State slow to reimburse for medical care

Workers complain of late payments

By Christine Leninger
Administration Writer

SIUC employee Nancy A. Walker says late medical insurance payments have forced her to skimp on her own medical care.

Walker, a cancer survivor, said she has canceled doctor appointments to pay other bills.

"I have canceled some doctor appointments because I figured that groceries or electricity were more important," she said. "My doctor scolds me on a frequent basis, but I figure it's going to be so slow-paying that I would be getting nasty letters."

The Joint Benefits Committee sponsored a campuswide hearing Friday after members of the committee heard from employees whom they represent have been stricken with financial and personal hardships because of the state's inability to pay medical, prescription drug and dental claims in a timely manner.

The committee consists of University employees selected to represent more than 6,000 faculty, staff, civil service and retired employees and their families.

Walker, a civil service worker in admissions and records, said she spends close to one-sixth of her paycheck on health insurance, and her family is doing without health-care because bill collectors are hounding them for care they have received that the state has not yet paid.

"It's hurting my credit," Walker said. "I have credit debt under $300, my car is paid off, our truck is paid off, but I'm a late payer (on

COBA receives endowment for Asian students

By Christy Gutowski
General Assignment Writer

Two top Taiwan company businessmen have donated $100,000 in endowment funds to support the education of Asian students at SIUC.

The College of Business and Administration presented the Entrepreneurs of the Year Award to the donors, Taiwan natives Shiu-Chi Wu and partner C.Y. Kao, at its annual awards banquet Friday.

"There are some 400 students at SIUC from Taiwan and mainland China and we feel a responsibility toward contributing to their education," Kao said.

This marks the first time the award has been given to international business leaders, said Thomas Gutteridge, COBA dean.

The school was awarded the endowment because the executives were pleased with the growing relationship between SIUC and its sister school, National Cheng Kung University, Gutteridge said.

"They also were surprised of the number of international students (SIUC) has," he said.

The endowment given to the University is a significant amount, he said.

"The minimum amount to qualify for an endowment is 20,000," he said.

This year COBA honored the two international entrepreneurs whose company, President Enterprises Corp., has become Taiwan's top food and beverage company.

Shuttle crew gets clearance to remain extra day in space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — The hard-working Atlantis astronauts were cleared Sunday to remain in orbit an extra day—until Thursday—to make additional observations of Earth's endangered atmosphere.

The 46th shuttle mission originally was scheduled to last eight days with landing planned for Wednesday morning at the Kennedy Space Center.

But the astronauts have used less electrical power than expected as Atlantis sailed along with no major problems. NASA's mission management team decided to extend the flight

Oscar outrage

Gay activist groups to protest Hollywood homophobia

By Casey Hampton
Special Assignment Writer

Gay activists have declared war on Hollywood's homophobia.

As film's finest gather tonight in the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion in Los Angeles to find out who will take home the top honors at the 64th Annual Academy Awards, they will have more than one reason to hold their breath.

Queer Nation, the largest lesbian, gay and bisexual direct action group in the country, has vowed to target Hollywood's negative depiction of gays in films by shaking up the Oscar ceremonies this year.

Anne Keating, a member of Queer Nation/San Francisco, said the protest is being staged to "awaken" Hollywood's social responsibility.

"Hollywood portrays gays and lesbians as violent and psychotic when in reality it's more likely for gay and lesbians to receive the violence," she said. "We're living in a culture that's telling us we're sick, and Hollywood must take

Salukis shape up; Bradley ships out

Two wins over Braves net tourney title

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

The SIUC softball team is shaping up its style of play as the season progresses, coach Kay Brechtelsbauer said.

For the second season in a row, SIUC won its four-team Saluki Invitational. The Salukis were 4-0 for the weekend and improved their overall record to 15-11. SIUC beat Southeast Missouri State, Evansville Friday and Gateway foe Bradley twice Saturday to win the tournament.

After a tough road trip to Texas and Florida in which SIUC was 8-10, the Salukis started to show consistency in the Invite, Brechtelsbauer said.

"We hit the ball well today (Saturday) and that really helped," she said. "I think they're loosening up. They're starting to play well, have some fun and not worry so much."

She said the Salukis had been pressing during much of the season after being ranked nationally in a preseason poll.

"They tried too hard before," Brechtelsbauer said. "But in this tournament they showed some consistency with their offense, and they were more aggressive at the plate."

SIUC beat Bradley 5-2 in the championship game to claim the tournament title.

The Braves were up 1-0 before the Salukis scored in the fourth inning on two errors. Junior right fielder Colleen Holloway led off with a walk and scored when a bunt from junior left fielder Karrie Irvin turned into a triple after two throwing errors by the Bradley defense.

Irvin scored on a sacrifice fly by sophomore designated player Jenny Klotz.

The Salukis padded their lead to 5-1 in the sixth, when Klotz tripled home Irvin and sophomore catcher Laurie Wilson. Klotz then scored on a base hit from senior second

Cincinnati, Michigan make Final Four

United Press International

The Cincinnati Bearcats are still begging for respect and if they can beat the steamrolling Michigan Wolverines, they will have finally earned it.

Cincinnati and Michigan filled out the NCAA basketball tournament's Final Four Sunday — one posting a one-sided win over a team it had already beaten three times this season and the other scoring a thrilling overtime victory over the top-seeded team its region.

The Bearcats and Wolverines will meet next Saturday in the first of the national semifinal games in Minneapolis' Metrodome. Their game will be followed by what will be a highly anticipated matchup between the Indiana Hoosiers and the defending national champion Duke Blue Devils.

This year's Final Four will present four compelling stories — the bid by Duke to win its second straight crown, the sudden emergence of Indiana as a worthy national champion, the unexpected appearance of Cincinnati and the Fabulous Five Freshmen of Michigan.

And although Michigan became the lowest seeded team in four years to make it to the Final Four, emerging from the Southeast after being made No. 6 in the region by the NCAA selection committee, the Wolverines now must be considered to have just as good a chance as anyone.

"We're a good team," Michigan Coach Steve Fisher said time after time Sunday, as if that was the phrase he knew. "We're not freshmen anymore. We're a good team."

Who could argue? The Wolverines fought off an Ohio State comeback in the second half, battled their way into overtime and then dominated the extra period to produce a 75-71 victory over the Big Ten champion in the Southeast Regional finals at Lexington, Ky.

Michigan's win came after Cincinnati have overwhelmed Memphis State in the Midwest Regional title game in Kansas City, Mo., 88-57. It was the fourth time the two teams had met this year

Men first, women 3rd in Saluki Invitational

By Scott Wuerz
Sports Writer

SIUC's men's and women's track team got a chance to kick off the 1992 outdoor season with a rare appearance at home.

The Salukis made a strong showing in their lone home meet of the season Saturday. The men won and the women finished a close third in five team fields.

The Saluki men turned in 11 first-place finishes on their way to 105 points—38 ahead of second-place Illinois State, including top honors for sophomore Torre King in the discus (162.4 feet.) and the hammer throw 159-feet-11 1/2.

Junior Darrin Plab, who finished second at the NCAA indoor national championship meet in Indianapolis, won the high jump with a 7-3 leap.

