and propagation of these plants has blossomed into an extensive research project that involves both the Botany and Plant and Soil Sciences Departments.

"I became interested in orchids after seeing pictures of them in books," said Robert Pumpfrey, a junior in agriculture. "My mother got me a few plants from a friend of hers, one of the three commercial orchid growers in Chicago. A few of the orchids have died in the learning process, but most of them are in the botany greenhouse now."

Pumpfrey's window on Mae Smith's fourth floor is crowded with plants ranging from strawberries, peppers and spiderplants to his orchids, but a breathtakingly beautiful purple and white Miltonia orchid dominates the window.

The Miltonia's blooms can last as long as two months, said Pumpfrey. He grows not only Miltonia, but also the famous corsage orchid, Cattelyas hybrid, a large lavender-colored flower; the miniature yellow Dendrobium and the aromatic yellow Lycaste.

"Girls love my orchids, and my fourth floor neighbors are really jealous," Pumpfrey added.

Pumpfrey transferred to SIU in fall, of 1975, "because of the excellent Botany Department."

Paul Thomas, a junior in botany, also transferred to SIU in the fall. Thomas wanted to do a project similar to Pumpfrey's. "We met because of our mutual interest in plants," explained Thomas.

"Robert interested me in orchids. He knew about the plants, but he needed the general knowledge that I had in aseptic technique and microbiology, so we got together."

Thomas had served as a teaching assistant in microbiology at Harper Community College before coming to SIU.

Their research involves identical orchid propagation by meristem tissue cloning, the taking of the growth tip or bud of an orchid and placing it in a sterile nutrient solution which is then placed on an agitator. The result is that the tissue cells increase in number, but remain undifferentiated (the basic stock cell). This serves to reproduce the identical plant (basic cell stock) and allows them to continue to grow into large masses of cells, which will eventually become a plant seedling, he said.

"As the growth continues, we cut these up into smaller sections and keep them undifferentiated—genetic clones will be reproduced; that is, identical plants, said Thomas. "After a nine-month period, theoretically, one billion genetically identical orchid plants will be reproduced, eliminating the cross-pollination mess."

Pumpfrey and Thomas plan to place the undifferentiated cells aside for six to seven months and in three or four years, the plants will mature and flower. Pumpfrey said that this process has not been successfully reproduced on orchids at SIU yet. Meristem has been done successfully on carnations, geraniums and mosses.

The two said they are also using this technique to hopefully replace the high mortality rate of seed growing. Orchid seeds in nature need fungus in their system for nitrogen (food), but the fungus takes over one-third of the plant, killing seedlings. The mortality rate is 100 per cent.

"You would only get two to five plants from this method," said Thomas. "But in sterile conditions you don't need fungus. The seeds will develop like the meristem tissue technique."

"You know orchids are quite sensitive, they need exact amounts of sunlight, humidity, heat...this experience will help us in other fields of plant physiology. It forces us to learn more chemistry and math," laughed Pumpfrey.

Thomas added, "Because of our problems, we got much information from pathologists and embryologists, and that increased our view of botany."

Besides being students and researchers, Thomas and Pumpfrey are "Plant Doctors" at Mae Smith, making free housecalls to residents with plant problems. Thomas also grows plants for pleasure and botany studies.

But when it comes to their research, Thomas quipped, "Robert has the plants and I've got the books."

Timeless river travelers sculpture Bicentennial park

METROPOLIS (AP)—A pair of counter-culture refugees is voyaging through America's heartland on one of the more unorthodox celebrations of its 200th birthday.

They're aboard two tiny tin sailboats, embarked on what they say is a personal search for freedom.

In their wake, they are leaving this rural Southern Illinois town a reminder of their odyssey: a red-white-and-blue concrete park.

"It's for the bicentennial, just on our own," said Robert Cox as he waited for a batch of cement to set. "The whole thing, I think, is just dedicated to the ideas of freedom."

Cox, a 45-year-old artist, and Tom Bosman, his 24-year-old Dutch traveling companion, said they began planning the trip 11 months ago in Amsterdam. On Oct. 14, Cox said, they pushed off from Rushville, Ind., on the East Fork of the White River and made it as far as this Ohio River town before putting in for the winter and re-provisioning on New Year's Eve.

People in Metropolis are used to seeing all sorts of strange things floating past on the river, but Cox and Bosman are something special.

There have been other long-haired wayfarers and some, like Cox, have sported Indian head bands. But none of the others wore wooden shoes.

And none came sailing in on brightly painted 12-foot vessels fashioned from the roofs of wrecked vans.

But what cements their celebrity is that concrete park. After scouting around, the voyagers selected a campsite on a mud flat beside a riverfront concrete factory. Cox talked the plant manager out of his leftovers. He wanted to sculpture a gift for the people.

Gradually a 100-foot expanse of terraced cement decorated with a flower bed, triangular arches and river flotsam has taken form. Cox envisions a concrete teepee and whatever else comes into his mind. A local businessman he said, has offered some red, white, and blue paint to finish the work with the proper spirit. He may add some other colors too.

"It'll be a park," Cox said, "just a kids' place. And derelicts traveling the river like us can use it too. It'll be here for a long time."

