Tanner back in council fight despite threat to withdraw

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

City Council candidate Marvin Tanner is back.

Tanner said he would drop from the April 4 council race if an article concerning revocation of his probation for driving under the influence was published.

After the article was printed in an area newspaper, Tanner said he changed his mind.

"I decided not to withdraw from the election," Tanner said.

But according to Illinois State Board of Elections regulations, Tanner never officially left the race.

Jackson County Clerk Robert Harrell said the official withdrawal deadline was February 7.

"The candidate in question has not officially withdrawn," Harrell said.

Tanner racked a 54-vote total in the February 28 primary election to advance to the April 4 general election with incumbents John Yow and Keith Turnhorn and newcomer Carl Flowers.

He appeared before Judge William Schwartz March 15 after failing to pay court costs and commence or complete intermittent alcohol treatment by October 1988, according to court records.

Schwartz ordered Tanner to enroll in alcohol treatment within 30 days or face additional sentencing.

"I'm cooperative," Tanner said. "I'd like to get off probation."

Tanner said he spent his 30 days in jail last year and was discharged from treatment after missing several meetings at the Anna Fellowship House, 800 N. Main.

'Fest' alcohol plan nearing completion

By Miguel Alba
Staff Writer

A proposal to allow alcohol at Springfest is in the final stages of being worked out by members of the Student Programming Council and the administration.

Under the University alcohol policy enacted in August 1988, organizations or individuals who plan or anticipate the use of alcohol at their event on campus must submit a form requesting approval for alcohol consumption.

If the request is denied, this fact must be included in any advertisement for the event.

The University president or a designated person may approve the sale, delivery, possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages by people of legal drinking age on campus.

Before this policy went into effect, the University had no clear-cut position on alcohol use on campus, Don Castle, University Programming Office graduate assistant, said.

The proposal was originally rejected by Vice President for Student Affairs Harvey Welch, who was appointed by President John Guyon to deal with the matter.

Welch said he rejected the proposal because it was vague and not consistent with University policy.

"We have to limit consumption to those who are legally eligible to consume alcohol," Welch said, adding that the area where consumption is allowed must also be controlled. "We have to announce it and control it."

After reviewing the problems with the original proposal with Welch on Monday, SPC officials will submit a revised proposal to Welch today.

The plan includes three designated drinking areas marked by signs, one located near each of the three stages. No alcohol will be allowed in front of the stages, which include the Shryock Auditorium steps, Browne Auditorium steps and the Free Forum Area stage.

Communist party suffers defeats in first multi-candidate election

MOSCOW (UPI) — Maverick Boris Yeltsin won a landslide victory Monday over his Communist Party-backed opponent in the country's first multi-candidate parliamentary elections that produced a string of embarrassing defeats for the party across the Soviet Union.

Yeltsin, a former junior Politburo member and a Moscow party boss who was sacked for his attacks on party privileges 18 months ago, made a stunning political comeback by capturing 89.44 percent of the votes last Sunday against Yevgeny Brakov.

While Yeltsin was embarrassing the party in Moscow, nationalist candidates in the Baltic republics of Lithuania and Estonia who campaigned for greater autonomy also scored triumphs, setting up what may be the greatest challenge to party domination in the new legislature.

The first official tallies released by the National Election Commission and carried by the Tass news agency also showed the mayor of Moscow failed to win a seat and the Communist Party boss of Leningrad was dumped.

The elections were billed as the centerpiece of President Mikhail Gorbachev's ambitious reform drive, representing the first time Soviet voters have had a real choice since the founding of the communist state in 1917.

Wind storm delays spill cleanup; oil spreads unchecked on Sound

VALDEZ, Alaska (UPI) — After three days of perfect weather, Day 4 of the biggest oil spill in U.S. history began Monday with Exxon promises of an all-out assault on the ecological disaster, but a wind storm delayed clean-up and further spread 11 million gallons of oil over Alaska's Prince William Sound.

High winds grounded the planes that were to bomb the spill with chemical dispersants. Winds prevented setting portions of the slick afire. Wind-whipped waves stopped skimmers from scooping up oil. Winds even caused the 987-foot tanker, Exxon Valdez, to shift slightly on the reef where it went aground Friday south of Valdez, according to the Alaska Department of Environmental Conservation. Winds also blew away oil containment booms surrounding the disabled tanker.

Wind gusts blew pieces of roof off the Valdez airport terminal, police said.

Turbulence grounded planes Monday morning, including a

Hostages taken in Guatemalan prison

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Army troops Monday surrounded Guatemala's largest prison where inmates held hundreds of Easter visitors hostage following a violent escape attempt that left at least seven people dead and many wounded.

Police said 532 people, most of them women and children who had been visiting relatives at the Pavon prison Easter Sunday, still were held captive. Among the hostages were seven firefighters, including their commander, Alejandro Giammatei, police said. Negotiations were under way to end the uprising, but no progress had been reported.

Army troops surrounded the prison, 10 miles east of the capital, to prevent the escape of the approximately 1,500 inmates.

Three prison guards and four prisoners were killed in the uprising, police said.

Police said the riot started Sunday afternoon when some 150 inmates broke into the prison's armory and seized a large number of rifles. As they approached the gates in an attempt to escape, they were met by prison guards who opened fire with machine guns, police sources said.

The prisoners then took as hostages the hundreds of people who were visiting relatives and friends.

President Vinicio Cerezo ordered government troops to avoid further bloodshed and the prisoners allowed firefighters to enter the prison. Guatemala's largest, late-Sunday to remove the dead and some of the wounded.

Radio reports also said there were many wounded, but of Albanian rioting persists for fifth consecutive day

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UPI) — Thousands of ethnic Albanians angered by the loss of local autonomy rioted for a fifth successive day throughout Kosovo Province Monday, killing two police officials and wounding four other people in the worst outbreak of violence in eight years. Two of the wounded also were police officials.

Latest Lebanese fighting enters third week

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Fighting between the Christian-led army and pro-Syrian Moslem forces entered the third week Monday, and a radio broadcast said tens of thousands of Moslem families fled the capital for southern Lebanon. After nightfall, violence picked up as the rival forces traded mortar and howitzer fire, prompting hundreds of families in east and west Beirut to rush to shelters.

Reagan testimony for North trial axed for now

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge Monday rejected Oliver North's bid to make Ronald Reagan the lead defense witness at his Iran-Contra trial, but left open the prospect that the former president would be summoned later. U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell said there was "insufficient time" to decide by Friday whether Reagan's testimony would be so important to the case against the former White House aide to require his presence on the witness stand.