Bears best Dawgs in opener of MVC

By Scott Wuerz
Sports Writer

The baseball Salukis got their first taste of the Missouri Valley Conference season. It was a bitter one.

The Dawgs went to Springfield Saturday and Sunday to battle the Bears of Southwest Missouri in a three-game series to kick off the MVC season and were only able to salvage one game in the set.

The Salukis, 1-2 in the MVC and 8-12 overall, were pounded in a doubleheader Saturday by 9-4 and 15-3 scores.

But in Game Three Sunday right fielder Ed Janke drove in three runs, and the Salukis avoided the sweep with a 5-3 victory.

The Dawgs took the lead in the top of the first, taking advantage of a wild start by SMSU's Bart Evans. Sophomore shortstop Clint Smothers walked to open the game.

After a one out walk by senior third baseman Brian Heather, Janke

Childress leads SIU to second in tourney

By Tony Mancuso
Sports Editor

After a less-than-satisfying fall season, the SIUC women's golf team played one of its best rounds ever Sunday to finish second at the Lady Topper Invitational.

Led by senior Anne Childress, the Salukis shot a 310 Sunday at the Hartland Golf Course in Bowling Green, Ky., and finished with a two-day total of 634.

Childress finished fifth individually with a two-day total of 154 as SIUC ended play just seven strokes behind tourney winner Michigan State.

Coach Diane Daugherty said she was particularly pleased with her young squad's play.

"We did not play well in the fall, and we were pretty disgusted," Daugherty said. "But 310 is one of the lowest

LEVY RESIGNS AS ISRAELI FOREIGN MINISTER — Foreign Minister David Levy, edged out by Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir from both party and foreign policy matters, angrily resigned from the government Sunday. Levy, who has consistently irritated Shamir and other leaders of the ruling Likud Party with his dovish pronouncements during the Middle East peace talks, announced he was quitting in a passionate hour-long speech. His resignation will take effect in nine days.

LABOR LEADS IN BRITISH PRE-ELECTION POLL — The election campaign of the ruling Conservative party drew strength Sunday from a new batch of opinion polls showing a relative improvement in the party's fortunes. But 11 days before the country's general election on April 9, most of the surveys still put the main opposition Labor party ahead in the neck-and-neck race by two to five percentage points.

ISRAEL FREES PEACE ACTIVIST — President Chaim Herzog freed peace activist Abie Nathan from prison Sunday, saying the maverick broadcaster who ignored an Israeli ban on contact with members of the Palestine Liberation Organization promised not to violate the law again. Nathan was sentenced to 18 months behind bars last October for meeting with PLO chairman Yasser Arafat. The veteran peace activist has been in poor health lately.

Bringing Africa to SIUC

African Awareness Week to show heritage, culture

By Fatima Janvekar
General Assignment Writer

The SIUC African Student Association will begin a week of education of Africa's culture and heritage today with the start of African Awareness Week.

The week begins today with a proclamation by SIUC President John C. Guyon at 10 a.m. in the Old Main room.

"The objective of this week will be to acquaint and make the people of Southern Illinois aware of African culture, traditions and heritage," said D. Abugarshall Kai, president of the ASA.

"African Awareness Week has been an annual event for 18 years at SIUC," Kai said.

"This year we have planned more events than before, such as a diverse cultural show which will feature students who will portray customs unique to their community," he said.

Nkiru Ngegwu, professor of art history and philosophy at SUNY University in New York will present two lectures to the campus and regional community addressing the contemporary arts in Africa and the role of culture in the social, economic and agricultural context of contemporary Africa.

Ngegwu will present "Contemporary arts in Africa" at 4:30 p.m. today at the University Museum in Farer Hall. She also will present "The role of culture in the development of Africa" at 6 p.m. Tuesday in the Student Center Auditorium.

The cultural and fashion show is planned at 6 p.m. Wednesday in the auditorium in Quigley Hall. The show will feature a variety of clothing styles from different parts of Africa and ancient customs will be recreated on stage.

Nigerian Nobel Prize-winner Wole Soyinka, the first black Nobel laureate in literature, will present a free public reading at 8 p.m. April 7.

"We will also have a soccer match which will involve African students at SIUC, Washington University in St. Louis and University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign," Kai said.

The match is scheduled for 10 a.m. Saturday at the playground opposite the Recreation Center.

A buffet and dance party also is planned for Saturday. Tickets for the buffet are $2 and $1 for the dance.

"Bridging the gap between African Americans and Africans" will be at the video lounge auditorium at 6 p.m. Friday in the Student Center.

The discussion will feature nine panelists from the University, cabinet committee and student body.

Dunn rejects restructuring of Du Quoin police facility

By John McCadd
Police Writer

State Sen. Ralph Dunn, D-Du Quoin, and Gov. James Edgar will meet Tuesday to discuss an Illinois State Police restructuring proposal that eliminates a district facility in Du Quoin.

Illinois State Police Director Terrence Gainer presented a plan, which represents the organization's first structural renovation since 1977, to Edgar earlier this year.

Under the proposed terms, existing regional police headquarters in Du Quoin would be merged with the facility in Ullin.

"The basic problem with the proposal is that the distance between the new office at Ullin and Du Quoin is 60 miles," Dunn said.

"The people of Du Quoin feel that they need a station in the area, which would be needed to assist with the Du Quoin State Fair and

Officials plan ahead of budget quagmire

Central to a good university and a good education is having a workable and diverse library. SIUC President John C. Guyon is proposing a new addition that will help push SIUC into the rapidly advancing future.

Guyon is proposing a $50 million addition to Morris Library that would provide students with state-of-the-art opportunities in electronic library functions and open the door to using telecommunications and advanced computing functions.

Currently Morris Library is in the process of becoming outdated, and disorganization of materials makes it extremely difficult to utilize the library fully. Increased computerization greatly would improve the user friendliness of the library and would open it up to students who now barely scratch the surfaces of its resources.

ALTHOUGH A LONG WAY FROM REALITY, the plans show SIUC's commitment to providing quality educational opportunities to the University population.

Along with advancing student access to educational materials, the proposed library would open up new avenues for research, thereby helping SIUC gain further recognition among national academics.

At face value the proposal is not designed to save money, but since the new annex is designed to be a technical building rather than a place to store books, a secondary benefit could be a reduction in operating costs through reduced purchasing of journals. Rather than the current system of backlogging volumes until they are converted to microfilm, the entire process could be done digitally, saving valuable time, library space and money.

The planning, if enacted, is meant to provide the University community with previously unavailable resources. This proposal is not a matter of finances; it is a straight forward attempt to better educational resources. As of yet there has been no bureaucratic bickering about costs related to Guyon's plans. Funding has not been requested so the usual financial arguments presented by state budget directors and political leaders have not been factored into the proposal.

Instead the costs of the project are being put aside while the real needs of researchers and students are weighed. Too often necessary upgrades and advancements are dismissed as being overly expensive in a time of tight budgets. Rather than educational needs, the available money often becomes the deciding factor in whether an idea advances to the proposal and planning stages.