To sustain themselves Cox and Bosman depend on handouts and try to supplement them with income from sales of art and leatherwork.

Recently they've taken up gun refinishing as a sideline. What they can't sell before they leave, they say, they'll burn.

When they've decided the park is complete they figure on sailing for Cairo and catching the Mississippi downstream. Cox has in mind building a fast, ocean-going sailboat with a saucer-shaped hull, somewhere, sometime in the South. Beyond that, plans are a little vague.

"We like to do something different every day," Cox said. "I think that's what art is."

"Tomorrow never comes, you know," he said. "Today is your day. Tomorrow will never be here so don't make any plans. Time is really nothing. We just want to enjoy ourselves. We just want to be free."

Quality you can trust...

Texas Instruments electronic calculators. More math power for your money

You need math power, no matter what your major. And TI puts more math power at your fingertips more economically.

How can TI give you greater value? The answer lies beneath the keyboard. There, major technological advances have achieved greater and greater power at lower and lower costs.

TI-1200 and TI-1250...
real quality in low-cost calculators with replaceable batteries.

The TI-1200 gives you percentages at the touch of a key, has an automatic constant in the four basic functions for performing repetitive calculations, full floating decimal, and 8-digit display. You can carry it to class or lab in pocket, purse, or briefcase...$12.95*. (AC adapter optional.)

The TI-1250 does everything the TI-1200 does—plus a full-function, four-key memory. You also get a change-sign key...all for $18.95*. (AC adapter optional.)

great looks, great performance. And it's rechargeable.

A crisply styled portable with percent key, full-floating decimal, automatic constant in the four basic functions, and an easy-to-read 8-digit display.

The TI-1500 slips neatly into pocket or purse, operates on rechargeable batteries and AC...$29.95*.

Why TI calculators are quick and easy to use.

All TI calculators described here use algebraic entry; This allows you to key-in a problem just as you would state it...in the same natural manner in which you think. No system is easier to master.

TI-2550-II... a versatile powerhouse with memory.

This eight-ounce, 8-digit portable does percentages automatically, and has a four-key memory system.

Science keys, too. Reciprocals, squares, square roots, and a reverse to invert fractions and recall next-to-last entry. Automatic constant in all four basic functions and a two-place or full-floating decimal. Rechargeable batteries and AC...$49.95*.

SR-16-II...
multifunction scientific calculator.

This portable wizard will not only whip through mere arithmetic but also through complex technical problems. Solves sum-of-products or quotient-of-sums without re-entering intermediate results or rewriting the problem for sequential operation.

Special function keys include square root, square, reciprocal, raise a displayed number to a power (y^x), raise "e" to a power (e^x), logs and natural logs.

Automatic constant, independent memory, full-floating decimal, and scientific notation. Replaceable batteries (AC adapter optional)...$39.95*.

SR-50A and SR-51A...
slide-rule calculators.

The SR-50A solves complex scientific calculations as easily as simple arithmetic. Algebraic entry system with sum-of-products capability.

The SR-50A performs all classical slide-rule calculations—roots, powers, reciprocals, factorials, common and natural logarithms and their inverses, trigonometric (sin, cos, tan) and hyperbolic (sinh, cosh, tanh) functions and their inverses—all in full-floating decimal point or in scientific notation. The versatile electronic memory allows data to be stored and retrieved or added to memory...$79.95*.

The SR-51A performs all classical slide-rule functions, then goes on to statistical functions. Such as mean, variance, and standard deviation. Factorials, permutations, slope and intercept. Trend line analysis. And there is a random number generator as well as 20 preprogrammed conversions and inverses. The SR-51A allows decimal selection of from 0 to 8 places and has three user-accessible memories...$119.95*.

A lasting investment in the future, a TI calculator will not only serve you well as you work toward your degree...but will stay with you as you pursue your career. See them wherever quality calculators are sold.

Leo Kottke concert tickets sell out

By Mike Mullin
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A "hall-full" of customers bought out all the available tickets in two and one-half hours Wednesday morning for the upcoming Leo Kottke concert.

The concert is a benefit for the Southern Illinois Chapter of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML). Any profit from the concert will be used by NORML to provide funds to pay speakers and to print articles dealing with NORML's goals.

NORML is also working on the possibility of having the concert simulcast over WSIU-TV, Ch. 8, and WSIU radio, 91.9 FM. "We're still working on the simulcast," Buzz Talbot, NORML regional coordinator said, "We couldn't really begin making plans until we sold out the concert." According to Ron Harris, finance director of the group, NORML went along with normal ticket sale policy. "We realize that we had a limited amount of tickets and a large demand," Harris said. "There are 23,000 students at SIU and Shryock only seats a little over 1200. The ticket office told us that the policy for Shryock events was to limit sale at four tickets per customer.

"We had some trouble getting to use Shryock in the first place," Harris said. "You can't rent Shryock. Your group must have all expenses and artist fees paid in advance before you're allowed to use Shryock."

NORML didn't have the necessary funds, so the group approached Student Government, Graduate Student Council and SGAC with the idea of having these groups help fund the concert, he said. According to Harris, Student Government agreed to contribute a third, Graduate Student chipped in with a third but SGAC denied to help. Doug Diggle and Jim Wire, Student Government officers then took the lacking funds from their contingency fees.