Defense official pleads guilty in fraud scheme

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (UPI) — Defense consultant William Parkin, hospitalized 10 days earlier for an apparent suicide attempt, pleaded guilty Monday to charges he schemed to bribe a Navy engineer who helped Parkin's industry clients on contract awards. Parkin, 65, who received a medal in 1963 when he retired as a senior Pentagon procurement official, hung his head and spoke softly while entering his plea to three counts: conspiracy, bribery of a public official and wire fraud.

Longest hunger striker quits fast on 38th day

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — The longest participant in a hunger strike among political prisoners received communion in his hospital bed, breaking his fast on its 38th day Monday in anticipation of his negotiated release from nine months in detention without charge. Sandile Thusi, 26, a black researcher at the University of Natal and community activist, accepted communion at his bed in St. Aiden's Hospital in Durban from two Lutheran priests after deciding Sunday to suspend the fast amid signs the minority white government was ready to release him.

Bush explores use of semiautomatic weapons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Bush met with top government leaders Monday to explore possible further action to combat the rising use of semiautomatic weapons by criminals, particularly drug dealers. Alix Glen, deputy White House press secretary, described the meeting as a "wide-ranging discussion of the situation." She said the group reached no decisions and declined to predict when the president would do so.

Iran's U.N. ambassador resigns over illness

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Iran's ambassador to the United Nations, Mohammad Jaafar Mahallati, resigned his post Monday, citing illness. Mahallati, 33, had been serving as an acting permanent representative for about a year before he was officially appointed to the post last Oct. 10. The Iranian mission to the United Nations issued a brief statement, saying the ambassador "due to illness and upon the attending physician's advice, resigned from his post."

Eastern begins six-week pilot training class

MIAMI (UPI) — Eastern Airlines began a six-week training class Monday for newly hired pilots as lawyers for a crippled airline prepared to tell a federal judge why the company's union pilots should be ordered back to work. U.S. District Judge Edward Davis met with lawyers from Eastern and the pilots union early Monday, then scheduled a hearing for Thursday on Eastern's request for a court order to force its pilots to return to the cockpit.

7th Illinois Cavalry Unit stars in "Glory"

By Alicia Hill
Staff Writer

If membership in the 7th Illinois Cavalry Unit doesn't project an image of glamour, perhaps filming a movie with Matthew Broderick and Morgan Freeman does.

Three people connected with the University will appear in scenes of the movie "Glory," a Tri-Star production to be released in the winter of 1989.

John Whitlock, director of the University Museum; his son Mark, a junior majoring in museums-historic site studies; and Richard Parrish, manager of the University's supply store, General Stores, recently completed filming for the movie in Savannah, Georgia.

These men became involved with the movie through their membership in the 7th Illinois Cavalry Unit. This unit, composed of 174 members across the United States, is involved with historical reenactments, ranging from a celebration of Robert E. Lee's birthday at a St. Louis restaurant to the portrayal of Afghan rebels in Rambo III.

The 7th Illinois Cavalry, commanded by Karl Luthin in Springfield, Illinois, is the largest unit of its kind in the country. The members of the unit furnish their own uniforms and equipment, including horses, for the reenactments.

Producers frequently contact the unit for an appearance as military units in battle sequences.

"Glory," directed by Edward Zwick, recounts the activities of the 54th Massachusetts Infantry, a black infantry unit, which was severely attacked in Charleston Harbor during the Civil War.

The 7th Illinois is used in all of the cavalry scenes as both Union and Confederate soldiers. They also are shown in some hand-to-hand combat with the 54th unit.

If the movie's content doesn't draw a large audience, the casting should compensate.

Producers frequently contact the unit for appearances as military units in battle sequences.

Matthew Broderick, whose film credits include such hits as "War Games" and "Ferris Bueller's Day Off," will play the heroic Colonel Shaw, the white officer who risks execution by commanding a black unit.

Morgan Freeman, who stars in "Lean on Me," plays Sergeant Rawlins of the 54th. Cliff DeYoung, star of "FX," will play Colonel Montgomery.

"It was interesting to watch Broderick as he made the role transition from that of a teenager to a serious adult. He maintained a serious attitude on and off the set to keep himself in character," Mark said.

Other film appearances by the 7th Illinois include "The Blue and the Gray," "North and South," Parts I and II, "Alamo-The Price of Freedom," and "Rambo III."

Voters to aim city questions at candidates

By Jackie Spinner
Staff Writer

Carbondale township and City Council candidates will face-off with voters Wednesday in a forum cosponsored by the Jackson County League of Women Voters and the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce.

Questions for council candidates Carl Flowers, John Yow, Marvin Tanner and Keith Tuxhorn will begin at 7 p.m. in the council chambers, 607 E. College. The forum for Carbondale township candidates will begin at 8:30 p.m.

League Vice President Gayle Klam said the forum allows the public to create issues because "local elections rarely have burning issues."

When voters go to the polling place, they rarely know about the candidates, she added.

"A forum offers the public a chance to get to know the choices before they vote," Klam said.

Jim Prowell, Chamber of Commerce executive director, said elections would have better turnouts if the voters knew that the candidates actually controlled city streets and economic growth.

Communication key to accessible tracks

PEOPLE IN wheelchairs have difficulty overcoming many obstacles, but when one of those obstacles is a railroad track, sometimes with an approaching train, it's time for action.

The problem is not a new one, and does not seem to have drawn the attention that it should considering its seriousness.

In a meeting of the Disabled Student Services student advisory board today, disabled students who have been caught on the tracks will share their experiences and discuss possible courses of action to solve the problem.

MANY PROBLEMS were voiced by students in a meeting Aug. 5, including:

- Overpasses being out of the way and difficult to cross because of the speed bumps.

- Gaps between the railroad and asphalt where the front wheels of a chair can turn and become caught.

- Instead of taking the risk of getting stuck at the sidewalk crossing, people in wheelchairs were going out into the road, which they felt was safer, to cross the tracks on the rubberized crossing provided for traffic.

Several students told of being caught on the tracks and yelling for help as trains approached.

ONE STUDENT WAS trapped on a crossing in Carbondale and the train stopped only a short distance away while two people from the train got off and lifted the chair from the tracks.

And these types of terrifying reports have continued to come in since then.

Students decided to take action by writing to senators and representatives and contacting the city planner, Illinois Department of Transportation, Carbondale Partnership and the Southern Illinois Center for Independent Living.

So far there has not been much response from those who were contacted, and no action.

Yet City Manager Jeff Doherty said his office has not been contacted. Perhaps that would be a good place to start.

SOME DISABLED students have gone so far as to suggest a sit-in on the tracks to call attention to the problem. This seems a drastic and dangerous step to take before attempting better communication with the city government.