IN AN ENVIRONMENT WHERE FUNDING pitfalls abound, it is important for administrators to keep planning for the future. In the current fiscal reality, the chances of a $50 million library annex being approved and funded are extremely slim, but the planning must be done if the chances are ever to occur.

Guyon and the Library of the Future Committee are proposing an important part of future educational opportunities at the University. Undoubtedly specifics of the library's new annex will change when the final product is offered to the state government for financing. But the administrative planners should not worry about funding the project until the proposal reaches a phase that merits further financial consideration.

THE PLANS SHOW GREAT OPTIMISM ON THE part of University officials to stay on the educational path despite budgetary detours. Hopefully their efforts will be rewarded and SIUC can enter the twenty-first century ahead of the pack.

Letters to the Editor

CESL teaches speech, writing

I am writing this letter in response to Mr. Boyer's letter on March 13. I will try to clarify his biases.

First, when two people from the same country speak the same language, it doesn't mean they can understand each other well. The understanding depends on a lot of factors, such as the type of message and its familiarity.

I am not trying to protect all the international students on campus. I agree that some foreign students need to work on their oral communication skills. But you can't say all international students have such poor skills. There is no passing or failing in the TOEFL.

Saying that we, international students, only do "enough to barely pass the test" was biased. Do you have any evidence to support this? I think you owe an apology to all the international students.

Third, if you think the CESL only teaches students how to pass the TOEFL, that is wrong! Its syllabus emphasizes both oral and written skills.

Fourth, SIUC is an equal-opportunity institution. Each department chooses students to be TAs based on their academic achievement instead of color or race.

Mr. Boyer, complaining is not a good method of problem-solving. You have to talk to a TA whom you have trouble with. Could it be that you didn't read the material before class? This could be the reason for the lack of understanding between you and your TA.

Furthermore, please do not assume things. Instead, gather some information first.

If this letter makes you feel bad, you can tell yourself, "I don't know what she's talking about, her English is grammatically wrong and illogical."

Maybe this will make you feel better.—Ming-Wai Tai, senior, communications disorders and sciences.

Student: Porn no root of rape

The good Dr. Lowry enlightened all of us. I'm sure, with his letter concerning the alleged connection between rape and pornography.

It seems he also feels that removing pornographic material from the University Bookstore will be effective in controlling rape on campus.

Rape is rape is rape! It is based on a hatred toward women, not on sexual excitation brought about by viewing pornographic material.

Dr. Lowry even goes so far as to say "soft porn" is correlated with rape.

Is he insinuating that people who flip through a Playboy or view the latest Michael Douglas film become potential rapists?

That's like saying the removal of all Judy Blume books from school libraries will keep seventh graders from experimenting with sex!

The root of the problem stems from many psychologically-based problems, some of which can be traced back to child abuse and sexual abuse. Simply removing sexually explicit material from bookshelves will not provide a cure for the rape epidemic. Certainly, the crime of rape hasn't sprung up as a product of our sexually open society. It has been around for many centuries.

Dr. Lowry also makes note of the fact that, according to Michigan state police, 41 percent of the 38,000 sexual assault cases reported to them involved the use of pornography "just prior to or during" the crimes.

What about the other 59 percent, Doctor? Were they the product of a mind demented by Judy Blume books?

The point being, just because someone views pornographic material doesn't mean that they will have twisted interpretations of their sexuality and lose respect for that of others.

Sure, some rapists view pornographic material, maybe all of them—but so do many people who never consider rape an acceptable act of sex.

Rape is a crime motivated by hate, not sex. Pornography is an industry fueled by sexual interest and experimentation.

And in case you didn't know, masturbation won't make you go blind. Dr. Lowry.—Jason S. Langston, junior, advertising.

'Satanic' deejay signs off on critic, praises freedom

I am writing in response to Mr. Bozek's letter on March 24. WIDB has nothing to do with this letter.

Mr. Bozek, I was that announcer you wrote about and I have one question for you—isn't this America? Land of the free, home of the brave. I am a student disc jockey at WIDB. I wear my hair long, wear a leather jacket, have my ears pierced, and even listen to heavy metal music—some of which deals with Satan. Does this make me a bad person? I think not. Mr. Bozek, I am also a Christian, and even though I listen to certain music that sings about Satan, I have a strong religious belief and I know that this music is not harmful to me or anyone else.

I also understand your right not to sign WIDB's petition, but you must understand my right to get people to sign—even if that means pleading with someone. I also never called anyone a "jerk," nor would I. Freedom of choice is what makes this country great and I believe in it wholeheartedly.

My comments about "our tribute to Satan" was nothing more than a joke regarding the song I had just played. I will not apologize because I don't feel it's necessary. Are you so insecure about your faith that you're afraid that by hearing the word "Satan" in a song you will go on a mad killing spree and begin worshipping the devil? Or if you listen to a Judas Priest record you will blow your head off? I am a firm believer in the First Amendment, which gives me the right to speak over the airwaves, gives musicians the right to sing about whatever they choose, and unfortunately gives you the right to send narrow-minded letters to the DE.—Robert Celosky, senior, radio and television.

one day to allow the crew to gather even more critical data about the health of Earth's increasingly polluted atmosphere.

"Everybody down here has been watching your good work and we wanted to send you the official word that we've decided to extend your mission to nine days," astronaut Jeff Wisoff radioed the crew Sunday morning from mission control in Houston.

"That's great news. The guys are really excited about it and have mortgage and utility bills) when I have to pay out-of-pocket for medical bills."

Employees of the University have been notified that any bill sent to the medical benefit provider for services rendered after Feb. 1, will not be paid until July or later.

Dennis Anderson, chairman of the Joint Benefits Committee, said he hopes the committee will be ready to send a summary of its findings and recommendations to University groups, local legislators, government agencies and the governor within the next three to four weeks.

"So far, no suits have been made against the state about this problem, except for a class action suit filed by a health care provider in Chicago," Anderson said.

Muriel Narve, president of the Civil Service Employee Council, said health care benefits are not a luxury, they are a necessity and many of the people she represents have had to give them up because of the repercussions.

Employees have taken risks with their credit rating, been looking forward to it," replied shuttle commander Charles Bolden. "Everybody's smiling, Jeff."

"We're smiling down here, too," Wisoff said.

Scientists were equally enthusiastic.

"We couldn't be more pleased. This is something we had hoped would happen," said mission scientist Marsha Torr. "We are trying to get a little bit of extra observing for every one of the investigations. We're busy right supplemental insurance which may cost $120 each month and personal loans to pay for services that the state has not paid, Narve said.

"Many employees have not gotten care for illness because, 'it will cost too much,' or they 'felt guilty for complaining about their health care benefits because they should be happy they still have their job,'" Narve said.

David Kenney, a political science professor, said the whole situation is ironic because if a private health care provider refused to pay for its policy holder's claims, the state of Illinois would revoke its license.

now ... starting to piece all of that together."

If all goes well, Bolden and co-pilot Brian Duffy will guide Atlantis to a dawn touchdown at 6:24 a.m. Thursday, 11 minutes after sunrise, on the Kennedy Space Center's 3-mile-long runway.

NASA officials said the preliminary weather outlook calls for generally favorable conditions with a chance of rain at landing time.