Arch Griffin, Student Center business manager, verified Harris' statement. "When we get events in Shryock," Griffin said, "it is a long established policy to limit sales at four per customer. The group sponsoring the activity can deal with the situation any way they please, but we always remind them of this policy."

NORML is also sponsoring the showing of the film "Acapulco Gold," at 8 and 10 p.m., Sunday and Monday in the Student Center Ballroom D. Admission for the film is $1, and all proceeds go to NORML. The film is a documentary featuring the harvesting and growing of Marijuana, in North America and its sale throughout the United States.

Talbot said the film was shown last year and more than 1100 filled the Student Center Auditorium to see it.

Giant City eighth grade class to produce two dramatic plays

The Giant City School eighth grade students will present a production of Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew" and "Macbeth" at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the school on Giant City. Blacktop Lynn Bradley, drama teacher at Giant City School and director of the play, said the production is "a culmination of three years of drama activity." The school received funds through a Title 3 grant from the Elementary and Secondary Education Act in 1973 for drama and arts programs.

The play is also one of several eighth; grade money-making projects for their trip to Kentucky. Lake this spring, she said. About 46 people have been working with the show since the October starting date.

Main leads in the one hour and 20 minute show are Steve Grenfell as Macbeth; Diana Borowitz as Lady Macbeth; Carol Runion as Tate in "The Taming of the Shrew," and Brian Hall as Petruccio in the same production.

Bradley said she chose the two plays because she "wanted contrast between one of Shakespeare's great comedies and one of his great tragedies. I also had the talent in the school to do both shows."

The play will be done in full costume with correct music, props and scenery, she said. Costumes were designed and made by Susan Fawley, an eighth grade homeroom teacher at the school. Also assisting in the production was Jim Barter, an eighth grade homeroom teacher, she said.

Tickets for the Thursday evening performance are 75 cents and are available at the door or from cast members. The play is open to the public and about 200 tickets are still available, Bradley said.

'Cuckoo's Nest' topic of mental health meeting

In connection with the newly-released film "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," the SIU Department of English is sponsoring an interdisciplinary symposium 8 p.m. Thursday in Davis Auditorium, Wham Building, called "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest: The Novel, The Film, and Problems of Public Mental Health Care."

Topics planned include the novel's underground emergence as a major work of protest fiction during the 1960's, problems with converting a popular novel into a successful film and ethical considerations relating to electro-shock treatment and other types of mental health therapy shown in the novel and film.

Symposium participants will be Brockman Schumacher, associate professor and coordinator of the Rehabilitation Institute and former director of the mental health program at St. Louis City Hospital; Richard Blumenberg, associate professor in the College of Communications and Fine Arts and scriptwriter and Henry Dan Piper, professor in the English department, author and critic.

The public is invited to the free meeting.

Summer theater group sets evening auditions

Auditions and interviews for the Summer Playhouse '76 are scheduled from 7 to 10 p.m. Monday in Davis Auditorium, Wham Building and Tuesday in the Morris Library Auditorium. The try-outs are sponsored by the theater department and the School of Music.

Auditions are open to all interested people and sign-up sheets and scripts are available in the theater office, Communications Building 1032.

Twenty performers are needed to act and sing in the two musical productions "Godspell" and "Little Mary Sunshine." Twelve performers are needed for the Summer Playhouse Children's Show "The Incredible Jungle Journey of Fenda Maria."

Tuition waivers, stipends and graduate assistantships are also available to SIU students on a need basis. Up to 12 hours of academic credit on either the undergraduate or graduate level may be received for participation in the playhouse program.

SIU dinner theater to feature food, fun

Mary L. Heeren
Entertainment Editor

The SIU Cabaret Dinner Theater featuring the Little Egyptian Sandbag Players, will reopen for another dinner and show from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. April 2 in the Old Main Room, on the second floor of the Student Center.

This second production by the troupe will again feature short skits, musicians and commercials, said Charles Beck, sophomore in theater and business manager of the group.

He said tentative plans include a parody of the television series "Courtship of Eddie's Father," an "authentic" Spanish Execution, a parody of the Tomorrow Show with an interview with the Archbishop of Albania, and a "Salute to Beef," a spoof of the American bicentennial.

Beck said Leslie Green, a sophomore in theater and Glen Sabatka, a junior in radio and television will be soloing during the

MFA exhibition opens Thursday with dual artists

The Masters of Fine Arts (MFA) exhibits of Joe Gower and Joe Milosevich will open with a reception 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday in the Mitchell Gallery, Home Economics Building.

Gower, a MFA degree candidate, will exhibit 16 pieces featuring works in both wood, ceramics and a combination of both.

Milosevich, also a MFA candidate, will exhibit about 21 pieces consisting of mixed media assemblages and constructions encompassing aspects of drawing, painting and sculpture. A few drawings will also be included.

The reception and exhibit are free and open to the public.

program. He said other entertainment is planned, but not definite.