SIU-C and Carbondale, for the most part, have a good reputation of being accessible to disabled people. In many way the facilities are adequate, but in this particular case there is much room for improvement.

The recently constructed south overpass is designed to meet federal regulations for use by the disabled and is an alternative to crossing the railroad tracks on ground level. But it poses inconveniences with speed bumps and a location that is out of the way for many.

DOHERTY SAID that Illinois Central Railroad is responsible for maintenance of the tracks but the city could take the lead by supplying money and plans as long as the proposed upgrading adhered to railroad standards.

Those concerned with the crossings need to effectively communicate with city and railroad officials and make their concerns known, and the city and railroad officials need to listen and take action.

Gun control would be a benefit to criminals, not help problem

The anti-gun lobby has once again proven that they do not understand the issue on gun control.

In the March 22 editorial, the author states "The ease with which one can purchase an automatic weapon makes it too convenient for people with less than honorable intentions to possess them."

Automatic weapons have been subjected to federal restrictions for many years. If indeed they are easy to purchase then this is proof that gun control laws do not work.

Many years ago the people of America passed a law prohibiting the use, sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages. During the years this law was on the books people did not stop drinking and criminals got rich.

We have written laws prohibiting the use of drugs. People are using them and criminals are getting rich. Are you really so naive to believe that gun laws would work? Drug runners would become gun runners and would simply become rich.

Once again from the March 22 editorial, "Outlawing something dangerous does not mean that constitutional rights have been violated." If Purdy, a convicted and released felon, had killed those children with a butcher knife would you be willing to give up your kitchen knives? How about if he used a baseball bat?

The cartoon on the same page is an insult to any firearm owner and particularly NRA members. The NRA is no way supports or reflects the people and actions depicted.

The NRA supports putting criminals in jail. They support my right to own a firearm and your right not to own one if you so chose.

Until the people of this country take responsibility for their own actions and force criminals to take responsibility for theirs the problem of murder will not go away.

We should put criminals in jail and stop coddling them while they are there. Law abiding firearm owners are not the problem, criminals are. — Derek C. Simmons, sophomore, computer science.

SPC still negotiating an alcohol policy

The Student Programming Council is negotiating with Vice President for Student Affairs Harvey Welch to reach an acceptable alcohol policy for Springfest 1989.

A meeting of administrators, staff and SPC leaders in January left SPC with the responsibility of creating an alcohol policy that would decrease the amount of underage drinking and increase the restrictions on alcohol consumption for a more controlled event.

This is the first Springfest in which the council must submit an official alcohol request form to Vice President Welch in order for alcohol to be allowed.

This is in accordance with the new alcohol policy enacted in August 1988. President Joun Guyon or his designee, Vice President Welch, must sign the request for alcohol to be allowed at Springfest.

The changes proposed in the original request made by SPC provided that the event would be more controlled first, by separation of the Boat Regatta, allowing for an increased and concentrated police force at Springfest and shortening the amount and time alcohol is allowed on campus. Secondly, by restructuring the physical format of the event to relieve tense areas.

These changes are in addition to the ban on kegs and glass at Springfest and a full force safety campaign as used in the past.

The original request was unacceptable to Vice President Welch. He asked SPC to do another proposal and resubmit the alcohol request for Springfest at the SPC meeting on March 9.

Restricted drinking areas were discussed as an option at that meeting. The council is now working on the new proposal with hopes of submitting it this week. — Jenna Herbold, SPC special events chair.

African American cultural center would educate

The Daily Egyptian editorial staff again demonstrated its total ignorance of the essence of the struggle of African Americans (Feb. 24). The DE's attack on the proposed African American Cultural Center is just another example of the blatant ethnocentric attitudes for which the African American Cultural Centers are designed.

SIU and most of the institutions of this country have an inherent hidden agenda which heralds the accomplishments, falsely claimed and otherwise, and shortcomings of European descendants.

As a matter of fact, that defines modern racism in America. The African American Cultural Center is not an attempt to segregate but to educate. It should be viewed as a lighthouse shining a glow on a small harbor of a vast ocean. It will not light the entire ocean, but it is certainly better than total darkness.

Or is SIU, or American society for that matter, really interested in the light of truth. Certainly there are those who benefit from the suppression of truth and justice. There are those who benefit from hiding the heritage of African Americans and Africans all over the world that would give us our just liberation.

This is not a struggle that will be won by seeking altruism from the power structure of this University or country. This is a struggle for power and control of the resources that will be needed to liberate African descendants of the present and the future at SIU and world wide.

Hence, those who are diametrically opposed to this liberational ideal will use varied tactics to defeat this effort and we must be prepared to counteract all strategies. — Glenn E. Hill, senior, economics.

Opinions from elsewhere

Is the Cold War over? Moscow's withdrawal from Afghanistan only proves that the Soviets are smart enough to cut their losses in a no-win war — not that they have renounced imperialism. More revealing tests will come in regions where they and their allies have been winning, such as Central America.

Lawrence Eagleburger, the new No. 2 man to Secretary of State James Baker, has told Congress that the Bush administration will be seeking "linkage" between Soviet actions in Nicaragua and U.S. concessions on other issues. One logical goal would be an end to Moscow's delivery of military hardware to Nicaragua's Sandinistas, the value of which exceeded $500 million in 1988 alone — far more than that country's anti-communist rebels have received from Washington during their entire existence.

If Mikhail Gorbachev wants new agreements on trade and arms control, he should stop pouring Soviet-bloc weapons and military advisers into Latin America, Africa and other regions far beyond his country's borders. Washington must let him know in advance that continued expansionism cannot be isolated from other issues.

Alcohol will not be allowed elsewhere on campus for Springfest.

The plan also calls for "safety watchers," volunteer students who will walk around the event and are instructed to look for and report any hazardous situations to the police.

Welch said the "safety watchers" will be looking for obvious underage drinkers.

Jenna Herhold, SPC special events chairwoman, said students may question the new restrictions placed on Springfest this year. She said the restrictions were needed in order to have an event where the drinking was not out of control.

"We've reached a compromising position (more restrictions)," Herhold said. "I don't think it's (the students' reactions) going to be a completely positive thing."

However, Herhold said the outcome would allow for a better event.

As for his chances in the April 4 election, Tanner said "I have no chance in hell of winning but I'm going to give it a good shot anyway."

Tanner added that the city council election has been a "disgrace" because it's too easy for candidates to run.

"I know I'm not going to win," Tanner said. "My name is mud."

He added that he would not withdraw from an election to save taxpayers money.