"Tides" is raped as a child by a brutal man.

The group also objects to lesbian scenes being cut from the film version of "Fried Green Tomatoes," nominated for Best Adapted Screenplay, that were in the book the film was based upon, "Fried Green Tomatoes at the Whistle Stop Cafe."

The films are getting worse before they are getting better, Sisneros said.

"When we're portrayed in films, we're disenfranchised from the mainstream and consistently shown in a negative light, if shown at all," she said. "These images Hollywood sends out sends a message to Americans that we have no value to society—and we're here to say it's not okay and that we're not going to take it anymore."

Michelle Malkin, co-director of SIUC's Gays, Lesbians, Bisexuals and Friends, said the protest at the Academy Awards will get people thinking about the issue, but will put gay rights in a more negative light.

"It will be interesting to see what Hollywood's reaction to the protest will be," she said. "But I think it will inflict even more homophobia because a protest depicts a negative act rather than a positive. Something has to be done, but a protest is not the most positive (action)."

The exact form the planned protests will take remains a mystery to be solved as the events of the evening unfold, but the purpose has already been served because the issue now is being discussed, Keating said.

"Given the current lack of education of most Americans about homophobia in the United States, it's no surprise to me if some type of backlash results from this," she said. "But Martin Luther King had to think there would be a backlash on his march on Washington—it's a riff we're willing to take."

responsibility of contributing to this hate."

Joined by Queer Planet, OUTRAGE!, Catherine Did It! "and any other queer who happens to be outraged," Queer Nation demonstrators are planning to picket outside the pavilion, block traffic with "stalled" cars and distribute maps with the addresses of celebrities they say are closet gays, Keating said.

"We'll be inside; we'll be outside; we'll be everywhere," she said. "There will be civil disobedience and lots of surprises—the whole idea is to be visible."

But the big "surprises" are yet to happen inside the auditorium.

She did not confirm a report in Entertainment Weekly indicating gay and AIDS activists have infiltrated the ranks of the Academy's ushers and security guards, Keating said the possibility exists.

An "Entertainment Tonight" report indicated a major winner or presenter may speak out from behind the podium. Judy Sisneros, a queer national, said "it's been talked about."

"We're calling in all queers to speak out," she said. "And we know there are going to be some queers who are presenters and some queers who are winners."

Academy spokesman Bob Verden said no extra security has been added for the protest and he does not expect it to be different than any other year.

"We don't perceive this as a threat," he said. "It's a protest, and we have protests every year at the Academy Awards—we kind of look forward to it, I guess you could say."

Oscar is no stranger to protest.

An AIDS protester gave an outburst at the Academy Awards show last year when presenters stepped forward to announce Best Actor, and AIDS drama "Longtime Companion" actor Bruce Davison had just lost Best

Supporting Actor to Joe Pex

"AIDS action now! 102,000 dead! People are dying!" an AIDS activist shouted from the audience. But the outcry, and the perpetrator's escort from the premises, went unnoticed to 1 billion television viewers in 91 countries because cameras were pointed elsewhere.

This year, however, the protests may not be so easy to get around, Keating said.

"We know they have 22 cameras in the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion, and we know they have a triggering device if there's any protest where they can immediately switch to a commercial," she said. "We know it exists, and we have contingency plans if that happens."

The Academy's efforts to keep the protest out of view to the TV audience is insignificant to Queer Nation's efforts, Sisneros said.

"They don't understand they're the recipients," she said. "All the directors, producers, actors, screenwriters—all those who have a hand in what's being done in Hollywood—are going to be there. It's very convenient for us."

Queer Nation sponsored a session in civil disobedience training last Thursday to give protesters a legal overview of what charges can be expected and what to say to police officers when arrested.

"We plan to break the law, but to make a political statement," Sisneros said. "We have no choice in this, we have to fight for our lives."

Queer Nation cites three of the Best Picture nominees this year as films that unacceptably portray gays.

"Silence of the Lambs" involves an FBI agent on the trail of a transsexual serial killer, the alleged plotters in the assassination of President John F. Kennedy are portrayed as homosexual in "JFK" and Nick Nolte's character in "Prince of

'White Men Can't Jump' has impressive opening weekend

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Basketball comedy "White Men Can't Jump" soared past "Basic Instinct" to top a strong pre-Oscar weekend with about $15 million in ticket sales at 1,920 screens, according to industry estimates Sunday.

"White Men" duplicated "Instinct's" feat of topping $15 million in its debut Friday-through-Sunday weekend and underscored a savvy marketing decision by 20th Century-Fox to open the movie during the regional finals for the NCAA men's basketball tournament.

"White Men," starring Wesley Snipes and Woody Harrelson as playground hustlers, will probably have an impressive run in April with the climax of the college and pro basketball seasons.

It is also the first significant hit for Fox since last summer's "Hot Shots!," which grossed more than $60 million.

TriStar's "Instinct" posted a strong showing in its second weekend with $13.3 million to $13.5 million at 1,770 screens, losing a relatively small 10 percent of its opening weekend audience.

The murder-mystery drew protests last weekend from homosexual and women's groups over its negative portrayal of lesbians. No incidents were reported this weekend.

"Instinct" has now taken in nearly $35 million in 10 days and has a shot at reaching $100 million.

Paramount's 'Wayne's World,' which led the box office for five weekends and finished second last weekend, moved into third with $5.4 million to $5.7 million at 1,878 screens. The goofy comedy has now topped $87 million in 45 days. 'Basic Instinct' and 'White Men Can't Jump' now ahead.

million.

"White Men" and "Instinct" should continue to top the box office next weekend.

They will face competition from the opening of Universal's dog comedy "Beethoven," TriStar's Indian mystery "Thunderheart," and Disney's latest Dolly Parton vehicle, "Straight Talk."

Paramount's "Wayne's World," which led the box office for five weekends and finished second last weekend, moved into third with $5.4 million to $5.7 million at 1,878 screens. The goofy comedy has now topped $87 million in 45 days.

Fox's comedy "My Cousin Vinny" continued its solid performance with $5.3 million at about 1,500 screens, bringing its 17-day total to about $24 million.

Paramount's comedy, "Ladybugs," starring Rodney Dangerfield as a girls' soccer team coach, opened adequately in fifth with $4.7 million to $5 million at 1,528 screens.

The debut of MGM-Pathe's ice skating romance, "The Cutting Edge," was more impressive in sixth place with $4.2 million at just 775 screens.

New Line's virtual reality drama "The Lawnmower Man" was tied for seventh with Universal's Southern drama "Fried Green Tomatoes."

Both took in about $2.4 million at about 1,300 screens.

Universal's "American Me" continued to drop off sharply with about $1.4 million at about 800 screens in its third weekend.

Warner Bros.' anti-apartheid drama "The Power of One" opened respectably with about $700,000 at 143 screens.

However, Propaganda Film's "Ruby," an exploration of Lee Harvey Os vald's assassin, failed to generate much interest with just $600,000 at 754 screens in the wake of the hugely successful Oliver Stone film, "JFK."

capital worth $2.6 billion.

"It is their goal to become one of the top companies to produce food in the United States," Gutteridge said.