Other cast members for the production are Jim Belushi, a senior in theater; John Parch, a junior in theater and artistic director of the group; Debby Condon; Steve Rosen, a sophomore in cinema and photography; Dan Cooney, and Susan McGrath. Frank Altschuler, Carbondale Community High School student, is replacing Bernard Schwartz at the piano. Schwartz, a senior in psychology, left the show following the February 20 and 21 production because of medical reasons, Beck said.

Tickets for the show have been lowered to $6.50 for SIU students and $7.50 for the general public, said Mike Blank, administrative assistant to the Student Center director, and producer of the show. Tickets will not be available until next week, but reservations can be made now at the Student Center.

The ticket will cover the cost of the entertainment, a buffet and drinks, he said. The buffet will include roast beef, mostaccioli with meat sauce, tuna salad ring, egg plant parmesan, buttered peas with pimiento, melon boat and fresh fruit, tossed salad, relishes, lemon chiffon cake, sherbet, rolls and butter.

Entertainment costs between $125 and $150 for each performance of the group, he said.

The first production, Feb. 20 and 21 attracted only about 50 people per night, he said. "We lost money on the first production, but we are not out to make money, just to do a programming service."

Although no other plans are definite yet, Blank said he would like to try a "Desert Theater" or have a theme for each performance. The group is planning to present a free show in the ballrooms during the week following the Friday night dinner theater.

The Little Egyptian Sandbag Players ham it up during rehearsals for the re-opening of the SIU Cabaret Dinner Theater April 2. Cast includes Carol Prior, Terry Kunik, Jim Belushi, John Parch, Glenn Sabatka, Debby Condon,

Heart Association sponsors prevention, treatment seminar

By Terri Bradford
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
The "Heart Disease 1976" seminar will be sponsored by the Professional Education Council of the Illinois Heart Association Friday and Saturday at the Marion Holiday Inn.

Designed for physicians, nurses and medical and professional nursing students, the seminar will feature various heart disease prevention, recognition and treatment courses.

St. Louis Cardinals player Jim Hart will be the guest speaker following a 7:30 p.m. dinner. Hart will discuss watching professional football on television, or "What's a woman to do on Sunday afternoon when football's the only thing on television?"

Class sessions include a Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation course, taught by Cathy Neuman, registered nurse, Joy Goodman, trauma nurse coordinator, all of Carbondale Doctors Memorial Hospital; a session on heart sounds and murmurs using the heart sound simulator, directed by Dr. Courtland L. Munroe; recognition of arrhythmias and Nurses intervention, taught by Deborah Acree, registered nurse, of Veterans Administration Hospital, Marion and a National Hypertension Test, directed by Dr. Harold E. Elliott of Harrisburg.

Other courses are Practical Aspects of Exercise Stress Testing Equipment, taught by Bonnie Tolbert, registered nurse from Pinckneyville Community Hospital and Patient Education Material and Films in Cardiovascular Disease, directed by Ruth Dunn, registered nurse with the Veterans Administration Hospital in Marion.

Dr. Rolf M. Gunnar will lecture on diagnosis and treatment of angina pectoris. Jean Yokes, registered nurse, will discuss cardiovascular standards for nursing care.

The effects of exercise on selected coronary risk factors will be reviewed by Dr. Larry W. Gibbons and Dr. James A. Hunter will discuss surgery for prevention of strokes.

Categorization of hypertension will be discussed by Dr. Ross M. Tucker in a Saturday session.

Magazine class to print issue portraying area

By Scott Caldwell
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A two-part magazine will be printed in early May as part of the course work in Journalism 360, Magazine Production and Design. One part will deal with the Arts and Crafts in Southern Illinois and the other will profile Southern Illinois personalities.

The course is taught by Wendell Crow, journalism instructor, but Crow said that he is trying to stay out of the production as much as possible.

Crow said that the production is a lab exercise for the class so that they can experience the production problems and ideas that have been discussed in class.

The project has no funding but various people and organizations have donated time and materials to the class.

WSIU-TV will air program on Academy Award nominees

A program examining this year's Academy Awards nominees will be aired at 8 p.m. Saturday on WSIU-TV Channel 8. David Daly, graduate student in cinema and photography, will be host for the program.

The program, entitled "Preview: The Academy Awards 1975," will examine the films and individuals nominated in the major categories. Numerous film clips and music from the nominated features will be

The magazine is a pilot project for what could become a regular laboratory magazine for the journalism school, Crow said.

The two magazines will be printed in one volume but will be reversed. A person would start reading one side and when he reached the middle of the volume would turn the magazine upside down and start over again with the other issue, Crow said.

"This way each magazine will have its own cover, and the center spread will be devoted to the people in the class and their philosophies in the magazines' production," he said.

Even if the magazine does not accomplish anything else, it will give valuable experience to the people in the class, he said.

presented:

Guests on the panel will be Peter Bukalski, chairman of the Department of Cinema and Photography; Don Zirpola, film maker; and Joe Ruddick, film distributor. A "man-on-the-street" survey of area residents' will also be shown.

Films nominated for Best Picture are "Jaws," "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," "Barry Lyndon," "Dog Day Afternoon" and "Nashville."

Elks to sponsor physical evaluations

The Carbondale Elks Lodge, in cooperation with other Southern Illinois area lodges will hold a clinic for physically handicapped children at Doctor's Memorial Hospital on March 30, from 9 a.m. until noon.