"I want to keep this election interesting for the sake of Carbondale," Tanner said.

part in the elections Sunday for 1,500 of the 2,250 seats of the Congress of People's Deputies.

The newly created legislature will replace the Supreme Soviet, which became a powerless rubber-stamp parliament that never voted down a piece of legislation presented to it by the Communist Party Central Committee, but the system also was designed to give the Communist Party tight control.

In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said the elections were "a move in the right direction." She said they "were neither free nor democratic by Western standards, but they do represent an advance over the practices of the past in the Soviet Union."

A group of American lawyers and academics of the Washington-based International Human Rights Law Group monitoring the election said in a preliminary report the polling seemed to be conducted fairly, but warned a lack of supervision by poll controllers could in the future be open to abuse.

The results in the Baltic republics were seen as a clear rejection of Soviet attempts to fully integrate the Baltic states following their takeover by the Soviet Union during World War II.

Nationalist candidates representing the Sajudis movement in the Baltic Republic of Lithuania won 31 of the republic's 42 constituencies and are involved in second round run-off elections in eight others.

The party suffered some especially damaging defeats there, with the president of the Supreme Soviet of Lithuania, the republic's prime minister and the minister of justice all dumped by nationalist candidates running on a platform of greater autonomy and more economic independence from Moscow.

In neighboring Estonia, it appeared a vast majority of the 19 seats contested had been captured by nationalist candidates.

As results from major urban centers became public it was clear that prominent party-approved candidates were rejected by voters in several other races.

In Moscow, Mayor Valery Saitik failed to gain a seat while in Leningrad, Anatoly Gerasimov, the Communist Party boss was dumped with only 15 percent of the vote, compared to 74 percent for winner Yuri Boldyev, an engineer.

In Tomsk, Siberia, party-approved candidate V. Zorkaltsev, first secretary of the regional Communist Party Committee, failed to win the required 50 percent of the vote, even though he was running unopposed.

In the 26 electoral districts in Moscow, special runoff elections will be necessary in 11 districts where candidates failed to obtain the necessary 50 percent of the vote. The new elections must be held within two weeks.

A key aspect of Yeltsin's platform was his call for a serious look at forming a multi-party system to challenge the Communist Party's monopoly on power.

Yeltsin's campaign had been charged with emotion as party officials launched a crude smear campaign in the official media to discredit him with allegations that he was a political adventurer with a large ego and made use of the very privileges he condemned publicly.

Despite the party's attempt to sabotage his campaign, Yeltsin clearly charmed the city's 6.7 million voters swamping Brakov, a lackluster bureaucrat and manager of Moscow's Zil auto manufacturing plant.

A total of 2,895 candidates, 85 percent of them being Communist Party members, contested the 1,500 seats.

Coast Guard overflight designed to see how winds and currents might have affected the 100-square-mile oil slick, said Lt. Ed Wieliczewicz.

Gusts hit 72 mph at the airport, and were about 49 mph at Bligh Reef where the Exxon Valdez was hard aground, said meteorologist Sam Albanese.

Exxon Shipping Co. President Frank Iarossi — under attack by the governor, environmental officials and fishermen for doing so little — said, "As you know the weather became very uncooperative."

Before weather blew Exxon's clean-up promises to the winds, Iarossi said. "We're going all out using all the tools at our disposal."

"But the fact of the matter," said Gov. Steve Cowper, who declared a disaster emergency late Sunday, "is that there has been pretty much of a minimal effort so far, or at least a minimal result."

Iarossi promised to try to start clean-up effort, as soon as winds relented, but he said Exxon could no longer promise to keep oil away from beaches. He also said he could no longer guarantee that all 42 million gallons of oil still on the Exxon Valdez could be removed and the ship refloated.

Cowper said he has heard various stories about why Exxon has failed to clean the oil up, and said he ordered Commissioner of Environmental Conservation Dennis Kelso to take any action to fight the disaster regardless of cost and legal ramifications.

officials did not provide any figures.

Radio Emisoras Unidas, the only radio station broadcasting from the prison, said inmates had increased their demands to include an escape plane to Cuba, better prison conditions, security for all inmates, removal of the prison's director, a general amnesty and reduction in prison sentences.

The inmates' initial demands included speaking with Gonzalo Menendez de la Riva, the government's chief official for human rights. They claim the mutiny was mounted to protest maltreatment and lack of adequate food and other basic services. The inmates also demanded that the army troops be withdrawn.

Conrado Monroy, a spokesman for president's office, said Menendez de la Riva was to visit the prison Monday afternoon.

Interior Minister Roberto Valle met with Cerezo Monday morning and to review the inmates' demands, Monroy said.

Monroy said the demand for a general amnesty was not possible.

Eduardo Antonio Gonzalez, one of the visitors, managed to flee with his wife by hiding in the prison's chapel, where people had been saying Easter prayers.

Correction

A resolution to remove "Satanic Verses" from Morris Library shelves was voted down by the USG Senate. Four voted in favor, 15 against and six abstained.

Recognition of poison ivy first step in preventing rash

By Chris Labyk
of the Wellness Center

Leaves of three, let them be. With the onset of warmer weather, many of you will be taking to the great outdoors where you will most likely run into some poison ivy, particularly here in Southern Illinois. Your best protection is being able to recognize the plant and avoid it.

The poison ivy plant consists of three shiny, jagged leaves on a red stem and it often grows as a vine around fence posts, trees and telephone poles. Symptoms of redness, swelling, itching and clear fluid-filled, blister-like eruptions may appear hours or days after contact with the plant. The rash is produced by your body's response to the plant resin. The appearance and treatment of the affected skin is the same whether the rash is produced by poison ivy, poison sumac or poison oak. Your susceptibility for allergic reactions to poison ivy may change over time or may be dependent on your current health.

There are many misconceptions surrounding the transmission of poison ivy. Contrary to popular belief, you cannot infect yourself elsewhere; nor can anyone else catch it from you. It is not contagious. The explanation for the rash developing at different sites, at different times, has to do with the concentration of the plant resin on a particular body part and length of exposure.

The most important thing you can do after suspected exposure to the plant resin is to remove and wash your clothing and immediately take a shower. The sooner after exposure that you are able to wash off the resin, the less severe your reaction. Do not try to desensitize yourself by eating or rubbing the plant on your body; this will probably not work and can be dangerous. Just because you may not have had a reaction to poison ivy in the past doesn't necessarily mean you won't have a reaction later in life.

Persons have also been known to come in contact with the plant resin through pets and inanimate objects such as sleeping bags or blankets that were spread over a patch of poison ivy.

Wear long pants or high socks and boots when out in the woods. If you do have contact, wash well with soap and water as soon as possible after exposure and don't wear the same clothes until they have been laundered.