The executives are exploring the possibility for further internationalization in South East Asia as well.

"I know from the press that the U.S. economy has been going through a tough time for a number of months," Kao said. "However, there are indications that we're coming out of the recession. I believe in the strength of the U.S. market and that this is the place that I would like to invest."

Anti-Japanese sentiment is strong in the United States because of an imbalance in trade, he said.

The company has not received any hostility while trying to build in the United States, but if so it would try to overcome the hostility, Kao said.

"This is a friendly investment not a take-over situation," he said. "We are not buying the companies to rip them into parts and sell them off. We buy them to build upon the foundation it has had in the past and make it a better company in years to come."

Kao is confident business leaders in Japan will gradually open the market to U.S. companies to sell their products abroad.

More than 95 percent of the company's sales are domestic within Taiwan, said George Liu, vice chairman and CEO for the company.

"For further growth, we obviously need to go international," he said. "Therefore, about one year and a half ago, we invested $335 million and bought the third largest cookie company (then known as Wyndham Co.) in the United States," he said.

The cookie company's operating headquarters is in Georgia, and has eight plant locations throughout the southeast corner of the country.

The acquisition was encouraged by both United States and Taiwan governments, he said.

President Enterprises Corp. is a diversified food company with 15,000 employees in Taiwan, 2,700 in the United States and about 82 manager-ranked personnel.

The company began in 1967 producing food such as, animal supplements, flour, salad oils, noodles and other food products and has expanded into pork, soya sauce and milk processing.

The company executives work with companies such as General Foods, Pepsi Cola, Frito-Lay, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Seagrams and Amheuser-Busch in Japan, United States and Europe.

the prison work camp at Du Quoin," he said.

Illinois State Police could begin taking steps as early as September to merge the Du Quoin facility in Ullin.

"The new station would also cause communication problems since the new station at Ullin would be so far from the present station," Dunn said. "Radio communication from Du Quoin and Pinckneyville would be impossible."

But Sgt. Charles Schwarting, spokesman for the state police, said the idea began the proposal is to reduce long-term costs.

"The state police currently spend $8.9 million on maintenance and renovation of several police offices," he said. "In the long run, we would save $11.5 million annually."

"Gainer's choices of the districts that would merge are based mostly on their locations, population, crime stats, and the physical conditions of certain offices that require a great deal of spending for maintenance," Schwarting said.

After meeting with Gainer last week, Dunn said the state police director is sympathetic to the people of Du Quoin.

"After discussion, Gainer agreed that there should be a (state police) presence in Du Quoin," Dunn said.

"We agreed that an ideal place for a station would be somewhere between Marion and Mount Vernon on Route 57," Dunn said, but the funds are not available to build such a station.

A Night at the Oscars

Daily Egyptian

Best-picture picks reflect diversity

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The slate of the best-picture candidates for the 64th annual Academy Awards, being presented Monday night, without question shows the sweeping range of Hollywood's 1991 offerings.

Most of the five finalists—the roster that should represent the finest films produced, each the sum of great parts—evoked few superlatives, attesting to a mediocre year.

"Bugsy," the tale of gangster Benjamin "Bugsy" Siegel, goes in to Monday's awards ceremonies with the most nominations—10—including best picture, actor (Warren Beatty in the title role) and director (Barry Levinson). But forecasters do not expect a runaway when the statuette is presented in ceremonies televised live from the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion.

"Bugsy" tells of Siegel's fascination with Hollywood and his role in the rise of the Las Vegas strip, embellishing or history just enough to make a hood into a hero and fit his story into a formula mold.

Beatty and co-star Annette Bening as his starlet-girlfriend Virginia Hill gave commendable performances, but moviegoers and industry insiders alike seemed more interested in their off-screen romance, parenthood and recent marriage than in their work.

For each interview, question Beatty fielded about playing Bugsy, he was barraged by countless others concerning his love life.

"JFK," the Oliver Stone film that alleges a high-level government conspiracy behind the assassination of President John Kennedy, won critical acclaim for Stone's vivid re-creation of some of the most chilling scenes etched in Americans' memories.

But it has been widely criticized for going far beyond questioning the validity of the Warren Commission investigation and report, linking Vice President Lyndon Johnson with a murder conspiracy allegedly orchestrated by the Central Intelligence Agency.

The theories espoused in "JFK" were not new—they were based on a book by New Orleans prosecutor Jim Garrison, played by Kevin Costner, on public documents and on work by other assassination researchers.

But the movie put the controversy before the American public on a huge scale, smudging the lines between history and artistic license and prompting many to debate the responsibilities filmmakers do or do not have when they make movies about actual events and people.

"The Prince of Tides" was produced and directed by Barbara Streisand, who plays a New York psychiatrist interviewing a Southern football coach (Nick Nolte) in an effort to learn about his twin sister's troubled past and her reasons for attempting suicide.

The film received seven nominations, including best actor for Nolte, supporting actress (Kate Nelligan) and screenplay adaptation.

But Streisand, nominated for a Director's

Guild award, was not on the Oscars list for directing, an omission that many said showed the academy's prejudice against women directors.

The nomination of "Beauty and the Beast" for best picture—a first for a fully animated feature—is more than a tribute to Walt Disney Pictures' artistry.

It may be a reward for having successfully adapted the classic fairy tale—about a beautiful girl and a prince cursed to be a beast until he learns to love—into the 1990s.

"The Silence of the Lambs" was released in February 1991, about a year before the current nominees were announced several reviewers prematurely congratulated Anthony Hopkins for his Oscar-winning performance as Hannibal "the Cannibal" Lecter, the sociopath that a rookie FBI agent (Jodie Foster) quizzes to try to catch another murderer.

Hopkins' character was mesmerizing and menacing, even when standing perfectly still in the center of his prison cell or tightly bound to a board for his transfer, his dark eyes peering through a catcher's mask meant to protect his guards from his appetite for flesh.

"Silence" could be the most deserving of the best picture award because it excels in many categories. It may be the only one of the five that could have made the grade if it were released a year earlier against Oscar winners "Dances With Wolves," "Good Fellas" and "Awakenings."

Academy announces list of Oscar nominees

'Hudson Hawk' wins awards for worst movie, screenplay

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — On the eve of Hollywood's Oscar presentations, the Golden Raspberry Award Foundation announced it's worst movie of the year—"Hudson Hawk," starring Bruce Willis.

In the eyes of the 365-member Razzie organization, "Hudson Hawk" was so bad it wasn't even able to sweep the 12th annual awards.

Although Willis was a nominee for worst actor, that dubious distinction went to Kevin Costner for his sleepwalking performance in "Robin Hood, Prince of Thieves," which the Razzies retitled "Robin Hood, Prince of Dweebs."

Sean Young became the first actress to win both the worst actress and worst supporting actress awards for her appearances in the same movie, "A Kiss Before Dying."

Double loser Young played twins in the drama. She was chosen worst actress for playing the twin who survives in "A Kiss Before Dying," and worst supporting actress for the twin who was murdered.

But "Hudson Hawk" led all other 1991 movies with three Razzies this year. In addition to worst picture, Michael Lehmann came away with the award for worst director. Willis, Steven E. deSouza, Daniel Waters and Robert Kraft were voted Razzies for worst screenplay.