Children with orthopedic problems, including those who have been examined at previous clinics and those physically handicapped in any way, are invited to attend for evaluation.

In addition, Elks member Paul Dvorshock said the Elks are trying to expand the children's program to reach more people.

"I must emphasize that the clinic is open to everyone, not just seriously handicapped children," Dvorshock said. "We hope parents will bring their children in for evaluation of any physical problem, whether it be for an eye problem or an ordinary physical."

Because the clinic is open to anyone under 21, Dvorshock said the opportunity could be used by many SIU students to come in for an evaluation.

The evaluation will be a run-down of the problem and a recommendation for further treatment if necessary.

The clinic services will be held in the Family Practice Center of the hospital, located in the southeast corner of the east wing of the first floor. Off-street parking facilities are located northeast of the hospital.

The Elks have been providing such clinics for the past 48 years. During that time they have provided medical care, operations, hospital care, prosthesis and physical therapy when needed.

Law School hires environment prof

The study of the environment has been "generally booming" in legal education in the last five years, said Brian Mattis, chairperson of the SIU School of Law Faculty Personnel Committee.

In order to meet this increased interest, the law school has hired Robert Beck, author of numerous law journal articles about the environment and co-author of a book about water rights. He will join the School of Law faculty in August as a full professor, Mattis said.

Beck is one of a handful of professors who has been in the field for more than five years, Mattis said.

Beck will probably get involved with the environmental problems of Southern Illinois as he specializes in such areas as water rights, landscape planning and coal mining, he said.

Beck, who also teaches legal history, has been on the faculty at the University of North Dakota Law School since 1962, Mattis said.

After receiving a law degree from the University of Minnesota in 1960, Beck practiced law in St. Paul for two years before joining the law faculty at the University of North Dakota. He also was an associate professor of law at the University of Minnesota from 1965-66. Currently he is a member of the Rocky Mountain Mineral Law Foundation.

Mets look to manager for help

This is one of a series of previews of National League teams.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—A lot of fans figured the New York Mets would spend the winter looking for some new faces. What they found was a new face to look at all the old ones.

Joe Frazier—the baseball manager, not the boxer—has taken over the reins of a team whose mediocre hitting failed in 1975 to support its excellent pitching... and whose front office failed to remedy that in the off-season.

Frazier managed five pennant winners in 10 years in the minors, including last year's championship team at Tidewater, the Mets' International League farm club. He succeeds Yogi Berra, who was fired last August, and Roy McMillan, who managed the club on an interim basis for the remainder of the season.

Whether Frazier will succeed where Berra and McMillan failed is another matter.

During the winter trading session the Mets lost one of the few consistent ones they had. Outfielder Rusty Staub, who became the Mets' first player to drive in more than 100 runs in a season—he had 105—was dealt to the Detroit Tigers for veteran pitcher Mickey Lolich.

New York figures it has found a solid fourth man for the starting rotation. The 35-year-old Lolich, the top left-handed strikeout pitcher in major league history, joins right-hander Tom Seaver and southpaw Jon Matlack and Jerry Kosman.

But unless a couple of youngsters live up to the promise of last year, or unless a few veterans do, an about-face from previous years, those four pitchers will have their work cut out for them. They'll have to outpitch the opposition because the Mets won't outsize it.

Last year only three teams allowed fewer runs than the Mets—but only three scored fewer runs. That's why New York never really got it going in 1975 and wound up at 82-80, tied for third place with St. Louis 10½ games out of first.

Seaver won his third Cy Young Award last year with a 22-9 record, the most victories in the league, an NL-high 243 strikeouts and a 2.38 earned-run average. Matlack was 16-12 with a 3.38 ERA and Kosman was 14-13 and 3.41. With the Tigers, the losing club in the majors last year, Lolich suffered through a 12-18, 4.77 season.

The New York bullpen appears sound with Bob Apocada, Skip Lockwood, Ken Sanders, Tom Hall and Rick Baldwin. Apocada was the Mets' top reliever in '75, although he missed part of the season after being hit in the face by a batted ball. Lockwood and Sanders, a pair of mid-season acquisitions, came on strong late in the year. Still, they never had a sure-fire fireman the way they did when Tug McGraw was on the scene.

The only sure slugger the Mets has is left fielder Dave Kingman, who hit a club-record 36 home runs last year. But had only 88 RBIs and a .231 average—and his glove left something to be desired. Del Unser hit a solid .294 and was excellent with the glove in center.

Mike Vail tied a league rookie record by hitting safely in 23 straight games. But he won't take over Staub's job in right until he has recovered from a February ankle injury. Until then, Kingman may be moved to right and John Milner will be in left. Or the Mets may keep Kingman in left and give right field to rookie Billy Baldwin, a throw-in in the Lolich deal.

Ed Kranepool and Joe Torre will share first base. Kranepool, who generally bats only against right-handers, is the only remaining member of the Mets' inaugural 1962 squad. He had his best season in 1975, hitting .323. Torre, who played third base last year, will face the southpaws. He had his worst season in '75 with a .247 average.