"Mom says the house just isn't the same without me, even though it's a lot cleaner."

Liz Corsini-Boston University-Class of 1990

Just because your Mom is far away, doesn't mean you can't be close. You can still share the love and laughter on AT&T Long Distance Service.

It costs less than you think to hear that she likes the peace and quiet, but she misses you. So go ahead, give your Mom a call. You can clean your room later. Reach out and touch someone.[®]

Housing choice is limited for some foreign students

By Fernando Fellu-Moggi
Staff Writer

International students enrolling in the University's Center of English as a Second Language don't usually get a chance to choose where they are going to be spending their first semester at SIU.

Because most international students don't have the time to visit the University before attending, CESL, where international students come to learn English, proposes living facilities to incoming students, Rita Moore, CESL, international student adviser, said.

Moore said CESL students are not allowed to live on campus, so the center proposes off-campus housing in Forest Hall, located at 820 W. Freeman street, and Freeman Hall, at 600 W. Freeman.

Moore said CESL recommends Forest and Freeman because they are University approved housing, are open during breaks and offer food service and short-term lease options.

Moore said students can move if they want to.

Yutaka Fukase, a CESL student from Japan said he was very happy with his room at Forest Hall.

Fukase, who came to Carbondale in December said his room is more quiet than his Tokyo apartment, and he was very pleased with the facilities of Forest Hall. He said he has no intention to move.

Koichi Kikukawa, also a

CESL student from Japan, said his only complaint was the food.

Kikawa said he was not used to the enormous amounts of dorm food that he compared to the delicacies of his national cuisine.

Stiles Partnership, a privately-owned corporation bought both Freeman and Forest Halls last October.

Franho Paukner, who was a CESL student last year and lived in Forest Hall in the Spring of 88, said he was not satisfied with the dorm.

Paukner, who lived in Forest for six months said the place was not only noisy, but also expensive and small.

"We were paying $300 a month for a shared room, a shared bathroom and food that wasn't that good," Paukner said.

Paukner said he had planned to move out since he had arrived, but other places do not offer short-term leases.

Paukner said besides the negative aspects there were some good points about living in the dorm.

Paukner said he had a chance to make friends with his CESL classmates, help each other with the language and interact with the Americans who lived at the dorm.

Coaches union sought by Keady

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — Purdue basketball Coach Gene Keady said Monday America's coaching fraternity needs some protection — perhaps through formation of its own union.

Citing a recent rash of dismissals, Keady said there has been too much pressure on coaches.

"It's a sad ordeal when you have to have winning mean everything," he told the Purdue Exponent newspaper.

"That's not the way intercollegiate athletics was meant to be because academics, playing hard and being good people should mean a lot, too, and they're not judging that."

"Some are. I think Purdue is, but a lot of schools aren't," he said.

Keady said coaches will discuss the situation at a meeting during the NCAA tournament finals this weekend.

"We may have to go to a coaches union," he said. "We're going to talk about it at the coaches convention this week."

Keady said he wouldn't like to see a strike by coaches, "but that would get everyone's attention and maybe we could get more emphasis on the right things."

Keady blamed increased television exposure for adding pressure to coaching jobs.

Bradley's Phil Caplis leads the league in batting at .500. Pitchers Mark Borcharding and Brian Dour, both senior righthanders, are both undefeated at 3-0.

Matt Wilson of Creighton has a 0.62 ERA through 14 2-3 innings pitched, the Bluejays' Dan Smith, a sophomore lefty, has a 1.73 ERA and only four walks. Third baseman Pat Mooney is hitting .400 and has 10 RBIs.

Illinois State's Ed Stryker, a junior righthander, won his first two games and has an 0.64 ERA in 14 innings. The Redbirds are under first-year head coach Jeff Stewart, who took over when long-standing coach Duffy Bass resigned last spring.

Underclassmen have housing alternative

By Marc Blumer
Staff Writer

University regulations stipulate that freshmen and sophomores must live in SIU-C approved housing and most of these students choose to live in the on-campus residence halls, but there is a substantial number of off-campus private residence halls and apartment complexes that are approved for underclassmen.

The approved residence halls are available to all University students, while only sophomores, juniors and seniors can live in the apartments on the list.

Freeman Hall, Stevenson Arms, the Baptist Student Center and University Hall are private residence halls.

Freeman Hall, located at 600 W. Freeman St., houses 232 students each semester. Cafeteria service is provided and a microwave is available in the lounge.

Each floor has laundry facilities and cable television is available in each room free of charge.

Stevenson Arms, located at 600 W. Mill St., houses 230 students.

The hall has cafeteria service and a central microwave. Each floor has a laundry facility, and cable television and a small refrigerator are provided in each room.

The Baptist Student Center houses 187 students and is located at 701 W. Mill St.

It has cafeteria service and a microwave and washing machines are available. There are two lounges, one with a TV with satellite hookup.

University Hall, located at 1101 S. Wall St., houses 340 students and is the last of the approved off-campus residence halls.

There are two lounges with televisions, one a big screen, and a gameroom.

Bayles, Blair and Dover apartments are located at 401-500 E. College St. Each building can accommodate up to 92 tenants.

Each apartment has a full kitchen and is wired for cable and each building has laundry facilities.

Garden Park Acres, located at 607 E. Park St., is equipped with central laundry facilities and a swimming pool.

Each apartment has a full kitchen and each of the 176 residents has the option to receive cable television.

Hyde Park and Monticello apartments, with 104 residents, are located at 504-506 S. Wall St.

Each apartment has a full kitchen and residents can receive cable television.

The Wall Street Quadrangles, located at 1207 S. Wall St., houses 460 residents.

Each apartment has a full kitchen, some including microwaves. There is a central laundry facility and each apartment is provided with an outdoor gas grill.

The Mary Margaret Manor, a rooming house for women, is located at 712a S. University Ave.

The facility has kitchen and dining areas and a lounge.

Monticello Apartments, 508 S. Wall St., is one of the several off-campus housing options for sophomores, juniors and seniors.

Short-term housing hard to locate - area realtors

By Doug Toole
Staff Writer

How easy is it for students to get a house or apartment for just a semester or two?

Not very easy, according to area realtors. Most agree that planning and thought beforehand are necessary before people are ready for their first off-campus place.

The property managers in Carbondale, who handle rental property, said there isn't a lot of short-term housing available. Most people who go to a service to handle their property want it sold, not rented, the managers said.

Beverly Rogers, sales associate at Century 21, said her firm deals primarily with sales, not rentals.

Those who are willing to rent their property often want to do it on a month-to-month basis in case someone comes along who is interested in buying the property. Not many tenants are willing to enter into such a contract, she said.