Dan Aykroyd won the organization's scorn as worst supporting actor of the year for his performance in "Nothing But Trouble," which he also directed. Aykroyd was the only previous Razzie winner among this year's losers.

Worst new star honors went to Vanilla Ice for two performances, one in "Cool As Ice" and the other in "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles Part II."

Voted worst song of the year was "Addams Groove" from "The Addams Family," written by Hammer and Felton C. Pilate II.

Student PR firm sponsors lecture on crisis coping

By Jeremy Finley
General Assignment Writer

The vice president and senior partner of Fleishman-Hillard Public Relations in St. Louis will speak on handling crises in public relations agencies at 7 p.m. Wednesday in Lawson 141.

The lecture is part of a meeting by Pyramid Public Relations, a SIUC public relations student-run firm.

The meeting is unique for both its location and the guest speaker Barbara Abbett, said Andrew Krause, vice president of operations for Public Relations Student Society of America.

The Pyramid meeting this week will take place in a larger room than usual to hold a big audience, and the firm's speaker will be Abbett instead of the usual client of the firm.

The bi-weekly meetings of Pyramid usually take place in the speech communications conference room in the Communications Building when account executives of the student firms' clients bring oral and written reports, Krause said.

Amy DaRosa, profession planning director for PRSSA, said all majors are welcome to the meeting Wednesday.

"The meeting is going to be a very interesting one," DaRosa said. "It will be worth while for everyone to attend."

Abbett has been with the Fleishman-Hillard agency for 17 years and is a specialist in crisis management, she said.

"The crises she will be speaking on are not physical crises, such as a plane crashing, they are ones PR agencies deal with when problems in the companies they work for arise," DaRosa said.

"An example of a crisis is if a president of a company was charged with prostitution, and how the PR agency would deal protecting the company's name," she said.

The meeting will be an open forum and those attending will be able to participate.

The

Saturday afternoon dedication took place during Theta Xi's Midwest Regional Chapter conference, in which seven chapters are represented. The fraternity was able to move onto Greek Row because an opening became available when Tau Kappa Epsilon moved out of its home. Greek organizations are put on a waiting list for houses on the row.

Mae Smith SRA resigns, arrested on theft charges

By John McCadd
Police Writer

SIUC student Phillip J. Holub, a Mae Smith student resident assistant, has resigned following his arrest this month in connection with theft and criminal damage to property charges.

Holub, a junior from New Lenox, was arrested on a warrant March 11 by SIUC police.

According to police reports, Holub and Thomas J. Meyer, 21, from McHenry allegedly broke into and stole money from a PepsiCola machine in Union County.

Assistant director of housing for student life, Steve Kirk, said Holub's housing contract was terminated after his resignation.

Holub resigned by choice.

Women's group sponsors design contest for t-shirts

The Women's Safety Week Committee is again looking for t-shirt designs for Carbondale's annual "Take Back the Night" rally against sexual violence.

Local artists will judge the designs, due April 15, and the winner will receive $75 at a reception held April 24.

All designs must fit on one side of an adult's large-sized shirt, consist of no more than three colors (or a single fluorescent one), include the words "Take Back the Night 1992" and specify the t-shirt color.

Entrants should send their designs with their names, addresses and daytime phone numbers to Women's Studies at SIUC. Designs will be returned if accompanied by a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Drop off

Anthony Cauthen, Carbondale, holds the rope for Erent Matsumoto, junior in mechanical engineering from Hawaii, while Monte Childers, Makanda, removes his gloves. The men were rappelling Saturday at Giant City State Park.

Police Blotter

Carbondale police reported a home invasion at 1:50 a.m. Saturday on the northeast side of Carbondale.

The victims were Willie B. Mackey, 44, and a 15-year-old juvenile.

Police said three black males, ages 14 to 19, knocked on the door and were admitted.

Upon admission, one of the suspects began beating the 15-year-old victim, while the other two pointed handguns at the other visible occupants of the house, ordering them not to intervene.

Mackey then intervened and the suspects fled, police reports said.

Carbondale police arrested Jimmy L. Granderson, 27 Friday in connection with armed robbery charges.

Granderson was arrested on warrant at University Mall in connection with a robbery of a Domino's Pizza delivery driver, police reports said.

Granderson was taken to Jackson County jail in lieu of $1000 bond.

Carbondale police reported a theft at University Mall Friday between 8:15 p.m. and 9:00 p.m.

Police reports said the theft occurred in the parking lot in front of JC Penney's at 1135 E. Main.

Crystal L. Voorhees, 27, of 2331 E. Lindell reported her car window shattered and theft of $146 of newly purchased clothing, police said.

Man allegedly holds K mart security guard at gunpoint

By Casey Hampton
Special Assignment Writer

A Carbondale K mart security guard allegedly was held at gunpoint about 7 p.m. Sunday night.

Carbondale Police refused to confirm a description of the male suspect.

As the Daily Egyptian went to press, the suspect had not been apprehended.

Ron Hayes, a K mart security guard, was standing inside the front doors.

A man wearing a nylon stocking on his head approached Hayes, pointed a gun at his head and told him to unlock the doors so he could get out. The man apparently hid out in the store after closing, Hayes said.

"I was in shock for a couple minutes and then I ran to the back of the store to see my manager about what had happened," he said. "I couldn't do anything; I had to open the doors."

Hayes said his manager indicated an unspecified amount of money was taken, but this was not confirmed by police.

"I love my job, but I can't get killed for it," Hayes said.

A man fitting the description of the alleged robber was frisked by police inside Kroger grocery store. He was released because no evidence was found.

Police refused to comment and said more information would be available at a later time.

Social work licensing topic of awards lunch

By Brandi Tipps
Administration Writer

Sheldon Goldstein, executive director of the Illinois chapter of NASW, will speak at SIUC today on the importance of licensing in the field of social work as part of an annual awards luncheon.

The SIUC School of Social Work and the Southern Illinois chapter of the National Association of Social Workers are sponsoring their luncheon in conjunction with Social Work Day.

Goldstein, the incoming national executive director of NASW, will begin his presentation about 2 p.m. in the Student Center auditorium.

March marks Social Work month.

Wisconsin Gov. Tommy Thompson signed Wisconsin's new social work certification act last week, which legally regulates the social work profession. Wisconsin is the last state to enact such legislation.

"State licensing assures the consumer that there is legal accountability," Mark G. Battle, executive director of NASW, said in a release.

"When people seek help, they are usually at their most vulnerable—ill, destitute, anxious, unable to cope.

The untrained or unscrupulous could do them real damage," he said.

NASW is continuing to work for the improvement of existing laws. Some states require only simple registration, without requiring an examination to become a social worker.

In a few instances, a degree in social work is not required. Wisconsin was the last state to regulate the social work profession.

The luncheon will begin at 12 p.m. in Ballroom B of the Student Center. It is open to the public. The cost is $2.75 for faculty, staff and students and $5.50 for the public.

The National Association of Social Work will present awards to the citizen of the year, the social worker of the year, the undergraduate student of the year and the graduate student of the year.