Felix Millan at second base and Bud Harrelson at shortstop are slick fielders but neither has ever really threatened to beat fences with his bat. The same goes for Wovne Garrett at third. He's never lost his job in the past seven seasons—but he's never really owned it, either. This year he might be displaced by rookie Roy Staiger, the International League's RBI leader last year.

Jerry Grote is still one of the best defensive catchers in the business and one of the best at handling pitchers. Last year he handled his bat well, too, hitting a career-high 295.

TWO STARS NOW IN NL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The National League office points out that the league's batters may have added trouble next season. Southpaw Mickey Lolich has been added to the Mets and right hander Doc Medich will be with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Lolich won 12 games and completed 19 for the Detroit Tigers last season.

Robinson to run club Indians get full-time boss

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP)—The biggest things the Cleveland Indians have going for them this year bossing their new manager. He's no longer a novelty—and unless he changes his mind—he's no longer a player.

Frank Robinson, in his second year as the Indians' field boss, announced his intention after last season to retire as a player and concentrate on running the club.

He has hinted he could change his mind about playing, but he figures on being a better manager and having a better team than the one which finished fourth in the American League East last year.

"I'm really looking forward to this season because I'm excited about the personnel we have here," he says.

Last year was a circus. I can understand the media reacting the way they did to me being the manager, but it put a lot of pressure on me and on the players.

"This year, at banquets during the winter, they've been introducing me simply as the manager of the Cleveland Indians, not as the first black manager. Maybe we'll be able to concentrate on getting ready for baseball this year."

The Indians filled some holes over the winter with trades that brought former Cleveland catcher Ray Fosse back into the fold along with young catcher Ron Pruitt, right-handed starter Pat Dobson, reliever Stan Thomas and utility infielder Larvell Blanks.

Gone with those same trades are catcher John Ellis and second baseman Jack Brohamer, both of whom were benched by Robinson last season after starting the year as regulars, and outfielder Oscar Gamble.

"My toughest job will be to pick 10 pitchers from the guys on the staff," said Robinson. "But that's a good problem to have. We're taking 19 pitchers to spring training. All of them have pitched in the big leagues—and can pitch in the big leagues, in my opinion."

He said Dennis Eckersley, the 1975 American League Rookie of the Year, should win "between 15 and 20." And Fritz Peterson, the team's top pitcher in 1975, "should do as well as last year."

Eckersley was 13-7 with a 2.60 earned-run average. Peterson came on to win 10 straight games after the All-Star break, finishing 14-8 with a 3.94 ERA.

Robinson also mentioned returnees Rick Waits, Jim Bibby, Roric Harrison, Don Hood and Eric Raich before stopping himself with, "Don't get me into names. I'll miss somebody and he'll get mad."

Robinson said pitching and defense will be Cleveland's two greatest strengths. When asked about weaknesses, he said: "We don't have any."

Although he overstated his case, the Indians' lineup does appear to be set. Boog Powell and venerable Rico Carty will alternately handle the first base and designated-hitter chores, as they did last season when Powell hit .297 with 27 home runs and 86 runs batted in and Carty .308 with 18 homers and 64 RBIs.

If Robinson changes his mind and unretires, he would limit his appearances to pinch-hitting and DH roles. Hampered by a shoulder injury now mended by surgery, Robinson hit only .237 in 1975.

Up the middle, Cleveland will be strong with defensive-minded Fosse behind the plate, Duane Kuiper at second, Frank Duffy at shortstop and Rick Manning in center field.

Flanking Manning will be George Hendrick and Charlie Spikes. Third baseman Buddy Bell hit .271 after coming off knee surgery last winter, slamming the ball at a .352 clip in the last two months of the season.

"We're good enough to win. We're as good as any team in our division," Robinson insists. "The New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox improved themselves with trades, but we helped ourselves where we need help the most."

Last year we were one of the better clubs in baseball from June 21 on. It's just too bad we were 15 games behind Boston when we started."

Sailing Club regatta set

By Scott Caldwell
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer
The Southern Illinois Collegiate Sailing Club (SICSC) will be hosting its Saluki '76 Spring Regatta on Saturday with ten schools scheduled to attend.

"This is going to be one of the biggest things the club has ever tried to put together and it's going to be a fantastic time," Bill Wright, club commodore said.

"The competition will be some of the strongest that we'll run up against this spring and we are really going to have to do some tough sailing in order to score some points," he said.

Among the schools scheduled to attend are University of Wisconsin at Oshkosh, Purdue, Iowa State, Millikin, Xavier, Notre Dame, Northwestern, Marquette and the University of Illinois.

Eight of the schools are in the top twenty of the Midwest Collegiate Sailing Association (MCSA) and the U of I team will be competing for the first time, Wright said.

"Anyone that wants to come out and watch the racing is welcome to. Club members will be on hand to explain the technicalities of what's going on out there," Wright said.

The regatta will be run according to MCSA rules and scoring will be on a low point system. Each school will be sending two two-man teams to compete and trophies will be awarded for low point skipper in each class as well as for the overall top two schools.

The club has land on Crab Orchard Lake just south of old route 13 and owns seven 14-foot sloop rigged boats.