Charlie Bruce, property manager of Coldwell Banker Haven's-Budalick Inc., said he is currently handling only five student rentals. He said a house with a "for sale" sign often gets 15 to 20 calls from people trying to rent it.

Bruce said there are a number of multi-bedroom houses that are available in the area. If a student is willing to move in with others, a good house can be rented for $125 per bedroom, while a one-bedroom apartment can cost twice that.

Shirley Myer, property manager of Goss Property Management, said that two-bedroom apartments are easier to find, but many students are unwilling to give up their privacy and share a room with someone else. Goss also deals with apartment complexes, like Sahuk Hall, located at 716 S. University.

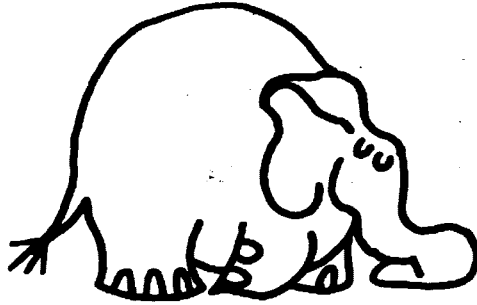

Bonnie Owen, owner of Bonnie Owen Realty Inc., said she deals with more group houses than one-bedroom apartments.

On-campus housing offers students much

By Marc Blamer
Staff Writer

Freshmen and sophomore students at SIU-C are required by University regulations to live in approved housing. However, many options are available among the facilities the University has approved for its students.

Brush Towers is on the east side of campus. The area consists of two 17-floor buildings, Mae Smith and Schneider halls, each of which houses about 500 students.

Part of the student's fees for room and board goes toward meal privileges in the Grinnell Hall cafeteria. A snack bar is located in the basement of the hall that sells sandwiches and chips during hours when the cafeteria is not open.

On each floor, there is a kitchenette with a stove, refrigerator and sink. There is also a central lounge on each floor that has a television equipped with basic cable service. In addition, each floor is furnished with a laundry facility.

Each building also has a lounge in the main lobby that has vending machines and a microwave. Across the street, there are two volleyball courts.

University Park is located south of Brush Towers and consists of four buildings. Neely Hall is a 17-floor building that is identical to those in Brush Towers. However, Boomer, Wright and Allen halls are only three stories.

Trueblood Hall provides meal service for the four halls in the area. There is a computer lab in the basement that may be used by area residents.

Married students or single students with children can choose between two on-campus living areas designated for them.

In each of the three smaller halls, known as the Triads, there is a lounge on the third floor that has cable television. Across the street, there are basketball courts.

Thompson Point, located by Campus Lake on the west side of campus, consists of 11 smaller halls similar to the Triads.

Area residents use the cafeteria in Lentz Hall. There is a snack bar located in the basement of Lentz, as well as a laundry room, weight room and computer lab.

Laundry facilities and a television lounge are in each hall.

Married students or single students with children can choose between two on-campus living areas designated for them.

Evergreen Terrace is located on the southwest side of campus and Southern Hills is located on the southeast side. Each area consists of apartments that vary in size, depending on the student's needs.

Each apartment has full kitchen facilities and are wired for cable, if the tenant wishes to receive it.

In the main office, there is a central laundry facility and a checkout for recreation equipment.

Hall councils prompt students to be active

By Marc Blumer
Staff Writer

Students arriving at the University may feel there is a lack of extra-curricular activities that are not limited to athletes or students in specific majors.

However, students residing in on-campus housing can participate in hall councils and have a direct influence on their environment.

Every hall in the University has a council. The councils are composed of floor representatives and an executive board, but the councils' organizations vary a great deal among the three major residence areas.

In Thompson Point, resident assistants recruit individuals to serve as floor representatives. Each hall elects its own executive board.

The presidents of the halls also are members of the Thompson Point Executive Council, which represents the entire area.

TPEC has its own executive board and is not open to hall presidents. Its members are determined in an area election.

In University Park, participation in the hall councils falls along the same lines as Thompson Point. However, the area organization has a structure of its own.

Neely Hall, which houses almost half of the area residents, has a hall council that works separately in programming. However, Alien, Wright and Boomer halls are organized into the Triad Executive Council.

The Triads' council is composed of the hall presidents plus four or five members who are chosen in an area election. The executive board has no regulations banning hall presidents.

In Brush Towers, floor representatives are chosen by elections. However, each hall council works independently in planning its activities and programs.

According to the coordinators of residence life in the three areas, hall councils serve two functions.

First, the councils are responsible for most of the programming in the halls. The councils, along with student resident assistants, plan and execute activities such as cookouts, academic support groups and fundraising for charities.

Working as a unit, the combined hall councils are raising money for the March of Dimes. Residents canvassed the dorms for funding and participated in hall competitions with the proceeds going to the charity. The total amount of money raised so far was not available.

This semester, two RAs from University Park founded the Resident's Achievement Society. This organization brings together students with similar interests and provides programming to assist them in their studies.

Hall councils also plan competitions and contests for dorm residents. For example, Schneider Hall recently held a competition called the Roommates Game. This contest, which was similar to television's Newlywed Game, asked participants questions about their roommates' lives and interests.

The councils are responsible for a budget they receive from part of each resident's room and board payments.

Residents pay $12 into the Campus Housing Activity Fund annually, which comes out of the room and board charge. This money is then given to the hall councils to provide programming for the dorms.

The second function of the hall councils is to give residents a voice in determining their environment.

Tenants should inspect lease and property

By Daniel Wallenberg
Staff Writer

Students can avoid problems with their roommates and landlords if they take a few precautions before signing leases for off-campus housing. Bill Hall, director of the Landlord Tenant Union, said.

The Landlord Tenant Union is an organization on campus which aids students with questions and troubles they may have with off-campus housing.

Hall said students should look for a variety of things when finding a place to live.

"Students should look for a landlord that will let them take a copy of the lease to the student attorney's office for review," Hall said. Some of the lower quality landlords tend to be overly secretive about their leases, he said.

SOME MAY let students look at a lease but will not let them take it for review, he said.

Steve Rogers, a licensed attorney at the Students' Legal Assistance Office, said supervised law students will look over leases for students and help explain what they mean.

"Most people don't read their leases and even if they did, they wouldn't understand them," Rogers said.

The office usually sees about 700 students a year with lease-related problems and questions, and the "Most people don't read their leases, and even if they did, they wouldn't understand them."

—Steve Rogers

service is free.

HALL SAID that some of the other things to look for when renting is a clean house and yard.

One of the best ways to tell if a landlord neglects their property is to check the basement and attic for accumulated junk.