The School of Social work also will give plaques to students who have won various scholarship awards.

NASW has 140,000 members nationwide.

Cuts in education funding threaten Macomb economy

MACOMB (UPI) — A financial crisis in education threatens to sidetrack Macomb's vibrant, college-town economy.

Residents wonder what will become of the strong housing and retail markets if, as expected, scores of teachers start moving away after the spring semester ends.

"The economy's been real good —houses are going up and they're putting up a Wal-Mart," said Jim Turke, a local real estate appraiser. "But prospects for continuing growth are iffy right now. You just don't know what's going to happen."

Two public school districts and Western Illinois University—the largest employer in this town of 19,000—have been affected by statewide reductions in education funding.

The Macomb School Board last week voted to lay off 91 of the district's 350 employees, including teachers, secretaries and bus drivers. Two schools will be closed and student fees increased. The changes take effect at the end of the spring semester.

Another 71 Macomb district employees—including all athletics coaches—were warned that they might be laid off later. All extracurricular activities are in jeopardy.

Similar cuts were made last week in Colchester, just west of Macomb. A dozen teachers were included in the layoffs by the Colchester School Board.

And slimmer staffs are imminent at Western Illinois University, which has already imposed a hiring freeze.

WIU President Ralph Wagoner has proposed trimming $2.3 million from the campus' $62 million budget next year. Another $1.2 million would be cut each year in 1994 and '95. A final decision is expected soon.

No layoffs have been announced and university officials "hope to get any staff reductions through retirement or regular attrition," said WIU spokeswoman Bonnie Barker. WIU employs about 1,700 employees.

"There will for sure be fewer people on this campus," Barker added.

With education jobs drying up, officials such as City Administrator Robert Morris are concerned about the town's chances for maintaining a moderate economic boom.

and the Bearcats won all four.

Despite the overwhelming press that carried the Bearcats to the win, questions remain about Cincinnati's ability to beat a truly great team. The Bearcats, seeded fourth in the region, did not have to face a team seeded higher than they were. No. 1 seed Kansas, No. 2 USC and No. 3 Arkansas were all eliminated by teams other than the Bearcats.

Herb Jones scored 23 points for Cincinnati and shut down Memphis State star Anfernee Hardaway to boost the Bearcats to 29-4 and put them in the Final Four for the first time in three decades.

Anthony Buford, one of Cincinnati's guards who helped fuel a big run at the end of the first half and another at the start of the season, said he hoped his team would now be recognized as a legitimate college basketball power.

"We feel like there is still a lack of respect for us," said Buford. "We watch TV and read the papers. They'll talk about the East Regional or they'll talk about Michigan and Ohio State then when they come to the Midwest Region, they say a couple of sentences and move on."

"Now that we're going to the Final Four, I ask if we can get some respect now?"

Whether the Bearcats get that respect in Minneapolis will likely depend on how they fare against Michigan, a team that has depended on five freshmen.

One of those freshmen, Chris Webber, scored the game tying basket with 30 seconds left in regulation and then converted a key 3-point play in overtime that pushed the Wolverines in front by six. Webber scored 23 and another freshman, Jalen Rose, added 20.

"We managed to find a way to get the victory," Fisher said. "The best thing we did was hang together."

"Jalen kept us in sync and Chris played like a man. We're headed to the Final Four and we're tickled to death."

he was impressed by the dominating victory because of the relaxed atmosphere of the meet.

Senior Garret Hines won the 200 meter dash and Kenton Rolle won the 400.

Junior Bernard Henry won the 800-meter run and John Hirsch won the javelin throw with a 196-foot 10-inch toss.

"We tried to experiment and have a little bit of fun," he said. "We let some people compete in events they might not normally try. Because of that I was surprised by the wide margin of victory, but these people are very competitive by nature."

The women were encouraged by their showing because of the inexperience of the team, assistant coach Kathy Raske said.

"The competition was tough, and we only took a partial squad to (the team's first outdoor meet at) Florida State, so I think this was a pretty good first time out," Raske said.

"Illinois State is expected to be the top team in-conference this season, so I think we have a good idea of what we need to do this season."

First-place finishers for the women include sophomore Cathy Kershaw, who won the 10,000 meter run in 39:14.4, Lecann Conway-Reed won the 3,000 meter in 10:25.95, and Nacolia Moore out-leaped the field with a 37-4 effort in the triple jump.

The men next will compete Saturday at the Tyson Invitational in Fayetteville, Arkansas, while the women will be in action at Southeast Missouri.

Raske said the women may try some changes to shake up the squad in Cape Girardeau.

"We might try to play around with the relay team a little bit," she said. "But we're going to have to wait and see how things turn out in practice."

sacker Andrea Rudanovich.

Bradley scored more time more in the seventh, but it was not enough.

Junior pitcher Angie Mick, who took the win to improve to 7-3, said the team is starting to round into form.

"I have a tendency to get tired through the game, and one of my goals was to stay in the games," said Mick, who won two games in the tournament. "I was getting a little tired in the seventh, but my team's defense backed me up. I think we're starting to break out of our slump."

Before the championship game Saturday, SIUC beat Bradley 6-0 behind freshman pitcher Shelly Lane, who improved to 5-4 on the year. The Salukis had 16 hits in the game.

SIUC scored its first run in the third inning. Holloway came home on a single from Wilson. The Salukis put the game away in the fourth inning with six hits.

Rudanovich led off the inning with a double. Sophomore third sacker Maura Hasenstab, senior shortstop Cheryl Venorsky, senior center fielder Kim Johannsen and Holloway each followed with a hit. The Salukis scored three runs.

Holloway and Wilson were both two-for-four with two RBI. Johannsen was three-for-five with two RBI. Rudanovich was three-for-four and Klotz was two-for-three.

In the first game Friday the Salukis beat SEMO 5-3.

The Salukis scored two runs in the first and three in the third to lead 5-0. SEMO scored one in the fourth and two in the sixth off of errors. Johannsen was two-for-three, Holloway was one-for-three including a RBI. Hasenstab was also one-for-three extending a six-game hitting streak, the longest of the season.

Mick had six strikeouts and allowed four hits and one walk.

In the second game, SIUC beat Evansville 3-0. Rudanovich was two-for-three including a double. Holloway was two-for-four including a triple, and Venorsky was also two-for-four.

Senior pitcher Dede Damell, 3-4, gave up only one hit in seven innings pitched. She had three strikeouts and three walks.

SEMO finished third in the tournament beating Evansville 3-0.

The Salukis next play a doubleheader against Evansville at 3 p.m. Tuesday in Evansville, Ind.

delivered a double off the base of the right center field wall, chasing two runs home. Janke took third on the attempt to throw Heather out at the plate, then scored on a sacrifice by Shelton.

Saluki head coach Sam Riggelman sent senior right-hander Mike Van Gilder to the mound for eight strong innings.

The Bears made the game close in the bottom of the second with a four-hit, two-run rally.

But they were unable to tie the game as Van Gilder repeatedly worked out of trouble. He stranded seven Southwest base runners.

The Salukis added an insurance run in the seventh, taking advantage of three walks by SMSU reliever Mike Whitley and an RBI single from Janke.