"With the club owning only seven boats and inviting ten schools to race we had to ask five of the schools to bring their own boats," Wright said. "It could give an advantage if one of the boats is faster than the rest, but the teams trade boats after every race.

"Ideally we will be able to run 22 races during the day so that each team has a chance to race in each boat. This will eliminate any prejudice in the results because of boat differences."

The SICSC meets on Thursday at 9 p.m. in Lawson 131 and teaches sailing to beginners as well as hosting social events.

"This would be a good time for a beginner to join because the club will be active over summer and anyone who joins now and gets their skippers rating will be able to sail during the break between spring and summer semesters," Wright said.

Prize money for the U.S. Women's Open golf championship to be played in Springfield, Pa., this summer will be $60,000, up $5,000 over last year.

Problems hit gymnasts again

By Rick Korch
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer
An upper respiratory infection interned gymnast Linda Nelson at the SIU Health Service Monday night, creating yet another obstacle to the women's gymnastic team as they prepare for their third straight national AIWA championship.

After qualifying for the 1976 championship at Saturday's regional meet, Coach Herb Vogel thought he finally had his team together following a six-week series of injuries and ailments by every team member.

"I have no idea when she (Nelson) will be back," Vogel said Tuesday. He plans to leave with the team next Tuesday for the championships, and is hoping that she will be recovered by then to be able to practice.

After recovering from an ankle injury, Nelson and teammate Denise Didier, who had just recovered from her own respiratory infection, raised the SIU qualification score to 107.40 at the Region 5 meet.

Two weeks earlier, Pat Hanlon and Diane Grayson qualified the team to the championship in the state meet.

"The regional qualification meet was one of our better meets," Vogel had said afterwards.

Although all four gymnasts advanced to the nationals on the basis of their all-around performances, Vogel said that Southern hasn't yet seen a full four-event effort from its four All-American candidates.

More important than winning the regional meet, was to "buy time-time to get well, heal and prepare" for the national championship, Vogel said.

The day after the meet, the team was back in Carbondale beginning a two-week conditioning program.

The team as a group has been asked to drop 24 lbs. during the first seven days of the program, Vogel said.

When the Salukis travel to Boone, N.C. April 1 to 3 for the championship, Vogel said their objective will be to hold on to the top of the mountain.

And if Nelson recovers from her bout with illness by then, it will be a complete team effort.

SIU swimmers looking to top 10 NCAA finish

Eight SIU swimmers led by Jorge Delgado will attempt to better last season's 17th place finish in the NCAA Championship Swim Meet at Providence, R.I., Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"If we really get hot, we might crack the top 10 nationally," Coach Bob Steele said.

Delgado will be competing in three individual events and will probably swim on all three Saluki relay teams entered in the meet. The senior from Guaiquil, Ecuador will swim in the 500-yard freestyle, 200-yard freestyle and 200-yard butterfly. His 1:49.79 in the butterfly is the second best time in the country.

Dave Swenson and Mike Salerno, All-Americans from last season will be competing also.

Swenson will swim in the 1,650-yard freestyle and the 800-yard freestyle relay. Salerno will swim in the 100 and 200-yard backstroke and the 400-yard medley and 400-yard freestyle relays.

Junior Dave Boyd is slated to swim in the 200-yard individual medley and on the two freestyle relays.

A pair of freshmen will also be depended on to take up some of the scoring slack. Bryan Gadekan is entered in the 1,650-yard and 500-yard freestyle events. Greg Porter will swim the 400-yard individual medley and the 200-yard butterfly. Porter may also swim the butterfly leg of the 400-yard medley relay if Coach Bob Steele decides to hold Delgado out of the relay.

Junior Rick Fox and Senior Paul Schultz are entered in the relay events only. Schultz will swim the breaststroke leg of the 400-yard medley relay.

Benched outfielder returns to lineup

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Two-year starters do not often find themselves sitting on the sidelines pulling out splinters, but just ask John Hoscheidt—he knows how it feels.

Hoscheidt has roamed the center fielder pasture for the baseball Salukis ever since the departure of Joe Wallis three years ago.

After the first game of the spring trip to Florida, however, Hoscheidt, a senior from Henry, was benched by Coach Itchy Jones in the second game of SIU's opening series with Miami. He sat out seven innings of the nine-inning game.

"I was playing bad," the 21-year-old centerfielder said lucidly. "My head just wasn't right but I was ready to go physically. Coach let me have a day to sit down and look at things from a different view.

"I sat out those seven innings and really saw things differently," Hoscheidt said. "Then I got in the game, got a couple of hits and made a good defensive play. That got me going."

"John was benched down there."

Saluki trackman nears magic number in javelin

By Mark Kazlowski
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

Ten feet.

By improving that much with his javelin throw, SIU sophomore Bob Roggy would be invited to the Olympic trials for a chance to compete in the 1976 Summer Games.

The defending Missouri Valley Conference javelin champion has already bettered the NCAA qualifying mark by more than 10 feet and is shooting for the Olympics.

Friday, in only his second outdoor meet of the season at Northeast Louisiana, Roggy threw the Javelin 250-foot-4 inches to break his own SIU record.

Now he has his eyes on the 260 feet necessary to be invited to the Olympic trials.