Also check to make sure the windows have screens and the doors, both front and back, have locks that work, Hall said.

"Watch out for landlords that require a year's worth of rent checks up front," Hall said.

Some landlords require a year's worth of post-dated checks. Hall said he was unaware of any law that prohibited the landlord from cashing those checks before the date on the check became valid.

HALL SAID this has happened in the past when the landlord and tenants have had disputes.

Hall said to be leary of landlords or private organizations who offer their "word" as the only contract.

Hall, who also is the president of the Undergraduate Student Government, said the Landlord Tenant Union and the Students' Legal Assistance Office have written a booklet that informs students of their rights as tenants.

The booklet also provides forms that help students ensure that all roommates will pay their share of rent and utilities, ensure that accurate inventory is taken of the property, a form dealing with subleasing and a sample lease.

"WE STRONGLY recommend that every tenant does a complete inventory of the residence when they move in," Hall said. Furniture, appliances and damages to the property should all be recorded.

This is for the protection of both the tenant and the landlord, Hall said. A copy of the inventory should be sent to the landlord and another attached to the tenant's lease.

Hall said he has seen landlords charge three consecutive tenants with the same broken window.

Another good idea when several students live together is for each roommate to have a separate utility put in their name, Hall said.

THE ROOMMATE who puts all services in his or her name is at a disadvantage should one of the roommates default on their part of the bill.

Rogers said students also need to understand a common contract clause, called the "Joint and Several liability" clause.

This clause is for the protection of the landlords, and it says that any one of the names on a lease can be held responsible for the terms of the entire lease should the other people default on their share of the payments, Rogers said.

Hall said students who have a group of people, wishing to live together, should not live on property that only requires two signatures on the lease because this is a sure sign that the property is located in an R1 zone.

AN R1 ZONE is defined by the city as a residence for no more than two unrelated people, usually in a residential area.

Some of the R1 zone area is located north of Main Street in Carbondale. A more accurate map of Carbondale residential zones can be found in the USG office or Carbondale City Hall, Hall said.

Hall said that commonly, landlords know the properties are R1 but rent them to students anyway. Landlords then tell students that should a Carbondale Code Enforcement official come around, not to cooperate or let the official see the residence.

Housing near campus often more expensive

By Miguel Albe
Staff Writer

Students looking for housing within walking distance from the University may find themselves paying premium rent prices, while those who choose housing further away may be spared the higher cost.

"There's a high demand for housing near the campus," Bonnie Owen, property management specialist, said. "Fewer students have cars to drive to school."

Owen said other factors like high student renter turnover, extra bookkeeping work and shorter leases all have an impact on the amount charged for housing.

Kevin Williams, Royal Rentals manager, agrees that the higher the quality and the newer the housing, the more students will pay.

"As a general rule, housing that is closer to the campus is more expensive," Williams said. "But it's not always that way. The newness of the property, if renovations have been done and other things must be taken into account."

Patty O'Conner, Home Rentals employee, said prices for the locations the organization manages are solely based on quality.

"The prices have nothing to do with the location," O'Conner said. "It goes according to what you get."

House rent generally ranges between $150 and $250 a month per room, depending on other factors such as size and quality.

But if students are only considering the cost factor, Willis Durbin, Carbondale Mobile Homes manager, said mobile home rentals are the most economical way to go.

Durbin said the park rents homes from $155 to $365 a month. Other mobile home parks also have similar price ranges.

However, life in a mobile home does have its drawbacks.

David Fletcher, a junior in aviation management, said people must adapt to living in a mobile home.

"They're (mobile homes) basically tin ovens in the summer," Fletcher said. "But overall it's a good deal. You just have to learn to live with it."

Utilities and other additional charges should be figured into the overall picture to get a more accurate monthly cost.

Utility companies can give interested people last year's average utility bill for any particular household, trailer or apartment.

Shopping around before making a final decision is recommended by housing agents.

California home values increase

ROCHESTER, Wis. (UPI) — A Wisconsin-based management consulting firm said San Francisco and Los Angeles had the greatest increases in home market values last year as prices in both cities went up more than 30 percent.

Runzheimer International figured the cost of an average home for different areas of the country. The values were based on a 2,100-square foot 3 1/2-bath home in the suburbs with eight rooms including four bedrooms.

San Francisco was No. 1 with a 32 percent increase with Los Angeles right behind at 31 percent. Anchorage, Alaska led the areas with the largest decrease with an 8 percent fall in average prices from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, 1988.

"The home market values in the two California locations reflect the health of the economy in those areas," Wallace McDonough, executive vice president of Runzheimer's Living Cost Division.

New off-campus housing taken fast by students

By Lisa Warns
Staff Writer

A few new apartments and townhouses have been built in Carbondale during the past year, but students are claiming them quickly.

Woodruff property management has built apartments between Meadowridge Townhouses and the Quads at 606 E. Campus Drive.

The apartments are $450 per month, which includes a washer and dryer, appliances, central air conditioning and blinds on the windows.

The leases are for one year - either June to June or August to August, Woodruff said.

Other new townhouses, managed by Home Rentals, also have been built at various places in town.

Home Rentals' three-bedroom townhouses are $650 per month and two-bedroom townhouses are $525 per month, which includes a washer and dryer, microwave, dishwasher, basic kitchen appliances, central air conditioning and two full bathrooms.

For an extra $35 a month, the townhouses come furnished, Patti Bodner, management secretary, said.

The townhouses on 509 and 519 S. Rawlings have an extra 150 square feet and an additional half bath, Bodner said.

The one-year leases go from August to August.

Condoms to be placed in University housing

By Lisa Miller
Staff Writer

Ten condom vending machines will be placed in University housing before the 1989 fall semester.

The condoms will be placed in central, yet private, locations in the residence halls, Ed Jones, director of housing, said.

Jones consulted the hall council presidents from Thompson Point, Brush Towers and University Park on where the machines should be placed.

It was the general consensus of the presidents to place them in both the men's and women's restrooms on central floors of the residence halls.

"They wanted the machines put in both restrooms," Jones said. "We want to give the utmost privacy to those individuals purchasing the condoms."

The decision to place condom vending machines in the University stemmed from an opinion poll conducted by Health Services last spring, Sam McVay, director of health services, said.

Eighty-eight percent of the students wanted the condom vending machines to be placed on campus.

An additional survey indicated the students wanted the machines to be placed in the residence halls, the Student Center and the Recreation Center.

The majority of the students wanted the machines to be placed in the restrooms of the residence halls.

According to the survey, 88 percent of the students wanted the machines in the restrooms, 11 percent did not want them and 1 percent was undecided.