But the Bears staged a ninth-inning rally.

Riggelman elected to lift Van

Gilder for senior closer Ryan McWilliams, who had been starved for work as the Dawgs had lost four of their last five. McWilliams walked the bases loaded on 13 pitches before he was able to shake off the cobwebs.

He proceeded to strike out the side swinging.

On Saturday SMSU starter Greg Resz held the Dawgs in check in the opening game, scattering five hits for a complete game victory.

In the second game, the Salukis jumped on top on a home run by senior catcher Derek Shelton, but were unable to hold the lead as the Bears stormed back with four runs in the bottom half of the inning.

SIUC reliever John Etzel shut down SMSU for 4 1/3 innings, but the Bears broke through with eight runs in the ninth and slammed the door shut on the Dawgs.

scores we have had.

"We are a very young team, and I was very happy with our play today."

She said she also was proud that her team could beat Gateway rival Illinois State. The Redbirds finished seventh with a two-day total of 659.

"ISU is definitely the conference favorite," Daugherty said. "They beat us in the fall, and to top them is a confidence builder."

Individually for SIUC, sophomore Leslie Brunk shot a 159, junior Tracey Pace shot a 162, and sophomore Lieschen Eller finished with a 166.

Injured sophomore Laura Stefanich did not play Saturday but scored a 75 Sunday. Senior Gina Giacone, who competed as an individual but not for SIUC, finished with a 164.

Women netters get first wins of spring on road

By Norma Wilke
Sports Writer

The SIUC women's tennis team is working on building its confidence level back up, coach Judy Auld said.

After a disappointing 0-6 start, the Salukis won two of three dual matches this weekend. SIUC dropped its first match to Memphis state 3-6 on Friday. The Salukis came back on Saturday to beat Southern Mississippi and Tennessee-Martin 6-3.

SIUC had a two-week break before the three matches, and Auld said the break gave the netters a rest.

"Overall I was pleased with the weekend," she said. "We finished on a positive note and that hopefully brought our confidence level back up. We needed to get back into the competition and win a couple of matches.

"I would have liked to play a couple of matches before Memphis State. We beat them here (in fall). We have a good rivalry with them, and we tend to split the two matches we have with them during the season."

Against Memphis, junior Wendy Varnum beat their No. 1 player Kerri Britt 6-2, 6-0. Freshman Irena Feofanova, No. 4, beat Dawn Norrey 7-5, 6-4. The Salukis went into the doubles down 4-2. Varnum and sophomore Ann Tsui won the No. 3 doubles against Britt and Tina Tuhalo 6-4, 6-3.

Against Southern Mississippi, Varnum

beat Kim Clark 6-1, 7-5. Feofanova won at the No. 3 spot against Lisa Bustin 6-2, 6-2. Junior Karen Wasser, No. 5, beat Tina Bustin 6-2, 6-4, and Tsui, No. 6, beat Aimee Thomas 6-3, 6-4.

In doubles competition, sophomore Leesa Joseph and senior Lori Edwards beat Thomas and Clark 6-1, 2-6, 6-2. The match was determined with the win, so the No. 3 doubles team, Varnum and Tsui, did not finish their match.

Feofanova said when others on the team got sick, she had to move up.

"I tried my hardest, and things turned out pretty good," Feofanova said. "Everybody was happy about this weekend. It helped us build up our confidence level."

Against Tennessee-Martin, Feofanova stepped into the No. 2 position because Edwards was sick and beat Gina Warren 6-4, 6-0. Joseph, No. 3, beat Vivian Mendoza 6-4, 6-3. Wasser beat No. 4 player Heidi Marrow 6-4, 7-5 and sophomore Wendy Anderson, No. 6, beat Ashley Miller 6-2, 6-0.

In doubles at No. 1, Joseph and Edwards beat Mendoza and Warren 6-4, 6-4. At No. 3 Tsui and Varnum beat Nancy Dunn and Miller 6-0, 6-0.

Auld said Feofanova and Tsui both did a good job stepping in when other players were down. Varnum and Tsui also started to work together better in doubles, she said.

The netters next play against Louisville at 3 p.m. Friday in Kentucky.

Unified NHL owners prepare for first strike ever in league

CHICAGO (UPI) — NHL owners, "unified like never before," voted unanimously Sunday to hold steady on their so-called last contract offer to the players, setting the stage for the first strike in the league's 75-year history to begin Monday afternoon.

The NHL Board of Governors, many of whom had negotiated with the players' union until dawn in Toronto before flying to Chicago to meet privately, emerged from a six-hour meeting apparently prepared for a work stoppage.

No further talks were scheduled before the Monday noon EST strike deadline set by the NHL Players' Association. NHLPA Executive Director Bob Goodenow earlier Sunday issued a statement saying the players also stand united.

NHL President John Ziegler said the owners negotiating committee simply reported to the rest of the Board of Governors the status of the last five days of talks with the NHLPA and they then voted to stand by their last proposal, apparently rejected by the players.

Ziegler said he spoke with Goodenow by telephone following the Board of Governors meeting, and the union boss said he would get back to him. Goodenow was not immediately available for comment on what the NHLPA would do next.

"With the board having met all day and the NHL meeting with their constituents, Bob has to go on with his own meeting," NHLPA spokesman Nigel Miller said. "It would be unfair to offer a statement at this point with Bob not having consulted his player reps."

Marathon talks between the Owners Committee and players' association broke off at 5:30 a.m. EST Sunday without a new collective bargaining agreement, although the two sides appeared closer. The owners presented what they called their "last offer," and the players countered with another offer. Those two different proposals apparently remain on the table.

"There's been nothing changed as far as I know," Ziegler said.

"There's nothing more for us (the owners negotiating committee) to meet about right now. We've given the players our proposal. We're hopeful they're considering it. ... When we broke up (early Sunday morning), we had a proposal that was comprehensive. They had a proposal that was comprehensive. They were in some places close, in some places they were in agreement, and in some places they were far apart."

Laettner's footwork scars Duke victory

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — There was an imperfection in Christian Laettner's sublime performance in the NCAA East Regional final.

Laettner, whose winning shot at the overtime buzzer lifted Duke to a gripping 104-103 victory over Kentucky Saturday, was whistled for a second-half technical for stepping on a fallen opponent.

With 8:06 remaining, Laettner caught a pass underneath and was fouled while driving by Kentucky's Aminu Timberlake. Timberlake fell after committing the foul and Laettner firmly, but gently, stepped once on his stomach.

Laettner, who scored 31 points and did not miss either a field goal or a free throw, was called for a contact technical foul.

Timberlake was not injured and was smiling once the technical was called.

"It hurt us," Duke Coach Mike Krzyzewski said. "It was a bad play on Christian's part."

Kentucky quickly overcame a 10-point deficit, setting the stage for one of college basketball's greatest games.

Laettner, apparently upset over what he perceived was an undercut by Timberlake, is known for a nasty streak on the floor. He will scream at teammates and opponents alike.

Laettner was involved in an incident in last year's tournament in which Connecticut's Rod Sellers slammed his head to the floor. Sellers was not called for a violation, but the NCAA, after reviewing game tapes, suspended Sellers.