Coach Lew Hartzog thinks Roggy's possibilities with the javelin are unlimited. "If he doesn't hurt his arm, I would say there is no limit to what he can do this year," the coach said.

"He used to have problems snapping

Jones said, "but he's been playing good since then."

Hoscheidt will be in center field when the Salukis take on the Oklahoma Sooners Friday and Saturday in four games at Normal.

"Since I've been back in the lineup, I've been playing some of best ball. I have been hitting hard and mostly in drives. I'm having fun hitting second," he said.

Hoscheidt, one of the best singles hitters on the team and one of the quickest on the basepaths, is hitting behind leadoff man Bert Newman.

"For my size (5-foot-11, 175 pounds), the second spot is good for me and I can run," Hoscheidt said. He stole 18 bases last year. Newman stole a school record 36.

"My average won't be as big because I have to do more things with Bert in front of me. Things like bunting, sacrificing and hitting behind the runner. And I'll get to run more because I won't be behind any of the big guys like Hunny (catcher Frank Hunsaker). When I get a hit, Bert will already be on second or third."

his arm on his throws and he lost distance. He has corrected this problem and I look for him to go 260 with decent weather fairly soon."

The decent weather could be this weekend at the Florida Relays. A year ago Roggy won the freshman-junior college division of the relays. This year he will compete in the university division.

Roggy will be one of 19 Salukis traveling to Gainesville to compete in the relays. His early season form caused Coach Lew Hartzog to rate the javelin thrower's chances as good this weekend.

Roggy credits graduate assistant Al Schoterman for the vast improvement last season. Roggy's best last year was 235 feet. The already muscular spear-chucker said the weight training program Schoterman developed had helped him.

Other than that, Roggy considers himself largely self-coached. He began throwing the javelin as a sophomore in high school in Holmdel, N.J.

"I worked on my own watching other throwers," Roggy explained.

The method paid off as he took third place in the state championship and had a high school best of 203 feet. That brought the coaches to his door.

Roggy said he decided late in the high school season that he would go to school. He chose Southern because "I heard it was pretty good in track. It's a different atmosphere than New Jersey."

Besides the added offensive responsibilities Hoscheidt must bare this season, he also has to be the leader in the outfield. Junior Jim Reeves is the likely starter in left field this weekend and senior Wayne Rueger may start in right if sophomore George Yukovich has to catch.

"I have to do a lot more talking with Jim and Wayne out there," Hoscheidt explained. "I try to help them out as much as I can. I make sure they know what ground I'm going to cover because the centerfielder is suppose to take whatever he can."

All the Salukis better have their communication lines clear this weekend. Oklahoma has been the Big Eight champion for the last three years.

Could Babe fill Johnny Bench's shoes?

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

If Babe Ruth was at spring training today, he couldn't even make the major leagues.

Many people would say "pshaw" or something even more verbally potent at such a statement. After all the "Babe" is practically a deity in baseball, beer belly and all.

This old argument of whether the old-time ballplayer is better than the money-hungry athlete of today is a favorite of fans.

Advocates of the Catfish Hunters and the Johnny Benches insist that their heroes have to contend with many conditions an old timer couldn't have handled. These modern day pitfalls are of course terrible travel conditions, artificial infields and better pitching.

Back in the old days, ballplayers traveled on trains, played cards for hours between games, and had plenty of time between dates to relax.

The infields of today because of their tendency to turn grounders into bullets have forced slower ballplayers into early retirement.

I firmly believe the pitching is better today especially in the bullpen. In the olden days of yore, pitchers viewed relief duty as the first stop on the way down to Keokuk, Iowa.

However the older fan has some valid ammunition

Shots
by Scott

in these arguments. After all modern day ballplayers are more interested in wielding a hair dryer rather than a ball bat (just compare the averages).

Modern ballplayers are viewed by as money hungry athletes who would be in a mumbletypog league if the money was better.

It's the age of the specialist and today's baseball player, who only bats against left-handed pitching on cloudy days, wouldn't have lasted two weeks against Dizzy Dean's fastball, so say the baseball traditionalists.

As in most arguments there is no true answer. After all wouldn't these athletes have changed their style if they would have been transplanted to another era?

Wouldn't have Dizzy Dean adapted to the ways of modern baseball if he would have pitched in the last decade? After all, Dean and all of these major league players were athletes and would have probably changed their style in order to fit in with the modern team.

Probably there would be many players today who couldn't have played both ways back in Gerhig's time. But I believe that Fred Lynn, Reggie Jackson, and Pete Rose could have made the transition easily. This can also be said for Ty Cobb, Honus Wagner and Mo Berg.

Since the topic of the day is baseball let me make my "Burnside Dartboard Pics" of the season.

Despite my feelings that the White Sox will "leg" it to the top with their new uniforms, my choices of league winners have to be different.

My selection in the National League goes to the Los Angeles Dodgers, Messersmith or no Messersmith. The Dodgers have the best pitching staff in the league and should win all the marbles.

In the American League, because of the pitching weakness of Boston, I can't go along with a Red Sox selection. Here again because of pitching my choice has to be the New York Yankees. With the addition of Pittsburgh hurlers Ken Britt and Dock Ellis, the Yankees have an excellent chance of getting on the championship again.