The condoms and the condom vending machines will be of the highest quality and they will follow the strict specifications placed upon them by the AIDS Task Force, McVay said.

The cost of the condoms in the machines is still unknown.

According to Harry Wirth, director of Service Enterprises, the cost of the machines will depend on the company they decide to purchase the machines from.

The decision on the condom vending machine company will be decided on by the middle of April, Wirth said.

Which home loan is the best?

Scrappe Howard News Service

Mortgage interest rates are now above 11 percent and still rising. In this atmosphere, housing experts say, home buyers are probably better off with adjustable rate mortgages than with fixed rates.

That might seem paradoxical, but it makes sense if you look at the economy the way most economists do.

They anticipate sharply higher rates later this year, then a slowdown in the economy and perhaps a recession. That should bring mortgage rates down.

In that scenario, someone with an ARM takes a "hit" when the first adjustment comes due but over the next several years pays a lower rate than the homeowner with a fixed-rate loan of 11.5 percent.

One-year ARMs are still being offered for 8.75 percent "teaser" rates by some lenders. Thus, on a mortgage of $100,000, you'd save about $2,500 during the first year of an ARM compared with a fixed rate of 11.5 percent.

During the second year, your costs with the ARM would undoubtedly equal or exceed those of the fixed-rate. But if we have a recession after that, your costs would drop.

Engraving property a tool against robberies

Police assist students in hindering break-ins, recover stolen property

By Mark Barnett
Staff Writer

No one intends to get robbed, but it happens. Do students have to give up hope on getting the property returned?

Not according to the SIU-Security Police. As part of the University Watch Program, which began at SIU-C in February 1985, students can borrow engraving pens from SIU-Security Police, Nelson Ferry, police community relations training officer, said.

THE ENGRAVERS can be used by students to distinctly identify the possessions as their own. Captain Carl Kirk of SIU-Security Police recommended that students engrave their driver's license number on their possessions rather than their social security number.

"The police can't get a person's social security number," Kirk said.

If an item is recovered and the driver's license number is on the item, the police can find the number in the Law Enforcement Agency Data System, Kirk said.

LEADS IS a computer information exchange system used by Illinois to file information on stolen property, missing persons, national crime information and the secretary of state's motor vehicle files. Other states can obtain information from Illinois' system and other states can access Illinois' information.

"If we stop someone who has a stolen item and it's got the driver's license number, we can enter it in the computer and within just a few seconds we can tell who that driver's license was issued to," Ferry said.

STUDENTS CAN walk into the office at Washington Square A and keep the engraver for a day, Ferry said.

"They can check out an engraver for 24 hours and put their driver's license on calculators, cameras, TVs — whatever they want," Ferry said. "It's just like writing with a pen."

FERRY URGED students to care about preventing crime, saying the action should begin with themselves. "Because of inaction and apathy, you're opening the door for it to happen," Ferry said.

The University Watch Program is part of the National Neighborhood Watch Program, Ferry said. The rationale behind the program is to create an awareness of crime among students and get them involved in crime prevention, Ferry said.

If an item is recovered and the driver's license number is on the item, the police can find the number in the Law Enforcement Agency Data System.

"WHEN YOU increase awareness of crime, you decrease the opportunity for a crime to be committed," Ferry said.

"It's hard to generate interest in safety issues when nothing happens," Steve Kirk, assistant director of housing-residence life, said.

"INTEREST COMES when something bad happens," Kirk said. We'd like to get their interest in the issue before something bad happens, he said.

Ferry said reporting crimes can lead to a decrease in vandalism, burglaries and attacks on women. "If they see something, give us a call and describe

THERESA NESLER, statistical clerk for SIU Police, said there were 44 incidents of residential burglary on campus while there were five attempts last year. In 1987, there were 63 residential burglaries and nine attempts, Nesler said.

Nesler said the highest amount of burglaries reported in 1988 was 12 in December.

IN 1988, there were 97 auto burglaries reported while there were nine attempts, Nesler said. In 1987, there were 81 reports with no attempts, she said.

Auto burglaries were highest in April and May last year, Nesler said. Police records show there were 18 auto burglaries in April and 15 in May, she said. She said the average was five or six reports.

IN JANUARY 1989, there were four incidents of burglary and one auto burglary, Nesler said. Figures for February 1989 were not available. However, in the same month last year, SIU police recorded three residential burglaries and six auto burglaries.

Off-campus housing a costly alternative

Housing bills cause problems for some students

By Richard Nunez
Staff Writer

Taking that first step away from dormitory living can be a nerve-racking and often costly experience.

Besides the cost of rent and deposit charges, students also have to consider monthly rates for food, water, telephone and gas and electric bills.

Depending on what a student is looking for, off-campus housing can be a budget-breaking experience or a cheap, no-frills adventure.

There may be a perfect home waiting in Carbondale, but sometimes students have to settle for what they can get, which may mean pitching a tent or living in a storage room for $50 a month. Believe it or not, it's been done before.

THE AVERAGE monthly rate for gas and electricity in one year, whether it is for a mobile home, apartment or house, is around $60 to $70, Allan Potts, supervisor at CIP's, said. Depending on how warm you want to be in the winter and how cool you want to be in the summer, the amount can fluctuate drastically.

One drawback to living in cheap housing is that they usually are not as well insulated as more expensive living quarters, which can mean higher electrical bills. Prepare to spend more on gas and electrical bills when living in a cheap home, Potts said.

WATER BILLS also fluctuate, depending on if the home is stocked with a washer and dishwasher, but monthly rates are usually consistent. Served by Carbondale Water and Sewerage, customers pay $1.62 per

Depending on what a student is looking for, off-campus housing can be a budget-breaking experience or a cheap, no-frills adventure.

1,000 gallons for water and $2.02 per 1,000 gallons for sewage. Customers are automatically charged for 100 gallons per day.

The average telephone bill is about $20 to $30, but does not include long distance charges, John Green, supervisor at GTE, said. Long distance phone calls can make the difference between a $30 bill to one upwards of $200 or beyond, depending on how much one likes to talk on the telephone.

The average monthly rate for grocery bills depends on the individual. The dietary habits of a student can cost as little as 17 cents a meal or as much as $28 or more a meal.

FOR 17 cents, cost-conscious students can prepare a meal out of Ramen oriental noodles, but that price does not include garnishing. For about $1, students can also make a meal from a can of tuna and a box of macaroni and cheese. Just mix the two ingredients together and you have instant tuna casserole.

For students with a gourmet appetite, Peking duck at Kahala Gardens cost $18 and a 12 ounce prime rib steak and lobster tail dinner at Prime Time Lounge cost $28.45.
